JAVA is an interesting place for married ladies. A chief of the country gave orders recently that on his decease his two youngest wives should be killed in order to accompany him to the next world. The two women became aware of the fate awaiting them and fled to the English fort on the border, where they put themselves under the protection of the English flag. But women always were contrary.

Let the People Speak.

MANHATTAN, KAN.

R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—Your Favorite Prescription has done my wife a world of good. She has taken nearly two bottles and has felt better the past two weeks than at any time in the past two years. No more periodical pains; none of that aching back or dragging sensation in her stomach she has been accustomed to for several years. I have so much confidence in it that I would be perfectly willing to warrant to certain customers of ours who would be glad to get hold of relief at any expense. I have tried many Patent Medicines, but never had any occasion to extol one before.

Very truly yours, GEO. B. WHITING.

MRS. E. B. DALY, Metropolis, Ill., writes: "Dr. R. V. Pierce—My sister is using the Favorite Prescription with great benefit."

MARY ANN FRISBIE, Lehman, Pa., writes: "Dr. R. V. Pierce—What I have taken of your medicine has been of more benefit to me than all others and hundreds of doctor's bills."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is sold by dealers in medicine generally.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE.—Dr. Wilhoft's Anti-Periodic or Fever and Ague Tonic! No case of incurable Chills has yet presented itself, where this scientific and safe medicine has been employed. No case has been found so obstinate as to resist its prompt and masterly action. No man has been so reduced by malarial influences, but with its use has come up perfectly reconstructed. No pills or purgative required with this medicine. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

SAVE MONEY.—It is well worth saving, and you can save it in buying a sewing machine, and get one of the best and most perfect machines in existence. The Wilson shuttle sewing machine has reached a point of excellence and perfectness equaled by no machine in use, and the constantly and rapidly increasing demand, which is almost beyond their manufacturing capacity to supply, is convincing evidence that the merits of this machine are appreciated. Machines will be delivered at any railroad station in this county free of transportation charges, if ordered through the company's branch house, at 197 State street, Chicago. They send an elegant catalogue and chromo circular free on application. This company want a few more agents.

CORN and flour are staple articles; but not more so than Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, where known. It is good for children or adults, for any internal soreness of the chest or bowels, and the best Liniment prepared, under whatever name.

THE all-gone feeling which people sometimes speak of, is caused by want of proper action of the liver and heart. These may be assisted, and the bowels regulated, by Parsons' Purgative Pills in small doses.

GLEN FLORA SPRING WATER, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

HOW TO GET A HOME. See advertisement.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES. For the rich, with few children, it may do to buy a Shoe without Tips, but to those who are blessed with little money and many children it is ruinous to buy any other than SILVER-TIPPED Shoes.

To convince you of the great popularity of the CABLE SCREW WIRE you need only see the base imitations and vain attempts to get up something similar. Genuine Goods have the Patent Stamp. CABLE SCREW WIRE

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G CO., Buchanan, Mich.

$10 to $25 PER DAY—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

$75 A WEEK. Agents wanted everywhere! For outfit &c. FRITCH & WALKER, Dayton, Ohio.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEO. STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

$250 A MONTH to male and female agents everywhere. Address EUREKA MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Buchanan, Michigan.

LUCRATIVE POSITIONS FOR TEACHERS. Apply, for circular, WESTERN SCHOOL AGENCY, Box 20, Chicago, Ill.

Guns Catalogue Free. Rudolph & Co., 1918 N. 5th St. Louis, Mo.

GEO. P. ROWELL & Co.

EPILEPSY or FITS cured by the use of Ross Epileptic Remedies. Trial Package Free. For circulars, evidence of success, etc., address ROSS BROS., Richmond, Ind.

DIRT. EASIEST and hardest work in the house made comparatively easy and pleasant. Every one interested in reducing woman's work should send now a stamp for our circular. GRAY, DIXON & CO., 61 Clybourn Ave., Chicago.

F. J. NASH, 781 BROADWAY, New York, manufacturer of SOLID GOLD JEWELRY of every description. The stock is large, very choice, and is offered at retail at trade prices to keep our workmen going. Bills under $15, P. O. order in advance. Over $15, C. O. D. privilege to examine. Catalogues free.

YOUNG MEN Wanted to learn Telegraphing and take offices on new lines which we are furnishing with operators. Salary from $40 to $100 per month. Particulars mailed free. Address N. W. TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE, Janesville, Wis.

HOW TO CURE Corns, Neuralgia, Asthma, Chills and Fever, Drunkenness, Rheumatism. TO MAKE Hair Grow, Ottawa Beer, Boots Waterproof, Yeast. Send 10 cents for either receipt or the 10 for 50 cents. PERRY & CO., P. O. Box 2321 or 212 Broadway, N. Y.

DR RIDGE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS

Standard Lotta Bustle. Has outsold all others several times over; is perfection. Diploma awarded it each year by American Institute. A. W. THOMAS, 91 White St., New York, 801 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

BOOKS FREE!! One Dollar's worth of Popular Books, or choice Music, sent free. Inclose stamp for Catalogue. Address PHILA. AND N. Y. PUBLISHING CO., 139 South Seventh Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

HOW TO GET A HOME. IOWA LANDS. 800,000 ACRES. Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to DAVIDSON & CALKINS, R. R. Land Office, Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

ATTENTION, OWNERS OF HORSES. Ask your Harness Maker for the Zinc Collar Pad. They are warranted to cure any sore neck on horse or mule, or money refunded, if printed directions are followed. Send 25c. for sample. Zinc Collar Pad Co., Sole Manuf'rs, Buchanan, Mich.

Trusses, Supporters and Pile Pipes. "Seeley's Hard Rubber Trusses." Cool, cleanly, light, perfectly safe and comfortable, free from all sour, rusty, chafing, strapping, or poulticeing unpleasantness; used in bathing, indorsed by the profession, long tested, always reliable. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. Genuine stamped "I. B. Seeley." Establishments, 1347 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, and 737 Broadway, New York. Sent by mail or express, and sold by leading druggists. Send for catalogue.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT. The BEST Elastic Truss without metal springs, patented 1871 and 1873, with the latest improvements, embodying the fruits of the highest inventive skill, and perfect in materials and workmanship, is sent by mail, postpaid, for $4, single, like cut, or $5 for both sides. Illustrated descriptive Pamphlet, with full directions, free. No ruptured person should fail to send for it. Address (mentioning this paper) POMEROY & CO., 744 Broadway, N. Y. This ELASTIC TRUSS is warranted BETTER than the best made by Elastic Truss Co., or any other makers.

SEA FOAM. E. W. Pierce & Co., Providence, R. I., say: "We have used the Sea Foam a long while and consider it the best Baking Powder in use." Demond, Hills & Nickerson, Grocers, Boston, Mass., say: "Wherever we have sold your Sea Foam it has given excellent satisfaction, and it is pronounced superior to any known Baking Powder." Try it. "Its economy is wonderful; it saves Milk, Eggs, &c., and sells like Hot Cakes." Send for Circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & Co., 176 Duane St., N. Y.

DRUGGISTS, DYERS, TAILORS, FAMILIES. One dozen 8-oz. bottles sent for $2 00 (Retail price $6), of Celebrated Fragrant SAPOLIENE For removing Grease, Tar, Paint from Kid Gloves and Clothing of all kinds, without stain or injury. Sent C. O. D. on receipt of express charges or guarantee of same from Express Ag't. Address W. M. HALLOCK, 78 Jackson-st., Chicago.

BURR MILLS FOR CORN, FLOUR & FEED, large capacity, small weight & price. My specialty 20 years. Gold Medals for fast grinding with small power. 14,000 sold. 20 patents for grinding & bolting vegetables and minerals, by hand, horse, wind, steam, or water power. Send stamp for cuts & prices. EDWARD HARRISON, New Haven, Conn.

Broaddus's Great Liquid Compound Bug and Insect Destroyer and Fertilizer. Your crops may be saved by investing one or two dollars. Send for circular containing full particulars. Agents wanted in every State and County. Address B. V. BROADDUS, 139 Longworth St., Cincinnati, O.

WANTED AGENTS—everywhere to canvass for our great Centennial Book, worthy the special notice of experienced agents. For particulars, address the publisher, B. B. RUSSELL, Boston, Mass.

THIS paper is printed with Ink furnished by Charles Eneu Johnson & Co., 509 South Tenth Street, Philadelphia, and 59 Gold Street, New York. For sale in 25 and 50-pound cans by THE NEWSPAPER UNION, Chicago, Ill.

TEA AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE—The choicest in the world—Importers' prices—largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—trade increasing—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular to ROBERT WELLS, 43 Vesey Street, New York. P. O. Box 1287.

AGENTS WANTED for the fastest-selling BOOK ever published. Send for circulars and our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUB. CO., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

$10. to $500. Invested in Wall Street often leads to fortune. A 72-page book explaining everything, and copy of the Wall Street Review SENT FREE. JOHN HICKLING & Co., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, N. Y.

DR. LANGELL'S NEW ASTHMA AND CATARRH REMEDY. Having struggled twenty years between life and death with ASTHMA, I experimented by compounding roots and herbs and inhaling the medicine. I fortunately discovered a wonderful remedy and sure cure for Asthma and Catarrh. Warranted to relieve instantly so the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Druggists are supplied with sample packages for FREE distribution. Call and get one, or address D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio. Sold by Druggists. Full-size Package, by mail, $1.25.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE. MEDICINE RENDERED USELESS! VOLTA'S ELECTRO BELTS and Bands are indorsed by the most eminent physicians in the world for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, liver complaint, dyspepsia, kidney disease, aches, pains, nervous disorders, fits, female complaints nervous and general debility, and other chronic diseases of the chest, head, liver, stomach kidneys and blood. Book with full particulars free by VOLTA BELT Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

PORTABLE Soda Fountains, $40, $50, $75 & $100. GOOD, DURABLE AND CHEAP. Shipped ready for Use. Manufactured by CHAPMAN & CO., Madison, Ind. Send for a Catalogue.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE LIVER PILLS FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

DO YOUR OWN PRINTING! NOVELTY PRINTING PRESS. For Professional and Amateur Printers, Schools, Societies, Manufacturers, Merchants, and others it is the BEST ever invented. 13,000 in use. Ten styles. Prices from $5.00 to $150.00. BENJ. O. WOODS & CO. Manuf'rs and dealers in all kinds of Printing Material. Send stamp for Catalogue.) 49 Federal St. Boston.

In Actual Use: MORE THAN 55,000 ESTEY ORGANS! MANUFACTURED BY J. ESTEY & CO., BRATTLEBORO, VT. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

CHEAP FARMING LANDS. The C., R. I. & P. R. R. Company is offering for sale at Low Prices and Most Reasonable Terms, TO ACTUAL SETTLERS, Some of the Most Desirable and Fertile Unimproved Land in IOWA! These Lands are situated on or near the line of its railroad, the GREAT CENTRAL ROUTE from the Eastern States to the Pacific Coast, and are mostly between the important cities of Des Moines and Council Bluffs, in the best Agricultural and most rapidly-developing portion of Iowa. PRICES ARE LOW, Ranging from $5 to $10 per acre. The average price being somewhat less than $8. Exploring tickets, by purchasing which railroad fare can be applied on payments for land, are for sale at the principal ticket offices of the Company in Iowa and Illinois. For Maps, terms of sale and directions to intending purchasers, address J. L. DREW, Land Commissioner, C., R. I. & P. R. R. CO., DAVENPORT, IOWA.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. What are Your Symptoms? Are they pain in the right side, yellowness of the eyes, nausea, debility, irregularity of the bowels, and headache? If so, your liver is wrong; and to set it right, and give tone and vigor to your system, the one thing needful is Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

BECKWITH PORTABLE FAMILY SEWING $25 MACHINE DOUBLE THREAD BECKWITH S. M. CO. NEW YORK & CHICAGO.

RUBBER PAINT
MANUFACTURED BY THE
RUBBER PAINT CO. OF CLEVELAND, O.
THE BEST PAINT
IN THE WORLD.

BRANCH OFFICES AND FACTORY: 506 WEST ST., New York. No. 210 South Third St., St. Louis, Mo. No. 83 West Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill. Any Shade from Pure White to Jet Black. A combination of the purest paint with India Rubber, forming a SMOOTH, GLOSSY, FIRM, DURABLE, ELASTIC and BEAUTIFUL Paint, unaffected by change of temperature, is perfectly water-proof and adapted to all classes of work, and is in every way a better paint for either inside or outside painting than any other paint in the world. Being from one-third to one-fourth cheaper, and lasting at least three times as long as the best lead and oil paints. Be Sure that Our TRADE MARK (a fac simile of which is given above) is on every package. Prepared ready for use, and sold by the gallon only. There has never been a Paint offered the public that has become so popular (in the same time) and given as perfect satisfaction as the Rubber Paint.

$20000 GOLD! To Agents in addition to largest cash commission, AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY with fashion plates and supplements. Specimen and circulars free. WALKER, REED & CO., 728 Sansom St., Phila.

N. F. BURNHAM'S TURBINE WATER WHEEL Was selected, 4 years ago, and put to work in the Patent Office, Washington, D. C., and has proved to be the best. 19 sizes made. Prices lower than any other first-class Wheel. Pamphlet free. N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

RANK'S GRAVE GUARDS. Designed for the purpose of preserving the symmetry of burial mounds, and holding the usual Head and Foot Stones more securely and permanently in position. Illustrated Catalogues furnished on application. AMOS RANK & CO., Salem, Ohio.

Smith Organ Co., BOSTON, MASS. These Standard Instruments Sold by Music Dealers Everywhere. AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWN. Sold throughout the United States on the INSTALLMENT PLAN: That is, on a System of Monthly Payments. Purchasers should ask for the SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN. Catalogues and full particulars on application.

OPIUM Habit Cured. A certain and sure cure, without inconvenience and at home. An antidote that stands purely on its own merits. Send for my quarterly magazine, (it costs you nothing,) containing certificates of hundreds that have been permanently cured. I claim to have discovered and produced the FIRST, ORIGINAL AND ONLY SURE CURE FOR OPIUM EATING. DR. S. B. COLLINS, La Porte, Ind.

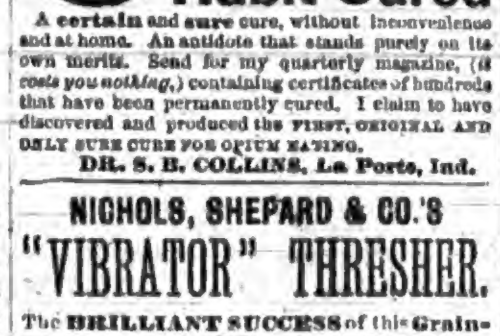
NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.'S "VIBRATOR" THRESHER. The BRILLIANT SUCCESS of this Grain-Saving, Time-Saving THRESHER, is unprecedented in the annals of Farm Machinery. In a brief period it has become widely known and FULLY ESTABLISHED, as the "LEADING THRESHING MACHINE."



GRAIN RAISERS REFUSE to submit to the wasteful and imperfect work of other Threshers, when posted on the vast superiority of this one, for saving grain, saving time, and doing fast, thorough and economical work. THRESHERMEN FIND IT highly advantageous to run a machine that has no "Beaters," "Pickers," or "Aprons," that handles Damp Grain, Long Straw, Headings, Flax, Timothy, Millett and all such difficult grain and seeds, with ENTIRE EASE AND EFFECTIVENESS. Cleans to perfection; saves the farmer his thresh bill by extra saving of grain; makes no "Litterings;" requires LESS THAN ONE-HALF the usual Belts, Boxes, Journals, and Gears; easier managed; less repairs; one that grain raisers prefer to employ and wait for, even at advanced prices, while other machines are "out of jobs." Four sizes made with 6, 8, 10 and 12 horse "Mounted" Powers, also a specialty of Separators "alone," expressly for STEAM POWER, and to match other Horse Powers. If interested in grain raising, or threshing, write for Illustrated Circulars (sent free) with full particulars of sizes, styles, prices, terms, etc. NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Michigan.

ELASTIC TRUSS. THE ELASTIC TRUSS AND SUPPORTER is now superseding all others, being adopted everywhere by the leading physicians, surgeons, druggists, army and navy, hospitals, gymnasiums, etc., etc. The success and universal satisfaction they have given, as well as the great number of radical cures they have effected, has demonstrated the fact that rupture can be surely cured without suffering or annoyance, and without the danger of incurring Spinal Disease or Paralysis, often caused by the severe pressure of Metal Trusses and Supporters. It is the only sure cure for Hernia, as it is the only Truss in use that will hold the rupture securely in all positions in which the body can be placed. It will perform radical cures when all others fail. It can be worn with ease and comfort when no spring truss can be used. When once adjusted, no motion of the body or accident can displace it. These instruments have the unqualified approval of the most eminent practitioners in the profession. From the numerous testimonials in our possession we append the following: "After ten experiments of months, patients testify strongly to its efficacy, as well as to the ease and freedom from inconvenience with which the instrument is worn. With superior advantages, the Elastic Truss possesses in a high degree ALL requisites and qualifications claimed for other Inventions. I have no hesitation in regarding it as an important means for the relief and cure of Hernia." "J. M. CARNOCHAN, M. D., "Ex-Health Officer of the Port of New York, Surgeon-in-Chief of New York State Hospital," etc., etc. GEO. V. HOUSE, M.D., Superintendent Elastic Truss Co.: Dear Sir: After suffering for thirty years, in my own person, from the use of every form of Metallic Truss procurable in this country and in Europe, I, two years ago, applied your Elastic Truss, and since that time I have experienced comfort and satisfaction, and been taught the truth, that the Elastic Truss is the only instrument that should be used for the relief and cure of Hernia; and now, after more than thirty years' continuous practice, and having adjusted many hundreds of Trusses (and for the last twenty months yours exclusively), I gratefully declare it to be my deliberate opinion that your Elastic Truss is the only one entitled to the confidence of the public; that elasticity is the only power at all adapted to the requirements of a Truss or Supporter, and am convinced that your Elastic Truss actually cures a large proportion of all cases to which it is applied, not only among children, but in numerous cases within my own knowledge of patients from 50 to 75 years of age. H. BURNHAM, M. D., Prof. of Anatomy and Surgery, N. Y. E. Medical College. Beware of cheap and worthless imitation Elastic Trusses, which some parties advertise and sell, fraudulently representing that they are manufactured by the Elastic Truss Co. These Trusses are sent by mail to all parts of the country. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Before purchasing any other, write for Descriptive Circular (free) to the ELASTIC TRUSS CO. 683 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

"PSYCHOMANCY, or Soul Charming." How either sex may fascinate and gain the love and affection of any person they choose, instantly. This art all can possess, free, by mail, 25 cents; together with a Marriage Guide, Egyptian Oracle, Dreams, Hints to Ladies, &c. 1,000,000 sold. A queer book. Address T. WILLIAMS & CO., Pub's, Philadelphia.

DR. WHITTIER, No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo., continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. Dr. W.'s establishment is chartered by the State of Missouri, was founded and has been established to secure safe, certain and reliable relief. Being a graduate of several medical colleges, and having the experience of a long and successful life in his specialties, he has perfected remedies that are effectual in all these cases. His patients are being treated by mail or express everywhere. No matter who failed, call or write. From the great number of applications he is enabled to keep his charges low. 36 pages, giving full symptoms, for two stamps. MARRIAGE GUIDE, 260 pages, a popular book which should be read by everybody. No married pair, or persons contemplating marriage, can afford to do without it. It contains the cream of medical literature on this subject, the results of Dr. W.'s long experience; also the best thoughts from late works in Europe and America. Sent sealed, post-paid for 50 cts.

VINEGAR BITTERS. PURELY VEGETABLE. FREE FROM ALCOHOL. DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. EUREKA.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California, and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

A Great Offer! HORACE WATERS & SONS, 481 Broadway, New York, will dispose of 100 PIANOS & ORGANS of first-class makers, including WATERS', at EXTREMELY LOW PRICES for cash, DURING THIS MONTH. WATERS' New Scale Pianos are the best made; the touch elastic, and a fine singing tone, powerful, pure and even. WATERS' Concerto ORGANS cannot be excelled in tone or beauty; they defy competition. The Concerto Stop is a fine imitation of the Human Voice. Agents Wanted. A liberal discount to Teachers, Ministers, Churches, Schools, Lodges, etc. Special inducements to the trade. Ill. Catalogues Mailed.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, MAY. 27, 1875

At last Mrs. Lincoln has given way to the hidden grief that has been preying on her mind since the death of the President. She has been adjudged insane, and will be sent to a private asylum for care.

◆

Thomas McIntyre, Supt., of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum,at Indianapolis is charged with seducing several inmates thereof. Affidavits to that effect were published in the Sentinel last week. If he is guilty of half that is said about him, he ou ht to have an investigating committee from his church.

◆

Starvation already stares the poor people of Kansas in the face. At Osage, a party of farmers, respectable men and once well to do, forgot all the scruples of honesty, decency and regard for law, and breaking into a mill, forcibly took sixty sacks of flour If the plague of the grasshoppers continues, such accurences may become common, that is, if there is flour enough.

◆

Missouri is justly alarmed at the approach of the all-destroying grasshoppers, and the governor, more devout than practical, has appointed a day of fasting and prayer. There are some well attested instances of the efficency of prayer mentioned by religious writers but as a general thing, difficulties of the nature of grasshoppers prairie-fires and doubts are not visibly affected in that way. There is but one way to deal with the grasshoppers, it appears to us, and that is to make war upon them—fierce, uncompromising war.—The men of the cities in Missouri should turn out by thousands to help the farmers extinguish the grasshoppers.

◆

Michael Hogan lived in a tasteful residence in Debuque, on a bluff which commanded a view of the river and city. He was in good circumstances and was employed on a railroad. The other morning about five o'clock he started to get up and make a fire. His wife objected and said she preferred getting up and making the fire herself. He, however, insisted on rising and told her to lie still, and take a morning nap. She yielded and dropped asleep. When she woke up again she listened and heard no sounds of movement about the house. She got up and found the fire had not been made. The kitchen door was open, the cover was off the cistern. She looked down and saw a man in his night clothes in the bottom. Some men came and dragged him out quite dead. He has spoiled the water in that cistern. If Mrs. Hogan had insisted and enforced her right of getting up and making the fire she would doubtless have had her husband yet.

◆

THE GRASSHOPPERS.

Minnesota.

Recent hopes that most of the grass hoppers' eggs had been killed by the prolonged rainy cold weather, are shaken by reports yesterday and to-day from western counties. In McLeod, they are hatching in great numbers on the lighter sandy soil. In LeSueur county they are also hatching fast, and the people of the infested region fear their coming in countless myriads with dry weather, which may be expected next month, though some still cling to the belief that the eggs were partly hatched by the early warm weather and killed by the succeeding cold.

The region involved this year includes sixteen counties in the upper Minnesota and Red River Valley, having an aggregated population of about 60,000, and producing about 1,500,000 bushels of surplus wheat last season.

In Kansas the grasshoppers are producing a horrible panic among the business men and farmers in eastern Kansas, and western Missouri. They are marching in countless myraids, destroying in some places the oats,corn grass—in fact every green thing. They are going in a northwestern direction and there is a faint hope that they may leave in time to allow the farmers to get a part of a corn crop. In southern Kansas the crops look well and the grasshoppers have disappeared altogether. A great deal of damage has been and will still beb e done by these pests.

In Missouri, immence swarms of chinch bugs are flying about in Clinton and adjoining counties,and swarming over several western counties of this state.

A Reminiscence of Hon. Jesse D. Bright

The announcement of the death of Hon. Jesse D. Bright last week will recall a remarkable episode in the political career of that gentleman. In 1861 Mr. Bright represented Indiana in the United States Senate. He was a prominent Democrat, a bitter partisan, and the war fever was running high. It was charged against Mr. Bright that he had written a letter to Jefferson Davis recommending a gentleman who had an "improvement in fire-arms. A resolution expelling him from the Senate for disloyalty was offered and referred to the Judiciary Committee. On the 13th of January 1892, the Committee reported that the facts charged were not sufficient to warrant the expulsion of Mr. Bright On the 20th, the matter was again taken up, and the resolution was offered by Mr. Wilkison, of Minnesota, upon which the Committee reported as follows:

"Whereas. Hon. Jesse D. Bright, heretofore on the 1st day of March, 1861, wrote a letter, of which the following is a copy."

"Washington, March, 1, 1861

"My Dear Sir: Allow me to introduce to your acquaintance my friend Thos. B. Lincoln, of Texas. He visits your Capital mainly to dispose of what he regards a great improvement in fire-arms. I recommend him to your favorable consideration as a gentleman of the first respectibility and reliable in every respect."

'Very truly yours, Jesse D. Bright'

"To his excellency Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States"

"And whereas We believe the said letter is evidence of disloyalty to the United States, and is calculated to give aid and comfort to the public enemies; therefore,

"Be it resolved. That the said Jesse D. Bright, is expelled from his seat in the Senate of the United States."

Mr. Wilkinson took the floor in support of the resolution. Mr. Bayard, of Delaware, opposed in a calm, dignified and sensible speech.

He was expelled from the Senate. Feb. 2, 1872, by a vote of 32 to 14. He afterwards settled in Kentucky, from whence he removed to Baltimore where he has since resided. Bright was a strong adherent of the Democratic party during his whole life, and at one time was considered the leader of that party in this State. After his expulsion from the Senate he disappeared from public life and little has been since heard from him.

◆

The negro teamsters, cooks, laborers who were in the Governments employ from 1862 till the close of the war are gently requesting that the United States pay them about fifteen millions of dollars, alleged to have been forcibly extracted from their wages by Mr. Stanton's Quartermasters at the rate of five dollars a month. This tax of five dollars a month was called a "contraband fund." It doesn't appear where this "contraband fund" went and the law for its collection is not visible to the naked eye. But the negro is rapidly learning "what Governments are for." He wants an appropriation. The present Secretary of war knows nothing about a 'contraband fund" and he is sure that he has no such moneys to disburse. Such a fifteen million request, ten years old, would look suspicious but for the fact that it is presented by the black man who of course, is honest and loyal, and can not err. The black man is swiftly becoming acquainted with the modern "American system."

◆

TAKE
SIMMONS
LIVER
REGULATOR

The Favorite Home Remedy.

This unrivalled southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is containing those Southern Roots and Herbs, which an allwise Providence has placed in countries where Liver Diseases most prevail. It will cure all diseases caused by derangement of the Liver or Bowels.

Purely Vegetable.

Simmons' Liver Regulator, or Medicine, is eminently a family medicine, and by being kept ready for immediate resort will save many an hour of suffering and many a dollar in time and doctors' bills.

After over Forty Years' trial it is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Eminent physicians commend it as the most

Effectual Specific

for Constipation, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, despondency, gloom and forebodings of evil, all of which are the offspring of a diseased Liver.

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

Armed with this ANTIDOTE, all climates and changes of water and food may be faced without fear. As a Remedy in Malarious Fevers, Bowel Complaints, Restlessness, Jaundice, Nausea,

It Has No Equal.

It is the Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World! Manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,

Macon, Ga. and Philadelphia.

Price $1. Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875

Miller & Casebeer's

CORNER STORE AHEAD.

An immense stock of

SUMMER GOODS

JUST RECEIVED!

Call and examine Goods and Prices.

Goods marked down 25 per cent lower than ever offered before in this market. A mammoth stock of

FINE DRESS GOODS,

to select from, now is the time to call and

SECURE BARGAINS,

you can save 25 per cent, by buying your goods now at

MILLER& CASEBEER'S

Corner Store.

The Pioneer

HARDWARE

Emporium!

Now full to overflowing with an Immense stock of

HEAVY AND SHELF

Hardware, Cutlery, Tin Ware.

I would call special attention to my depaptment of

HARDWARE,

FURNISHING &

BUIDERS STOCK,

in which will be found everything at the very

LOWEST PRICES,

Such as:—

OILS,

PAINTS,

GLASS,

NAILS,

SASH.

DOORS, ETC

—A FIST-CLASS—

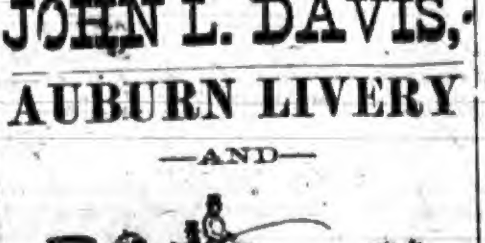
Tin-Shop,

in connection with the Hardware Store, with a skillful foreman. All kinds of Tin-ware manufactured and repaired on short notice.

JOHN L. DAVIS,

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—



SALE STABLE!

Ryan & Mader, pro's

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

hey are prepared to furnish rigs at all times at reasonable prices. Stable east of Court House.

A NEW PLACE

TO GET A

Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with M. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R

IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,

Notions, etc., of

CHARLES KLOTZ

AT HIS

Old Stand

ON MAN STREET,

Opposite Court Square

AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accomodate customers, and sell them such good as they may need,

CLOTHING

Of all descriptions, and

HANDSOME SUITS

Made to Order!

Administrator's Sale.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned, Administrator of the estate of Michael Sheets deceased, will offer for sale at Public Auction, at the late residence of the decedent, in Jackson-tp., DeKalb County, Indiana, situated one mile south of Auburn,

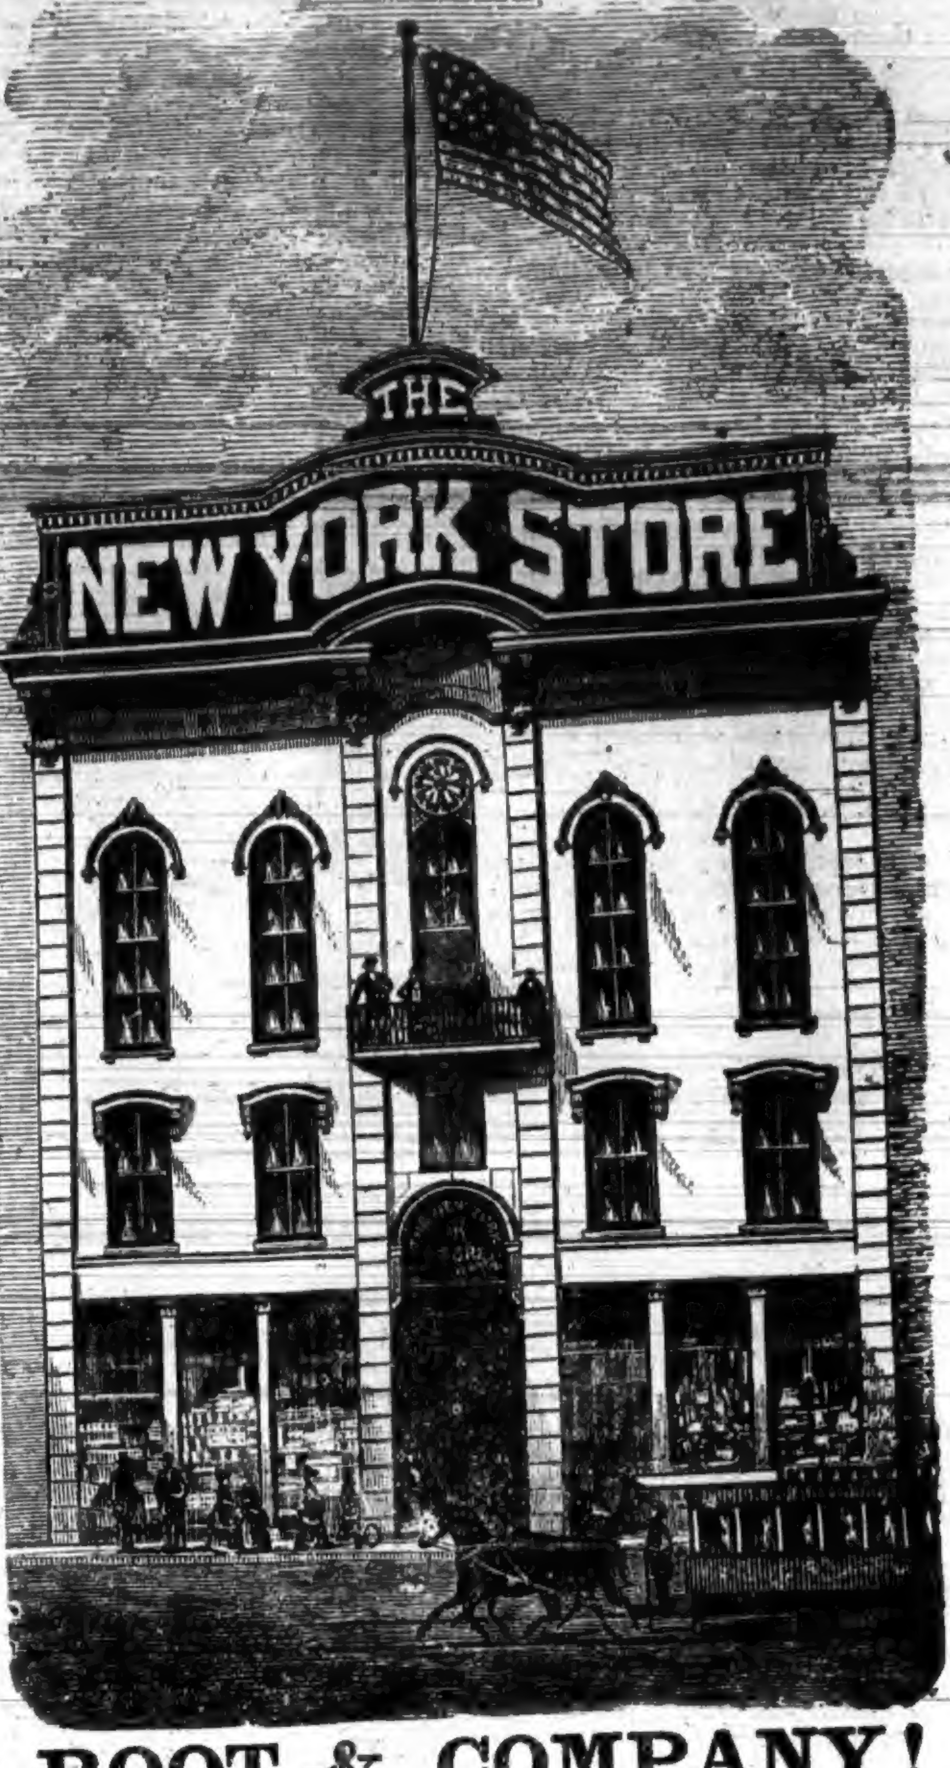
Saturday May 15th, 1875.

the personal property of said estate, consisting of Horses, Cows, Hogs, Two-horse wagon, Bob-sleds Ohio Combined Reaper and Mower, Ball Mower Wheat Drill, Corn Drill Sulky Hay Rake and other farming implements, Hay by the ton, Corn and Oats by the bushel and other articles too numerous to mention. Sale to begin at ten o'clock am.

TERMS—Sums of $3 and under cash, over $3 a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving his note with interest waiving valuation and appraisement laws and with good security.

CHRISTIAN SHEETS, Adm'r.

April 22, 1875.



ROOT & COMPANY!

Invite the attention this week, to a number of new patterns of Body Brussels Carpets, English Tapestry Carpets, Extra three ply Carpet, Extra super Ingrain Carpets. Also to their elegant line of low and medium priced Carpets, at 25, 35, 40 and 50 and 60c per yard, and to the most extensive line of Floor and Table oil cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Matts, Lace and Fottingham Curtains, etc., to be found in the city. N. B.—This department of our busines being under the charge of an experienced carpet man, parties who favor us with their orders will be entirely satisfied with the manner they are filled.

HOSIERY! Now in stock a complete stock of English, German and Domestic Cotton Hosiery for Ladies, Gentlemen, Misses, Boys and Children's use, in every size and quality at extremely low prices

Kid Gloves, Summer Gloves, and a full line now open for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, including Harris' Seamless Kid Gloves, and our favorite "Perinot Gloves," both makes unsurpassed for perfect fit and durability.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT! Silk goods department. Men's ware department. Linen goods department. Cloak and Shawl department. Fancy goods department. Our corset department. Cotton goods department. Muslin and Underware department. Parasol department. Sun umbrella department.

Newly assorted this week at

ROOT & COMPANY,

46 and 48 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne,

☞ Opposite the Court House. ☜

☞ MANY New and Choice Goods on sale at Bond's Novelty Store, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Indiana. New goods arriving daily. Special bargains in

Table Linen,

Corsets, Gloves, Hosiery; Muslins, Flannels, White Goods, Ladies Ties, Handkerchiefs, Portmonies and many goods not kept elsewhere. Large four-story stone front building, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Ind.

SAW MILL FOR THE PEOPLE.

THIS patent portable Muley Saw Mill is adapted to any locality, will saw any kind of logs, and will do as much work (power and hands being considered) as the best Circular Mills. Its frame, head-blocks, and working parts are of the most substantial and permanent kind, being made entirely of iron and steel. It is usually set up and started in from one to two days time. It is generally driven by threshing engines of not exceeding ten horse power. It cuts from 2000 to 4000 feet of inch lumber per day. The Mill and Engine may conveniently be operated by two men. Send for circular.

CHANDLER & TAYLOR.

Indianapolis, Indiana.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,

Reps,

Gimps,

Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with

Shades,

Lace Curtains,

Oil Cloths,

and Mattings

in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.,

26 East Berry street.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY,
WASHINGTON, March 25th, 1875.

WHEREAS by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that the Frst National Bank of Auburn, in the town of Auburn, in the county of DeKalb and State of Indiana, has been duly organized under and according to the requirements of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide a National Currency, secured by a pledge of United States bond, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," approved June 3rd, 1864 and has complied with all the provisions of said act required to be complied with before commencing the business of Banking under said act.

Now therefore I, JOHN JAY KNOX Comptroller of the Currency do hereby certify that the Frst National Bank of Auburn, in the town of Auburn, in the county of DeKalb and State of Indiana is authorized to commence the business of Banking under the act aforesaid.

{Seal.} In testimony whereof witness my hand and seal of office this 25th day of March, 1875.

JNO. JAY KNOX.
Comptroller of Currency.
No. 2286

April 1st, 1875.

THE FIRST

National Bank

OF AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight.

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of th U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Colleciions made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:

J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:

JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

April 29, 1875.

AUBURN MARKETS.

CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Wheat—White	$1.10	Hogs—live	$6.00
Amber—red	1.05	Hogs—dressed
Rye	.75	Turkeys—live	.08
Oats	.35	Chickens—live	.07
Corn	@ .55	Butter	.16
Potatoes	@ .85	Lard	.15
Flax Seed	1.60	Eggs	.12
Clover Seed	6.50	Tallow	.07
Wool	.45 @ .60	Timothy Hay	12.00

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Corn planting in order.

The wheat is all hunky.

"Kinder warm, I donno."

Some rumors of matrimony.

New goods at Little & Fair's.

How does your garden sass look?

Quite a crowd witnessed the "hopper"

Eaton & Jackman are moving in their room.

For a nice set of croquet, go to Houser & Co.

A fence is going round the M. E. parsonage.

Abright just received a large stock of goods.

The Goshen horse fair, June 22d, 23d and 24th.

The Eel River road has changed time. See card.

Beard is going to do a cash business after June 1st.

Perry Martin, of Jackson-tp., will have a public sale June 12th.

Some of our boys are going to the lakes to fish.

The frame is up for En. Kuhlman's new residence.

The Warsaw "Union" has been removed to its new home.

"Decoration Day" will be celebrated in Fort Wayne.

The little chaps are seeing which can hop the furtherest now.

Mrs. Dr. Littlefield is visiting friends in Michigan.

The Leasure Bros. have their ice cream parlors in running order.

Ladies call at Abright's, and examine his handsome styles of Fan chains.

E. Ashley is building a nice residence in his addition, south of the one he now occupies.

One of our clerks forgot to take in his "show goods," and they are watting for him at Beard's soda fountain.

The young man that hopped a half mile, last Monday, on one limb, made it in 7½ minutes.

Sol. Noel had the misfortune to cut his thumb nearly off, while making pins with an axe.

Our exchanges are generally at peace with each other, except the "Columbia City papers. They are long winded down there.

We call attention to the "Well Auger' advertisement by Levi Brown, in another column.

Ellsworth, Andrew & Co., have made a change in their advertisement this week. Look elsewhere.

If S-i-o-u-x spells su, and e-y-e spells i, and s-i-g-h-e-d spells side, why does'nt s-i-o-u-x-e-y-e-s-i-g-h-e-d spell suicide?

A man got run over, by the cars, at the Junction, yesterday. He lived some two hours afterward.

The iron water pipes busted by the cold winter, in Laport will prove a loss to that city of $30,000.

If you want to buy tin-ware cheap go to Goodman's, south of Auburn House. He sells cheap.

The clothing department at Miller & Casebeer's has been taken to the second floor, so as to make it convenient for customers.

S[illegible] is now indulging in the luxury of a gin-mill. May the good Lord have mercy on degenerate Spencerville.

We noticed, the other day, a doctor walking up street followed by an undertaker and the latter by a minister. It was a suggestive procession.

Ex-Judge Tousley of Albion, come near being drowned by falling out of a boat, while crossing some overflowed lands on the Elkhart river.

Our 'onest hold friend Mr. Picker, and his dog, have received the appointment of night signal on the Baltimore road, at the Junction.

Stephen Cartwright, a rich farmer of Clark County, eloped with his niece.— His family are well pleased with the new departure.

Mrs. Little has returned from Toledo, and brought with her some splendid milliner goods. Call two doors north of Auburn House.

The heavy rains recently loosened the earth in the "cut" at Blue Grass, and let it down upon the track of the B. & O. Road to the depth of three feet.

Fred Raut, after a long and painful illness, died last Saturday of consumption. Two years ago one would scarcely have thought of his demise in this way.

A horse attached to a carriage, slipped his bridle, near the Public Square last Monday, and went South. John Shaffer the carriage man, got the job of repairing.

Harrison Willett, brother of Hon. O. D. Willett of Kendallville, was buried at Bryan last week. He attended the Odd Fellows celebration at Hicksville.

Dr. Ford, J. L. Davis, F. E. Davenport and W. H. McQuiston left last Monday to attend the grand lodge of Free Masons to assemble this week at Indianapolis.

A girl in Allen County, twelve years old, married a man twenty-six years of age a few months ago. Recently, she returned to her ma, declaring that she never did like him.

Supt. Douglas of Whitley county, and Rev. Mr. Erick, of Spencerville, were in town last Sabbath to take a train to Baltimore, to attend the National Lutheran Synod to meet there this week

The Eel River road is whooping things up lively. Three passenger trains each way are now running, connecting direct with Indianapolis, Peoria and other points west. A large map showing its connections is the latest.

What is better than a good square meal in the country, at this time of the year, when golden butter and fresh hen fruit are abundant. We thought so as we took one in at Mr. Isaac Cools' the other night.

No More Credit.—On and after June 1st 1875, I shall enter upon a strictly cash system, and no goods will be allowed to go out of my store until paid for. I shall treat all alike.

EDWARD ELDRIDGE.

The Mayer of Fort Wayne, by proclamation has ordered a general cleaning up of alleys and streets. Don't do such a thing in Auburn! It might disturb the equanimity of the people.

One of the new features of the next Northern Indiana Fort Wayne Fair will be a band contest. The prizes offered are divided into four classes—the first two, $100 each and the third and fourth $50.

It seems that the miners at Brazil, are bound to have higher wages or make trouble. They have recently been raiding the mines that are still in operation, and compelling the workmen by force to conform to their measures.

Some of Auburn's dancers don't take much stock in the hops at Cedar Creek. They have dances that you don't read about. The fiddlers buy their own supper, and no "laughing stock" is allowed on the floor. Sam says, he found the place where the woodbine-twineth.

Fort Wayne had to get up a paper called the "Courier," after us, of course and now Indianapolis has followed suit. No well regulated place can do without a "Courier." Look at Evensville. Lafayette, Louisville and New Castle. Our genial friend J. O. Hardesty is making the capitol organ a fine success.

A young lady passed a couple of "old roosters" that was perched on a fence, the other evening, and when opposite them said: "Have you saw Mr. ——'s boy since he's returned. O, goodness gracious but he's sweet." We mention this for the benefit of the boys. No others need apply.

SETTLE UP

Notice is hereby given that all those knowing themselves indebted to the firm of, Eldridge & Rainier, are requested to call and settle without delay.

$500,000 to loan on improved farms in Northern Indiana, in sums of one thousand dollars and upwards, on five years time. Security must be first mortgage.

WILLIAM FLEMING,
Fort Wayne Ind.

tf

Miss Lotta Carpenter, of Mansfield Ohio, has been the guest of Miss Nettie Williams for several weeks. Notwithstanding there is no place like home, Miss Lotta has become highly pleased with our citizens and [illegible], and her visit has been one that will long be remembered both by herself, and her acquaintances here.

We listened to the initial sermon of the new Pastor of the Presbyterian church, and were delighted with the eloquent and finished style of the speaker We also heartily commend its brevity to other travelers through this vial of woe. A good sermon can be delivered in thirty minutes. That is ultimation.

Reub Williams & Hossler, of the "Indianian," have at last purchased the Fort Wayne "Gazette," to take possession the first of July. We hope they will succeed financially. There seems to be a fatality attending the publication of a morning paper in Fort Wayne of late years. If energy and determination will bring it out, our friends will succeed.

We had the pleasure of witnessing a spirited test of speed on the fair grounds at Fort Wayne last Friday, five pacing horses contesting for a purse of $125.— Alderman T. C. Mays, of the Auburn Courier, entered his spirited horse "White Stocking," but unfortunately there were a couple of the contestants that outstepped him just a "leetle," although they came in "neck to neck."— Kendallville Standard.

Here's the way a fellow out west glorifies over the close of the examination of witnesses in the Beecher trial: "Glory, Hallelujah! Ri tol de diddle ol, teedle lol day! All down but nine! Set 'em up in t'other alley—whoop! We all get stone blind, Johnny fill up the jug. Oh, saw our left left leg off! Pile onto us by thousands! The last liar in Brooklyn has sworn, and stepped down and out."

How can it be possible for a lady to keep a nice clean house, if she has a dirty, careless husband, who is to lazy to clean off his boots before entering the house, and not consequently spit tobacco juice all over the floor, mixed up with a few pounds of mud which he has carried into the house. Then his poor wife is censured for keeping a dirty house, just because she has a dirty husband,

The times are dull and hard, "they say," and yet we counted six half-grown boys sitting in a row on the sidewalk the other morning, and there they sat for hours. We venture to say that there are more idlers about this town than any other place of equal size. Get up and go to work. If you can't find employment in town, go into the country.— There is an abundance of work for all to do if they will seek it.

Killed—James Beard, son of Frank Beard, followed the show from Waterloo to Bryan, and started back on a freight train when he was put off. From all accounts he must have laid down along side of the track. The day express came along, and the engine passed him before he awakened, and in raising up the steps struck him, from which he died in the evening. He was burried here last Sabbath.

A wise man once said, "How simple and foolish it is for young men, who squander all their money while single, to marry, put on the yoke of slavery and stumble about in the gloom and despair of poverty the ballance of their days. If we are considered harsh on this point we reply that it is impossible to find fitting terms in which to denounce the insanity of young men who marry before securing a comfortable home of their own."

The Hicksville "Independent" says:— A Mr. Pierce living about five miles from Hicksville on the Edgerton road had a barn litterly picked up in the late gale and moved several feet from its foundation. The building was sixty-six feet long and twenty-four wide. Merril Otis, who was driving by, had just left the side of it where he went for shelter out of the storm. He just moved in time to prevent what would no doubt have been a serious accident.

The Steuben "Republican" says: W. L. Penfield, Esq., of Auburn. was in attendance upon court, during the last few days of the term, last week. Mr. Penfield was one of the attorneys for the state against L. L. Black, on the indictment found by the Grand Jury the second day of the term. This case is the first one of any prominence in this county in which Mr. Penfield has been engaged; and our town or the county had but slight acquaintance with him prior to this occasion. Mr. Penfield acquitted himself with great credit and won the most favorable esteem of his new acquaintances. He shows himself possessed of fine accomplishments as a lawyer and it is probable that the introduction he has now had will favor his more intended labor within our county bar

Go to Abright's to have your watches repaired.

A dispatch from Auburn, DeKalb county, states that wheat in that section will amount to nothing, being badly winter-killed, and what was left is badly used up by the last ten days cold weather. There has been a general circulation of the above, throughout the state. We take occasion to say that the wheat crop in this county will turn out as good as in any other county in this part of the state. There are a few fields not very promising, and there are some above the average. We believe the crops will amount to a good deal by harvest.

We have a few little boys about town who knows about as much good manners as a green pumkin in dog days, and still they think they know more than old men. We see them loafing about business places every bad day, from morning until night. Remember boys, you are traveling the road to destructoin rather than that to greatness. Now is the time you are forming your future destiny, let it be good or bad. How much better would it be, for such boys to be at home, reading some useful matter, so when they become men, they may be able to parse this sentence, "I was as green as a young pumpkin."

The handsomest girl in the city wears a calico dress, and the most sensible in this place does the same thing. The fact is, there is no dress so becoming to young ladies, whether they be pretty or not, as a handsome print, neatly made up. It must be immaculately clean though, and starched and ironed to a gloss. But "the girl of the period" can't see it in this light. She imagines, in the vanity of her heart, that the prettiest dress is the costliest in its quality, and most elaborate in its trimming and make-up. And she imagines, furthermore, that her dress determines her rank in society. It has not quite come to that yet, however.

One Bain, editor of a paper in Martinsville, who accompanied the excursion south, seems to be full of vindictiveness since he found things in that portion of the country so much better than the Radical press, of which he is a loyal member, made out. He speaks very disrespectfully of Mr. Rippey, of Tallahassee, formerly editor of the "Indianian" at Warsaw, a gentleman who did his best to contribute to the comfort of the excursionists. This man Bain says, that if Mr. R. ever lived in Indiana he had to leave for his country's good. There is not a single fact to support this assertion. Mr. Rippey was much more respected as a citizen than Bain is as an editor. We know Mr. R. to be a gentleman, and we fail to see such qualities in Bain.

When completed the new Mason House, at Indianapolis, will be the best in the State, and not inferior to the first-class hotels of the west. It is now under the jurisdiction of the invincible Baker, hence its name. The large new addition, now building, will be fitted up on the most approved plans, an elevator included. Josh and Chas are clerks that would grace a ducal palace, and as sweet a pair of twin brothers as you ever saw. They do not part their hair in the middle, neither do they spin, and yet Solomon in all his glory was not so obliging and accommodating. We fearlessly commend them to the public as clerks who can be approached, something unusual in hotels generally.

Real Estate Transfers.

Furnished by Rose & Hartman, attorneys at law, who have the only Abstract of Titles in the county. Deeds and Mortgages as against "bona fide" purchasers, or mortgagees, must be recorded within 90 days from their execution. Mechanics Liens within 60 days from the completion of building.

A. Lockwood to J. Sawyer W end lot 22 Parks add Auburn. $800

G. Egnew to Emma Burrell lot 287 E 93 add Butler $150

L. Spangler to G. W. Link lot 88 Auburn Junction. $100

Leightz & Son to J. Clark lots 122 in track land new St fac. $999

R. W. Robinson to H. C. Purple N W ½ of S E ¼ Sec 5 Butler $1550

J. Casebeer to G. Casebeer W½ of E ½ S W ¼ Troy $600

M. A. Homilton to I. T. Toll lats 39 & 40 F & C add Waterloo. $800

J. M. Waterman to E. Taylor lot 15 pt lot 16 Lock add Waterloo $2250

J. A. Schofeld to P. Sewell S O ¼ of N E ¼ Sec 10 Franklin $1600

NOTICE.

REPORT of the condition of the First National Bank at Auburn, in the State of Indiana at the close of business, May 1st, 1875.

RESOURCES:

Loans and discounts	$16737.72
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation	30000.00
Due from approved reserve agents	8208.55
Due from other National Banks	1089.15
Real Estate, furniture, and fixtures	3500.00
Current expenses and taxes paid	575.86
Premiums paid	4500.00
Fractional currency (including nickels)	570.51
Legal-tender notes	3917.00
Total	66,076.78

LIABILITIES:

Capital Stock paid in	$30000.00
Other undivided profits	23.70
Individual deposits subject to check	17385.34
Demand certificates of deposit	6289.75
Total	66078.78

STATE OF INDIANA, }
DeKalb County }

I, Jas. V. Hazzard, cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief. JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 14th day of May, 1875. GUY PLUM, Notary Public.

Attest,
GEO. HAZZARD }
J. R. LANNING } Directors.
WM. McINTYRE }

Ryan & Mader are still making improvements on their new livery stable, they are now putting on a handsome cornish, and fixing up things in grand style.

STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1839.

GEO. DeWALD & CO.

Dry Goods & Notions.

Black Silks & Fine Dress Goods a Specialty.

We can make it to the interest of every [illegible] We buy for CASH and sell for CASH, keep the best goods, and sell at one price

ALSO AGENTS FOR THE

"Domestic" PATERNS.

The Best in Use. Send for a Cat logue.

Geo DeWald & Co
No. 1 Columbia Street
Fort Wayne Ind,

Court Matters.

The following cases have been disposed of up to the present time. The court has been well attended, and cases have been disposed of very rapidly— Judge Best presiding:

Geo. Hopenix, larceny; left off the docket.

Noah Mottinger; discharged.

Cyrus Baughan, violation of liquor law; discharged.

Maurice Grater, appeal; left off docket

Wm. Moore, violation of liquor law continued.

Wm. Moore, vio. of liquor law; continued.

J. H. Clifford, for keeping gambling house; fined $50.

Bayless Boyer, assault and battery; discharged.

C. Boughan, violation of liquor law; fined $10.

Another of the same; continued.

M. Grater, violation of liquor law; discharged.

D. Broughton, violation of liquor law; discharged.

Geo. Brandon, appeal; discharged

Cy Baughan, V. of L. L; dismissed

A. E. Blake, and others; continued.

J. A. Moore, complaint; to be tried by R. W. McBride.

J. W. Wyatt, complaint; continued.

M. Heissman and others, complaint; dismissed.

Geo. Hilkey, bastardy; continued.

R. B. Franklin and others, foreclosure continued.

M. A. Howard and others, partition; continued.

H. Husselman, complaint; continued

G. R. Hoffman, complaint; judgment for plaintiff $284.90

Estate of Ruth Chapman, claim; dismissed.

D. Zaner, appeal; judgment for Plff; $187.50.

Paul Frazer, complaint; judgment for plff, $353.37

Sol. Myer, foreclosure; dismissed.

Mary Wamsgans and others, sale of realty; continued.

Samuel Weaver, divorce; Dismissed

G. L. Thomas and others, pet. to sell realty; finding for plff.

C. Crawford and others, complaint; continued.

Mary J. Porter, divorce; continued

J. C. Jackson, appeal; judgment for plff $2.00

H. B. Bishop, replevin; Judgment for plff.

John Coder, slander; dismissed

Maria Ingman and others, foreclosure; judgment for plff $906.86

J. H. Miller, complaint; defaulted.

E. Ernest and others, sale of realty; sale ordered.

M. Slents, pet. to sell realty; continued

G. L. Jones, release of of surety; released.

M. Ingman and others, pet. to sell realty; sale ordered.

Lafyette Perkey and others, pet. to sell realty; sale ordered.

G. A. Spach and others, pet. to sell realty; sale ordered.

Mary Anthony, pet. to sell realty; sale ordered.

J. Rummell, complaint; dismissed.

Wm. Bevier, and others, complaint; judgment for plff $195.

A. C. Comparett and others, complaint judgment for plff $438.29.

Jennie Hood, divorce; defaulted.

Henry Martin and others, complaint; judgment for plff $81.86.

Elias Gonser, complaint; judgment for plff $195.95.

Richard Dudley, complaint; judgment for plff $119.16

David S. Ober and complaint; judgment for plff. $331.96.

Robert Shaffer and others, complaint judgment for plff. $145.71

Calvin Husselman, appeal; continued.

Wm. Bradley, bastardy; continued.

Jacob Marks, complaint; judgment for plff. $102.20.

Wm. Sheffer et. al, complaint; judgment for plff. $499.29

W. L. Penfield and others, complaint dismissed.

J. S. Stough, complaint; judgment for plff. $73.63.

C. C. Buss and others, complaint; judgment for plff. $273.54

T. B. Totten and others, complaint; judgment for plff. $141.58.

Wm. Bevier and others, complaint; judgment for plff. $77.34.

Isaac M. Thomas, complaint; Judgment for plff. $543.20.

J. J. Werrbaugh and others, com.; judgment for plff. 265.15.

M. V. Joslyn and others, complaint; finding for plff.

Wm. Packer and others, complaint; judgment for plff. $50

J. P. Wyant and others, complaint; judgment for plff. $220.83.

C. C. Buss and others, complaint; judgment for plff. $470.53.

Wm. Bevier and others, complaint; Jud. for plff. $160.

LICENSE NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of Butler, Wilmington township, DeKalb Co., Ind. that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County Ind., at their next regular session to be held at the Court House in said county, commencing on Monday the 7th day of June, 1875, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of permitting the same to be drank on the premises where sold. The premises on which I desire to sell are located as follows: The south part of lot No. eight (8) in Danforth's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb County, Ind.

JOHN A. HAWS.

May 10

LICENSE NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of Garret City, DeKalb County, Ind., that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Ind. at their next regular session to be held at the Court House in said county, commencing on Monday the 7th day of June, 1875, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of permitting the same to be drank on the premises where sold. The premises on which I desire to sell are located as follows, to-wit: Lot twenty-four (24) block seventeen (17) in the original plat of the town of Garret, in said county and state.

ROBERT BELL.

May 10

LICENSE NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of the incorporated town of Auburn, Union tp. DeKalb county Indiana, that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb county, Ind., at their next regular session to be held at the Court House in said county commencing on Monday the 7th day of June, 1875, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of permitting the same to be drank on the premises where sold. The premises on which we desire to sell are located and described as follows, to-wit: A part of lot numbered ninety-five (95) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at a point eighteen feet (18) west of the north-east corner of said lot and running thence south on a line parallel with the east boundary line of said lot to the south boundary line of said lot thence west twenty-two (22) feet thence north to the north boundary line of said lot thence east twenty-two (22) feet to the place of beginning in said township, county and state.

SIMON J. LOCK,
MASON LONG.

May 10

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that there will be a petition presented to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Ind. at their June session 1875, for the vacation of the following highway located in said county and commencing eight [8] rods and fifteen [15 feet east of the northeast corner of the north west quarter of section three [3] in township thirty-three [33] north of range twelve [12] east in said county and running from thence west on said township line to a point sixty-five [65 feet east of the south-west corner of the south east quarter of section thirty-three [33] in township thirty-four [34], north of range twelve [12, east in said county, and that the same be located and established to the width of sixty-five [65] feet on the following route, commencing at a point on said township line ten [10] rods and fourteen (14 and a half feet (½) east of the north-east corner of the north west quarter of sec three [3] in township thirty-three [33] north of range twelve 12] east in said county, and from thence running south one hundred and thirty-two (132) and a half [½] feet, and from thence in a westerly direction parallel with the Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Chicago railroad, Indiana division, to Gifford street in the town of Garret, in said county, and from thence south to King street in said town, and from thence in a westerly direction parallel with said Rail Road Line to a point thirty two [32] and a half [½] feet east of a right line drawn in continuation of the west line of the south east quarter of sec thirty three [33] in township thirty-four (34) north of range twelve [12] east in said county and from thence north to intersect the said highway on the said township line. Said highway now passes over and affects the land of Washington Cowan, and that the vacation change and location as proposed will affect only the lands of said Cowan.

WASHINGTON COWAN.

April 22.

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that there will be a petition presented to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County Indiana, at their June session 1875 for the vacation of the following highway located in said county and commencing at the south west corner of the south west quarter of section thirty-four [34] in township thirty-four [34] north of range twelve (12) east in said county, and running from thence west to the northeast corner of the northeast quarter of section four [4] in township thirty three [33] north of range twelve (12) east, and from thence north in a southerly direction to a point eighty [80] feet north of the south line of the northwest quarter of section three (3) in said township and that the same be located and established to the width of eighty [80] feet on the following route: Commencing at the southwest corner of the southwest quarter of section thirtyfour (34) in township (34) thirtyfour, nor of range twelve (12) east in said county and running from thence in a southerly direction at right angles with the Baltimore, Pittsburg and Chicago railroad, Indiana division, to a point forty, 40, feet north of the south line of the northwest quarter of section three, 3, in township thirtythree, 33, north of range twelve, 12, east in said county and from thence west to intersect said highway on said section line between sections three, 3, and four, 4, in said township thirty three, 33, that in the vacation change and location of said highway as above described will effect the land only of Washington Cowan and that he owns all the land that the said change will affect.

April 22. WASHINGTON COWAN.

THE STAR WELL AND PROSPECTING AUGER.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD!

Mr. LEVI BROWN, living two miles south of Corunna, has purchased the right of this celebrated Auger, and is now prepared to put in wells. Everything is warranted and satisfaction guaranteed.

LEVI BROWN.

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

At last accounts the extensive strike of coal-miners still continued, with more or less violent demonstrations....The investigation into the operations of the New York silk conspirators shows that of the silk placed upon the market in that city the government was deprived of $1,500,000....A dispatch from Philadelphia states that S. Gross Fry, President of the Philadelphia, Darby, and Spruce and Pine Street Railway Companies, has made an over-issue of Darby stock of from 10,000 to 20 000 shares, and of about 600 shares of the Spruce and Pine street road. The money raised upon the stock was used to bolster up the Emans Iron Company. Mr. Fry expected that upon the revival of the iron trade he would be enabled to return the money borrowed on the stock for that company. He has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors.

Horace B. Claflin publishes a statement in the New York papers in regard to the manner in which the government has been robbed during the past two years by the silk and lace importers. He claims that the regular importing houses have lost two millions of dollars by irregular importations....A monster Black Hills expedition is being organized in the East, and will leave Philadelphia about the first of June. Nearly 2,000 names have been enrolled....A number of whisky seizures have been made in Boston....The Opera-House and several stores at Burlington, Vt., were burned last Saturday. Loss, $75,000....Alfred Spear, of Rockland, Me., shot his wife and then killed himself on Friday last.

Judge Neilson expresses the belief that the jury in the Tilton-Beecher case will not disagree, but will speedily reach a verdict....Chandler, Hart & Co., boot and shoe dealers, of Philadelphia, have failed. Liabilities, $125,000.

Judge Porter, of the counsel for the defense in the Brooklyn scandal trial, opened his argument on Wednesday, May 19. Tilton and Moulton were handled quite roughly, the speaker pointing them out in person and denouncing them with scornful emphasis.

A terrible conflagration occurred last week at Osceola, Pa. Two hundred houses are reported destroyed, and twelve hundred people are rendered homeless. The fire originated in a lumber yard two miles away, but a high wind carried the burning embers into all parts of the city, and it was found impossible to stay the flames. Half the town was consumed, including all the public buildings and nearly all the business blocks. The adjacent villages of Houtzdale and Powelton were also partially destroyed. The total loss will exceed $2,000,000.

Another victim of the speculating mania has come to grief in Boston. Mr. Abraham T. Jackson, hitherto a respected member of the bar, has disappeared, taking with him several large sums with which he was intrusted, amounting in the aggregate to $70,000....A dispatch from Pottsville, Pa., states that destructive fires were raging in the mountains in that vicinity. Slabtown, a small mining village, was entirely destroyed. A dispatch from the same place states that an attempt was made to burn the town of Shenandoah, fires being started in several places by incendiaries. The flames were discovered and extinguished. One incendiary was arrested.

THE WEST.

The fears hitherto expressed of a renewed visitation of the grasshopper plague is verified by accounts from various quarters. In Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri a grasshopper panic already prevails. The pests are already up and doing, and have started on their line of march, destroying everything green in their way. The route lies in a northwesterly direction, and the only hope of the farmers is that the grasshoppers may disappear in time to save the corn-crop. In several counties in Minnesota the eggs are hatching fast, and warm weather is expected to bring with it a renewal of last year's devastation and ruin.

James Lick, of San Francisco, has made a new trust deed, which, however, seems to be equally liberal with the one recently canceled....Charles Pope, the eminent tragedian, is playing an engagement at McVicker's Theater, Chicago, in the great historical drama of "Samson."

The Governor of Missouri has issued his proclamation calling upon the people to observe Thursday, June 3, as a day of fasting and prayer, in order that they may obtain divine protection from a grasshopper pestilence. Intelligence reaches him from all parts of the State that there is danger that all the crops will be destroyed as in Kansas, Nebraska, and Iowa last year. The Governor thinks that only the interposition of Providence can stay the threatened invasion....Advices from Yankton, Dakota, report that Capt. Bates' command has captured the John Gordon Sioux City Black Hills party. They were taken at the White river crossing, and will return home via Yankton.

There comes from Osage, Kansas, a story of the state of desperation to which the people of that section have been brought by the grasshopper pestilence. A party of farmers, scorning concealment, boldly entered a gristmill and boldly helped themselves to sixty sacks of flour, saying that they had neither food nor money, and that they would not permit their families to starve while food was within reach. It is said that the condition of the people is more critical than ever before....Mr. Potter, the Supervising Architect of the Treasury, does not think that any portion of the walls of the new Chicago Custom-House can be saved. The structure will have to be razed to the ground.

Mrs. Mary Lincoln, widow of the late President, has been adjudged insane by a jury of the County Court, at Chicago, and will be sent to a private institution for the care of the insane at Batavia, Ill.

The unfortunate widow of Abraham Lincoln made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide at Chicago, just before leaving for the Batavia asylum. She purchased what she supposed to be a bottle of laudanum and swallowed the contents. The mixture, however, was of a harmless nature, and her design was thwarted. ....A number of gaugers and storekeepers in Chicago, who were participants in the whisky frauds, or were criminally careless, have been removed, and three or four of them have been held to bail to await the action of the grand jury....The Indiana Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows has just sustained the action of a subordinate lodge in suspending a member's connection with the order on the ground that he was a saloon-keeper.

THE SOUTH.

John Frazer (colored) was hanged at Camden, S. C., on the 14th inst., for the murder of Benjamin Cooper. On the scaffold he confessed that he murdered his wife and child and a negro woman, and had burned many barns and gin-houses....Arkansas reports a bounteous harvest in prospect.

Jim Cooper and Pomp Haney, two negroes, were hanged at Franklin, Ga., on May 15, for the murder of an aged colored man.

Gen. and ex-Vice-President John C. Breckinridge died at Lexington, Ky., on the 17th of May of abscess of the liver, combined with consumption, aged 54 years.

The colored people of Tennessee have started an emigration movement, [illegible] tion at Nashville the other day to discuss the matter and adopt measures necessary for removal to some other State. Great inducements are held out to them by parties desirous of securing the settlement of the colored colonies upon unoccupied lands, and the movement appears to have assumed a shape which means exodus....A fire at Waco, Texas, last week, destroyed $125,000 worth of property.

The Centennial of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence (May 20) was very generally and heartily celebrated in the principal cities of the South....Jesse D. Bright, formerly United States Senator from Indiana, died at Baltimore a few days ago, aged 63. His disease was an organic affection of the heart....The notorious counterfeiter Pete McCartney, has again slipped from the custody of the officers of the law in Texas.

WASHINGTON.

The Secretary of the Treasury has called in $5,000,000 additional 5-20 bonds.

Secretary Bristow has decided upon the appointment of a board of the most experienced army engineers to proceed to Chicago and examine the walls and foundations of the Custom-House. The Secretary, it is said, has no doubt that the work must be torn down, but he desires first to obtain the judgment of the most eminent experts.

Secretary Bristow is stirring up the revenue thieves pretty effectually. Having captured half a hundred Western distillers who have swindled the government out of enough money to pay the national debt, he has turned his attention to the New York importers, who he has reason to believe have not paid all the duties for which they are liable. The Secretary has also decided to push a thorough investigation into the alleged frauds in the building of the Chicago Custom-House....A remarkable discovery is said to have been made in Washington. It is to the effect that the enforcement of an order issued by Secretary Stanton in 1862, and continuing until 1865, levying a tax of $5 per month upon the wages of each colored attaché of the military service, designed to create a fund for the temporary maintenance of freedmen, amounted to an enormous sum, of which $15,000,000 were never expended in the manner contemplated, but remained in the hands of Quartermasters, who, being under no legal obligation to turn over or account for the money, have had it ever since. The Secretary of War refuses to entertain a claim for the restoration of the money to employes from whose wages it was deducted, having no funds wherewith to pay such claims, if allowed, and so an appeal is to be made to Congress for an appropriation.

Some of the Indian Chiefs from the Cheyenne River Agency had a pow-wow with the President, on Wednesday last. Lone Horse, the principal Chief, made a threatening speech, which is supposed to presage trouble unless his demands are complied with. The President interrupted his oratorical outburst, saying that he did not care at that time to discuss the subject further....The investigation into the New York Custom-House frauds promises some startling developments.

The noble savages Red Cloud, Lone Horn, and others now on a visit to Washington, are very much dissatisfied with their reception. They prefer dealing with the President directly, but as he turned them over to the Secretary of the Interior, in whom they have no confidence, they threaten to go on the war-path when they return.

GENERAL.

The reciprocity treaty between the United States and Hawaii has been ratified by Kalakaua....Agents of the government continue to make seizures of distilleries and rectifying establishments for alleged irregularities.

The Mexican banditti are again raiding on the Rio Grande border. They are reported to be committing depredations daily, capturing cattle and driving them across into Mexico, besides committing other outrages.

At Nashville, Tenn., the other day, the Cheyenne Chief, Wichita, one of the seventy-five Indians en route to the Dry Tortugas by rail, got hold of a knife and stabbed two soldiers, one of them, it is feared, fatally.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, North and South, are now in session—the former in Cleveland, the latter in St. Louis.

POLITICAL.

Col. J. H. Britton, Democrat, has been elected Mayor of St. Louis.

The President states in the most positive terms that there is no truth in the rumors that Secretary Fish, of the State Department, or Secretary Delano, of the Interior Department, are about to resign their places in the Cabinet. ....The Secretary of the Treasury has made the following appointments of Internal Revenue Storekeepers: Ludwig Wechulberg, George Michel, and Henry Fischer, for the First District of Wisconsin, and Joseph G. Thompson, Fourth Illinois. Gaugers—James M. Beardsley, Fourth Illinois; F. W. Paine, First Wisconsin, and David Stewart, Fourth Iowa.

Col. Asa Matthews, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Ninth District of Illinois, has been appointed United States Supervisor of Internal Revenue for the district embracing the States of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, vice D. W. Munn, removed.

Everett R. Pomeroy has been appointed U. S. Attorney for the Territory of Arizona.

FOREIGN.

According to foreign advices the result of the Russian Czar's visit to the German Emperor of Berlin is an assurance of the maintenance of peace in Europe, for the present, at least. It is very evident that there was danger of war, and that this danger and its aversion were the occasion of the Czar's visit.

Brazil is suffering from the effects of a financial panic....One hundred and thirty bodies had been recovered from the wreck of the Schiller up to May 17....The Count de Chambord declares he still has hopes that the monarchy will be re-established in France.

England favors peace, and favors arbitration between France and Germany, in order to avert a collision....There is a possibility of the Pope and King Victor Emmanuel becoming reconciled....The Papal Nuncio has made a formal demand for the restoration of Catholic unity in Spain, and the government has replied that it is resolved to maintain liberty of worship....In consequence of the refusal of the local authorities to repair an unsafe bridge at Clontarf, it will be necessary to hold the international rifle match at Curragh, Wicklow, or some other place not in the vicinity of Dublin.

Advices from Havana report that highway robberies and murders are so frequent lately in the streets of that city that the Acting Captain-General, who was himself robbed in the street of his watch and jewelry, worth $400, has ordered all culprits hereafter to be tried by the [illegible]

The government of Spain has issued a decree declaring the electoral period opened, and granting to the press the privilege of discussing all constitutional questions, saving the question of the monarchy, with the utmost freedom.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

Money continues in ample supply and the demand is restricted, the surplus funds in most of the banks being quite large. Interest rates unchanged. Government bonds firm.

BREADSTUFFS.

The grain markets again attracted considerable attention from speculators, and quite an extensive speculative business was transacted. A rather unsettled feeling prevailed at times, but, generally speaking, the markets were quite firm and a higher range of prices was established. The outside quotations of the week were not maintained throughout, however, a rather weaker feeling being developed during the closing days of the week. The influences were rather varying in their tenor although mainly of a local speculative character as the movement was principally on local speculative account. The receipts denote a material decrease all round and the shipments are increasing now that navigation is fairly under way. The June option is the favored deal among speculators, but there is also a fair inquiry for cash grain for shipment and for delivery on matured and maturing contracts. Shorts were some what alarmed at the evident firmness of the market and were anxious to provide for their contracts. Spring wheat advanced about 2½@4c. Corn sympathized, advancing 2c, but the latter grain closed at almost opening figures. Oats were active and higher with an urgent demand, and but comparatively few sellers. Prices advanced 2@2½c, and closed steady. Rye and barley quiet but firm, with only a light demand, and but rather moderate offerings—closing steady.

The following table shows the prices current at the opening and close of the past week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash	$ .99½@1.01	$ — @1.03¼
No. 2 seller May	1.00 @1.01	@1.02¾
No. 2, seller June	1.02½@1.03½	@1.04¾
No. 2, seller July	1.05¼@1.06	1.07½@1.07¾
No. 2 corn, cash	.72 @ .72½	@ .72½
No. 2 corn, seller May	.72 @ .72½	.72¼@ .72½
No. 2 corn, seller June	.73½@ .74½	.73¾ bid
No. 2 corn, seller July	.76½@ .77	.76½ bid
No. 2 oats, cash	.61½@ .62½	.63¾@ .64
No. 2 oats, seller May	.61½@ .62½	.63¾@ .64
No. 2 oats, seller June	.62½@ .63¾	.66 @ .66½
No. 2 rye, cash	@1.07	@1.06½
No. 2 barley, cash	1.33½@1.35	@1.36
No. 2 barley, s. May	1.30 @1.32	1.30 @1.33
No. 3 barley, cash	@1.18	@1.20

LIVE STOCK.

Cattle opened steady, became weak, and declined about 12½@15c per 100 lbs, but this reduction was recovered on Friday, and the market closed firm at $5.00@6.75 for common to extra shipping steers; $3.50@5.50 for butchers' stock, and $3.50@5.00 for stock cattle. Hogs active, firm, and higher; Yorkers, $7.25@7.85; heavy, $7.75@8.00. Sheep quiet and steady; $3.50@6.50 for poor shorn to choice wooled.

PRODUCE.

There was but little change developed in the different produce markets during the week just past. The movement in the different branches of trade was fair, and former prices were generally maintained. In butter a fair trade was reported, and a steady feeling continues to prevail. The arrivals were fair and just about equal to the local demand, and the market closed with only a moderate amount on hand. Quotations range at 16@18c for fair streaked and white colored, 20@23c for good, and 25@27c for choice, and an occasional sale of fancy was made at 29@32c. Beans were rather quiet, but prices remain steady at $1.80@1.85 per bu for choice Eastern mediums, and $1.00@1.75 for Western. Beeswax 26@28c for good to prime. Broom corn was quiet at 11½@14c for No. 1 to extra hurl, 11@13c for good to choice stalk braid. Cheese was in moderate demand when choice, but common was very dull. Quotable at 14@15c for prime old factory, 8@13½c for poor to good do, and 12½@14c for new. Cranberries sold slowly at $6@11.00 per brl for poor to choice cultivated, and $3.50@3.75 in one bushel boxes. Dried peas dull at $2@2.20 per bu for choice green, and $1.75@1.80 for marrowfat. The movement was light in dried fruits, but former prices were maintained. Michigan and New York apples quotable at 8½@8¾c, halves, peaches at 9@9½c, and blackberries at 9½c. Cider sold at $5.75@6.00 for choice, and $3@3.50 for sour. There were but few choice green apples on the market, and prices under fair demand were firm and in holders' favor; good lots sold at $3@3.50 per brl, while for choice $4@4.50 was obtained. Hides easier; green salted quotable at 7½c all round; calf, 12½@13½c, and dry kip 18@19c. Potatoes were quiet at 95c for Eastern peachblows in lots, and $1.00@1.05 from store; Western peachblows sold at 75@85c in car lots, according to quality. The early rose on the market were nearly all in poor order and difficult to sell. Eggs met with a very good demand and prices were firm throughout; closed at 15@15½c. The supply of vegetables was somewhat lighter and prices were firm. Onions sold at $3.00@3.25 per brl. Turnips at 60@65c in lots and 75@80c in a retail way. Veal was dull and sold slowly at 8½@8c, according to quality.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

There was a comparatively limited business transacted in this market during the week, but at the same time a firm feeling prevailed and former prices were maintained. The stock of timothy now in store is estimated at 12,000@14,000 bags, but the bulk of this amount is in the hands of parties who were unwilling to sell at the present prices, and the offering therefore were only fair. Sales ranged at $2.00@2.35 for poor to good timothy and $2.40@2.50 for prime. Clover was scarce and firm at $6.90@7.00 for medium. Flax sold slowly at $1.70@1.75 for good crushing. Hungarian closed steady at $1.45@1.50 for prime and millet $150@155. Highwines were dull and at the close of the week the offerings were considerably in excess of the demand. The last sales reported were at $1.18, but at the close there were no buyers even at 2c below this price.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

The demand continues fair for cooperage and prices under rather light offerings remain steady and unchanged. Quotations range at $1.12½ for pork brls, $1.40 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.10 for whisky brls, and 45@55c for flour brls. There was a good supply of lumber on the market, but the demand was rather light, and only a moderate trade was reported. Holders, however, were quite firm in their views, and the market ruled steady. Quotations range at $13.00@13.80 for C to choice A stock boards. Common lumber, 16 feet and under, $10.50@11.50; Joist and scantling, $12.00@18.00, and shingles, $2.75@3.25. Wood remains quiet at about former prices; hickory and maple, $7.50 per cord; beech, $6.50; slabs, $6.00 in the yards.

PROVISIONS.

The movement in this market was rather light, and a slight decline was established in values. Early in the week the offerings were quite large and prices were considerably lower, but toward the close there was a decrease in the offerings and a portion of the decline was recovered. Trade was principally on speculative account, and a liberal number of transfers were made at 25@30c per barrel on mess pork, and 17½@20c per 100 lbs on lard. The receipts of hogs were fair, and prices show a slight improvement. Cash mess pork closed quiet at $21.45@21.50, and seller May nominal at these figures; seller July closed at $21.75, and seller August at $22.00. Lard in moderate request at $15.35 for cash; seller June closed easy at $15.37½@15.40; seller July steady at $15.57½@15.60, and seller August nominal at $15.77½@15.80.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	10	@	12
Hogs—Dressed	8	@	9
Cotton	15¾	@	16¾
Flour—Superfine Western	4 70	@	4 95
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago	1 19	@	1 21
No. 1 Spring	1 22	@	1 24
Corn	86	@	88
Oats	77	@	78
Rye	1 07	@	1 09
Pork—New Mess	21 50	@	21 75
Lard	15¾	@	15⅞
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	1 37	@	1 38
Corn—No. 2 New	69	@	70
Oats—No. 2	63	@	65
Rye—No. 2	1 05	@	1 06
Pork—Mess	21 75	@	22 00
Lard	14	@	15
Hogs	6 25	@	7 50
Cattle	4 75	@	5 50
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 02	@	1 04
No. 2	1 01	@	1 02
Corn—No. 2	68	@	70
Oats—No. 2	..	@	62½
Rye	1 06	@	1 06
Barley—No. 2	1 34	@	1 36
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	1 35	@	1 38
Corn—New	73	@	75
Oats	71	@	73
Rye	1 23	@	1 25
Pork—Mess	21 00	@	22 25
Lard	15½	@	15¾
TOLEDO.
Wheat—Extra	1 31	@	1 33
Amber	1 29	@	1 31
Corn—New	74	@	76
Oats	68	@	70
DETROIT.
Wheat—Extra	..	@	1 29½
Amber	..	@	1 27½
Corn	74	@	76
Oats	67	@	69
CLEVELAND.
Wheat—No. 1 Red	1 31	@	1 33
No. 2 Red	1 26	@	1 28
Corn	76	@	78
Oats	68	@	70

Another "Dog Schneider" Story.

A letter from Erie, Pa., to the Chicago Tribune relates the following:

About seven years ago a party of hunters from Allegheny City came here to hunt ducks up on Presque Isle Peninsula. One of the party, Mr. Charles L. Hutchinson, lost a valuable gold watch and chain, a gift from a very dear, deceased friend, among the numerous little ponds that intersect the peninsula. Long and diligent search, consuming several days, was made; and no trace of the watch being found, the search was given up as a hopeless one. Mr. H. went back to Allegheny City, but could not forget his loss. Seven years have passed since then. Last week, while here on a visit, he felt a strong inclination to renew the search for his long-missing time-piece, and alone he again went over the ground formerly traversed by him. While sitting down among the bushes to empty his boots of the sand that had just got into them, he chanced to cast his eyes upward, when to his intense surprise and joy he saw the watch and chain hanging to the limbs of a small sapling, just as they had hung there seven years before, when the young twig—now grown quite large—had jerked them from his pocket! The wood of the sapling had grown over and about the chain, holding it in a firm grasp. Mr. Hutchinson carefully cut off the branch within which the chain was imbedded, and expresses his intention of preserving it in that condition. The watch has been cleaned and repaired, and, strange to say, is now keeping as good time as in former years. The watch is an English hunting-case, and, when found, bore little evidence of the exposure to which it had been subjected.

How to Eat an Orange.

Always, on a Southern gentleman's table, the desert of oranges is furnished with small silver fruit knives and spoons. The orange is held in the napkin—just as you hold an egg—and with the slender point of the knife a circular incision is made in the stem-end of the orange, and the stem-core is nicely cut out, leaving an orifice large enough to admit the egg-spoon. The orange is held and eaten then, just like gourmands eat an egg in its own shell; and the skill and grace with which this is done—that is, without soiling the fingers or napkin—are, as in the same process with the egg, a test of good breeding. I have known the most inexpert persons to master the few difficulties in the way after two or three efforts; and their satisfaction was an infinitely pleasant sight. To hostesses who like to have their table preserve in some degree, at the close of an entertainment, the beauty which dazzles the guests upon entering this method is most desirable. Servants—let me put in a plea for those silent ones whose interests are too seldom regarded—are spared the tedious duty of gathering up the fragments, and guests who look with dismay at this tempting apple of the Hesperides, can thus enjoy it as they never did before. Only the delicious nectar of the fruit is eaten, with the more delicate pulp; the tough fibre—of which indeed, there is very little in an orange plucked from the tree under its own skids—being left in the shell.

Steamship Disasters of the Nineteenth Century.

The following is a list of the most memorable steamship disasters of the nineteenth century:

Date.	Vessel.	No. lost.
February, 1805	Abergavenny	300
October, 1805	Ameas	340
December, 1805	Aurora	300
October, 1806	Athenæuia	347
February, 1807	Ajax	250
December, 1810	Minataur	360
December, 1811	Saldahna	300
December, 1812	St. George, Defense, Hero	2,000
January, 1816	Sea Horse	365
August, 1831	Lady Sherbroke	273
August, 1833	Amphitrite	All on board.
November, 1838	Protector	178
March, 1841	President	All on board.
December, 1847	Avenger	200
April, 1847	Exmouth	246
March, 1850	Royal Adelaide	400
February, 1852	Birkenhead	454
February, 1853	Independence	140
September, 1853	Anne Jane	340
January, 1853	Tayleur	380
April, 1854	Favorite	201
May, 1854	Lady Mayent	400
September, 1854	Arctic	300
——, 1854	City of Glasgow	All on board.
January, 1856	Pacific	All on board.
August, 1857	Central America	All on board.
September, 1858	Austria	450
April, 1858	Pomona	471
October, 1858	Royal Charter	400
February, 1860	Hungarian	446
September, 1860	Lady Elgin	285
April, 1863	Anglo-Saxon	235
January, 1863	London	220
February, 1871	City of Boston	All on board.
February, 1873	Northfleet	300
March, 1873	Atlantic	700
August 5, 1874	Pat Rogers	80
May 7, 1875	Schiller	30

Three Georgia sisters, whom the war reduced from great wealth to extreme poverty, went into the sheep-raising business three years ago, and are now making money rapidly.

Is the Pope Coming to America?

The correspondent of the Paris Debats in Rome writes thus:

"The appointment of an American Cardinal is an act more important than has been generally supposed. At the same time the Pope nominated a considerable number of Bishops for the United States. The Prelate who carries to Monsignor McCloskey his beretta will not perform a mere act of ceremony; he is charged with a most important mission. The Holy See has firmly resolved to transport itself to the United States, should the stay in Rome become insupportable. It knows well that neither France nor Austria could give it asylum without an almost certain risk of war with Germany. It is doubtful whether England would maintain the offer she once made of the [illegible] Spain is too much disturbed for the Pope to think seriously of refuge there, at least under existing circumstances. We must not forget that the Saint Siege has taken the precaution to create a considerable reserve fund, which would be by no means useless in the States. This reserve does not count hundreds of millions, as some papers, unused to calculations, are pleased to declare, but it amounts to over forty millions (£1,600,000), and increases almost daily.

I have often heard this idea broached in Paris by Ultramontanes, and there is every reason to believe the Debats' correspondent to be well informed. It remains only to learn how the statesmen of America will receive the notion. The same obvious reasons which have made England tacitly withdraw her profferred hospitality will carry their weight even over the Atlantic."

Independence Bell.

Speaking of the old bell of Independence Hall, the Philadelphia Record says: "Since the bell was cracked it has several times been tinkered at, in the effort to make it sonorous once more. At one time the seam was filled, we think with silver, or an amalgam of silver; but the sound would not come back. They then undertook to ream out the crack, causing it to present a less 'sharp and ragged edge,' on the singular theory, perhaps, that it could be made to ring like the little gobular sleigh-bells that tinkle, though they have an opening to let the sound out. But the result was, very naturally, by no means successful, it being clear enough beforehand, one would say, that the vibrations in the metal, when struck, would conflict at the crack and spoil the hoped-for arrangement. The findings of metal that were bored out in this process were made over into little bells, as revolutionary relics, Henry Clay, we believe, receiving the first of these mementoes. Some people have also been guilty, as the bell shows, of clipping and splintering fragments from the rim as relics. We have not much faith that the bell will be restored to its old resonance, but we should be very glad to hear that there was a prospect of doing so by new processes."

Resuscitating the Drowned.

A new mode of resuscitating drowned persons and others suffering from asphyxia, consists in placing the patient on his back with the arms extended. A roll of clothing is then laid below the false ribs so as to throw the anterior margin into prominence. The operator then kneels astride the patient, placing his hands so that the balls of the thumbs rest upon the false ribs, while the fingers fall naturally in the depressions between the ribs on each side. An assistant holds the tongue of the patient, and the operator, with his elbows firmly pressed against his sides, throws his whole weight forward, by which the false ribs are presse upward and inward, producing great motion of the diaphragm and displacement of the contents of the lungs. Suddenly raising his body, the operator allows the false ribs to return to their position, producing a corresponding movement in the diaphragm and inrush of air. By keeping up rythmic movements of this kind, artificial respiration is produced.—Galaxy for May.

Affecting Scene.

A man in Baltimore called on a grave-digger one day to have his wife's grave sodded. He was an extremely penurious man, and higgled a long time over the price of the sodding. Suddenly he became mute, while his eyes were fixed on a neighboring tombstone. His daughter and the grave-digger stood back in respect for the feelings of the old gentleman, in whose mind they supposed the sight of that tablet had called up the memory of a dear departed friend, for grief was depicted in his countenance, and he was visibly agitated. At length the deep emotion which swelled his bosom found vent in this pathetic outburst: "My God! when did that man die? He owes me two hundred dollars, and I'll never see a cent of it!"

Bee Wisdom.

Mr. Darwin is a very observant naturalist, and gives to the public now and then some queer facts. For instance, he tells us that the bees carried to Barbadoes and the Western Islands ceased to lay up honey after the first year. They found the region so mild, the weather so fine, and the materials for making honey so plentiful at all seasons, that they quitted their grave and industrious habits, and became exceedingly profligate and debauched, ate up their capital, and resolved to work no more, but amused themselves by flying about the sugar houses and stinging the negroes.

Absent-Minded.—A gentleman called on a lady one day, and was told by the servant that she was not at home. As he turned to go out, he caught a glimpse of her head in a mirror, through a half-open door. An hour afterward he called on another friend, and found the lady there. "I have just been to your house," said he, "but had not the pleasure of seeing you." "Indeed! I'm sorry. But I went out in great haste, on business." "In such haste, I presume, that you left your head behind you, for I saw it in the glass." "Did you? It is very possible—I am so absent-minded."

One of the schemes with which Garibaldi is now occupied is the planting of the Australian gum tree around Rome as an antidote to malaria. The tree is being used with great success in Europe, and is being introduced in this country.

A Dog's Remorse.

The following interesting letter is published in the London Spectator:

"Being accustomed to walk out before breakfast with two sky terriers, it was my custom to wash their feet in a tub, kept for the purpose in the garden, whenever the weather was wet. One morning, when I took up the dog to carry him to the tub, he bit me so severely that I was obliged to let him go. No sooner was the dog at liberty than he ran down to the kitchen and hid himself. For three days he refused food, declined to go out with any of the family, and appeared very dejected, with a distressed and unusual expression of countenance.

"On the third morning, however, upon returning with the other dog, I found him sitting by the tub, and, upon coming towards him, he immediately jumped into it and sat down in the water. After pretending to wash his legs, he jumped out as happy as possible, and from that moment recovered his usual spirits.

"There appears in this instance to have been a clear process of reasoning, accompanied by acute feeling, going on in the dog's mind from the moment he bit me until he hit upon a plan of showing his regret and making reparation for his fault. It evidently occurred to him that I attached great importance to this foot-bath, and, if he could convince me that his contrition was sincere, and that he was willing to submit to the process without a murmur, I should be satisfied. The dog, in this case, reasoned with perfect accuracy, and from his own premises deduced a legitimate conclusion which the result justified."

Deadly Insects.

The buffalo-gnat is credited with occasioning a wide-spread mortality among the horses and mules of West Tennessee. Many farmers have lost all their working stock at a season of the year when they can least afford to do without them. The bite of this insect seems as deadly as that of the African tsetse, the pest of all travelers in South Africa. Man and wild animals appear to be invulnerable to the tsetse, but camels, dogs, oxen, and horses cannot long survive its attacks. In one expedition Dr. Livingstone lost forty-three oxen from this cause. He was inclined to believe that the ass was bite-proof, but the experience of his last journey convinced him that he was in error. The donkey, though not so susceptible as some of the other animals above mentioned, still succumbs before the little brown fly with yellow stripes. Its proboscis pierces the skin of its victims, and draws thence a plentiful supply of blood. No special harm at first seems to have been done, but in a few days the eyes and nose of a bitten animal begin to run; a swelling makes its appearance under the jaw; the muscles grow weak, and finally the digestive organs are disordered and death soon follows. When dissected, the cellular tissue under the skin is found to be injected with air, as if soap-bubbles were scattered over it. We have not yet received full details of the operations of the Tennessee insect, but whatever it is, its ravages are quite like those of the tsetse.—Cincinnati Gazette.

Improving Furniture.

A writer in the Germantown Telegraph thinks people would derive material benefit from adapting bedsteads to the following plan:

The slats are arranged so as to produce a partially curved surface, suited to the form of the body. The depression is made by deepening the mortices for three or four of the slats, about equidistant between the head and the foot of the bedstead, so that a regular curve is formed, two feet in length and three inches greatest depth, more or less. In bedsteads having sufficient depth of rail or sidepiece, a further modification may be made by raising above the level a slat or two at the head, so as to require a smaller pillow. The device, while it greatly promotes the comfort of all persons, is especially calculated to contribute to the ease and rest of invalids; moreover, a comfortable bed may be had with a thin mattress.

Common chairs may be considerably improved by shortening the hind legs by one and a half to two inches. For average sized male adults the front of the chair had better be sixteen to seventeen inches high; for grown, full-sized women, but fourteen to fifteen inches, and less in proportion for children; but boys may sit higher in front than girls.

Loving Through Darkness Into Light.

They were married in the morning, and immediately stepped aboard the cars for a bridal tour to San Francisco. They attracted considerable attention on the way by their honeymoon ways, and created a good deal of quiet fun among the goodly number of ladies and gentlemen who were passengers. In due time the cars entered a tunnel, and all for a few moments were enveloped in darkness. All too soon the cars emerged into the broad glare of the noonday sun, and our loving bride and groom were discovered locked in each other's arms and exchanging kisses at a rate seldom seen in public. The passengers took in the situation in about a second, and a shout went up that nearly threw the train from the track, and brought the conductor to the scene on the double-quick. "Pass it around," yelled a big man who was on his way East to get his wife. "Go back to the tunnel," said another man to the conductor; and as the newly-made husband settled back in his seat he was heard to say: "Sarah, I thought tunnels were longer. Darn a railroad company, any way."—Salinas City (Cal.) Union.

Just as He Expected.

He was an Adventist, which did not hinder his being a Cook county Granger. He believed for a long time that the world was going to come to an end last Monday, which did not prevent his having on hand numerous stacks of hay. He was pious, which did not prevent him from seeing his shortcomings. But he muffled himself up in his ascension robes last Monday, and mounted on one of those stacks of hay to get a good start for the New Jerusalem, which did not keep him from going to sleep, after he had waited awhile for the grand event. Peacefully he dozed, until just before the rain, when some heathenish boys set fire to the haystack, and, as the flames circled around him, he awoke. He supposed it was all over, and philosophically remarked: "In h—l, just as I expected!"—Chicago Tribune.

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

The spelling fever has subsided.

Mr. Beecher recently appeared at church clad in a rubber suit, which occasions a Brooklyn paper to remark that he was "in unusually elastic spirits."

Announcement is made of the discovery by Prof. Brugset, in a monastery library at Sinai, of nine hitherto unknown portions of the Codex Sinaiticus, the oldest extant manuscript of the New Testament.

Secretary Bristow is overwhelmed with letters of congratulation from the honest liquor dealers of the country, who have been forced to do business without any profit when obliged to compete with dishonest dealers.

Jeff. Davis delivered an address to the veterans of the Mexican war, at their reunion in Houston, Texas, the other day, and entreated them to be as loyal now to the stars and stripes as they had been zealous and brave in defense of the first flag.

It is estimated that the expenses of the services held in London by Messrs. Moody and Sankey, the American revivalists, will amount to about $150,000, of which only about $80,000 has been raised. Neither of the preachers, it is stated, has received any pay for his labors.

The New York Herald and Chicago Tribune probably do a larger and more profitable business in advertising than any other two newspapers in the country. On April 11th the Herald published 3,400 advertisements, and on April 25th the Chicago Tribune published 3,300, covering a great deal more space than did those of the Herald.

In his boyhood Nathaniel Eaton, of Sutton, N. H., was probably as weak and sickly a specimen of juvenile humanity as could be found in that section, and it was a common remark of the neighbors that "Nat would never live to be a man." Nat died the other day, having lived to celebrate the 100th anniversary of his birth. His death resulted from a cold contracted on that centennial occasion.

Carl Schurz, who left New York for Hamburg about the 1st of May, intended to sail with his family on the steamer Schiller, which went down on the coast of England, but the banquet and serenade given in his honor by the German residents of New York detained him, and he was compelled to take passage in the Pomerania, which sailed the day following the departure of the Schiller.

A Chicago man has perfected an ingenious and useful invention, and one that promises to result in a large saving of human life. It consists of an appliance for the lowering of small boats from the sides of ships and steamers, in such a manner as to prevent any possibility of their being swamped or stove into pieces, as is almost invariably the rule in case of a heavy sea. The invention has been examined by nautical experts, and pronounced a great success.

Mrs. Watson, wife of Prof. Watson, of the Michigan University, was the only woman who enjoyed the privilege of going on the Venus-transit expedition from the United States. She had a long journey—first an overland trip to San Francisco, then a voyage lasting twenty-six days to Yokohama, a four days' sail to Nagasaki, and another six days to Tien-tsin. Then followed a voyage up the river in small house-boats to Tung Chang, and finally a donkey ride of sixteen miles to Pekin.

The experiment of postal telegraphy has worked well in England. The results are briefly summed up as follows: First, a uniform rate of one shilling per twenty-five words has been established on all the telegraph lines in the United Kingdom, except the lines to the Scilly, Orkney and Shetland islands; second, the average cost of a telegraphic message is between 1s. 1d. and 1s. 1½d., which is about one-third less than for the note under private enterprise; third, under the governmental system there has been a vast increase of news messages to the newspapers; fourth, formerly all newspapers were charged full rates for news messages. Now they are charged one shilling for seventy-five words in the daytime and one shilling for one hundred words at night.

The St. Louis Globe apologizes to Col. Norman J. Colman, a prominent Missouri granger, under the following circumstances: "Colman is a farmer and orator, and being soon to deliver an address at the Texas State Fair, the Globe set out to give him a good notice. So, after announcing the fact, it said, 'There is a great treat in store for the people of Texas.' Next day it appeared, 'There is a great trial in store for the people of Texas.'" In making the apology, the Globe says: "The printer who 'set' the paragraph still insists that he came nearer to the truth than we did, but we have ordered him to be discharged as a man whose mind is entirely too analytical, and whose tendency is entirely too critical."

The rebels in Cuba are rapidly destroying the productive capacity of the island, and will starve out the Spanish officials, if they continue in their devastations. Sugar estates to the number of 100 and to the value of over $20,000,000, with five or six million dollars' worth of sugar, have been destroyed, this winter. Of course the land is there, ready to bloom with new wealth under peace and [illegible] time being it is barren and fruitless to the contending parties. Meantime the export tax on sugar has been raised to $5.45 per hogshead, $2.30 per box, and $2 per hogshead of molasses. Of this tax the people of the United States pay over $5,000,000 in gold, as we consume 79 per cent. of the sugar and 90 per cent. of the molasses exported. The exportation of sugar fell from 714,960 tons in 1873 to 644,109 in 1874, and of molasses from 904,000 to 817,000 tons, doubtless on account of the diminished production. Thus the people of the United States have to pay for the Cuban rebellion, both by the increased taxes on sugar in Cuba, and by its increased dearness from scarcity.

The shadow of war darkens over Europe, and the day that shall witness the beginning of the dreadful struggle cannot apparently be delayed many months. It is not imagined that France will rush into a wild conflict with Germany, but Germany has been troubled by the rapid recovery of France, and fears that at no distant day she will have to fight Sedan over again, and at a disadvantage. It is urged that, as war is inevitable, the best time to strike the blow is now, while France is comparatively weak. Once more in Paris, Bismarck would dictate the terms of a treaty that would reduce France to a fourth-rate power and make her practically impotent in Europe. But Germany cannot stir a finger till Russia consents, for it is only with France single-handed that Germany cares to measure swords. Russia has grievances, and it is more than possible that the conference of the Emperor William and the Czar may not have an amicable termination. Russia may conclude that it is a good time for her to open the Baltic and make her way to the Mediterranean, and thus become a power in Europe, especially as she can now count on the alliance of France. At all events the present state of things cannot be of long continuance.

The question of suffrage in the large cities is a very important one, since a great portion of their population is made up of gamblers, thieves and loafers—of persons who neither pay taxes nor contribute to the public weal, and whose sole object in life is to absorb the substance of their neighbors. The Bar Association of Chicago is just now giving the subject much attention. At a recent meeting of this body a committee was appointed to consider the matter, and report such proposed amendments to the Constitution or laws of Illinois as in their opinion would be wise and proper. Judge Doolittle, a member of the Association, was interviewed by a newspaper reporter, who elicited from him his opinion regarding the question. Mr. Doolittle thinks that the best mode of preventing frauds in elections is to remove the secrecy of the ballot. He contends: First, that voting should be as public as trials in courts of justice; that every ballot, before being placed in the box, should be publicly read in the hearing of the bystanders. Second, that the name of every voter, and the place of his residence, should be written upon the back of his vote. Third, that the ballot should be numbered to correspond with the name and number on the poll lists. In order to secure a just and full expression of the will of all the people, and of those having most at stake in the good government of the city, Judge Doolittle would so amend the Constitution that every voter who is the head of a family and a householder shall be entitled to two votes—one to represent himself and one to represent his household. In order to secure the performance of the highest duty to the well-being of society, he thinks that the law should also provide that every elector having the qualifications entitling him to a double vote who should not attend and vote at every election held pursuant to law, unless prevented by sickness or necessary absence from the city, or other sufficient reason, should be subject to a fine.

An Aristocratic Row.—A Vienna correspondent informs us that the Baroness of Gorlitz met her sister-in-law, a Silesian Countess, on the street the other day and violently demanded of her: "Why didn't you put a monument over my brother's grave?" "It's none of your business," responded the Countess. "I'm married again, anyway." "I'll make it my business," roared the enraged Baroness, and she sprang like a tiger at her late brother's wife. The war-whoop of the Amazons brought the police. The matter was settled in court; but both, being noble ladies, were, of course, discharged. In the meantime the monument is not to go up, for the Countess asservates that "A whisky bottle at the head of his grave would be the most appropriate thing for him."

INDIANA NEWS.

The most popular hotel in Rush county is presided over by a lady.

Greencastle has a sure thing now on a new opera-house. It is to have a stone front and will be three stories high.

The Northern Indiana Agricultural Society, at Fort Wayne, offers this year $25,000 in premiums, $10,000 more than last year.

A man named Simon Woolett had a difficulty with a neighbor near South Bend, and beat him so seriously that he may not recover.

Dr. J. A. Adrian, of Logansport, has been appointed a delegate to the International Medical Association at Brussels in September next.

Miss Mamie Hannah is acting as Chief Clerk in the General Passenger Agent's office of the Indianapolis, Peru and Chicago road, at Indianapolis.

Prof. Jordan describes as new, in The American Naturalist, the "sisco" trout of Lake Tippecanoe, Indiana, under the name of Argyrosomus sisco.

Knightsville was visited by a destructive fire last week, which consumed about $10,000 worth of property. The fire is supposed to be incendiary.

Three car-loads of Indian prisoners, on their way to the Dry Tortugas to serve out terms of four years each, passed through Indianapolis recently.

The iron-workers' strike in Indianapolis has been compromised, and the Railroad Iron Rolling Mill has resumed operations after a suspension of several weeks.

The Rush Elevator Company, of Indianapolis, are delayed in rebuilding by the failure of one of the insurance companies to pay its share of the losses by the late fire.

There are twenty-nine applicants for license to sell liquor in Lake county, and if the prayers of all the petitioners be granted $2,900 will be placed to the credit of the school fund.

Jenny Hall, of North Manchester, sues J. H. Shively, of the same place, for breach of marriage contract, laying her damages at $25,000. The case will be heard in the Miami Circuit Court.

A farm hand named McCord was killed recently in Jefferson county in a very singular way. He was seated under a large tree eating his dinner, when a large limb, broken off by the wind, fell upon him and killed him instantly.

A young lady, aged 23, named Miss Mary Stanley, committed suicide at Knox a few days ago by taking strychnine. She lived about two hours after taking the drug. She would give no reason for the act.

Five members of the family of Councilman Gumberts, of Evansville, were poisoned in a mysterious manner last week. They recovered in a few days, but the cause of their illness could not be discovered.

The following list of races to be held in this State and Western Ohio will be of interest to turfmen and lovers of the sport:

Cambridge City, Ind., June 1, 2, 3, 4, purse..	$10,000
Fort Wayne, Ind., June 8, 9, 10, 11, purse....	10,000
South Bend, Ind., June 16, 17, 18, purse......	5,000
Dayton, Ohio, June 23, 23, 24, 25, purse......	9,700
Columbus, Ohio, July 1, 2, 3, 5, purse........	18,000
Portsmouth, Ohio, July 8, 9, 10, purse........	5,200

All the machinery for the cotton mill at Evansville has now arrived from the East. It has taken seventy-five cars to transfer all the contrivances used in spinning cotton. The immense factory will be in operation by the middle of June.

Ten cases of house-breaking were reported at Richmond last Saturday morning. Mayor Hubbard has issued a proclamation calling upon citizens to use extra diligence in watching their property for a few days. Two arrests of unknown burglars occurred.

Contracts have been closed and work commenced upon the extensive shops of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis, and the Cincinnati, Richmond and Fort Wayne railroads, upon the property known as the old Whitewater French church property, at Richmond.

Michael Dusch, Superintendent of the mines at Cannelton for fifteen years, and lately part owner and Superintendent of Newcomb's mines at Newburg, fell from a barge into the river Monday afternoon, at Newburgh, and was drowned.

The Fort Wayne Daily and Weekly Gazette, the leading Republican paper of Northern Indiana, has been sold by Capt. J. B. White, proprietor, to Williams & Kassler, of Warsaw, Ind. Rumor fixes the prices paid at $18,000. The new owners will assume control on the 1st of July.

Hon. J. D. Morris died suddenly of heart disease at the residence of his son, George Morris, in Connersville, last week, aged seventy-six years. Mr. Morris was a son of ex-Senator Tom Morris, of Ohio, and represented the Clermont and Brown County District in Congress from 1847 to 1851.

The house of Thomas W. Leach, in Howard county, was entered by three masked robbers and $105 in money taken. The old man, 75 years of age, kept them at bay for two hours, refusing to tell where the money was concealed, but at length the old lady became frightened and revealed the fact to the robbers.

A watchmaker of Evansville was robbed on Thursday of thirty-one watches, which he was taking home in a satchel. The robber probably knew of his custom of carrying his watches home for safety, and followed him to an unfrequented spot. He was then suddenly knocked down, and the robber quickly escaped. No arrests.

Suit has been instituted in the United States Circuit Court at Indianapolis by Walter J. Johnson, Receiver of the First National Bank of Anderson, against John E. Corwin as administrator of the estate of Allen Makepeace, for $100,000. Corwin will be remembered as the man who killed Col. Thomas W. Stillwell some time ago, the difficulty arising out of the same trouble on which this suit is based.

A fire occurred in Knightsville last Friday morning, beginning in the Diamond saloon, and resulting in the following losses: Casper Schrouffirman, $5,000; insured, 1,000. William Plumb, $2,000; no insurance. Daniel Easter, $2,000; no insurance. There were other small losses. The fire was the work of an incendiary, and Robert Baxter, the owner of the saloon in which it started, was arrested on suspicion.

Last week Mr. John Askren, of Spencer township, Harrison county, sheared his sheep, and from one Cotswold buck lamb, one year old, got a yield of fifteen and one-quarter pounds of clean wool, with not a burr in it. The general average yield of wool from an ordinary sheep is from four to five pounds. Mr. A. has had these celebrated sheep but one year, and is much pleased with them and finds they pay.

The next session of the State Editorial Association will be held in Indianapolis June 10 and 11. Papers are to be read by President Lingle, of Lafayette; T. C. Phillips, of the Kokomo Tribune; Willard Nash, of Logansport; C. G. Powell, Laporte Herald; E. W. Halford, of Indianapolis; D. S. Alexander, of Indianapolis; J. L. Lyle, of the Bartholomew County Democrat, and A. C. Beeson, of the Winchester Journal.

A remarkable case of preservation of the remains of a child was brought to light at Evansville recently. The corpse was buried Aug. 13, 1853, and on removing it to another cemetery the undertakers opened the coffin to look in upon the remains, and note their stage of decomposition; but they were suprised to find the face perfect in all its features, and presenting much the same appearance as when buried. The coffin was inclosed in a box, and showed some signs of decay. The box was so decayed that it fell to pieces.

The following is the programme agreed upon for the meeting of the Grand Lodge of the United States of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, which is to convene at Indianapolis in September next: Address by Mayor Caven on the part of the city; address by Schuyler Colfax, P. G. R., on the part of the order; address by O. P. Morton, P. G. M., on the part of the lodges of the city; public parade of the order and visiting brethren on Wednesday afternoon. A banquet will be given to the Grand Lodge of the United States on Wednesday evening.

The most extensive dealer in agricultural implements in Indianapolis states that the market is virtually exhausted of corn-drills and breaking plows, the manufacturers of these implements not being able to turn them out fast enough to meet the demand. There is no means of ascertaining exactly the capacity of the factories, but it is certain that some thousands of plows are turned out daily, while the number of drills must be large. The fact that the current demand exceeds the supply is evidence of the rapid growth of agriculture, and shows also that this important interest has fully recuperated from the disastrous effects of the panic, which made last year a very dull one for the manufacturers of and dealers in agricultural implements.

Suit has been filed in the Superior Court, at Indianapolis, by the State of Indiana, on relation of Hon. E. Henderson, Auditor of State, vs. the American Express Company. The relator complains that the defendant is engaged in the business of transporting freight on various roads in this State, and that by the provisions of an act approved March 8, 1873, it became and was the duty of defendant to make semi-annual statements to the Auditor of State, under the oath of the Secretary, President, or other principal officer thereof, giving the gross amounts of all receipts received in Indiana, and at the time of such reports to pay into the State Treasury 1 per cent. The defendant has wholly failed to pay this tax, or any portion of the same, and the present suit has been brought for $6,500 and other proper relief.

One-Rail Railroads.

We took a ride yesterday on the Prismoidal one-rail railroad, and received a practical illustration of the fact that locomotives and cars can be run on one rail. The motion was much more easy and steady than we expected, though the speed attained, owing to the shortness of the track, was not very great. Curves were turned with much facility, and with no apparent strain or extra friction. Those interested claim the test to be a perfect success, and with some show of reason; but the value of the system in practical business remains yet to be established.—Houston (Tex.) Telegraph.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Advice to a Young Farmer.

But come, young farmer, though by fortune fixed
On fields luxuriant, where the fruitful soil
Gives labor hope, where sheltering shades arise,
Thick fences guard, and bubbling fountains flow,
Where arable and pasture duly mix;
Yet ere thy toils begin, attend the muse,
And catch the moral lesson of her song.
Be frugal and be blest; frugality
Will give thee competence; thy gains are small,
Too small to bear profusion's wasteful hand.
Make temperance thy companion, so shall health,
Sit on thy brow, invigorating thy frame
To every useful work. And if to these Thou happily shalt join one virtue more—
The love of industry, the glowing joy
Felt from each new improvement—then fair peace
With modest neatness in her decent garb
Shall walk around thy dwelling; while the great,
Tired with the vast fatigue of indolence,
Filled with disease by luxury and sloth,
Impatient curse the dilatory day,
And look with envy on thy happier state.

Around the Farm.

At a Western New York farmers' club one of the speakers contended that it cost $27.70 per acre to raise corn in that region.

Orchard grass is entirely unlike quack or witch grass. It is as easily plowed under and destroyed by cultivation as redtop or timothy.

C. Hills, an Ohio short-horn breeder of about twenty years experience, writes the Country Gentleman that he has never seen any ill effects from early breeding, and that he would like all his heifers to come in at thirty months old.

Never use kerosene oil to kill lice on calves or colts. It is cruel, dangerous and inhuman. The mildest and best remedy is to scatter along the back dry sulphur and card it in. Do not forget the card, as it is good for many complaints, especially if accompanied with a plenty of nutritious food.

A grade short-horn cow in Massachusetts gave 10,757 lbs. of milk from April 1, 1874, to Jan. 1, 1875. A native cow, also in Massachusetts, gave 5,391 quarts of milk last year. An Ayrshire cow in New York is credited with 422 lbs. 8 ounces of butter in one year, "besides supplying a small family."

If poultry raisers have comfortable hatching rooms and can make the early broods comfortable, they will always pay better than later ones. After they are hatched, they should be placed on the sunny side of the building, and where they will have the benefit of the sun from large, glazed windows.

The London Agricultural Gazette, in a short article on the comparative value of wheat, oil-cake and barley as cattle food, says that wheat is richer than oil-cake in the sum of its most important food elements—carbo-hydrates, albuminoids and fat—but that in fat alone the oil-cake is seven times as rich as wheat.

It has been fully proven on the farm that the deposits of a hen are worth her feed, when used as a fertilizer. In other words, and as my friend Dickens would say, not to put too fine a point upon it, a check for the amount of her deposits, presented to the gardener's bank, should be fully honored to the amount of its face. Peccavi!

Pure Berkshire hogs should be jet black in color, with a thick-set coat of fine black hair, but choose one with coarse hair, rather than one that is short of hair. White is allowable on tips of ears, feet and legs, face, nose and tail, but not too much white, as they are always a black breed, and plenty of hair denotes a good constitution.

The manure from animals fed on cooked or steamed food is not so valuable as from animals fed on whole or ground grain in the raw state. This goes to show that the animals assimilate more of the food when cooked than when raw, and it rarely pays to manure with that which should be converted into beef and milk. I consider it pays to put the food in such a condition before feeding it that the animals can make the most flesh and milk from a given quantity of food. It does not pay to make manure out of grain, no matter how rich or stimulating it may be to the different crops.

About the House.

Lamb Cutlets.—Trim the slices free from fat, beat up the yelk of egg with rasped bread or crackers, season with pepper and salt, dip in the cutlets, and fry in butter gently until thoroughly done.

Stove luster, when mixed with turpentine and applied in the usual manner, is blacker, more glossy and enduring than when mixed with any other liquid. Applied to an old rusty stove it will make it look like new.

To Remove Mildew.—Soak the part of the cloth that is mildewed in two parts of chloride of lime to four parts of water for four hours, or until the mildew has entirely disappeared; then thoroughly rinse it in clean water.

White Cake.—One-half cup of butter; two cups of sugar; one cup of sweet milk; three cups of flour; the whites of four eggs; one teaspoonful cream of tartar; one-half teaspoonful of soda. Twice this quantity for a large loaf.

Cement for Broken China.—Make a thick solution of gum arabic in water, then stir in plaster of paris until the mixture becomes a sticky paste. Apply with a brush to the broken edges, stick them together, and in three days the article cannot be broken in the same place.

Coldslaw.—Yelks of two eggs; a tablespoonful of cream; a small teaspoonful of mustard; a little salt; two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. If cream is not used, put in a small lump of butter rubbed in a little flour. Cut the cabbage very fine; heat the mixture and pour it on hot.

Rice Pudding Without Eggs.—Put into a well-buttered dish half-pound best Carolina rice, simply washed; pour on it three pints of cold milk; sweeten and flavor to taste; put a little butter and nutmeg on the top to brown; bake two and a half hours in a slow oven, on which much of the success of the pudding depends.

Stuffed Cabbage.—Take a large fresh cabbage and cut out the heart. Fill the place with stuffings made of cooked chickens or veal, chopped very fine and highly seasoned, rolled into balls with yolk of egg. Then tie the cabbage firmly together and boil in a covered kettle for two hours. It makes a very delicious dish and is often useful for using small pieces of cold meat.

A useful soap for scrubbing and cleansing painted floors, washing dishes, and other household purposes may be thus compounded: Take two pounds of white olive soap and shave it in thin slices; add two ounces of borax and two quarts of cold water; stir all together in a stone or earthen jar, and let it sit upon the back of the stove until the mass is dissolved. A very little heat is required, as the liquid need not simmer. When thoroughly mixed and cooled it becomes of the consistence of a thick jelly, and a piece the size of a cubic inch will make a lather for a gallon of water.

EMBRY-ANTHONY.

Full Particulars of the Leavenworth Tragedy.

The following account of the shooting of D. R. Anthony, editor of the Leavenworth Times, by Wm. Embry, editor of the Appeal, of the same city, is taken from the Kansas City Times:

[illegible] the startling announcement that Col. D. R. Anthony had been fatally wounded in an affray with Wm. Embry, editor of the Leavenworth Appeal. Knowing the intense interest that must be awakened by such a tragic event, your reporter repaired to the depot and took the Missouri Pacific train bound for that city, arriving at 12 m. A score of citizens were at the depot waiting to obtain a copy of the Times, and your reporter immediately learned that Mr. Anthony, who had remained in the Opera-house all night, had been removed to his own residence.

A thousand rumors were flying on the streets, and no one seemed to know anything definite about his condition. In order that no mistake might occur, a visit to Mr. Anthony's house was made, and the Times man was admitted to the sitting-room. Mrs. Anthony, agitated and almost distracted, beckoned to the reporter to be seated. A young man whose duty it was to admit only such into Col. Anthony's presence as he desired to see, informed the Colonel of the reporter's presence, and he was invited to his chamber. There lay the proud man of a few hours before, with pallid, ghastly countenance. His eyes were closed and his voice hushed to a barely audible whisper. He raised two fingers of his left hand to shake hands. Your reporter bent over him and heard from his bloodless lips the following remarks: "For twelve hours I was dying; yes, worse than dying. Oh, the agony of that suffocating feeling; but I am better now; I know I have been growing better for five hours; I never was more rational; I am all right now."

Here his attentive wife placed an ice cold cloth upon his brow, and placed a small piece of ice in his mouth. Speaking of his wife he said: "She grows better every day." Then recurring to himself he said: "I have heard it said that nine out of ten men when brought face to face were not afraid to die, no matter whether they had any religion or not, and I never believed it until now. Last night I was prepared and hoped that I would die. But now I am easier and think I may recover." Here it was suggested that he had talked too much already for his strength, and he ceased. At least thirty minutes were consumed in the conversation. Calling Dr. Sinks, one of his attending physicians, to another portion of the room, your reporter asked him to give a statement of what he knew about the unfortunate affair.

The doctor had attended the entertainment given by Janauschek, and was present when the shooting occurred. Col. Anthony had gone out between the third and fourth acts of the play of "Deborah," and the affray took place on the stairway as he returned. It is stated that Col. Anthony went across the street to take a drink.

"Col. Anthony was shot," says the doctor, "just before reaching the top of the stairway. He succeeded in reaching a chair about the middle of the room. I was near by, and instantly went to his relief. He remarked that he was shot and thought it was fatal. I opened his coat and pulled back his shirt, when the red blood gushed forth like a fountain. He fainted away, and in a very few minutes his pulse was not perceptible. The ball entered the right shoulder and fractured the clavicle bone, having passed directly through its center. The subclavicle artery was severed."

The "scene at the opera" cannot be described. The queen of tragedy, Janauschek, had just wrought up the minds of her audience to the highest pitch, when the report of the revolver broke the spell with such terrible suddenness that the shock was irresistible. Mrs. Anthony, who seems to have had a presentiment that some dire calamity was about to happen to her husband, was among the first to realize the situation, and her screams were heart-rending. Many ladies fainted, and children were paralyzed with fear. The scene was appalling, and the news flew like lightning. Many fled, while hundreds rushed to the scene, and all night long the streets were crowded with an excited populace.

A number of gentlemen stated that they had expected a tragic termination of the quarrel which had been increasing in bitterness between the two editors. The origin of the difficulty, as is believed, was the violent strictures made by Col. Anthony upon the Printers' Union, on the occasion of the death of James Coulter, the printer who committed suicide a few weeks since, after having been charged with defalcation as a treasurer of the Printers' Union.

She Had a Plan.

A gaunt woman jumped into the Central Station yesterday, bonnet askew and eyes blazing, and as she reached the Sergeant's desk she exclaimed:

"I'm the Widow Coon!"

"Ah!" remarked the Sergeant.

"And I want to know if my landlord can raise the rent on me?" she went on.

"I guess—landlords can do most anything."

"But I'm a widow!"

"So you say."

"And isn't there a law to protect a widow from having the rent raised?"

"Never heard of one."

"And I haven't any more rights than a married woman?"

"Not one."

"Very well," she said, shutting her teeth together and striking the desk; "if a widow hasn't any rights I'll marry somebody afore sundown—you hear me now!"

And she kicked over a chair and walked out.—Detroit Free Press.

A New Store

With an entire new stock of

BOOTS & SHOES,

New STYLES of all kinds at the LOWEST PRICES at

J. E. WOODFORD'S

I have located at Auburn with a fine stock of BOOTS and SHOES, which will be sold at the Lowest Figures for Cash!

My Facilities for making CUSTOM WORK are not excelled anywhere and those favoring me—with their orders may be certain of getting the best material.

W. W. HUMES, Foreman.

To the trade, great inducements are offered in Leather, Findings, &c. Please call and examine my stock before purchasing.

FRESH ARRIVAL OF NEW GOODS

AT THE

GRAND CENTRAL

Woolen Goods for the next THIRTY DAYS sold without regard to C

A JOB LOT OF SHAWLS

Bleached and Brown Muslin,
Percales and Prints, Dennims,
And Shirtings, Carpets and
Oilcloths, Table Linen and
Towling. A Large assort of

ALPACCAS,

AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Gents' Collars, Hats, and Suspenders. Ladies Collars and Cuffs, Willow Ware, Satchels, and Carpet Bags. COTTENADES from 15c to 35c per yd, fine assortment of

CASSIMERES,

at very low figures. Call at the Grand Central, next door to Davis' Hard ware store.

WILLIAM RICHMOND, Pro.

C. P. Houser & Co.,

—Dealer In—

BOOKS AND STATIONERY

BEST Window Paper HOLLAND'S and Oil Shades always sha d anP f CASH.

PICTURES, FRAMES, CORD, and TASSELS, Curtain and Window Fx'trs the Best in the Market.

—The Largest and finest assortment of—

WALL PAPER

EVER BROUGHT TO THIS MARKET.

Their store is located in Ensley's new brick block North of the Court House, AUBURN, INDIANA.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

F. E. DAVENPORT,

Corner Main and Eighth-Sts.,

—DEALER IN—

Pure Drugs and Medicines,

DYE STUFFS, PERFUMERY,

Toilet Soaps Cosmetics, Hair Oils, Brushes, Combs, Toilet Mirrors and Druggists' Sundries in General.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY!

Wall and Window Paper!

Oiled, Linen and Slat Window Shades, and Shade Fixtures.

All the latest POEMS and MISSELANIOUS BOOKS constantly on hand or ordered. Blank Books, Pocket Memorandas, Portmonies and Bill Books, WRITING PAPERS. All Styles and prices ALBUMS! ALBUMS! ALBUMS just received for the Holliday trade Over $300.00 worth of Juvenile and Toy Books, which will be sold at panic prices. Smith's Gold Pens, warranted the best. Also steel Pens, Penholders, Pencils, Ink and Ink Stands &c.

SCHOOL BOOKS!

Covered with best Cover ever invented Free Of Charge

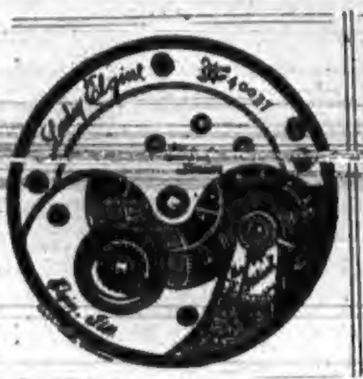
Davenport has the exclusive right to use this book cover in Auburn, and will give his patrons the benefit of the same.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In Amrican & Swiss Watches,



TOYS

FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,
Jewelry,
Clocks, Silver Ware!
GOLD PENS,
Ladies GOLD Chains,
Gents Chains,
Gold and Silver Rings,
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,

V. A BEARD

Grocer in Auburn, North of Court House on Seventh Street,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS

TEAS, COFFEES, SUGARS, SALT FISH.

Flour and Feed, Tubs Pails, Buckets, Sugars Boxes, Etc. A large variety o

TOBACCOS AND CIGARS,

Confectioneries of all kinds, and Fancy Notions, Cove Oysters, &c. A speciality in Green and Dried Fruit, and Canned Fruits. Goods delivered inside the coporation.

Fruit House Prices.

Granger Headquarters!

NO MIDDLE MEN with us; this is the secret of our immense trade. We buy at first hands and sell direct to the consumer; hence, we save our customers the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale merchants. These profits amount to from 10 to 20 per cent. Our customers get the benefit of them. Take Teas, for instance, the profits on that article are so great that the price is often doubled before it reaches the consumer. Every time it changes hands there is 10 to 20c. per pound added to it. This, of course, the consumer has to pay. Of course the retailer will endeavor to persuade you that his Teas are worth the money, that they cost him so and so. Well, this is all true, but the trouble is he has paid too much in the first place and can't help himself. He purchases from the wholesale grocer, and the wholesale grocer has to add his 20c. All these extra profits our customers get the benefit of, and it is just the same as Coffees, Sugars, Spices, Canned Goods, Oysters, &c., as on Teas. No Middle Men with us. They would starve to death if they had to live on the profits they make of us.

TEAS! TEAS! TEAS!

Twenty to Forty Cents, at least Saved on the Pound.

Young Hyson,	30, 60, 80, $1, 00, best 1 10	Oolong	30, 60; best 9
Gunpowder	60, 1 00; best 1 10	Uncolored Japan	50, 60; best 90
Imperial,	60, 90; best 1 10

SUGARS! SUGARS!

There has been a great excitement in the Market in consequence of the talked of duty going on, and Sugars have advanced, but no advance with us. We laid in a three months' supply, anticipating this thing.

Coffee A,	10 c	N. O, Genuine,	9c
Coffee B,	9½c	Good Yellow,	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Coffee is the same as Sugars. The duty talk has influenced a rise. No advance on our stock. Got enough for three months ahead.

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	25 and 27c
Second Best Rio,	23c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	20c	Damsons per can,	20c
Blackberries per can,	12½c	Green Gages per can,	30c
Tomatoes per can,	12½c	Strawberries per can,	25c
Corn per can,	12½c

Wines and Liquors.

For my part I don't approve of any one purchasing them that can do without them, but it is an admitted fact that there is more money used in the United States for Liquors than for Flour, and for the benefit of those who wish to indulge in the luxury, we will guarantee them a saving of at least 50c on the dollar, and for the sick and invalid our wines and old '76 whiskey cannot be beat.

Sherry and Port per gallon,	$1 50 and 2 00
Sherry and Port in bottles,	50c.
California Angelica and Sweet Muscatelle, per per gallon,	2 50
New England Rum, per gallon,	1 50; best 2 00
Holland Gin, Old Tom,	1 50 and 2 50

Rye and Bourbon Whiskey, all prices, 90c., 1 25 1 40, 1 75, 2 00 and 2 50 per gallon.

The Old '76 we have reduced 50c per gallon; did sell it at 3 00, and this in the face of the 20c per gallon duty going on, but we laid in a large supply before the duty went on.

SYRUPS, SYRUPS.

Best Sugar, Loaf, per gallon,	1 00	Extra Golden per gallon,	60
White Dripps, per gallon,	85	New Orleans per gallon,	70c to 1 00
Silver Dripps per gallon,	95	Cuba Molasses per gallon,	45c

CANDIES! CANDIES!

Best Stick per pound,	18c
French Candy per pound,	20 and 25c
Oysters per can,	18 and 25c.
Sugar Cured Hams per pound,	15c
Pickled Pork per pound,	11c
Smoked Sugar Cured Shoulders per pound,	11c

DRIED FRUITS—Prunes. We had the fortune to purchase a lot of ten casks at an Assignee's Sale at a sacrifice of 6c per pound.

This reduction we have made to-day, and now offer the best prunes at 10c per pound, former price was 15c.

Valencia Raisins per pound,	14c
Zantee Currants per pound,	10c
Brazil Nuts per quart,	12½c
Soft-shelled Almons per quart,	20c
Oranges and Lemons,	25 to 40c per dozen
Roasted Pea Nuts per quart,	8c

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Fish and Neats Foot Oil per gallon,	1 00	Head Light Oil per gallon,	25c
Coal and Rose Oil per gallon,	20c	Machine Oil per gallon,	50 and 80c

FISH, FISH, FISH, FISH,

A Large Assortment of both Salt Water and Lake Fish.

No. 1 White Fish ½ bbl	6 50	No. 1 Mackeral in Kits	1 50
No. 2 do do	5 00	No. 1 Famil in Kits	1 25
No. 1 Lake Shad ½ bbl.	8 00	George's Bank Codfish per pound	9 and 7
No. 1 Pickeral ½ bbl		Extra Mess Mackeral " "	9 and 14c
White Fish in kits No. 1	1 25	Herrings each	1c
White Fish family No. 3	1 00

25 Cents on the Dollar Saved at

THE FRUIT HOUSE.

RAILROADS.

Indianapolis Peru & Chicago R. R.

TIME TABLE No. 13—Dec. 20, 1874.

Northward.

Stations.	No. 1	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Indianapolis	6 30a	12 25p	5 55p	12 20
Noblesville	7 44	12 20	5 10	1 30
Tipton	8 30	1 13	5 57	2 15
Miami	9 37	1 50	6 36	2 38
Kokomo	9 11	2 26	7 04
Peru	10 05	3 15	7 40

Southward.

Stations.	No 2	No. 4	No. 6
Indianapolis	6 00p	4 1'a	9 55a
Noblesville	4 45	3 13	8 34
Tipton	3 56	2 29	7 41
Kokomo	3 13	1 50	[illegible]
Miami	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Peru	[illegible]	12 35	[illegible]

E. C. MURPHY, Supt Mich. Div.
E. M. HAWLEY, Master of Tran.
C. B. ROBINSON, General Sup't,
F. P. WADE, Gen. Ticket Agt.

Lake Shore & Mich. Southern R. R

Air Line Division

ON and after Sunday, Nov. 15, 1874 Passenger Trains will leave Waterloo city and other Stations as follows, daily except Sundays:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom'd'n
Butler.	2:40 p m.	x 2:35 a m.	8:00 p m
Waterloo	2:56 "	2:53 "	8:19 "
Sedan	3,04	3,00	8:30 "
Corunna	3,10	3,16	8:35 "

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.15 pm	11,30 pm	6:50 p m
Sedan	2.20	11,25	7:02 "
Waterloo	2:28 "	11:44 "	7:11 "
Butler	2:40 "	x12:01 a m	7:35 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin R. R.

Time Table to take effect Feb. 7, 1875.

Going South.

Fort Wayne	1 30 pm	2 10a m	5 00pm
Ossian	2 46	2 58	6 17
Bluffton	3 20	3 28	7 00
Keystone	3 49		7 32
Montpelier	3 57	4 03	8 00
Hartford	4 20pm	4 25	8 40
Eaton	4 40	4 41	9 10
Muncie	5 10	5 10	9 55
McCowan's	5 25
New Castle	6,05
Cam. City	6 42
Beesons	7 00
Connersville	7 15
Indianapolis	7 18	7 23
Louisville	12 00	1 10pm
Cincinnati	10 25

Going North.

Cincinnati	7 30am	pm
Louisville		2 30	7 00pm
Indianapolis		7 58	4 2am
Connersville	10 25
Beesons	10 45
Cam City	11 12
New Castle	12 55
McCowans	12 36pm
Muncie	12 55	10 10	6 23am
Eaton	1 25	10 47	7 20
Hartford	1 45	11 11	7 50
Montpelier	2 11	11 49	8 30
Keystone	2 .9		8 40
Bluffton	2 50	12 25am	9 25
Ossian	3 20	12 56	10 02
Ft. Wayne	4 15	1 45	11 00

W. W. WORTHINGTON, Supt.
ROBT. RILLIE, Gen'l Ticket Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect Feb 21st—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations	Mail	Accom.	Jack. Acm
Cincinnati		7 30
Louisville	7 00pm		2 45
Indianapolis	4 25am		7 28
Ft Wayne	10 45	4 45	1 45a
Auburn	11 [illegible]	6 20	1 45
Waterloo	11 36	6 47	3 02
Summit		8 10
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 5		3 35
Reading	1 8	[illegible]	4 47
Bankers	2 15	10 17	5 02
Jonesville	2 35	[illegible]	5 18
Jackson	3 40	12 [illegible]	6 20
Detroit	6 30p m	3 50	10 [illegible]
Grand Rapids	[illegible]	7 [illegible]	[illegible]p
Lansing	5 43		8 37
Saginaw	8 35		11 40
Bay City	9 58		12 38

Going South.

Bay City		6 3[illegible]	2 50p
Saginaw		7 2[illegible]	3 45
Lansing		10 40	7 10
Grand Rapids	9 45 pm	7 00	12 00
Detroit		10 20	3 40
Jackson Dep	7 10a m	1 [illegible]	9 40
Jonesville	8 22	3 20	10 45
Bankers	8 3[illegible]	3 45	11 02
Reading	8 53	4 03	11 15
Ar Angola	9 52	5 25	12 07
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	10 25	6 47	12 45
Auburn	10 53	7 12	1 02
Auburn Junction
Fort Wayne, Arrive	11 50	8 35	1 50
Indianapolis	7 18 p m		7 23a
Louisville	12 00		1 10p
Cincinnati	10 25

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

DETOIT, EEL RIVER & ILLINOIS

Rail Road.

—o—

Short Line between Auburn and the East and West.

—o—

Trains run on Cleveland time. Through trains will run on the following time, in effect Sunday May 23d, 1875.

Going East.			Going West.
No. 3, Express.	No. 1. Mail.	Stations	No. 2, Mail.	No. 4, Express
5.40 p m	10 05 a m	lv Logans't ar	6.15 pm	7.30 am
5.55 "	11.26	Adamsboro.	7.00	7.10 am
6.05 "	11.38	Hoover's	5.55	6.53
6.12 "	11.48	Mexico	5.41	6.42
6.25 "	11.59	Denver.	5.55	6.30
6.32 "	12.30	Chili	5.23	6.19
6.46 "	12.44	Roann	5.13	5.59
6.58 "	12.58 p m	Laketon	4.57	5.39
7.08 "	1.08	N. Manchest'r	4.40	5.25
7.16 "	1.15	Lib. Mills	4.29	5.14
7.20 "	1.25	Collamer	4.19	4.59
7.34 "	1.30	S. Whitley	4.07	4.49
7.41 "	*1.40	Taylor's	4.02	4.31
7.56 "	1.52	Columbia city	3.50	4.15
8.11 "	*2.06	Collin's	3.38	3.55
8.21 "	2.16	Churubusco	3.18	3 43
8.31 "	*2.25	Potter's	3.08	3.27
8.30 "	2.32	G. R. Crossing	2.50	3.15
8.46 "	2.39	Cedar Creek,	2.39	3.08
8.57 "	2.50	Aub. Juncti'n	2.26	2.43
9.05 "	2.58	Auburn	2.20	2.35
9.22 "	3.15	Mooresville	2.02	2 .14
9.35 "	3.25 p m	ar. Butler lv.	1.50 p m	2.00 a m

CONNECTIONS—At Logansport with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St Louis, Logansport, Crawfordsville & Southwestern and Toledo, Wabash & Western R. R's. At Denver with Indianapolis, Peru & Chicago Railway, for Rochester, Plymouth, LaPorte, Michigan City, Peru, Kokomo and Indianapolis At N. Manchester with Cincinnati, Wabash & Mich R'y. At Columbia City with Pittsburg, Ft. W. & Chicago, for Ft Wayne Lima, Crestline and Pittsburg. At Grand Rapids crossing with Grand Rapids R'y. At Auburn Junction with Ft. Wayne Jackson & Saginaw, for Angola, Jackson and Saginaw R'y, for Butler with Lake Shore & Mich. Southern Caw. Toledo, Detroit and all eastern cities.

J. A. HUGHSTON, Gen. Ticket Agt.
A. B. SCUTRAHD, Gen. Supt.

Final Settlement.

NOTICE is hereby given that John A. Campbell Administrator of the estate of John S. Campbell, deceased, has filed his final settlement report in my office, which will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

April 22, '75. Rose & Hartman, Attys for 100

RAILROADS.

Pittsburgh, Ft Wayne & Chicago R. R

ON and after Nov 15 1874 Trains will leave stations daily, (Sundays excepted) as follow:

Going West.

STATIONS	FAST EX	MAIL.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Pittsburg	2,00 A M	6,00 A. M	9,40 A M	2,00 P. M.
Rochester	"	7,25 "	10,50 "	3,11 "
Alliance	5,32 "	11,00 "	1,30 P M	5,57 "
Orrville	7,12 "	12,52 P. M	3,15 "	7,40 "
Mansfield	9,20 "	2,15 "	5,26 "	9,40 "
Crest- ar	9,50 "	3,50 "	6,00 "	10,10 "
line lv	10,10 "	6,00 A M	6,25 "	10,20 "
Forest	11,33 "	6,23 "	8,15 "	11,52 "
Lima	12,30 P M	8,00 "	9,30 "	12,59 A.
Ft Wayne	2,50 "	10,40 "	12,15 A M	3,15 "
Plymouth	5,00 "	1,25 P. M	2,00 "	5,40 "
Chicago	8,20 "	5,25 "	6,50 "	9,30 "

Going East.

STATIONS	MAIL	FAST EX.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Chicago	5,15 A M	9,20 A. M.	5,35 A. M.
Plymouth	9,25 "	12,15 P. M.	9,10 "	10,20 P. M
Ft Wayne	12,30 P M	2,45 "	11,45 "	2,25 A. M
Lima	2,55 "	4,35 "	1,52 A. M.	5,50 "
Forest	4,10 "	5,54 "	3,01 "	8,00 "
Crest- ar	5,50 "	7,00 "	4,40 "	9,17 "
line lv	6,05 A M	7,20 "	4,50 "	11,10 "
Mansfield	6,40 "	7,50 "	5,20 "	11 20 "
Orrville	9,08 "	9,42 "	7,12 "	11,51 "
Alliance	11,20 "	11,20 "	9 00 "	1,46 PM
Rochester	2,10 P M		11,12 "	5,58
Pitsburg	3,30 "	2,20 a m	12,15 A. M.	7,05

F. R. MYERS,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent

BALTIMORE & OHIO R. R

—o—

FROM 135 TO 6 MILES

The horigst route from the West to

Washington, Baltimore

AND THE EAST.

ONDENSED TIME TABLE, THRO' TRAINS.

VIA PARKERSBURG, Dec. 13, '74	Express	Fast Express,	St: Loui Ex.
Lve. Cincinnati	9 00‡ am	†4 30 p m	‡11 10pm
Arr. Chillicoth	12 55d n'n	s7 46	3 00 am
" Portsmouth	5 35 p m		11 10
" Marietta	3 30	12 00 n't	7 22
" Parkersburg	5 25 a	11 30	b6 50
Arr. Grafton	9 45	3 40 a m	11 10
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	s7 40	p3 50
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	6 51
" Staunton		5 15 p m
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30p m	4 50 am
" Baltimore	‡9 05 a m	1 50 a m	10 20‡pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50 p m	2 35 am
" New York	‡5 10	10 22	‡6 15
" Boston.	5 50 a m		4 50 pm

VIA BELLAIRE—Dec 13, 1874	Express	Fast Express.	Fast Line
Lve. Cincinnati (via Dayton S. L.)	6 30 a m		‡3 50 p m
" Cincinnati (via P. C. & St. L.)	†7 00		†7 10 p m
" Columbus	11 55	4 00‡p m	12 20†
Arr. Newark	1 00 p m	5.25	1 45 a m
" Zanesville	2 10	6 55	2 37
" Bellaire	5 20	10 55	6 50
" Wheeling	6 45 p m	12 50 ngt	8 00
" Grafton	9 35	3 35 a m	11 05
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	7 40	b3 20 pm
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	9 51
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30 p m	4 50 a m
" Baltimore	9 05	1 50†	10 20†pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50	2 45 a m
" New York	5 10	10 22†	†6 15
" Boston	4 50 a m		4 50 p m

B—Breakfast, D—Dined, S—Supper, †Daily ‡Daily ex. Sunday, ‡‡Daily ex. Monday.

PULMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS

from Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Columbus, to

WASHINGTON AND BALTIMORE!

—AND—

PHILADELPHIA

WITHOUT CHANGE.

Through Tickets, and further information can be obtained at all principal Ticket Offices throughout West and South West.

THOS. P. BARRY, West. pass agt., Cin.
L. M. COLE, Gen'l ticket agt., Bal. Md
THOS. R. SHARP, Mas. of Tran.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN,

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

Has the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended to. Go and see his large stock of G

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER,

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders for

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give us a call and ascertain our prices.

"WHAT WOMAN SHOULD KNOW."

A Woman's Book about Women, by a Woman.
(MRS. E. B. DUFFEY.)

The only work of the kind ever written by a woman, is a necessity in every household, its entirely novelty and eminent practicalness creates an immense demand. Notwithstanding the delicate subjects necessaryily treated, it is written in such a brave pure style as will not offend the most fastidious. Lady agents never have had such an opportunity to make money and do good.—Terms and sample sheets mailed free on immediate application. J. S. GOODMAN, 93 Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JUNE 3d, 1875. Number 22.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year.........$1. | Six Months......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square.......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	8 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
One Column.......	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.
J. W. RICKEL, R. DEXTE TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store. Ceel's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Mills and Casebeer's store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON will attend to all calls in the time of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical disease. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing all the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel. My medicines are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of diceases without producing any bad effects upon the nervous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of quinine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on 8th street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 31 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago.
O SANDS, Prop'r.
$2.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.
J. H. FORD, Pres't.
J. A. COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire Line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,

CHAIRS

Husk & Hair Matrasses

50 and 52 East Main Street,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Thomas Baldock,

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experience corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. [illegible] Tarney

AUBURN MEAT MARKET!

KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Mainst first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store

BRICK FOR SALE

FRITZ GROESCOP.

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick, about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable figures. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Kutzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some of the above Tile, which they are selling at a very low figure. We offer

Four Inch Sizes at 50 cts. per Rod.

Six " " " 75 " "

Every person who intend to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office.
LANHAM & HOSE,
v5n11 Auburn, Indiana.

J . J. VanAuken,

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying. Office with Rose & Hartman, Auburn Indiana. Persons requesting work by letter, should give township and section.

BAKER BROS.

PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!

AND

EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes etc., always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.

BAKER BROS.

AGENT'S GRAND Combination.

100 BOOKS. 11 BIBLES

Photograph Albums,

Engravings, Chromos, Blank Books, Note Paper, &c. All shown in one prospectus. Beats anything out. Agents meet with Grand success.—Nothing Like it, and it sweeps the field. Agents wanted. Sole Territory given. Send for terms and circulars.
OHIO PUBLISHING CO., Ashland, O.
April 22, '75.

AUBURN

Meat Market.

Main St. Next door to Klotz's.

MICH HOUSTON

PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

NEW

Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep

FLOUR, CORN,
OATS, MILL FEED,
&c. at all times and at the Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs, &c.

WM. LANHAM.

FOR SALE.

Four Business Lots,

Adjoining the Court House square, the most desirable and the only ones similarly located in Auburn each lot 22x80 feet.

Those wishing to purchase the best in the market should apply soon either to A. J. LITTLE Attorney at Law, or THOMAS BALDOCK. Terms reasonable. Also.

A HOUSE and LOT

adjoining the above, The house is new containing five rooms, with closets convenient and pleasantly located will be sold at a

BARGAIN

Apply as above.

Pencilings and Clippings,

We notice Mr. Kline on our streets again.

Work on the jail is progressing rapidly.

The dance last Friday was attended largely.

Hebel's saloon has a new sign over the door,

The telegraph institute is doing quite well.

Try the COURIER one year. Its only two dollars.

The click of the hammer is heard all over the city.

The Leasure brothers make the boss ice cream.

Go to Sammy Pommert's if you like a good shave.

Improvements are being made on the M. E. Church.

Are we going to have any fun on the 4th of July.

The building to be used for saloon purposes, side of the Woolen Mills, is almost completed.

Mike Long, Jr., is going to Chicago in a short time to purchase a large stock of organs!

Work has commenced on the new building adjoining Mr. Ward's residence.

A large number of houses are being re-painted about the city, Paint improve the looks.

The forest fires in Central New York still continues, and they are doing much damage.

A dress-maker's apprintice speaks of her cross-eyed lover as the fellow whose looks are cut bias.

A certain Mrs. Smith says she celebrates her wooden weding every day. She married a stick, and that's how it is.

John Davis' b'hoys seem to have [illegible] jobs of spouting to do. They are "out" most of the time.

Mr. Jas. Potter's son has been quite lame from the effects of rheumatism, for several weeks.

Houser & Co., are very tasty in arranging their immense stock of books, papers, &c.

South Ben has a dog which will carry off and bury all the apples he can find in excess of what he can eat.

Some traveling photographers pitched their tent on Fluke's corner, but the business wasn't very heafty.

Francis Brooks, editor of the Hicksville "Independent" got married last week. Good luck go with him.

Cy Baughan's String Band, with Fatty hold of the horn, furnished music for the dancers, last Friday evening, to the satisfaction of all.

All able-bodied citizens without regard to color or previous condition of servitude between the ages of 21 and 55 years are liable to do road work.

Whenever a fishing party load down their ambulance with jugs and bottles they invariable report the fish scarcer than they have been before for a long time.

SETTLE UP

Notice is hereby given that all those knowing themselves indebted to the firm of, Eldridge & Rainier, are requested to call and settle without delay.

$500,000 to loan on improved farms in Northern Indiana, in sums of one thousand dollars and upwards, on five years time. Security must be first mortgage.
WILLIAM FLEMING,
tf Fort Wayne Ind.

Our boss barber, Sammy Pommert, done a job of shaving the other day that is not a common occurance. Three brothers were shaved, one after the other, and to add their ages together, divide it equaly it would make them average seventy years a piece, the oldest one being ninety years old.

And now comes, the report that in places in the afflicted west, they are gathering up the grasshoppers for the purpose of manufacturing them into whisky. The endeavor to turn our Egypt into Sodom and Gomorah may look very well in a business point of view to those who think bug juice is the salvation of their choice, but to many the grasshopper plague without its being adultered in that way is far more preferable.

"The Vassar girls must be feeling pretty vigorous this spring. When one of them gets mad and kicks a fence post in the garden, the shock knocks all the buds off the trees." The paragraph has been going about the country until it has become odorous. And we would suggest that the writer of it be allowed to go back to Vassar and be kicked again to see what he would say about the second attack.

The Supreme Court of the United States has just rendered a decision of special interest and importance to all holders of life insurance policies and all who may hereafter apply for such policies. It is to the effect that untruthful answers to the questions which form the basis of the policy, even though they may be immaterial to the risk assumed by the company, render the instrument void. This is the first time in which the question involved has been brought before the court of last resort in this country.

"There, my dear wife, there is the set of jewelery which you have so long waited for;" said he, as he laid a package before his wife, the other evening." Oh! you dear old darling. How much did it cost?" "Only fifty dollars he replied, carelessly. "And what's this mark $8.50,' on the card ford?" she asked, as she held it up and looked at him with suspicion in her eyes. "That—that mark —why, that means they paid only $8.50 to have the jewelry made," he replied. "Just think, darling of grinding a poor hardworking artesian down to $8.50!"

A Mother's Advice

Listen to me my dear son, I am older than you are or I could not be your mother. Beware of marrying a young girl before you have succeeded three or four times before breakfast to enter the kitchen where she is. You must well observe if her collor is the same in the morning, when soap and water has been used as it is in the evening. You must take her by surprise and see how her hair looks when she does not expect you. You must listen to the conversation between her and her mother in the morning. If she is cross and ugly to her mother she will certainly be so toward you, depend upon it. But if you find her up early; neatly dressed, her hair fixed as usual, a bright smile on her face. If her answers to her mother are cheerful and willing, and if she is as you have always found her in the evening, then my son, she is a jewel and the sooner you captivate that jewel the better for you.

How to Know the Age of Hoeses

The colt is born with twelve grinders. When four front teeth have made their appearance; the colt ist welve days old and when the next four come forth, it is four weeks old. When the corner teeth appear the colt's eight months old, and when the latter have attained the hight of the front teeth, it is one year old.

The two year old has the kernal—the dark substance in the middle of the tooth's crown— ground out of all the front teeth.

In the third year the middle front teeth are being shifted; and when three years old these are subsituted for the horses teeth. The next four are shifted in the fourth year, and the corner teeth in the fifth.

At six years the kernal is worn out of the middle front teeth, and the bridle teeth have now attained to their full growth.

At seven years a hook has been formed on the corner tooth of the upper jaw the kernal of the teeth next to the middle fronts is worn out, and the bridle teeth begin to wear off.

At eight years the kernal is worn out of all the lower front teeth, and begins to decrease in the middle and upper fronts.

In the ninth year the kernal has whooly disappeared from the upper middle front teeth, the hook on the corner tooth has increased in size as the bridle teeth loose their points.

In the tenth year the kernal has worn out of the upper jaw; and in the eleventh year the kernal has entirely vanished from the corner teeth of the same jaw.

At twelve years the crown of all the front teeth in the under jaw becomes triangular, and the bridle teeth are much worn down. As the horses advance in age, the gums sink away from the teeth, which consequently receives a long narrow appearance, and their kernals have been metamorphosed into a darkish point, gray hairs increase in the forehead over the chin assumes the form of an eagle.

When two Pike county men are about to make a mule trade, the first question asked by the would-be purchaser is: "What's his record?" Seller replies: "Three niggers and a couple dozen dash boards," and the new owner leads his property off.—Savannah Advertiser.

On His way From Garret

The old German that we spoke of last week did not call at the office, on his return from Garret, as he agreed to do. But through our good luck we managed to get the old fellow foul. We saw him in a store, and we naturaly slipped behind him when "Greecy Heels" commenced.

"I vish to burchase a blug het, off you kin zuit me."

"What kind of a hat do you want, sir? said the man behind the counter.

Here the old fellow got huffey and broke out loudly.

"Vot I zay—a blug het I vant. Von ground mit a plack pand."

"Yes, but what price do you want pay for a hat."

"Dot makes nottings. Show off 'em up."

"Well, sir, there is the spring style of plugs. Try it on."

"Vot you charge for dot het?"

"We can't take less than four dollars for that hat. It cost us $3.75."

"Voar dollars—nix cumerouse. I give you usht exactly dhree dollars, und not von zent more."

"We can't take that, my friend. It cost us $3.75."

"I zay nix. You dake me vor dot rose of zummer vhat comes last, eh?"

"No, sir. You must remember that the first styles always sell for the most money. After while they can be sold cheaper. See in the crown it says Spring Style."

"Vell, I usht vate a leetle. Dot spring sthiles vas too dhin. Vhy don't it zay vall sthiles by eigteen hundred und zeventy vive. Dot's buziness?"

"I don't know why 1875 is not there—but I assure you it is the latest style."

"I don't zuck dot in. Dhree dollars vas cost brice, und I giv not von zent more."

"Well, take it along at cost, $3.75."

"Dot's blade out. Dot cost vas usht dhree dollars und not von zent more."

"Are there any other kind of hat you want, Mr. Heel's?"

"Nixy, Jim. I vas going to splice minezelf mit dot big gal vot I made off dot Great Vestern Zenzation, a vew days beck, und I must have a blug het. I giv you dhree dollars und not von zent more."

"Well, d——it take it along, but don't say anything about the price to anyone."

"Nix, I vont; und vhen I get a vamilies you shall vurnish all mine boys mit blug hets like dot at cost, dhree dollars und not von zent more.

The Lightning Rod Peddler

He drove his team close up to the fence, got down and rapped at the door. The widow Gilkens opened it, when he said: "Mrs. Gilkens, I am cognizant of the circumstances by which you are surrounded, left as you are to trudge down the journey of life through a cold and heartless world—no long sustained and encouraged by the noble one to heart's affection, and bowed down your manifold cares and responsibil ities incidential to the reariage of eight small children on 40 acres of subcarboniferous limestome land; yet Mrs. Gilkens, you are aware that the season is approaching when dark, dismal, dangerous clouds at frequent intervals span the canopy of heaven; and when zigzag streaks of electricity dart promiscuously hither thither, rendering this habituation unsafe for yourself and those dear, little ones—hence, therefore, let me sell you a copper wire, silver-tipped, and highly magnetic lightning rod." The woman started back a few paces and yelled, 'Narcis' unfasten old Cronch!" In another instant a savage bull-dog came darting 'round the house with bristles up, thirsting for gore. The dog had already mangled a machine agent and a patent soap man and was held in great esteem by the better class of citizens for his courage and service, but when his eye met the hard penetrating gaze of Mr. Parsons, his chops fell and he slinked off and hid in the current bushes. Then the man said: "My dear lady, you seem to be a little excited. Now if you will allow me to explain the probable inestimable—"

"Dearn ye, I know something that will start ye," and she reached under the bed clothes, and brought forth a horse pistol, but owing to the shuddering condition of her nerves, her aim was unsteady, and the charge of buck-shot missed, save where a few scattered ones struck his cheek, and glanced off. A hard metallic smile spred over his countenance, as he leaned his shoulder against the door frame, and again commenced: "My dear madame, such spasmodic manifestations of your disinclination to make a judicious investment of a few paltry dollars—"

"Hi—co!" shrieked the widow, and collapsed into a kind of jerking swoon, and before she had recovered a highly magnetic lightning rod decorated her humble domicile and Parsons had the blank note filled out already for the signature.

Objections to Spring.

"Nix Gentle Spring."

Kin you tell me why peanut sellers, filosophers and fools and ministers, and "musclemen" and lawyers and loafers, and doctors and dry goods clerks, men, wimen and children, et ceterer and so forth, all go in with such a rush for spring? Cos if you kin tell me, blamed if I would'nt like to know. I've been a thinkin' this ere subjek over for some time, and I've come to the conclusion that spring is jist the meanest season in the hole year. She is the deceivinest criter ever was. She is everything by turns and nothing long. She blows hot and cold with the same mouth all the time. The most favorable thing that can be said of her is that she's a little green and a great blower, and that, judgin' from the standard of human natur', oughter be a positive disadvantage.—Her principle produceshions is rheumatiz fever and ager, consumption, and cold in the head. A feller don't know half the time whether to wear his overcoat or go in his shirt-sleeves. I ain't been able to do anything at my legitemit business since spring sot in. I'ts took all my time to blow my proboskis, and I've had to keep both hands a-goin' at that. My nose is like a piece of raw beefsteak, and I'm afeered I shall commit a involuntary suercide by blowin' my brains out through my nostrils. If I do happen to ketch a spare minnit occasionally I'm obleeged to fill up my time by sneezin', coughin,, or shakin' with arger. I've shook all the hair off o' my head, and I've been brought down so fine in flesh that I think somethin' of exhibitin' myself at the museum for a livin' skeleton. I have'nt felt any of springs balmy breezes, or sighin' zeffyrs, or health-givin' odors—I have'nt seen any of her lap full of flowers, or her laffin' streams, or her singin' birds, such as we read about—nary one! Her balmy breezes has bin cold, easterly winds; her singing zeffyrs shrill key-hole music; her laughin' streams, nasty, drizly, chilly rains; her health-givin' odors, the steme from manure heaps; her lap full of flowers, a few miserable white things that looked frightened to death at havin' come into 'the world before their time; her singin' birds a lot of half-drowned, wretched-lookin' barn-yard fowls. I do hate any half way business. I allers like to have either one thing or the other, out and out. I never see a mean-spirited, vacillatin', half-determined sort of a man, who tells you he will do a thing one minnit, and then do something directly contrary the next, but wot I think his name orter be spring. I never see a fickle, changeable, unprincipled cokwet but I think her name orter be Flora. I'm down onto spring. She roasts us, she soaks us, she shivers us, and she burns us up with fever, and finally, and to conclude, she starves us to death, for she never brings anything to eat with her.—She gives us the the very wust taters that we have the hole year round, and this alone, if she was'nt gilty of anything else, would be enough to sit me agin her teetotally. Once more I say nix gentle spring.

Crop Destroyers

A Tennessee paper says of the destructive worms that have recently appeared in Tipton county: The worms are a species of the larva of the gerus agrostis or common cut worm. We learn that the meadows have very generally, in this vicinity been entirely destroyed, and that many farmers have already found their corn damaged to such an extent as to require plowing up and planting over. The wheat fields are also full of this plague, though this plant seems so far to have suffered very little. The gardens likewise come in for a large share of the damage, cabbage plants, beans, potatoes, strawberries, and other vegetables being much injured. In the village may be seen the gardeners at work destroying worms every morning before breakfast. Some of these pestiferous worms have been laid on our table. They are about one inch to one inch and a quarter in length, and of a bright yellow color, with sixteen legs, six of which are near the head, eight a little past the middle, and two are on the extreme end of the body. Like the ordinary cut worm, as soon as touched they curl up as if dead If allowed to remain undisturbed for a minutes, they begin to move of, and their motion is quite rapid.

Is Your Life Worth 10 Cents.

SICKNESS prevails everywhere, and everybody complains of some disease during their life.—When sick, the object is to get well; now we say plainly that no person in this world that is suffering with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and its effects, such as Indigestion, Costiveness, Sick Headache Sour stomache, Heart-burn, Palpitation of the Heart, Depressed Spirits, Billiousness, &c. can take GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER without getting relief and cure. If you doubt this, go to your Druggist and get a sample bottle for ten cents and try it. Regular size 75 cents. Two doses will relieve you.

The COURIER is gaining in subscription each week, and we expect to continue to do so right along.

THE POWER OF PRAYER;

Or, de First Steamboat Up the Alabama.

BY SIDNEY AND CLIFFORD LANIER.

You, Dinah! Come and set me whar de ribber-roads does meet.
De Lord, He made dese black-jack roots to twis' into a seat.
Umph, dar! De Lord have mussy on dis blin' old nigger's feet.

It 'pears to me dis mornin' I kin smell de fust o' June.
I 'clar', I b'lieve dat mockin'-bird could play de fiddle soon!
Dem yonder town-bells sounds like dey was ringin' in de moon.

Well, ef dis nigger is been blind for fo'ty year or mo',
Dese ears, dey sees the world, like, th'u' de cracks dat's in de do'.
For de Lord has built dis body wid de windows 'hind and 'fo'.

I know my front ones is stopped up, and things is sort o' dim,
But den, th'u' dem, temptation's rain won't leak in on ole Jim!
De back ones [illegible] mons'ous slim.

And as for Hebben—bless de Lord and praise His holy name—
Dat shines in all de co'ners of dis cabin jes' de same
As ef dat cabin hadn't nar' a plank upon de frame!

Who call me? Listen down de ribber, Dinah! Don't you hyar
Somebody holl,in' "hoo, Jim, hoo!" My Sarah died last y'ar;
Is dat black angel done come back to call ole Jim f'om hyar?

My stars, dat cain't be Sarah, shuh! Jes' listen, Dinah, now!
What kin be comin' up dat bend, a-makin' sich a row?
Fus' bellerin' like a pawin' bull, den squealin' like a sow?

De Lord 'a' massy sakes alive, jes hear—ker-woof, ker-woof—
De Debble's comin' round dat bend, he's comin', shuh enuff,
A-splashin' up de water wid his tail and wid his hoof!

I'se pow'ful skeered; but neversomeless I ain't gwine to run away;
I'm gwine to stand stiff-legged for the Lord dis blessed day.
You screech, and howl, and swish de water Satan! Let us pray.

O, Hebbenly Mah'sr, what thou willest, dat must be jes' so,
And ef Thou hast bespoke de word, some nigger's bound to go.
Den, Lord, please take ole Jim, and lef young Dinah hyar below!

Scuse Dinah, scuse her, Mah'sr; for she's sich a little chile,
She hardly jes' begin to scramble up de home-yard stile,
But dis ole traveler's feet been tired dis many a many a mile,

I'se wuffles as de rotten pole of las' year's fodder-stack.
De rheumatiz done bit my bones; you hear 'em crack and crack?
I cain't sit down 'dout gruntin' like 'twas breakin o' my back.

What use de wheel, when hub and spokes is warped and split, and rotten?
What use dis dried-up cotton stalk, when Life done picked my cotton?
I'se like a word dat somebody done said, and den forgotten.

But, Dinah! Shuh dat gal jes' like dis little hick'ry-tree,
De sap 's jes' risin' in her; she do grow owdaciouslee—
Lord, ef you's clarin' de underbrush, don't cut her down, cut me!

I would not proud persume—but yet I'll boldly make reques';
Sence Jacob had dat wrastlin'-match, I too, gwine do my bes';
When Jacob got all underholt, de Lord He answered Yes!

And what for waste de vittles, now, and th'ow away de bread,
Jes' for to strength dese idle hands to scratch dis ole bald head?
T'ink of de 'conomy, Mah'sr, ef dis ole Jim was dead!

Stop;—ef I don't believe de Debble's gone on up de stream!
Jes' now he squealed down dar;—hush; dat's a mighty weakly scream!
Yas, sir, he's gone, he's gone;—he snort way off, like in a dream!

O glory hallelujah to de Lord dat reigns on high!
De Debble's fai'ly skeered to def, he done gone flyin' by;
I know'd he couldn' stand dat pra'r, I felt my Mah'sr nigh!

You, Dinah! ain't you 'shamed, now, dat you didn' trust to grace?
I heerd you thrashin' th'u' de bushes when he showed his face!
You fool, you think de Debble couldn't beat you in a race?

I tell you, Dinah, jes' as sure as you is standin' dar,
When folks starts prayin', answer-angels drops down th'u' de a'r.
Yes, Dinah, whar 'ould you be now, exceptin' for dat pra'r?

—Scribner for June.

THE HEIRESS' LOVER.

"We're going to take some city boarders," said Farmer Parsons, as he put his packages of sugar and tea into the big basket he had brought to "the store" in his wagon. "Wife and I will be down to fetch 'em to-morrow. There's a lady and some children, and a young lady, a great heiress. She's in mourning for the uncle that left the property; so she can't go to a lively place. Quite a young gal and very pretty. Two pounds of raisins, Mr. Jones,—and some of them currants; reckon a pound 'll do."

News is news in the country. The farmer's audience listened intently. The doctor—young Doctor Purl—who had stepped in for letters—the store was also the postoffice—took note of every word, and Marcus Moreland, who had come to post a letter also, remembered what the old man had said. As he walked away, "Pretty young girl," he said to himself. "An heiress gets the reputation of being pretty; probably she is not half as nice looking as Farmer Parsons' own daughters, and heiresses are apt to think too much of themselves."

"An heiress," said the doctor, as he jumped into his gig. "Well, I shall go over to see Parsons pretty soon. No place like the country for a courtship, and a fellow who married an heiress need not wait year in and year out to build up his practice, I wonder how much she is really worth? A great heiress. That oughtn't to mean less than a hundred thousand dollars. I should like a wife with a nice little bank account of that size. Young and pretty, too; it's a rare chance."

The city boarders came next day. The loungers at the store saw them get into the wagon—a fat young matron and three little girls, a nurse, a baby, and a young lady dressed in mourning. The storekeeper's wife noticed the elegant cut of the overskirt which the latter wore, and more than one saw the diamond ring flash on her finger; but it was just dark, and the beauty was not a settled point, for no one could see her face.

Marcus Moreland, who was the poor clergyman's son, and had just fought his way through college with a prospect of teaching the male department of the district school that winter as his best one, while working in his father's garden the next morning, was placed in a position to judge on this matter.

He heard a little scream, and looking up saw a very pretty young lady, and a very pretty little boy flying in terror from a perfectly harmless, broad-faced, white milch cow, who, in the excess of her content, as she stood knee-keep in the water of a pond chewing the cud, had elevated her nostrils, and turning her slow, brown eyes in the direction of the pedestrians, uttered a long, low mooo-o.

"Oh!" screamed the young lady, faintly. "Can't you run faster, Tommy? I think she's coming after us."

"I beg your pardon, ma'am," cried Marcus, jumping the paling fence—"but Mooly won't touch you. She wouldn't hurt any-one. She's perfectly harmless. See!" and he approached the pond side and patted the white head. "See—we've had her ten years, and she's the gentlest creature."

"I'm quite ashamed of myself, but I'm not used to cows," said the [illegible] her angry; and when you have other people's children with you it's such a responsibility. Tom, don't touch the gentleman's flowers. I'm ashamed of you."

For city Tom, with a general idea that "the country' belonged to everybody, was helping himself to roses.

Of course after that Marcus plucked flowers for Tom, and a bouquet for the young lady; and as she walked bewitchingly up the road, with the flowers against her pretty chin, decided that this heiress certainly was the loveliest thing that his eyes had ever rested upon.

That afternoon Doctor Purl rode over to Mrs. Parsons'; made a call; was introduced; decided that the heiress was a beauty; conversed with her in a manner calculated to prove that he at least was no country bumpkin; made a point of looking at his elegant watch before he left; and had the satisfaction of feeling that he had made an impression.

May Dimple was very young, very inexperienced, and very willing to think the best of everybody. At eighteen she was mistress of a fine fortune, and being an orphan, her own mistress altogether. Her heart was yet a white, unwritten sheet, and the first that made love to her was likely to win it. Vague longings for that peculiar tenderness which only a lover can offer already possessed her soul, and she was just the sort of little woman to forget her own advantages, and feel very grateful for love and admiration. The doctor was tall and fine-looking, and she caught herself blushing as she looked into the glass after his departure, and thought what a soft look had come into his eyes as he "Hoped they should meet again."

Meanwhile Marcus Moreland had been thinking about her more than she guessed, and that evening there was another introduction.

Marcus did not make big eyes at her, nor try to show his superiority to his neighbors, neither had he any gold watch to consult. He was younger than the doctor by ten years, and very much of a boy still, and the rising moon found May, her little cousin Tom and Marcus all sitting together on the lower step of the porch, talking of blackberrying, as three children might.

The heiress wore a linen dress and a knot of blue ribbon in her hair. Marcus forgot she was an heiress. It was only a dear little girl, just the nicest creature he ever met, who looked at him frankly with her blue eyes—real blue eyes, not blue gray. He went home in the first stages of love, and sat at the window looking at the moon, and thinking of her nearly all night.

May had never had anything like a beau in her life. Shut up with an invalid uncle in a great city home that was like a prison—seeing no one but the doctor and nurse, and now and then some old gentleman, whom her uncle was persuaded to admit on the score of old friendship—she had no idea that she might be a belle.

Life was all new to her. Even her cousin was a new-found relative who had "taken a notion to her," when the friends gathered at the old man's funeral.

People who had never remembered little May until the news of her heiress-ship brought her to their notice, had been so very kind since. The liberty she enjoyed made the quiet country-house a very happy place; and now two admirers dawned upon her horizon at once, and made life "perfectly splendid" to May, much as the situation would have bored many an experienced belle.

Matters naturally assumed this form as the time passed on. May had two lovers, and hardly knew which she liked best.

Marcus did not make love—he did not dare—but he looked it. The doctor made love scientifically; he had pumped the farmer, who believed that the young lady's fortune was "something more than common." He had even extracted from the married cousin a statement that "Uncle left everything to May."

He had three months to work in before the heiress knew her own powers, and had learnt from one gay winter that lovers follow money thick and fast, and he was a determined sort of fellow where there was anything to gain.

Marcus had no plans. His boy's heart ran away with him—that was all. He could not keep away from May's side, nor forget her when they were apart; and so summer passed and autumn approached, and the city folks were going home, and the district school was to be opened, and Cousin Helen's husband, a hard-driven Wall-street man, came down to spend a week before he took his family home; and all this delightful time was nearly at an end.

Marcus was to be examined for his position as teacher of the school—a mere form with his fine education.

The doctor, as a learned gentleman, was one of a committee to examine the coming schoolma'am for the girl's department.

"A pleasanter task," as he said, jestingly, "if he expected to see anybody there but old Miss Cynthia Alderny and older Miss Baker."

May heard a good deal of the school, especially as Farmer Parsons was another of the committee, and she felt an interest in it, too, as Marcus was to teach. It seemed so odd to think of.

Cousin Helen's husband went about as men always do, and heard more in a day than the ladies could in a year. He returned one evening with a solemn face, and informed his wife, in confidence, that the talk of the whole place was May's fortune, and that the doctor, who had done nothing but run after rich women since he came to the place, was said to be "after it."

"A regular fortune-hunter, my dear," said the husband. "You must use your influence with poor little May."

May meanwhile had been in her favorite grove, and there had Marcus Moreland betaken himself to say good-by. Poor boy, he had had some bitter hours of late. The truth that May's love was the one thing worth having upon earth had dawned upon him, and with it the knowledge that he had no right to offer himself to an heiress. How he hated her money. It stood between them like some awful spell. If she had been the poorest girl living, he could have said all that was in his heart to her—not now. [illegible] words and went his way.

"It was folly for me to think he liked me much," said May, as he left her. "How formal and cold he is after all our sociability," and a little pang nipped her heart, and she smiled more brightly on the doctor when he also entered the grove than she had ever smiled before.

He made love to her that afternoon after true story-book fashion. On the stage at ——'s he would have caused tender-hearted ladies to say "how sweet." It was a pretty little scene, rehearsed in private. Had May but known it the night before; and no girl could have failed to understand his parting words.

"To-morrow, before you leave, I must see you. You will grant me a private interview, will you not? I have something of intense importance to myself, at least, to say to you. You will let me see you in the garden? I—I—" a falter, a look, a snatch at her hand, the touch of his lips upon it.

Then the curtain should have dropped, as he rode away in his gig and said to himself:

"I always was a lucky fellow—to think that Providence should have sent an heiress to such a place as this, a pretty one, too!"

When May entered the house, a surprise awaited her. Cousin Helen took her at once to her bedroom, and there, behind closed doors, repeated her husband's information.

"You know you are so young and inexperienced," said she, "and a fortune-hunter is such a dreadful creature."

May's face flushed crimson.

"Do you really think nobody could love me for myself?" she asked, in a sudden fit of indignation.

Then common-sense came to her aid. She sat quiet for a while, and then drew near her cousin and whispered something in her ear. It was a long whisper.

"It will prove him," she said aloud; "and you will help me?"

Cousin Helen promised, and May retired to her own room, there to shed a few not unnatural tears.

Night passed; the morning came. The school-house doors were set open for the first time for months. The committee was to meet at eleven, to examine the candidates for the teachers' positions.

Old Farmer Parsons walked over, also Farmer Brown. The doctor was there, and the lawyer, Mr. Triphammer. Miss Cynthia Alderny was seen walking toward the door with a defiant face. Miss Baker followed with a scared one. Marcus Moreland took his way in, and just as all were settling into their seats a little figure in buff linen, with a blue-riboned hat on its head, slipped into one of the doors and stood among them.

Everybody looked up.

"Miss Dimple!" said the farmer. "Why, I declare?"

"Miss Dimple?" said the doctor, advancing with a gallant air.

"Yes, sir," said May, quietly. "I understand that you examine candidates to-day. I am fond of teaching, and when one must do something, one seizes every chance, you know. May I be examined?"

"I suppose you are jesting, Miss Dimple," said the doctor.

"Not I," said May. "I suppose you have heard that foolish story about me. Two or three hundred dollars may be a very pleasant little sum to spend on a summers vacation, but it doesn't make one a great heiress."

"Folks will talk, you know," said farmer Parsons, with a twinkle in his eye. "A poor gal is as respectable as a rich one, long as she conducts proper. Set down, Miss Dimple."

The doctor retired to his seat, his face very pale and rigid. Marcus Moreland, on the contrary, had flushed scarlet.

May's two lovers were a strange contrast at that moment. For her own part, she was quieter and sadder and more womanly than usual. She went through the examination bravely, under the fire of Miss Cynthia's indignant eyes, and amidst Miss Baker's despondent sighs. Then she walked home and waited, as she had promised, in the garden. Would the doctor keep his engagement? He did.

"My dear, Miss Dimple," he said, as he advanced gayly, but not quite naturally. "I feared I should scarcely get here in time to bid you good-by. I'm sorry the committee think you too young for the place. They've given it to Miss Cynthia. Really, it would be very dull for you, very. I told you I had something very particular to say to you—didn't I? You remember, I see. I didn't think you would. I wanted to say that I've really enjoyed your little visit to this place so much. Ladies' society is a treat to a poor old bachelor doctor, who expects to be a bachelor all his life, by the way. You know what the society here is, Miss Dimple, and you've quite brightened the summer for me. I've had a treat. So that's what I wanted to tell you, and to bid you a last good-by."

"Good-by, Dr. Purl," said May, with a smile.

The man who had made such desperate love to her the other day, who had defined his intentions toward her in a manner no girl could misunderstand, had slipped calmly and smoothly out of the affair, and she could match him in coolness, girl as she was.

They shook hands.

"Adieu," said the doctor, with the true Parisian accent, and jumped into his gig, thanking heaven that he had escaped making an offer to a poor girl.

The heiress stood by the gate where he had left her, thanking heaven much more devoutly for her escape. Yet I shall not say she was happy. It was not in nature; for she had believed this man her true and earnest lover. The first bitter thoughts that had ever troubled her young heart filled it now; her first glimpse of real life was taken. As she stood there she began to doubt that there was such a thing as true love.

A tear or two fell; she wiped them away; and through the mist that veiled her eyes, she saw a bright, ardent young face, strangely in contrast with the cool, formal, unmoved countenance, with its handsome features and practiced smile, that had just passed from before her vision. It was the face of Marcus Moreland; and before she was aware of his intention he had passed his arm about her waist and kissed her.

"If I never may again, I must now," he said. "I have never dared to tell you while I thought you so rich, but I've loved you since the first day we met. We are both poor; let me fight the battle of life for you. I can do it—I will do it. God always prospers love like mine."

The twilight shadows were creeping over the scene. The distant mountains were losing the faint rose-tips that they had worn. All was still save for the distant tinkle of a cow-bell. A soft, sweet breeze swept up from the meadows, full of the fragrance of grass and clover. Did these things bring the sudden calm and sweetness to May's wounded heart?

She stood still making Marcus no answer, but she did not repulse him.

"Tell me that you like me a little," pleaded the boy.

"I do like you, Marcus," said May; "but don't ask me any more just now. I can't tell you why, but this is not the time. I—I—just say good-by now, Marcus. I must go away to-morrow, but I will write to you."

"Remember, my love is life or death to me," said Marcus, and so they parted.

One day when May felt that she had no longer anything but scorn for her fortune-hunting doctor, she did write to Marcus Moreland, and what she said may be inferred from the fact that they are to be married when the next spring comes; and that the people at the store, and doubtless the doctor also, already know that Farmer Parsons' pretty young boarder was really and actually an heiress, and that Farmer Parsons, a shrewd old man with plenty of good sense, knew and approved of the ruse that tested the heiress's lovers all along.

How General Grant Nearly Cheated Destiny.

After Shiloh, General Halleck came and took the field, and General Grant, after winning this battle, was "substantially left out' and was named second in command, according to some French notion, with no clear, well-defined command or authority. For more than a month Grant thus remained without any apparent authority, frequently visiting me and others, but rarely complaining; but I could see how deeply he felt the indignity, if not the insult heaped upon him." This overshadowing of Grant continued for a short time and evidently moved Sherman's sympathies toward his commander. One evening he learned that Grant had asked for thirty days' leave, and was going to depart the next morning. "Of course we all knew," said Sherman, "that Grant was chafing under the slights of his anomalous position, and I determined to see him on my way back. His camp was a short distance off the Monterey road, in the woods, and consisted of four or five tents with a sapling railing around the front. As I rode up Majors Rawlins, Logan and Hillyer were in front of the camp, and piled up near them were the usual effects and camp chests ready for starting in the morning. I inquired for the General, and was shown to his tent, where I found him seated upon a camp-stool, with some papers on a rude camp table. He seemed to be employed in assorting letters and tying them up with red tape into convenient bundles. After passing the usual compliments I inquired if it were true that he was going away. He said, 'Yes.' I then inquired the reason. He said, 'Sherman, you know. You know that I am in the way here. I have stood it as long as I can, and can endure it no longer.' I inquired where he was going to. He said, 'St. Louis.' I then asked if he had any business there, and he said, 'Not a bit.' I then begged him to stay, illustrating his case by my own. Before the battle of Shiloh I had been cast down by a mere newspaper assertion of 'crazy.' But that single battle had given me new life, and now I was in high feather. I argued with him that if he went away events would go right along and he would be left out, whereas if he remained some happy accident might restore him to favor, and his true place." The result was that General Grant remained, and in a short time, by the removal of Halleck to Washington, became the commander of the army.—Sherman's Memoirs.

A Kentucky Yarn.

This is what a truthful Kentucky man, who threw his little hatchet after a rabbit, saw down the hole into which he went to get it: Arriving at the bottom, he observed a room like a cave, about ten feet square, dimly lighted by the sunlight without. Casting his eyes about him he discovered a pile of Indian tomahawks. Towards these he advanced for the purpose of examination. While doing so he discovered two earthen vessels almost within reach, which he saw were filled, one with silver and the other with gold coin. Paralyzed for the moment at the discovery of such vast riches, he stood and stared in blank astonishment. For a moment only did he stand thus, but advancing with a panther-like leap he was about to seize his prey, when there arose a succession of such shrieks, yells and noises that he paused, and glancing up saw gazing upon him eight or ten things resembling men who had once lived, but now nothing remained but their bones. It is useless to say the stave-cutter lost no time in getting out of the cave, without even obtaining one piece of the precious metal to bear him out in his story. It appears that he is a more than ordinarily truthful man for a Kentuckian, and his story is believed by many. They are organizing a company for the purpose of fighting the goblins and gobblin' the cash.

IN what respect does a locomotive resemble a dream? In coming upon sleepers.

Deadly Ballooning.

The names of Croce-Spinelli and Sivel, two of the most daring and successful of French aeronauts, are now to be added to the long list of those who have laid down their lives in the cause of science. In company with M. Gaston Tissandier, they attempted to ascend to a higher altitude than had before been reached. At 29,000 feet elevation, all three men became unconscious. The balloon soared higher and higher and then descended. Tissandier regained his senses on reaching respirable air, to find his companions dead from suffocation.

The voyage which has resulted so disastrously was the second of two recently projected by the French Society of Aerial Navigation. During the first, which was safely accomplished, the balloon was kept afloat for twenty-three hours, and a number of interesting ob- [illegible] atmosphere were obtained. The aeronauts, during the second ascension, were to test the atmosphere at the highest possible altitude, make experiments for carbonic acid, conduct spectroscopic observations, and in general to obtain scientific data relative to the upper aerial regions with greater accuracy than heretofore attained. Thus it was believed possible, through the respiration of oxygen, to enable the investigators to exist in a highly attenuated atmosphere, a fact already apparently practically demonstrated by the previous ascension of Croce-Spinelli and Sivel to a hight of 25,000 feet, described in these columns a year ago.

The balloon Zenith started on its voyage from Paris at 1 p. m. on April 15. It shot directly upward, reaching the hight of 21,000 feet in a very few minutes. At this elevation Tissandier says: "My companions were pale; I felt weak, but inhaled a little of the gas, which somewhat revived me. We still ascended." In response to Sivel's request, he acquiesces in throwing out ballast, and three of the nine eighty-pound bags of sand were emptied. "All at once," he continues, "I found myself so feeble that I could not even turn my head. I wanted to exclaim 'we are at 8,000 yards,' but my tongue seemed paralyzed." Tissandier then faints, but revives and finds the balloon falling rapidly. Greatly alarmed, he arouses Sivel, who has fallen into a stupor, and the latter, seizing the respirator, inhales large quantities of oxygen. "Shall we go up?" exclaims Tissandier; "yes," replies Sivel, gaily, "and happy the one of us that returns." Sivel becomes intoxicated with repeated doses of oxygen, and in his exhilaration throws over the respirator, besides the ballast and a number of the instruments. Again the Zenith soars aloft, and Tissandier, as he lapses once more into stupor, reads from the barometer an altitude of 29,000 feet. Spinelli and Sivel, he states, were still conscious, though apparently incapable of any exertion. How high the air ship ascended will be known when the test barometers are examined by the French Society. When Tissandier awoke, two hours later, the balloon was falling at a fearful rate. He hurriedly cut away the grapnel and other articles which had escaped Sivel, checking the speed; and then, on attempting to rouse his companions, he found both stone dead, their blackened faces and blood-suffused mouths denoting their struggles against the suffocating atmosphere.—Scientific American.

Ben Spinner's Composition.

The reason why that the 4th of July is so short, is because they signed the Declaration of Independence all on one day. If they only had went slow, and been three or four days about is, then we would have had a longer pull at the fireworks, and plenty of time to make things lively 'most all the week.

When your mother sends you to the grocery with a basket for two dozen eggs in a hurry, and you get into a soft game of marbles on the way, and win a good many, and don't come home for two hours, that's forgetfulness. But your mother don't forget you when you come back.

There is a boy lives in the Fourth Ward has feet so egregious big that he can't play hop-scotch; but then no hair-pin can throw him down in a fair rassale, and a hard wind could never blow him over in a storm.

When you slide down on the long banisters of the front hall stairs, and go on down to the bottom so fast that it burns you clean through your trowsers, that's friction.

Some Saturday when you are in the kitchen and the hired girl has just shined up the knives, when she turns her back you mustn't dip them one at a time in the vinegar jug, because if you do the chemistry will turn 'em black, and then you might have to go careless to the back fence to get out of the way of some hot water or something.

When you see a boy with a splinter new overcoat on as fits him, and is real tailor-made, and you haven't got any overcoat yourself, and it's a awful cold day, and you want his'n, that's envy. But you can't help it when you ain't a Christian.

Your father would never pay twelve dollars for a big dictionary for you in a hundred years, but if you was to win one in a hard spelling match, he would make you study it nights till you nearly went crazy.

When your mother is frying dough-nuts, and you're hungry, it don't make any difference how her hair is combed, or if it is combed at all or not; just only tell her that you think she looks so han'some with her hair done up in that way, and she will feed you on hot dough-nuts till you swell up like a toad.

When a sack of peanuts gets busted on a dray and spilt out on the street, and your pockets don't hold many, because they're nearly full of other things, then a daily newspaper would be a good thing to have, and would be useful.

Why is the world like your father? This is a hard conundrum, which you might just as well give it up. Because the world is round always, like a ball; but your father is 'round only of a Saturday afternoon early, just when you don't want him, and when the circus in the stable has only just commenced.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A NEW YORK paper says that the big merchants of that city "are taking in sail on account of the dullness of the spring trade." So it appears that the smaller the sales of merchant men are the more they take in their sails. It's different with men-of-war.

THE RAILROAD.

Through the mold and through the clay,
Through the corn and through the hay,
By the margin of the lake,
O'er the river, through the brake,
On we hie with screech and roar,
Splashing! flashing!
Crashing! dashing!
Over the ridges, gullies, bridges,
By the bubbling rill and mill,
Highways, byways, hollow hill;
Jumping, bumping, rocking, roaring,
Like forty thousand giants snoring!

O'er the aqueduct and bog
On we fly with ceaseless jog;
Every instant something new,
Every moment lost to view;
Now a tavern, now a steeple,
Now a crowd of gaping people,
Now a hollow, now a ridge,
Now a crossway, now a bridge,
Grumble, stumble, rumble, tumble,
Fretting, getting in a stew!
Church and steeple, gaping people
Quick as thought are lost to view;
Everything that eye can survey
Turns hurly-burly, topsy-turvy.
Glimpse of [illegible] hut and mansion,
Glimpse of ocean's wide expansion,
Glimpse of foundry and of forge,
Glimpse of plain and mountain gorge—
Dash along! slash along! flash along!
On! on with a jump, and a bump, and roll,
Hies the fire-fiend to its destined goal.

Pith and Point.

PROOF is better than decision.

A LAY figure—a Cochin-China hen.

DEAR meat at all times—Venison.

ROOTED sorrow—An aching tooth.

THE silent man rides into power on the back of babblers.

"CLINCH your nails and they will hold." Whatever you read or study, make it your own.

MANY have withstood the frowns of the world, but its smiles and caresses have often hugged them to death.

A RUSSIAN proverb says: Before going to war, pray once; before going to sea, pray twice; before getting married, pray three times.

AN editor at a dinner party, being asked if he would have some pudding, replied in a fit of abstraction: "Owing to the press of more important matter, we are unable to find room for it."

IT is, methinks, an honest and laudable fortitude to dare to be ugly; at least to keep ourselves from being abashed with a consciousness of imperfections we cannot help, and in which there is no guilt.

THE Chicago Tribune: "Mack's" geography is at fault. Venice, not Naples, is the "Bride of the Sea." They were married twelve centuries ago in a dry attic.

TRUE RICHES.

From toil he wins his spirits light,
From busy day the peaceful night,
Rich from the very want of wealth,
In heaven's best treasures, peace and health.

SONS of the Washington youth since the Adams Express Co.'s lobbyists secured the passage of the double postage law: "I want to be a lobby man, and in the lobby stand, with brass upon my forehead and greenbacks in my hand."

A CROSS-EYED man who handed his ticket to a Chicago street-car conductor the other day, had three holes punched in it. The conductor thought he glanced at two ladies at his side. They were entire strangers to him. It costs something to be cross-eyed.

YESTERDAY as an old citizen was nailing a "To Rent" card on a vacant house, a pedestrian halted and remarked that "howze" was not the right way to spell "house." "How long have you lived in Detroit?" asked the old citizen, scowling savagely. "Fifteen years," was the reply. "Well, I've lived here for thirty," continued the old man, "and I guess I know how to spell as well as you do."—Detroit Free Press.

A Queer Courtship.

One long summer afternoon, there came to Mr. Davidson's the most curious specimen of an old bachelor the world ever heard of. He was old, gray, wrinkled, and odd. He hated old women, especially old maids, and wasn't afraid to say so. He and Aunt Patty had it hot whenever chance drew them together; yet still he came, and it was noticed that Aunt Patty took unusual pains with her dress whenever he was expected. One day, the contest waged unusually strong, and Aunt Patty left in disgust and went out into the garden.

"That bear!" she muttered to herself, as she stooped to gather a flower which attracted her attention.

"What did you run for?" said a gruff voice behind her.

"To get rid of you."

"You didn't do it, did you?"

"No; you are worse than a burdock burr."

"You won't get rid of me, either."

"I won't, eh?"

"Only in one way."

"And that?"

"Marry me."

"What! us two fools get married? What would people say?"

"That's nothing to us. Come, say yes or no; I'm in a hurry."

"Well, no, then."

"Very well; good-by, I shan't come again."

"Stop a bit—what a pucker you're in!"

"Yes or no!"

"I must consult—"

"All right; I thought you were of age. Good-by."

"Jabez Andrews, don't be a fool. Come back, I say. Why, I believe the critter has taken me for earnest. Jabez Andrews, I'll consider."

"I don't want any considering; I'm going. Becky Hastings is waiting for me. I thought I'd give you the first chance, Patty. All right; good-by."

"Jabez! Jabez! That stuck-up Becky Hastings shan't have him! Jabez, yes! Do you hear—Y-e-s!"

After Eleven Years.

Mr. Michael Head, a clerk in an Endinburg, Tenn., grocery-store, was very much astonished the other day while washing his face, by the appearance through his mouth of a minnie ball, which was lodged in his head eleven years ago at the battle of Pine Mountains. The wound was probed at the time, the surgeon telling him that the ball had been extracted, which subsequently proved false. He soon recovered and served out his time in the army, the ball giving very little pain. The ball bears a battered appearance, doubtless caused by coming in contact with the bone. He, of course, feels much relieved since its advent to daylight after eleven years of darkness.

BILL SQUIRES' COMMISSION.

An Interesting Reminiscence of Dick Yates.

Poor Dick Yates! He has not been dead long, and yet he is now almost forgotten, although people called him the great war Governor of Illinois, and although he was a United States Senator. Few Western statesmen were more brilliant, gifted and eloquent than he; but—he would drink. Not regularly, but now and then he would go on sprees, and the sprees were of long duration. Still worse, while in his cups, he would commit the most ridiculous acts. Again and again he sent in his resignation as Governor, but the Secretary of State, who knew what was the matter, always suppressed them, and when Dick was sober again, all that he had done during the spree was a blank in his memory. Most frequently, when he [illegible] indulging, he would suddenly leave Springfield, and go to some out-of-the-way place, where he was unknown, and where he could do as he pleased without interference by anybody. One day, in 1861, shortly after the breaking out of the civil war, Dick went to Newtown, a small village in the central part of the State. No one knew him there, and he had a glorious time with some cattle drovers, who helped him to drink bad Wabash rotgut at the bar of the only tavern in the place. They liked him exceedingly, for he could tell lots of good stories, and, when they departed, they paid his bill for him, as he did not have a cent of money in his pocket. The landlord, shaking his head because of the inebriation of his unknown guest, brought him to bed, and Dick slept for many, many hours. When he awoke, he was sober. Where he was, or what had occurred the evening before, he did not know. So he dressed, and went down to the bar-room. The landlord, who was there alone, received him with a rather severe expression of countenance. "Stranger," he said to him, not unkindly, "you are so intelligent a man that it's a pity you don't know how to stop drinking when it is time." Dick received this admonition with the resignation of a guilty conscience. "Now I don't care," continued the landlord, "if such fellows as you were carousing with last night occasionally take a drop too much; they are leading a rough, hard life; they can stand it." "Who were they?" asked Dick, rather down in the mouth. "So you have forgotten that they are drovers from Urbana? Well, maybe you don't remember, either, the joke you played on one of them?" laughed the landlord. "A joke?" echoed Dick, in some alarm. "Yes, a big one, too," rejoined the landlord; "you had no money to pay your bill and night's lodging, and so Bill Squires gave me the money, and a couple of dollars to hand you this morning in order that you might be able to get home." "Well, that was very kind of Mr. Squires," said Dick, considerably relieved; "I shall send him the money back this very day. You say he lives at Urbana?" "Yes?" "Well, I don't see any joke in that." "You then told him you were Governor Richard Yates, of Illinois, and would reward him for his kindness. That made him and his companions laugh heartily; but you persisted in saying you were Governor Yates, and wrote him an appointment as Colonel of a new volunteer regiment of infantry, telling him to present it to the Adjutant-General at Springfield, when it would be all right." "The devil I did?" ejaculated Dick, thoroughly disgusted with himself. "Yes, but Bill Squires saw that it was a joke. However, he said, as he would be in Springfield next week, he would for fun show the appointment to the Adjutant-General, and see what a face he would make." Dick Yates had become very thoughtful. He left Newtown and went to Urbana. "Do you know what sort of a man Wm. Squires, of this place, is?" he said there to a lawyer, with whom he was well acquainted. "Squires, the drover? Well, he is a little, rough fellow, like all men in his business, but otherwise a most excellent, reliable man. Why do you ask, Governor?" "Oh, I heard people speak about him. Do you suppose he would make a good volunteer officer?" "Capital," was the prompt reply; "there is no braver and cooler man in all Illinois than Bill Squires." The Governor changed the conversation and returned to Springfield. Next day he said to the Adjutant-General: "Make out a Colonel's commission in one of the new infantry regiments for Mr. Wm. Squires, of Urbana." About a week afterward Bill Squires made his appearance in Springfield, and, as he passed the State House, he thought he would, for fun's sake, step into the Adjutant-General's office and show him the paper which the jolly stranger had given him at the Newtown tavern. He handed the paper to the dignitary, and expected, of course, to hear the reply that it was a bad joke. To his amazement, however, the Adjutant-General said to him, "That is all right, Mr. Squires. Your commission has been waiting for you here nearly a week." So saying, he handed him the document. Bill took it, and looked at it outside, still shaking his head. "This surely is no joke," he said at last to himself; "but is it possible that that jolly joker at the Newtown tavern really was Gov. Richard Yates?" He went straightway to the Governor's office, and found that such was the case. Squires became a brave officer, but was killed in one of the earliest battles of the war.

Youth in Age.

In one of Bret Harte's condensed novels there is a chapter on the old age of French women. It is not too long for quoting, so here it is: "A French woman never grows old." That is all—the beginning, middle and end. But if this be true, does it depict a desirable state of things? Would one like, if one could, to pass straight from the tumult of youth to the passionless stillness of death? Shall we not welcome, rather, the quiet years when the cares of this world are slipping gradually from our weakening fingers, when we sit calmly in the twilight of life's day and await the night? A bewigged or dyed old man—a painted and repaired old woman—these are not lovely objects. But the dignified, portly old gentleman, with his white hair and his kindly face, attracts us; and the gentle old lady, with her snowy kerchief folded across her breast and her quiet eyes filled with cheerful memories, wins our hearts. Old age has its own pleasures, but it seeks vainly to partake in the pleasures of youth. Dancing days are over, after awhile; bustling days, days of eager, hurried strife after gain—they are all past; but there remain some quiet hours in which to say to ourselves that all is vanity; in which to remember and reconsider and forgive. But if it were possible to cheat the world and ourselves into a belief that we were still young, we should be the losers. What a discord in nature were that day which had no lengthening shadows of afternoon, no glory of sunset, no still night which heralds the dawn of a new life!

A Budget of Useful Information.

Thousands of diseases can be cured by simply rubbing, kneading and percussing the body.

If your breath is foul your blood will be poor, because you contaminate your blood with every breath you draw.

Diphtheria.—Milk punch is now recommended as a cure for diphtheria. It has always been considered good for the throat.

Skim-milk and water, with a little glue in it, made scalding hot, will restore rusty black crape. If clapped and pressed dry, like a fine muslin, it will look like new.

For Rheumatism.—One of the best applications for rheumatism is to bathe the parts affected with water in which potatoes have been recently boiled, as hot as can be borne, just before going to bed.

A simple remedy for removing freckles is a pint of sour milk and a small quantity of horse radish. Let the mixture stand over night, and use it as a wash three times a day until the freckles disappear.

To Mend Crockery Ware.—A good cement for mending broken crockery ware may be made by mixing together equal quantities of melted glue, white of an egg and white lead, and boiling them together.

To Extinguish Fire.—A solution of pearl ash in water thrown upon a fire extinguishes it instantly. The proportion is a quarter of a pound dissolved in some hot water, and then poured into a bucket of common water.

To Restore Writing.—Dim writing that is nearly effaced by age, may be restored by the application of a solution of prussiate of potash in water. Wash the parts with a hair pencil, and the writing will appear if the paper has not been destroyed.

If a case of diphtheria occurs, let the patient be at once taken to the top of the house and into the remotest room, and there kept in perfect isolation from all other inmates of the house save those who are in attendance, as nurses. Ventilation, fumigation, disinfection, and cleansing could there be concentrated and practiced in the best ways possible under the circumstances for the advantages of the sick. The treatment, with ice and milk, described in a late issue, will, under these circumstances, save nine cases in every ten, if not a greater proportion.—Dr. Hall.

Starch paste is best prepared by first rubbing the starch perfectly smooth with sufficient cold water not to form too thick a mass, and pouring into this boiling water very slowly, with rapid stirring, until the paste begins to form, as indicated by the increased transparency, and then rapidly adding the rest of the boiling water necessary for the paste. Boiling the paste is very injurious, rendering it less adhesive and liable to peel off. Rye flour affords a more adhesive paste, but of a gray color. A little alum added to the water with which paste is prepared renders it more permanent, and the use of boiling lime water instead of pure water adds to its adhesiveness. By incorporating with the paste a quantity of turpentine, equal in weight to half of the starch employed, and stirring well while the paste is still hot, it will be rendered more impervious to moisture, and at the same time more adhesive.

Grizzly Grumbler's Advice.

My Dear Fellow-Grumblers: Poets, philosophers, and fools, in all ages, have been writing and preaching on the art of being happy, without a mighty sight of scals to their ministry, I guess.

But, as many can't be satisfied unless miserable in body and mind, I am going to show all such persons the several means to be used for the attainment of such a desirable end.

In the first place, my beloved whiners, in order to attain any end, you must get up a stiff resolution and determination to conquer. Yes, my hearers, you must set down your foot, grit your teeth, let your resolution be as stiff as boiler-plate, let you firmness be as unwavering as the rocks of Gibraltar. Be determined to be miserable, and you shall get your desires. Never mind what people tell you about the bounties of Providence and the beauties of Nature—the balmy breezes of spring, the twittering and warbling of birds—you must sheer off from them like a wealthy upstart from a poor relation.

Put on a sour, savage, snapping-turtle physiognomy; look daggers, and act out your feelings; this is the first great commandment with misery. Think that you are the most forsaken mortal that misery ever held a mortgage on. Hate mankind; call 'em liars, cheats, swindlers, villians. Look at everything on the wrong side. If it has no dark side, make one, just so enjoy yourself looking at it. Take it for granted that everybody about is especially interested to torment you. Fight everybody and everything. You can't hit amiss. The world is all wrong. Everybody is a villian but yourself, and it is your duty to teach mankind manners. Go at 'em. You can't fail to be miserable.

Some of the Belgian journals say that secret societies, rivaling the organization of the Carbonari, exist in the Prussian provinces which have a large Roman Catholic population. They are composed of groups of ten persons each, of whom nine are not informed as to the other members of the society, but know only the tenth, their chief. The ten chiefs of ten such groups know only the chief of the hundred.

The next session of the Kentucky Legislature will probably make an appropriation for a suitable monument to mark the tomb of Zach Taylor, now in a neglected condition.

A Grasshopper Story.

A gentleman who has just returned from Cherokee county, Kan., is full with remarkable reminiscences of the grasshoppers infesting that vicinity. He will stand around for an hour, relating the hair-breadth 'scapes of the people whom the hoppers have completely overrun, and who are leaving their homes and fleeing from the fearful scourge. The traveler is inclined to think that many of the crimes attributed to the James boys are to be traced to the more hardened and dissolute grasshoppers, many of whom, he says, are arming with shot-guns and organizing a sort of home guard for offensive and defensive operations.

One of the most credible stories is to the effect that, a few weeks ago, a woman dug up a pailful of dirt in which to plant some flower seed. She put the pan under the stove, and went out to see a neighbor. Upon her return, after an hour's absence, she found seven thousand bushels of grasshoppers generated by the heat, literally eating her out of house and home. They first attacked the green shades on the windows, and then a green-painted dustpan. A green Irish servant girl, asleep in one of the rooms, was the next victim, and not a vestige was left. The stove and stovepipe followed, and then the house was torn down so they could get at the chimney. Boards, joists, beams, plastering, clothing, nails, hinges, door-knobs, plates, tinware, everything, in fact, the house contained, was eaten up, and when she arrived within a mile of the place, she saw two of the largest hoppers sitting up on end and playing mumble-peg with a carving knife for which should have the cellar.

The way the matter leaked out was on a suit brought against the insurance company, which refused to pay the policy, on the ground that the building was not destroyed by fire; but the court rendered a verdict for the plaintiff, as she had proven that the grasshoppers were generated by the fire in the stove.—St. Louis Globe.

Dr. Walker tried various extracts from herbs and roots, without benefit. He noticed, however, that Alcohol, that bane of the human race, was used in their preparation, and he determined to exclude the poison entirely from his own practice, so that the sin of making men drunkards, while pretending to cure them, should never lie at his door. The Almighty blessed his experiments, and in the Vinegar Bitters he has produced a pure, health-restoring agent, which banishes disease in every form, reinvigorates the system, and restores strength to the feeblest sufferer. There is no part of life's citadel where the enemy can make a lodgment that the Vinegar Bitters will not find him, and put him to the rout. Impurity of blood is the parent of disease; the liver, the stomach, the lungs, the nerves, every vital organ is affected primarily, from this cause, and in this direction the Vinegar Bitters acts with magical influence. 87

The latest outrage of the Italian brigands upon the Appian Way, leading into Rome, was their attack upon a party of English ladies, who not only lost their money, watches, finger rings and ear rings by the fierce attacks of the ruffians, but also parts of the hands and ears that held the jewels.

Thanks "From the Depths of the Heart."

Wellington, Loraine Co., O., Aug. 24, 1874.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sir—Your medicines, Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, have proved of the greatest service to me. Six months ago no one thought that I could possibly live long. I had a complication of diseases—scrofula, manifesting itself in eruptions and great blotches on my head that made such sores that I could not have my hair combed without causing me much suffering; also causing swollen glands, tonsils enlarged, enlarged or "thick neck," and large and numerous boils. I also suffered from a terrible Chronic Catarrh, and in fact I was so diseased that life was a burden to me. I had tried many doctors with no benefit. I finally procured one-half dozen bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery and one dozen Sage's Catarrh Remedy and commenced their use. At first I was badly discouraged, but after taking four bottles of the Discovery I began to improve, and when I had taken the remaining I was well. In addition to the use of Discovery I applied a solution of Iodine to the Goitre or thick neck, as you advise in pamphlet wrapping, and it entirely disappeared. Your Discovery is certainly the most wonderful blood medicine ever invented. I thank God and you, from the depths of my heart, for the great good it has done me. Very gratefully, Mrs. L. Chaffee.

Most medicines which are advertised as blood purifiers and liver medicines contain either mercury, in some form, or potassium and iodine variously combined. All of these agents have strong tendency to break down the blood corpuscles, and debilitate and otherwise permanently injure the human system, and should therefore be discarded. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, on the other hand, being composed of the fluid extracts of native plants, barks, and roots, will in no case produce injury, its effects being strengthening and curative only. Sarsaparilla, which used to enjoy quite a reputation as a blood purifier, is a remedy of thirty years ago, and may well give place as it is doing, to the more positive and valuable vegetable alteratives which later medical investigation and discovery has brought to light. In Scrofula or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammation, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin and Sore Eyes as in all other blood diseases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has shown its great remedial powers, curing the most obstinate and intractable cases. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

The Family Sewing Machine.—The invention of the Wilson shuttle sewing machine exerts an influence over domestic comfort unequaled by any invention of the last hundred years. As an economical arrangement it enables one person to do the work of ten in a superior manner, and with unspeakably more comfort. Machines will be delivered at any railroad station in this county, free of transportation charges, if ordered through the company's branch house at 197 State street, Chicago. They send an elegant catalogue and chromo circular free on application. This company want a few more good agents.

The Great Family Medicine.—Dr. Wilhoft's Anti-Periodic or Fever and Ague Tonic! No case of incurable Chills has yet presented itself, where this scientific and safe medicine has been employed. No case has been found so obstinate as to resist its prompt and masterly action. No man has been so reduced by malarial influences, but with its use has come up perfectly reconstructed. No pills or purgative required with this medicine. Wheelock, Finlay & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans.

For sale by all Druggists.

For Sale Cheap.—A splendid side-bar road wagon, made by the celebrated carriage makers, Coan & Ten Broeke, of Chicago. It has a two-thirds seat; is as good as new, and will be sold for less than half its cost. For further particulars address C. E. Strong, 114 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill.

Factories and machine shops should not be allowed to run a day without Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. In case of a sudden accident, an immediate use of it may save weeks of suffering, and perhaps a limb, or even life.

How to Get a Home. See advertisement.

There are several kinds of worms which trouble horses; the pin-worms (pointed at both ends) are the most common and most dangerous. Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders will in a few days eject the worms, and the horse will begin to thrive.

Glen Flora Spring Water, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES. To have the money spent needlessly every year would give substantial comfort to almost every person. To have the money saved by buying Silver Tipped boots and shoes would buy each parent every year a new pair of shoes.

As the several coatings to the Atlantic Cable, so are a pair of CABLE SCREW WIRE Boots or Shoes to the feet. Sure protection from all the [illegible]. CABLE SCREW WIRE

12 OIL CHROMOS for $1; two for 25c. Agents wanted. F. W. McCLEAVE & Co., Boston & Chicago.

OPIUM HABIT Cured Cheap. No Publicity. [illegible]

30 VISITING CARDS, 5 styles, with name, 20 cents. Address, J. B. HUSTED, Nassau, Rens. Co. N. Y.

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

$10 to $25 PER DAY.—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G Co., Buchanan, Mich.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEO. STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

$3 SAMPLE Free and Big Pay to Male and Female everywhere. Address, THE UNION PUB. CO., Newark, N. J.

$250 A MONTH to male and female agents everywhere. Address EUREKA MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Buchanan, Michigan.

12 Beautiful French Oil Chromos, size 9x11, mounted ready for framing, sent postpaid for ONE DOLLAR. Grandest chance ever offered to Agents. For particulars send stamp. Address F. P. GLUCK, New Bedford, Mass.

GEO. P. ROWELL & Co.

DIRTIEST and hardest work in the house made comparatively easy and pleasant. Every one interested in reducing woman's work should send me a stamp for our circular. GRAY, DIXON & CO., 88 Clybourn Ave., Chicago.

F. J. NASH, 781 Broadway, New York, manufacturer of SOLID GOLD JEWELRY of every description. The stock is large, very choice, and is offered at retail at trade prices to keep our workmen going. Bills under $15, P. O. order in advance. Over $15, C. O. D. privilege to examine. Catalogues free.

SEND 3 CENT Stamp, and receive by return mail Sample packages of our ORIENTAL POLISH for Silverware, Jewelry, Harness Trimmings, Etc., Etc., the best metal polish in the world. Send for it with terms to Agents. Wanted everywhere. NATIONAL AGENTS' EMPORIUM, BOSTON, MASS.

50 Of the prettiest CARDS you ever saw, with your name handsomely printed on them, sent, postpaid, upon receipt of 20 cents. Your friends will all want them when they see yours. Address W. C. CANNON, 46 Kneeland St., Boston, Mass.

$10. to $500. Invested in Wall Street often leads to fortune. A 72-page book explaining everything, and copy of the Wall Street Review SENT FREE. JOHN HICKLING & Co., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, N. Y.

OPIUM CURE The most successful remedy of the present day. Send for Paper on Opium Eating. Prof. D. Meeker, P. O. Box 475, Laporte, Ind.

HOW TO CURE Corns, Neuralgia, Asthma, Chills and Fever, Drunkenness, Rheumatism. TO MAKE Hair Grow, Ottawa Beer, Boots Waterproof, Yeast. Send 10 cents for either receipt or the 10 for 50 cents. [illegible] & CO., P. O. Box 2321 or 212 Broadway, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED for the best selling book out, "Woman as a Wife and Mother," by Pye Henry Chavasse, M. D. Over 75,000 sold; liberal terms. Apply at once for territory and outfit to S. T. SOUDER & CO., 719 Sansom st., Philadelphia.

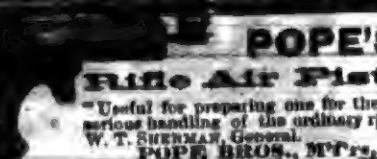
INSURE AGAINST ACCIDENTS by a Yearly General Accident Policy in the TRAVELERS INSURANCE COMPANY of Hartford, Conn. Apply to any Agent, or write to the Company.

Dr. RIDGE'S FOOD for INFANTS AND INVALIDS. Sold in cans by Druggists, 35 cents and upwards.

$200 00 GOLD! To Agents in addition to largest cash commission, AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY with fashion plates and supplements. Specimen and circulars free. WALKER, REED & CO., 720 Sansom St., Phila.

HOW TO GET A HOME. IOWA LANDS, 800,000 ACRES. Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to DAVIDSON & CALKINS, R. R. Land Office Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

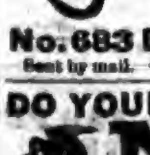
Trusses, Supporters and Pile Pipes. "Seeley's Hard Rubber Trusses." Cool, cleanly, light, perfectly safe and comfortable, free from all sour, rusty, chafing, strapping, or poulticeing unpleasantness; used in bathing, indorsed by the profession, long tested, always reliable. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. Genuine stamped "I. B. Seeley." Establishments, 1347 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, and 737 Broadway, New York. Sent by mail or express, and sold by leading druggists. Send for catalogue.



POPE'S Rifle Air Pistol "Useful for preparing one for the more serious handling of the ordinary rifle"—W. T. SHERMAN, General. POPE BROS., M'f'rs, 45 High Street, Boston, Mass.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT. The BEST Elastic Truss without metal springs, patented [illegible], with the latest improvements, embodying the fruits of the highest inventive skill, and perfect in materials and workmanship, is sent by mail, postpaid, for $4, single, like cut, or $6 for both sides. Illustrated descriptive Pamphlet, with full directions, free. No ruptured person should fail to send for it. Address (mentioning this paper) POMEROY & CO., 744 Broadway, N. Y. This ELASTIC TRUSS is warranted BETTER than the best made by Elastic Truss Co., or any other makers.

ELASTIC TRUSS. This new Truss is worn with perfect comfort night and day. Adapts itself to every motion of the body, retaining rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain until permanently cured. Sold cheap by the Elastic Truss Co., No. 683 Broadway, N. Y. City. Sent by mail. Call or send for Circular, and be cured.



DO YOUR OWN PRINTING! NOVELTY PRINTING PRESS. For Professional and Amateur Printers, Schools, Societies, Manufacturers, Merchants, and others it is the BEST ever invented. 13,000 in use. Ten styles. Prices from $5.00 to $150.00. BENJ. O. WOODS & CO. Manuf'rs and dealers in all kinds of Printing Material, 49 Federal St. Boston. Send stamp for Catalogue.

Powell's Star Wood Pumps! Waukegan Farm Pumps, Wood Eave-Trough Tubing. If you want the best of these articles, go to your Hardware or Agricultural Implement Store. If they do not keep them, or will not get them for you, send direct to the Factory. Catalogue and Price List mailed upon application to J. F. POWELL, Waukegan Ill.

PORTABLE Soda Fountains, $40, $50, $75 & $100. GOOD, DURABLE AND CHEAP. Shipped ready for Use. Manufactured by CHAPMAN & CO., Madison, Ind. Send for a Catalogue.

YOUNG MEN Wanted to learn Telegraphing and take offices on new lines [illegible] with operators. Salary from $50 to $100 per month. Particulars mailed free. Address N. W. TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE, Janesville, Wis.

Young Man! If you desire a scholarship in the best TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE in the West, you can obtain one at two-thirds price by writing to Drawer 243, Chicago, Ill.

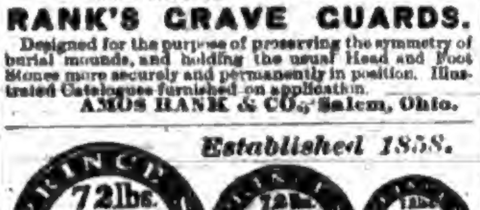
PIERCE WELL AUGER Company offers $1,000 to any one that will successfully compete with them in boring a 20-inch well through soapstone and sandstone, and in taking up and passing bowlders and loose stones. Agents wanted in every State. $25 PER DAY GUARANTEED. Send for Catalogue. Free. Address CHAS. D. PIERCE, Peru, Illinois.

SEA FOAM. E. W. Pierce & Co., Providence, R. I., say: "We have used the Sea Foam a long while and consider it the best Baking Powder in use." Desmond, Mills & Nickerson, Grocers, Boston, Mass., say: "Wherever we have sold your Sea Foam it has given excellent satisfaction, and is more generally approved than any known Baking Powder." Taste [illegible] "Its economy is wonderful; it [illegible] Milk, Eggs, &c., and sells like Hot Cakes." Send for Circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & CO., 176 Duane St., N. Y.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE LIVER PILLS FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

DRUGGISTS, DYERS, TAILORS, FAMILIES. One dozen 5-oz. bottles sent for $2 00 (Retail price $6), of Celebrated Fragrant SAPOLIENE For removing Grease, Tar, Paint from Kid Gloves and Clothing of all kinds, without stain or injury. Sent C. O. D. on receipt of express charges or guarantee of same from Express Ag't. Address W. M. HALLOCK, 79 Jackson-st., Chicago.

A Great Offer! HORACE WATERS & SONS, 481 Broadway, New York, will dispose of 100 PIANOS & ORGANS of first-class makers, including WATERS', at EXTREMELY LOW PRICES for cash, DURING THIS MONTH. WATERS' New Scale Pianos are the best made; the touch elastic, and a fine singing tone, powerful, pure and even. WATERS' Concerto ORGANS cannot be excelled in tone or beauty; they defy competition. The Concerto Stop is a fine imitation of the Human Voice. Agents Wanted. A liberal discount to Teachers, Ministers, Churches, Schools, Lodges, etc. Special inducements to the trade. Ill. Catalogues Mailed.



RANK'S GRAVE GUARDS. Designed for the purpose of preserving the symmetry of burial mounds, and holding the usual Head and Foot Stones more securely and permanently in position. Illustrated Catalogues furnished on application. AMOS RANK & CO., Salem, Ohio.

Established 1858. PRINCES' METALLIC PAINT 72 lbs. Metal in the 100 lbs. 300 lbs. N. Y. TRADE MARK, PATENTED. The best and cheapest Paint in the World for Iron, Tin or Wood. For sale by Dealers everywhere. PRINCES' METALLIC PAINT CO., Manuf'rers, 96 Cedar St., New York. CAUTION.—Purchasers will please see that our name and trade mark are on each and every package. Send for a Circular.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. What are Your Symptoms? Are they pain in the right side, yellowness of the eyes, nausea, debility, irregularity of the bowels, and headache? If so, your liver is wrong; and to set it right, and give tone and vigor to your system, the one thing needful is Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

BECKWITH PORTABLE FAMILY SEWING $25 MACHINE DOUBLE THREAD. BECKWITH S. M. Co NEW YORK & CHICAGO.

THE BEST PAINT IN THE WORLD. RUBBER PAINT. RUBBER PAINT CO. OF CLEVELAND, O. BRANCH OFFICES AND FACTORIES: 506 WEST ST., New York. No. 210 South Third St., St. Louis, Mo. No. 83 West Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill. Any Shade from Pure White to Jet Black. A combination of the purest paint with India Rubber, forming a SMOOTH, GLOSSY, FIRM, DURABLE, ELASTIC and BEAUTIFUL Paint, unaffected by change of temperature, is perfectly water-proof, and adapted to all classes of work, and is in every way a better paint for either inside or outside painting than any other paint in the world. Being from one-third to one-fourth cheaper and lasting at least three times as long as the best lead and oil paints. Be Sure that Our TRADE MARK (a fac-simile of which is given above), is on every package. Prepared ready for use and sold by the gallon only. There has never been a Paint offered the public that has become so popular (in the same time) and given as perfect satisfaction as the Rubber Paint.

DR. WHITTIER, No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo., continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. Dr. W.'s establishment is chartered by the State of Missouri, was founded and has been established to secure safe, certain and reliable relief. Being a graduate of several medical colleges, and having the experience of a long and successful life in his specialties he has perfected remedies that are effectual in all these cases. His patients are being treated by mail or express everywhere. No matter who failed, call or write. From the great number of applications he is enabled to keep his charges low. 36 pages, giving full symptoms, for two stamps. MARRIAGE GUIDE, 260 pages, a popular book which should be read by everybody. No married pair, or persons contemplating marriage, can afford to do without it. It contains the cream of medical literature on this subject, the results of Dr. W.'s long experience; also the best thoughts from late works in Europe and America. Sent sealed, post paid for 50 cts.

VINEGAR BITTERS. PURELY VEGETABLE. FREE FROM ALCOHOL. DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. EUREKA.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim Vinegar Bitters the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with Vinegar Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California, and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

$25 a day guaranteed using our Well Auger & Drills. $100 a month paid to good Agents. Auger book free. Jilz Auger Co., St. Louis, Mo.

OPIUM Morphine Habit AND Intemperance speedily cured by DR. BECK'S only known and sure Remedy. NO CHARGE for treatment until cured. Call on or address Dr. J. C. BECK, 112 John St., Cincinnati, O.

C. N. U. No. 33

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, MAY. 27, 1875

It is now stated that O. P. Morton is an avowed candidate for the republican nomination for the Presidency and he is working hard for success.

Another effort is being made to start a straight Democratic paper in Chicago and it is said that $200,000 has already been subscribed for its success.

It now seems altogether probable that Michael C. Kerr, one of Indiana's favorite son, and probably the very foremost statesman of the Hoosier State will be honored with the position of Speaker of the next House of Representatives. He would also honor the position.

Hon. Cassius M. Clay, the old freesoil champion of Kentucky, and Minister to Russia under Lincoln, was one of the Vice Presidents of the recent Democratic State convention which nominated an ex-rebel General for Governor and a Union General for Treasurer of State.

There seems just now to be a contest between fire and water and the locust plague, as to which will do the most injure to the country. We are having the experience of the Israelites of old, who always felt such national misfortunes when the land was ruled by the wicked and ungodly.

There is a fair prospect that St. Louis will make a nice thing out of her big bridge. Passenger trains will begin to run across on the 10th of June next, and each passenger will be required to pay a toll of twenty five cents. By the old ferry system he need only disburse a nickel, but there have been great improvements since the days of ferryboats.

There is no longer any mystery about the valiant support some of the New York papers have accorded Mr. Beecher. The Tribune has, from the first maintained that the pastor was innocent as a new born babe. The Tribune is handsomely paid for all this— paid by the column. It is one of the organs of Mr. Beecher and his church, and its assistance can be relied upon so long as Plymouth church funds hold out.

By an act of the California legislature, female teachers are to reseive the same wages as males where the work is the same. This it seems, is getting at the solution of the question by an illogical process. Teachers' wages should not be graded according to sex, but should depend on the quantity and quality of work done. If a woman is as good a teacher as a man, she should receive the same remuneration, otherwise she should be paid less.

It is all very well to talk of the efficacy of moral suasion, but a little judicious severity has always been found to make a fair return upon the investment. The mayor of Matamoras, one Cortinas, has made himself so disagreeable to the American residents on the Rio Grand, that the latter are about to take charge of the maraude r, and to that end they have received a consignment of Springfield rifles from the war department.

The great father has spoken, and Red Cloud, Spotted Tail, Crazy Horse, and the rest of that euphoniously named crowd are about to be victimized again. The conditions upon which the great father is to accord protection to these sons of the forest, contemplate the cession of the Black hills. This done, the goverament will be in position to extend the long coveted protection. One can scarcely repress a smile in reading the speech which the president has just made to the representatives of the red men. It sounds very much like the special plea of a fifth rate lawyer He tells the noble reds that unless the government assists them by supplies, the land they own is valueless. The government is under no obligation to furnish supplies, and the hard times coming on will make it impossible to extend this gratutitous favor further. Under these circumstauces the red men can stay and starve, or pull out and prosper. There is a land, says the president, south of where you live, where the climate is milder, the soil richer, and the chances for becoming civilized and wealthy are vastly multiplied. Go there and be happy The pale face wants your Black hills. There is gold there and the paleface wants it, and as the whites outnumber the reds, 200 to one why there is nothing for it but to give up. This is certainly a queer way to abide by the provisions of treaty. The government in 1868 guaranteed the Indians the undisputed possession of their last stronghold and so stringent were the terms of fact, that all whites were prohibited from passing through the territory. On the flimsey pretext of looking for gold, a raid was organized be Gen Custer with the full approval and connivance of the president. Gold was found or at least reports to that effect were assiduously circulated, particularly by the radical press. The excitement among miners and the floating population of the western towns is intense and this summer will certainly witness a large influx of adventurers into the fabled region of mineral wealth.

Peace Hath Her Victories.

Crossed above an alcove in the fine library of the late W. H. Prescott were two swords. One was worn by the grandfather of the historian, Col. Prescott, who commanded the patriots at the battle of Bunker Hill, the other was worn at the same time by Capt. Lenassee, grandfather of the wife of Prescott, who commanded the British sloop of war, Falcon, which poured on that eventful day a shower of cannon balls among the "rebels." Who shall say, after this that time will not obliterate the animosities of war? Doubtless if any one had predicted to either Col. Prescott or Capt. Lenassee, on that battle day, that his descendants in the second generation would intermarry with those of the other, that the bad blood aroused in the fight would soon cool to a point when their very weapons of war would be turned into an emblem of mutual rememberance, and sworn great oaths and vowed a dying malediction upon so recreant a kindred. But it all came about and had its lesson. What has once been done may occur again. The beginning of the same end in our own later and more terrible struggle is already inaugurated. At Memphis, the other day, union soldiers and confederates united in decorating the graves of the dead soldiers, while the battered battle flags borne once in hostile array, "with malice toward none charity for all."

The time will surely come, if we are to remain a nation, when the memory of the dead of both armies will be respected by the living, when the double loss covered by the fatal attempt at disrupting the union, will form a double argument against its repetition, when all that was brave and good and true on either side will be conserved and commemorated as the common property of the whole country.

The whole Northern Pacific Railroad will be sold at auction in New York some time next August. This is the finale of one of the greatest swindles ever perpetrated in this country.

A French aeronaut has discovered the cause for the recent balloon catastrophe, in which two out of three voyages were asphyziated at a height of over five miles The surviver has told the story of his frightful experience and it appears that the difficulty was not so much the cold, though the mercury froze in the glass tubes, as the difficulty in breathing. Is the air, then, so rarified at a height of five miles as to be insufficient to sustain human life? This is the question to whose solution M. de Fonville has set himself. Rising to an altitude of 12,000 feet he experienced no difficulty, but a bird confined in the netting at the mouth of the balloon was suffocated by inhaling the escaping gas. Had he gone twice the distance he would probably have shared the same fate. This explanation is very simple. Balloons are inflated with hydrogin gas, whose specific gravity is less than one four-teenth that of air. On reaching great altitudes more or less of this gas escapes, and as it is irrespirable it soon causes all the phenomena described by aeronautes as so disagreeable and so dangerous. M. de Fonville is confident that this evil can easily be remedied and aeronautics robbed of its greatest terror.

THE AUBURN

Marble Works!

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have permanently located in Auburn, and are now prepared to attend to all orders for which they are prepared to turn out in a superior manner at reasonable rates. Works west of the Bakery.

Monuments, Tomb-Stones, &c.,

The Favorite Home Remedy.

This unrivalled southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

Purely Vegetable.

containing those Southern Roots and Herbs, which an allwise Providence has placed in countries where Liver Diseases most prevail. It will cure all diseases caused by derangement of the Liver or Bowels.

Simmons' Liver Regulator, or Medicine, is eminently a family medicine, and by being kept ready for immediate resort will save many an hour of suffering and many a dollar in time and doctors' bills.

After over Forty Years' trial it is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Eminent physicians commend it as the most

Effectual Specific

for Constipation, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, billious attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, despondency, gloom and forebodings of evil, all of which are the offspring of a diseased Liver.

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

Armed with this ANTIDOTE, all climates and changes of water and food may be faced without fear. As a Remedy in Malarious Fevers, Bowel Complaints, Restlessness, Jaundice, Nausea,

It Has No Equal.

It is the Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World! Manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Ga. and Philadelphia.

Price $1. Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875

STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1839.

GEO. DeWALD & CO.

Dry Goods & Notions.

Black Silks & Fine Dress Goods a Specialty.

We can make it to the interest of every person to trade with us. We buy for CASH and sell for CASH, keep the best goods, and sell at one price

ALSO AGENTS FOR THE

"Domestic" PATERNS.

The Best in Use. Send for a Catalogue.

Geo DeWald & Co
No. 1 Columbia Street
Fort Wayne Ind.

The Pioneer

HARDWARE

Emporium!

Now full to overflowing with an Immense stock of

HEAVY AND SHELF

Hardware, Cutlery, Tin Ware.

I would call special attention to my department of

HARDWARE,
FURNISHING &
BUIDERS STOCK,

in which will be found everything at the very

LOWEST PRICES,

Such as:—

OILS, PAINTS,
GLASS,
NAILS,
SASH,
DOORS, ETC

—A FIRST-CLASS—

Tin-Shop,

in connection with the Hardware Store, with a skillful foreman. All kinds of Tin-ware manufactured and repaired on short notice.

JOHN L. DAVIS,

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Ryan & Mader, pro's

Having on hand everything in the line of,

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

they are prepared to furnish rigs at all times at reasonable prices. Stable east of Court House.

THE STAR WELL AND PROSPECTING AUGER.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD!

Mr. LEVI BROWN, living two miles south of Corunna, has purchased the right of this celebrated Auger, and is now prepared to put in wells. Everything is warranted and satisfaction guaranteed. LEVI BROWN.

FOR SALE.

Four Business Lots,

Adjoining the Court House square, the most desirable and the only conveniently located in Auburn each lot 22x80 feet.

Those wishing to purchase the best in the market should apply soon either to A. J. LITTLE Attorney at Law, or THOMAS BALDOCK. Terms reasonable. Also.

A HOUSE and LOT

adjoining the above. The house is new containing five rooms, with closets convenient and pleasantly located will be sold at a

BARGAIN

Apply as above.

A NEW PLACE

TO GET A

Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with M. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,

Notions, etc., of

CHARLES KLOTZ

AT HIS

Old Stand

ON MAN STREET,

Opposite Court Square

AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accommodate customers, and sell them such good as they may need.

CLOTHING

Of all descriptions, and

HANDSOME SUITS
Made to Order!

Administrator's Sale.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned, Administrator of the estate of Michael Sheets deceased, will offer for sale at Public Auction, at the late residence of the decedent, in Jackson-tp., DeKalb County, Indiana, situated one mile south of Auburn,

Saturday May 15th, 1875,

the personal property of said estate, consisting of Horses, Cows, Hogs, Two-horse wagon, Bob-sleds Ohio Combined Reaper and Mower, Ball Mower Wheat Drill, Corn Drill Sulky Hay Rake and other farming implements, Hay by the ton, Corn and Oats by the bushel and other articles too numerous to mention. Sale to begin at ten o'clock am.

TERMS—Sums of $5 and under cash, over $5 a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving his note with interest waiving valuation and appraisement laws and with good security.

CHRISTIAN SHEETS, Adm'r.

April 22, 1875.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature, Decay and all the effects of youthful indiscretion will for the sake of suffering humanity send free to all who need it, and receipt and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Suffers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN, Cedar St. New York.

NEW

Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep

FLOUR, CORN,
OATS, MILL FEED,
&c. at all times and at the

Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs, &c.

WM. LANHAM.

NEW YORK STORE

ROOT & COMPANY!

Invite the attention this week, to a number of new patterns of Body Brussels Carpets, English Tapestry Carpets, Extra three ply Carpet, Extra super Ingrain Carpets. Also to their elegant line of low and medium priced Carpets, at 25, 35, 40 and 50 and 60c per yard, and to the most extensive line of Floor and Table oil cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Matts, Lace and Nottingham Curtains, etc., to be found in the city. N. B.—This department of our busines being under the charge of an experienced carpet man, parties who favor us with their orders will be entirely satisfied with the manner they are filled.

HOSIERY! Now in stock a complete stock of English, German and Domestic Cotton Hosiery for Ladies, Gentlemen, Misses, Boys and Children's use, in every size and quality at extremely low prices

Kid Gloves, Summer Gloves, and a full line now open for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, including Harris' Seamless Kid Gloves, and our favorite "Perinot Gloves," both makes unsurpassed for perfect fit and durability.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT! Silk goods department. Men's ware department. Linen goods department. Cloak and Shawl department. Fancy goods department. Our corset department. Cotton goods department. Muslin and Underware department. Parasol department. Sun umbrella department.

Newly assorted this week at

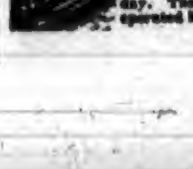
ROOT & COMPANY,
46 and 48 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne,
☞ Opposite the Court House. ☜

☞ MANY New and Choice Goods on sale at Bond's Novelty Store, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Indiana. New goods arriving daily. Special bargains in

Table Linen,

Corsets, Gloves, Hosiery; Muslins, Flannels, White Goods, Ladies Ties, Handkerchiefs, Portmonies and many goods not kept elsewhere. Large four-story stone front building, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Ind.

SAW MILL FOR THE PEOPLE.



THIS patent portable Muley Saw Mill is adapted to any locality, will saw any kind of logs, and will do as much work (power and hands being considered) as the best Circular Mills. Its frame, head-blocks, and working parts are of the most substantial and permanent kind, being made entirely of iron and steel. It is usually set up and started in from one to two days time. It is generally driven by threshing engines of not exceeding ten horse power. It cuts from 2000 to 4000 feet of inch lumber per day. The Mill and Engine may conveniently be operated by two men. Send for circular.

CHANDLER & TAYLOR,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusually fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.,

26 East Berry street.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY,
WASHINGTON, March 25th, 1875.

WHEREAS by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that the First National Bank of Auburn, in the town of Auburn, in the county of DeKalb and State of Indiana, has been duly organized under and according to the requirements of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide a National Currency, secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," approved June 3rd, 1864 and has complied with all the provisions of said act required to be complied with before commencing the business of Banking under said act.

Now therefore I, JOHN JAY KNOX, Comptroller of the Currency do hereby certify that the First National Bank of Auburn, in the town of Auburn, in the county of DeKalb and State of Indiana is authorized to commence the business of Banking under the act aforesaid.

In testimony whereof witness my hand and seal of office this 25th day of March, 1875.

{Seal.}

JNO. JAY KNOX,
Comptroller of Currency.

April 1st, 1875.

No. 2238

THE FIRST

National Bank

OF AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of th U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Collections made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:

J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:

JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

April 28, 1875.

AUBURN MARKETS.

CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Wheat—White	[illegible]	Hogs—live	$4.00
Amber—red	[illegible]	Hogs—dressed	.....
Rye	[illegible]	Turkeys—live	.06
Oats	[illegible]	Chickens—live	.07
Corn	[illegible]	Butter	[illegible]
Potatoes	[illegible]	Lard	[illegible]
Flax Seed	1.00	Eggs	[illegible]
Clover Seed	[illegible]	Tallow	.07
Wool	[illegible]	Timothy Hay	12.00

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

THE corn is coming up beautifully.

COURT has adjourned for the present term.

DAVENPORT is selling lots of Wall Paper.

OUR new Marshal, Dry Houghton, is fixing up the streets in good style.

THE livery barn of Ryan & Mader has has had a coat of red paint.

JEPHTHA'S DAUGHTER is the text for the sermon of Rev. Mr. Welsh at M. E. Church next Sunday evening.

THE house formerly occupied by Mrs. Paffenberger, is being moved south on Main street.

REMEMBER Davenport's stock of wall paper is most complete of any in town, and he sells very cheap.

ADE HARE left last Thursday for Missouri to engage in the surveying business.

THE Methodist Church has been painted and otherwise repaired, which makes it look much better.

MR. SAM. MORRIS, ESQ., one of Fort Wayne's promising young attorneys was in this city last Tuesday.

HARP players around, and so are "skeeters." Oh, what can we do to "bust up, the country up."

Two of Maj. Spoott's brothers has been visiting here for several weeks past. They are both quite well along in years.

HON. L. D. BRITTON left this week for western Missouri. He promised to let us know something about affairs in that section.

A KENDALLVILLE preacher is cotemplating a sermon on early rising on Sunday mornings. Text:—"The early bird catches the fattest worms."

THE REV. MR. WELSH has selected for his theme next Sabbath morning at the M. E. church, "The Existince of God." The public are cordially invited.

THERE will be a special train run on the Saganaw road next Sunday, so that the Masonic Fraternity can attend the funeral of Sol. D. Bayless Esq. at Fort Wayne.

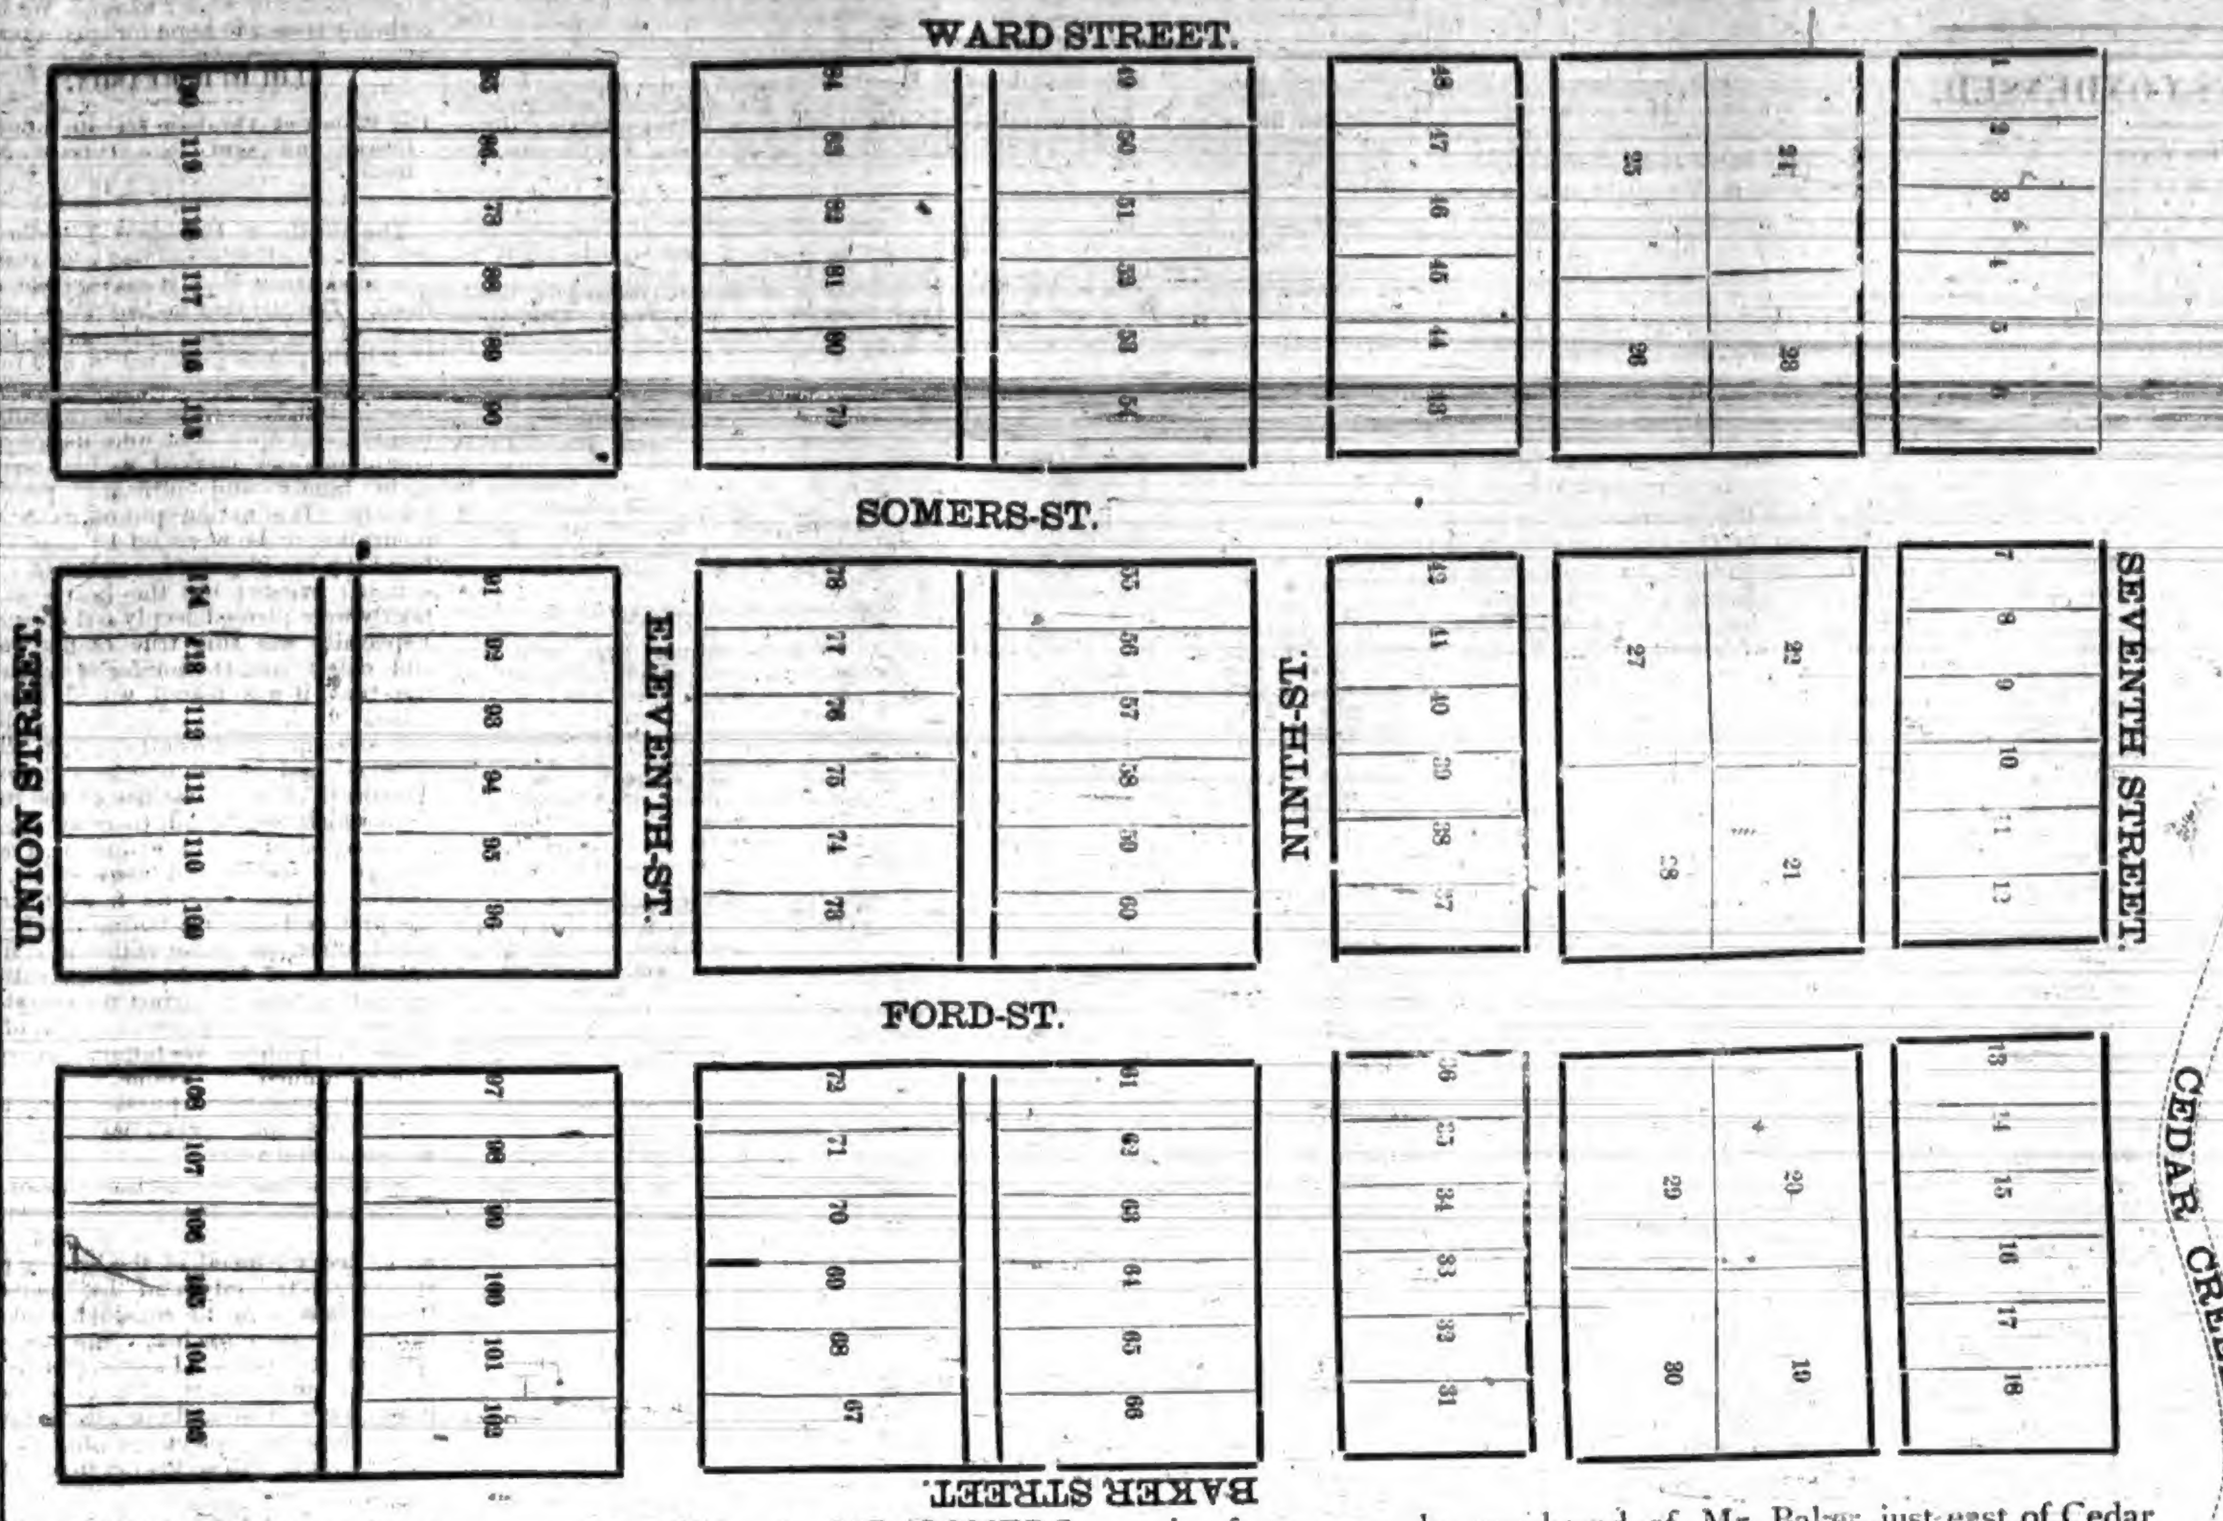
THE M. E. Social will be entertained by Mrs. Potter on next Wednesday afternoon and evening. A cordial invitation is given to all.

MARRIED.—On June 3rd, 1875, by the Rev. Mr. Welsh, at the parsonage, Mr. Jno. F. Conner, of Albion Noble Co., and Miss Mary A. Sheets, of this place.

MARRIED.—On Thursday May 25th, 1875, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. P. Ruhl, Mr. Alexander Balts, of Allen County, Ind., to Miss Sarah A. Harkey of DeKalb County, Ind.

MARRIED.—On Thursday May 27th, 1875, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. P. Ruhl, Mr. William Vanzile to Miss Sarah Balts, all of Allen County Indiana.

J. C. SOMMERS' ADDITION TO AUBURN.



The above addition has been recently laid out by MR. SOMERS, on the forty acres he purchased of Mr. Baker, just east of Cedar Greek. The lots are now in market at reasonable prices, and offer some of the finest locations for residences to be found in or about town. They are close to the Court House and business part of town, and are very desirable in other ways. Application should be made immediately if you want a good lot.

Trusses! Trusses!

Davenport has just received a fine lot of Trusses. He has more trusses, and better ones than any other firm in the County—also shoulder braces—supporters &c. Call and see.

You may talk all day long to a girl about this beautiful world and its many sources of happiness; but if her new Spring Bonnet doesn't suit her, your labor will be in vain.

AN Auburn girl got up the other morning to bathe her face in liquid dew and cut off one of her fingers on an old scythe hidden in the grass. There's always some drawback to sentiment.

THIS is the season of the year when the woman of the house comes out of the back door with a jump, and throws bones, old potatoes, and turnips at the chickens in the lettuce bed.

MEN are grading for the "Shops" at Garret. They are digging a hole quite large, but it may be they are going to have a funeral—Garret herself for the corpse.

THE June meeting of the South Bend Trotting Association will begin on the 6th, inst. and continue until the 8th. The premiums offered are $5,000. The track is in a splendid condition, and a good lively time is anticipated.

CHAS. WILSON, the young man who was killed by the cars at the Junction, last Wedneday, was buried in the old graveyard. No one knows anything about him. Information is wanted concerning his relatives.

OUR clever and genial ice man, Albert Wells, is very busy at this season of the year waiting upon his numerous customers. Al. has the best ice in the city, and sells the cheapest. Those wanting ice can have it left at their door every morning without extra charge.

WE show a map of Somer's addition this week, which lies east of of the city just across Cedar Creek. This is one of the finest plats yet laid out, and lots will be in great demand. A large number are already sold, and those wanting a place for a home should take advantage nice of this immediately.

THE June races commence in Fort Wayne next week, when a large number of speed horses will be in attendance. The premium list is very large, and the premiums quite liberal. Some of the best horses in the country will be in attendance.

WE call attention to the new advertisment of a new establishment in our midst, the Auburn Marble Works. The proprietors are experienced workmen, and there is no need of going outside of the county for work of this kind. Give the new firm a trial, as we are sure of their ability to please you,

A DOG which never ate a mouthful of anything in his life without a napkin under his chin and a solid silver fork in his paw, crawled under the barn and dragged out a sk—sku—skun—well, we forgot what they did call it, but it was awful, and when the dog went into the parlor and crawled under the sofa, he had the entire house to himself until the gentleman of the family came from own town.

IT was 12 o'clock at night when Berger, of Macon, Georgia, discovered a colored person in his stable untying a horse, and the preacher only observed, "Jess what I said all the time, mastah Berger, your hoss is bay sure enuff, and that 'spute between me an' Brudder Jackson is settled."

IT is becoming the style now to wear the bridal vail draped from the shoulder instead of the head. It is arranged to envelop the form like a court train, and the trains of dresses are independent of the skirts, and are very narrow and long, while the skirt proper is short and clinging.

BLACK silk stockings are more fashionable than any other at present, and there is great variety in them. Some are open worked, some are studded all over with flowererets of various hues, and some are of two widely contrasting colors, the top being violet, the foot white, with fine violet stripes.

THE biggest fool we can now call to mind, is one "Pickaway," who dishes up some very soft things for the "Enquirer." He assumes to be one of the finest writers in the country, and is making an ass of himself. He will have to pick away a good while, before anything good can can come out of Israel.

No young man has claims to any sort of standing among his comrades in a base ball club, according to the latest rules, until he he has at least one "hot on" on the end of his third finger, been vaccinated by a bounding "daisy cutter", on the nose, and "scored" by a flying club across his throax.

THE young lady students of the Syracuse Medical college are very carless. Recently three of them purchased the body of an Auburn convict, and, after cutting it up, threw the pieces into a vacant lot, causing intense excitemint in the vicinity, the general opinion being that a diabolical murder had been committed.—"Laport Herald."

A LADY visiting Washington for the first time sent word to her friends home that she felt dredfully disappointed; she meant to have got an Indian Bureau for Jennie's room, but there weren't any to be had; and that she was so busy shampooning a young lady from one place to another that she had no time to write letters.

A GENTLEMAN was endeavering to enjoy an evening in the company of a young lady upon whom he called, but found a serious obstacle in the person of a stern father, who at length very plainly intimated that the hour for retiring had arrived. "I think you are correct my dear sir," returned the unabashed, young man. "We have been waiting to have you go to bed for over an hour."

ABOUT a year ago a very diminutive Auburn man was married, and in due season found himself a happy father. Last Friday night his wife, as she supposed lifted the infant over by her side. She did not discover her error, however, until she tried to force a dose of syrup down the infant's throat, when she was startled by hearing her spouse exclaim, "What in thunder are you about?" The good lady had mistaken her "hubby" for her babe.

YOUNG ladies, "spoony" lovers and others fond of moonlight walks, "gush" and all that, will please take notice, that August of the present year will have two moons—or rather it will run the old and reliable institution for two short seasons. The opportunities thus offered have not been equaled for a long time, and if August dosen't see an increase in marriage licenses, minister's and justices' fees, and the sales of rings, then there's no use of having a twin moon; and the sooner that luminary retires altogether the better.

THE Fort Wayne "News" says:

Somebody who has been in Paris, and isn't afraid to let anyone know it, states as a remarkable fact that he has actually seen colored specimens sitting side by side with [illegible] and wants to know why the same thing can't be done here. Sure enough why not? Oh, well, now come to think of it, why we really havn't—got any duchesses.

Sustibule the Dutch, they are just as good as Duchesses; and our neighbor would have no ground for complaint.

THERE has been several sales of fine blooded cattle in this State lately, which go to show that our State is making some progress in this direction. The following is an account of a sale last week, by Gen. Sol. Menedith, and our stock men can see how it pays to raise good stock.

There were sold 42 cows and heifers (two or three young calves besides), for an aggregate of $41, 140, or an average for females of $979 52; 11 bulls, for $2,835, or an average price of $257 70. The total number sold was 53 animals, and the grand total proceeds of the sale were $49,675. Average per head of all, $839 71. The highest price paid for one animal was $4,005.

HOUSE BURNED.—We are sorry to announce the total destruction of Mr John Grube's residence and contents, by fire, last Friday afternoon. Mr. G. and family were planting potatoes in a field some distence from the house, when the fire commenced, and it had made such rapid headway before they arrived that nothing but a little bed clothing was saved. Mr. Grube informed us that all his papers were consumed. The fire is supposed to have communicated from the stove. It is a serious loss as money cannot replace many things of great value to the owner.

THERE is a great deal of controversy about Gen. Sherman's book on the war. The "St. Louis Globe-Democrat" announces the death of General William T. Sherman, the General-in-Chief of the United States Army, upon the authority of a letter contained in his late work. It is on page 247, and is addressed to editor or the Memphis "Appeal," under the date of July 21th, 1862. He said:

"'I don't desire my byography written till I am dead.'

"The title page of the work is Memories of General William T. Sherman, Written by himself.' So that not only is General Sherman dead, but he has been in the spirit land long enough to have produced two very interesting autobiographical volumes."

The COURIER is now the largest paper in the county, and can be had for $2 a year.

Spring Styles.

The spring styles most in vogue are new dresses [illegible] across the backs by porous plasters and next to a vest from a mustard poultice is generally most worn. Young ladies are quite between a necklace for street wear and a flannel rag for the house. Diamonds are worn in the ears with much effect abroad, but a lock of cotton and a little roast onion is the usual adornment at home. Pearl powder is applied to the shoulders for full dress, but camphorated oil and hartshorn liniment are considered very pretty, also by the sufferers.

THERE will be a grand Picnic Entertainment at the Grove at Pleasant Lake on Saturday June 5th, 1875. The silver band of Angola, will be present to enliven the occasion. Bands from other places have been invited and are expected [illegible]

An address will be made by L. H. Stoker. Boat races will be had and many amusing sports introduced to interest those present.

The Angola String Band will be in attendance during the evening, and the Hall will be open for all who may wish to participate in a social hop.

The grove at Pleasant Lake has been fitted up at a great expense for the accommodation and entertainment of picnics and other parties, who seek recreation and amusement. A splendid hall has been built, seats erected throughout the grove, a fine line of row boats provided, [illegible] and every means taken to make it pleasant for visitors to the Lake. The gentlemanly proprietor, V. E. Sonmors, has [illegible] one of the best in the State, and [illegible] will find every thing in the [illegible] home perfectly [illegible] Remember to bring your [illegible]

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NOTICE.

Auburn, Ind., May [illegible], 1875.

[illegible]

ISAAC FAGUE Auditor.

NOTICE.

NOTICE [illegible]

J. P. W[illegible] Adm'r.

TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE.

"CHOOSE YOUR VOCATION AND HONOR IT."

[illegible] Telegraph Institute located in Auburn, DeKalb Co., [illegible] Phonography [illegible] $2.25 per [illegible] Lock Box [illegible] Auburn, Indiana.

OFFICERS.

D. [illegible] President.
J. E. [illegible] Superintendent.
[illegible] M. [illegible] Instructor Telegraph Dep't.
Prof. [illegible] Principal [illegible]
[illegible] Instructor Phonography [illegible] Writer.

Try the COURIER once, and see how you like it.

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that there will be a petition presented to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Ind. at their June session 1875, for the vacation of the following highway located in said county and commencing eight [8] rods and fifteen [15 feet east of the northeast corner of the north west quarter of section three [3] in township thirty-three [33] north of range twelve 12] east in said county and running from thence west on said township line to a point sixty-five [65 feet east of the south-west corner of the south east quarter of section thirty-three [33] in township thirty-four 34], north of range twelve [12, east in said county, and that the same be located and established to the width of sixty-five [65] feet on the following route, commencing at a point on said township line ten [10] rods and fourteen (14 and a half feet (½) east of the north-east corner of the north west quarter of sec three [3] in township thirty-three [33] north of range twelve 12] east in said county, and from thence running south one hundred and thirty-two (132) and a half [½] feet, and from thence in a westerly direction parallel with the Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Chicago railroad, Indiana division, to Gilford street in the town of Garret, in said county, and from thence south to King street in said town, and from thence in a westerly direction parallel with said Rail Road Line to a point thirty two [32] and a half [½ feet east of a right line drawn in continuation of the west line of the south east quarter of sec thirty three [33] in township thirty-four [34] north of range twelve [12] east in said county and from thence north to intersect the said highway on the said township line. Said highway now passes over and affects the land of Washington Cowan, and that the vacation change and locatetion as proposed will affect only the lands of said Cowan.

WASHINGTON COWAN.

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that there will be a petition presented to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County Indiana, at their June session 1875 for the vacation of the following highway located in said county and commencidg at the south west corner of the south west quarter of section thirty-four [34] in township thirty-four [34] north of range twelve (12 east in said county, and running from thence west to the northeast corner of the northeast quarter of section four [4] in township thirty three [33] north of range twelve (12) east, and from thence in a southerly direction to a point eighty [80] feet north of the south line of the northwest quarter of section three [3] in said township and that the same be located and established to the width of eighty [80] feet on the following route: Commencing at the southwest corner of the southwest quarter of section thirtyfour (34) in township (34 thirtyfour, nor of range twelve (12) east in said county and running from thence in a southerly direction at right angles with the Baltimore, Pittsburg and Chicago railroad, Indiana division, to a point forty, 40, feet north of the south line of the northwest quarter of section three, 3, in township thirtythree 33, north of range twelve, 12, east in said county and from thence west to intersect said highway on said section line between section three, 3, and four, 4, in said township thirty three 33, that in the vacation change and location of said highway as above described will effect the land only of Washington Cowan and that he owns all the land that the said change will effect.

April 22. WASHINGTON COWAN.

LICENSE NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of Butler, Wilmington township, DeKalb Co., Ind. that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County Ind., at their next regular session to be held at the Court House in said county, commencing on Monday the 7th day of June, 1875, for a license to sell spirituous, vinus and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of permitting the same to be drank on the premises where sold. The premises on which I desire to sell are located as follows: The south part of lot No. eight (8) in Danforth's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb County, Ind.

May 10 JOHN S. HAWS.

LICENSE NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of Garret City, DeKalb County, Ind., that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Ind. at their next regular session to be held at the Court House in said county, commencing on Monday the 7th day of June, 1875, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of permitting the same to be drank on the premises where sold. The premises on which I desire to sell are located as follows, to-wit: Lot twenty-four (24) block seventeen (17) in the original plot of the town of Garret, in said county and state.

May 10 ROBERT BELL.

LICENSE NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of the incorporated town of Auburn, Union tp. DeKalb county Indiana, that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb county, Ind., at their next regular session to be held at the Court House in said county commencing on Monday the 7th day of June, 1875, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and maltliquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of permitting the same to be drank on the premises where sold. The premises on which we desire to sell are located and described as follows, to-wit: A part of lot numbered ninety-five (95) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at a point eighteen feet (18) west of the north-east corner of said lot and running thence south on a line parallel with the east boundary line of said lot to the south boundary line of said lot thence west twenty-two (22) feet thence north to the north bonneary line of said lot thence east twenty-two (22) feet to the place of beginning in said township, county and state.

SIMON J. LOCK,
MASON LONG.

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

CARDINAL MCCLOSKEY has been presented with a diamond cross worth $20,000 by the young lady pupils of St. Vincent's Institute in New York.

ANOTHER murder, even more horrible in its details than that of Mrs. Bingham, a few weeks since, was perpetrated in Boston last Sunday. A bright little girl, Mabel Young, 5 years of age, was murdered in church, and bruised and mutilated. The body was carried up in the tower and thrown upon the floor of the loft. The sexton of the church, Thomas Piper, has been arrested on suspicion of being the author of this foul murder.

FURTHER investigation into the defalcations of Jackson, the missing Boston lawyer, swell the amount to over $700,000.

A TERRIFIC explosion occurred in the drug store of J. L. Dows, in Boston, last week, demolishing the four-story building in which the store was situated, and burying a large number of people in the ruins. Six dead bodies have been taken from the ruins, and it is believed that others will be found. A large number of people were also injured. Various theories are advanced as to the nature and cause of the explosion, the chief one being that a gas generator in the cellar exploded. It is also stated that nitro-glycerine was stored in the building, as no other substance could have caused such instantaneous destruction.

A PARTY of five persons, while yachting on Spy pond, near South Holyoke, Mass., the scene of the dreadful holocaust by the burning of the French Catholic Church, were capsized, and two of them, little girls of twelve and thirteen years of age, were drowned.

THE WEST.

AFTER a protracted trial, the St. Louis Republican has been assessed one cent damages for calling a lawyer a "shyster."....The issue of the Chicago Inter-Ocean for May 21 was probably the largest daily paper ever issued in this or any other country. It contained the delinquent tax-list of Cook county, and the whole paper embraced 18 full sheets of 8 pages each, 144 pages, and 864 columns. Thirty compositors were employed 30 days in putting it in type, working 10½ hours per day. The manuscript copy of this enormous tax-list weighed 275 pounds, and occupied 13,370 pages.

THE grasshoppers arrived in Kansas City last week on their Eastern journey. They marched into town and covered the sidewalks, fences, yards, etc., and the citizens, instead of going to church, devoted the day to destroying the pests....Daniel O'Leary, the pedestrian, has just accomplished at Chicago the marvelous feat of walking 500 miles in 153 hours....As might have been anticipated, the attempts of parties of miners to reach the Black Hills and their arrest by the military are causing trouble. The Gordon party was stopped by a company of soldiers while they were in the State of Nebraska. They refused to be arrested, preferring to fight. The officer in command of the detachment sent to Fort Laramie and Camp Sheridan, and a company of men with a Gatling gun started for his assistance. The miners also sent out couriers, and intelligence was conveyed to about 500 other prospectors, who were on their way to the hills, to hurry on and join in a resistance to the soldiers. Meanwhile a dispatch was sent to Gen. Sheridan, asking that the Gordon party be set at liberty; and the General ordered their unconditional release, provided they were in the State of Nebraska when halted. He further states that prospectors will not be allowed to enter the Big Horn country....Kansas epicures have tested the grasshoppers as food, and find them very palatable.

THE grasshoppers appear to be making but slow progress in the West. They are being destroyed in great numbers by every means at the command of the farmers, and it is now hoped that their devastations will not be as great as was at first apprehended....The officers of the secret service, in search of evidence to be used against the Chicago distillers, conceived the idea that the freight bills of the several railroads would show how much spirits had been shipped within a given time, and by comparing these bills with the books of the distillers and gaugers, an approximation of the amount out of which the government had been defrauded might be obtained. The officers had some trouble with the Pittsburgh and Fort Wayne company, but finally received abstracts of bills of lading, which furnish presumptive evidence of gigantic frauds.

MCWATERS, the notorious Western desperado, who was under sentence of twenty years' imprisonment in the Nebraska State Prison at Lincoln, has finally ended his career, being shot dead by the guard in attempting to lead a revolt of the prisoners.

KANSAS CITY dispatches state that the grasshopper scare is rapidly abating, and that, as a feeling of rejoicing has generally taken the place of dread and gloom among the people, the Chief Executive will soon be called upon to issue a proclamation for a day of thanksgiving instead of fasting and prayer.

THE SOUTH.

GRAY BEARD, one of the most troublesome of the Indian prisoners recently taken from Fort Sill to Florida, met his death in a rather unheroic manner the other day. The noble brave jumped from the train near Lake City, Florida, and attempted to escape by running, but a well-directed shot from one of the guards brought him to the dust. He died cursing the soldiers and the white tribe generally, two hours after being shot....Indians in Texas are both numerous and troublesome. A white woman was recently killed by them, and by way of retaliation a party of rangers killed five savages and one renegade white man, and carried their heads to Sacksboro.

BALTIMORE stands a chance of securing the Inman line of twelve or fourteen steamships to ply between her harbor and Liverpool....Ferdinand Dudenhofer, Receiving Teller of the Germania National Bank, New Orleans, has been arrested, charged with embezzling $15,000.

WASHINGTON

POSTMASTER-GENERAL JEWELL has ordered the reletting of the mail-contracts in which the frauds were discovered....The Sioux chiefs at Washington were dissatisfied because they were quartered at a temperance hotel, and wanted to go where fire-water was more plenty, but their wishes were not complied with.

SPOTTED TAIL, one of the big injuns now at Washington, "did" that city last Sunday in a blue blanket, blue flannel pants, and a dome-crowned felt hat of the latest fashion....Attorney-General Pierrepont is stated to be putting sharp edge on his official ax.

THE Commissioner of the General Land Office decides that the benefits extended by law to pre-emptors who, by reason of the ravages of grasshoppers, are compelled to leave and be absent from their lands, may also be extended to pre-emptors whose crops have in like manner been destroyed, but who, nevertheless, continued their residence upon their respective claims. Those whose crops were destroyed or seriously injured in 1874 will be entitled to an extension of one year from and after July 1, 1875, and, when the injury occurs in 1875, the extension will date from July 1, 1875.

THE Secretary of the Treasury has appointed Gen. J. D. Webster, of Chicago, Mr. Post, a New York architect, and Mr. Norcross, a Massachusetts architect, as a commission to examine the Chicago Custom-House building, and decide whether the walls must come down.

IN his interview with the Sioux chiefs the other day the President proposed that they leave the Black Hills and migrate to the Indian Territory; but Red Cloud said they would never leave the mountains of the North. Spotted Tail denied ever having questioned the veracity of Secretary Cowan and Commissioner Smith.

A VISIT was paid last week to the President of the United States by the Papal envoys now in this country. The Holy Father at Rome had especially desired to tender the compliments of the season to the head of the American nation, and that was what it was all about.

GENERAL.

THE United States Centennial Commission met last week in Philadelphia, and organized by the election of Gen. Joseph R. Hawley, of Connecticut, to the Presidency, with a large number of Vice-Presidents and members of the Executive Committee. The programme of ceremonies for the opening and closing of the Exhibition and Fourth of July embraces the designation of U. S. Grant as President; Charles Francis Adams and L. Q. C. Lamar, orators; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, poet; Ralph Waldo Emerson, reader of the Declaration of Independence; Gen. W. T. Sherman, Grand Marshal; Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, late of the Confederate army, Master of Ceremonies. ....For genuine, unadulterated cheek commend us to the noble savage. At the initial interview between the Sioux delegation and President Grant at Washington, last week, Red Cloud opened the ball by informing the "Great Father" that the whole pale-face race were liars, present company not excepted. Spotted Tail snapped his fingers threateningly in the President's face, and notified him plainly that he need not send them to the Secretary of the Interior, as they would treat only directly with the Great Father. Lone Horn followed by shaking his fist under the President's nose, and informing him in a defiant tone that he (Lone Horn) "owned all this country," and that it wouldn't be safe to trifle with him and his braves any longer.

GEN. SHERMAN has been offered $60,000 by a publishing house for the right of publishing his memoirs exclusively.

A SCHEME is on foot at New York for the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, with a view to the completion of the line from its present terminus at Bismarck, Dakota, to Puget Sound....This is the season of religious anniversaries. Judging by the number recently in session in all parts of the country one would think the Americans a very religious people. Nevertheless the criminal record does not seem to diminish very perceptibly. More missionary work at home is evidently greatly needed.

POLITICAL.

THE Pennsylvania Republican State Convention met at Lancaster last week, and re-nominated Gov. Hartranft. Henry Rawle, of Erie, was nominated for State Treasurer. The resolutions favor protection to home industry, cheap transportation, free banking, and a safe and uniform national currency, adjusted to the growing wants of the business interests of the country, equalization of soldiers' bounties, and the speedy adjustment of all claims arising out of the late war. A resolution was adopted declaring against a third term, and another opposing the doctrine of State rights.

FOREIGN.

DISRAELI is credited with an intention of resigning at the close of the next session of Parliament....Germany has requested Belgium to prohibit religious processions.

A RELIGIOUS procession passing through the streets of Brussels recently was attacked by the populace and compelled to take refuge in the neighboring houses. Ten of the rioters were arrested by the police.

VIOLATIONS of the press and ecclesiastical laws are rigorously punished in Germany. About 100 persons were recently fined or imprisoned in the space of fourteen days, the number including priests, editors, etc....A ferry-boat having a number of Catholic pilgrims on board was recently sunk in the river Mur, province of Tyrol, Austria, and seventy-six of the pilgrims drowned.

THE Mark Lane Express predicts a poor crop of cereals in France on account of the drought....The upper house of the Prussian Diet has passed the bill for the suppression of convents, and relative to the administration of church property....A man has been arrested in Vienna who was the bearer of an anonymous letter containing an offer to assassinate Bismarck for a million florins. The writer of the letter has not been discovered.

OWING to the dissensions among the Conservatives in the French Assembly, the Republicans have been permitted to choose a majority of the new Committee of Thirty, which is to have a full sway after the adjournment of the Assembly. Fortunately for France, however, but few extremists have been elected, and there will be no great danger from their administration.

ANOTHER HORROR.

Burning of a Catholic Church at South Holyoke, Mass.—Seventy-five Persons Either Burned or Crushed to Death.

One of the most horrible disasters in the history of Massachusetts occurred on the evening of Thursday, May 27, in the burning of the French Catholic Church, at South Holyoke, during service, involving the death of sixty-six men, women and children. The following are the particulars of the dreadful calamity, as telegraphed to the daily press:

The exercises had nearly closed, and a vesper service was being sung, when the draperies on the altar caught fire from a candle, and the wall being low and the flames streaming up, the building was set on fire. The audience numbered about 700 people. In the body of the church the people escaped, but on the stairway leading from the gallery human beings were packed in a dense mass, struggling to reach the floor. As the flames rushed toward them, many leaped to the floor beneath, and were trampled to death.

The gallery skirted both sides of the building, with only one entrance from the front. The scene was fearful while it lasted, for the whole was over in twenty minutes. Besides the sixty-six dead, there are enough fatally wounded to carry the total loss up to seventy-five.

The exercises had nearly closed when the flame from the candle caught the drapery around the statue of the Virgin Mary, streamed up and caught the building. Immediately a panic ensued, and the people rushed for the doors. There was but one entrance to the gallery, and that from the front. On the stairway leading from the gallery the people were packed in solid mass, struggling to clear themselves, as the flames rushed in that direction, and this soon became blocked, rendering exit impossible. Many jumped over the sides of the galleries on the crowd beneath, and were trampled on and killed. The priest's residence joins the church on the rear, and many escaped through an entrance leading to the house back of the altar. The priest's exertions to keep order were fruitless.

The screams of the living and moans of the dying made a deafening tumult above the orders of the pastor, who worked most heroically, and was personally instrumental in saving many lives. One family of four were in the church, and all were killed. Many were pulled out by the arms and feet so badly burned that they lived but a few hours, the flesh peeling off on being touched. Some were taken out with scarcely any flesh remaining on their bones.

Those who were too badly burned to recover were put under the effects of morphine, and passed away without a struggle.

While the exercises were being held over the dying the most intense quiet prevailed, and the rough laborers knelt upon the floor, with uncovered heads. But about the Morgue and in the streets, the wailing of the multitude was pitiful to hear.

One girl escaped from the gallery by jumping on the back of a man, who carried her out, while her sister, who was with her, was burned. Several members of one of the hose companies were playing ball near the church when the fire broke out, and a relief steamer was out for practice, so that the fire department was promptly on the spot.

Scenes at the doors are described as terrible. They were blocked with struggling people seeking exit. Outside people cleared the way several times, but as often it would become blocked up again. Windows were broken open and several escaped in that way.

Lewis Langlais, of the Riverside Mill, went to render assistance, when a little girl came tumbling down before the door under the feet of the throng. Though he burned his hands sadly in doing it, he was able to pull her out but little injured. A young woman beat out one of the window frames and jumped to the ground safely. An old woman of 60 went to the same opening, and, hesitating to jump, she was pulled inside by the hair by a brutal fellow. He jumped clear and she fell and was seriously injured.

Of a family of five, four got out alive, one little girl of 12 years being burned. She was tearfully sought by her little brother, and at last discovered dead.

John Lynch, a mason, finding the people pressed in at the bottom of the church door, pulled many down who were on top, thus saving a dozen lives.

Ex-Constable Casey describes the scene as he saw it with a glass from the top of the Hutchings House Block.

The whole affair was over in fifteen minutes. He could plainly see through the burning rafters people running about. Large black spots could be seen in the flames, and half a minute later these spots went out in a brilliant light, which was succeeded by a dark flame.

Levi Roberts, who, with his family of four children, were in the gallery, saved his three daughters by forcing them out of the door, but his boy, a bright lad of 11, perished in the flames.

Many people were badly injured by jumping from the gallery windows. Annie Hibbert and a child 6 years of age escaped from the building after their clothing had become ignited, and many persons had their limbs broken attempting to escape.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

The money market remains without particular change. The demand for favors was light and the offerings on good security quite liberal. Interest rates 7@10 per cent. Government bonds firm and steady, but rather quiet.

BREADSTUFFS.

The weakness shown in the leading grain markets during the preceding week was more fully developed during the week now under review, and culminated in a general and quite severe reduction in values. The speculative element were the principal operators, although there was more doing on shipping account than for some time past. The influences, however, were mainly of a local character, and the bears seemed to have the control of the trade, and the way in which they used their power is readily seen by a comparison of prices, and from the opening to the close the markets have generally been weak with a declining tendency. At times a fervent feeling would be noticed and the rapid decline in values checked by the demand from "shorts," who bought freely at every reduction, but the influences were generally against the markets and the improvements would prove but temporary. The receipts were fair and in excess of the shipments, except corn and oats. Spring wheat and corn were the principal attractions, the other markets ruling comparatively quiet. New York and Liverpool advices were of an unfavorable tenor, while the weather was warm and the stock in store is unusually large for the season. The forward movement so far has been very light, and the problem of interest to speculators is, "What are we going to do with the stock on hand?" As a consequence there are few sellers for future delivery, and all the options are more or less depressed, while the principal demand is from shorts who are buying at the profit offered.

Rye and barley are comparatively firm, with the closing quotations for the latter showing some improvement.

The following table shows the prices current at the opening and close of the past week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash....	$1.03 @1.03½	$ .98½@1.00
No. 2, seller May......	1.02 @1.02¼	.98½@ .99
No. 2, seller June......	1.03½@1.04¼	.99 @ .99¼
No. 2, seller July......	1.06½@1.07¼	@1.02¾
No. 2 corn, cash......	.71½@ .72½	.69 @ .69½
No. 2 corn, seller May.	.71⅝@ .72	.68 @ .68½
No. 2 corn, seller June	.72¼@ .73	.66 @ .68¼
No. 2 corn, seller July.	.73½@ .76¼	.71¼ bid
No. 2 oats, cash......	.63⅛@ .64	@ .62¼
No. 2 oats, seller May.	.63¼@ .64	@ .62¼
No. 2 oats, seller June.	.64½@ .64¾	@ .62¾
No. 2 rye, cash......	@1.06½	@1.06
No. 2 barley, cash....	1.32 @1.38	@1.37
No. 2 barley, s. Sept..	@1.05	1.07 bid
No. 3 barley, cash....	1.18 @1.20	1.18 @1.20

PROVISIONS.

The movement was more brisk in this market during the week just passed, but prices were irregular and the fluctuations were quite severe. The receipts of hogs were liberal, but the quality of the receipts was only fair, and prices suffered a decline of 25@40c per 100 lbs. On the closing day of the week a fair amount of business was reported, but an easy feeling prevailed and prices for most articles were a trifle weaker. The market closed at $20.70@20.75 for cash mess pork, $20.60@20.62½ seller June, and $20.87½@20.90 seller July. Cash lard quiet at $15.00; seller June closed at $14.95, and seller July at $15.17½@15.20. Closing sales of hogs were made at $6.50@7.00 for inferior to fair lots, and at $7.35@8.50 for good to extra lots.

LIVE STOCK.

Quality of cattle coming forward very good, and the general market was satisfactory to sellers and owners. Shipping steers, $5.60@6.75; bulk of sales at $5.75@6.25; good to choice stockers, $3.50@5.00. Butchers' cattle, $4.00@5.50; inferior, $3.00@3.50; through Texans, $2.90@3.75. Hogs dull and lower, but closed steadier at decline. Yorkers, $7.00@7.60; heavy, $7.50@8.50, poor to extra. Sheep steady, light receipts, moderate demand. Shorn, $3.50@5.50; wooled, $5.50@6.75.

PRODUCE.

There has been a slight increase in the arrivals of butter during the week, but the demand was about the same as during the previous week, and the market ruled a trifle dull, but the accumulation was very slight. A trifle more weakness was developed, but no decline of importance was established. The following grading was adopted by the National Butter and Egg Association at their last meeting, and sales were made largely under these classifications: Extras—Shall be composed of selections from the finest grades of fresh-made sorts, and shall be of the highest standard of table butter. Firsts—Shall be a good quality of butter, of uniform natural color, in season, sweet and properly seasoned, in good uniform style of package, and good condition. Seconds—Shall consist of a good, sweet, solid grade of butter, uniform in color, in good style of package, and in good condition. Thirds—Shall embrace all sorts between the quality too poor to be classed as seconds, and the grade above grease butter. Quotations ranged at 27@28c for extras, with an occasional sale of 30c in a retail way, 22@26c for firsts, 18@22c for seconds, 15@17 for thirds, and 11@13 for inferior lots.

There was an improved demand for beans, and prices were a shade firmer. Quotably at $1.85@1.90 for prime Eastern mediums in barrels and $1.80@1.85 for lots in bags. Beeswax quiet at 26@28c per lb for good to prime yellow. Broom-corn was quiet but steady at [illegible]@14c for No. 1 to choice hurl and 11@13 for good to choice stalk braid. Cheese was somewhat weaker; quotable at 12@13½c for prime old factory, and 12@18c for new, according to quality. Cider quiet at $5.75@6.00 per brl for choice sweet, and $3.50@4.00 for common. Dried peas were dull at $2.00@2.10 per bu for choice green, and $1.75@1.80 for marrowfat. Dried fruits were quiet, but firm, at 8½c for Michigan and New York apples; 7@8c for Southern and Ohio; 9@9½c for halves peaches, and 9½c for blackberries. Eggs under only moderate receipts were steady; closed at 15@15½c. Apples were scarce and firm at $3.50@4.50 for good to choice. Oranges sold at $10.50@11.00 for Valentia cases, and $4.50@6.00 for Messina boxes. Hides quiet at 7½c all round, and choice selected lots sold at 7¾@8c; calf quotable at about 12½@13c. Potatoes were dull, and the market closed at 90@95c for car lots of Eastern Peachblows and $1@1.05 in small lots from store. Western Peachblows ranged at 65@85c, and Early Rose slow at 60@85c, according to quality. Wool quiet at 48@54c for tub washed, 45@48c for medium and fine fleeces, and 32@35c for coarse unwashed. Veal was in good demand and the warm weather caused rather a weak feeling to prevail. Sales ranged at 4@8c for common to choice. Vegetables were quiet at $3@3.50 per brl for onions and 70@80c per bu for Rutabaga turnips.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

The movement in grass seed during the past week was light. The season for sowing is about over, and few orders therefore were received on shipping account. The offerings of the different kinds, however, were only moderate, and although the market was quiet, a steady feeling prevailed. Timothy closed at $2@2.35 for poor to fair, and $2.40@2.45 for good to prime. Clover, quotable at $6.50@6.75 for medium, and $7.50@7.75 for mammoth, according to quality. Flax, about $1.65 for good crushing. Hungarian sold at $1.35@1.50, and closed at about $1.40@1.45 for prime. Millet, $1.40@1.50 for good to prime. There was very little doing in highwines, but at the same time prices remained steady, and closing sales were made at $1.17.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

There was no change in the market for cooperage. For packing descriptions the inquiry continues moderate, but the other kinds remain quiet. Prices unchanged; quotations range at $1.12½ for pork brls, $1.35 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.10 for whisky brls, and 45@55c for flour brls. There has been a very good demand for lumber during the week and cargoes have met with ready sale at about former quotations. The arrivals were only fair. The market closes at $10.00@14.00 for boards and strips, $8.50 for joist and scantling, $3.37½ for shingles, and $1.50@1.62½ for lath. There was but little doing in woods, but the stock left over is light and prices remain steady at $8.00@8.50 per cord for hickory, $6.50@7.00 for maple, $5.50@6.00 for beech, and $4.50 for slabs at the yards.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.
Beeves..................	11	@ 13
Hogs—Dressed............	8	@ 9
Cotton..................	15½	@ 16½
Flour—Superfine Western.	4 70	@ 4 95
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago.....	1 12	@ 1 14
No. 1 Spring......	1 20	@ 1 22
Corn....................	73	@ 75
Oats....................	75	@ 77
Rye.....................	1 07	@ 1 09
Pork—New Mess...........	20 50	@20 75
Lard—Steam..............	14⅜	@ 14½
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red.........	1 28	@ 1 30
Corn—No. 2 New..........	63	@ 65
Oats—No. 2..............	60	@ 62
Rye—No. 2...............	1 06	@ 1 06
Pork—Mess...............	20 50	@20 75
Lard....................	14	@ 15
Hogs....................	6 25	@ 7 50
Cattle..................	4 75	@ 5 50
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1.............	97	@ 99
No. 2.............	94	@ 96
Corn—No. 2..............	61	@ 62
Oats—No. 2..............	..	@ 58
Rye.....................	1 08	@ 1 10
Barley—No. 2............	1 23	@ 1 25
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red...............	1 25	@ 1 30
Corn—New................	74	@ 75
Oats....................	68	@ 72
Rye.....................	1 23	@ 1 25
Pork—Mess...............	20 00	@20 25
Lard....................	14¼	@ 14½
TOLEDO.
Wheat—Extra.............	1 26	@ 1 28
Amber............	1 20	@ 1 22
Corn—New................	70	@ 72
Oats....................	64	@ 66
DETROIT.
Wheat—Extra.............	..	@ 1 26
Amber............	..	@ 1 23
Corn....................	72	@ 74
Oats....................	63	@ 65
CLEVELAND.
Wheat—No. 1 Red.........	1 25	@ 1 28
No. 2 Red.........	1 23	@ 1 25
Corn....................	73	@ 75
Oats....................	63	@ 66

Postal Regulations.

The Postmaster-General has issued the following order: Amending section 103 of the regulations of the Postoffice Department by striking out the words, "And the subscription must be for not less than three months," in the seventh and eighth lines, so as to read as follows:

SEC. 103. A regular subscriber is a person who has actually paid or undertaken to pay a subscription price for a newspaper, magazine, or other periodical, or for whom such payment has been made or undertaken to be made by some other person; but in the latter case such payment must have been made or undertaken with the consent or at the previous request of the person to whom such newspaper, magazine, or periodical is sent. A person to whom any such publication is sent without his consent or request is not a regular subscriber within the meaning of the law; and double transient rates of postage will be charged on such publications before delivery.

In a foot-note addressed to Postmasters, the Postmaster-General says: "Postmasters will observe that by this amendment of the 103d section of the regulations, persons who are subscribers to a newspaper or periodicals, as defined in the regulation, are to be regarded as regular subscribers within the intendment of the postal laws, without regard to the length of time of their subscription."

The Crops—An Encouraging Outlook.

[From the Chicago Times, May 22.]

We print in this morning's paper full reports of the condition of the spring wheat from all portions of the Northwest, where it is a staple product. It will be observed that the reports are exceedingly encouraging. The spread is, in all sections where the season is sufficiently advanced, all that could be desired. In some sections, however, the season is extremely backward, and the wheat is but just above the ground. This fact, however, does not necessarily argue a poor crop. Indeed, with good weather during the summer, it is quite probable that the yield in these sections will be fully up to the average of past seasons. Of course there are a good many contingencies that may arise between now and harvest time to destroy the crop, but there is no reason to apprehend any disastrous results. On the whole it looks as if the spring wheat crop will nearly, if not quite, make up the deficiencies caused by the winter-killing of winter wheat. We have certainly reason to hope for such a result.

CLOUDED REASON.

The Widow of Abraham Lincoln Adjudged Insane and Sent to a Private Mad-House.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

The death of President Lincoln was one of the nation's saddest misfortunes,—a misfortune that it has not yet outlived. The fact that he had fallen by the hand of the assassin only tended to intensify the public grief, and to add to the gloom which settled upon the popular heart. But to none was the calamity so painful, and upon none were its traces so continuous and marked, as his immediate family and intimate personal friends. The nation put on its garb of mourning, to be worn off by time or effaced by the rapid succession of great national events; but the hearts of his family were pierced deeply and eternally. Especially was this true of his widow and eldest son, the former of whom, at the time, it was feared, would lose her mind. In fact, the effect was visible in her subsequent life and conduct, which time seemed to heighten and increase. The death of a son was one of the inflictions which her mind, then failing, was soon called upon to endure. Travel, change of scenes and associations, the best of medical care, all failed to arrest the premonitions of a failing mind. The lavish affections of her children, and the consolation of friends, and the nation's sympathy, failed to arrest the symptoms of insanity or to lighten her mind of the immense burden it was tottering beneath. She continued to decline, not only in vigor of mind, but in physical condition, nothing seeming to avail her in her grief and declining years.

So feeble had become the state of her mind, and as a consequence so eccentric her nature and habits of life, that, Saturday last, a council of the leading physicians of the city and her personal friends was held to consider what was best to be done for her. She was stopping at the Grand Pacific Hotel, and from the uncertainty of her demeanor it was felt that something was necessary to be done to protect her life from her own hands, and to secure her from bodily harm.

The result of the council was an agreement to petition Judge Wallace, of the County Court, to make an order of warrant and venire to try the question of her sanity. The warrant was accordingly issued yesterday, when a jury, composed of Dr. S. C. Blake, C. B. Farwell, C. M. Henderson, S. M. Moore, L. J. Gage, H. C. Durand, S. B. Parkhurst, William Stewart, D. R. Cameron, J. A. Mason, J. McGregor Adams, and Thos. Coggswell was impaneled for the trial, and Mary Lincoln was brought into court. The unfortunate lady entered the court-room scarcely observed, and certainly without her sad mission being known, except by the friends who accompanied her, and the large number of witnesses who had been summoned. The lady was pallid, her eye was watery and excited, and her general appearance that of one suffering from nervous excitement. She was attired in a plain black suit, and was neat and comely of appearance. In the party accompanying her was her son, whose every feature was marked with sadness. His eyes, too, were suffused with tears, as were also those of several others of the party. The persons entering the court-room had more the appearance of a funeral procession than anything else, and their appearance was the signal for a breathless silence among the few in the room at the time.

She took a seat facing his Honor, and by her side sat her counselor and friend, and the biographer of her husband, the Hon. I. N. Arnold. The petitioner, her son, Robert T. Lincoln, took a seat near her and obliquely to her left. Beside him sat the Hon. Leonard Swett and B. F. Ayer, counsel for the petitioner, while in front of them and on the west side of the room were seated the jurors who were to pass upon one of the most important and regretful cases ever presented to a court.

After the examination of a large number of witnesses, friends and relatives of the family—including the eldest son, Robert T. Lincoln—whose testimony left no doubt in the minds of the jury that the mind of the unfortunate lady has been for years the prey to growing madness, and that she ought to be placed under restraint, the jury retired and in a few minutes returned with the following verdict:

We, the undersigned, jurors in the case of Mary Lincoln, alleged to be insane, having heard the evidence in the case, are satisfied that the said Mary Lincoln is insane, and a fit person to be sent to a State Hospital for the Insane; that she is a resident of the State of Illinois and county of Cook; that her age is 56 years; that the disease is of unknown duration, and is not with her hereditary; that she is not subject to epilepsy; that she does not manifest homicidal or suicidal tendencies, and that she is not a pauper.

The verdict was received by Mrs. Lincoln without any visible emotions. She was stolid and unmoved, and did not allow its reading to interrupt the conversation in which she was engaged with Mr. Arnold.

Immediately after the verdict was announced the court-room was deserted. Mr. Swett obtained an order of the court for her delivery to the proper officer, who served the necessary papers upon her and furnished her with duplicates.

A consultation of her friends was then had, when it was agreed that she should be committed to the care of the Bellevue Place, Batavia, Ill., superintended by Dr. R. J. Patterson.

Gen. Sherman's Account of the Discovery of Gold in California.

I remember one day that two men, Americans, came into the office and inquired for the Governor. I asked their business, and one answered that they had just come down from Captain Sutter on special business, and they wanted to see Governor Mason in person. I took them into the Colonel and left them together. After some time, the Colonel came to his door and called to me. I went in, and my attention was directed to a series of papers unfolded on his table, in which lay about half an ounce of placer gold. Mason said to me, "What is that?" I touched it, and examined one or two of the larger pieces, and asked, "Is it gold?" Mason asked me if I had ever seen native gold. I answered, that in 1844, I was in Upper Georgia, and there saw some native gold, but it was much finer than this, and that it was in phials, or in transparent quills; but I said, that if this were gold, it could be easily tested, first, by its malleability, and next by acids. I took a piece in my teeth, and the metallic luster was perfect; I then called to the clerk, Baden, to bring an ax and hatchet from the backyard. When these were brought, I took the largest piece and beat it out flat, and beyond doubt it was metal, and a pure metal. Still we attached little importance to the fact, for gold was known to exist at San Fernando, at the south, and yet was not considered of much value.

[illegible]

Further Concerning the Ravages of the Pest in the North and Southwest.

[From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

Advices received from the principal wheat-growing sections throughout Southern Minnesota state that in Faribault and Martin counties, where the wheat crop was last year destroyed by grasshoppers, the farmers are substituting flax, corn, and oats in place of wheat, with an idea that the hoppers will fly away before these late grains get within their reach. In LaCrosse, Vernon, Monroe, and Jackson counties, Wisconsin, the amount of wheat sown will cover an area of at least ten per cent. more than last year, and with an average season there will be an uncommonly large crop. Late reports from the southwest part of Minnesota bring discouraging news of the grasshoppers. The ground already seems alive with them, and still hatching rapidly.

A careful analysis of the reports received from all parts of Kansas and various portions of adjacent States and Territories, shows that there are good grounds for apprehension of serious damage from the ravages of grasshoppers. The pests have made their appearance by countless millions, in various quarters, principally Southern Kansas and Northern Missouri. There seems to be none south of Kansas, and but few west. They are not at all in the localities in Kansas which were so stricken by them last season. They all come from the hatching of the eggs deposited last fall. The main hatching ground appears to be 150 miles wide, extending north from the southern line of Kansas to the border counties of Missouri. The damage thus far is mainly confined to oats and garden vegetables. The fall wheat has been but little injured. The corn has been cut down in many localities, but it is being replanted, and there is yet plenty of time for it to make a fair crop. The fruit has not been as yet much harmed. In at least half of Kansas the prospects for abundant crops have not been so good for the last five years, and the same is true of Missouri.

Advices from Nebraska represent that considerable damage is being done in that State, but the young insects are dying and disappearing quite rapidly. Colorado has none to speak of, and there are none in the Indian Territory. The farmers of Kansas and Missouri are now exerting themselves in all possible ways to destroy the grasshoppers before they get large enough and strong enough to repeat the calamity of last season, and these efforts are proving quite successful. Bushels of the hateful insects are being gathered in every day, and many farms have been entirely cleared of them. The next ten days will decide the whole matter. If the grasshoppers can be kept for that time in the localities where they are now operating, there will not be enough of them left alive to make a serious raid in any direction, or to destroy the late crops in the district at present infested by them. But if they mature rapidly enough to escape destruction in considerable numbers, the extent of their ravages cannot be computed.

The Last of a Noted Ship.

W. Simmons, a well-known rigger of this city, has a curiosity in his possession which possesses no small historical interest. It is a model of a bark made out of the timbers of the Cadmus, the vessel in which Lafayette came to the United States in 1824. The Cadmus arrived in San Francisco, from England, in 1850, and being pronounced unseaworthy, was sold at auction. Being purchased by the ship-chandlery firm, she was converted into a store-ship and for several years lay off the foot of Mission street. She was again sold—George Howgate and Frederick Howlin being the purchasers, who broke her up in 1856. A portion of her timbers were used as planking for the streets, Montgomery, between California and Sacramento, being planked with the "oaken walls," of the sturdy old craft. Mr. Simmons, however, who assisted at her demolition, had romance enough to save a fragment of her remains, of which he constructed a model of the original. It is pronounced a perfect imitation, the style of rig, shape of hull, etc., it all being close copies of the ancient bark. The deck is made from the frame door of the cabin occupied by the illustrious Frenchman, a piece of the berth in which he slept forming the forecastle. Altogether the model is deserving of attention, and as a specimen of naval architecture on a small scale reflects credit on the constructor.—San Francisco Bulletin.

When There Is No More West to Go To.

Speaking of the prevalent Western immigration fever, the St. Louis Republican observes:

"Moving West is an American business; we have been engaged in it for a hundred years. But what will we do when there is no longer a West to emigrate to? That time has nearly arrived. When it comes, the growth of the country will thereafter react toward its center. The population of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee can be doubled, and yet not reach more than a hundred to the square mile. The country will grow in a different way. Great manufacturing centers will arise; interior towns and cities will be built up; our coal and iron resources will be developed, and the principal part of our surplus grain products will be needed for home consumption. That is what we will do when there is no longer a West to emigrate to.

SHAD are not as numerous in the Eastern streams as last spring.

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAIS, PUBLISHER.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

It is stated that Mrs. Tilton is engaged in writing a novel founded on the incidents of her life.

The President and Mrs. Grant will attend the wedding of Gen. Sheridan, which will take place in Chicago in a few days.

A Chicago paper describes Miss [illegible] as "a beautiful brunette, of that willowy, drooping form considered essential to beauty of the highest grade."

What are these women coming to any way? Two of them were recently arrested in an Ohio town in the act of burglarizing a store, and now we read that a burglar who was shot by a North Carolina woman, the other day, was found to be a woman in male attire.

Germany and Russia are understood to be determined to keep the peace, if it is necessary to thrash every other nation into complete helplessness. The Kaiser and the Czar both think that war is very wrong, and are anxious to pound the same opinion into the French and other wicked nations with large armies.

They have a story in Brooklyn that Mr. Beecher intends to leave for Europe and the Holy Land about the 1st of September. When the trial is over he will resume the writing of his "Life of Christ." To verify certain parts of it, to give fidelity in the details of descriptions of the Mount of Zion, the Mount of Olives, the Hill of Calvary, the Garden of Gethsemane, etc., is the purpose of this journey to Palestine.

Prominent army officers express much dissatisfaction with the memoirs of Gen. Sherman. Some of those who were most intimate with him insist that he has been very unjust to the Generals who rendered him most service, and has gone out of his way to satisfy personal pique. It is even stated that Gen. Grant contemplates collecting materials for memoirs of the war, and that Admiral Porter will reply to some portions of Sherman's book.

The Postmaster-General, under authority of an act of Congress of June 8, 1872, has ordered that the rate of United States postage on letters sent to or received from foreign countries, with which different rates have not been established by postal convention or other arrangement, when forwarded by vessels regularly employed in transporting the mail, be reduced from 10 to 5 cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof, to take effect July 1, 1875.

The St. Louis papers record a remarkable attempt at suicide that was recently made in that city. Mrs. Mary Phillips, while laboring under a fit of temporary insanity, locked herself in her house, and procuring an ax attempted to split her head open. She dealt herself three violent blows, but owing either to the thickness of her skull or the dullness of the ax, failed to accomplish more than inflicting three long gashes, reaching from the forehead back to the crown of the head.

The late John C. Breckinridge was born on the 21st of January, 1821, and was educated for the law. He fought in Mexico and on the side of the South in the late war of the rebellion. He served in both houses of Congress, and was chosen Vice President of the United States on the ticket with Buchanan. In 1860 he ran for President on the Democratic ticket, receiving the electoral votes of all the Southern States except Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri. His last official position was as Secretary of War of the Confederate States.

Ex-Senator James W. Nye is now an inmate of the Sandford Lunatic Asylum, of Brooklyn. He is not allowed to be seen, except by his most particular and intimate friends. He is very violent at times, and constantly has with him a special attendant. While in the Bloomingdale, it was found necessary to confine him at times with a straight-jacket, so terrible did his paroxysms become. His mental faculties do not seem to be dimmed by any temporary lunacy, but to have actually and completely given way, probably never to return again. The brain has been worn out by constant use, disappointment, worry and excess.

The New York Graphic thinks that in all probability we have not got through with our steamship disasters this year. The enormous masses of ice that have already made their appearance in the mid-Atlantic will not disappear until late in the summer. The same system of sacrificing safety to speed which caused the wreck of the Schiller will make the captains of certain other steamships reluctant to steer out of their course to avoid the neighborhood of icebergs and ice-fields, and it will be strange if we do not hear before the summer is over of other wrecks more disastrous to human life than even that of the Schiller.

A St. Louis grocery house recently received by express from Western Missouri a box which, upon being opened, was found to be completely full of grasshoppers. Accompanying the package was a letter from a heavy debtor, who said that unless the hoppers were received in liquidation of his account, he saw no way of ever paying his indebtedness, as these were all there was left, or in prospect, of the product of his section. All the wholesale houses of St. Louis are receiving letters by the hundred from their Western Missouri creditors, declaring their total inability to meet their paper, on account of the plague.

The Chicago Tribune reports that a gentleman in that city has received a letter from a correspondent in Nebraska containing information which, if true, must prove gratifying. It is to the effect that, though the grasshoppers have developed in that locality by myriads, there is an active enemy preying on them in the form of a small red bug, of a description not hitherto seen. This bug attacks the grasshopper in bulk, and destroys all it attacks. If this be true, and the bug become general in the grasshopper country, then its appearance will be welcomed. That bug ought to be cultivated, that it may prove the deliverer of the country from the threatened plague.

Carruth, the Vineland (N. J.) editor, is still alive, and apparently in a fair way to recover, although he still has an ounce of lead in his brain. When he was shot his friends refused to call in a surgeon and summoned a homœopathic physician, who, instead of searching for the ball, merely gave the man arnica, with a view to check inflammation, and left nature to work a cure if possible. Should Carruth really recover his case will throw considerable doubt on the propriety of always probing a gun-shot wound, and people will begin to ask whether skilful surgeons have not been responsible for many of the deaths which they have attributed to bullets. Because a man is perforated with a lead ball it may not necessarily follow that he ought again to be perforated with a steel probe, and Mr. Carruth's recovery will foster the suspicion that perhaps the probe is rather more dangerous than the ball.

There comes from the Pacific coast the story that a secret organization of far-reaching ramifications is being effected throughout the United States and Mexico, having for its purpose the annexation of the latter. The leaders, said to be soldiers and statesman of reputation, are unknown even in the lodges of the organization. Their agents are at work throughout the land, silently recruiting young men of probity and intelligence, and preparing them to join the standard soon to be unfurled in the halls of the Montezumas. Each member pays a nominal initiation fee, the surplus from the payment of local expenses going to the Secretary of the Treasury to the central government. When the numerical strength of the organization shall have reached the neighborhood of one hundred thousand, a silent march will be made on Mexico, not with fire and sword, but with the ballot, which, aided by the influences now at work in the republic, is to bring about the result aimed at.

A Struggle Between a Guard and a Siberian Bloodhound.

Patrick Eustace, is one of the guards at the Eastern Penitentiary, whose duty it is to make the rounds of the institution at night to learn if all's well. This he does in company with two Siberian bloodhounds. On Tuesday night last while accomplishing this duty, the dogs quarreled and a terrible struggle ensued between them. Eustace inserted his club between the jaws of the one which had between his long fangs the other's throat.

The savage brute released his hold and flew at the guard, catching his right arm and forcing his teeth deep into the flesh, through the thickness of an overcoat, undercoat, and two shirts. The guard used his club freely but this would have availed little had not the second hound come the rescue of his master, and even then the victory of man and beast was dearly bought. Having secured the enraged animal, and, as the guard believed subjected him sufficiently, Eustace went into the warden's office, where his wounds were dressed. About two hours later Guard Lennan was making a tour of the yard with the hounds, when Guard Eustace happened to cross some distance off. The moment the hound heard his footsteps he uttered a low cry and bounded swiftly off in the direction of Eustace, who was apprised of his danger by a shout from Guard Lennan. Eustace turned, drawing his revolver at the same time, and pulled the trigger as he saw the hound approaching him. The first shot took effect, and the animal staggered and fell, shot through the heart. A few seconds later and he would probably have had his fangs in the throat of the guard.

The convicts at the Penitentiary stand in continual fear of these savage Siberian prowlers, perhaps the most savage and resentful of the canine family.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

How Sam Ward Cooks a Ham.—I soak it for four days in water, changing it four times a day; then boil it five hours in cider, with a wisp of new hay; then I baste it with brandy, sherry, or claret, according to the weather; and when they have tasted a slice of that ham, why, they will pass anything I want in Congress.

INDIANA NEWS.

Hon. M. C. Kerr has returned home home from the South. His health is not improved.

Terre Haute is to have a new German paper. Mr. Kuppenheimer will be the proprietor of it.

According to the report of the Treasurer of Indianapolis, the expenses of that city during the past fiscal year were $1,706,449,80.

A man in South Bend had a new safe put into his store last week, with a patent combination lock. His books and money are locked up in it, and at this present writing, neither he nor any one else is able to open that safe.

The Worthington Times draws it rather mild when it says, speaking of the shipment of walnut logs to the East, that "if such wholesale destruction of this valuable material is allowed to continue a few more years, it will be almost an impossibility for an urchin in this section to find enough green walnuts to ruin one suit of clothing an entire season."

One day last week, while Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Beyesler, of Goshen, were from home, two tramps entered on the pretense of looking for work. Finding no one but the hired-girl and a child in the house they commenced ransacking it. The girl, with the child on one arm and a seven-shooter in the other hand, told them to "git." They did in double-quick time.

Nine ladies of Paris have issued a challenge to the ladies of Terre Haute to meet them on the diamond field in a match of base-ball, the prize being a calico dress to the captain of the victorious nine. The occasion chosen being that of a Union Sunday-school picnic, the pastors of the two churches will act as umpires, and the Sunday-school Superintendent will have charge of the proceedings.

The State Medical Society, at its recent session in Indianapolis, elected the following officers: President, Dr. J. H. Helm, of Peru: Vice-President, Dr. W. Beard, of Vincennes; Secretary, Dr. G. W. Woolen, of Indianapolis; Assistant-Secretary, Dr. J. W. Elstun, of Indianapolis; Treasurer, Dr. J. H. Woodburn, of Indianapolis; Delegates to the Illinois Medical Society, Drs. J. W. Pugh, of Oaktown, and J. M. Link, of Terre Haute.

An entire block of buildings at Anderson, including the Odd Fellows' Hall, were destroyed by fire last week. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, and the loss is hastily estimated at $50,000, with a probable insurance of half that amount. There were several families living in the upper rooms, and some narrow escapes were made. A child was thrown out of an upper window and caught without injury, after the stairway had burned away. An old couple, named Charman, were taken from their blazing bed just in time to save their lives. A number of other hairbreadth escapes are reported.

Political Economy for Ladies.

Ladies, what is capital? Having more money than you know what to do with.

What is labor? Endeavoring to make your husband understand that you ought to have a new dress every week.

What is the meaning of demand? Insisting that you must have a month at the seaside for the benefit of your health.

What is supply? Your husband giving you a check to cover your expenses.

What is co-operation? Your husband assisting to make your garden party a success.

What are profits? The means of enabling you to keep up appearances.

What is division of profits? Your husband allowing you a certain amount of his income for your own use.

What is trade? The means whereby husbands are enabled to obtain the cash required by their wives.

What is credit? Running up a bill at the draper's.

Of what use is credit? It enables you to get things without paying for them.

What is currency? Saying something about somebody else, and finding everybody doing the same.

What are wages? The money we are obliged to pay the servants.

What is land? That part of the earth which is not water.

Into what divisions is the land divided? Towns, villages, country-estates, roads, and Mr. Smith's garden.

To whom does the land belong? To the landlord, of course.

What are the duties of landlords? The payments of rates and taxes.

What are the duties of landladies? To look as sweet as possible while their customers have money to spend.

What is fixed capital? The £10 which you lent brother Tom, and which he will not pay back.

What is floating capital? Your new parasol blown off the jetty into the sea.

What are rights of labor? Sarah Jane's Sunday afternoons out, her young man, and a new chignon every month.

What are the rights of capital? The giving of parties, going full dress to the theaters, and riding the high horse.

What are the duties of labor? To get as much as possible out of the capitalists.

What are the duties of capital? To get as much as possible out of the laborer.

What is a bank? A place where they cash checks.

What is a check? That which every husband ought to give his wife when she wants it.

What is a panic? When a wife finds that her husband has not sufficient to pay her milliner's bill.—Hornet.

All Sorts.

Rochefort is in Geneva.

Fish is worth two millions.

The bathing season has commenced at Biarritz.

Lead has been discovered near Cold Springs, Stearns county, Minn.

Sartoris has taken a cottage at Long Branch adjoining the President's.

An eel three feet long was caught in Rock river, Wisconsin, the other day.

The law school of Columbia College graduated 200 limbs of the law Thursday last.

Leavenworth, Kan., hopes to have the military prison commenced soon. It will cost $100,000.

The average income of the American people is $175 per year; that of the unskilled laboring class $100.

An ordinance to prevent hucksters from ringing door-bells is before the Baltimore Common Council.

The New York Tribune calls the seventy bad "Indians," held at Fort Leavenworth, a "herd of elephants."

The Salt Lake City papers complain of a great increase in the number of garottings, robberies, and burglaries in that city.

Compulsory education will have a practical test in Brooklyn soon. A census for that purpose was commenced this week.

Bergh wants children to be kept from witnessing the scenes incident to the slaughter-house business. He says they are brutalizing.

Mr. Charles A. Dana is about to resign the editorship of the New York Sun and make a tour to Europe for the benefit of his health.

The house at Danbury, Conn., in which Gen. Wooster, of Revolutionary fame, died, was lately sold for $2. It was erected in 1771.

Saratoga will be the proper place to send your obnoxious relatives to this season. A new rifle club has purchased shooting grounds there.

That quiet and inoffensive child of the Patent Office, called a stalk cutter, nearly killed Capt. Gore, of Keokuk county, Iowa, recently.

Mr. E. D. Winslow has bought a three-quarters interest in the Boston Post for $300,000. The editorial management of the paper, like its politics, will remain unchanged.

The recent raids on the Chicago, St. Louis, and Milwaukee distilleries were the greatest on record. Even Solomon, in all his glory, was not a raid like one of these.—Detroit News.

The Rev. Mr. Purvy, of the Congregational Tabernacle, at Worcester, has brought about the abolition of pew rents in his church, and charges for admission to the services. Tickets are sold at twenty cents for the best seats with ten cents admission, and five cents to the gallery.

Belated Penitence.

We tell the story as we find it in a newspaper. Twenty years ago a pair were married and came to a town in this State to reside. The union was not a happy one. He grumbled continually; persistently abused her; and he even had a habit of beating her. Before others he was plausibly kind and affectionate; when she bore the sable and cerculean marks of his chastisement, he would say to the neighbors that his dear love had fallen and hurt herself; and it was thought, when she asserted to the contrary, that she was, of course, insane. Once, by accident, he was seen by a lady to deal his wife a tremendous blow; and for this, after due judicial investigation, he was sent to prison for several months, during which, woman-like, she exerted all her energies to get him out. Just before leaving the dock for the dungeon he turned to her, and accusing her of perjury in her testimony, he bade her take notice that he never would speak to her again. This was nine years ago. After his release, they lived together, but he kept his word literally. He held no converse with her except through others. He would "tell the children to say so and so to their mother." His usual mode of communicating with her was "to retire to a separate room and there issue his mandates" to a messenger. So he went on, the great, dumb, ugly, brute, for all these years—savage and silent, making every day a recurring torment and every hour a shameful insult.

But a better time, at least for her, came at last; she was about to die! She had been sick for weeks, with no syllable of sympathy from him, when, as he was working stolidly in his garden, the doctor and clergyman told him of her approaching departure. He burst into tears. Of couse he did. He rushed to the death-bed, bellowing like a great calf. He bent over the form which he had so often beaten, still howling and weeping. He found his tongue, and begged her forgiveness, for he knew where she was going, and the tribunal in the awful presence of which she soon might bear witness against him. And so he groaned and groveled, and crooked his knees, and said he was a wretch, while she—of course she was an angel!

It is hardly necessary for us to state that then and there this vociferous gentleman was forgiven. She clasped the hand which had been so coarsely cruel to her; she called him tenderly by name; she pardoned his trespasses, sweetly entreating him not to take on so; and a few hours before her death she declared that the last two days, poor creature! "had been the happiest of her life; she only wished that they might be the beginning of happy days for her husband." Of course he must be happy, however wretched he had made her lot; for him must be wedding garments, and fatted calves, and pleasant salutations from everybody—for him who had been such a dumb dog to her! No doubt after the funeral he felt exceedingly comfortable, for it is so nice to be forgiven! We wish we could think of him otherwise. We should like to imagine him groaning and grievously floundering above the grave where she found the home which he refused her. But we can't. We know that he is happy, and the knowledge makes us wretched.—New York Tribune.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

Some people suppose that when bees are seen on manure heaps, and even in other places equally unclean, that they are getting honey. That is not so. It is water that they are in search of and not honey.

A fruit-grower says: "I have driven thousands of caterpillars from apple trees in less than thirty-six hours, by plugging sulphur in the body. I presume the effect was produced by making the leaves distasteful."

Willows may be killed by boring several large augur holes in their stumps and repeatedly filling these with salt. The vitality is soon effectually destroyed and the tendency of the roots to send up suckers checked to a great extent.

Grapes.—The best variety for general cultivation is the Concord; but for some places, as parts of Central New York and some parts of the New England States, the Hartford Prolific may ripen better, it being a week earlier than the Concord, but not as good a grape.

The Western fruit-growers have been dosing the canker worm with Paris green water; that is water with which Paris green has been largely mingled in the same proportion as which it is used on potatoes. The mixture is pumped over the leaves and branches of the trees by means of a hand force pump through a hose perforated for that purpose. This application is made so early in the season that all vestige of the Paris green is washed off before the fruit is ripe.

A favorite and rather new kind of mash for horses is coming into use, composed of two quarts of oats, one of bran, and a half pint of flaxseed. The oats are first placed in the stable bucket, over which is spread the linseed; add boiling water, then the bran, covering the mixture with an old rug, and allowing it to rest for five hours, then stir the mass well up. The bran absorbs, while retaining the vapor, and the linseed binds the oats and bran together.

There are many ways of disinfecting horse stables. The first and best is plenty of ventilation; this will often accomplish what is necessary without further effort, and must always be a prominent element in any process. Dry muck in the stalls has also a tendency to sweeten the air. Carbolic acid, diluted with one hundred parts of warm water, and sprinkled over the floor of the stalls or about the mangers, will deordorize and disinfect them effectually; and another excellent thing is the use of gypsum or land plaster after cleaning, thrown about the stall and on the manure. The last mentioned method has also the effect of enhancing the value of the manure.

What breed of cows is best depends on where and what they are wanted for. If a single cow or a few cows are wanted to furnish milk and butter for family use, there is nothing better than the Alderney. Their milk and butter are exceedingly delicious. If one lives near a city or large village, and wishes to sell butter fresh from the churn, nothing would find a more ready market, or stand up better under the heat of summer than Jersey butter. But if the object were to sell milk by the quart, a poorer choice could hardly be made than to select the Alderney cow. If the purpose was to make cheese or butter and cheese from the same milk, then nothing is equal to the Ayrshire, especially on hilly farms. If to milk awhile and then convert into beef should be what the purchaser wanted, the Short-horn or Holstein would be preferable. The Devons and the natives may also be preferred for special purposes. There is no single breed of cows which will best suit every locality and requirement. The cow which will come nearest to filling all demands is, in my opinion, the Ayrshire, but she is not best everywhere. The price of Jersey cows is very variable. Not all the importations of Jersey stock have been made up of the best animals, and the prices of the different qualities run from $100 to $500 per cow. The great difference in the qualities of the animals would make it hazardous to order cows without some personal knowledge of the cows or their breeders.

About the House.

To detect adulteration in tea, burn the ashes. Pure tea, of any grade, will not leave over five per cent. of ash, while the adulterated article will yield as high as forty-five per cent.

Corn Bread.—Four cups of sweet milk, two cups of sour milk, one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of sugar, five cups of corn meal, one tablespoonful of soda. Bake two hours.

In painting, do not apply a succeeding coat before the previous one is dry. Do not use a lighter color over a darker one, nor add dryers long before using. Use as little dryer as will do the work.

Molasses Cookies.—One cup of molasses, one-half cup of sugar, one cup of lard, one cup of water, one teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of soda, heaped on as long as any will stay on the spoon. Mix rather soft, and bake lightly.

Raised Cake.—Five cups of flour, one of butter, one half cup of yeast, three of milk. Rub the butter into the flour, add milk and yeast, and set it to rise; when risen, work in the sugar, add spice to taste; when raised, put in with a fork one cup of floured raisins.

Sugar Cakes.—One pint dry flour, one-half a pint of butter, one-half of sugar, mix the flour and sugar, rub in the butter, add an egg beaten with enough milk to moisten the whole; roll thin and bake in a quick oven. These recipes are for those who have few eggs or none.

Codfish-cakes.—Boil a piece of salt cod; take out all the bones, and mash with it equal quantities of potatoes. Season it with pepper, and salt to your taste; and then add as much beaten egg as will form it into paste. Make it out into thin cakes; flour them, and fry them of a light brown.

A Toothache Cure.—Saturate a small piece of cotton with aqua ammonia—liquid hartshorn, and place it in the cavity. The patient had better get some other person to put the pellet in the tooth, as the ammonia is a powerful alkali, and the sensation would be quite unpleasant if it comes in contact with the skin of the mouth.

A fire-lighter is in use of the shape and size of an egg, with a wire fastened to it, to be dipped in coal oil to kindle fires. It is made as follows: Ordinary pottery clay is mixed with sulphur or other inflammable substance, molded into the desired form, and thoroughly burned. It will then be found to be exceedingly porous, and will absorb, by capillary attraction, a large quantity of oil.

To clean an oil painting that is injured by dust and particles of wrapping paper, take the picture out of the frame, lay a coarse towel over it for ten or fourteen days; keep it continually wet until it has drawn out all the filthiness from the picture; pass some linseed oil which has been a long time seasoning over it, in the sunlight, to purify it, and the picture will become as lively on the surface as new.

The Skeleton Under the Cook Stove.

About eighteen months ago a man named Jacob Weaver, who lived with his step-daughter on his farm about one mile west of Miles' Point, Mo., was missed by his neighbors. Grave suspicions were indulged in by the community that the old man had been foully dealt with; but his step-daughter, who enjoyed an unenviable reputation, and her husband, McMeans, told a plausible story, which their little daughter seemed clearly to corroborate. They pretended that they had given the old man $100, and that he had started on foot toward Hardin, in Ray county, to make some purchases, and had run off with the money. This story did for a time, but the people renewed their suspicions that the old man had been murdered, and, it coming to the knowledge of McMeans that he and his wife were gravely suspected, the family suddenly decamped last fall, taking away all movable articles. The house which they occupied is a one-story frame, with a kitchen-shed on the north side. A few days since, two youths, who were out hunting, went into the unoccupied premises to escape the rain, and, with boyish curiosity, commenced prying into things. One of them noticed that a part of the dirt floor of the kitchen was sunken down below the rest of it, right under the place where doubtless the stove had stood, and on one side a crack in the ground was found, into which a stick was inserted, and the boys worked out the long hidden mystery. The hole was a grave! Doubtless the stray cattle driven into the untenanted shed by the winter blasts had pressed down the loose earth in the grave. The boys at once gave the alarm, and the neighbors disinterred the remains of Mr. Weaver. Dr. Barnes examined the body, and recognized it as the missing man's. One arm and a part of one side were gone, otherwise eighteen months had not rendered the body entirely unrecognizable. It was found that the skull had been crushed in by blows from an ax or some other heavy instrument. This was doubtless the mode of the old man's death. The most horrible part of this inhuman transaction is that the step-daughter could have lived so long, perhaps a year, and cooked her meals right over the spot where her mother's husband lay in his rude and bloody grave. For a few hundred dollars' worth of truck she and her husband had murdered him, and they had buried his poor, mutilated, old and weary body just where, of all places in the world, a woman, one would think, would least care to have her victim. For heartlessness and depravity this exceeds anything recorded in the history of the notorious Bender family.

Sam Patch Outdone.

Situated in Marlborough, on the opposite side of the river, in the rear of Arthur Dubois' hotel, on what is known as Jew's creek, is a gorge some 200 feet deep. Immediately in the rear of the hotel the bank slopes down about 120 feet to a ledge of rocks, and from there to the bottom of the gorge the bank is almost perpendicular, and covered with moss and a slimy substance, water oozing through the crevices in the rocks. A few days since, says the Newburg Telegraph, Egbert Hall, standing on the piazza in the rear of the hotel, which overlooks the chasm, while coughing, lost a set of teeth, and on Sunday morning several persons were discussing the possibility of getting down to the ledge of rocks to see if they had lodged thereon; and accordingly two men, by securing a rope to the building, succeeded in reaching the ledge, but without any success in finding the teeth. On returning, they spoke of the impossibility of getting to the bottom of the gorge, on account of the abruptness of the bank from the ledge down, when a boy about 15 years of age, named David Ward, volunteered to go to the bottom if any one would give him 50 cents. Some bystander offered to give him $5 if he succeeded in reaching bottom, and he immediately commenced to descend, reaching the rocky ledge with little trouble, when, to the horror of those who were watching him, he immediately jumped from its brink and disappeared from sight. All supposed, as a matter of course, that he was instantly killed, but imagine their surprise at seeing him appear in sight at the bottom of the gorge, waving his hat and shouting in triumph. It seems when he struck among the stones and gravel at the bottom, he landed on his feet, but the momentum caused him to turn a complete somersault, and he escaped with a slight sprain of one hand. This is truly one of the most remarkable leaps, without resulting fatally, on record.—Poughkeepsie News.

Wonderful Escape.

Who ever heard, or expected to hear, that a man's legs could be run over by the cars, and not be crushed? And yet the thing has actually happened. We clip the following from the Boston Advertiser:

L. Averill, of Wells River, Vt., a freight conductor, fell under the cars on Monday, April 12, and the wheels of the forward truck of a freight car, weighing 13,500 pounds, ran over his legs, but, strange to say, did not break the bones, and scarcely tore the skin. Two jackknives in his pocket were bent nearly double, and it is thought that the flange struck them first, thus avoiding the shearing effect of the flange upon the rail. This is probably the only case on record where a car has run over a man's legs leaving the bones unharmed.

A New Store

With an entire new stock of

BOOTS & SHOES,

New STYLES of all kinds at the LOWEST PRICES at

J. E. WOODFORD'S

located at Auburn with a fine stock of BOOTS and SHOES, which will be sold at the Lowest Figures for Cash!

My Facilities for making CUSTOM WORK are not excelled anywhere and those favoring me with their orders may be certain of getting the best material.
W. W. HUMES, Foreman.

To the trade, great inducements are offered in Leather, Findings, &c. Please call and examine my stock before purchasing.

FRESH ARRIVAL OF NEW GOOD

AT THE

GRAND CENTRAL

Woolen Goods for the next THIRTY DAYS sold without regard to C

A JOB LOT OF SHAWLS

Bleached and Brown Muslin,
Percales and Prints, Donmims,
And Shirtings, Carpets and
Oilcloths, Table-Linen and
Towling. A Large assort of

ALPACCAS,

AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Gents' Collars, Hats, and Suspenders. Ladies Collars and Cuffs. Willow Ware, Satchels, and Carpet Bags. COTTENADES from 15c to 35c per yd. fine assortment of

CASSIMERES,

at very low figures. Call at the Grand Central, next door to Davis' Hardware store.

WILLIAM RICHMOND, Pro.

C. P. Houser & Co.,

—Dealer In—

BOOKS AND STATIONERY

BEST
Window Paper
HOLLAND'S
and Oil Shades always had anP f
CASH.

PICTURES, FRAMES,
CORD,
and TASSELS,
Curtain and Window Fix'rs
the Best in the Market.

—The Largest and finest assortment of—

WALL PAPER

EVER BROUGHT TO THIS MARKET.

Their store is located in Ensley's new brick block North of the Court House, AUBURN, INDIANA.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

F. E. DAVENPORT,

Corner Main and Eighth-Sts.,

—DEALER IN—

Pure Drugs and Medicines,

DYE STUFFS, PERFUMERY,

Toilet Soaps Cosmetics, Hair Oils, Brushes, Combs, Toilet Mirrors and Druggists' Sundries in General.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY!

Wall and Window Paper!

Oiled, Linen and Slat Window Shades, and Shade Fixtures.

All the lattest POEMS and MISSELANIOUS BOOKS constantly on hand or ordered. Blank Books, Pocket Memorandas, Portmonies and Bill Books, WRITING PAPERS. All Styles and prices ALBUMS! ALBUMS! ALBUMS just received for the Holliday trade
Over $300.00 worth of Juvenile and Toy Books, which will be sold at panic prices. Smith's Gold Pens, warranted the best. Also steel Pens, Penholders, Pencils, Ink and Ink Stands &c.

SCHOOL BOOKS!

Covered with best Cover ever invented Free Of Charge

Davenport has the exclusive right to use this book cover in Auburn, and will give his patrons the benefit of the same.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In Amrican & Swiss Watches,

TOYS

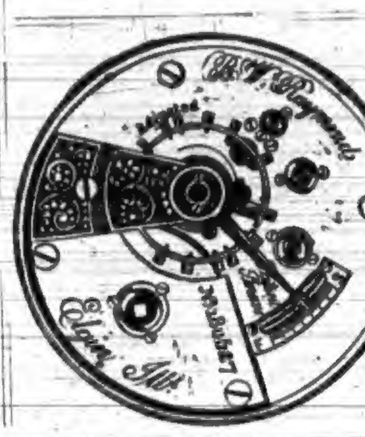
FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,
Jewelry,
Clocks, Silver Ware!
GOLD PENS,
Ladies GOLD Chains,
Gents Chains,
Gold and Silver Rings,
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,



V. A BEARD

Grocer in Auburn, North of Court House on Seventh Street,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS

TEAS, COFFEES, SUGARS, SALT FISH.

Flour and Feed, Tubs Pails, Buckets, Sugars Boxes, Etc. A large variety o

TOBACCOS AND CIGARS,

Confectioneries of all kinds, and Fancy Notions, Cove Oysters, &c. A speciality in Green and Dried Fruits, and Canned Fruits. Goods delivered inside the coporation.

Fruit House Prices.

Granger Headquarters!

NO MIDDLE MEN with us; this is the secret of our immense trade. We buy at first hands and sell direct to the consumer; hence, we save our customers the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale merchants. These profits amount to from 10 to 20 per cent. Our customers get the benefit of them. Take Teas, for instance, the profits on that article are so great that the price is often doubled before it reaches the consumer. Every time it changes hands there is 10 to 20c. per pound added to it. This, of course, the consumer has to pay. Of course the retailer will endeavor to persuade you that his Teas are worth the money, that they cost him so and so. Well, this is all true, but the trouble is he has paid too much in the first place and can't help himself. He purchases from the wholesale grocer, and the wholesale grocer has to add his 20c. All these extra profits our customers get the benefit of, and it is just the same as Coffees, Sugars, Spices, Canned Goods, Oysters, &c., as on Teas. No Middle Men with us. They would starve to death if they had to live on the profits they make of us.

TEAS! TEAS! TEAS!

Twenty to Forty Cents, at least Saved on the Pound.

Young Hyson,	30, 60, 80, $1, 00, best 1 10	Oolong	30, 60; best 90
Gunpowder,	60, 1 00 best 1 10	Uncolored Japan,	50, 60; best 90
Imperial,	60, 90; best 1 10

SUGARS! SUGARS!

There has been a great excitement in the Market in consequence of the talk of duty going on, and Sugars have advanced, but no advance with us. We laid in a three months' supply, anticipating this thing.

Coffee A,	10 c	N. O. Genuine,	9c
Coffee B,	9½c	Good Yellow,	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Coffee is the same as Sugars. The duty talk has influenced a rise. No advance on our stock. Got enough for three months ahead.

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	25 and 27c
Second Best Rio,	23c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	20c	Damsons per can,	20c
Blackberries per can,	12½c	Green Gages per can,	30c
Tomatoes per can,	12½c	Strawberries per can,	25c
Corn per can,	12½c

Wines and Liquors.

For my part I don't approve of any one purchasing them that can do without them, but it is an admitted fact that there is more money used in the United States for Liquors than for Flour, and for the benefit of those who wish to indulge in the luxury, we will guarantee them a saving of at least 50c on the dollar, and for the sick and invalid our wines and old '76 whiskey cannot be beat.

Sherry and Port per gallon,	$1 50 and 2 00
Sherry and Port in bottles,	50c.
California Angelica and Sweet Muscatelle, per gallon,	2 50
New England Rum, per gallon,	1 50; best 2 00
Holland Gin, Old Tom,	1 50 and 2 50

Rye and Bourbon Whiskey, all prices, 90c., 1 25 1 40, 1 75, 2 00 and 2 50 per gallon. The Old '76 we have reduced 50c per gallon; did sell it at 3 00, and this in the face of the 20c per gallon duty going on, but we laid in a large supply before the duty went on.

SYRUPS, SYRUPS.

Best Sugar, Loaf, per gallon,	1 00	Extra Golden per gallon,	50
White Dripps, per gallon,	85	New Orleans per gallon,	70c to 1 00
Silver Dripps per gallon,	95	Cuba Molasses per gallon,	45c

CANDIES! CANDIES!

Best Stick per pound,	18c
French Candy per pound,	20 and 25c
Oysters per can,	18 and 25c
Sugar Cured Hams per pound,	15c
Pickled Pork per pound,	11c
Smoked Sugar Cured Shoulders per pound,	11c

DRIED FRUITS—Prunes. We had the fortune to purchase a lot of ten casks at an Assignee's Sale at a sacrifice of 5c per pound.

This reduction we have made to-day, and now offer the best prunes at 10c per pound, former price was 15c.

Valencia Raisins per pound,	14c
Zantee Currants per pound,	10c
Brazil Nuts per quart,	12½c
Soft-shelled Almonds per quart,	30c
Oranges and Lemons,	25 to 40c per dozen
Roasted Pea Nuts per quart,	8c

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Fish and Neats Foot Oil per gallon,	1 00	Head Light Oil per gallon,	25c
Coal and Rose Oil per gallon,	20c	Machine Oil per gallon,	50 and 80c

FISH, FISH, FISH, FISH,

A Large Assortment of both Salt Water and Lake Fish.

No. 1 White Fish ½ bbl	6 50	No. 1 Mackeral in Kits	1 50
No. 2 do do	5 00	No. 1 Family in Kits	1 25
No. 1 Lake Shad ½ bbl.	8 00	George's Bank Codfish per pound	9 and 7
No. 1 Pickeral ½ bbl		Extra Mess Mackeral " "	9 and 14c
White Fish in kits No. 1	1 25	Herrings each	1c
White Fish family No. 3	1 00

25 Cents on the Dollar Saved at

THE FRUIT HOUSE.

RAILROADS.

Indianapolis Peru & Chicago R.R.

TIME TABLE No. 12—Dec 20, 1874.

Northward.

Stations.	No. 1	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Indianapolis	6 30a	12 25p	2 55p	12 20
Noblesville	7 44	12 23	3 10	1 30
Tipton	8 20	1 13	3 57	2 15
Miami	9 37	1 50	6 38	2 55
Kokomo	9 11	2 26	7 01
Peru	10 0	2 35	7 40

Southward.

Stations.	No. 2	No. 4	No. 6
Indianapolis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Noblesville	4 40	3 12	8 34
Tipton	3 56	2 29	7 44
Kokomo	3 13	1 50	7 02
Miami	2 46	1 16	6 35
Peru	2 10	12 35	6 00

E. C. MURPHY, Supt Mich. Div.
E. M. HAWLEY, Master of Tran.
C. R. ROBINSON, General Sup't,
F. P. WADE, Gen. Ticket Agt.

Lake Shore & Mich. SouthernR.R

Air Line Division

ON and after Sunday, Nov. 15, 1874 Passenger Trains will leave Waterloo city and other stations as follows, daily except Sundays:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom'd'n
Butler	2:40 p m.	x 2:35 a m.	8:00 p m
Waterloo	2:50 "	2:53 "	8:19 "
Sedan	3:05	3:00	8:30 "
Corunna	3:10	3:08	8:35 "

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.15 pm	11:30 pm	6:50 p m
Sedan	2.20	11.35	7:02 "
Waterloo	2:28 "	11:44 "	7:11 "
Butler	2:40 "	x12:01 a m	7:55 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin R. R.

Time Table to take effect Feb. 7, 1875.

Going South.

Fort Wayne	1 50 pm	2 10a.m	5 00pm
Ossian	2 46	2 58	6 17
Bluffton	3 20	3 28	7 00
Keystone	3 49		7 32
Montpelier	3 57	4 03	8 00
Hartford	4 20pm	4 25	8 40
Eaton	4 40	4 41	9 10
Muncie	5 10	5 10	9 55
McCowan's	5 25
New Castle	6 05
Cam. City	6 42
Boesons	7 00
Connersville	7 15
Indianapolis	7 18	7 23
Louisville	12 00	1 10pm
Cincinnati	10 25

Going North.

Cincinnati	7 30am	pm
Louisville		2 30	7 00pm
Indianapolis		7 38	4 22am
Connersville	10 25
Boesons	10 45
Cam City	11 12
New Castle	11 55
McCowans	12 30pm
Muncie	12 55	10 10	6 33am
Eaton	1 23	10 47	7 20
Hartford	1 45	11 11	7 50
Montpelier	2 11	11 40	8 30
Keystone	2 29		8 40
Bluffton	2 50	12 25am	9 25
Ossian	3 20	12 56	10 02
Ft. Wayne	4 15	1 45	11 00

W. W. WORTHINGTON, Supt.
ROBT. RILLIS, Gen'l Ticket Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect May 23d—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations	Mail	Accom.	Jack. Acm
Cincinnati		7 30
Louisville	7 00pm
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10.45	4 35
Auburn	11 40	6 07
Waterloo	11 56	6 37
Summit		7 45
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 5	6 00	6 00 a
Reading	1 7		7 32
Bankers	1 12		7 52
Jonesville	2 50		8 20
Jackson	3 40		10 10
Detroit	6 30p m		2 00p
Grand Rapids	9 30
Lansing	5 47
Saginaw	[illegible]
Bay City	9 55

Going South.

Bay City	6 40 a m		2 45p
Saginaw	7 30		3 38
Lansing	10 40		9 55
Grand Rapids	4 30		12 00
Detroit	9 50		7 40
Jackson Dep	12 40		9 30
Jonesville	1 55		10 30
Bankers	2 12		10 47
Reading	2 26		11 00
Ar. Angola	3 25	6 15	11 55
Pleasant Lake		6 26
Waterloo	4 05	7 55	12 33a
Auburn	4 20	9 35	12 40
Auburn Junction		6 33
Fort Wayne, Arrive	5 15	11 70	1 40
Indianapolis		10 30	6 50
Louisville			12 45p
Cincinnati			9 40m

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

DETOIT, EEL RIVER & ILLINOIS

Rail Road.

Short Line between Auburn and the East and West.

Trains run on Cleveland time. Through trains will run on the following time, in effect Sunday May 23d, 1875.

Going East.			Going West
No. 3, Express.	No. 1. Mail.	STATIONS	No. 2, Mail.	No. 4, Express
5.40 P M	10 05 AM	lv Logans't ar	6.15 pm	7.30am
5.55 "	11.25	Adamsboro.	7.00	7.10am
6.05 "	11.38	Hoover's	5.46	6.53
6.12 "	11.48	Mexico	5.41	6.42
6.25 "	11.59	Denver.	5.55	6.30
6.32 "	12.30	Chili	5.23	6.19
6.46 "	12.44	Roann	5.13	5.59
6.58 "	12.58 PM	Laketon	4.57	5.39
7.08 "	1.08	N. Manchest'r	4.40	5.25
7.16 "	1.15	Lib. Mills	4.29	5.14
7.29 "	1.25	Collamer	4.19	4.59
7.34 "	1.30	S. Whitley	4.07	4.49
7.44 "	*1.40	Taylor's	4.02	4.31
7.56 "	1.52	Columbia city	3.50	4.15
8.11 "	*2.06	Collin's	3.38	3.55
8.21 "	2.16	Churubusco	3.18	3.42
8.31 "	*2.25	Potter's	3.06	3.27
8.39 "	2.32	G. R. Crossing	2.50	3.15
8.46 "	2.39	Cedar Creek	2.39	3.03
8.57 "	2.50	Aub. Juncti'n	2.26	2.43
9.05 "	2.56	Auburn	2.20	2.35
9.22 "	3.15	Mooresville	2.02	2 .14
9.35 "	3.25PM	ar. Butler lv.	1.50 P M	2.00 a m

CONNECTIONS—At Logansport with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St Louis, Logansport, Crawfordsville & Southwestern and Toledo, Wabash & Western R. R's. At Denver with Indianapolis, Peru & Chicago Railway, for Rochester, Plymouth, LaPorte, Michigan City, Peru, Kokomo and Indianapolis At N Manchester with Cincinnati, Wabash & Mich R'y. At Columbia City with Pittsburg, Ft. W. & Chicago, for Ft Wayne Lima, Crestline and Pittsburg. At Grand Rapids crossing with Grand Rapids R'y. At Auburn Junction with Ft. Wayne Jackson & Saginaw, for Angola, Jackson and Saginaw R'y, for Butler with Lake Shore & Mich. Southern Caw, Toledo, Detroit and all eastern cities.
J. A. HUGHSTON, Gen. Ticket Agt.
A. B. SCUTRARD, Gen. Supt.

Final Settlement.

NOTICE is hereby given that John A. Campbell Administrator of the estate of John S. Campbell, deceased, has filed his final settlement report in my office, which will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

April 22, '75 Rose & Hartman, Attys for pes

RAILROADS.

Pittsburgh, Ft Wayne & Chicago R.R

ON and after May 23d, 1875, trains will run as follows, Sundays excepted.

Going West.

STATIONS	FAST EX.	MAIL.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Pittsburg	2,00 A M		6,00 A M	2,00 PM.
Rochester	3 00 "	"	9,12 "	3,13 "
Alliance	5,25 "	"	12,30 P M	5.54 "
Orrville	7,10 "	A. M	2,23 "	7,21 "
Mansfield	9,07 "	"	4,40 "	9,24 "
Crest- ar	9.40 "	4,55 "	5,15 "	9,55 "
line...lv	10,00 "	5,30 "	5,35 "	10,10 "
Forest	11,15 "	8,10 "	7,27 "	11,54 "
Lima	12,20 P M	11,20 "	8.45 "	12,27 A.
Ft Wayne	2.40 "	2,35 P. M	11,35 A M	2,25 "
Plymouth	4,40 "	6,20	2,35 "	5,25 "
[illegible]	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]

Going East.

STATIONS	MAIL.	FAST EX.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Chicago	5.15 a m	9,20 A. M.	5.35 A. M.	9,20 P. M
Plymouth	9.20 "	12,15 P. M.	9.05 "	12,50 A. M
Ft Wayne	12.50 PM	2,45 "	11,45 "	3,10 "
Lima	2.40 "	4,26 "	1,55 A. M.	6,15 "
Forest	3,46 "	5,24 "	3,01 "	7,36 "
Crest- ar	5,35 "	6,55 "	4.40 "	9.20 "
line lv	A M	7.15 "	4.50 "	9 40 "
Mansfield	"	7.43 "	5,20 "	10,50 "
Orrville	"	9.37 "	7.10 "	12.47 PM
Alliance		11,10 "	9.00 "	3,05
Rochester	P M	1.07	11,12 "	5.40
Pittsburg	"	3 10 a m	12,15 A.M.	6,55

F. R. MYERS,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent

BALTIMORE & OHIO R. R

FROM 135 TO 6 MILES

The hortest route from the West to

Washington, Baltimore

AND THE EAST.

ONDENSED TIME TABLE, THRO' TRAINS.

VIA PARKERSBURG, Dec. 13, '74	Express	Fast Express,	St Loui Ex.
Lve. Cincinnati	9 00 a m	4 30 p m	11 00pm
Arr. Chillico'h	12 55 n'n	7 40	3 00 am
" Portsmouth	5 35 p m		11 10
" Marietta	5 56	12 06 n't	7 22
" Parkersburg	6 25	11 30	5 50
Arr. Grafton	9 40	3 40 a m	11 10
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	7 40	3 30
" Martinsburg	4 55	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	6 51
" Staunton		5 15 p m
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 30
" Richmond		10 30p m	4 50 am
" Baltimore	9 05 a m	1 50 a m	10 20pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50 p m	2 35 am
" New York	5 10	10 22	6 15
" Boston.	5 30 a m		4 50 pm

VIA BELLAIRE—Dec 13, 1874	Express	Fast Express.	Fast Line
Lve. Cincinnati (via Dayton & L.)	6 30 a m		3 50 p m
" Cincinnati (via P. C. & St. L.)	11 00		7 10 p m
" Columbus	11 55	4 00p m	12 20†
Arr. Newark	1 00 p m	5 25	1 45 a m
" Zanesville	2 10	6 05	2 57
" Bellaire	5 20	10 55	6 50
" Wheeling	6 45 p m	12 50 ngt	8 00
" Grafton	9 35	3 35 a m	11 05
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	7 40	3 30 pm
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 16
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	9 51
" Washington	7 36	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30 p m	4 50 a m
" Baltimore	9 05	1.50†	10 20†pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50	2 35 a m
" New York	5 10	10 22†	6 15
" Boston	4 50 a m		4 50 p m

B—Breakfast. D—Dinner. S—Supper. †Daily ‡Daily ex. Sunday. §Daily ex. Monday.

PULMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS

from Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Columbus, to

WASHINGTON AND BALTIMORE!

—AND—

PHILADELPHIA

WITHOUT CHANGE.

Through Tickets, and further information can be had at all principal Ticket Offices throughout West and South West.

THOS. P. BARRY, West. pass agt., Cin.
L. M. COLE, Gen'l ticket agt., Bal. Md.
THOS. R. SHARP, Mas. of Tran.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN,

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

Has the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended to. Go and see his largestock of G

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give us a call and ascertain our prices.

"WHAT WOMAN SHOULD KNOW."

A Woman's Book about Women, by a Woman.
(MRS. E. B. DUFFEY.)

The only work of the kind ever written by a woman, is a necessity in every household, its entirely novelty and eminent practicalness creates an immense demand. Notwithstanding the delicate subjects necessarily treated, it is written in such a brave pure style as will not offend the most fastidious. Lady agents never have had such an opportunity to make money and do good.— Terms and sample sheets mailed free on immediate application. J. S. GOODMAN, 93 Washington Street Chicago, Ill.

Recorders Ofy

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JUNE 10th, 1875. Number 23.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,........$2. | Six Months,.......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
One Column.......	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.

J. W. RICKEL. R. DEXTR TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advance Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Mo day in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store. Cool's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Miller and Casebeer's Store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON will attend to all calls in the time of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical disease. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing al the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel.—My medicines are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of direases without producing any bad effect, upon the nervous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of quinine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on fifth street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.

C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 34 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago. O SANDS, Prop'r.

$2.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenalaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.

J. H. FORD, Pres't.

J. A. COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire Line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,

CHAIRS

Husk & Hair Matrasses

50 and 52 East Main Street,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experience corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. U. Tarney

AUBURN MEAT MARKET!

KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Main-st first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store.

BRICK FOR SALE

FRITZ GROESCOP.

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick, about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable figures. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Kutzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some of the above Tile, which they are selling at a very low figure. We offer

Four Inch Sizes at 50 cts. per Rod,

Six " " " 75 " "

Every person who intend to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office. LANHAM & HOSE,

v3n11 Auburn, Indiana.

J. J. VanAtken,

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying. Office with Rose & Hartman, Auburn, Indiana. Persons requesting work by letter, should give township subsection.

BAKER BROS.

PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!

AND

EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes etc., always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.

BAKER BROS.

AGENT'S GRAND Combination.

100 BOOKS. 11 BIBLES

Photograph Albums,

Engravings, Chromos, Blank Books, Note Paper, &c. All shown in one prospectus. Beats anything out. Agents meet with Grand Success.—Nothing Like it, and it sweeps the field. Agents wanted. Sole Territory given. Send for terms and circulars.

OHIO PUBLISHING CO., Ashland, O.

April 22, '75.

AUBURN

Meat Market.

Main St. Next door to Klotz's.

MICH HOUSTON

PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

MERCHANTS

National Bank!

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Capital and Surplus $112.000

Receives Deposits, Discounts Business Paper, issues Letters of Credit, and Collects at all points at the lowest rates of exchange.

Directors:

S. CARY EVANS, R. C. ROBERTSON,
H. C. HANNA, N. P. STOCKBRIDGE
A. C. DAWSON.

Organized 1865. April 9, '74

NEW

Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep

FLOUR, CORN,

OATS, MILL FEED,

&c. at all times and at the Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs, &c.

WM. LANHAM.

Pencillings and Clippings,

BILLY LITTLE, over Abright's, has the best cigars in the city.

THE Leasure Bros. are doing the boss ice cream business.

DAN AND ELI SHULL have commenced work on their new brick on Main street.

AT the close of the Butler school last week, they all joined in a grand picnic.

THOMMY LEASURE has left Beard's and is now working for Messrs. "Walker & DoLittle."

QUITE a large crowd attended the funeral of Sol. D. Bayless, at Fort Wayne last Sunday.

THE little roosters should be more careful about choosing a "Swiming hole."

WORK on the Jail seems to "go it" kinder slow,—may-be we're not a good judge.

THE fourth comes on Sunday this year, and Saturday will be the day for celebration.

THE Kendallville folks are talking strongly of having a fair ground. Why not.

CALL on Al. Wells, and get your ice cheap and have it brought right to your door.

Now is the time, when gentle inebriations, will be designated, "overcome by the heat," "sun stroke," etc.

THE Catholic Congregation of Avilla will hold a picnic in Fox's grove on Wednesday the 16th, inst.

Now the young blue bottle fly walks up and down the linen duster, and a beautiful smile lights up his roman nose.

BAKER BROS. are rasing their business building and making it two story. So it will go through a general course of repairs.

A NEAT looking frame house has just been completed on the the rear end of the lot known as the Hall property, on South Main street.

DURING the wind storm last week, Mr. Stell's new frame dwelling was badly racked. It was all completed but the inside work.

FOR several days after the heavy rains last week, the nights and mornings have been remarkably cold. "Ager" is on the rampage.

MR. TARNEY has a new arrangement for keeping meat which is simply grand. He can keep it fresh and good for several days during the hotest weather.

SAMMY POMERT, over Cool's grocey store, has employed a first-class Jour, and is now prepared to accommodate all in the tensorial art.

PROF. HODGE, Son-in-law of Mrs. Mott, of this place, has purchased a half interest in the Northern "Indianian," at Warsaw.

MR. MILLER of the Kendallville "Standard," has purchased a half interest in the Angola "Republican." Miller ain't so slow on the local.

JNO. HOULTON, of Troy township, died last week, at the advanced age of 70 years. He was one of the first settlers in the County.

ALL of our exchanges has something to say in regard to the late storm. It destroyed quite a large lot of property every where.

IN a drunken fight at Coruma, last week, one Griffith stabbed Charles De Long. We learn that the latter died from the effect. Griffith has joined the "grasshopper army."

WE warn our country friends against traveling cloth peddlers who are perambulating the country selling cloth. You want to let them alone, severely, if you don't want to get swindled.

Too many people embrace the religion for the reason that they take a companion in wedlock—not from true love of the person, but because of a large dowery.

CAN'T we have a sprinkler this Summer on Main street? If our merchants would pay about $20 a month, some one would take hold of the enterprise and every thing would be much more pleasant and agreeable.

ON the 24th, of June a Picnic Excursion will be given, from Waterloo and Auburn to Jackson Michigan, for the benefit of the Methodist Churches. Fare $1.50 per head. The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.

A CERTAIN Western editor, who was presented with a box of collars in pay for an advertisement, is waiting in daily expectation that some one will present him with a shirt.

A BROWN county editor bought his ink by the jug full, because he could get it cheaper, but his wife went to fill the inkstand one morning and found it was not ink by a jug full;

THE greatest feat in eating ever recorded is told of a man who commenced by bolting a door, after which he threw up a window, and swallowed a whole story.

IT was an Irish Coroner who when asked how he accounted for an extraordinary mortality in Limrick, replied sadly; "I cannot tell. There are people dying this year that never died before."

E. P. MORGAN, a former City Editor of the Fort Wayne "Sentinel," sues the Indianapolis "Sentinel" for libel, claiming $10,000 damages. Suing the press for libel seems fashionable.

THE saddest thing in life is the spectacle afforded by a young person who has burnt all her hair off her forehead with a hot slate pencil, and cannot afford to buy a row of curls.

TAKE life easy and don't always be trying to beat the sun up, says an exchange. You may win for a while, but in the long run you are sure to be beaten, and some morning it will rise when you don't.

"AUGUSTUS, dear," said she, tenderly pushing him from her as the moonlight flooded the bay-window where they were standing, I think you had better try some other hair dye; your mustache tastes like turpentine."

A MAN will carry five hundred dollars in his vest pocket, but a woman needs a morocco portmonnaie as large as a fist, and too heavy to carry in her pocket, to escort a fifty cent scrip, a receipt for making jelly-cake, and two samples of dress goods down town and back, every pleasant afternoon.

IT is rumored that some ardent admirer of Beecher, in our city, has caused a tear of Beecher, to be sent on here, congealed, through a patent freezing method. He is also said to be making arrangements with a jeweler for a small refrigerator, in which the tear shall be placed on ice. He will then wear the whole business as a shirt pin.

NEARLY every town in Northen Indiana duly and appropriately observed Decoration Day,—except Auburn. To hear some people talk one would think that a larger crowd would gather on an occasion of this kind than on the fourth of July. We had better talk less and remember their kindness to us.

> "Can we forget the gifts they gave,
> The lives that yielded at our needs?
> O'er all the land, from wave to wave,
> Still honored be their noble deeds."

TOM. MAYS must quit horse-racing. These things will not be permitted in the editorial fraternity.—"Columbia City Post."

Suspend that decree until we have an opportunity to give Tom. a contest for the championship, as we have the conceit to believe we can scoop "White Stocking" just a leetle. What say you Tom.—Kendallville "Standard."

We're ready, sir, at the tap of the bell, and we'll make you so sick after the first heat that you'll be anxious to hire your horse out by the month to plow corn.

THE prosperity of our town is in the hands of our own citizens, and if we wait for "something to turn up" that will accelerate its growth, it is more than propable that nothing of that kind will occur, and that we will be outstripped by other places with less natural advantages than are ours. In looking over the list of live, growing towns in the country, we find those which are the most prosperous are the ones in which the citizens themselves took the first steps toward the establishing of manufactories, &c., and who did not wait for foreign capitalists to take the lead.

HE threw a piece of thin rope over the limb of a tree in his back yard, yesterday, placed his little daughter on it, and began to swing. The rope broke, and a swift gliding figure shot out of a doorway, and a rolling-pin came a kerwhack on the head of that deluded man while the child's nose was suctionizing mud. In a second afterward the sylpe-like figure, with a right and left swinging motion; with a fierce but satisfied look on its face, walked back into the room again, while "I know'd he'd do it," was wafted to the ears of the man sitting on a tomato can, probing the cavity occasioned by that rolling-pin. Not for Joe, No, oh no.

SEE corrected time tables on this side.

THAT BASE BALL GAME.

Last Saturday, when all but the head reporter had gone to dinner, a large and quite an intelligent looking Dutchman walked into the office and said:

"Vas you mit dot pase pall game by dot Eel River commons Vriday last?"

"Yes, sir, I was there. I was one of the players."

"Ish dot zo. Vhel, I make minzelf a zeat und dalk off dot game a leetle vhile I vas von off dhem roosters minzelf."

Well, go ahead and ask your questions and I'll try to answer them.

"Vehl, at virst I vish to zay, who vas dot brovessional nine?"

They were gentleman living in the city. Doctors, lawyers, &c.

"Vhat, lawyers und ducktors. Vhy I vas 'stonished not zo much vor von year, as vhen you zay dot."

Why so. Don't they look like that sort of chaps to you?

"Not py von jug vull. I can beat dot game minzelf zingle, und I hav a sixteen year old poy—his name vas Hans—vhat could valk avay mit dot whole game too."

Does your boy live in this town? We would like to have him play with us some time.

"Nixy vheden. He sthays by dot Vort Vayne zity, und vorked py dot Galhoun sthreet butcher zhop. He vas no zardine und is a dead zhot off dot pase pall game."

Did you ever play any base ball yourself?

"You pet I did. Look off dot noze.—I vas like dot brovessional rooster vhat blayed py dot zeckond pase. I got zome boots on und gonzequently I vas not knocked out off mine zhoes like dot vellow vas. But goodness gracious the next dime vhen dot pall comes like greased lightnin' I vas got dot noze vhat you zee.

It must have come against your nose pretty solid. Its somewhat flat.

"Yes, it did; und after dot I quit blaying, und vas the head man to shoot off mine bazzoo, like dot vellow vhat sthood beck. He ush made so much noise like me mit his mouth. Und dot brovessional vhat made himzelf py dot dhird pase, vas a huckelperry. He usht but me in mind off mine dog Shinder vhen he vas drying to gopple in dhem big vlys.—Shnider vould alvays vall vlat down, und dot vas the vay mit dot dhird pase man."

What did you think of the "professional fielders?

Oh, dhey vas immense I dhink dot vellow mit dhem gloves on vas pought off. He did't got von shmell. All off dhem blayed purty vhel gonsidering dot poss nine against dhem. Vat name vas dot odher nine?"

They had no regular name. The professionals" called them Scrubs, and then got beat two to one. That's a good joke on the professionals, ain't it?.

"Vhel I should dhink dot vas. Dhem brovessional blayers had petter their heads zoak. und vhen dhey get zo dhey can blay like mine poy Hans it vill do for 'em to dry und beat schrubs."

Your head is level, old man.

"You bet it vas. Vhel, good py. I cum beck agin somedhime."

And the old man went down stairs mumbling over "professional" and grinning with his mouth stretched from ear to ear.

Life Down in Arkansas.

The Story Told by a Party of Immigrants.

On last Monday morning a company consisting of about fifty souls passed through this place en route for the rocky plains of Washington Territory. The outfit of the company consisted of five wagons, drawn by horses which looked as though they had been fed on grashoppers or expectations, for the past Winter.

An attache of the "Democrat" interviewed the head man of the caravan, who appeared to be a well-informed gentleman.

"Where are you from?" we inquired.

"From the devil's land," promptly answered the traveler.

"The devil's land! And pray where is that land. We did not know his Lordship allowed any of his subjects to leave when once he got hold of them," we suggested.

"Ah well, he tried his best to keep me but it was no go, Young man, you see that red scar on my neck, do you?"

"Yes."

"You see these eight bullets in my hat?"

"Yes."

"You see these holes in my coat and in my pants?"

"Yes."

"You see this scar on my hand, and this one on my cheek?"

"Yes."

"I could show plenty more bullet scars on my legs and other portions of my body, but you see enough without going any further. All these scars are the works of the devil's own angels. Some call them Klux-Klux, other outlandish, heathenish name, I tell you what it is, the devil controls those men. and they are his servants. This scar on my neck I received one time when the villains hung me on a tree, and I would be hanging there to-day, with my bones whitening in the sun, if it had not been for that woman over there in that wagon."

"Why did they hang you up?" we ventured to ask.

"Why? Do you ask why? Why, simply because I was an honest man, and not go about horse-stealing and thieveing."

"Do they hang men for that down in that state?" we ask feeling our neck.

"Yes sir. I have seen in one piece of timber six bodies hanging to the trees. Two of my neighbors were called out of houses and shot dead in their own door yards. One of these was a minister, and as good a man as ever trod the earth. He was one of the best friends I ever had," and the man brushed a tear with his coat sleeve from his eye, and continued: "He converted me and mine; twice saved my life. Oh, yes, the devil has possession of that country, sure."

"The newspapers say that your officers are a set of rascals: is it so?" we inquired.

"Yes sir; it is my candid opinion that the greater portion of the develment is put up by this class of men. Time and time again has my house been ransacked top to bottom by the officials, who gave as an excuse that they were hunting for evidence."

"Did these officials ever confisticate anything?"

"They did; but after a few visits they had taken everything that was of value and they abused my family and used insulting language to the women."

"They never committed any burning of crops, did they?"

They never did but once, and that was the first time they came. They then destroyed everything we had. You see the result in the looks of those cattle; do they look as though they had an overabundance of food?"

"No," we replied; "they look more like walking bones than anything else."

"Yes I know it, but cannot help it. As soon as warm weather came I began to pack up and am now going to where I shall never hear of Arkansas again. I am going to Washington Territory."

"Do you think that is a better country than Arkansas?" we asked.

"It cannot be worse, and there I think my children can live without being outraged by every villain that comes along; especially where they are so thick as they are in Arkansas."

"What! you do not mean to say that the women and children are molested, do you?"

"I am sorry to say so, but it is so. I know of families who have been turned out of their homes by a pack of thieves who heppened to want to stop in the house over night. As a rule, they would turn out all the men and women they did not want, telling them that the stable was good enough for them."

"But you don't mean to say that they have no respect for women. do you?"

"Yes sir. You see that young girl over in that wagon? Well, she is hardly 16, and nine times have the villains came to my house and taken her away to their night quarters. At first I tried to stop them, but as the result I got four bullets shot into my body."

"Could you not get any justice done for such outrages?"

"No. If I complained they merely laughed and threatened to shoot me. I have been shot at and they tried to murder me about thirty times; but I managed to escape with only some severe wounds. But I must be going, for we have a long journey across the plains, and have no time to waste. I am endeavering to drown the past, and begin anew the paths of life. Good day, sir;" —"Osceola Democrat."

The Indianapolis "Journal," the big organ of the republican party of Indiana says: "There exists not a shadow of doubt that Gen. Grant does desire a third term. Those who surround him are mostly courtiers, and as he comes very little in contact with the people, he knows but very little of their real feelings on this subject. Having been elected twice by large majorities, he probably thinks it not only possible, but easy, to be elected a third time; and, so long as he entertains the feeling, and is encouraged by the courtiers who are near him, he is not at all likely to make a public renunciation in difference to a sentiment whose strength he entirely underrates, and which in all probabilities, is studiously misrepresented by those who have his ear."

WHEN you want a good paper, take the COURIER.

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

RECENT conflagrations: Taylor's Block, at Worcester, Mass., loss $263,000, insurance $125,000; at St. Johns, N. B., St. Luke's Church and sixty-eight houses and shops, with a loss of $250,000, and 140 families rendered homeless; the Riverside Nail and Plate Mill, at Wheeling, W. Va., involving a loss of $75,000.... A monster expedition is organizing in Philadelphia for the Black Hills. It is said that 10,000 men are enrolled.

H. G. CAMERON, of the University crew of Trinity College, was drowned near Hartford, Conn., last week, while practicing in a shell, in company with S. D. Hooker, the Captain of the crew, and H. M. Sherman, also of the crew. The shell was capsized by the wash of a steamer.... An attempt was made last week to rob the National Mohawk Bank, at Great Barrington, Mass. Several masked burglars entered the home of F. N. Deland, the Cashier, and having gagged and handcuffed him, compelled him to go with them to the bank, where they tried to get him to open the vault. Being unsuccessful, they took revenge by robbing Deland's house of all its valuables, and then decamped.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., was recently visited by the most destructive fire it ever had, which destroyed nearly forty buildings, including a number of business blocks, and causing a total loss of at least $500,000. A high wind prevailed, and at one time the whole business section of the city was seriously threatened but the fire department, with assistance from Chicopee, Holyoke, Westfield and Hartford, succeeded in getting the flames under control.

EXTENSIVE forest fires have been raging during the week in Delaware and Sullivan counties, N. J., and doing an immense amount of damage. Near Manayunk Valley a lumber mill and 300,000 feet of lumber were destroyed. One or two lives have been lost, and several men badly burned in fighting the flames.... Under the instructions of the Judge, the jury in the suit of Mr. Herber, on trial in New York, to recover $10,000 from Gen. Butler, said to be due for legal services, gave a verdict for the General.

THE Masonic fraternity had a grand day in New York on the inauguration of the Masonic Temple recently completed in that city. Thousands of Knights Templar and other Masonic bodies moved through the principal streets in imposing numbers and appearance.... The Beecher trial has passed its one hundredth day.

THE WEST.

DR. J. H. ECCLESTON, of Philadelphia, has been elected Episcopal Bishop of Iowa.... The Indians in the Southwest are again reported to be on the war-path. Settlers in Kansas are fleeing from their homes.

THE Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has vacated the Exposition building at Chicago, which it had been using for depot purposes for some time past, and established a temporary depot in a postal-car, located on a side-track laid by stealth upon city property. It is evidently the purpose of the company to obtain depot grounds by hook or by crook, and the city will probably have a good deal of trouble on account of it.... Three brothers named Thomas, Elisha and Hood Cravens, living near Liberty, Mo., quarreled over a division of land recently, when Elisha drew a revolver and fired, instantly killing Thomas, and slightly wounding Hood.

A KANSAS CITY special says that Durkee and Cout, extensive farmers, near North Scott, Kan., have recently examined by dissection a large number of grasshoppers, and found that three-fourths of them contained well-developed live maggots, which, they are confident, will soon exterminate the pests in this country. In further proof of the existence of this maggot, they say a large pile of grasshoppers which they have killed were almost immediately alive with maggots.

A DESTRUCTIVE wind and rain storm passed over portions of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, last week, doing great damage. Many buildings were blown down, and railroad bridges and culverts washed away. The roof of a school house at Lafayette, Ind., was torn off, and several school children were seriously hurt. At Fortville, Ind., a railroad bridge was washed away and a train ditched, killing the engineer and fireman, and fatally injuring a brakeman.

THE investiture of Bishop Henni with the full dignities of a Roman Catholic Archbishop, and the conferring of the pallium by the Pope's special envoy, was celebrated with impressive ceremonies and solemnities at Milwaukee on Thursday last, and was an event of uncommon interest to the Catholics of the Northwest.... The grasshoppers have invaded the Black Hills country in great numbers.... Lieut.-Gen. P. H. Sheridan was married last week in Chicago to Miss Irene Rucker, daughter of Bvt. Maj.-Gen. L. H. Rucker, of Sheridan's staff.

THE SOUTH.

THE prospects for the cotton crop are good.

J. HALE SYPHER, ex-member of Congress, and A. J. Sypher, planters of St. Mary Parish, La., have gone into bankruptcy. Their partnership liabilities are over $140,000, and their assets less than $25,000.

LARKINS SELSOR, a government detective, was recently killed in West Virginia, it is supposed by counterfeiters, in order to dispose of his testimony, which was very damaging to some criminals now in custody at Washington. James Colonel and Jesse Johnson, members of the Creek Indian police, were attacked and dangerously wounded a few days ago by the desperadoes who sheltered McCartney, the noted counterfeiter.... Reports of great destitution come from the mountain counties in Kentucky. A letter from the Master of the Grange in Britt county says the people are suffering for the very necessaries of life, and that if aid is not given many will die of starvation. The crops have failed for three seasons in succession. Cattle are dying, and there is no food to give them.

DEPUTY COLLECTOR HOLMAN LEATHERWOOD was shot and instantly killed last week by an illicit distiller, at Huntsville, Ala.... Hilton & Foster's lumber mill, and two schooners, were burned at Savannah, Ga., last week, with a loss of $100,000.

WASHINGTON

THE Commissioner of the General Land Office has so modified his previous instructions regarding the act passed by Congress for the benefit of grasshopper sufferers, as to hold that the benefits extended by the law to pre-emptors who, by reason of the ravages of the grasshoppers are compelled to leave and be absent from their lands, may also be extended to pre-emptors whose crops have in like manner been destroyed, but who have nevertheless corresponding claims.... It is stated that the appropriation for the pay of the army for the current fiscal year is inadequate, and in consequence officers and soldiers will receive only fifteen days' pay at the end of June, instead of for a full month. The deficiency will have to be made up by the next Congress.... Instructions have been sent by Attorney-General Pierrepont to the various District Attorneys directing them to commence prosecutions against all the members of the whisky ring. The government is experiencing some difficulty in hiring additional counsel, owing to the fact that the counsel already designated have shown an unwillingness to accept the compensation fixed by the government.

A SUMMARY statement of the receipts from the various sources of internal revenue for the first eight months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1875, exhibits an increase over the receipts for the same period of the previous year of over $10,000,000. The tax on liquors of all kinds yielded nearly $42,000,000; that on tobacco, $26,000,000. The tax upon the circulation and business of the banks give about $3,000,000, and all other sources less than $5,000,000.... Special Agent Hale, who was deputed by the Treasury Department to make an examination of the workings of the system of customs-revenue collection at interior ports of entry and delivery, has submitted his report, and is of the opinion that some of the one-horse Custom-Houses of the West can be abolished.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL PIERREPONT has issued a circular saying that he finds the appropriation for the office nearly exhausted, and commanding general economy and retrenchment.... A general order issued from the War Department announces that the appropriation made by the last Congress for the pay, etc., of the army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1875, is $900,000 short of the sum estimated for the War Department, and present indications are that the appropriations will prove deficient.

THE following 5-20 coupon bonds, known as "the fourth series," under the act of Feb. 25, 1862, dated May, 1, 1862, have been called for by the Secretary of the Treasury, and made payable on and after Sept. 1, the interest on which will cease after that date: Fifty dollars—Nos. 20,301 to 21,000, both inclusive; $100—Nos. 50,601 to 59,100, both inclusive; $500—Nos. 27,501 to 31,900, both inclusive; $1,000—Nos. 80,651 to 91,500, both inclusive. Total, $10,000,000.... Mr. Pierrepont has hit upon an expedient, which, he thinks, will increase the efficiency of the Department of Justice. He has divided it up into a dozen bureaus, and intends to hold the head of each responsible for the faithful execution of the duties intrusted to him.... The internal revenue receipts for the current fiscal year promise to exceed the estimates by about nine millions of dollars.

It is estimated that there is a deficiency in the appropriation for paying the army, and that both officers and men will receive only one-half or two-thirds of their pay for the month of June, and may even have to wait for that until a deficiency bill is passed by Congress.

THE mission of the Sioux chiefs to Washington has practically failed. Not only do they refuse to cede their right to the Black Hills, but they have refused to surrender their right to hunt on the Republican river.

GENERAL.

DECORATION Day was generally observed throughout the Northwest on the 29th ult., and the flower-strewers honored alike the last resting places of the fallen heroes who wore the blue and the gray. Eloquent orators were on hand in profusion, and the bird of freedom fluttered, and the English language suffered.

IN the "shyster" libel suit of Bush vs. the proprietor of the Chicago Times, the jury brought in a verdict for the defendant. The plaintiff asked for $50,000 damages, but didn't get a cent.... Recent deaths: At Munich, Bavaria, Johann Klein, the eminent painter; at St. Louis, of consumption, Col. James McCoy, of Gen. Sherman's staff.

The railroad war at the East has assumed a decidedly important aspect. The Pennsylvania Company refuses to allow any of the postal cars of the Baltimore and Ohio road to pass over its line from Philadelphia to New York. This, of course, prevents the Baltimore and Ohio from fulfilling its contract for carrying the mails between those points.

THE national debt has been reduced $12,968,265 during the past eleven months. The following is the statement for May:

Six per cent bonds	$1,131,516,500
Five per cent bonds	590,632,750
Total coin bonds		$1,722,149,250
Lawful money debt	$ 14,678,000
Matured debt	7,370,150
Legal tenders	377,135,722
Certificates of deposit	58,345,000
Fractional currency	43,615,773
Coin certificates	19,910,600
Total without interest	496,007,095
Total debt		$2,240,210,155
Total interest		33,564,530
Cash in Treasury:
Coin	$84,251,602
Currency	4,358,107
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of deposit	55,345,000
Debt less cash in the Treasury		$2,130,119,975
Decrease of debt during May		$ 1,189,456
Bonds issued to the Pacific Railway Companies, interest payable in lawful money: Principal outstanding		$64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid		1,615,587
Interest paid by the United States		20,264,102
Interest repaid by transportation of mails, etc		6,116,596
Balance of interest paid by United States		20,147,505

THE eighth annual convention of the National Temperance Association was held in Chicago last week, and was a largely-attended and interesting session. Vice President Wilson, temporarily stopping in the city, addressed the convention on the opening day.

THE grand jury at Philadelphia have returned forty-nine true bills of indictment against the parties arrested last week for issuing fraudulent coupons purporting to be attached to the bonds of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad.

THERE is a mystery in the Treasury Department at Washington. A package of $47,000 addressed to the Park Bank, New York, has been spirited away in the Treasurer's office, and nobody knows what became of it.

POLITICAL.

THE President has availed himself of the opportunity presented by the resolutions adopted by the Pennsylvania Republican Convention to definitely announce his views on the third-term question. In a letter addressed to Gen. Harry White, President of the Pennsylvania Convention, Gen. Grant states that he was not willingly a candidate either for a first or for a second term. The reason given for not sooner answering the assertions regarding his third-term candidacy is, that heretofore the question has never been presented in such a form that he could, without seeming undignified, notice it. Now, however, the reason no longer exists, and he accepts the earliest occasion for a reply. In closing his letter he says: "I am not, nor have I ever been, a candidate for a renomination. I would not accept a nomination if it were tendered, unless it should come under such circumstances as to make it an imperative duty—circumstances not likely to arise.".... Col. J. H. Britton, Democrat, has been inaugurated Mayor of St. Louis. It is not known whether Mr. Overstolz, independent, will continue the contest for the office or not.

THE Ohio Republican State Convention met at Columbus on the 2d inst., and nominated the following State ticket: Governor, Rutherford B. Hayes, of Sandusky; Lieutenant-Governor, Thomas L. Young, of Hamilton; Supreme Judge, George W. McIlwaine; Auditor, James Williams, of Franklin; Attorney-General, John Little, of Green; Treasurer, J. Minor Milliken, of Butler; member Board of Public Works, Peter Thatcher, of Cuyahoga. The resolutions adopted declare against a third term; in favor of a revenue tariff with incidental protection; that the finance policy should be to equalize the purchasing capacity of the coin and paper dollar; that the public domain shall be reserved for occupancy by actual settlers; free education, and no division of the school fund. The remainder of the platform refers mostly to local questions. The convention was unusually harmonious, and Hayes' nomination was made unanimous on motion of Charles P. Taft, son of Judge Taft, who was the only other formidable candidate for Governor.

THE New Hampshire Legislature met at Concord on the 2d amid the greatest excitement. In the Senate twelve Senators qualified, and a formal protest against the right of Senators Priest and Proctor to seats was presented by Senator Whitney and ordered on file. A ballot for President resulted in the election of John W. Sanborn, of Wakefield, the Republicans not voting. Five Republican Senators withdrew from the chamber, and other officers were chosen. The seceding Senators met in another room and organized temporarily, by electing G. H. Stowell, President, and Tyler Westgate, Clerk. Charles P. Sanborn (Rep.) was elected Speaker of the House, receiving 190 votes, against 179 for Albert R. Hatch, Democrat. A message from the Senate was received, announcing that they had organized. The protest of the five Republican Senators was also received, stating that they had taken the oath, but refused to act with the body so long as Messrs. Priest and Proctor, of Districts Nos. 2 and 4, were allowed seats in the body. The protest was placed on file. A resolution was introduced directing the Speaker to obtain the opinion of the Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the action of the Governor and Council in the matter of Senators Priest and Proctor.

FOREIGN.

THE second attempt of Capt. Paul Boyton to cross the English channel with his life-preserver was entirely successful. He accomplished the feat in twenty-three hours and thirty-eight minutes. The distance where he crossed is between twenty and thirty miles.... A battle between the Carlists and government troops is reported at Alsoса, wherein the Carlists lost seventy killed and 200 wounded. Gen. Dorregaray is reported wounded.... Gen. De Cissey, the French Minister of War, asks for a credit of 51,000,000 francs, to continue the work on the fortifications of the country, and for the supply of war material.

THE failure of an extensive firm in the iron business is reported in England, involving many other houses and several millions. It is that of the Aberdare Iron Company, with liabilities of £750,000.... The privilege question has been so modified in the British Parliament that hereafter strangers will not have to withdraw unless they are disorderly.

A DISPATCH from London states that the specie ($300,000) on board of the wrecked steamship Schiller remains undiscovered. Mutilated bodies of the victims of the disaster continue to come ashore.... The condition of affairs between the British government and Burmah is critical and warlike.... Sixty persons were drowned recently by the capsizing of a lighter near Lisbon, Portugal.... Forty persons have been arrested at Brussels, Belgium, for interfering with a religious procession.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

The situation in financial circles is without quotable change. The supply of loanable funds is quite large and the demands light, interest rates ruling easy but unchanged at 7@11 per cent., according to the security offered. Government bonds firm and in demand, as follows:

	Buying.	Selling.
U. S. 6's of '81	124⅛	124½
U. S. 5-20's of '62 (ex. int.)	116⅛	117
U. S. 5-20's of '64 (ex. int.)	117⅛	118
U. S. 5-20's of '65 (ex. int.)	120⅛	120½
U. S. 5-20's of '65 January and July	122⅛	122½
U. S. 5-20's of '67 January and July	124	124⅜
U. S. 5-20's of '68 January and July	123⅛	123⅞
U. S. 10-40's	117⅛	118
U. S. new 5's of '81 (ex. int.)	116⅛	116⅜
U. S. currency 6's	124⅛	124⅜
Gold (full weight)	115⅛	116⅛
Gold coupons	115⅛	116⅛
Gold exchange	115⅛	116⅛

BREADSTUFFS.

There was considerable excitement and interest shown in the grain markets during the past week, and at times a decidedly panicky feeling prevailed, with a general rapid and severe decline in values all round. The speculative element lacked confidence in the trade, and the pressure to sell was urgent and imperative. The markets on Monday showed considerable weakness, but it was not until after the close of 'Change that the decided downward movement set in. The failure of a large and prominent "long" firm who were operating heavily was one of the principal reasons of the break, and up to Wednesday night all the markets were rapidly declining. The stocks in store are heavy all round; there was no encouragement in the tone of European or New York advices; on the other hand these markets were considerably lower. The weather was all that could be desired for the growing crops and rather warm for the accumulated grain in store. The rapid decline in values was checked on Thursday under a good demand from shorts, who were buying at the decline, but again became firm at the close of the week and ruled easy.

The following table shows the prices current at the opening and close of the past week:

	Opening.		Closing
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash	$ .95	@ .96½	$ .90	@ .90½
No. 2, seller June	.95½	@ .98		@ .90½
No. 2 seller July	.98½	@1.02½		@ .94½
No. 2 corn, cash	.65	@ .66	.61½	@ .61½
No. 2 corn, seller May	.64½	@ .65½		@ .61½
No. 2 corn, seller June	.65	@ .68½		@ .61½
No. 2 corn, seller July	.69	@ .71		@.66½ bid
No. 2 oats, cash	.60	@ .60½		@ .57½
No. 2 oats, seller May	.60	@ .61	.55¼	@ .55½
No. 2 oats, seller June	.60½	@ .61½		@ .57½
No. 2 oats, seller July	.58	@ .58½		@ .55½
No. 2 rye, cash		@1.06		@1.03
No. 2 barley, cash	1.35	@1.36	1.20	@1.25
No. 2 barley, s. Sept.	1.02	@1.05	1.13	@1.16

PROVISIONS.

An unusually active business was transacted in this market, and the fluctuations in values were quite severe. The influences brought to bear upon the market were of an unfavorable tenor and generally calculated to produce weakness. Eastern and foreign advices generally reported weaker markets, and this caused an increased desire to sell for future delivery, and as buyers in view of these quotations were only willing to make moderate purchases the market ruled weak. It was not until considerable of a decline had been established that buyers could be induced to take hold with freedom, and then the movement was quite brisk. The stock of mess pork and lard are fair, while the amount of winter cured meats is rather light. Prices, as compared with the current figures of a week ago, have declined about $1.00@1.25 on mess pork, 1c per lb on lard, and ½@¾c on all descriptions of meats. The market closed steady at $19.75@19.80 per brl for mess pork spot, and $19.75 seller June. Cash lard closed quiet and firm at $14.30; seller June steady at $14.25 @14.30, and seller July closed firm at $14.55.

LIVE STOCK.

The cattle market opened weak and declined about 10@12½c per 100 lbs, under more liberal offerings. Shipping steers quotable at $5.00@6.25 for medium to choice, and $6.35@6.70 for extra; bulk of sales at $5.80@6.20. Stock cattle ruled dull and easy at $3.50@5.00. Through Texans arrived freely, and slow at $3.00@4.50. Hogs dull, weak, and about 50c lower. Poor to choice $6.25@7.60; general market at the close $6.80@7.00. Sheep steady; shorn, $3.50@5.50 for poor to choice; no wooled on sale.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

The movement in the seed market was only fair during the week, but a firm feeling prevailed through and former prices were maintained. The season, during which the principal speculation is reported is transacted, is about over and the transactions that are now being consummated are almost entirely on shipping account. Sales of timothy ranged at $2.25 @2.50 for common to prime. Clover quotable at $6.40@6.50 for prime medium. Flax sold at $1.60@165 for good crushing. Sales of Hungarian ranged at $1.40@1.50 for good to prime, and millet sold at $1.50@1.55. A few light sales of buckwheat were made at $1.15@1.20 for prime. Buyers and sellers of highwines were somewhat apart in their views and the market ruled rather quiet. The market closed dull and nominal at $1.14@1.15.

PRODUCE.

The arrivals during the week were quite liberal, but the demand was of a high local order, and the market ruled rather dull. Receivers, in anticipation of increased arrivals of new grass made, were generally anxious to keep their stocks down, and in so doing they were compelled to accept lower prices. Shippers have reduced their bids on old butter to 9@11c, and some sales were reported at this range. Fresh made sold chiefly at 20@23c for firsts, and the bulk of the receipts could only be classed as such, while it was difficult to obtain over 25c for extras, though an occasional package ranged as high as 26c. Dealers anticipate more liberal receipts and were generally anxious to keep consignments closed out. Quotable at 25@26c for extras, with only occasional sales at outside figure. 20@23c for firsts, 15@20c for seconds, 13@15c for thirds, and 9@11c for inferior and grease. There was a good demand for Eastern medium beans, but the light stock restricted trade and the market ruled quiet but firm. Quotable at $1.90 in lots, and $1.95@2.00 in a small way. Western were dull at $1.00@1.75, according to quality. Broom corn was in good demand and firm at 11½@14c for No. 1 to extra hurl, and 10@11c for good to choice stock braid. Beeswax quiet at 28@30c. Cider was quiet at $5.75@6.00 per brl. for choice sweet. Cranberries slow at $8.00@10.50 for fair to choice in barrels. Cheese was dull, with a good many poor and not fully cured on the market. Old factory sold at 5@10c per lb for common to good, and 12@13c; new ranged at 10@12c for fair to prime. Dried fruits were quiet, but at the same time a firm feeling prevailed and former prices were maintained. New York and Michigan apples quotable at 8½@8¾c; Ohio and Southern about 7½@8c; halves peaches 9@9½c, and blackberries at 9¾c. Dried peas were dull at $2.00@2.10 per bushel for choice green, and $1.75@1.80 for marrowfat. Green apples were in better supply and prices were easier; quotable at $3.25@3.50 in lots, and $3.75@4.00 in a retail way. Hides were in good request and steady at 8c all round; calf 12½@13c, and dry salted 15@15½c; Hay was in fair demand at $18.00@20.00 for No. 2 to prime timothy; $12.00@17.00 for No. 2 to prime prairie, and $11.00@14.00 for slough. Maple sugar sold at 13@15c for pure new. New potatoes were very dull, and at the close there were a good many poor lots offered on the market; quotable at $3.00@4.50 for common to good, and $5.00 for choice. Potatoes were dull; Eastern peachblows quotable at 80@85c in car lots, and Western about 70@75c. Vegetables were quiet at $2.50@3.50 per brl for onions; 45@60c per bu for turnips, and $1.25@1.50 per brl for parsnips. Veal was dull and very weak; sales ranged at 2@8c for poor to choice. Eggs closed at 14½c for lots in carriers, and about 14c in loose packages.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER, AND WOOD.

There was no change noticeable in the market for cooperage. The demand for packing descriptions was very light, the principal inquiry being for flour barrels for which prices were maintained. Quotations ranged at $1.12½ for pork barrels, $1.35 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.00 for whisky barrels, and 45@50c for flour barrels. The arrivals of lumber were moderate and sales were generally made at former prices. The market closed with about all sold. Boards and strips quotable at $9.00@14.00, and joist and scantling $8.50. Shingles $2.25@2.75. There was but little doing in wood, and no change of importance was exhibited in prices. Quotable at $8.50 per cord for hickory, $7.50 for maple, $6.50 for birch, and $6.00 for slabs in the yards.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	11	@	13
HOGS—Dressed	9	@	10
COTTON	15¾	@	16¾
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 70	@	4 95
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 07	@	1 08
No. 1 Spring	1 13	@	1 17
CORN	73	@	81
OATS	68	@	72
RYE	1 08	@	1 10
PORK—New Mess	20 50	@	20 75
LARD	14⅛	@	14½
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	1 18	@	1 20
CORN—No. 2 New	64	@	65
OATS—No. 2	57	@	59
RYE—No. 2	1 06	@	1 08
PORK—Mess	20 50	@	20 75
LARD	14	@	15
HOGS	6 25	@	7 50
CATTLE	4 75	@	6 50
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	99	@	1 00
No. 2	94	@	96
CORN—No. 2	62	@	64
OATS—No. 2	..	@	58
RYE	98	@	1 00
BARLEY—No. 2	1 16	@	1 18
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 23	@	1 25
CORN—New	70	@	72
OATS	66	@	69
RYE	1 18	@	1 20
PORK—Mess	20 25	@	20 50
LARD	14⅛	@	14½
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—Extra	1 23	@	1 24
Amber	1 20	@	1 22
CORN—New	71	@	73
OATS	61	@	63
DETROIT.
WHEAT—Extra	..	@	1 26
Amber	..	@	1 22
CORN	67	@	69
OATS	63	@	66
CLEVELAND.
WHEAT—No. 1 Red	1 22	@	1 24
No. 2 Red	1 17	@	1 19
CORN	71	@	72
OATS	63	@	65

Some High Roosts.

In the South Seas there is a little spot of land called Ysable Isle, divided among several savage tribes that are continually at war with each other. A terrible massacre occurring in a portion of the island named Mahaga, the sufferers adopted as a means of defense against future surprises, the custom of sleeping in houses built in high trees, though living by day in the ordinary bamboo huts. When the Rev. Coleridge Patterson, Bishop of the Melanesian Islands, visited Mahaga, he was very curious to inspect these human nests in the summits of the loftiest palms. They were situated in a swamp, that for greater security was surrounded by a high wall. The lower boughs of the trees selected for habitation had been lopped off, leaving only the highest as a platform for the houses. A plumb line let down from the veranda of one of these houses showed the distance to be ninety-four feet.

THE GRASSHOPPER PLAGUE.

The Danger Much Less Than Has Been Represented—The Crop Prospects in Nebraska Good.

[Washington Telegram to New York Tribune.]

Many gentlemen who have arrived in Washington during the past two or three days from those parts of the West which were last year devastated by grasshoppers, assert that the reports of injury already done to crops or anticipated this spring are greatly exaggerated. Especially is this said to be the fact in regard to Nebraska. Senator Paddock, who is now here, has received letters from all portions of that State, and his information agrees substantially with that brought by a member of one of the relief committees. While in some limited sections of the State the young grasshoppers are now hatching out and destroying the tender grain, the crop prospects in the State at large are excellent. Senator Paddock thinks that, in spite of the grasshoppers, a much larger crop of small grain will be harvested in Nebraska this year than ever before. The sections of the West that are in danger of devastation by grasshoppers are only those which are on the frontier and which do not produce a very large percentage of the grain crop. Civilization seems to be as fatal to these pests as to the Indians, and it has been the almost universal experience in the West that, after the land has been generally brought under cultivation, grasshoppers never come in sufficient numbers to do great damage. The home of the grasshopper is on the plains, and when by long-prevailing westerly winds a swarm of them has been brought into the settled portions of the country, they have rarely penetrated the first year beyond the third or fourth tier of counties from the frontier. In these, which are generally visited the first year in July and August, they have often destroyed nearly the whole crop; but, while they have caused great local suffering, their devastations, being confined to a section in which only a small percentage of the land has been broken up, have not perceptibly reduced the aggregate of the crops of the entire country or affected the price of grain. The grasshoppers which come from the Plains the first year deposit their eggs on the fields they visit, and in the following spring these are hatched out about the time the grass and winter grains start. Before their wings are sufficiently developed to enable them to fly, they eat up every tender green thing which comes within their reach. The corn, spring wheat and later garden vegetables are not likely to be injured by these undeveloped insects. When they become able to fly, they go away, and may penetrate still further into the older settled country; but the life of the second generation is a short one, and they soon die, leaving no eggs to be hatched out the next year.

The sections of country which were most injured by grasshoppers last year were either those which were first visited in 1873, or were attacked by insects which were hatched from eggs deposited in that year; so that, judging from the past experience of the West, there is reason to look for less damage this year than was done last, and while limited areas may be devastated no general destruction need be anticipated.

Plain John.

The first prisoner out had a face that would give an undertaker's fifty rods the start and then beat it in a race of half a mile. A broken heart could be read in every line, and crushed hopes stuck right out of his solemn eyes. He had long, despondent locks, a sorrowful suit of black, and he sighed drearily.

"Your name is John—John what?" asked the court.

"It's John," sighed the prisoner.

"John what?"

"Let it go as John," drawled the solemn man.

"You seem solemn," continued the court; "are you ill?"

"Not that I know of."

"Are you in trouble?"

"Kinder, and kinder not."

"Well, how under the sun a solemn old fowl like you got on a drunk is more than I can imagine. Do you have sprees very often?"

"Sometimes often—sometimes not."

"Have you any money?"

"Not any, except a jack-knife."

"Have you any work?"

"Not any that I know of."

"I think I know what ails you. I think you ought to be blown up with nitro-glycerine about fifteen times to wake you up, and then you ought to be tied behind a locomotive and given a race to Chicago. It looks to me like a case of constitutional laziness. You are like an old paint keg tossed into an alley, or an old hat on the telegraph wire."

"Ho-hum," yawned the prisoner, elevating his arms far above his head.

"I'll ho-hum you for three months, and if they don't make you step high and get around lively I'll miss my guess.—Detroit Press Police Court Report.

Our National Vice.

The average American spits, it is said, just as the average crow caws, unceasingly and viciously, and, although the people aim so boastfully at excelling in brain culture, there seems to be lacking, thus far, the moral and social cultivation necessary to shake off this filthy habit, which is scarcely short of a national vice. In no other country, civilized or barbarous, would notices requesting men "not to spit, out of respect for the ladies," be called for, and to our shame be it said, in no country would this modest, reasonable request be so persistently disregarded. Nor is the nauseating practice confined to common youths asserting manly freedom, but men old enough to have to pay for spoiled dresses are guilty of an equal disregard for others' rights and feelings. Every woman who uses to any extent public conveyances can recall having her clothing soiled—and every man of decent habits who has been sickened by the expectoration he has been unable to escape. The right of a man to spit in a public conveyance or building, at the expense of others' clothing, feelings and comfort, is no greater than his right to perform any other dirty trick.—New York Tribune.

THE INDIANS.

The President Gives the Sioux Chiefs Some Plain Talk—When Civilization Requires it, the Tribes Must Step Down and Out.

The following is the full text of President Grant's big talk to the Sioux chiefs at the council in Washington last week:

I want to say to the Indians to-day something about the object of bringing them here, and a few words for them to think about, but nothing for them to reply to at present. I have always been a friend to the Indians, and am very anxious to do what I think best for their good. The country where they now live, as they must be well aware, is entirely incapable of supporting them, should the government not please to give them aid. By the treaty of 1868, clothing was granted to them for thirty years, and provisions for only five years. The food and provisions, therefore, which have been given to them for the last two years have been a gratuity on the part of Congress, and these may be taken from them at any time without any violation of the treaty. My interest now is to make some arrangement with them by which they and their children will be secure for the future. As I said in the beginning, it must be evident to them if the supplies of food should be withheld by the government, it would be entirely impossible for the Indians to live where they are. Another thing to which I would call attention is this: They must see that the white people outnumber the Indians now about 200 to 1, taking all the Indians within the Territories owned by the United States. This number of whites is increasing so very rapidly that before many years it will be impossible to fix on any point within the limit of our territory where you can prevent their going. It will become necessary that the white people shall go from one place to another, whether occupied by the Indians or not, the same as from one State to another. For this reason it is very desirable that they should be situated where they would be able to get support beyond any contingency. I do not propose to ask them, without their consent, to leave their homes where they were born and raised, but I want to point out to them the advantages to themselves and to their children. If they will accept such arrangement as may be proposed to them, there is territory south of where they now live where the climate is very much better, where the grass is much better, and where game is more abundant—large game, such as buffaloes—where there is good pasturage for animals, and where teachers can be sent among the Indians to instruct them in the arts of civilization, the means of self-preservation and self-support. This year we have had great difficulty in keeping the white people from going to the Black Hills in search of gold, but we have so far prevented them from going. Every year this same difficulty will be encountered until the right of the white people to that country is granted by the Indians, and may, in the end, lead to hostilities between the white people and the Indians, without any special fault on either side. If such trouble should occur, and become general, it would necessarily lead to the withholding, for the time being at least, of the supplies which the government has been sending to them. All this trouble I want to avoid. I want to see them well provided for, in such a way that the arrangement will have to be respected by my successor and other administrations for the future. I want the Indians to think of what I have said. I don't want them to say anything to-day. I want them to talk among themselves, and be prepared to hear from the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who are authorized to speak for me, and will be governed by my advice. This is all I want to say to them.

THE BLACK HILLERS.

Gordon's Emigrant Train Captured by the Military and Burned—Alleged Outrageous Conduct of the Soldiers.

[Sioux City Telegram to Chicago Times.]

Capt. Walker, after releasing Gordon's train, which he recently captured in Nebraska, sent to Gen. Crook's department for assistance in forcing the Gordon party across the river into Indian Territory. Two companies of cavalry and a Gatling gun were furnished from Spotted Tail's agency, and early on the morning of Friday, the 21st inst., surrounded the camp at Gordon City, Neb., and perpetrated the most brutal outrage on peaceable citizens of which we have any record. The soldiers compelled men who were making preparations for breakfast to leave the camp, then helped themselves to everything they could lay their hands on in the camp, including pocketbooks and other valuables which were left in the tents, even the boots, shoes and clothing, which the men were not allowed time to put on. The soldiers sat down and ate the breakfast the men had prepared for themselves, after which they built a fire and piled on it nearly all the provisions and wagons, thirty-nine of the latest pattern Winchester rifles, and other arms belonging to the party. In fact everything was destroyed, except a small amount of baggage and rations, enough to take them into Fort Randall. After this work of destruction and robbery, the military started with the Gordon party for Fort Randall. They compelled the party to walk, many of whom had scarcely clothes enough on to cover their nakedness, and a great many destitute of boots, which the soldiers had appropriated. In this condition, barefooted and hungry, the march was commenced. On Saturday night, one of the party, named A. Collins, managed to elude the vigilance of his captors and escaped. He describes the scene at the time of the capture as being more brutal than anything he had ever heard or read of—even of Indian doings, except that no scalps were taken by the soldiers.

A BILL for the prevention of cruelty to animals while in transit by railroad or other means of conveyance within the Dominion, was introduced and passed final reading in the House at Ottawa. It provides that cattle shall not be confined for more than twenty-eight consecutive hours without being unladen for at least six hours for food, rest and water, and that when cattle are unladen, the railway company having charge of the cars shall cause the same to be cleaned out and to be freshly littered with clean sawdust or sand.

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAYS, PUBLISHER.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

GEN. FRANK P. BLAIR has been so much benefited by the transfusion of healthy blood into his veins that he is now able to ride out, and hopes are entertained by his friends that he may ultimately recover.

The change in the postal laws, effected by the Forty-third Congress for the benefit of the express companies, has seriously diminished the income of the Department upon third-class mail matter, and the Postmaster-General will recommend the repeal of the injurious amendments.

THE costly dinners of the express lobby are yielding their fruit. The returns received at the Postoffice Department show that the modified law as to third-class matter will greatly reduce the income of the Postoffice Department for the current fiscal year. Postmaster-General Jewell will recommend a change in the law.

LIKE all Indians, Red Cloud has an invincible antipathy to white men who lie, and lately, when a reporter of the Chicago Tribune told him of the tunnel under the lake, he indignantly expressed his opinion of any man who could attempt to make him believe that the white man would go two miles for water when he might get whisky by going two rods in any direction from where he stood.

THE Legislature of Michigan, at it recent session, passed an act requiring railroad companies, in case of accidents resulting in the death of any person on their road, to promptly notify the nearest resident Coroner. They are also required to notify the State Railroad Commissioner of all accidents. It is made his duty to examine into all the causes of fatal accidents, and he is empowered, in his discretion, to make similar examinations in cases where no deaths occur.

CALIFORNIA editors are nothing if not personal. This is the way the editor of the Amador Independent pays his devoir to a neighbor: "Now, we will inform the sweet-scented evader of truth and honesty who runs the little nigger nose-rage across the street, that he cannot ram any of his infernal lies down our throat, for we know him too well to believe anything he says, even under oath."

AN Eastern paper having proposed that every one should plant an elm, oak, maple, or some other good tree on the ground where he lives this year, as a centennial offering to those who may come after him and sit in the shade of the same, the Faribault (Minn.) Democrat remarks: "It is all very well to plant trees, but you can't raise any enthusiasm this spring about providing a 'nice shady place for those who may come after us.' For one, we don't want to encourage this coming after us; too many, far too many, come after us now, and if they don't come themselves they send a man. Oh! no, that's no way to encourage tree-planting."

IN Chicago, a few days ago, a man went to the residence of Gen. Sheridan and passed in as a workman. Later the housekeeper of the mansion discovered him in the General's room, sketching, as he said, for the New York Graphic. When he had sketched to his heart's content he went way, and the General, on his return, was informed of the artist's visit and departure. He thought then he heard something drop, and an examination of the room disclosed the fact that the artist had drawn very well. In fact, he had drawn a $1,000 diamond from the hilt of the warrior's sword, the same having been presented to him by friends after the battle of Stone river.

SOME curious correspondence has recently been interchanged between Gen. Sheridan, President Grant, and the Governor of Texas. The United States military authorities have complained that the Texas officials on the Mexican border have caused the arrest, on the charge of murder, of United States soldiers engaged in preventing raids. The President, after reviewing the correspondence, informs the Governor of Texas that a repetition of such acts by the Texas people will result in the withdrawal of the United States troops from Texas. Texans who are in Washington say the withdrawal of the United States troops would give such an impetus to volunteer companies as would certainly lead to a border war.

HON. EDWARDS PIERREPONT, the new Attorney-General of the United States, was born in New Haven, Ct., in 1817, and graduated from Yale College in 1837, in the same class with Mr. Evarts and Chief Justice Waite, taking high honors. In 1846 he went to New York, and in 1857 was elected to fill the vacancy in the Superior Court created by the death of Chief Justice Oakley. When the war broke out he arrayed himself on the side of Mr. Lincoln, nominally as a War Democrat; was a member of the Union Defense Committee of New York; a member, in 1862, of the commission for examining into the cases of prisoners of State, and one of the counsel for the government in the Surratt trial. Shortly after the nomination of Mr. Seymour he declared for Grant, and on the election of the latter was made District Attorney, holding that office somewhat over a year. In 1873 he was offered, and declined, the Russian mission.

THEY made short work of a quarrel between two families in Liberty county, Texas, the other day. The families were neighbors and one of them having visited the other a dispute arose. During the discussion a man got severely cut in the arm and the man's son got a ball through the heart and died on the spot. This terminated the visit. The sheriff arrested three members of the family who did the shooting and the cutting and put them under guard in a room in a hotel. That night, while the guard slumbered and slept, a band of masked men entered the room and shot to death all three prisoners. The wife of one of them was in the room at the time of the shooting but does not know the murderers. It was quicker than going to law about it, and much less expensive. There are not enough grown members of that family left to carry on a vendetta at present, and there will be peace between them for a few years.

THE Washington Star says the Postmaster General has issued a circular prescribing the rates of postage under the general postal union concluded at Berne, Switzerland, Oct. 9, 1874, between the United States and all of the powers of Europe, excepting France. The uniform union rates of postage to be levied and collected in the United States on correspondence to and from the whole extent of the postal union, without distinction, shall be as follows: For prepaid letters, 5 cents per 15 grammes; for unpaid letters, 10 cents per 15 grammes; for postal cards, 2 cents each; for newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 2 cents each; for other printed matter, samples of merchandise, and all articles other than newspapers enumerated in article 4 of the treaty, 2 cents per cash weight of 2 ounces or fraction thereof. These rates will be levied and collected on and after July 1, 1875, on the correspondence to and from all the contracting States except France, and on and after Jan. 1, 1876, on the correspondence to and from France.

PROF. AUGHEY, of the Mississippi State University, a learned and scientific gentleman, who has given the grasshopper question considerable attention, gives it as his opinion that the pests run out in a few generations, after they leave their native sandy and gravelly plains. He states that he has for several years made experiments which fully verify this opinion. He found the grasshoppers of the first year's coming much larger and stronger, and more agile, than those of the subsequent year, and consequently of more destructive capabilities. The Professor says that, in some places, the eggs laid in 1864 did not hatch at all. The changes from cold to hot weather, or some other unknown causes, seems to sap their constitutional vigor; and were it not for this, long ere now these grasshoppers would, from their enormous numbers, have desolated the whole country as far east as the Atlantic. Prof. Aughey also says that, as early as 1865, he noticed that enormous numbers of grasshoppers over large areas in Northern Nebraska took flight early in June, in a southerly or southeasterly direction; but he could not learn, by inquiries made in many ways, where the bulk of them went to. He asks if it is not possible that they rose high enough to get into the trade-winds, which wafted them into the ocean.

Killed by a Boar.

The Springfield Republican has the following: The quiet farming community of Ludlow, where so few unwonted events have marked the progress of a century, was saddened Saturday by the sudden, shocking death of one of her best citizens, Samuel White, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and for nine years a town father, being bitten by a boar so that he bled to death within a very few minutes. Mr. White went out about six o'clock in the morning to feed the animal, and was attacked so suddenly that he could give no warning, but was able to crawl out of the pen, where he was discovered by one of his men when he was unable to speak. He was seized on the inner and upper part of the thigh, the brute's tushes tearing a hole in the flesh two inches long and severing the femoral artery. The men of the farm had complained of the ugly temper of the beast, but Mr. White, a man of marked resolute character, had thorough belief in his ability to manage him—indeed, had been laughing, only the previous day, at his "help" for their timidity. Mr. White was no doubt taken entirely off his guard, these creatures being very quick and crafty of attack.

A PHOTOGRAPH has been forwarded to England which has aroused the astonishment of their distinguished men. It is taken of a branch of pears grown from a tree on the ranch of Mr. Kercheval, near Sacramento, Cal. The branch was 4 feet 6 inches long, carried 265 pears (most of which were about 5 inches in length), the whole weighing about 110 pounds.

INDIANA NEWS.

IT is said that the dreaded grasshopper has appeared in Morgan county, and that there are millions of him.

THE Indianapolis glove factory, which began operations a few weeks since, already gives employment to forty girls.

A GOSHEN girl drove two robbers out of the house at the point of a revolver, which she could not have fired off to save her life.

THE iron business is very dull at Terre Haute. Most of the blast furnaces in the block coal regions are idle, including those at Knightsville. The rolling mills are still at work.

AN honest German, of Harveysburg, Fountain county, when caught in the act of distilling, explained that he was just making a little for his sick wife—just twenty gallons.

THE large steam flouring mill of Hall & Culver, at Rushville, burned on Monday night, together with its contents. Loss estimated at $10,000. Partially insured. Two or three persons were seriously injured by falling from the roof while working to prevent the spread of the flames to adjoining property.

WHILE Mr. James Stephens, of Rockport, was at work on the highway, one day last week, one of his horses became frightened while passing a heap of burning logs, and crowded the other into the fire. In their struggles the horses became entangled in the harness, and were so badly burned that they died in a few days.

GEN. MANSON'S war-horse, Zollicoffer, was killed the other day in White county by jumping on a fence stake. Zollicoffer was with Gen. Manson at Nashville, Corinth, Iuka, Athens, Huntsville, and a number of other places. He crossed the Cumberland mountains four times, went as far south as Atlanta, campaigned through East Tennessee, was wounded twice, and captured once, and returned to the General by Kirby Smith.

THE Fire Department, of Laport, have determined to hold a tournament on the 5th of July. The prizes amount to $1,000 and are as follows: Hose Companies—First prize, $150; second prize, $100; third prize, $50; sweepstakes, $100 and a solid silver trumpet. Hook and Ladder Companies—First prize, $50 and a silk banner; second prize, $25. A general invitation is extended to all. The tournament will be governed by the regular Indiana rules.

RECENT changes in Indiana postal affairs: Offices Established—Butler's Switch, Jennings county, Lemuel T. Williams, Postmaster; Moore's Station, DeKalb county, Henry F. Brown, Postmaster. Postmasters Appointed—Chili, Miami county, Nelson C. Hall; Corydon, Harrison county, Nimrod S. Reynolds; Nash Depot, Vanderburgh county, Christian Magenheimer; Stanford, Monroe county, Wm. A. Meredith; Taylorsville, Bartholomew county, Tilmon Fulp.

AT a ball in Campbell, Warrick county, about nine miles from Evansville, on Saturday night, a hunchback named Walker, alias Pet Monkey, got into a difficulty with some of the dancers, and declared that if any of them approached him he would shoot. A man named Gagel, not hearing the remark, came into the room and walked toward him, when Walker drew a pistol and shot him through the heart. Walker remained in the neighborhood till the next evening, but was not arrested, and Gagel was buried without an inquest.

THE annual State Convention of Short-horn Breeders assembled at Indianapolis last week, and discussed in a satisfactory manner the color and qualifications of a short-horn herd, both physiologically and philosophically considered. The following named officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. A. C. Stevenson; Vice-Presidents, Charles Lowder and W. W. Thrasher; Secretary, Claude Mathews; Treasurer, S. F. Lockridge; Executive Committee. W. W. Thrasher, Thos. Wilhoit and Thos. Hammond.

THE following account of the murder of Miles Slyter by Arthur P. Jones, on Friday evening, is taken from the Kokomo Democrat: "Miles Slyter was the proprietor of a sawmill in Jackson township, near Sycamore Corner, and had in his employ several hands, among whom was Arthur P. Jones. Sometime about the middle of last week, it seems, the hands struck for higher wages, and Slyter had arranged to settle with Jones on Friday. On Friday evening, between the hours of 6 and 7 o'clock, Jones went to the mill to have his account adjusted. No one but Mr. Slyter was present at the time, and he was engaged in shoveling ashes out of the ash-pit. It seems they could not agree upon the amount due Jones, and some loud words passed between them, which terminated by Jones hitting Slyter over the head with a piece of poplar edging board, three feet long, and two and a half inches wide and one inch thick, two blows. The first blow was across the back part of the head, which proved fatal, and the second across the forehead. At this juncture Mrs. Slyter, who witnessed the whole transaction from the door of her house, which is very near the mill, ran up and begged Jones to spare her husband. She then helped her husband to the house, dressed his wounds as best she could, and sent for a physician. In a few minutes he became delirious, and never spoke again. Jones was subsequently arrested and put under bond of $8,000.

Indian Cheek.

The noble red man of the forest has hitherto been charged with divers and sundry traits of character not redounding to his credit. Among them are his proclivity for leaving white men baldheaded and torturing prisoners; for drinking fire-water in unlimited quantities; for the most abstract and unqualified laziness; for a sublime disregard of his plighted faith; for filth and dirt of every description; and, in fine, for general cussedness. In addition to these deplorable evidences of a lack of Christian civilization and those social graces and amenities which make life so delightful, the red man of the forest has now developed a new feature, which has hitherto been supposed to be the monopoly of the pale face, namely, cheek. He has not only developed cheek, but cheek of the most extraordinary description—large, voluminous, approaching the sublime.

The three gentle savages who have developed this cheek are Spotted Tail, Lone Horn, and Red Cloud, Chiefs of the Sioux delegation, at present in Washington negotiating with the government for the cession of the Black Hills. Red Cloud opened the ball by informing the Great Father that the whole white race were liars, and he took occasion to remark that he made no exception of the company present, which included the President, the Secretary of the Interior, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and numerous subalterns and stipendiaries of the Departments. Red Cloud having thus mildly expressed his opinion of pale faces in general and the Administration in particular, Mr. Spotted Tail, another untutored son of the forest, displayed his lack of filial reverence by snapping his fingers in the Great Father's face, and notifying him he must not send them to the Secretary of the Interior and Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who evidently, in Spotted Tail's estimation, were the champion liars in this mendacious country. Next came Mr. Lone Horn, a plain, simple, guileless child of the forest, with the evident intention of improving upon the impression made by Messrs. Red Cloud and Spotted Tail, and of overwhelming the President and his Cabinet at one fell swoop. So Mr. Lone Horn strode up in all his native dignity, and, proudly wrapping his blanket about him, notified the President as follows: "I never claimed I owned all the country before to-day, but now I claim it." This was not all. One is irresistibly reminded of Falstaff and Gen. Boum, as Mr. Lone Horn adds: These men you see (alluding to the Indians around him) are soldiers and will fight." This was tantamount to an invitation to the pale faces to come forward and contest the title to this broad domain, but at this juncture the President notified Mr. Lone Horn and his friends that he was not ready to discuss the question, whereupon the owner of the country and his friends, Red Cloud and Spotted Tail and their followers, withdrew.

For sublimity and dimensions of cheek commend us to these simple, untutored children of the forest, who have been brought up under the sweet and genial influences of nature, and have never been contaminated with the habits of cities or effeminated by the vices of luxury. There is a freedom and directness of speech about them which are very refreshing, and there are some people who will be churlish enough to say that the Indians were right, and hit the nail on the head every time. It is at least the first time that the management of Indian affairs has been struck square in the face, and for this, at least, the Indians deserve credit. Back of all their laughable swagger and impudence there was some plain, hard truth, which was spoken where it ought to have some effect.—Chicago Tribune.

A Rich Man's Troubles.

Millionaire Lick, of San Francisco, has had a great deal of trouble out of his philanthropy. As soon as his first and munificent trust deed was executed, he was beset by a crowd of poor and hungry relatives, who clamored for a share of the millionaire's treasures. His nephew brought suit against him for a large amount of money for services alleged to have been performed. Suits, injunctions, and complaints poured in upon him from every direction, and the unlucky Lick was given no rest until he had revoked his gift and dismissed his trustees. But the severest affliction was reserved for the last, for now a San Francisco doctor, Geile by name, has brought a little bill of $53,000 for medical services rendered Lick during the last twenty-two years! This is believed to be the heaviest doctor's bill on record. The philanthropist might stand the reproaches of his relatives and the contumely of the public, which branded him as an "Indian giver," but a doctor's bill of $53,000 is enough to make even a millionaire's blood run cold.

At a meeting of Vermont dairymen, a delegate discussed the question of cooking fodder for cows, and urged its propriety and economy. Hay, straw and grain go a third farther; and with twenty cows he had made an experiment which showed that sixteen pounds of cut and cooked feed go as far as twenty-eight pounds uncooked. It consumes too much of the vital force of the cow to reduce dry fodder to a pulp, and this work is done effectually for her by cooking. He recommended the occasional use of small feeds of oat meal in winter, say three or four pounds a day, as loosening and preservation of health.

THERE is a vast difference in the flavor of eggs. Hens fed on clean, sound grain, and kept on a clean grass, can give much finer flavored eggs than hens do that have access to stable and manure heaps and eat all kinds of filthy food. Hens feeding on fish and onions flavor their eggs accordingly, the same as cows eating onions or cabbage or drinking offensive water impart a bad taste to milk and butter. The richer the food the higher the color of the eggs. Wheat and corn give the best color, while feeding on buckwheat makes the eggs colorless, rendering them unfit for some confectionery purposes.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

A cow, after reaching maturity, should yield more than the value of her weight in beef each season, of butter or cheese.

A SMALL cow does not so soon fall off in milk on short feed, and eats less during the part of the year she gives no milk.

THE Hamburg fowls, of all varieties, have long been bred in England. Their origin has been disputed, but there need be little doubt that they came to England from Holland, as breeds almost identical are found in the latter country.

WE do not recommend plowing a furrow until the ground is dry, for a crop sown in land plowed when too wet, can hardly prove remunerative, but we would not sow a rod more than we could properly prepare, even though we were obliged to greatly contract the breadth we had designed sowing.

THE reason why black wool is not worth as much as white wool of the same quality is, says the Country Gentleman, "that black wool cannot be bleached and will take no other color perfectly. It can therefore only be used in making the cloth known as 'sheep's gray,' for which there is but little call. Its quality is generally inferior."

IT is not safe to remove hives of bees from April to December any distance short of a mile, as many are liable to return to their old location and are lost. A good hive of bees should be filled about three-fourths full of bees, as they are packed between the combs, and should have in April not less than ten pounds of honey to render their prosperity sure. The combs and bee-bread in a hive often weigh ten or fifteen pounds, so that must be taken into account in the gross weight of the hive.

THE Court of Appeals of New York State has recently decided that a man has no right to the fruit growing upon the branches overhanging his land where the trunk of the tree stands wholly upon the land of his neighbor. But the law regards the overhanging branches as a nuisance, and they may be removed as such, or the owner of the land shaded may remove them if he is careful not to commit any wanton or unnecessary destruction in so doing. Where the trunk of a tree stands on the line, they have a joint ownership in the tree and fruit, and neither has the right to remove it without the consent of the other. This question, which has been the source of much litigation, and many personal quarrels, is now finally settled by the court of last resort, and interested parties can now know their rights, and also their remedies, in all such cases as may arise in the future.

About the House.

IT is very dangerous to allow acid substances used as food to stand for any length of time in copper vessels. Preserves, when made in pots of that metal, should be emptied out as soon as possible after cooking.

NEW YORK BUNS—Five cups flour, two cups of sugar, one cup butter, one egg, four tablespoons of milk, small teaspoon of soda, any spice that is agreeable; nutmeg is as good as any; roll like cookies and bake quick. Will keep several months and grow better if kept in a close jar.

STEWED CLAMS.—Wash the clams put them in a pot, and cover them closely; set them near the fire, and as soon as they begin to open take them out of the shell; drain them, and to a pint of clams add half a pint of water, one ounce of butter, rolled in flour, cayenne pepper, and salt to taste; let them stew ten minutes. Just before they are to be dished, add one gill of cream.

AN erasive soap that will remove grease and stains from clothing is made of two pounds of good Castile soap, half pound of carbonate of potash, dissolved in half a pint of hot water. Cut the soap in thin slices; boil it with the potash until thick enough to mould in cakes; also add alcohol half an ounce, camphor half an ounce, hartshorn half an ounce. Color with half an ounce of pulverized charcoal.

SHIRRED EGGS ON TOAST.—Buttered toast; one egg to each slice, butter, pepper, salt. Drop whole eggs into a dish. Set it in the oven. Let it remain there until the whites of the eggs are set. The moment the dish is taken from the oven break the eggs with a fork, add pepper, salt and butter to taste. Then spread it on hot and crisp toasted bread, well buttered. Eggs prepared in this way are equally nice on Graham, brown, or flour bread, toasted.

ONE mode of getting rid of bed-bugs is to fumigate them with brimstone. Houses standing long and empty, which have swarmed with them, have by this means been effectually freed from them. Place in the center of the room a dish containing about four ounces of brimstone; remove from the room such metallic surfaces as might be affected by the fumes; close every aperture, even to the key-hole, and light the brimstone. After four or five hours, enter the room and open the window for a thorough airing.

BED-BUGS are said to be most readily destroyed by nux vomica in the form of the tincture, combined with liquor ammonia which mixture is to be freely applied to the joints and cracks of the bedstead. It is equally efficacious against cockroaches, water bugs and other vermin, and, if applied to the harness of horses, the animals will be no longer annoyed by flies. As nux vomica is also destructive of human life, care must be taken to avoid accidents in its use. The tincture should be procured as needed, and not kept about the house.

LAST fall twenty young men and women of Springfield, Mass., who wished employment, associated themselves together, paid in a small capital, hired a workshop and boarding-house and began manufacturing toys, table mats and baskets. They laid aside one-fourth of their wages to accumulate as capital, and in six months saved $1,424 from their wages and $350 in board and washing, making a total saving of $1,874 by this system of self-support.

A LADY who has been studying law in England has been engaged as consulting counsel by a firm of solicitors in London, and is at once to receive a salary larger than the income enjoyed by many barristers who have been long in practice.

All Sorts.

BISMARCK, D. T., is to have a money-order postoffice hereafter.

THE Duke of Argyle has fenced in a deer forest six miles around.

THE estate of the late John Harper, of Harper Brothers, counts up $4,000,000.

A GRAND chapter of colored Royal Arch Masons has been established in California.

LOUISIANA will raise 200,000 barrels of rice this season, or twice as much as last year.

A MAPLE sugar factory in Vermont, the largest in the State, annually taps 3,350 trees.

A MAN recently went west to Nevada to grow up with the country, taking with him his wife and eighteen children.

THE "boss" grasshopper must step down and make room for the one that ate up the green Irish girl.

WHEAT crops in Great Britain during the last nine years have yielded on an average 29¼ bushels per acre.

SEVENTY-ONE letters of Robespierre, said to be of a startling nature, have been found among the manuscripts in the French National Library.

IT must be unpleasant for a stuttering man in Berlin to hail a street car, because there they call a street car pferdestrasseneisenbahnwagen, for short.

PRESIDENT ELIOT, not satisfied with introducing military exercises at Harvard has headed a petition for a similar innovation in the Cambridge High School.

PRESIDENT MACMAHON, of France, has sent a subscription of 100 francs to the committee formed at Nancy to make researches into the history of America before its discovery by Columbus.

PRINCE AMADEO of Italy is said to be occupied in writing a history of his reign in Spain. The title of the work will be "Recollections of a King." The Princess Marie is assisting her husband.

PROF. MARSH, of Yale College, has refused an offer of the chair of the late Jeffries Wyman in Harvard College, with a salary of $4,000, preferring to remain in his present position without any salary.

THE late school statistics of New Hampshire reveal an alarming decadence in the enthusiasm for education. The number of children attending school in 1874 was 10,000 less than that of 1850.

THE largest gas-meter in the world has just been built in London. Its capacity is the enormous quantity of 150,000 cubic feet per hour, and its measuring drum delivers for each revolution 1,600 feet.

AT the Westminster Police Court a gentleman's servant has been convicted and fined £20, with the alternative of three months' imprisonment, for endeavoring to obtain a situation by means of a false character.

NEITHER of the Indianapolis railroads are now paying commissions to ticket-sellers or agents, and but few of the roads in the United States are. This was one reform which the Saratoga compact brought about.

THE designs for the new foreign postage stamp have been changed. They will be the same as those already in use, and the words "foreign postage" will be omitted from the stamp. They will be ready on the 1st of July.

IN the Nebraska Constitutional Convention a proposition is under discussion, with a probability of its incorporation into the new Constitution, submitting to a direct vote of the people the election of United States Senator.

A WILLIAMSTOWN boy became a man in this way: While hoeing corn one afternoon he turned to his father, who was working with him, and said, "What time is it, father?" "Half-past 2," replied the senior farmer. Throwing down his hoe, the son graduated from the farmer life with this remark: "Twenty-one years ago, father, at half-past two in the afternoon, I was born; you can do your own hoeing after this."

Didn't Understand It.

A short time ago a man who was about to put up a factory on the outskirts of our town, began the work by building a huge cylindrical chimney about one hundred feet high. After its completion, Cooley one day walked out there with a friend of his, a man named Smith, who hailed from the country. The chimney stood there isolated and alone, and Smith, after examining it closely, remarked to Cooley:

"That's the most extraordinary thing I ever saw."

"We do consider it a big thing ourselves," replied Cooley.

"But what does the man do for water?" asked Smith. "It must have been an awful convulsion—an awful busting out of things. I don't see how in the mischief it worked it, anyway. It beats me."

"What do you mean?" asked Cooley.

"Why, I say it must have been a terrific upheaval of the earth to lift that thing in that way and leave it standing there. Perfectly terrific."

"Lift it?" exclaimed Cooley; "lift it? I don't understand you."

"You see that pile of bricks standing there, don't you?" said Smith, becoming a little warm. "Well, what I say is that there must have been a frightful volcanic eruption to turn that well wrong side out and shoot it up out of the ground in that manner, and I can't see how on earth the bricks held together through such a twisting. It knocks me."

Then Cooley led him home, and wrote to Smith's relatives that a man who could mistake a factory chimney for the brick lining of a well that had been shoved up from the earth by a volcanic action, ought not to be permitted to be at large.—Max Adeler.

IT is to be observed of a regular advertiser that he is a man who is pretty sure to be prosperous in business; generally stands A 1 among his neighbors; always wears a clean shirt; never parts his hair in the middle; never postpones his pew rent until the last quarter day, and when he dies, succeeds in being buried in a first-class rosewood coffin with satin lining and a handsome silver door-plate, without provoking a riot among his heirs.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, JUNE. 10, 1875

It seems Beauregard has not been an office-holder under Grant, Longstreet being the man.

The Black Hills country has been purchased for $25,000. It would have sold for more than that at auction.

If neither praying, nor floods, nor [illegible], nor a Governor's proclamation will conquer the grasshoppers, the Egyptian plague must surely be upon us.

The Ohio Republicans resolved against a third term for Grant, and then turned around and nominated Ex-Gov. Hayes for a third term as Governor. It makes some difference whose ox is gored.

Grant says he will not accept a third term, unless it comes under circumstances as to make it an imperative duty. If the Republicans give him the nomination, it will be his imperative duty to except, you bet.

Lone Horn told them down in Washington that he would sell his country for $25,000. The Radical thieves must have regarded him with astonishment. There isn't one of them who wouldn't sell the whole country for half that amount.

The Indianapolis Journal, Senator Morton's organ, thinks the President Grant's letter is an open bid for the nomination. It is fair to presume that the Journal reflects the views of Mr. Morton and the shrewder class of Republicans throughout the State. Morton, himself, would be a third term man, if it were not the fact that he favors a first term for Oliver P. Morton.

The Democratic party have made a good record so far in their brief authority. Their retrenchment in the Indiana legislature will save the people annually over a million of dollars. In Ohio they reduced taxation one million one hundred thousand. In the state of New York they reduced the state taxes two millions. Such a cutting down of expences as you will see by the same party in the next congress will astonish the high salary grabbers. Let the people stand by the party of retrenchment and reform.

Wm. M. Evarts, counsel for Beecher in the scandal trial, strikingly resembles Cicero, of whom he spoke in the recent opening of his plea as one "who stood at the head of ancient orators, and whose fame transcended all modern reputations in our profession," and a marble bust in the library of Yale College is often mistaken for a likeness of Mr. Evarts, and by older persons has been supposed to be a bust of his father, who also was a lawyer of great ability, though he did not long practice his profession.

We would like to know if the government has any troops stationed in New Hampshire, and if so, why the "doings" in the legislature of that commonwealth are not taken in hand. A day or two ago five republican members of the senate seceded in a body, just as the democrats of Louisiana did last winter. Now, if there is such a thing as law and order in the state of New Hampshire we should like to see it enforced. Bring out the army and seize upon the legislature. Let the senate be reconstructed at the point of the bayonet. We cannot afford to deal leniently with secessionists.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says: The Republican platform adopted on the 2d inst., contained as much evasiveness as could be compressed within so few lines. The rejection of Judge Taft was the rejection of the only hope of salvation for the Republican party. This was the rejection of liberalism and common sense. Judge Taft failed to be nominated because he had as a Judge given a decision in accordance with the law on the question of mixing church with state, or some religion with the alphabet. The Convention also refused to nominate him because of his position upon the temperance question. The Republican party, having refused to nominate a candidate who has sensible and liberal views concerning the right of Smith to control the personal habits of Brown, and having refused for that reason, will lose the liberal floating vote of the State. As the party was silent on the temperance question the prohibition party, which will command a large vote. The Republican Party in Ohio was too timid.

The course of Gov. Tilden in pardoning Ingersoll from the penitentiary at Auburn, heretofore severely criticised, has at last been justified. Ingersoll has made an affidavit, giving the inside history of the ring operations in New York which cost that municipality millions of dollars. This affidavit may enable the prosecution to cover back into the treasury a part of the illgotten gains of the Tammany thieves. Without this evidence from a member of the ring the success of the prosecution could be doubtful indeed, and there was no time to be lost, as the defendants could have found refuge behind the statute of limitation in 1876.

Another idol smashed. Mrs. Stowe says Father Henson was not the original Uncle Tom, but the husband of her negro cook who lived with her in Cincinnati. The cook's husband was a slave in Kentucky, and he had the management of his master's place. I used to write letters for her to him, says Mrs. Stowe. She said that he was such a christian she could not get him to run away from his trust, though his master constantly broke his word to him, having repeatedly promised to emansipate him at certain times, but never doing it. Whether he ever got free I never heard. This was the first suggestion of the character.—Other incidents were added by reading the "Life of another Henson in Canada."

Grant's Letter.

Gen. Grant's letter on the third term is evidently all his own production. It is cunning; and it tells a good deal more than its author supposes.

The first intimation respecting the third term did not come from the press it came from the White House. A person there, whose relations we need not more specifically define, said, just before the election of 1872, that "the great difference between Gen. Washington and Gen. Grant, as they would appear in history, would be that Washington had only two terms as President, while Gen. Grant would have three." All that the press ever did in regard to this subject was to call attention to the unconcealed ambition of Grant, thereby rendering its success impossible. About the fact of the ambition and the existence of the design, there can be no question.

There is too much humbug in this letter. "I don't want a third term," he says, "any more than I wanted the first." Yet everybody knows how much he wanted the first. The only doubt in his mind was whether he should run as a Democrat or as a Republican. He intrigued for the Democrat nomination, and failed, before he determined that he would be the Republican candidate; and now in this letter, when he says he does not want the third term, he carefully leaves the door open in the hope that after all, it may be given to him; and he ingeniously argues the constitution point that the people have a right to elect a man President as often as they wish.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NOTICE.

Auburn Ind. May 27th, 1875.

The Board of Equalization for the County of Dekalb will meet on the first Monday of June 1875, at the Auditor's office in the town of Auburn, for the purpose of hearing and determining grievances and to Equalize Assessments thereon.

ISAAC HAGUE Auditor.

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned administrator of the estate of Lanslet Ingman, Deceased, will on and after the 10th, of July 1875 sell at private sale, the undivided two-thirds (⅔) of seventy-eight (78) acres of land off the west side of the north east quarter of Sec, thirty-three [33] T. thirty-four [34,] R. thirteen [13,] Subject to the right of way of the Detroit, Eel River & Illinois Railroad across the same. Terms one-third [1-3] of purchase money in hand one-third [1-3] in nine [9] and one-third [1-3] in eighteen [18] months, the deferred payments to be on interest and secured by note and mortgage. Bids will be received at the residence of the undersigned in Auburn.

May 31st, 1875. J. P. WIDNEY Admin.

TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE.

"CHOOSE YOUR VOCATION AND HONOR IT."

The Independent Telegraph Institute, located in Auburn Dekalb Co. Ind., are offering the best opportunity of learning Telegraphy Railroad Business and Phonographical writing ever offered to the public. Tuition very low and good boarding furnished Students for $3.50 to $3.75 per week, and situations furnished students as soon as they are capable of taking charge of a Telegraph office. Wages from $40 to $100 dollars per month. For further information address, Independent Telegraph Institute, Lock Box 78, Auburn Indiana.

OFFICERS.

D. Lawrence	President.
J. E. Shreve	Superintenent.
Jas. M. Lurner	Instructor Telegraph Def't.
Prof. S.S. Shaner	Principal Instructor RR.Def't.
Dr. L. Sanders	Instructor Phonographical Writer.

Administrator's Sale.

THE undersigned, Administrator of the Estate of John W. Sebert, late of DeKalb County deceased, will sell at public sale all the personal property, not taken by the Widow at the late residence of the deceased, 5 miles east of Auburn, on Friday the 2 day of July, 1875, the following property to-wit:

Two Mares, 1-horse buggy, 2-horse buggy 7 head of young cattle, hogs, wheat in the ground, 1 reaper and Mower, 1 sulky rake, 1 organ and other articles too tedious to mention.

TERMS—All sums under $5 cash; over $5 a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving his note with approved security, at 6 per cent. interest, waiving the benefits of valuation and appraisement laws.

ROBERT CULBERTSON, Ad'r.

STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1839.

GEO. DeWALD & CO.

Dry Goods & Notions.

Black Silks & Fine Dress Goods a Specialty.

We can make it to the interest of every person to trade with us. We buy for CASH and sell for CASH, keep the best goods, and sell at one price

ALSO AGENTS FOR THE

"Domestic" PATERNS.

The Best in Use. Send for a Cat logue.

Geo DeWald & Co
No. 1 Columbia Street
Fort Wayne Ind.,

The Pioneer

HARDWARE

Emporium!

Now full to overflowing with an Immense stock of

HEAVY AND SHELF

Hardware, Cutlery, Tin Ware.

I would call special attention to my depapt ment of

HARDWARE,
FURNISHING &
BUIDERS STOCK,

in which will be found everything at the very

LOWEST PRICES,

Such as:—

OILS, PAINTS,
GLASS,
NAILS,
SASH,
DOORS, ETC

—A FIST-CLASS—

Tin-Shop,

n connection with the Hardware Store, with a skillful foreman. All kinds of Tin-ware manufactured and repaired on short notice.

JOHN L. DAVIS,

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Ryan & Mader, pro's

Having on hand everything in the line of,

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

hey are prepared to furnish rigs at all times at asonable prices. Stable east of Court House.

THE STAR WELL AND PROSPECTING AUGER.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD!

Mr. LEVI BROWN, living two miles south of Corunna, has purchased the right of this celebrated Auger, and is now prepared to put in wells. Everything is warranted and satisfaction guaranteed.

LEVI BROWN.

FOR SALE.

Four Business Lots,

Adjoining the Court House square, the most desirable and the only ones similarly located in Auburn each lot 22x80 feet.

Those wishing to purchase the best in the market should apply soon either to A. J. LITTLE Attorney at Law, or THOMAS BALDOCK. Terms reasonable. Also.

A HOUSE and LOT

adjoining the above. The House is new containing five rooms, with closets convenient and pleasantly located will be sold at a

BARGAIN

Apply as above.

A NEW PLACE

TO GET A

Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with M. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R

IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,

Notions, etc., of

CHARLES KLOTZ

AT HIS

Old Stand

ON MAN STREET,

Opposite Court Square

AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accommodate customers, and sell them such goods as they may need,

CLOTHING

Of all descriptions, and

HANDSOME SUITS

Made to Order!

TAKE
SIMMONS'
LIVER
REGULATOR

The Favorite Home Remedy.

This unrivalled southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

Purely Vegetable.

containing those Southern Roots and Herbs, which an allwise Providence has placed in countries where Liver Diseases most prevail. It will cure all diseases caused by derangement of the Liver or Bowels.

Simmons' Liver Regulator, or Medicine, is eminently a family medicine, and by being kept ready for immediate resort will save many an hour of suffering and many a dollar in time and doctors' bills.

After over Forty Years' trial it is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Eminent physicians commend it as the most

Effectual Specific

for Constipation, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, billious attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, despondency, gloom and forebodings of evil, all of which are the offspring of a diseased Liver.

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

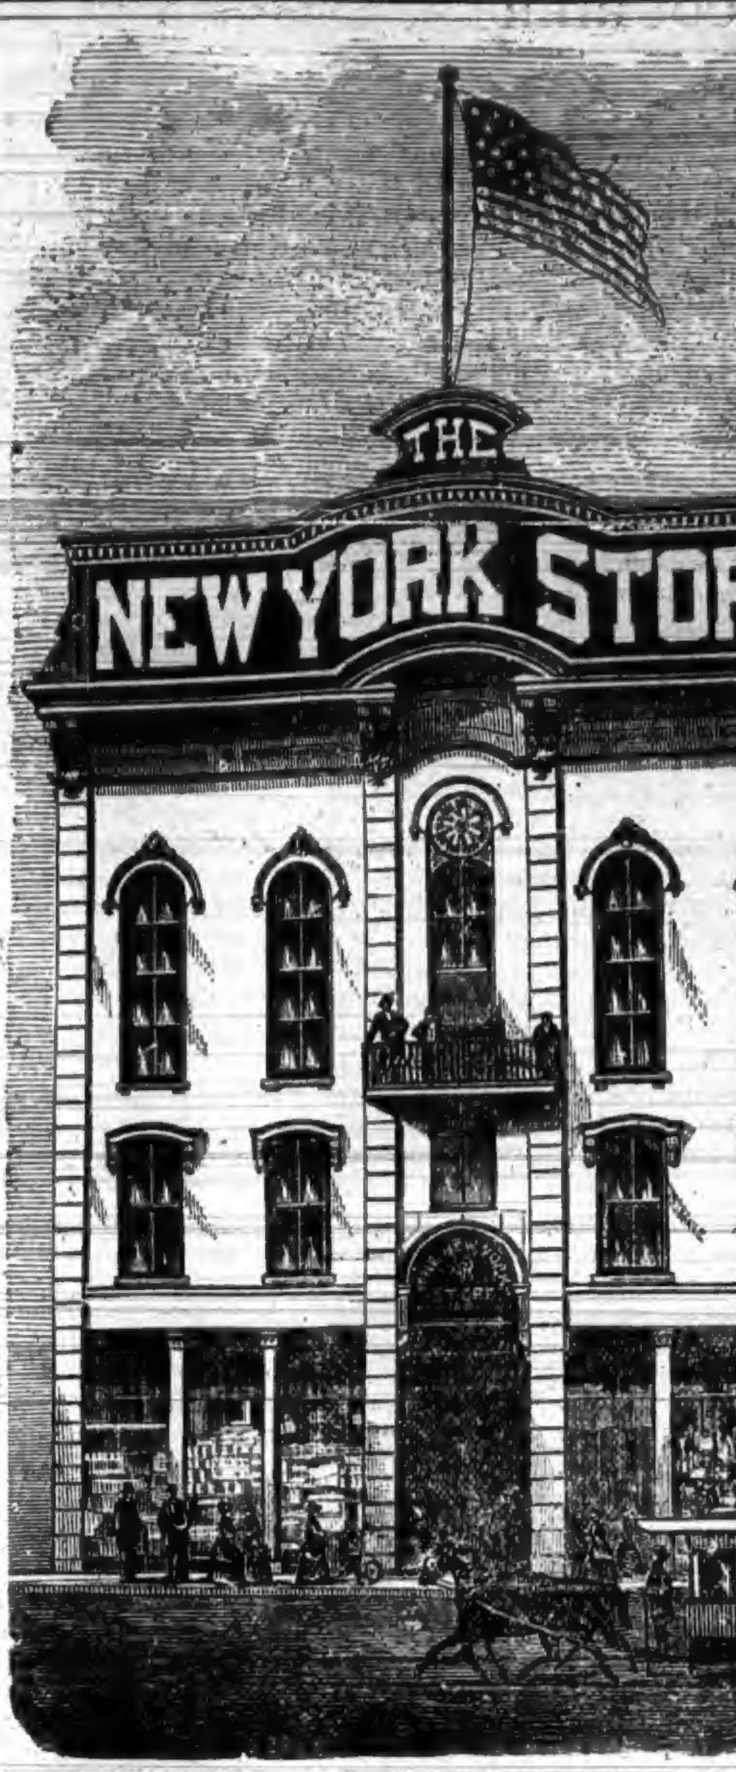
Armed with this ANTIDOTE, all climates and changes of water and food may be faced without fear. As a Remedy in Malarious Fevers, Bowel Complaints, Restlessness, Jaundice, Nausea,

It Has No Equal.

It is the Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World! Manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Ga. and Philadelphia.

Price $1. Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875



ROOT & COMPANY!

Invite the attention this week, to a number of new patterns of Body Brussels Carpets, English Tapestry Carpets, Extra three ply Carpet, Extra super Ingrain Carpets. Also to their elegant line of low and medium priced Carpets, at 25, 35, 40 and 50 and 60c per yard, and to the most extensive line of Floor and Table oil cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Matts, Lace and Fottingham Curtains, etc., to be found in the city. N. B.—This department of our busines being under the charge of an experienced carpet man, parties who favor us with their orders will be entirely satisfied with the manner they are filled.

HOSIERY! Now in stock a complete stock of English, German and Domestic Cotton Hosiery for Ladies, Gentlemen, Misses, Boys and Children's use, in every size and quality at extremely low prices

Kid Gloves, Summer Gloves, and a full line now open for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children including Harris' Seamless Kid Gloves, and our favorite "Perinot Gloves," both makes unsurpassed for perfect fit and durability.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT! Silk goods department. Men's ware department. Linen goods department. Cloak and Shawl department. Fancy goods department. Our corset department. Cotton goods department. Muslin and Underware department. Parasol department. Sun umbrella department.

Newly assorted this week at

ROOT & COMPANY,
46 and 48 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne,
☞ Opposite the Court House. ☜

☞MANY New and Choice Goods on sale at Bond's Novelty Store, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Indiana. New goods arriving daily. Special bargains in

Table Linen,

Corsets, Gloves, Hosiery; Muslins, Flannels, White Goods, Ladies Ties, Handkerchiefs, Portmonies and many goods not kept elsewhere. Large four-story stone front building, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Ind.

SAW MILL FOR THE PEOPLE.

THIS patent portable Muley Saw Mill is adapted to any locality, will saw any kind of logs, and will do as much work (power and hands being considered) as the best Circular Mills. Its frame, head-blocks, and working parts are of the most substantial and permanent kind, being made entirely of iron and steel. It is usually set up and started in from one to two days time. It is generally driven by threshing engines of not exceeding ten horse power. It cuts from 2000 to 4000 feet of inch lumber per day. The Mill and Engine may conveniently be operated by two men. Send for circular.

CHANDLER & TAYLOR.
Indianapolis, Indiana.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.,

26 East Berry street.

THE AUBURN

Marble Works!

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have permanently located in Auburn, and are now prepared to attend to all orders for which they are prepared to turn out in a superior manner at reasonable rates. Works west of the Bakery.

Monuments, Tomb-Stones, &c.,

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay and all the effects of youthful indiscretion will for the sake of suffering humanity send free to all who need it, the receipt and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN, Cedar St. New York.

THE FIRST

National Bank

OF AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of th U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Collections made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:

J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:

JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

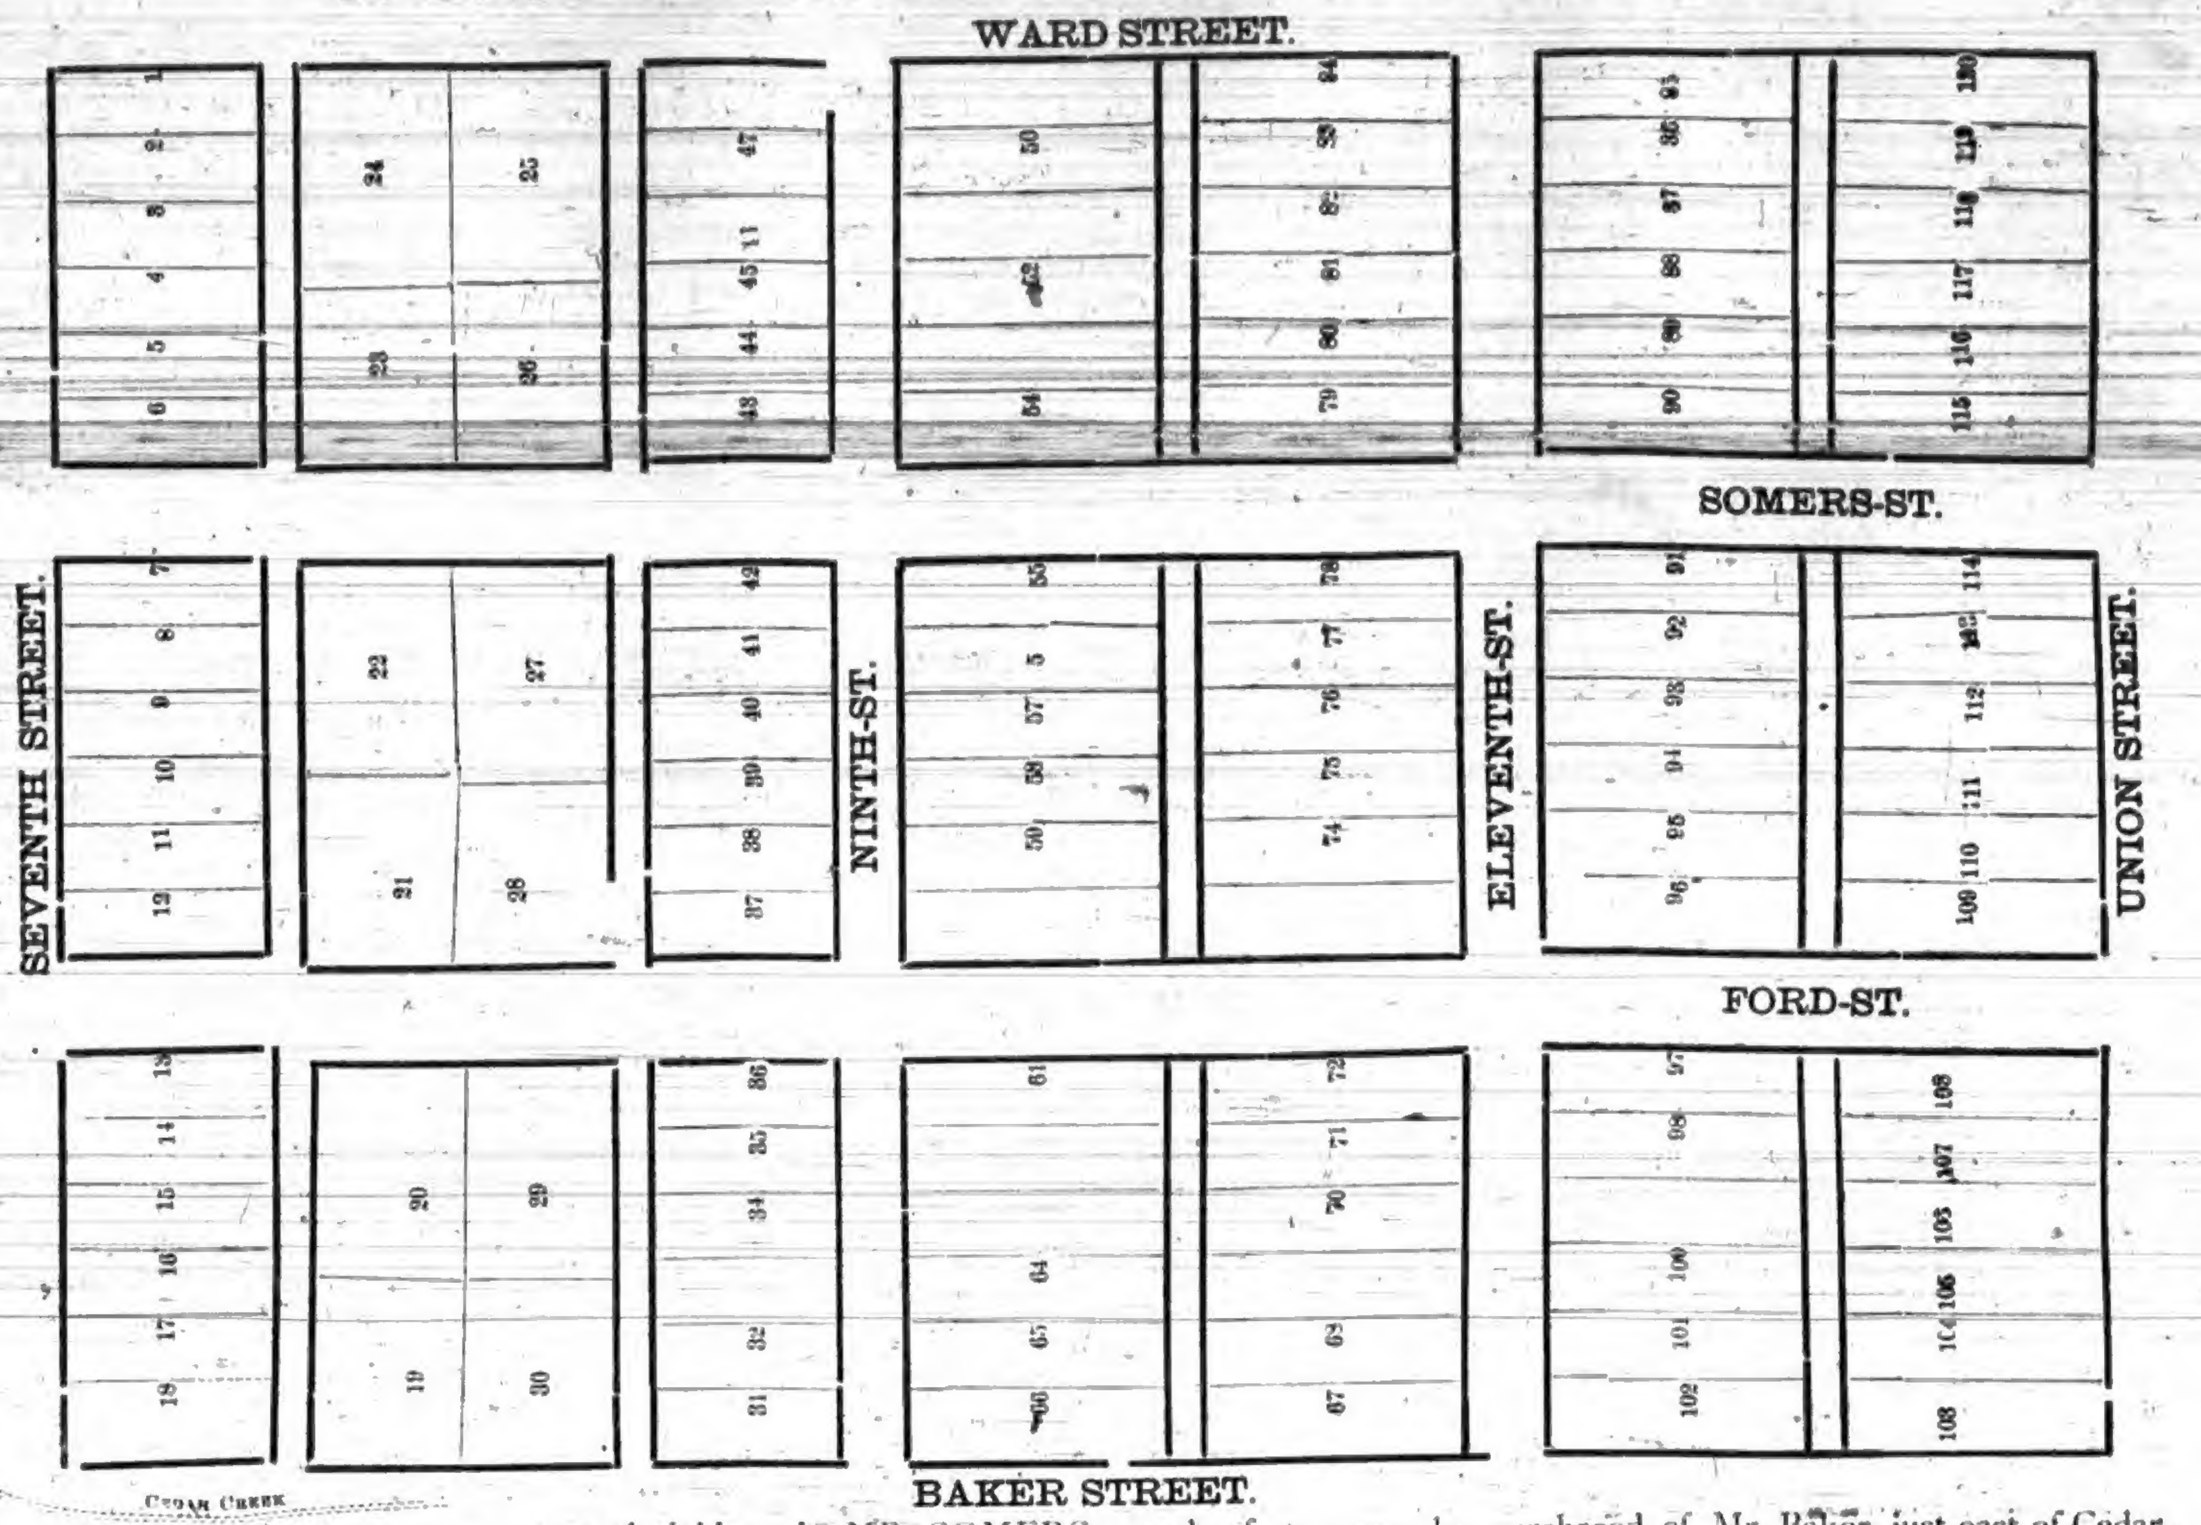
April 29, 1875.

AUBURN MARKETS.

CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Wheat—White	$1.10	Hogs—live	$6.00
Amber—red	1.05	Hogs—dressed	....
ye	75	Turkeys—live	.08
Oats	.35	Chickens—live	.07
Corn	@ 65	Butter	.18
Potatoes	@ 85	Lard	.15
Flax Seed	1.60	Eggs	.12
Clover Ceed	6.50	Tallow	.07
Wool	45 @ .60	Timothy Hay	12.00

J. C. SOMMERS' ADDITION TO AUBURN.



The above addition has been recently laid out by MR. SOMERS, on the forty acres he purchased of Mr. Baker, just east of Cedar Creek. The lots are now in market at reasonable prices, and offer some of the finest locations for residences to be found in or about town. They are close to the Court House and business part of town, and are very desirable in other ways. Application should be made immediately if you want a good lot.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

PAY up for your COURIER

* * *

DR. WIGGINS, of Ohio, has located at Garret.

* * *

Albion is to have another dramatic play soon.

* * *

SOME people are complaining of the potato bug.

* * *

BRICK work on the new jail commenced yesterday.

* * *

THE weather is anything but encouraging.

* * *

A LARGE amount of building is going on about the city.

* * *

LEAS & PHILLIPS is the name of a new law firm at Waterloo.

* * *

THERE's no fun 'sparking your Jane with a boil on your nose.

* * *

YANKEE DAN, is the name of the new mayor of Waterloo.

* * *

IF you want a good job of spouting or roofing done, call on Goodman.

* * *

WE notice a new frame house in rear of Mr. McIntyre's residence.

* * *

How do you like it. We mean, high-low-jack and—your papa's countenance.

* * *

YESTERDAY was the day for procuring licenses to sell, "I hope I'll never die."

* * *

IF the corn ain't coming up fast in the country, corn-juice is going down fast in town.

* * *

WE notice that Cosper Altenberg is moving his family into Baldock's new house on 7th-st.

* * *

WE received a call last Tuesday from two of Corunna's most joval lads, M. Boland and A. McKee.

* * *

GUY PLUM's new brick dwelling has reached the second story. It will look well when completed.

* * *

JOE RAINIER informs us that his barn was blowed down, last week, by the wind storm.

* * *

WE learn that a gentleman from Ft. Wayne, will put in a high-toned bar in our city.

* * *

MR. SOMERS is putting up quite a large frame dwelling on his lot in the new addition, over Cedar Creek.

* * *

A LARGE number of strangers are seen in the city every day. Many are locating here.

* * *

OUR French friends, of the Stave Factory, have several guests from the Summit city.

* * *

THE wheat prospect is improving each week, and nothing happening, we may look for a large harvest.

* * *

IT is rumored that we are to have a dramatic performance on the Fourth of July.

* * *

SCOTT's nine wont get beat, this afternoon, if practice does them any good.—But we's afraid it wont.

* * *

THE County Commissioners are in session, transacting the usual amount of business.

D. B. THOMAS, of Ohio, has purchased the west farm of Geo. Clark and is now a resident of this county

* * *

GIVE us a Job and see how we do our work. We have the best material in the county to work with.

* * *

IT appears that coining copper is not not profitable. The government has made a half cent since 1856.

* * *

CY. BOUGHAN has quit selling liquors altogether. He will continue in the billiard business.

* * *

V. A. Beard has returned from his parternal home, where he witnessed the marriage ceremony of his sister.

* * *

THE South Bend Trotting Association hold their June meeting next week, and large premiums are offered for speed horses.

* * *

"Is that clock right over there?" asked a visitor the otehr day. "Right over there?" said our boy, "'tain't nowhere else."

* * *

THE Bank has received its new currency, and bright new five dollars bills on the First National Band of Auburn are now being circulated.

* * *

GENTS FURNISHING GOODS, all the nobby styles just received at Jackman & Eaton's at their new store, opposite Ford's building.

* * *

WHILE Jonny McIntyre was swinging the other day, the rope broke, and he fell, running a nail through his left hand.

* * *

THE Marshal has done a good job on the streets in the south part of town.—A few side walks are needed in this part of town.

* * *

THE Town Board has levied a tax for general purposes of 50 cents on each poll For tuition purposes, 25 cents on each $100, and 25 cents on each poll.

* * *

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & HOSSLER, bade farewell to their numerous patrons, by a column and a half of valedictory in the Warsaw "Indianian.

* * *

SHE told her boarder, that her beds contained nary a bug, and a red-headed animal, reared up on that boarders left ear, and laughed her to scorn.

* * *

Now is the time when the old lady sees the solitary rosebud gone, and yells out: "Mary Ann, did you break off that 'ere flower?"

* * *

THAT little Dutchman on the stone work of the jail is pushing things along quite lively, and he means business.—Das es was icht sunga.

* * *

D. D. SNYDER, has a nice map which he used in the way of advertising. They will benefit farmers very much. They don't cost a cent.

* * *

THE Fort Wayne "Sentinel" calls vigerously upon the Board of Health in that city to suppress the pest holes which are breeding sickness over the city.

* * *

THERE is considerable complaint about the boys exposing their persons while pretending to bath in Cedar Creek We suggest that the Marshal get after them with a sharp stick.

YOU have often heard boys remark, "Hoop 'em up Lizy Jane." Well, that's what the married nine are going to do with the "pea-wee's" this afternoon.

* * *

J. W. RICKEL's time as school trustee having expired, and J. E. Rose having resigned, the Board appointed J. W. Rickel and Dr. J. J. Littlefield, to fill the vacancies.

* * *

A COUNTRY editor cannot be as bold and independent in his paper as his city brother. He has to collect his own subscription, and almost everybody in the country keeps a dog.—Danbury News.

* * *

THE funeral of Sol D. Bayless, at Ft. Wayne, last Sabbath, was an immense affair. It was the largest demonstration in the way of a Masonic funeral ever held in the State.

* * *

CHAS SHEPHERD and R. H. Hoffman left last Monday for California and they have promised to write a few letters for the COURIER descriptive of things in that charming country.

* * *

JACKMAN & EATON, have opened out a splendid new stock of piece goods, and having employed a No. 1 cutter are now prepared to get up a suit in the latest styles at reasonable prices.

* * *

HOWARD GRISWOID AND JOHN LEASURE went down street the other evening, in a buggy, and the old gray horse's heels would have been in the buggy with them, if it hadn't been for the dashboard.

* * *

Jackman & Eaton, have employed Mr Montgomery, an experienced cutter, in their merchant tailoring department, and are now prepared to make gentlemen's clothing of all descriptions, and guarantee a fit. Give them a call.

* * *

A FULL attendance of DeKalb Lodge No. 214, F. & A. M. is desired at the next regular communication. June 15th, 1875, to transact important business.—By order of the W. M.

W. H. McQUISTON, SEC'Y

* * *

ESTRAY.—A hound was picked up at the Stave Factory last Saturday a week. The dog has white feet, white ring around the neck, and white nose, the main color being dark brown.

CHRIST SEAVERT.

* * *

A YOUNG man by the name of Reardon, in the employ of Joseph Robbins, was unloading a log from a sled, in the mill yard, last Monday, when the log catching him in front rolled over him lengthways to the neck, where it rested until assistance arrived. The weight was sufficient to force the food out of his stomach through his mouth. No bones were broken, though at first it was thought he could not live. He is getting better.

* * *

ONE of the unmarried ball muffers was heard to say to his "Susan Jane" last evening, on Fluke's corner, something in this shape: "Oh, say, Susan are you coming out to see us play ball Thursday afternoon?" "What's the use 'going when I know how its coming out. Why, la-me, John, you young kids will get fearfully scooped up. The young man got his bristles up, and when he was starting off said: "Susan, darn-it, cheese the racket.

Strawberry Festival

A Strawberry Festival will be given at Ensley Hall next Tuesday, evening for the benefit of the Catholic church. The public generally are invited to attend.

* * *

MICH HOUSTON, has constructed a capacious refrigerator in his meat shop, where he can keep his meet fresh and sweet, during the warm weather.

* * *

WE believe everybody will be satisfied with our new Jail. Great care is taken in its construction, and it promises to be an elegant and substantial building when completed.

* * *

THE smoking car on the Saginaw road last Sunday, contained a set of jolly and lively boys. The most fun was had with three country clowns, who came in one car door on their muscle, and passed out of the other, not on their left ear, but all over themselves.

* * *

PETE BRANDON JR., brought her home last Tuesday. From 9 o'clock on, we might say, he had all the tin-pan music any mortal soul ought to wish for. After this performance another gang hauled buggies and Pete had it nip and tuck to get "out" in the morning. We'll pass.

* * *

THERE were some thirteen applicants for liquor license at the present term of the Commissioners. Out of them 10 have already been granted as follows: S. J. Lock, R. Till, J. H. Clifford, Waterloo, N. F. Gingnagle, Isaac Hisschler, J. H. Hows, Butler, John Hebel, Lock & Long Chas. Fox, Auburn, Robert Bell Garret.

* * *

THAT little saloon "around the corner" in Spencerville, is creating some little excitement in that heretofore quiet town. It is claimed he sells to minors, and those who will get tipsey, and has not the fear of the law before his eyes. Unlike Mrs. Tilton, there is no little bird singing in his heart.

* * *

Mr. Samuel Grosh having purchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Tarney, in the Lower Flouring Mill, will hereafter conduct it alone. He is manufacturing a splendid brand of flour and keeps mill feed constantly on hand. Mr Furnish, an experienced miller, will assist in turning out flour that cannot fail to suit everybody. tf

* * *

Advertised Letters.

The following is a list of advertised letters remaining in the Auburn Post-office.

Baily Lissie	Hemely Thos H.
Buher Ester A.	Helenger Emma
Boyle Libbie	Johnson B. F.
Baker G. C.	Johnson Will S.
Brown Chris	Kress Thomas
Black J. Q.	Kulan F. T.
Cebert Amos.	Kopp Levi
Cool Jacob	Leming Stephen
Casey Wm.	McFillen John 2
Clark Clais	Miller Ell
Dennison Andrew	Miller Henry
Dillman Chales	Morgan Eliza
Ernest Henry N.	Monger Mrs. Geo
Farrey Isaac	Moran M
Freeman Mary M	Phillips Mollie
Fitch S. C.	Potter Jim 2
Gurda Levi	Pite Martha
Gerber Frederick.	Shaffer David E.
Givens Sylvester	Turner S. M.
Gurretson John	Wilson M. H.
Harnish W. B.	Williams Miss H.
Hakey Chas	Quincy W. C.
Harris Rose

When parties call for the above they will please say advertised.

S. L. YANDES, P. M.

FUN A FISHING.

"Which would you rather do or go a fishing."
—Shakspeare.

We choose the latter, and on last Monday in company with eight or ten of Auburn's congenial spirits, we passed over the B. & O. to Syracuse, an enterprising little town a few miles west of Albion. We were full rigged with tent, tackle, provisions and refreshments. As we disembarked at the depot near the lake our force was divided, and a movement ordered immediately upon Conklin's Hill by land and water. Com. D. was put in charge of the fleet (3 boats) while Maj. E. took command of the land forces, (1 tent, 1 box, 1 bar—ke—round vessel with a hole in it, and three conscripts, both divisions being under the Major General commanding). The water force started beautifully, goose-fashion, one after the other, the commodore in the lead. Leiut. commander P. with a small boy in the center, and that veteran navyist (tobacco) admiral C. on the flag ship in the rear. After seeing this magnificent send-off of the fleet, we started for the land forces, which had been ordered to more on and camp within sight of duck point, or perish in the attempt. As a reserve we took 3 pounds of ice and 4 matches, in case of disaster and soon arrived at the place, but nary land force was to be seen. Not a boat not a tent, not a flag was to be seen.—We turned our steps backward, with many misgivings that something was the matter. And so there was. The concripts, after marching 8 rods and a half, gave out and went into camp some ten roads further. The commissary was broken into and the greatest delicacies of the season, such as, boiled potatoes, hominy and cold side meat were devoured in a twinkling. The next morning a general rush was made for the lake, as everybody wanted to try their luck at fishing. We paired off, two in a boat, and threw out our lines heavily baited for a twelve pounder, and in about two hours, we secured that amount of the finny tribe, though not in one piece. Its lots of fun sitting in a boat on the placid lake and now and then pulling in a wriggling sun-fish or bass. But two hours filled us chuck full, and we pulled for camp much against the notions of our partner, who insisted we had found a hole full of fish, but on the whole, the shade of camp had more attractions for us, and we landed with considerable prespiration.

Our tent had been nicely carpeted with straw and at night we stretched our weary forms for a good sleep. We had been told that rattlesnakes were quite plenty in the neighborhood, and as their partiality for straw is an historical fact, a quiet, peaceful slumber to a highly nervous constitution was scarcely enjoyed. About midnight someone imagined they caught the odor of a massassoga, the alarm was given and confusion reigned supreme. The Maj. mounted an eight by ten pine box, another climed the center pole, while a third rushed frantically forth, calling for the police. The Colonel was the only one who seemed indifferent, and he was dead asleep. The alarm proved to be false, and in several hours all was quiet again. To see the Major on that box was alone worth twenty-five cents. After catching about one hundred pounds of fish in two days, we struck tent for home.

The weather was unfavorable for fishing or we might have secured a much larger amount.

Syracuse is finely located in the midst of an excellent farming country. The town is full of enterprise and is growing quite rapidly. They have a school edifice that Auburn might be proud of.—The "Enterprise," published by Mr. Pricket, is a live, readable paper, and is well supported by the people.

We are under many obligations to Dr. D. C. Kelly, and his amiable lady for many favors, both individually and collectively. The doctor has a large practice and is thorough and efficient in his profession. The largest bonanza the Doctor struck lately was in his hired man Tommy, of the Emerald Isle. Tommy enlivened us with a song and dance and furnished us with ice, though it nearly worried the sowl out o'him. Our young friend Dr. Holden, formerly with Dr. Cowan, of this place, assisted largely in procuring boats, &c., for which he has the thanks of the club.

Taken all in all, it was a pleasant trip, and as a diversion from the cares of business, a more pleasant spot cannot be selected.

* * *

[illegible] Salt,
Eruit Jars,
Teas and Syrups, at Beards.

Go to Beard's for fresh groceries of all kinds.

* * *

At a meeting of the congregation of the first Presbyterian Church of Kendallville, held immediately after services on Sunday evening June 6th, 1875, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted without a disenting vote:

Whereas an article is published in the Kendallville "Standard," June 2d, 1875, respecting a discussion in the Sabbath School of this church, two weeks ago, regarding the propriety of observing Sunday May 30th as a decoration day in which article the action of Rev. R. S. Goodman, pastor, is critized and epithets are applied to him, that this congregation believe should not pass unnoticed, therefore,

RESOLVED, 1st. That the criticism of Mr. Goodman's part in that discussion is not based on facts as he was not present nor in the city on that day.

2nd. That during a pastorate of this church of nearly 4 years Mr. G. has sustained an unblemished character for piety and christian rectitude; that he has our undivided confidence and respect as a minister and honest man, and that the charges of hypocracy, deceit and rascality, so far as intended to be applied to him are libelous and false and common fairness requires that the editor of the "Standard" should make a retraction thereof in as public a manner as they have been made in said publication.

A motion was further adopted that a copy of the foregoing resolutions be sent to the newspapers of Noble, LaGrange and DeKalb counties for publication.

R. DYKES, CHAIRMAN

* * *

AT the belling, the other night, the groom arose, squared himself in front of the window, and motioning for his wife to look out, said: "Look-ee there at that darned low-lived cuss. He'd better be grubbing the thistles out of the fence corners on his wife's farm, than to be here disturbing the slumbers of a gentleman at this hour of night."

* * *

DON'T imagine that you were born to reform the world. You can't split a mountain with a tooth-pick.

IN MEMORIAM.

[There have been few more beautiful poems than this written. It was on reading it that George D. Prentice said; "One might almost wish to die, if he knew that so beautiful a tribute as this would be written to his memory."]

On the bosom of a river,
Where the sun unloosed his quiver
And the starlight gleamed forever,
Sailed a vessel light and free.
Morning dew-drops hung like manna
On the bright folds of her banner,
And the zephyrs rose to fan her,
Softly to the radiant sea.

At her prow a pilot beaming
In the flush of youth stood dreaming,
And he was in glorious seeming
Like an angel from above.
Through his hair the breezes sported,
And as on the wave he floated,
Oft that pilot, angel-throated,
Warbled lays of hope and love.

Through those locks so blithely flowing,
Buds of laurel bloom were blowing,
And his hands anon were throwing
Music from a lyre of gold.
Swiftly down the stream he floated,
Soft the purple wave divided,
And a rainbow arch abided
On his canvass' snowy fold.

Anxious hearts with fond devotion
Watched him sailing to the ocean,
Prayed that never wild commotion
'Mid the elements might rise.
And he seemed like some Apollo
Charming summer winds to follow,
While the water flag's corolla
Trembled to his music sighs.

But those purple waves enchanted,
Rolled beside a city haunted
By an awful spell that daunted
Every comer to the shore.
Night shades rank the air encumbered,
And the pale marble statue numbered
Where the lotus eaters slumbered,
And awoke to life no more.

Then there rushed with lightning quickness
O'er his face a mortal sickness,
And the dew in fearful thickness
Gathered o'er his temples fair.
And there swept a dying murmur
Through the lovely Southern summer,
As the beauteous pilot comer
Perished by that city there.

Still rolls on that radiant river
And the sun unbinds his quiver,
And the sunlight streams forever
On its bosom as before.
But the vessel's rainbow banner
Greets no more the gay savanna,
And that pilot's lute drops manna
On the purple waves no more.

MY RUSSET APPLES.

A late March twilight, with a bitter frost in the air, the new moon just dipping its golden horn behind the maple swamp in the west, and the ground sounding crisply under foot. We had just come in from foddering the cattle—"we" sounds rather singularly, when you reflect that it meant Kitty and me, two girls of seventeen and nineteen; but you see there wasn't any one else to do it. Father had been bedridden every since that last attack of paralysis, and we could afford to hire no one to take his place about the farm.

"I don't pity them gals," Neighbor Dyson said. "They might sell the horse and cow."

Neighbor Dyson had generously offered us something less than half price for them, thinking no doubt, that we would be thankful to jump at the chance. But Kitty and I, after taking the matter into consideration, thanked him, and declined politely.

"We couldn't keep house without old Mooley, could we Addy?" said my sister. "There are so many nice dishes we can make for poor father, if we have plenty of good, rich milk and cream. And the butter that we should have to buy at Neighbor Dyson's city prices would go far to counterbalance the money we should get for Mooley."

"And as for the horse, said I, "he eats but little; and how on earth could we get around the country, even to the post-office, such weather as this, if it wasn't for old Dobbin, that we have had ever since I could remember."

So it happened that, on this special March evening, we had just come in from attending to the wants of our live-stock.

I was in great spirits, playing with pussy, who came to meet us, with her plumy tail erect; but Kitty leaned sadly against the wooden mantel, and looked into the fire with mournful eyes.

"Kitty," cried I, at last, "what does make you so dull?"

"To-morrow is third of March," said she gravely.

"What of that?" I demanded.

"Don't you remember? The interest on the mortgage comes due to-morrow."

"So it does," said I, my radiant face falling faster than the thermometer on a freezing day. "Thirty-five dollars! And we have nothing to pay it with, except the fifteen dollars Laura Osgood paid for the old melodeon!"

"Perhaps Willis Avery would wait!" suggested Kitty.

I drew myself up slightly.

"I don't choose to ask him to wait," said I.

Now it happened that Willis Avery, who held the mortgage on our homestead, was the son of a neighbor, and an old play-fellow and boy-beau of my own, who had gone to the prosperous young city a few miles north of us and commenced business on his own account, and I had a particular aversion to asking aid or help of him in any way. I might be poor but I was also proud, and Kitty was quite sympathetic enough to understand me.

"But then, what are we to do?" said Kitty.

I sat down on the hearth rug, with my chin in my hands, and stared earnestly at the big crackling back log. Pussy crept away and nestled down in the corner, as if she knew by instinct that there was a change of temperature.

"Look here, Kitty," I said suddenly. "Those russet apples!"

"Well?"

"We can sell them. There are eight barrels at the least. Eight barrels at two dollars and fifty cents a barrel—"

"My dear Addy, no one will buy them at one-fifth the price. Apples are a drug in the market."

"Here I grant you; but not in the city. I will take them to Mapleton and sell them."

"You will, Addy?"

"And why not? Squire Dyson would charge at least twenty per cent. commission, and make a favor of it at that. I can't afford either the price or the patronage. Don't say anything about it to father. He would only fret and raise objections. What must be done, must be, and I am the girl to do it."

"But, Addy, how? All this seems so perfectly wild and visionary to me."

"Well, it needn't; for, believe me, 'tis the most practical thing in the world. All we have to do is to sort the apples out into barrels, nice and sound—I can easily do it by lantern light to-night—and to-morrow morning we'll rise early, harness old Dobbin to the lumber-wagon—"

"But how are we to get the heavy barrels up into the wagon?"

"Goosie!" cried I, laughing, "can't I put the barrels up into the wagon while they're empty and fill them at my leisure? And I'll have them sold at Mapleton before you've got the pork and cabbage boiling for dinner."

"But where will you go?" asked Kitty.

"O, I know of lots of places. I went once to town with Obadiah Fairweather, when he sold a lot of cheeses. I've a pretty good idea of the locality of the commission stores, I can tell you."

"After all, Addy," hesitated my conservative little sister, "it isn't a woman's work."

"Why isn't it, I should like to know, so long as a woman can do it? At all events, a woman must pay her debts—so if you'll hurry up the tea I'll be off to the barn."

"And what shall we tell papa?"

"Oh, he'll think I've gone to the singing school with the Dyson girls, and I don't think it's a Christian duty to undeceive him," answered I.

But notwithstanding the brave face I put upon my affairs, my heart quivered a little the next day, as I drove off toward Mapleton, with the scarlet stain of sunrise dyeing all the east, and my own cheeks flushed with the keen morning air.

But it wasn't so bad, after all. With pardonable egotism, I supposed that every one would be staring at me; but, on the contrary, a young woman selling apples might be the commonest sight in the world, so little comment or surprise did it apparently excite. Mr. Holloway, of the firm of Holloway Brothers, produce and commission merchants didn't want any apples, I speedily learned.

"Just bought a ship-load from Albany," said, he, as carelessly as if shiploads of apples were as common a purchase as ten cents' worth of tape. And I drove on beginning to feel infinitesimally small.

Mr. Lovejoy could give me a dollar a barrel. "Apples wasn't worth no more at this season of the year!" And I whipped old Dobbin up, determined to carry them home again sooner than to sell at that price.

At the next place where I stopped, a pleasant-looking, middle-aged man came out and critically examined my apples.

"Do they hold out like this all the way down?" he asked.

"I'll warrant them," said I, carelessly.

"How much?" he asked.

"Two dollars and a half a barrel."

He reflected.

"It's a good price," said he, as if he were talking to his own vest buttons; "but then they look like good apples. and we've a tolerably large Western order to fill. I'll see what my partner thinks."

He went back into the gloomy depths of his store, and I, happening to glance up, saw the words painted in black letters over the door, "Hull & Avery."

My first impulse was to drive on, and leave the chance of a bargain behind me; my next, to sit still and await my fate as Providence dealt it out to me. And presently out came Willis Avery himself.

"I think we will take your load, if—Why!" breaking short off, "it's Addy Walters!"

I colored scarlet.

"Yes," said I, as composedly as possible. "Good morning, Mr. Avery. I shall be obliged if you will examine the fruit as speedily as possible, as I am in a hurry."

"O, certainly." He looked as if a nipping frost had chilled his enthusiasm in the bud, and I secretly exulted within myself.

Mr. Hull bought the load of apples, and said if I had any more at the same price—and of the same quality, he cautiously added—he would be happy to take them. Willis Avery touched his hat, and I drove away as loftily as Queen Boadicea in her chariot of old.

"Just thirty-five dollars, counting in the melodeon money," cried Kitty, gleefully. "And now Mr. Avery may come as soon as he likes!"

She had scarcely spoken the words before there came a knock at the door, and in walked no less a personage than Mr. Willis Avery himself. I received him with the air of an Empress.

"Your money is ready, Mr. Avery."

"I was not thinking of the money, Addy," said he, almost reproachfully. "Do you think one's mind runs always on money?"

"Mine does a good deal," said I, laughing.

"But I had no idea you were reduced to this. I did not know—"

"Mr. Avery, this is scarcely businesslike," I interposed.

"Addy," said he, abruptly, "I admired your spirit and courage to-day. I always liked you as a girl, but now—"

"Well?" for he hesitated.

"I would do something more, if you would let me. I would love you!"

I did not answer. In truth and in fact I could not!

"Dear Addy, will you let me sign back the old place to your father on our wedding day?" he asked, earnestly.

And somehow he had got hold of my hand, and somehow, before I knew it, we were engaged!

"This is all very ridiculous of us," said I, "particularly as I had resolved never to marry since we had that quarrel about my dancing with Gerald Ferguson at the Fourth of July picnic."

"I'll promise you never to be jealous again," said Willis Avery.

Kitty was jubilant when she heard it all.

"Our troubles are at an end," said she, "and all because you would take that load of russet apples to town yourself."

"That doesn't follow," said I, sagely.

But for all my philosophy I did believe a little in fate, and I've always liked russet apples since.

AMY RANDOLPH.

Had Rights.—The other day as a woman was crossing Gratiot street a team brushed her so closely that she fell down. The driver halted and asked if she were hurt, adding:

"You ought to know more than to walk in the middle of the street."

"I had, eh!" she yelled in a shrill voice, as she brushed the dust from her apron; "well, I want you to understand, sir, that I've got just as much right in the road, sir, as any old red hoss which was ever harnessed up, sir!"

GAMBLING EXTRAORDINARY.

The John Simonds was one of the finest steamboats on the Mississippi, plying between St. Louis and New Orleans, and her Captain, John Scott, was the most popular on the river. Such a superb boat was sure to be always crowded, and so she was, also, on a warm June afternoon in 1853 as the hour drew near for her departure from St. Louis. The bell had rung out the second signal as two men stepped briskly on board of her, ascended the broad stairs leading to the first saloon, and walked up to the Captain's office, where the passenger register lay open. One of these men was tall, stout, though not fleshy, with regular, finely-chiseled, even aristocratic features, in posture erect and almost military. Taking the pen, he wrote leisurely, but with a firm hand, C. Vanderbilt, New York. The other was not quite so tall, but evidently of a muscular frame, somewhat rotund, and also of ruby countenance, indicating that he was not averse to the good things of this world. He ran the pen rapidly over the page, and the clerk read: "George Law, New York." Both men were well-known. George Law as the builder of the Panama railroad and the chief organizer of the Atlantic and Pacific Mail Steamship Companies, and Vanderbilt as the originator of the Nicaragua Transit Company, running his steamers from New York to San Francisco, in opposition to the other. Such great, wealthy and important personages were naturally treated by the officials of the steamboat with unusual deference, and when each of them asked a state-room for himself, some other passengers were at once prevailed upon to surrender theirs. The John Simonds had swung out into the river and started on her journey, when Vanderbilt returned to the clerk and requested him to deposit in the safe a package containing drafts to a large amount and twenty thousand dollars in bank-notes. A few minutes later George Law comes with a like request, and he was also accommodated. Of course, to ask either of them for their fare would have been preposterous, and in a very short time every one on board knew that Cornelius Vanderbilt and George Law, the contending giants of steam on the ocean, were fellow passengers. Yet the two seemed to be wholly regardless of the attention obtruded upon them. They walked and talked of Central America, the West Indies, and the Pacific, and after supper had a table fixed for themselves, asked for cards, and commenced playing a friendly game of euchre for a hundred dollars a game of best three in five, "just to make it interesting, you know." They cared not for the music, the dancing, or the minstrels, but played on till George Law had won a thousand dollars, which Vanderbilt paid on the spot by getting a bank-note for the amount out of the package in the clerk's safe. Next morning the John Simonds made a short stop at Cairo, at the mouth of the Ohio, where a noted river character, Captain Alexander, came aboard. Cap. Aleck, as he was called for short, made gambling on the steamboats upon the Mississippi his profession. Everybody liked him for his good humor and jovial manners, though everybody knew that he couldn't handle cards without cheating, doing it so dextrously that he was seldom detected. "Cap," said the clerk of the boat, to him, "we have two of the richest birds in the country on board—Commodore Vanderbilt and George Law—men fond of the game, too." That was enough for Cap. Aleck. In the afternoon the Commodore and Live Oak George were again at play, and Cap. had taken a seat at the table, offering to join in the game. But euchre was only interesting when played by two, and so draw poker was substituted after supper. The game then lasted till midnight, a number of other passengers taking part, all losing heavily, Cap. Aleck rising from the table some ten thousand dollars better off than when he sat down. "This will be the best trip I ever made," said the Captain to the clerk, as they champagned at the former's expense. The game was renewed the next morning, continued all day, and by supper time Vanderbilt had lost thirty thousand dollars. To pay it Captain Scott, of the boat, cashed several of his drafts, as he did for George Law, who had also lost heavily. While supper was being served it was announced that the boat would in in a few hours arrive at Vicksburg. Vanderbilt stepped up to Captain Scott, saying: "I have a suspicion that this man Alexander is cheating. I'll be d—d if I don't find him out, and Law and myself will arrest him, and take him ashore at Vicksburg to make a charge against him. Should he return us our money, or the largest part of it, we'll let him go. But you must assist us, Captain, will you?" "With all my heart, Commodore," said Captain Scott, and promised secrecy. After supper the game proceeded, and just as the John Simonds was veering round the bend at Vicksburg, the stake on the deal then pending was already over five thousand dollars and Captain Aleck was raising it higher every time. At last Vanderbilt, being the heaviest better, "called" Aleck, and the latter laid upon the table four aces and a king. All stood aghast at such an extraordinary hand except Vanderbilt, who jumped from his chair, grasped Aleck by the throat, and shouted: "Scoundrel! I've caught you now. Those aces came from your sleeve. There isn't an ace in the pack you dealt from, for I took them all out; here they are," and he produced the four aces from his coat pocket. "George, we'll take this thief into Vicksburg. We are now within the jurisdiction of the city; take hold of him." Poor Captain Aleck neither resisted nor begged for mercy, and the gang-plank having been shoved out, he was led ashore. But lo! a remarkable change now occurred. While Captain Scott and some of the passengers were still on the plank to follow Vanderbilt, Law, and their prisoner, the three started on a run up the steep river bank, jumped into a wagon with four horses attached, that seemed to be waiting for them, and hurried off at a top speed. "Thank you, gentlemen," cried Vanderbilt; "whenever you see the Commodore, give him my best respects." "The same from me to George Law," exclaimed the scamp who had personated that gentleman. "That's the last you see of Captain Aleck," said the gambler. A few shots were fired after them without effect. When at New Orleans the owners of the John Simonds stopped payment, they ascertained that two of the wiliest rogues of the country, combining with Captain Aleck, had fleeced them out of more than forty thousand dollars by forged drafts and counterfeit thousand-dollar bills.

The Man With the Game Leg.

Yesterday a hand-organist sat down before a house on Congress street and began to turn out sweet melodies, but the first tune hadn't been finished when an odd looking man about fifty years old, having a game leg and a general forlorn look, came along and halted in front of the Italian.

"Now, that is sweet!" he said, after a moment; "carries me right back to the days when me and Hanner sat on the hind stoop and squeeze hands and told our love."

"Op-era muzeek," replied the Italian, smiling at the enthusiasm of his audience.

"Wall, now, but it touches me right here!" continued the man with the game leg, laying his hand on his heart. "I haven't felt so much like cryin' for fourteen years before. Seems sif I heard angels buzzin' around in the air."

He rested his game leg on a horse-block, folded his arms, and his look and attitude were that of a man whose heart was filled with sad thoughts and painful memories. Just as the tears were starting to his eyes the organist moved the stop, increased the speed, and "Captain Jinks" was merrily rattled off.

"Some odder kind oof mu-zeek," he explained, and the handle hadn't made four revolutions when the man with the game leg began to smile. Then he pushed his hat over on the side of his head. Then he hitched up his trousers, smiled some more, and exclaimed:

"By gum! if that ere tune don't just make me hop all over!"

"Good mu-zeek?" replied the Italian.

"Good? Why, the darned tune is heavenly! I believe if I was dyin' it would stand me on end! I'd give a billion dollars if Hanner was alive and could hear that!"

He stepped out, spit on his hands, and then waltzed up and down the flags, his game leg flopping around like a loose weather-board, and his hoarse voice bawling:

"Ham Cabding Jinks
Her 'oss maridos."

While he was doing his level best the musician touched the stop again and the tune changed off to "Birdie, I Am Tired Now."

"Ah! that soothes me, that does!" said the old man as he sat down on the horse-block. "That's suthin' more to touch the heart and make me think of my poor Hanner!"

"Vary sweet mu-zeek," remarked the Italian.

"Sweet! Great skies! but its melting! I've known that tune a long time, but I never could sing it yet without weeping. If I had a million of dollars I'd buy a hand-organ and play that tune straight along for six months without stopping the crank!"

He put his hands over his face and appeared agitated, and the Italian didn't seem to care whether he collected a cent or not. He ground the tune out, touched the stop, and remarked:

"Vary gran-de mu-zeek dis time—ha!"

And "Yankee Doodle" rolled from the little square box like sheet-lightning sliding down the side of a hay-stack.

"Great concord!" yelled the man with a game leg as the tune reached "Doodle Dandy;" "hold on a minute till I get this leg under me! Thar—let her come now——"

"Whoodle, poodle, doodle doo!
Hi, sky, doodle dandy!"

And he leaped around, slapped the Italian on the back, threw his hat on the walk, and continued:

"Snaix and reptiles! but don't that tune make glory stand right out like mud on a white house! 'Rah for us!"

The Italian saw that a crowd was gathering, and he broke the tune short off, and sailed away on the "Suwanee River."

The first strains of the dear old melody had scarcely left the box when the man with the game-leg leaned up against a tree-box, wiped the sweat from his brow, and said:

"There's something more to remind me of my lost Hanner! Isn't that pervisions for the hungry soul, though! What strains! What tears! What a bulging of the heart!"

"Vary soft mu-zeek," remarked the Italian.

"Soft! My heavens! Man, if you'll pay my board I'll travel the whole country over and carry that organ, jist to hear you play that tune!"

He reached out his arms and made motions as if drawing the tune to his breast, and whispered:

"Glory! When I die let me die listening to them strains of 'Suwnee River!'"

The organist shouldered his box and moved on, and the man with the game leg leaned up against the fence and wiped his eyes.—Detroit Free Press.

Breaking a Mule.—A mule does not take as kindly to its first set of harness as a boy to his first pair of boots. Yesterday, says the Yankton (Neb.) Press, one of the long-eared songsters, which had been thus honored, was being led along Walnut street by a man who has his eyes upon the golden nuggets in the Black Hills. The beast gave numerous mild evidences of his displeasure at the new regalia, but did not do full justice to his traditional character until he reached a point opposite the Northwestern Hotel, when in a twinkling the man, mule and shining new harness were resolved into a whirling mass of legs, ears, and rent garments. A few moments afterward the man was cautiously getting up from a very prostrate position, and anxiously inquiring who in——threw that building on him, while a mush and molasses colored streak going up Fourth street, with leather streamers in the rear, was all that could be seen to mark the fate of the mule.

In Algeria a hospital and dissecting-room attendant has been condemned to prison for cutting the hair off the heads of deceased women. The habit is suspected to generally exist. The discovery was brought about by an Arab insisting on having a lock of his wife's hair. When the coffin was opened, he was surprised to find her hair had been cropped.

Circumstantial Evidence.

In Scribner for June we find some interesting recollections of Charles Sumner, by his former Secretary, Mr. A. B. Johnson. The following extract is an account (and explanation) of the plot to assassinate Mr. Sumner in 1865:

"Simultaneously with the murder of the President, two rough, stalwart men, had gone twice to Mr. Sumner's rooms, and their suspicious demeanor had so frightened the women-servants who saw them, that no current story had been obtained from them as to the appearance of the intruders. The servants had been carefully examined and their every word had been phonographed; drawings of the suspicious visitors had been made by artists from the description shown to them, and altered again and again until they could no longer suggest any change in form or feature. Photographs of these had then been placed in the hands of the detectives, but up to this time no tidings had been gained as to the persons sought. They might have come up from hell and then gone back there, for all he could learn, the Secretary said. But so long as they were undiscovered—or at least so long as their identity was not known, Mr. Stanton thought it absolutely necessary that some care should be taken of Mr. Sumner, so notoriously careless was he of his own safety. On hearing these details, Mr. Sumner ceased to demand the removal of the guard, though he jocosely professed to be more afraid of them than of those they were to defend him against. Perhaps he had reason, for the soldiers had refreshments each night at his expense, and the kind of refreshment was left to the selection of the Sergeant. But when the lady of the house permitted her cook to give the soldiers coffee and sandwiches in the kitchen at midnight, instead of having the refreshments served from the neighboring restaurant, the guards were less dangerous to their friends.

"Who the two men were that so frightened the servants at Mr. Sumner's lodgings and by their singular actions gave point to the suspicions of the Secretary of War, was often the subject of conversation among the very few of the Senator's friends to whom the incident was known. They naturally watched the developments made during the trial of the conspirators, but no conclusion was reached. It remained as one of the unraveled tangles of affairs until after the Senator's death, when I accidentally came upon the trail which led to the discovery of the identity of the suspicious characters, and I received from their own lips, they having little idea of the commotion their course had caused, an account of their visit to Mr. Sumner's rooms on that eventful night. They were members of the Massachusetts delegation to Congress—one the late Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, now Mr. Sumner's successor in the Senate, Henry L. Dawes; and the other his friend Mr. Gooch.

"The facts were thus detailed: Mr. Dawes and Mr. Gooch had been to Richmond, and returning to Washington, had made a tour of the battle-fields about Manassas, reaching Washington on the night of the fourteenth of April, 1865, about sunset. After supper they started out for a walk, joking each other as to their appearance. And well they might. Their clothing was rough, travel-worn, dusty, and even mud-stained. Their hands, faces and necks were much sun-burned, in spite of the wide-brimmed hats they wore. Each carried a stick or, rather, a cudgel, cut as a souvenir on some battle-field, and the hair and beard of each were longer than usual. Thus accoutered, they concluded to call on Mr. Sumner. He then had chambers at the corner of F and Thirteenth street; they knew the house well; so, without ringing, they mounted the stairs and rapped at his door, using their sticks. When it appeared that the Senator was out they left his house, and, passing on, concluded to call on the President. There again they were disappointed, for it appeared, when they rung at the White House, that Mr. Lincoln had gone with some friends to the theater. On their way back to their hotel, they stopped again at Mr. Sumner's lodgings, and again went up to his rooms, and rapped at his door. The noise they made brought a servant to the foot of the stairs. They leaned over the balustrade and questioned her. When did the Senator go out? Did he say when he should return? Would it, they queried between themselves, be worth while to wait? And then they laughed at the evident fear the servant had of two such rough-looking customers. As they were quite fatigued, they went back to their hotel, and in the morning woke to learn that while they were last at Mr. Sumner's lodgings, the shot had been fired that took the life of Mr. Lincoln."

Vocal Clock.

The subjoined description of a curious clock is given in the journal of the Rev. J. Wesley: "On Monday, April 27, 1762, being at Lurgan, in Ireland, I embraced the opportunity, which I had long desired, of talking to Mr. Miller, the contrivor of that statue which was in Lurgan when I was there before. It was the figure of an old man standing in a case, with a curtain drawn before him, over against a clock which stood on the opposite side of the room. Every time the clock struck he opened the door with one hand, drew back the curtain with the other, turned his head, as if looking round on the company, and then said, with a clear, loud, articulate voice: 'Past 1,' or 2, or 3, and so on. But so many came to see this (the like of which all allowed was not to be seen in Europe) that Mr. Miller was in danger of being ruined, not having time to attend to his own business. So, as none offered to purchase it, or reward him for his pains, he took the whole machine to pieces."

Elaboration.

Somebody with nothing better to do has sent a letter to the Postoffice in Chicago with all this address:

In that alluring gathering place, Chicago, Empress of the West,
Famed for mighty conflagrations, divorces, tumults, and the rest,
Dwells the hero of this pother, Alfred Spencer, known by name,
With E. between to make complete. Postmaster, take me to the same;
Let me tell you (I'm not joking) how to know the vet'ran brick—
By a dark-stained meerschaum, smoking—by a huge gold-headed stick,
By the scent of "Frisco" honey, which doth ever round him hang—
By a plug hat, tall and shiny—by—but 'nough said, git, g'lang!!!

PAT'S CRITICISM.

There's a story that's old,
But good if twice told,
Of a doctor of limited skill,
Who cured beast and man
On the "cold water plan,"
Without the small help of a pill.

On his portal of pine
Hung an elegant sign
Depicting a beautiful rill,
And a lake, where a sprite,
With apparent delight,
Was sporting in sweet deshabille.

Pat McCarty one day,
As he sauntered that way,
Stood and gazed at that portal of pine,
When the doctor with pride
Stepped up to his side,
Saying: "Pat, how is that for a sign?"

"There's wan thing," says Pat,
"Ye've lift out o' that,
Which, be jabers, is quite a mistake,
It's trim and it's nate,
But to make it complate
He shud have a [illegible] burd on the lake."

"Ah! indade—pray then tell,
To make it look well,
What bird do you think it may lack?"
Says Pat, "Of the same
I've forgotten the name,
But the song that he sings is 'quack! quack

Pith and Point.

A literary bet—The alphabet.

A storm-center—Old Probabilities.

She that is born a beauty is half married.

Savage saloon-keeper—"Let's lick her."

Vested interest—Money in the waistcoat pocket.

To horse-car conductors all women are passing fare.

Jones is like a candle—he always smokes when he goes out.

I prefer the wisdom of the unlearned to the folly of the loquacious.—Cicero.

A landlord, having let all his houses but one, was asked if that unlet house was his last. "Yes, last, but not leased," was his reply.

Mrs. Mary Sweeney, of Jackson, Mich., beat a man in the race for pound-master. The possibility for puns about this is simply unlimited.

Secretary Bristow entered upon the discharge of his duties with a great deal of spirit.—New Orleans Republican. Great Seizer.—Inter-Ocean.

The racing fever has broken out in a new place. They are having gondola races of a very exciting character in Venice. Bad races for betting on. Gone dollars. See!

Fine sensibilities are like woodbines—delightful luxuries of beauty to twine around a solid, upright stem of understanding; but very poor things if, unsustained by strength, they are left to creep along the ground.

The Detroit Free Press says: "Long John Wentworth makes one plug hat last him nine years, but he changes shirts once in two weeks." And that is much cheaper than if he made one shirt last him nine years, and changed plug hats once in two weeks.—Norristown Herald.

Old Deacon Roberts was worked up to a high state of enthusiasm in a revival. He was exhorting the unconverted to flee from the wrath to come before it was too late, "For," said he, "the Lord is here now, and He may not be here again in twenty years."

Lady (particularly solicitous about the health of the elder Mrs. Jenkins)—"O—er—can you tell me how old Mrs. Jenkins is? Butler (severely)—"Can't say, ma'am! To tell the truth, ma'am, I don't feel justified, as an old servant of the family, in telling my mistress' age to nobody.—Punch.

A Cincinnati brute criticises the "American female speech" with heartless severity. He ridicules the "conversational shriek" of the average American woman, and says that "the screaming belle is a character which all will recognize." And the worst of it is, we fear the Cincinnati brute is right.—St. Louis Globe.

One of the saddest cases of punning on record occurs in the last letter of Julia Ward in the Woman's Journal. She eulogizes Maria Mitchell as one "who professes astronomy, but practices charity. No glittering Saturn or Jupiter leads her away from the gal-axy whose bright particular star she is." The italics are Mrs. Howe's own. Oh! Julia Ward Howe could you make such an idiot of yourself?—Detroit Evening News.

Frightening Children.

Nothing can be worse for a child than to be frightened. The effect of the scare it is slow to recover from; it remains sometimes until maturity, as is shown by many instances of morbid sensitiveness and excessive nervousness. Not unfrequently, fear is employed as a means of discipline. Children are controlled by being made to believe that something terrible will happen to them and punished by being shut up in dark rooms, or by being put in places they stand in dread of. No one, without vivid memory of his own childhood, can comprehend how entirely cruel such things are. We have often heard grown persons tell of the suffering they have endured, as children, under like circumstances, and recount the irreparable injury which they are sure they then received. No parent, no nurse, capable of alarming the young, is fitted for her position. Children, as near as possible, should be trained not to know the sense of fear, which, above everything else, is to be feared in their education, early and late.—New York Freeman's Journal.

Utilizing Bad Language.

Yesterday afternoon a man who had been beaten in a lawsuit stood at the corner of Griswold street and Justice alley and cursed high and low. He was spouting away in vehement tones when a lawyer asked.

"Are you swearing at anybody in particular?"

"No, blast you, no!" ripped the man.

"Well, it's too bad to have all that wasted. I wish you would use a few of the biggest and best oaths on Hannibal Hamlin, the man who raised the rates on postage."

The man gave it to Hamlin right and left for eleven minutes, and then the police interfered.—Detroit Free Press.

All men are more inclined to break the Sabbath in the summer season than at any other time of the year, and that is the very time that preachers choose to desert their posts and travel for pleasure.—Carl Pretzel.

Cruelty to Horses.

At one of the meetings of the Society for the Protection of Animals the opinion was expressed that the use of very tight check-reins on draft horses, designed to make them look spruce and to hold their heads up like carriage horses, was gradually going out of fashion with us. The practice is certainly, to some extent, going out of fashion in Europe, and the same should be true of America, since it is very hard that a horse who has heavy loads to pull all day long should not be allowed to do his work in the way most easy to him. The English authorities, which Mr. Angell once cited in his little pamphlet on the subject, seems to be conclusive.

For example: Mr. Fleming, Veterinary Surgeon of the Royal Engineers, says that nothing can be more absurd than check-reins. They are against reason altogether and place the animal in a false position. The horse stands with a check-rein exactly as a man would stand with a stick under his arms behind his back when told to write. He says he has no doubt, if the public could only realize the fact that it throws away a large portion of the horse's power altogether, and is very cruel besides, this rein would be discontinued. It is not only the head that suffers, but from his head to his tail, from his shoulders to his hoof, and over his whole body, the animal suffers more or less.

With equal positiveness, Dr. Kitching, of York, another expert, declares that if a horse pulling a load finds a check-rein holding back his head, he cannot throw his weight into his collar, and is hindered from giving his body that position which is the most natural and effective. He has to pull by the strength of his muscles only; the weight of his body is lost, and so much pulling strength thrown away, while what remains is exerted at a great expenditure of the horse's powers and health, to say nothing of his comfort. The consequence is that his limbs and muscles became strained and distorted, his knees are bowed forward and his hocks backward.

If a man pulls a load by a strap across his shoulders, he bends his head and chest forward, and relieves his legs; a horse does the same when he can, and ought always to be allowed to do so. In addition, Dr. Kitching insists that tying up a horse in this way interferes with his breathing and with the circulation of the blood in the head, while the heart and lungs are excited by work. This makes the horse uncomfortable, restless and irritable, and, in fact, says Dr. Kitching, "his head aches and pains him, and he gets many a violent jag and blow just because his driver cannot understand the cause of his restlessness. I have seen many horses standing at public house doors, and other places, in this uneasy state, and by-and-by set off in their desire to get home and be unharnessed, when the driver has rushed out and punished the horses for his own error.'—Philadelphia Public Record.

Health and Fashion.

THE Science of Health says: Not until we deal conscientiously with nature as we do with tradesmen shall we, as individuals, be entitled to rewards of merit. We ask for a load of good wood, pay the market price for it, get the worth of our money and have the satisfaction of warmth from the fire it makes. Suppose the dealer knew we would not pay for it. He would not be likely to give full measure of the best quality. The dainty bits of lace, jet ornaments and plumes, rosebuds and velvets composing a hat are very becoming to some faces. The dressy hat has a price; it takes money to pay for it. The little lady wishes to look stylish, pays the price, and is satisfied and happy until the fashion changes. She desires health and elasticity of step, buoyancy of spirit. Could they be purchased at Stewart's or of Worth, millions of dollars would roll in to the credit of their bank accounts. Alas, poor child of fashion! gold cannot buy for you the dewy freshness of a vigorous life. The sunshine and raindrops are gifts. Roses in cheeks, cherries in color of lips, come from within. The price is service, and faithful service, too, under the direction of the most generous and most exacting physician, Mother Nature. Her rewards are sure, her punishments certain. There can be no appeal to a higher court—no amendments to her divinely-appointed "constitution." Will you enter a willing student? Are you willing to measure your life by her rule and compass and square? "No!" Then there is no hope for you.

Nothing in a Name.

A writer says: All names were originally significant, and were always bestowed by the ancients with regard to their well understood meaning. Sometimes they were commemorative of some incident or circumstance connected with the birth of the individual bearing them: as, Thomas, a twin; Mains, May (applied to one born in that month); Septimus, the seventh, etc. In other cases they were expressive of the aspirations, desires or hopes of the parents; as, Victor, one who conquers; Felix, happy; Benedict, blessed. Not unfrequently they were descriptive of personal qualities, as Macras, tall; Pyrrhus, ruddy; Rufus, red haired. Names are as significant now as they were in the days of Plato, and as important, but are frequently ignorantly or carelessly applied, thus making our personal nomenclature worse than meaningless. "A man with the name of George or Thomas," Leigh Hunt observes, "might as well, to all understood purposes, be called spoon or hatband!" Blanche is now anything but the flaxen-haired blonde which her name indicates. Isabel is no longer brown. Cecilia (gray-eyed) belies her name, and "lets fly the arrows of love" from eyes of heavenly blue.

To Cook a Beefsteak.

A learned professor predicts that this sort of thing will by-and-by take the place of some of the present instruction given in schools and lectures: "First class in beefsteak, stand up. Miss Morris, please describe the process of cooking a beefsteak one inch and a half thick, measured by Whiteworth's gauge." "Put it on a gridiron and broil it thoroughly, without scorching, and serve it up with salt and pepper." "Wrong. You may step down and out. The process of cooking a beefsteak of the above dimensions is to place it on a gridiron over a hot fire until the outside is properly browned, but not scorched; you are then to put it on a plate in a hot oven, where you are to leave for from three to five minutes; at the end of that time it will be found cooked through, and of a delicate, roseate, pink hue, neither dried nor burned in any part thereof. If you dare to salt or pepper it before serving, you will receive no diploma from this institute."

Paying by the Inch.

The Evening Post's mode of treating contributors is original—indeed, I may say unique. Its recompense is by the inch. The editors take a MS., cut it down as much as they can, then print it, measure it, and pay twenty-five cents per inch, but this was when a special appeal had been made to their feelings, or the proper reward for labor had been set forth. You may imagine this to be jocular, but it is [illegible] they who have suffered will tearfully attest.

I have known a professional writer to send nearly a column to The Post, and receive for it a check on the counting-room for thirty cents—the price, by the inch, of a sentence somewhere near the middle, all the rest being consigned to the waste basket. The man, if I remember, carried the check to the office, tore it up in the face of Henderson, and made some energetic remarks concerning meanness, coupled with copious profanity.

The Post continues to pay by the inch, nevertheless, and would, if every scrivener in the land should swear the circumambient atmosphere deeply, delightfully, damnably blue. I venture to affirm that it is the only journal in America or civilization that thus starves its contributors by inches. It reverses the trite proverb. When they give it an ell, it takes an inch; and then they give it an ell with an aspiration.—New York Letter to Chicago Times.

The Kabbage.

The kabbage iz one ov the most innosent and reliable erbs that generate from dirt, and tho in their infancy more puny and less likely to liv than a haff-drowned fly, bekum in the old age az tuff and robust as a hornet's nest.

A kabbage is good enny way yu approach it, whether yu go for it raw and cut it up with pepper sass on it; whether yu bile it to deth in a pot, with four pounds ov salt pork for company; whether yu fri it in a spider and call it hot slaw; or whether yu jam it in a barrell with salt and let it work out its destiny in the shape ov sour krout.

The kabbage grows round and round, and wraps itself up tight in its own leafs until at last it puts a head onto itself. Sour krout is the only thing about kabbage that i hav enny doubts about, but my ederkashun in sour krout haz been fearfully neglekted. I hav a few times in mi life caught the aroma that gently stole from an open barrell ov sour krout in a frosty morning, and wondered at it. I may say that i waz surprized and even mortified at its richness. I never et enny sour krout, and i am forced to say that if it tastes az it savours it would take two strong men to hold me while i et sum uv it.—Josh Billings.

Singular Premonition.

One of the most singular and touching incidents connected with the sailing of the Schiller was that concerning Mrs. Caverly and her daughter Amy, who were traveling in company with Mrs. Ridgeway and Mr. Walter. Henry J. Gelien, a son of Henry Gelien, the master painter of the Eagle Company, being detained by business on the steamer, remained on board until it reached Sandy Hook, where the pilot left the ship. Mr. Gelien accompanied the pilot. He had become acquainted with Mrs. and Miss Caverly, and they, forewarned by some mysterious presentment, were anxious to leave the vessel on the pilot's boat. They were dissuaded, however, by Mr. Walter and Mr. Gelien, and determined to remain, although their trunks were packed and ready to be carried on deck. They sent letters to their friends, who reside in East Forty-third street, by Mr. Gelien; and as he descended to the pilot's boat they called out that they would "never see the Highlands again!" —New York Tribune.

The Dinner Parties of a Merchant Prince.

A. T. Stewart is famous for his dinner parties, which are usually given on Sunday. He has one of the finest wine vaults in New York, and brands of brandy, port and sherry that no one else in the country can boast of. His table service is magnificent. One silver dinner set lined with gold was made in London two years ago at a cost of $47,500. It consists of over two hundred pieces. Then he has a famous Dresden china set of two or three hundred pieces, in which no less than seventy different colors are introduced. The china is transparent, and on holding it to the light, the monogram "A. T. S." can be seen like water mark in note paper. Mr. Stewart is a very entertaining host, and he likes the character amazingly. He has the best trained servants in the city, and his dinners pass off in the methodical and systematic manner of clock-work. His wife and niece (Mrs. Butler) usually assisted him in dispensing the hospitalities of the "white marble palace."

Reading.

Few mothers and guardians exercise anything which can be called watchful care as to what books and papers the children shall read? And yet the booksellers' shelves groan under the weight of the most dissipating, weakening and insidious books that can possibly be imagined; and newspapers which ought never to enter any decent house lie on the table of many a family sitting-room. Any one who will take the trouble to examine the records of any large circulating library will be astonished at the immense demand there is for the average novels. And in our parlors and chambers to-day myriads of little girls are curled up in corners poring over such reading—stories of complicated modern society—the very worst kind of reading for a child; and the mothers do not know what they are reading; and the children answer, when asked what they read, "Oh, anything that comes along!"

A QUEER genius, said to be worth $20,000 or over, is in the habit of frequenting the Buffalo police stations for the purpose of "sponging" lodging. The other night he was searched, and about $4,000 was found in his pockets.

The Deluge—The Chaldean Account of It.

The interest excited a couple of years ago by George Smith's translation of a fragmentary Chaldean account of the Deluge, from the Assyrian tablets discovered by Layard, is renewed by the same gentleman's recovery from the ruins of Kouyunjik of missing parts of that record, nearly restoring the whole inscription, which is supposed to date from at least two thousand years before the Christian era. This Chaldean version, however, differs in many respects from the Biblical legend, of which it is manifestly the prototype, not only in its details, but chiefly in the polytheism of its myth. Hasisadra, the Chaldean Noah, is transformed into a demigod, who, in his immoral abode, tells an earthly visitor the story of his escape from the flood wherein the gods punished the wickedness of the children of men. His floatings on the face of the waters were of much briefer duration than those rehearsed in Genesis, the deluge described by him having lasted but six days, and his vessel having been stranded upon the Mountains of Nizir on the seventh day, whilst the Noachian ark found no resting place until the seventeenth day of the seventh month from its launching, and nearly a year elapsed before the earth was restored to habitable condition. The graceful scriptural legend of the winged messenger of peace, from which the olive branch derives its emblematical significance, is less poetically given in the old version, though the correspondence of the two is close enough to show their relationship. The raven first sent out by Noah plays no important part in the drama, the successive journeys of the dove, his later emissary, leading to his ultimate release. In the Assyrian story these episodes are reversed in order of time and importance. Hasisadra is made to say:

On the seventh day in the course of it
I sent forth a dove and it left. The dove went and turned, and
A resting place it did not find, and it returned.
I sent forth a swallow and it left. The swallow went and turned, and
A resting place it did not find, and it returned.
The raven went, and the corpses on the water it saw, and
It did eat, it swam, and wandered away, and did not return.
I sent the animals forth to the four winds. I poured out a libation,
I built an altar on the peak of the mountain,
By seven herbs I cut.
At the bottom of them I placed reeds, pikes and simgar.
The gods collected at its burning, the gods collected at its good burning:
The gods like flies over the sacrifice gathered.

In addition to this most interesting discovery, Mr. Smith found in the course of his Assyrian explorations more than three thousand fragments of ancient inscriptions relating, among other things, the legends of the Creation, of the Tower of Babel, etc., which may prove of great importance, not only in their mythological but in their ethnological bearings.

Salt Mines of Louisiana.

One of the most wonderful salt mines in the world is located on the Island Petit Anse, St. Mary's Parish, Louisiana. It was discovered in 1862 by the Confederates, while attempting to deepen a salt spring. The workmen struck what they supposed to be a rock, but which on examination proved to be a bed of solid and almost pure rock salt. It has since been ascertained that the bed is sixty feet or more in thickness, and covers an area of 144 acres. The salt of commerce is derived chiefly from saline wells, or sea water, crystal rock salt being comparatively rare. Mines exist in Austria, Spain and some other countries; but none of them yield as pure a product and with so little expenditure of labor as the the Petit Anse Mine.

A WORD IN SEASON.—Health is a blessing which comparatively few enjoy in all its fullness. Those endowed by nature with robust frames and vigorous constitutions should be careful not to trifle with them.

When we enter the seasons of periodic fevers, the increased heat of the sun develops a miasma which pervades the air. The evil is inextinguishable; our duty to guard against it is imperative! Fortunately for those whose lot is cast in low marshy districts or new clearings, nature provides a cure and preventive. DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS are endowed with rare prophylactic or disease-preventing powers, and as "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," should be taken in the full vigor of health, so as to fortify the system against the assault of summer disease, and thus secure by their life-giving, strengthening, restorative, and antiseptic virtues, a defense against atmospheric poison. 38

THERE was only one woman saved out of the 102 on the Schiller.

TO LEAD ALL COMPETITORS is the aim of the proprietors of the Wilson shuttle sewing machine. It is founded on the very best principles known to sewing machine science, and improvements, in advance of all other sewing machines, are being adopted constantly. The Wilson is rapidly gaining the preference of all parties that are acquainted with sewing machines, and it has already taken the front rank among the first-class machines of this country; and its price, owing to its being manufactured where labor and material is much cheaper than in Eastern cities, is fifteen dollars less than all other first-class machines. Machines will be delivered at any railroad station in this county, free of transportation charges, if ordered through the company's branch house at 197 State street, Chicago. They send an elegant catalogue and chromo circular free on application. This company want a few more good agents.

WILHOFT'S TONIC!—A SAFE, SURE, AND SCIENTIFIC CURE!—The unprecedented sale of this world-renowned medicine proves incontestibly that no remedy has superseded the use of this reliable Tonic. No spleen has been found so hard as not to yield to its softening influence, and no liver so hypertrophied as not to give up its long-retained bilious secretions, and no Chill or Fever has yet refused to fall into line. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

IT is often remarked by strangers visiting our State that we show a larger proportion of good horses than any other State in the Union. This we tell them, is owing to two principal reasons; in the first place, we breed from the very best stock; and in the second place, our people use Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, which, in our judgment, are of incalculable advantage.

JOHNSON'S Anodyne Liniment will give more relief in cases of Chronic Rheumatism, no matter how severe, than any other article known to medical men. Used internally and externally.

GLEN FLORA SPRING WATER, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

HOW TO GET A HOME. See advertisement.

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT IT.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA.,
November 19, 1874.

MESSRS. CRADDOCK & CO.:

The East India Hemp has been taken by Rev. Matthias Binder, O. S. B., and Rev. Sebastian Arnold, O. S. B., both assistant pastors of this Church, and so far has given relief to both. They suffered from affections of the LUNG AND BRONCHIAL ORGANS. We have recommended, through charity to sufferers, the Cannabis Indica to different persons, and continue the same in good conscience, knowing the effects by experience. Please find inclosed check for twelve bottles of syrup, pills and ointment. We shall inform you in due time what further success the medicine shall meet with.

Yours truly,
REV. FERDINAND WOLF, O. S. B.

N. B.—This Remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not dissipate—Night Sweats, Irritation of the Nerves, Difficult Expectorations, Sharp pains in the Lungs, Sore Throat, Nausea at the Stomach, Inaction of the Bowels, and Wasting of the Muscles. [illegible]

Address CRADDOCK & CO.,
1032 Race Street, Philadelphia.

Send for circular.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES. Foolishly spent—money paid for children's shoes not protected by SILVER TIPS. Two weeks is about the time it takes a smart, active child to ventilate the toe of a shoe. SILVER TIPS the only preventive.

Absurd to think of using thread which will rot, or pegs that shrink and fall out. To fasten the soles of Boots and Shoes to the upper, CABLE SCREW WIRE is the only method that will hold. CABLE SCREW WIRE

NEEDLES. Any machine's, all sizes, 40 cts. per doz. Postpaid. Clark's store, Vineland, N. J.

OPIUM HABIT Cured Cheap. No Publicity. Dr. Armstrong, Berrien, Mich.

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G CO., Buchanan, Mich.

$10 to $25 PER DAY—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEO. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$75 A WEEK. Agents wanted everywhere. Four outfit 25c. FRITCH & WALKER, Dayton, Ohio.

$250 A MONTH to male and female agents everywhere. Address EUREKA MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Buchanan, Michigan.

$3 SAMPLE Free and Big Pay to Male and Female everywhere. Address THE UNION PUB. CO., Newark, N. J.

SOMETHING for you. Sells at sight. Our Agents coin money. We have work and money for all, men or women, boys or girls, whole or spare time. Send stamp for Catalogue. Address FRANK GLUCK, New Bedford, Mass.

FOR SALE. Chicago Suburban Lots at $100 each—$15 down and $5 monthly for balance—within a short distance of city limits, with hourly trains and cheap fare. Send for circular. IRA BROWN, 143 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED By one of the oldest and strongest LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES of NEW YORK, on a full commission contract. Address, giving name, age, references and particulars of experience, if any, in the business, Box 2214 P. O., New York.

AGENTS WANTED for the fastest-selling BOOK ever published. Send for circulars and our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUB. CO., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.

Now or Never. A rare chance for the right person. We mean business and will pay well. Address THE "ALLIANCE" PUBLISHING CO., Chicago.

YOUNG MEN Wanted to learn Telegraphing and take offices on new lines which we are furnishing with operators. Salary from $40 to $100 per month. Particulars mailed free. Address N. W. TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE, Janesville, Wis.

HOW TO CURE Corns, Neuralgia, Asthma, Chills and Fever, Drunkenness, Rheumatism. TO MAKE Hair Grow, Ottawa Beer, Boots Waterproof, Yeast. Send 10 cents for either receipt or the 10 for 50 cents. PERRY & CO., P. O. Box 2321 or 212 Broadway, N. Y.

$10. to $500. Invested in Wall Street often leads to fortune. A 72-page book explaining everything, and copy of the Wall Street Review SENT FREE. JOHN HICKLING & CO., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, N. Y.

DIRTIEST and hardest work in the house made comparatively easy and pleasant. Every one interested in reducing woman's work should send me a stamp for our circular. GRAY, DIXON & CO., 51 Clybourn Ave., Chicago.

F. J. NASH, 781 BROADWAY, New York, manufacturer of SOLID GOLD JEWELRY of every description. The stock is large, very choice, and is offered at retail at trade prices to keep our workmen going. Bills under $15, P. O. order in advance. Over $15, C. O. D. privilege to examine. Catalogues free.

INSURE AGAINST ACCIDENTS by a Yearly General Accident Policy in the TRAVELERS INSURANCE COMPANY of Hartford, Conn. Apply to any Agent, or write to the Company.

Book Keeping. Double Entry.—By Clark's method, so simplified that any one may master the science without a teacher. Bound in cloth. Sent post-paid on receipt of $1. Agents wanted. W. S. Clark & Co., 148 Race street (Aikens Newspaper Union Building), Cincinnati, O.

$20000 GOLD! To Agents in addition to largest cash commission. AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY with fashion plates and supplements. Specimen and circulars free. WALKER, REED & CO., 726 Sansom St., Phila.

HOW TO GET A HOME. IOWA LANDS, 800,000 ACRES. Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to DAVIDSON & CALKINS, R. R. Land Office, Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

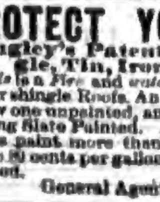
ATTENTION, OWNERS OF HORSES.

Ask your Harness Maker for the Zinc Collar Pad. They are warranted to cure any sore neck on horse or mule, or money refunded, if printed directions are followed. Send 75c. for sample. Zinc Collar Pad Co., Sole Manuf'rs, Buchanan, Mich.

Trusses, Supporters and Pile Pipes. "Seeley's Hard Rubber Trusses." Cool, cleanly, light, perfectly safe and comfortable, free from all sour, rusty, chafing, strapping, or poulticelike unpleasantness; used in bathing, indorsed by the profession, long tested, always reliable. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. Genuine stamped "I. B. Seeley." Establishments, 1347 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, and 737 Broadway, New York. Sent by mail or express, and sold by leading druggists. Send for catalogue.

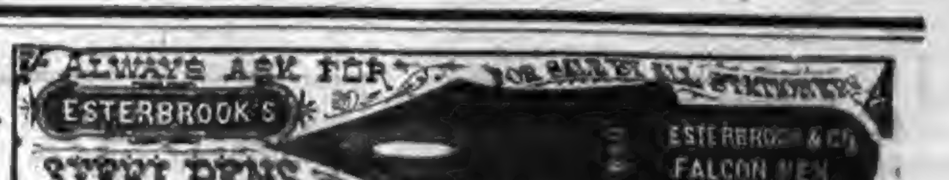
PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS. Langley's Patent Slate Paint—For Shingle, Tin, Iron and Gravel Roofs. This is a Fire and water-proof Paint, especially designed for shingle Roofs. An old roof Slate Painted will outlast a new one unpainted, and a new roof will last three times as long Slate Painted. As a matter of economy, a roof needs paint more than any other part of a building. Price 80 cents per gallon. Send for Pamphlet. Agents wanted. WILLIS G. JACKSON. General Agent, 160 Washington St., Chicago.

N. F. BURNHAM'S TURBINE



WATER WHEEL Was selected, 4 years ago, and put to work in the Patent Office, Washington, D. C., and has proved to be the best. 19 sizes made. Prices lower than any other first-class Wheel. Pamphlet free. N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

SEA FOAM. E. W. Pierce & Co., Providence, R. I., say: "We have used the Sea Foam a long while and consider it the best Baking Powder in use." Demond, Ellis & Nickerson, Grocers, Boston, Mass., say: "Wherever we have sold your Sea Foam it has given excellent satisfaction, and it is pronounced superior to any known Baking Powder." Try it. "Its economy is wonderful. It saves Milk, Eggs, &c., and sells like Hot Cakes." Send for Circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & Co., 176 Duane St., N. Y.



ALWAYS ASK FOR ESTERBROOK'S STEEL PENS. Works Camden, N. J. NEW-YORK OFFICE, 26 MAIDEN LANE. FOR SALE BY ALL STATIONERS. ESTERBROOK & CO. FALCON PEN. Samples & Prices on application.

AGENTS WANTED for the best selling book out. "Woman as a Wife and Mother." by Pye Henry Chavasse, M. D. Over 75,000 sold; liberal terms. Apply at once for territory and outfit to S. T. SOUDER & CO., 119 Sansom st., Philadelphia.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE LIVER PILLS. FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

DO YOUR OWN PRINTING!

NOVELTY PRINTING PRESS. For Professional and Amateur Printers, Schools, Societies, Manufacturers, Merchants, and others it is the BEST ever invented. 13,000 in use. Ten styles. Prices from $5.00 to $150.00. BENJ. O. WOODS & CO. Manuf'rs and dealers in all kinds of Printing Material, 49 Federal St. Boston. Send stamp for Catalogue.)

ELASTIC TRUSS. This new Truss is worn with perfect comfort night and day. Adapts itself to every motion of the body, retaining rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain until permanently cured. Sold cheap by the Elastic Truss Co., No. 683 Broadway, N. Y. City. Sent by mail. Call or send for Circular, and be cured.

PORTABLE Soda Fountains, $40, $50, $75 & $100. GOOD, DURABLE AND CHEAP. Shipped ready for Use. Manufactured by CHAPMAN & CO., Madison, Ind. Send for a Catalogue.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE. MEDICINE RENDERED USELESS! VOLTA'S ELECTRO BELTS and Bands are indorsed by the most eminent physicians in the world for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, liver complaint, dyspepsia, kidney disease, aches, pains, nervous disorders, fits, female complaints nervous and general debility, and other chronic diseases of the chest, head, liver, stomach kidneys and blood. Book with full particulars free by VOLTA BELT Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

OPIUM Habit Cured. A certain and sure cure, without inconvenience and at home. An antidote that stands purely on its own merits. Send for my quarterly magazine, (it costs you nothing,) containing certificates of hundreds that have been permanently cured. I claim to have discovered and produced the FIRST, ORIGINAL AND ONLY SURE CURE FOR OPIUM EATING. DR. S. B. COLLINS, La Porte, Ind.

CHEAP FARMING LANDS. The C., R. I. & P. R. R. Company is offering for sale at Low Prices and Most Reasonable Terms, TO ACTUAL SETTLERS, Some of the Most Desirable and Fertile Unimproved Land in IOWA! These Lands are situated on or near the line of its railroad, the GREAT CENTRAL ROUTE from the Eastern States to the Pacific Coast, and are mostly between the important cities of Des Moines and Council Bluffs, in the best Agricultural and most rapidly-developing portion of Iowa. PRICES ARE LOW, Ranging from $5 to $10 per acre. The average price being somewhat less than $8. [illegible] J. L. DREW, Land Commissioner, C., R. I. & P. R. R. CO., DAVENPORT, IOWA.

Smith Organ Co., BOSTON, MASS. These Standard Instruments Sold by Music Dealers Everywhere. AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWN. Sold throughout the United States on the INSTALLMENT PLAN: That is, on a System of Monthly Payments. Purchasers should ask for the SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN. Catalogues and full particulars on application.

In Actual Use: MORE THAN 55,000 ESTEY ORGANS! MANUFACTURED BY J. ESTEY & CO., BRATTLEBORO, VT. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.'S "VIBRATOR" THRESHER. The BRILLIANT SUCCESS of this Grain-Saving, Time-Saving THRESHER, is unprecedented in the annals of Farm Machinery. In a brief period it has become widely known and FULLY ESTABLISHED, as the "LEADING THRESHING MACHINE."

NICHOLS SHEPARD & CO
VIBRATOR
VIBRATOR

GRAIN RAISERS REFUSE to submit to the wasteful and imperfect work of other Threshers, when posted on the vast superiority of this one, for saving grain, saving time, and doing fast, thorough and economical work. THRESHERMEN FIND IT highly advantageous to run a machine that has no "Beaters," "Pickers," or "Aprons," that handles Damp Grain, Long Straw, Headings, Flax, Timothy, Millett and all such difficult grain and seeds, with ENTIRE EASE AND EFFECTIVENESS. Cleans to perfection; saves the farmer his thresh bill by extra saving of grain; makes no "Litterings;" requires LESS THAN ONE-HALF the usual Belts, Boxes, Journals, and Gears; easier managed; less repairs; one that grain raisers prefer to employ and wait for, even at advanced prices, while other machines are "out of jobs." Four sizes made with 6, 8, 10 and 12 horse "Mounted" Powers, also a specialty of Separators "alone," expressly for STEAM POWER, and to match other Horse Powers. If interested in grain raising, or threshing, write for Illustrated Circulars (sent free) with full particulars of sizes, styles, prices, terms, etc. NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Michigan.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE
FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California, and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

Guns. Catalogue Free. Rudolph & Co., 108 N. 5th St. Louis, Mo.

REVERSE YOUR PLAN! Leave off purgatives and violent medicines that prostrate the vital powers, and for a BLOOD Purifier, try HAMILTON'S Buchu & Dandelion which acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, and removes impurities of the system, by opening its outlets. Kross Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.

OPEN THE SEWERS!! When the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels do not act healthfully, the wastes from the action of the system remain in the blood, and produce irritation and disease. These organs are the outlets of the system and under the influence of Hamilton's Buchu and Dandelion, are kept in good running order. Kross Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. The World is in Bloom. Nature wears her Summer smile. But the victim of Nervous Debility is like a blighted branch in the sunshine. Let him re-vitalize the tone and purify his system with Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient, and within a week he will feel like a new man. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

DR RIDGE'S FOOD for INFANTS AND INVALIDS. Sold in cans by Druggists. [illegible]

HALL'S PATENT STANDARD SAFES AT "HARD PAN" PRICES. HALL'S SAFE & LOCK CO. CHICAGO. ILL.

BECKWITH PORTABLE FAMILY SEWING $25. MACHINE DOUBLE THREAD. BECKWITH S. M. CO NEW YORK & CHICAGO.

"PSYCHOMANCY, or Soul Charming." How either sex may fascinate and gain the love and affection of any person they choose, instantly. This art all can possess, free, by mail, 25 cents; together with a Marriage Guide, Egyptian Oracle, Dreams, Hints to Ladies, &c. 1,000,000 sold. A queer book. Address T. WILLIAM & CO., Pub's, Philadelphia.

DR. WHITTIER, No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo., continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. Dr. W.'s establishment is chartered by the State of Missouri, was founded and has been established to secure safe, certain and reliable relief. Being a graduate of several medical colleges, and having the experience of a long and successful life in his specialties, he has perfected remedies that are effectual in all these cases. His patients are being treated by mail or express everywhere. No matter who failed, call or write. From the great number of applications he is enabled to keep his charges low. 36 pages, giving full symptoms, for two stamps.

MARRIAGE GUIDE, 260 pages, a popular book which should be read by everybody. No married pair, or persons contemplating marriage, can afford to do without it. It contains the cream of medical literature on this subject, the results of Dr. W.'s long experience; also the best thoughts from late works in Europe and America. Sent sealed, post-paid for 50 cts.

O. N. U. No. 38

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

A New Store

With an entire new stock of

BOOTS & SHOES,

New STYLES of all kinds at the LOWEST PRICES at

J. E. WOODFORD'S

Thaw located at Auburn with a fine stock of BOOTS and SHOES, which will be sold at the Lowest Figures for Cash!

My Facilities for making CUSTOM WORK are not excelled anywhere and those favoring me—with their orders may be certain of getting the best material.

W. W. HUMES, Foreman.

To the trade, great inducements are offered in Leather, Findings, &c. Please call and examine my stock before purchasing.

FRESH ARRIVAL OF NEW GOODS

AT THE

GRAND CENTRAL

Woolen Goods for the next THIRTY DAYS sold without regard to C

A JOB LOT OF SHAWLS

Bleached and Brown Muslin,
Percales and Prints, Dennims,
And Shirtings, Carpets and
Oilcloths, Table Linen and
Towling. A Large assort of

ALPACCAS,

AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Gents' Collars, Hats, and Suspenders. Ladies Collars and Cuffs, Willow Ware, Satchels, and Carpet Bags. COTTENADES from 15c to 35c per yd, fine assortment of

CASSIMERES,

at very low figures. Call at the Grand Central, next door to Davis' Hardware store.

WILLIAM RICHMOND, Pro.

C. P. Houser & Co.,

—Dealer In—

BOOKS AND STATIONERY

BEST Window Paper HOLLAND'S and Oil Shades always hand and CHEAP for CASH.

PICTURES, FRAMES, CORD, and TASSELS, Curtain and Window Fx'trs the Best in the Market.

—The Largest and finest assortment of—

WALL PAPER

EVER BROUGHT TO THIS MARKET.

Their store is located in Ensley's new brick block North of the Court House,
AUBURN, INDIANA.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

F. E. DAVENPORT,

Corner Main and Eighth-Sts.,

—DEALER IN—

Pure Drugs and Medicines,

DYE STUFFS, PERFUMERY,

Toilet Soaps Cosmetics, Hair Oils, Brushes, Combs, Toilet Mirrors and Druggists' Sundries in General.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY!

Wall and Window Paper!

Oiled, Linen and Slat Window Shades, and Shade Fixtures.

All the lattest POEMS and MISSELANIOUS BOOKS constantly on hand or ordered. Blank Books, Pocket Memorandas, Portmonies and Bill Books, WRITING PAPERS. All Styles and prices ALBUMS! ALBUMS! ALBUMS just received for the Holliday trade
Over $300.00 worth of Juvenile and Toy Books, which will be sold at panic prices. Smith's Gold Pens, warranted the best. Also steel Pens, Penholders, Pencils, Ink and Ink Stands &c.

SCHOOL BOOKS!

Covered with best Cover ever invented Free Of Charge

Davenport has the exclusive right to use this book cover in Auburn, and will give his patrons the benefit of the same.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In Amrican & Swiss Watches,

TOYS

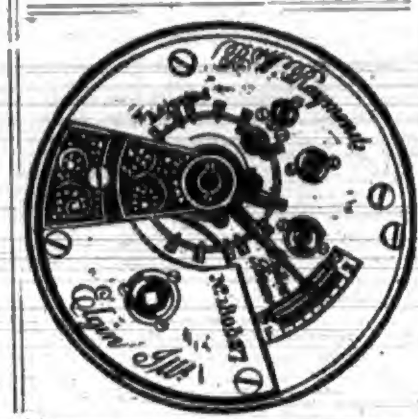
FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,
Jewelry,
Clocks, Silver Ware!
GOLD PENS,
Ladies GOLD Chains,
Gents Chains,
Gold and Silver Rings,
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,



V. A BEARD

Grocer in Auburn, North of Court House on Seventh Street,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS

TEAS, COFFEES, SUGARS, SALT FISH.

Flour and Feed, Tubs Pails, Buckets, Sugars Boxes, Etc. A large variety o

TOBACCOS AND CIGARS,

Confectioneries of all kinds, and Fancy Notions, Cove Oysters, &c. A speciality in Green and Dried Fruits, and Canned Fruits. Goods delivered inside the coporation.

Fruit House Prices.

Granger Headquarters!

NO MIDDLE MEN with us; this is the secret of our immense trade. We buy at first hands and sell direct to the consumer; hence, we save our customers the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale merchants. These profits amount to from 10 to 20 per cent. Our customers get the benefit of them. Take Teas, for instance, the profits on that article are so great that the price is often doubled before it reaches the consumer. Every time it changes hands there is 10 to 20c, per pound added to it. This, of course, the consumer has to pay. Of course the retailer will endeavor to persuade you that his Teas are worth the money, that they cost him so and so. Well, this is all true, but the trouble is he has paid too much in the first place and can't help himself. He purchases from the wholesale grocer, and the wholesale grocer has to add his 20c. All these extra profits our customers get the benefit of, and it is just the same as Coffees, Sugars, Spices, Canned Goods, Oysters, &c., as on Teas. No Middle Men with us. They would starve to death if they had to live on the profits they make of us.

TEAS! TEAS! TEAS!

Twenty to Forty Cents, at least Saved on the Pound.

Young Hyson,	30, 50, 80, $1 00, best 1 10	Oolong	30, 60; best 90
Gunpowder	60, 1 00; best 1 10	Uncolored Japan,	50, 60; best 9
Imperial,	60, 90; best 1 10

SUGARS! SUGARS!

There has been a great excitement in the Market in consequence of the talked of duty going on, and Sugars have advanced, but no advance with us. We laid in a three months' supply, anticipating this thing.

Coffee A,	10 c	N. O. Genuine,	9c
Coffee B,	9½c	Good Vellow,	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Coffee is the same as Sugars. The duty talk has influenced a rise. No advance on our stock. Got enough for three months ahead.

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	25 and 27c
Second Best Rio,	23c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	20c	Damsons per can,	20c
Blackberries per can,	12½c	Green Gages per can,	30c
Tomatoes per can,	12½c	Strawberries per can,	25c
Corn per can,	12½c

Wines and Liquors.

For my part I don't approve of any one purchasing them that can do without them, but it is an admitted fact that there is more money used in the United States for Liquors than for Flour, and for the benefit of those who wish to indulge in the luxury, we will guarantee them a saving of at least 50c on the dollar, and for the sick and invalid our wines and old '76 whiskey cannot be beat.

Sherry and Port per gallon,	$1 50 and 2 00
Sherry and Port in bottles,	50c.
California Angelica and Sweet Muscatelle, per per gallon,	2 50
New England Rum, per gallon,	1 50; best 2 00
Holland Gin, Old Tom,	1 50 and 2 50

Rye and Bourbon Whiskey, all prices, 90c., 1 25 1 40, 1 75, 2 00 and 2 50 per gallon.
The Old '76 we have reduced 50c per gallon; did sell it at 3 00, and this in the face of the 20c per gallon duty going on, but we laid in a large supply before the duty went on.

SYRUPS, SYRUPS.

Best Sugar, Loaf, per gallon,	1 00	Extra Golden per gallon,	60
White Dripps, per gallon,	85	New Orleans per gallon,	70c to 1 00
Silver Dripps per gallon,	95	Cuba Molasses per gallon,	45c

CANDIES! CANDIES!

Best Stick per pound,	18c
French Candy per pound,	20 and 25c
Oysters per can,	18 and 25c
Sugar Cured Hams per pound,	15c
Pickled Pork per pound,	11c
Smoked Sugar Cured Shoulders per pound,	11c

DRIED FRUITS—Prunes. We had the fortune to purchase a lot of ten casks at an Assignee's Sale at a sacrifice of 5c per pound.

This reduction we have made to-day, and now offer the best prunes at 10c per pound, former price was 15c.

Valencia Raisins per pound,	14c
Zantee Currants per pound,	10c
Brazil Nuts per quart,	12½c
Soft-shelled Almons per quart,	10c
Oranges and Lemons,	25 to 40c per dozen
Roasted Pea Nuts per quart,	8c

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Fish and Neats Foot Oil per gallon,	1 00	Head Light Oil per gallon,	25c
Coal and Rose Oil per gallon,	20c	Machine Oil per gallon,	50 and 50c

FISH, FISH, FISH, FISH,

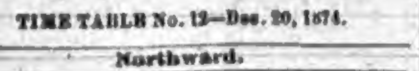
A Large Assortmen os both Salt Water and Lake Fish.

No. 1 White Fish ½ bbl	6 50	No. 1 Mackeral in Kits	1 50
No. 2 do do	5 00	No. 1 Famis in Kits	1 25
No. 1 Lake Shad ½ bbl.	8 00	George's Bank Codfish per pound	9 and 7
No. 1 Pickeral ½ bbl		Extra Mess Mackeral " "	9 and 14c
White Fish in kits No. 1	1 25	Herrings each	1c
White Fish family No. 3	1 00

25 Cents on the Dollar Saved at

THE FRUIT HOUSE.

RAILROADS.



Indianapolis Peru & Chicago R.R.

TIME TABLE No. 12—Dec. 20, 1874.

Northward.

Stations.	No. 1	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Indianapolis	6 30m	12 25p	3 55p	12 30
Noblesville	7 44	12 29	5 10	1 30
Tipton	8 30	1 15	5 57	2 15
Miami	9 37	1 50	6 38	2 55
Kokomo	9 11	2 26	7 05
Peru	10 09	3 15	7 40

Southward.

Stations.	No. 2	No. 4	No. 6
Indianapolis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Noblesville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Tipton	3 06	2 29	7 44
Kokomo	3 13	1 50	7 02
Miami	2 46	1 15	6 35
Peru	2 10	12 35	6 00

E. C. MURPHY, Supt. Mich. Div,
R. M. HAWLEY, Master of Tran.
C. B. ROBINSON, General Sup't,
F. P. WADE, Gen. Ticket Agt.

Lake Shore & Mich. Southern R.R

Air Line Division

ON and after Sunday, Nov. 15, 1874 Passenger Trains will leave Waterloo city and other stations as follows, daily except Sundays:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom'd'n
Butler	2:40 p m.	x 2:35 a m.	8:00 p m
Waterloo	2:56 "	2:53 "	8:19 "
Sedan	3,05	3,00	8:30 "
Corunna	3,10	3,06	8:35 "

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.15 pm	11,30 pm	6:50 p m
Sedan	2.26	11,35	7:02 "
Waterloo	2:28 "	11:44 "	7:11 "
Butler	2:40 "	x12:01 a m	7:55 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin R. R.

Time Table to take effect May 23, 1875.

Going South.

Fort Wayne	1 15 pm	2 00a.m	5 35pm
Ossian	2 02		6 42
Bluffton	2 30	2 10	7 17
Keystone	3 02		7 57
Montpelier	3 12	3 44	8 08
Hartford	3 40pm	4 05	8 40
Eaton	4 02		9 06
Muncie	4 37	4 47	9 46
McCowan's	4 53	5 05
New Castle	5 30	5 40
Cam. City	6 05	6 11
Beesons	6 22	6 27
Connersville	6 35	6 40
Indianapolis	8 30	9 50
Louisville	11 10	12 45pm
Cincinnati	10 30	9 40

Going North.

Cincinnati	7 30am	1 20pm
Louisville		2 40	7 00pm
Indianapolis		7 25	4 30am
Connersville	10 32	7 35
Beesons	10 45	7 52
Cam City	11 04	8 12
New Castle	11 40	8 55
McCowans	12 15pm
Muncie	12 32	9 55	6 50am
Eaton	1 02	10 28	7 29
Hartford	1 24	10 50	7 54
Montpelier	1 49	11 17	8 52
Keystone	1 58		8 36
Bluffton	2 30	11 58	9 15
Ossian	2 50	11 28am	9 52
Ft. Wayne	3 45	1 15	11 00

W. W. WORTHINGTON, Supt.
ROBT. RILLIE, Gen'l Ticket Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect May 23d—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations	Mail	Accom.	Jack. Acm.
Cincinnati		7 30
Louisville	7 00pm
Indianapolis	4 35am
Ft Wayne	10 45	4 35
Auburn	11 40	6 07
Waterloo	11 56	6 37
Summit		7 15
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 5	6 00	6 00 a
Reading	1 7		7 32
Bankers	1 12		7 52
Jonesville	2 30		8 20
Jackson	3 40		10 10
Detroit	6 30p m		2 00p
Grand Rapids	9 30
Lansing	6 47
Saginaw	9 03
Bay City	9 55

Going South.

Bay City	6 40 a m		2 45p
Saginaw	7 30		3 38
Lansing	10 40		9 55
Grand Rapids	7 30		12 00
Detroit	9 50		5 40
Jackson Dep	12 40		9 50
Jonesville	1 55		10 30
Bankers	2 12		10 47
Reading	2 26		11 00
Ar Angola	3 25	6 15	11 55
Pleasant Lake		6 26
Waterloo	4 05	7 55	12 33a
Auburn	4 20	9 25	12 49
Auburn Junction		8 20
Fort Wayne, Arrive	5 15	11 10	1 40
Indianapolis		10 30	6 50
Louisville			12 45p
Cincinnati			9 40a

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

DETOIT, EEL RIVER & ILLINOIS Rail Road.

Short Line between Auburn and the East and West.

Trains run on Cleveland time. Through trains will run on the following time, in effect Sunday May 23d, 1875.

Going East.			Going West.
No. 3, Express.	No. 1. Mail.	STATIONS	No. 2, Mail.	No. 4, Express.
5.40 P M	10 05 A M	lv Logans't ar	6.15 pm	7.30 am
5.55 "	11.25	Adamsboro.	7.00	7.10 am
6.05 "	11.38	Hoover's	5.55	6.53
6.12 "	11.48	Mexico	5.41	6.42
6.25 "	11.59	Denver.	5.55	6.30
6.32 "	12.30	Chili	5.23	6.19
6.46 "	12.44	Roann	5.12	5.59
6.58 "	12.56 PM	Laketon	4.57	5.39
7.08 "	1.08	N. Manchest'r	4.40	5.25
7.16 "	1.15	Lib. Mills	4.29	5.14
7.29 "	1.25	Collamer	4.19	4.59
7.34 "	1.30	S. Whitley	4.07	4.49
7.44 "	*1.40	Taylor's	4.02	4.31
7.56 "	1.52	Columbia city	3.50	4.15
8.11 "	*2.06	Collin's	3.38	3.55
8.21 "	2.16	Churubusco	3.18	3.48
8.31 "	*2.25	Potter's	3.08	3.27
8.39 "	2.32	G. R. Crossing	2.59	3.15
8.46 "	2.39	Cedar Creek	2.29	3.03
8.57 "	2.50	Aub. Juncti'n	2.26	2.43
9.05 "	2.58	Auburn	2.20	2.35
9.32 "	3.15	Mooresville	2.02	2.14
9.35 "	3.25 PM	ar. Butler lv.	1.50 P M	2.00 a m

CONNECTIONS—At Logansport with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St Louis, Logansport, Crawfordsville & Southwestern and Toledo. Wabash & Western R. R's. At Denver with Indianapolis, Peru & Chicago Railway, for Rochester, Plymouth, LaPorte, Michigan City, Peru, Kokomo and Indianapolis At N Manchester with Cincinnati, Wabash & Mich R'y. At Columbia City with Pittsburg, Ft. W. & Chicago, for Ft Wayne Lima, Crestline and Pittsburg. At Grand Rapids crossing with Grand Rapids R'y. At Auburn Junction with Ft. Wayne Jackson & Saginaw, for Angola, Jackson and Saginaw R'y. for Butler with Lake Shore & Mich. Southern Caw. Toledo, Detroit and all eastern cities.

J. A. HUGHSTON, Gen. Ticket Agt.
A. B. SCUTRAHD, Gen. Supt.

The COURIER is now the largest paper in the county, and can be had for $2 a year.

Try the COURIER once, and see how you like it.

RAILROADS.

Pittsburgh, Ft Wayne & Chicago R

ON and after May 23d, 1875, trains will run a follows, Sundays excepted.

Going West.

STATIONS	FAST EX.	MAIL.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Pittsburg	2,00 A M		8,00 A M	2,00 P M.
Rochester	3 09 "	"	9,22 "	3,[illegible] "
Alliance	5,35 "	"	12,30 P M	5,54 "
Orrville	7,10 "	A. M	2,25 "	7,31 "
Mansfield	9,07 "	"	4,40 "	9,36 "
Crest- ar	9.40 "	4,50 "	5,15 "	9,55 "
line ...lv	10,00 "	6,30 "	5,35 "	10,00 "
Forest	11,18 "	8,10 "	7,27 "	11,24 "
Lima	12,20 P M	11,20 "	8,45 "	12,27 A. "
Ft Wayne	2,40 "	2,25 P. M	11,35 A M	2,25 "
Plymouth	4,40 "	6,10	2,33 "	5,23 "
Chicago	7,50 "		6,30 "	8,50 "

Going East.

STATIONS	MAIL	FAST EX.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Chicago	5,15 A M	9,20 A. M,	5,35 A. M.	9,20 P. M
Plymouth	9.20 ..	12,15 P. M.	9,05 "	12,[illegible]0 A. M
Ft Wayne	12,20 PM	2,45 "	11,45 "	3,50 "
Lima	2.40 "	4,35 "	1,35 A. M.	6,15 "
Forest	3,56 "	5,34 "	3,01 "	7,36 "
Crest- ar	5,35 "	6,55 "	4,40 "	9.20 "
line lv	A M	7,15 "	4,50 "	9 40 "
Mansfield	"	7,45 "	5,20 "	10,20 "
Orrville	"	9,33 "	7,10 "	12,45 PM
Alliance		11,10 "	9,00 "	3,05
Rochester	P M	1,07	11,12 "	5,40
Pittsburg	"	2 10 a m	12,15 A. M.	6,55

F. R. MYERS,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent

BALTIMORE & OHIO R. R

FROM 135 TO 6 MILES

The shortest route from the West to

Washington, Baltimore

AND THE EAST.

CONDENSED TIME TABLE, THRO' TRAINS.

VIA PARKERSBURG, Dec. 13, '74	Express	Fast Express,	St. Louis Ex.
Lve. Cincinnati	9 00 am	†4 30 p m	‡11 10pm
Arr. Chillicoth	12 55d n'n	s7 45	3 00 am
" Portsmouth	5 35 p m		11 10
" Marietta,	5 56	12 06 n't	7 22
" Parkersburg	5 25 s	11 30	r6 50
Arr. Grafton	9 45	3 40 a m	11 10
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	B7 40	D3 30
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	6 51
" Staunton		5 15 p m
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30p m	4 50 am
" Baltimore	‡9 05 a m	1 50 a m	10 20‡pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50 p m	2 35 am
" New York	‡5 10	10 22	‡6 15
" Boston.	5 50 a m		4 50 pm

VIA BELLAIRE—Dec 13, 1874	Express	Fast Express.	Fast Line
Lve. Cincinnati (via Dayton S. L.)	6 30 a m		‡3 50 p m
" Cincinnati (via P. C. & St. L.)	†7 00		†7 10 p m
" Columbus	11 55	4 00‡p m	12 20†
Arr. Newark	1 00 p m	5 25	1 45 a m
" Zanesville	2 10	6 55	2 47
" Bellaire	5 20	10 55	6 50
" Wheeling	6 45 p m	12 50 ngt	8 00
" Grafton	9 35	3 35 a m	11 05
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	7 40	B3 30 pm
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	9 51
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30 p m	4 5[illegible] a m
" Baltimore	9 05	1 50†	10 20†pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50	2 35 a m
" New York	5 10	10 22†	†6 15
" Boston	4 50 a m		4 50 p m

B—Breakfast. —Dinner. S—Supper. †Daily ‡Daily ex. Sunday. ‡Daily ex. Monday.

PULMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS

from Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Columbus, to

WASHINGTON AND BALTIMORE!

—AND—

PHILADELPHIA

-WITHOUT CHANGE.

T[illegible]gh Tickets, and further information can be [illegible]ned at all principal Ticket Offices through [illegible] West and South West.

THOS. P. BARRY, West. pass agt., Cin.
L. M. COLE, Gen'l Ticket agt., Bal. Md.
THOS. R. SHARP, Mas. of Tran.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN,

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

Has the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended to. Go and see his largest stock of G

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—
The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

re now in full running order and all orders fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give us a call and ascertain our prices.

Is Your Life Worth 10 Cents.

SICKNESS prevails everywhere, and everybody complains of some disease during their life—When sick, the object is to get well; now we say plainly that no person in this world that is suffering with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and its effects, such as Indigestion, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Sour stomache, Heart-burn, Palpitation of he Heart, Depressed Spirits, Biliousness, &c. can ake GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER without getting relief and cure. If you doubt this, go to our Druggist and get a sample bottle for ten cents and try it. Regular size 75 cents. Two oses will relieve you.

IF you want Job work got up in style, go to the COURIER office.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JUNE 17th, 1875. Number 24.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

OneYear,........$2. | SixMonths,.......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
One Column.......	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.
J. W. RICKEL, R. DEXTE TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind—Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN,

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUB N CO.	COURT IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store Cool's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Miller and Casebeer's Store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON will attend to all calls in the line of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical disease. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing all the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience, of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience, enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel. My medicines are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of diseases without producing any bad effect, upon the nervous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of quinine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on fifth street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for travelling men.
C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 34 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's, retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago. O SANDS, Prop'r.
$2.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.
J. H. FORD, Pres't.
J. A. COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire Line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,

CHAIRS

Husk & Hair Matrasses

50 and 52 East Main Street,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

Thomas Baldock
Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experience corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. U. Tarney
AUBURN MEAT MARKET!

KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Main-st first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store.

BRICK FOR SALE

FRITZ GROESCOP.

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick, about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable figures. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Kutzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some of the above Tile, which they are selling at a very low figure. We offer

Four Inch Sizes at 50 cts. per Rod,
Six " " " 75 " " "

Every person who intend to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office. LANHAM & HOSE,
v5n11 Auburn, Indiana.

J. J. VanAnken,

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying. Office with Rose & Hartman, Auburn Indiana. Persons requesting work by letter should give township subsection.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobacco s. &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

BAKER BROS.

PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!

AND

EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes etc, always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.

BAKER BROS.

AUBURN
Meat Market.

Main St. Next door to Klotz's.

MICH HOUSTON

PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

MERCHANTS
National Bank!

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Capital and Surplus $112.000

Receives Deposits, Discounts Business Paper, issues Letters of Credit, and Collects at all points at the lowest rates of exchange.

Directors:

S. CARY EVANS, R. C. ROBERTSON,
H. C. HANNA, N. P. STOCKBRIDGE
A. C. DAWSON.

Organized 1865. April 9, '74

NEW Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep

FLOUR, CORN,
OATS, MILL FEED,
&c. at all times and at the

Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs. &c.

WM. LANHAM.

Pencilings and Clippings.

BAKER BROS. AND MIKE LONG have put awnings in front of their business houses.

THAT King of Pain man was around again. Nobody got anxious.

ABRIGHT'S building is almost completed. It will be a nice store room.

Do not choose your friend by his looks; handsome shoes often pinch the feet.

QUITE a number of our citizens attended the races at Fort Wayne, last week.

CAN'T we have some kind of a celebration. What's the matter fellows.

WE heard a woman say, the other day that a thing of beauty is a boy forever.

AN insane woman at Edwardsport kindled a fire and burned herself to death

WE had a heavy thundershower last Friday night, the lightening was sharp and lots of it.

WILLARD NASH lassoed a grasshopper five inches long near Logansport the other day.

THE Methodist people are making arrangements for their excursion to Jackson Michigan.

SAM'L LAUFERTY is buying wool, he will start up the clothing business again in August, sure pop.

WHEAT is coming out in head, and the prospects are, that a pretty good crop will be harvested.

THE Baltimore & Ohio road put two more trains on last Sunday. This road is the champion.

AN escape menagerie monkey twines his tail around the branches of the forest trees near Crawfordsville.

THREE tramps fired a barn near Sullivan, and set on a log and played the fiddle while it burned.

THE basement of the Presbyterian church at Kendallville, has been neatly carpeted by the ladies.

Now go for the potato bugs. One striped back killed now, is equal to killing hundreds, later in the season.

RED used on a railroad signifies danger and says stop. It should be so construed when displayed on a man's nose.

THE Auburn House has a colored cook. This is the first one that has been in the place for a great many years

THE Rising Sun "News" says: There's millions of 'em, and Paris green is the only thing that can save the potato crop

WILLIAMS & McDOUGAL are doing a fine trade in the building next to Cool's grocery. They are running a bill of fare.

THE Laporte fire company will hold a firemans, tournament on Monday, July 5th. Premiums to the amount of $625 are offered.

JIM, your ma wants you. "Will let her want and be darned. Theres' Sam he only sets on Fluke's corner and sleeps."

IF there is any sports that want to buy any English Red game roosters, they can do so by leaving their orders at this office.

WHY is the COURIER like a tooth brush? Because every one should have one of his own, and not be borrowing his neighbor's.

A SHORT time since our village was over-run with sewing machine agents and organ men. They are all gone now, and our citizens are at rest.

DR. FOX is fixing up his office he has a two hundred dollar picture hanging on the wall, and he wont frame it because it cost so much.

IN a certain Sullivan county Sunday school they offer a chromo to every scholar who shall experience religion and join the church before August 1st.

FROM the general appearance of things one would think that a temperance lecturer could get a pretty good collection given him just now.

LITTLE BOB, at Ryan & Mader's livery has been turned out to grass. He has been a faithful pony, and deserves a good long rest.

HAIL and snow are reported to have visited sections of the country fifty miles south of Toledo on Monday last week. We had a little rain and wind about these diggins.

THE COURIER $2.00 per annum.

DURING the past two weeks all nature has sprung into renewed life, and the woods and hillsides now present a most lovely and inviting appearance. Evening strolls are quite popular.

WE neglected to say last week, that Mensch & Moore, of Garret city, received a license to sell liquors. They are men that understand their business, and will conduct the trade in as good a style as anybody can.

A FEMALE witch doctor has been in the county. Her office was at Mr. Pepples, North of town, for several days, and it is said she done good business. On Sunday over one hundred persons consulted her

THERE were but few accidents happened at the ball ground considering the careless manner in which some of the boys performed. Jack Ralston, Coop Ralston and Thos. Scott, were all that had the misfortune to hurt themselves.

EVERYBODY and their wives and many of their children were in the city last Saturday. As many could not get through with their trading on that day, they returned and continued to enliven our place on Monday.

THERE was no pepitions presented before the commissioners against our liquor men. This is the first time for many years that this has not been done We've got to tumble to everything as the town grows

WHEN you see a man shoot out of a house, stand on the step and hold the door, and at the same minute something inside goes a ker-whack against the door from the inside, you may gamble your bottom nickle that there's trouble inside.

OUR old weather-cocks say that the grasshoppers will visit us before harvest Now, prepare. Of course they know all about it. It seems cruel to have these fellows sent into the world to let us all know that we're gone gooses two months before the time comes.

CRUSTY "OLD MAID."—"How do you do, Tommy, dear?"

Tommy (faintly)—Very well, thank you."

Old Maid—"I am glad to hear that; but why don't you ask me how I am?"

Tommy—Cause I don't want to know.

THE past ten days have been very favorable time for transplanting of cabbage, beet, tomatoes, and other garden plants. It was not so propitious, however, for the destruction of troublesome weeds, which seem to be doing their level best to take possession of both garden and corn fields.

A WIFE-WHIPPER of Rochester named Forbes fell dead on Saturday last, just after having administered the daily drubbing to his better-half. We don't want to be understood as railing against the ways of Providence, but it will be so pretty soon that a person will be loth to engage in any innocent amusement or recreation for fear of an interposition of the controlling power.

WE clip the following from the Kendallville "Standard:

We undersand that the Auburn Sil. Band purposes attending the grand firemen's tournament to be held in this city on the 15th of July. The boys are nicely uniformed, and have gained an enviable reputation for furnishing good music and are worthy of a cordial reception by our citizens.

A YOUNG man stepped up to a lovely young lady on the steps of a church, and crooking his elbow said: "May I have undescribable pleasure of accompanying you to your paternal domicile?" "Spell domicile," said she. He gave it up, and she unhesitatingly gave him the mitten. The fellow was no clerk, but you often find him behind the counter of a grocery store on Main street.

A DRUMMER made the acquaintance of a Portland (Me.) belle, worth considerable property, while riding on the cars. Instead of pursuing his journey, he dallied at her native place, finally proposed and was accepted. She then reconsidered and the result is a breach of promise case, unless marriage takes place. All drummers are anxiously awaiting the result.

"A PENNY a day" was much better wages than it sounds to us. A good authority says that in the time of Christ a penny was equal to about fifteen of our cents, and as money was ten times as valuable as now, the penny a day was as good as a 150 of our cents, so that the man who worked in the vineyard for that, got as good wages as good men now generally get in harvest time. The gift of the good Samaritan of two pence to the landlord for the care of the men who fell among thieves, in addition to the raiment, the oil and wine, was equivalent to about three dollars of our currency.

FARMERS cannot be too wary of debt. The habit of buying what could not at the time be paid for, has done more to burden the masses than almost any other thing. Long credit is deceptive; the sun seems to shine brightly just ahead, but too often when pay day comes the small debts contracted with scarcely a passing through, aggregate such a cloud as to shut of every ray of prosperity.

THE Lapoft "Herald" says: The storm last Wednesday afternoon swept and pattered Galena township furiously Hailstones as large as door knobs were found on the ground Thursday morning In Pleasant township Mr. B. F. Henry says the earth in places, was covered with circular plates of ice, from an inch and a half to two inches in diameter and about half an inch thick, with a transparent disk of white in the center. In many localities the corn, wheat &c, is pretty badly beaten and cut up by the hail.

IMPROVEMENT.—Nothing brings so great a return for the capitol invested, as a general improvement of the country, and to bring about a general improvement every individual must strive to imporve his own property. "Improve the country and build up with it" should be the motto of all. Building up with a progressive region of country has made more wealthy people than all the oil wells and gold mines in the world.—Then work for it and try to induce your friends to work. It will be a charity beginning at home. Every new house and barn that your neighbor puts up contributes something towards a general improvement, and consequently, contributes something to the advantage of your own pocket.

THE end of Beechers trial is rapidly approaching. Judge Porter harangued the jury five days. Mr. Evarts has spoken eight. Mr. Beach says he will be hanged of he talks more than ten days. Judge Nelson's charge will probably occupy three hours or so, and the jury will be pretty sure to get the case Monday or Tuesday of next week, and to be sequestered for a number of months unless they agree upon a verdict. His Honor, who gossips with them often in his room, says they are very sensible set of men, and he has no fears of their behavior. At present the mind of the said twelve is especially occupied with the question of pay, it being their unanimous opinion that they ought to have five dollars a day. We think so too

ONE of our good old Methodist ladies, was standing in front of the post-office yesterday, waiting for her husband to drive up with the wagon, as they were done trading, and ready to go home, when she noticed several boys standing up against the building. The old lady turned around and said to one:

"Do you attend Sunday school my boy?"

"Noam."

Then she asked the next one, and he said noam, and after passing six, she failed to find one that went to Sabbath school. She looked down the street to see if the old man was coming with the team, and seing nothing of him, she began again and addressed her conversation to Jim the boot black. "Why don't you go to Sunday school sonny?"

"Oh, coz."

"Cause why?"

"Well, you see some of them pee-wee ball players would come along and want their boots blacked, and if I was at Sunday school, my brother would get the job, That's why; that pee-wee trade will be good now for a few days."

Hard to Please.

WE have a fast man, a sharp man, a business man, and when he goes into a store to trade he always gets the lowest cash price, and says: "Well, I'll look about, and if I don't find anything that suits me better I'll call and take this." He is like all fast men, is partial to woman, and young ones in particular.—Now quite lately he said to himself, "I'm getting rather long in years, and I guess I'll get married."

His business qualities would not let him wait, so off he travels and calling upon a lady friend, opened conversation by remarking what she thought about getting married.

"Oh, Mr. ——, that is an affair in which I am not so greatly interested, and I prefer to leave it to your self."

The young lady blushed very red hesitated, and finally as he was very well-to-do in the world, morally, financially and politically of good standing in society, she accepted him: whereupon the matter-of-fact he responded:

"Well, I'll look about, and if I don't find anybody that suits me better, then I'll come back."

"Is your name Jim?" "Nosir." "What is it?" "Ask my mother."

AFTER all the players had left the ball ground, last Thursday, the Juvenile's made up a game and were playing to their greatest delight, when several "stand-up-and-gawks,' from the wonderful Garret, broke up their game. They were full of "forty-rod," and of course, right on their muscle, Mr. Gust Garst, asked them for a coat belonging to one of the boys, which they were about to carry off, and a Garret rooster cut him fearfully about the head and face with a hatched. If they had remained in the city an hour longer, several of our boys were "going through" the gents. Its getting wore thin, to have these fellows take so much privileges.

Real Estate Transfers.

Furnished by ROSE & HARTMAN, attorneys at law, who have the only Abstract of Titles in the county. Deeds and Mortgages as against "bona fide" purchasers, or mortgagees, must be recorded within 90 days from their execution. Mechanics Liens within 60 days from the completion of building.

J. B. Lobmiller to H. L. Sheets lot 114 Wis. Ad, Auburn.	$675.
L. Spangler to J. Whittington lot 5 Auburn Junction.	$700.
E. J. Williams to S. M. Lockhart 2 55-100 A. Waterloo.	$500.
D. Y. Husselman to R. M. & W. C. Lockhart N E ¼ Sec 6 Fairfield.	$500
S. B. Johnson to Kiplinger & Denison lots 213 208 Hamb Ad. Waterloo.	$2,050.
G. Ensley to G. Gridley lot 70 Ens, 2nd Ad. Auburn	$200
W. Waterman to C. Frantz track in Sec 5-6 Franklin.	$1000.
C. Boyer to H. Jones lot 30 Jnes Ad Sedan	$300.

THE boys who are permitted to roam through our streets like the wild Arab over the desert waste, are in the habit of throwing stones at each other. The loss of life or broken limbs will be the result if the practice is continued. A fellow got his arm hurt yesterday, on Jackson street, and went home bawling like a 4 week's old calf. When he was almost to the gate his mother said:

"My dear Jim, I knew that would be the way of it. Why can't you mind your old mother, who has walked, the floor many and many a dreary night with you, Jim, in my arms."

"O, cheese it, mother, your are always giving me some of that stuff! Look at Johnson's boy. He does what ever he has a mind-to. I saw him coming out of the kitchen yesterday with a whole green currant pie in his mouth, and his ma was laughing at him. Now if that had been me, you would have commenced saying, O, Jim, how often have I carried you night after night, and all that harangue you have every time I come home."

And at this moment the old lady gobbled the rolling pin, and Jim was going down the alley for all he had.

PROF. C. V. Riley the state geologist of Missouri, delivered an address on the Rocky Mountain grasshopper, in St. Louis, on Monday night. His sentiments were substantially the same as those made by him last year in a letter to the New York Tribune, the main points of which were presented in the COURIER After giving the facts in regard to the origin of the grasshopper, the transitions of its insect life, and a description of its habits, he reiterates in the following language:

"The natural home of the insect is in the Northwestern part of the continent. It is at home in the high and dry plains of Wyoming, Dakota and Mannitoba, where the vegetation is scant. Spring opens quite as early there as here, but by the middle of July vegetation is burnt and parched, and there is nothing for them to feed upon. At certain periods the insects multiply so rapidly, and devouring all green things, are forced to emigrate. They rise in the air and pass with the prevaling wind to the Southeast. The change in the atmosphere, after leaving their native haunts is such that it can but effect them. The first generation lay eggs, but the young are not as vigorous, and very few that acquire wings and fewer still that propagate. The locus is not indigenous in Kansas, Nebraska or Missouri, and is bound to die out. Its life is bounded by the spring and autumn frosts and its flight must be limited. It will never reach further into Missouri than it has in the past, and the line will remain essentially the same

The above statements are of importance to those who are asking, and sometimes with alarm, if Indiana and other states are not destined to be invaded as Kansas and Missouri have been. It is a common theory that this destructive grasshopper is on a migratory career, like the potato-bug, across the continent, and there is a great deal of comfort in having the assurance of such an eminent authority that the course of the plague is run

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

PEMBERTON, who murdered Mrs. Bingham at Boston recently has been convicted of the crime, and will probably suffer death, as the murder was a most atrocious one.

WM. H. TALCOTT, buyer of the silk department of H. B. Claflin & Co., New York, has been arrested and [illegible] in bail of $10,000 on the charge of purchasing $400,000 worth of silks from alleged smugglers.... W. F. Leslie, Receiving Teller in the banking-house of Duncan, Sherman & Co., has absconded, taking with him $12,000.

JAMES M. SWEENEY, a brother of Peter B. Sweeney, according to a cable dispatch, died in Paris recently. The deceased was recently indicted jointly with his brother in suits growing out of the affidavit made by Ingersoll, the pardoned Tammany ring convict.... The Atlantic Cotton Mills of Lawrence, Mass., employing 1,250 operatives, will shut down on account of the dull market on the 10th of July, and remain closed till Sept. 1.

THE members of the well known dry goods house of H. B. Claflin & Co., New York, have been indicted for smuggling silk goods through the Custom-House.... The Orangemen of New York have decided not to parade this year, and to honor King William of glorious and pious memory by a grand excursion and picnic July 12.

THE WEST.

DURING the night of May 15 a burglary was committed at Dudshoorn, Holland, and among the property stolen were 10 bonds of $1,000 each, of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company; 12 of the same denomination of the Winona and St. Peter Railroad Company; coupons of the Winona and St. Peter Railroad Company, and 20 of the Chicago and Southwestern Railroad Company—all representing about $50,000.... Gordon's party, who were taken to Fort Randall by the military, have been unconditionally released, and allowed to return to Gordon City.

GIGANTIC frauds have been discovered in connection with the Missouri State Treasury. Over a million dollars have been abstracted from the treasury by means of forged war claims.

IN the case of the twenty-two contemptuous Chicago Aldermen, who, at the advice of six lawyers, canvassed the votes of the city incorporation election in defiance of the judicial injunction, Judge Williams, of the Circuit Court, sentenced each of the Aldermen to pay a fine of $100 and costs, and each of the advising lawyers $300 and costs.

THE champion base ball club of Boston sustained a crushing defeat in their game at Chicago last week, the score standing 2 to 0 in favor of Chicago. The Bostons had been previously defeated by the St. Louis club. In their games in the East the Red Stockings had scored twenty-seven victories, and it seemed as though they would win every game they played this season; but base ball is very uncertain, and it is not safe at any time to bet odds of 2 and 3 to 1.... The Quahada band of Comanches surrendered last week to the commandant at Fort Sill. The band comprised 180 warriors and 300 women and children, with 1,400 ponies.... A desperate encounter recently occurred in the vicinity of Stockton, Rooks county, Kansas, between Mr. Alexander, Sheriff of Ellis county, and a horse thief, resulting in the death of both.

THE plan of paying a bounty per bushel for dead grasshoppers in Le Sueur county, Minn., has been a success. So far the greater portion of that body of the pests has been destroyed. Two hundred and twenty-seven bushels were captured in two towns in Le Sueur county.... A disease known as the "Black Death," is making great havoc among the swine on the Upper Ottawa river, Canada.

THE National Sportsmen's Association held their second annual convention at Cleveland, Ohio, last week, with a large attendance of delegates. Hon. J. V. Le Moyne, of Chicago, was elected President of the association for the ensuing year.... Gen. Sheridan has forbidden a lot of gold-hunters from entering the Big Horn country. He says that territory is included in the Sioux reservation under the treaty of 1869, and white men will be prevented by the military from entering it for any purpose whatever until the treaty is abrogated.... Rev. Dr. Jacob S. Shipman, of Lexington, Ky., has been elected Episcopal Bishop of the diocese of Fond du Lac, Wis.

PROF. JANNEY, of the government exploring expedition in the Black Hills region, officially reports that there is no gold there.

THE SOUTH.

AN aged spinster of Savannah, Ga., Miss Mary Telfair, a daughter of ex-Gov. Telfair, and who died last week, in her will devised to various religious, educational and charitable institutions in Georgia, legacies amounting to a total of over $1,000,000.

CROSBY, the Vicksburg (Miss.) negro Sheriff, who created so much trouble last winter, was last week shot and dangerously wounded in a saloon in that city, by a white man named Gilmer, with whom he was drinking.

IN the case of the editor of the Galveston News, arraigned for contempt of court in charging the Judge with partiality in a pending case, Judge Morrell decided that it was within the province of the press to criticise freely the acts of the judiciary, and concluded with the declaration that "the publishers have unrestricted liberty to apply an epithet to the Judge of the court without being in contempt for so doing."

THE Maryland Democratic State Convention, to nominate candidates for Governor, Comptroller and Treasurer, is called to meet in Baltimore, on Wednesday, July 21.

WASHINGTON

THE negotiations of the Interior Department with the Sioux Chiefs, for the cession of the Black Hills territory, have come to naught. Spotted Tail said to the Indian Commissioners that the Indians own the country which the Great Spirit gave them, and they never try to steal the country of any one else, while the whites, who have a big country, still want to steal what little the Indians have.

DR. LINDERMAN, Director of the Mint, is of the opinion that the substitution of silver for fractional currency can probably begin early next fall. He bases his opinion upon the concurrent operation of two favorable conditions: First, the decline in the value of silver, and second, the appreciation in the value of legal tender notes.

MR. JEWELL finds a good deal of difficulty in preventing straw bidders from obtaining contracts for carrying the mails. He has just awarded a large number of contracts, but is satisfied that some of the successful bidders are not responsible. He will take active measures to put a stop to their operations as soon as he find them out.

A FEW days since a clerk in the Sixth Auditor's office was removed, for the reason that he had made use of an official circular of the Postoffice Department, in an endeavor to secure a pass from the Cunard Steamship Company.

GENERAL.

CARL VOGT, the Belgian valet who murdered his master, the Chevalier de Bianco, in Brussels two years ago, has been delivered up to the Belgian authorities and sailed for Europe in custody [illegible]

POSTMASTER-GENERAL JEWELL is about to undertake a trip to the West for the purpose of looking into the management of affairs connected with his Department.

CITY OF MEXICO advices state that efforts are being made to establish a line of steamers between Vera Cruz and Galveston, making the run in sixty hours.

AN account of a singular duel comes from Cuba, between Dr. A. S. Curtis, of New York, and his friend Salvador Cortreal, a wealthy tobacco merchant of Havana. Cortreal had suspicions of criminal relations between his wife and Dr. Curtis, and a challenge was the the result. In the duel which followed Dr. Curtis fell, wounded in the hip, and, supposing him dead, his friend and host coolly reloaded his pistol, placed it to his own temple, fired, and fell dead. Curtis is in custody.

JUDGE KELLEY, of Pennsylvania, is reported as having expressed an opinion that the government is upon the verge of bankruptcy, and that the only way out of the present trouble is the calling of a special session of Congress.... Judge Nelson, of the United States Supreme Court, sitting as Judge of the United States District Court at Winona, Minn., has rendered a decision affirming the constitutionality of the Civil Rights bill.

THE Supreme Court of Ohio has decided that the property of benevolent societies, including the Masonic and similar organizations heretofore exempt, is subject to taxation.

POLITICAL.

THE New Hampshire House of Representatives has adopted resolutions instructing the Speaker to request the Supreme Court to name as early a day as possible for the hearing of the Senatorial question; also, to allow both sides to be represented by counsel with briefs and arguments.

IT has been decided by the Missouri Constitutional Convention that when the new Constitution is voted on by the people of the State a provision for woman suffrage shall be submitted as a separate proposition.

THE Justices of the New Hampshire Superior Court rendered a long opinion to the Senate, recognizing the Democratic Senators as the duly-elected members from the contested districts, and declining to go back of the action of the Governor and Council in declaring them entitled to their seats, on the ground that the judiciary has no right to interfere with the action of a co-ordinate branch of the government.... The executive committee of the "Independent Reform" party of Illinois, in session at Bloomington, last week, decided to call no State convention this year, but the members of the party throughout the State were advised to make nominations for local offices in the several counties.

THE Legislature of New Hampshire elected P. C. Cheney, Republican, Governor, of the State, vice Weston, Democrat.

GOV. DAVIS, of Minnesota, declines to be a candidate for renomination to that office, but intimates a willingness to go to Congress instead, as the successor of Bill King.

FOREIGN.

THE port of Macao, China, was visited by a terrible hurricane, lasting several hours, and doing considerable damage to shipping in the harbor. A number of lives are reported lost.... The Carlist General Saballa, with 2,000 men attacked Blanco, and was repulsed with a loss of sixty killed.

IN the great international racing event of the European continent, the Prize of Paris, contested last week, a French horse was victorious, while the English thoroughbreds, the cream of the racers throughout the Kingdom, failed to get a place, being nowhere near at the finish.... Charles de Remusat, the eminent French author and politician, is dead.... The corporation of London has resolved to invite the Mayor of New York city to the international banquet soon to be held.

MESSRS. ODGER and Wicks, of London, who were appointed by the Federal Union of Agricultural Laborers to make examination of the Mississippi valley for the purpose of ascertaining its suitability for settlement by emigrants, have left England on their mission.... The Assembly of the Province of Quebec has been dissolved by proclamation from the Lieutenant-Governor. New elections will be held on the 8th of July.

WEISINGER, who attempted to extort money by implicating persons in the plot to assassinate Bismarck, has been committed for trial at Berlin.

FROM Panama is reported the loss of the English ship Prince Alfred, with guano, for London. She foundered at sea in the vicinity of Coquimbo. The crew were saved.... Dispatches from Spain state that the Alfonsist government is in a weak and tottering condition, and that the Carlist cause is improving daily and gaining much strength.... Fourteen stores, besides several dwellings, were destroyed by fire in Toronto last week, causing a loss of $550,000, a large part of which is uninsured. A fire at Minatitlan, Mexico, destroyed property to the value of $400,000.

BILLS have been introduced in the British Parliament for the regulation of strikes. They provide that breaches of contract calculated to cause public injury by work people employed in public capacities, as in the supply of gas and water, shall be dealt with criminally.

A Female Fiend.

The woman whose nature is so nearly fiendish as it is possible to conceive of lives at Bostrop, La. Her name is Luna McRea, and she is now in prison upon the charge of murdering a small child. At her preliminary examination the testimony indicated that she had taken a diabolical pleasure in killing the child by inches, and after the accomplishment of the deed to have felt no compunctions or any of the ordinary dislike of a murderer to having the body of the victim in any place to serve as a reminder. The woman's own son, a little boy of 12, was the principal witness against her. She made this mere child dig up and move the body of her victim two or three times within the space of a week. She first burned the murdered child in a garden, and when its disappearance had excited comment and caused the institution of a search, she attracted the attention of the officers to another point, she herself accompanying them, first telling her little son to dig up the body in their absence and hide it in the chimney. The boy performed this task, and at night he was made to carry the body to a cotton pen and subsequently to a thicket, where it was finally discovered. During the course of the trial, with her own son giving such testimony of her atrocity, the woman evinced little feeling of any kind, passing through the entire ordeal with an unruffled demeanor.

DEATH ON THE DEEP.

Steamer Crushed by Icebergs—Fifty Lives Lost.

News is received of the wreck of the steamship Vicksburg, with the loss of fifty lives. Capt. Cooper, of the steamer Germania, which arrived at New York recently, makes the following statement: "June 5, latitude 46:34 north, longitude 47:58 west, we discovered a ship's boat, with sails set, on the port bow. I made immediately for her, and she proved to be boat No. 1 of the ill-fated steamer Vicksburg, of Liverpool, belonging to the Dominion line, and commanded by Capt. Bennett. There were five men in her, in a very exhausted state. Their feet and legs were very much swollen, so much so that their boots had to be cut from their feet."

James Crowley, one of the rescued men, says: "The Vicksburg left Quebec on Thursday morning, May 27, with a ship's crew of 60 men, all told, and eight saloon passengers. At 9:30 p. m. on Monday, all hands were called to shorten sail. The ship was stopped among heavy ice, and headed to the south, when we proceeded at full speed to get clear of the ice. At 12 o'clock, at full speed we struck the ice. The engines were immediately reversed. The ship struck heavily aft on the port quarter, carrying away the fans of the propeller, and a hole was knocked through the plates on that quarter, through which the ship made a great deal of water. The Captain gave orders to launch the boats, with their repective crews, and told them to mind that the distance from St. Johns was 120 miles northwest. The ship sunk about 10 o'clock, floating boat No. 2 from her davits with the chief officer and about thirty people in her. She got clear and pulled to the windward. After the ship went down, we saw the Captain and some other person floating on a bale of hay, among the wreckage. We tried all we could to pick them up, but owing to the boat being half full of water and the ice about, were not able to do so."

Other interviews with survivors are published, and from these it seems that those of the crew and passengers who escaped in the boats, abandoned the vessel and those on board to their fate in a manner which is somewhat discreditable, to say the least. It is also quite clearly shown that nearly fifty lives were lost. The steamer was used only for the transportation of freight; otherwise the loss of life would have been much heavier.

She Wasn't a Candidate.

Some of our worthy colored brethren of the Baptist persuasion had a baptism down at the creek last Sunday, and the ceremony attracted a very large crowd of persons. Mrs. Pitman's colored servant-girl was very anxious to be present and, as it was not her Sunday out, she slipped away from the house while the dinner was cooking, and went around in her working clothes. Her interest was so intense that she stood close to the minister, who was in the water, while the ceremony proceeded. After six or seven had been dipped, the clergymen, filled with enthusiasm, seized her and pulled her into the water. She resisted, but the minister imagined that she was merely afraid of the coldness of the water, so before she could explain the situation he soused her. She came up spluttering, and exclaimed:

"What you doin'? Lemme go, I tell you!"

But he exerted his strength, and sent her "ker-chuck" below the surface again. She emerged clawing the air wildly and shouting:

"G'way from here! Don't you chuck me under agin, you nigger!"

But the clergyman was inexorable, and he plunged her under a third time, and held her there for a minute, so as to let it soak in and do her good. Then she came up and struck for the shore, and standing there, looking like a draggled mermaid cut in ebony, she shook her fist at the astonished pastor, and shrieked:

"O, I'll fix you! I'll bust de head offen you, you or'nary trash! sousin' me in dat dare creek and nearly drownden me, when you knowed well enough all de time dat I'se a Methodist, and bin chrissened by dem dat's yer betters, and knows more about religion dan all de Baptisses dat ever shouted, you mis'able black scum! and me got de rheumatiz enough to set me crazy! O, I'll see what de law kin do for you! I'll have you 'rested dis very day, or my name's not Johanna Johnson, you woolly-headed herrin'! You hear me?"

Then Johanna went home to re-dress, and the ceremony proceeded. Miss Johnson is now persuaded that the Baptists are not any better than Pagans.—New York Weekly.

BRAIN-BUILDING FOOD.—Dr. T. S. Lambert, President of the American Popular Life Insurance Company, prescribes the following bill of fare for "brain-building and repairing:" Toasted crackers and toasted cheese, oysters raw and cabbage, sardines, codfish and cream, oyster salad, stewed tripe and green peas, calves' brains on toast, oat groats and cream, pancakes of all kinds, buttermilk and coffee. But if a sufficient amount of the foregoing cannot be obtained, any of the following will do as well: Sausage, head-cheese, wurst, pigs' feet, fried pork, whale blubber stewed in musk tallow, fish-tail soup, pot-pie of chicken-skins, smier kase, Limburger cheese, blood pudding, or beef-suet scraps. Anything easy of digestion, you know, for the brain draws its power from the stomach.

THE Boston and Albany Railroad Company is putting up the Hall automatic electric railway signal. In the car shops at Allston a freight conductor's car is constructing an indicator which will enable the conductor to tell at sight the speed with which the train is traveling.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

The condition of the market was without quotable change. The demand for favors was only light, and rates were easy at 8@10 per cent. on time, and 6@7 per cent. for call loans. Bonds firm; closing as follows:

	Buying.	Selling.
U. S. 6's of '81	123⅝	123⅞
U. S. 5-20's of '62 (ex. int.)	117½	118⅛
U. S. 5-20's of '64 (ex. int.)	118⅛	118⅝
U. S. 5-20's of '65 (ex. int.)	122⅛	122½
U. S. 5-20's of '65 January and July	123⅛	123⅝
U. S. 5-20's of '67 January and July	124⅛	125
U. S. 5-20's of '68 January and July	124½	124¾
U. S. 10-40's	118⅝	119⅛
U. S. new 5's of '81 (ex. int.)	117⅝	118
U. S. currency 6's	122⅛	122⅜
Gold (full weight)	116⅛	117⅛
[illegible]	116⅜	117⅛
Gold exchange	116⅝	117⅛
Sterling 60 days sight		487½

BREADSTUFFS.

There was a general reaction and improvement in grain circles during the past week, and quite an active speculative business was transacted. As would naturally be expected, the recent liberal decline in values induced an increased order demand, many speculative orders being received from other markets and from the interior. The first of June passed with but very light deliveries on June contracts, and it was well known that the markets were all largely oversold. The short interest were therefore buying freely, showing a general desire to provide for their outstanding contracts. Eastern advices were of a more favorable tenor, and holders and speculators showed less disposition to sell.

The following table shows the prices current at the opening and close of the past week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash	$ .91 @ .92	$ .93 @ .94
No. 2, seller June	.90½@ .91½	.94½ bid
No. 2, seller July	.94½@ .96	@ .96½
No. 2 seller August	@ .97	.97⅛@ .98
No. 2 corn, cash	.63 @ .63½	@ .66½
No. 2 corn, seller June	.62½@ .62¾	.66½ bid
No. 2 corn, seller July	.66⅛@ .68½	.69½ bid
No. 2 corn, s. August	.70½@ .71	.71⅛@ .72½
No. 2 oats, cash	.57½@ .58½	@ .60
No. 2 oats, seller June	.56 @ .58¾	.59⅞ bid
No. 2 oats, seller July	.55½@ .56	.56½ bid
No. 2 rye, cash	@1.03	@ .98
No. 2 barley, cash	1.16 @1.20	@1.15
No. 2 barley, s. Sept	@ .96	@ .98
No. 3 barley, cash	1.10 @1.11	@1.05

LIVE STOCK.

The cattle market has been active and firm, with values 25c per 100 lbs higher. Quality of offerings very good. Shipping steers, $5.00@5.90; poor to good, $6.00@7.00; choice to extra stock steers, $3.50@4.75. Hogs active, closing at $6.40@7.00 for Yorkers, and $6.75@7.30 for common to choice heavy. Sheep dull; shorn, $3.00@5.25.

PROVISIONS.

Considerable interest was manifested in this market during the week, but a very unsettled feeling prevailed and prices on the speculative articles were considerably lower. There were one or two houses who were unable to respond promptly to a call for margins and this caused a rapid decline until near the close, when a steadier feeling was developed and the downward tendency was checked. Eastern advices were generally unfavorable and the reports received from European markets were in buyers' favor. Cash mess pork closed at $19.50@19.60, seller June nominal at $19.50@19.60 and seller July closed at $19.60. Cash lard quiet at $13.60@13.65 and seller June quotable at about the same figures; seller July was quiet and irregular, selling at $13.60@13.87½, and closed at $13.67½@13.70; seller August closed steady at $13.92½@13.95.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

The business transacted in seeds was rather light, and the sales made consisted chiefly of Hungarian and millet. The offerings of all kinds were light, and prices ruled firm. Timothy sold at $2.30@2.45 for common to good, and $2.50@2.60 for prime. Clover quotable about $6.40@6.50 for prime medium. Flax sold at $1.60 for good crushing, and $1.58 was bid for seller August and September. Sales of Hungarian were made at $1.45@1.50, and millet at $1.55@1.60 for prime. Buckwheat sales were made at $1.15@1.20. The market was very quiet for highwines, but prime ruled steady and firm. The market closed at $1.17.

PRODUCE.

The butter market was again dull during the week and a material decline was again sustained in prices. The arrivals were large, and as only a moderate amount was sold to local dealers, quite an accumulation was noticeable. The feeling was one of weakness and prices declined about 3@4c. Quotations ranged at 23@24c for extras, 18@22c for firsts, 14@18c for seconds, 12½@14c for thirds, and 9@12c for grease and common old stock. Broom corn met with an improved demand and an increased business was reported. Prices ruled firm at 11½@14c for good to extra hurl, and 11@13c for good to choice stalk braid. Beeswax quiet at 28@30c. The inquiry continues good for beans, and prices were firm at about $1.90 for prime Eastern mediums and $1.00@1.80 for common to choice Western. Cider was quiet at $5.75@6.00 for choice sweet per brl and $3.50 per keg. Cranberries were dull at $9.00@10.50 per brl, and $3.00@3.50 for 1-bushel boxes, according to quality. Cheese was dull, and prices under more liberal arrivals were easier. Quotable at 9@10c for good to prime new, and 13@13½c for poor to choice old. Dried peas inactive and nominal at $2.00@2.15 per bu for choice green, and about $1.75@1.80 for marrowfat. Dried fruits were quiet but steady. Michigan apples ranged at 8½@8⅝c; Ohio at 7½@8c, and Southern at 7@7½c. Halves peaches quotable at 8½@9½c, and blackberries at 9⅝@9⅞c; the outside quotations are for lots of choice city packed. Eggs were in fair local and shipping demand at 14c per doz for lots in carriers. Feathers dull at 48@50c for prime live geese, and 35c per lb for turkey tail feathers. Green fruits were dull and weak. Sales of apples ranged at $1@1.50 for common apples; $1.75@2.00 for good, and $2.50@3.00 for choice in a small way. Hay was in fair and active at unchanged prices. Timothy quotable at $17@20.00 per ton for mixed to prime and prairie; $12@17.50 for No. 2 to prime. Hides were in fair request and steady. Quotable at 8c, all with choice selected lots at 8½c; calf, 12½@13c; and dry salted kip, 15@15½c. Hops were quiet, but firm at 33@40c for good to prime new from first hands. Honey was slow at 23@25c for comb, and 10@12c for good to choice strained. Maple sugar dull and lower. Quotable at 8@12c for good to choice pure new. Potatoes were dull, and parties having common varieties were compelled to sacrifice them in order to effect sales. The market closed at about 70@75c for round lots of prime Eastern peachblows; about 70c for choice Western do, and 35@60 for mixed and common varieties, according to quality. Vegetables quiet at about $1.75@2.50 per brl for yellow onions, and about $1.50 per brl for carrots and beets. Veal was in good supply and arranged at 3@8c for poor to choice carcasses. Wool coming forward more freely, and light sales were made at 30@34c for new unwashed, according to weight and quality.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

There was but little business transacted in cooperage, and no change was exhibited in values. The demand was principally for the packing descriptions, for which prices were a trifle firmer. Quotations range at $1.15@1.20 for pork barrels, $1.45@1.50 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.10 for whisky barrels, and 45@55c for flour barrels.

The movement in lumber was only moderate, but prices at the same time ruled steady and firmer. Common to good strips and boards, quotable at $9.00@12.00; joists and scantling at $8.50; lath $1.50, and cedar posts $8.00@14.00. Wood remains dull and very quiet; hickory and maple quotable at about $7.50; beech at $6.50, and slabs at $6.00 at the yards.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	12	@ 13
HOGS—Dressed	9	@ 10
COTTON	15½	@ 16½
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 50	@ 4 75
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 11	@ 1 12
No. 1 Spring	1 16	@ 1 20
CORN	79	@ 81
OATS	71	@ 73
RYE	1 02	@ 1 04
PORK—New Mess	19 50	@20 00
LARD—Steam	11	@ 13
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	1 32	@ 1 34
CORN—No. 2 New	68	@ 70
OATS—No. 2	60	@ 62
RYE—No. 2	1 10	@ 1 12
PORK—Mess	20 00	@20 50
LARD	11	@ 13
HOGS	6 25	@ 7 50
CATTLE	4 75	@ 6 60
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 02	@ 1 04
No. 2	97	@ 99
CORN—No. 2	64	@ 66
OATS—No. 2		@ 58
RYE	93	@ 95
BARLEY—No. 2	1 13	@ 1 15
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 18	@ 1 22
CORN—New	71	@ 73
OATS	66	@ 68
RYE	1 08	@ 1 10
PORK—Mess	20 00	@20 25
LARD	13	@ 14
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—Extra	1 22	@ 1 24
Amber	1 21	@ 1 23
CORN—New	74	@ 76
OATS	64	@ 66
DETROIT.
WHEAT—Extra	[illegible]	[illegible]
Amber	[illegible]	@ 1 18
CORN	70	@ 72
OATS	64	@ 66
CLEVELAND.
WHEAT—No. 1 Red	1 22	@ 1 24
No. 2 Red	1 17	@ 1 19
CORN	73	@ 75
OATS	65	@ 67

Amusing the Baby.

When the baby is just able to open its little unused eyes, it is first induced to gaze upon the lamp. The infant, with weak, pinkish, half-open eyes, is a sufferer beyond any power to tell of or get relief from its own woes, and yet the torment of making it gaze at "ze putty yed yight" is supposed to be exquisitely amusing. After the bother with the sun and lamp, the baby is jumped at, screamed at, and otherwise startled, until its nerves are disturbed beyond ordinary quieting. It is a subject of marvel to most people that so many children die in infancy, but to an observing and reflecting mind the wonder is that any children grow to maturity. When you and I feel miserable we want to be left in quiet. Repose is the sweetest remedy for our nervous or other ills, but baby is trotted, bounced, toted, "ketchy-ketchied," chucked under the chin, poked in its cheeks, or somebody's thumb is poked into its toothless mouth irrespective of a need of ablution, and then if baby isn't happy it is reputed very irritable. Tickling the baby's feet, creeping the fingers like the motion of a mouse across its breast, and up into its fat, sensitive neck-wrinkles, is another mode of amusing baby. Of course the child laughs, and the idiots who torment it forget that it is the same expression with which they reply to a similar process from the hand of some mischievous, but torturing, friend; and yet we all know that this laugh from a man is an hysterical outcry of nervous irritability. When the laugh ceases weariness brings weeping, or perhaps a restless and unrefreshing sleep, followed by depression, and probably by indigestion and colic. Nothing should ever be done to startle a child—even a too frequent playing of bo-peep, if violent, has been known to bring on St. Vitus' dance with delicate organizations. All surprises are dangerous to the nervous system, just as all sudden atmospheric or dietetic changes are very unhealthy, and sometimes fatal. If music is selected to please the young child's ears, it should be gentle and soothing.—Metropolitan.

The Two Sides of the Face.

We should expect the convex cast of one side of the face to fit, line to line, into the concave cast of the other; but it is doubtful if there is to be anywhere found one single head of this ideal perfection. Neither the contour of the cheeks nor the lines of the countenance are the same on both sides, and they are the less so because everyone unconsciously tends to perform many unnatural facial movements, which in time cause a divergence between the two sides of the face. Besides, the head, projecting as it does freely into the air, is more dependent than we imagine on wind and weather. Suppose a person were to sit constantly at a window, turning one side to the cooler atmosphere out of doors, and the other toward a hot stove—the result would be a two-fold growth of the facial muscles. One side of the face might become rounded, the other flat or concave; and, though such cases are not infrequent, we do not notice the anomaly, simply because we are accustomed to it. In the Lapp we have a good illustration of this unusual development. Just as the trees of his native land are stunted, so, too, his features become monstrous, irregular, and one-sided; the frontal bones are forced, as though by spasm, down on the maxillaries, producing the most singular combinations and contortions of the features. A not uncommon form of asymmetry in more favored lands is the presence of a dimple on one cheek, while the other has no such indentation, or but a very faint one. In such cases the face has, as it were, a summer and a winter side, just like the apple, which is round and ruddy on its summer side, but on the shade side flattened and wan.

A Strange Breach of Promise Suit.

A singular suit for breach of promise has just been concluded in Baltimore, the details of which reveal a curious custom existing among the Polish Hebrews. The suit was brought by a Hebrew lass, named Yetta Manschewitz, against Isaac Margloss, also a Hebrew, $1,000 damages being claimed by the plaintiff. The alleged engagement was by means of a symbolical betrothal, each taking hold of the ends of a handkerchief and pulling it, the signification being that the parties are held or bound to each other, and sometimes, though not always, the words "We are bound," or a similar phrase, are pronounced. A number of witnesses testified that such a custom of betrothal existed among orthodox Polish Hebrews. It was proven that this ceremony was performed between the plaintiff and defendant; that the defendant went to the house where she lived, taking with him his sister, and after an hour of conversation with each other they went through the form of handkerchief pulling in the presence of several persons. The young woman did not testify, the Maryland law excluding the parties as witnesses in such a case. They were both present, however, and appeared to be greatly concerned about the testimony. The Judge instructed the jury that if such a custom of betrothal existed among the Polish Hebrews, and if that custom had been observed by the parties, the contract of marriage need not be proved by express words, but may be shown by acts, by frequent visits and attentions intended by the parties for an engagement. The jury was somewhat puzzled, but they finally disposed of the case by finding a verdict of one cent damages for the aggrieved lass.

"SHER" CAMPBELL.

How He Went on a Turkey-Shoot with Ted Seguin.

In St. Paul, Minn., Campbell and "Ted" Seguin heard one day that there was fine wild-turkey shooting in the vicinity.

"Turkeys!" said Ted. "I must have some."

"So must I," said Campbell. "We'll go out shooting, Ted, and have a day's sport."

"So we will."

Bright and early the next morning they were up, and, loaded with powder and shot and a double-barreled shot-gun, they started off.

There wasn't a "gobbler" within 50 miles, and after five or six hours' patient rambling, they became less particular at what they fired than they had been.

The dusk of evening was coming on, but not a turkey, or, for that matter, anything else in the shape of game, had been hit. Ted Seguin's sight would be spoiled by his eye-glasses tumbling from his nose just as he was about to pull the trigger, and Campbell scorned anything less than a full-grown gobbler on the wing.

Saddened and weary they plodded along homeward.

"What shall we do, Ted?" said Sher. "It'll never do to come home without something."

"We had better not," replied Ted. "We'll never hear the last of it."

"I have it," suddenly broke out Campbell. "I know a place where they have them for sale. We'll buy a couple and 'shoot them.'"

They started off to a poultry merchant's where they had noticed game for sale, and a bargain was struck for a couple of live turkeys—tame ones—which were set up at the end of the back yard, and nearly blown to pieces by the two sportsmen.

"You'll dress those, and send them down to the hotel, this evening, will you?" said they to the poultry dealer.

"Yis, sir; faith an' I'll do that same," was the answer. The sportsmen went home in good spirits.

"Did you shoot any turkeys, Sher?" asked the ladies, when they arrived at the hotel?"

"Why, of course we did; that's what we went out for."

"Where are they?"

"Oh, they'll be here presently—we left them to be dressed. We'll have them for dinner to-morrow."

An hour or so afterward the turkeys arrived partially wrapped up, and were taken to the rooms of the ladies for exhibition.

"Now, Fanny," said Sher, to Fanny Stockton, who was prima donna of the troupe, "look at them; aren't they fine ones?" and Seguin and he had the covering off them in a twinkling, and laid them on the table for inspection.

"What do you think of them, Zelda?" said Seguin to Miss Harrison.

There were exclamations of admiration at first from the ladies, then a puzzled gaze stole over their faces, and they looked up at one another.

"What did you say these were, Sher?" asked Fanny Stockton.

"Why, turkeys, of course," said Sher, proudly.

"Certainly, turkeys; we shot them ourselves," said Ted, giving a glowing description of the woods in which they were shot, and the difficulty they experienced in getting near them.

Then there was a laugh. "Turkeys," said the ladies, when they regained their breath.

"Why, what's the matter?"

Another peal of laughter from the girls was their answer, to the astonishment of the sportsmen, who were beginning to feel very uneasy, and were thinking it was just possible that they might have been "given away."

"Will you answer me one question, Ted?" said Zelda Harrison, as soon as the girls had recovered a little of their equanimity.

"Certainly," was the sententious answer.

"How long ago is it since turkeys began to wear webbed feet?"

The rascally poultry merchant had sent a couple of geese to the hotel.

Rum and Cheese.

A gentleman was dining at the table of a lady who refused to tolerate one drop of wine or spirits on her table, and who, when asked to entertain one of the British nobility, replied, "I can; but it must be understood that neither wine, ale, nor spirits are offered in my house." This gentleman, referred to as at her dinner table, said, "I enjoy a glass of wine, and I have got in the habit of using it. By-and-by you will take from us all our luxuries. I think wine promotes digestion. Did you ever hear of a man who could not eat cheese without hurting him? Then I suppose you would deny me cheese." She replied, 'Did you ever hear of a man standing under a gallows, and saying to the witnesses of the execution, 'Now, my friends, take warning by me and never eat any cheese?' Or did you ever read in the newspapers when a man is murdered in our streets that 'those men had been eating cheese?' Show to me that cheese produces nine-tenths of the crime, seven-eighths of the pauperism, one-half of the lunacy; show to me that cheese produces the result that drink does, and by the grace of God I will battle the cheese just as hard as the wine.—John B. Gough.

Early Authorship.

Ruskin, the great art critic of England, does not approve of early authorship. He recently said:

"I was obliged to write too young, when I knew only half-truths, and was eager to set them forth with what I thought fine words. People used to call me a good writer then; now they say I can't write at all; because, for instance, if I think anybody's house is on fire, I only say, 'Sir, your house is on fire'; whereas, formerly, I used to say, 'Sir, the abode in which you probably passed the delightful days of your youth is in a state of inflammation,' and everybody used to like the effect of the two p's in 'probably passed,' and of the two d's in 'delightful days.'"

THE Italian Parliament has struck at the liberties of American residents of that country by making profanity an offense punishably by fine.

SHORT horns are preferred by temperance Grangers.

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

Philadelphia talks of abolishing the detective system.

A singular marriage was recently consummated at Susquehanna, Pa. The bridegroom was 74 years old, and the bride 13. The bridegroom has eight married children and several grandchildren, to whom he has introduced this little girl as mother and grandmother.

An amusing episode is said to have occurred at one of the Moody and Sankey meetings in London where the ex-Premier was present. Upon heartily grasping Mr. Moody's hand, Mr. Gladstone said: "I wish I had your body." Mr. Moody made reply: "I wish I had your head." Mr. Gladstone again retorted: "I mean I wish I had your lungs." To which Mr. Moody again replied: "I wish I had your brains," and with hearty good wishes they parted.

The Indianapolis papers have shown a natural jealousy of the growing rival of their city, and have indulged in various ill-natured flings at her late musical festival. In reply the Cincinnati Times makes the following neat hit: "It is falser than all fancy fathoms that our festival chorus was swelled by two hundred hogs under the stage, regulated by pincers applied to their tails, and connected with a pedal under Thomas' feet. It is false, sir, false—the only hog admitted to the building was the representative of the Indianapolis Sentinel, and he didn't squeal until he got home.'

A correspondent of a New York paper advances a novel idea in regard to churches being public, not private institutions. He says the church property in Brooklyn and New York is worth $360,000,000, on which no taxes are paid, and suggests that the laws should be so amended as to exempt from taxation all churches where one-half or more of all seats, pews and benches are free to the public, and taxing at half-rates all other. His theory is that if the public exempt churches from taxation on the ground of "Public Worship," they have a right to require churches to have public and not private worship.

It would be difficult to decide which is the most astonishing, a Japanese Senate or a Chinese steam frigate. The year 1875 is, however, to witness both these curiosities, and one of the steam frigates which China has lately added to her navy is to make a voyage around the globe. It is only a few years since that an eminent Chinaman, after visiting a foreign ship, expressed the opinion that while a steamer might do for foreign devils it was "too much piecee bobbery" for respectable Chinamen. Time has changed the popular Chinese estimate of the steam engine, and real Chinese engineers now manage real steam engines on real steam ships belonging to the Chinese government.

The financial condition of Spain grows worse and worse every day; its revenue, which was $115,000,000 in 1871, is now but $80,000,000, and its debt, at 3 per cent., is fully $265,000,000, so that it would take almost the entire revenue to pay the interest on the national debt, if that interest were paid, as of course it is not. The war expenses now absorb $75,000,000 annually, or within $5,000,000 of the total revenue, the surplus going to the support of the church, the civil service, the magistracy, and the central department of public works. No improvement can be looked for until the end of the war and the pacification of Cuba, and even then a bankruptcy of some kind must be proclaimed.

Gov. Tilden, in a recent special message to the New York Legislature, discusses in considerable detail the subject of municipal indebtedness, which is rapidly assuming enormous proportions in this country. He has obtained and publishes statements of the financial condition of twenty-four cities in the State of New York, which show the following results:

Assessed valuation of taxables	$1 569,535,074
Aggregate debt	175,657,287
Aggregate city taxation	36,439,121
Other taxes	13,990,487
Aggregate of taxation	50,429,609

The debt was equal to $75.80, and the annual tax to $21.55, per head of the population of the twenty-four cities. These debts and the annual taxation are on the increase. The debt of these cities is over 11 per cent. of the assessed value of their taxable property.

Though the country has been suffering for a good while from panics, a general shrinking of values and hard times generally, the people still manage to buy and consume the average quantity of necessaries and the lesser luxuries of life. The late report of the Bureau of Statistics makes rather a surprising showing in this respect. For instance, we have imported over $2,000,000 worth of tea during the last nine months in excess of the same period last year. For the same time we have imported $3,000,000 more of sugar, $300,000 more of woolens, $200,000 more of linens, $500,000 more of cottons, while the importations of coffee in excess of last year run up into the millions. The people are evidently determined to feed and clothe themselves anyway, be the times good or bad.

A Springfield (Ill.) Justice of the Peace was called down town three times to perform a marriage ceremony for a young couple, and, after two postponements, he succeeded in making them man and wife. The happy groom then discovered that he had only 50 cents to pay the Justice, and the latter was forced to take what he could get. On figuring up his expenses—car fare, etc. —he found that he had made just five cents by the operation. He thinks that couple began to practice domestic economy early.

Chicago is overrun with confidence men, bunko operators, pickpockets, and thieves and swindlers of every description, and each issue of the daily press of that city records some of their exploits in the way of taking in unsuspecting visitors. The other day a prominent government official who had just arrived in the city from Washington fell into the hands of a brace of genteel-appearing, smooth-tongued sharpers, by whom he was fleeced out of a considerable sum of money. Parties visiting Chicago are warned against accepting the proffered acquaintanceship and friendly offices of plausible strangers. They swarm all over the city, watching the trains, and lying in wait for unwary victims. If a stranger accosts you on the street, claiming to have met you before, set him down as a rascal and have nothing to do with him.

A correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean describes that wonderful country lying near the source of the Rio Grande, in Southwestern Colorado, which offers, perhaps, the rarest scenery and the most remarkable mountain ranges on the continent. Within a radius of twenty miles there loom up 122 peaks over 13,000 feet in height, twelve of which measure over 14,000 feet. The canons and valleys are described by the few adventurers and explorers who have seen them to be grander than Yosemite and more varied than the wonders of the Yellowstone, while in their branching arms are lying riches that surpass the dreams of the gold-hunter. Dr. Hayden's exploring party are pointing that way this season, having given the region but a passing glimpse last year, and we shall know ere many months have passed the full extent of the mineral resources, and have that corner of the face of mother earth illustrated in photographs.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

Senator John A. Logan will summer at Colorado Springs.

Ex-Senator Geo. S. Boutwell is practicing law in Boston.

Gov. Evans wants to be the first United States Senator from Colorado.

"A solemn century plant" is what the Cincinnati Commercial calls Ben Wade.

James McM. Shafter is spoken of for the Republican nomination for Governor of California.

John Lea Carroll is talked of as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Maryland at the next election.

The exodus of negroes from Tennessee to the West is causing much concern among those whose business is dependent on their labor.

Gen. Sherman lately told the St. Louis suffragists to ask for all they were entitled to and grumble for the rest, the way the sojer boys do.

The Cincinnati Enquirer exhorteth the Ohio Democratic Convention to demand more money, and to make that the primary issue in the coming campaign.

The Washington Chronicle complains of the Sioux chiefs who are now at the capital, and says they attire themselves in short calico shirts and abbreviated leggins, which fail to connect.

A candidate for Treasurer in Mississippi announced that in case he was elected he would pay all his debts. As a majority of his constituents were deeply interested in the paying part of the matter he was triumphantly elected.

The people of Bridgeport, Conn., made the great American showman, Barnum, their Mayor, and now the citizens of Hartford are seriously proposing the name of the great American humorist, "Mark Twain," as municipal head.

Journalistic amenities: The Ohio State Journal says, "Fish is said to be good brain diet; but it don't by any means follow from this that the editor of the Toledo Democrat can make a Horace Greeley of himself by living on Maumee bullheads."

Gov. Butler, of Nebraska, has sued an English nobleman for $10,000 for a house which 'is lordship purchased at Lincoln some time ago and forgot to pay for. He came hover a 'untin of the 'antelope, you know, and thought 'e'd 'ave a box 'ere—just a little demnition shanty, you know. —Detroit Evening News.

The Harrisburg Telegraph says the statement comes very well authenticated that Gen. Butler will not take a hand in the fall elections. He has no desire to run for Governor, and his personal friends are left free to support any candidate they see fit. It is Gen. Butler's intention to pass his winters in Washington.

INDIANA NEWS.

Mr. Hugh McHarry, of Shawnee Mound, has made a donation of $10,000 to the Central Tennessee College. The same gentleman recently gave a large sum to the Wesleyan University, of Bloomington, Ill.

Little Stella Montz, of Madison, aged 8, on Saturday last went to a drawer where a loaded pistol had been carelessly left, and in taking it out accidentally discharged it, the charge taking effect near the heart and killing her instantly.

James Bennett, one of the Cihauski murderers, on trial at South Bend, last week, pleaded guilty to manslaughter, and was sentenced to the Penitentiary for seven years. He turned State's evidence, and his partner, Hickman, went for life, which accounts for his light sentence.

Several parties having resigned contracts for carrying the mails in this State, and others having been revoked, the following awards have been made to take their place: J. Cutteridge and B. Marshall, Newberg to Evansville, $175; W. F. Kerns, Toronto to Dana, $75; Louis Rothert, Friendship to Pittsburgh, $174.

Wm. Griffith, a well-known citizen of Kosciusco county, met with a fatal accident on Friday evening near Warsaw. While moving household goods in a large wagon a wheel of the wagon dropped off, throwing him violently to the ground. Striking on the back of his head he remained unconscious until next evening, when he died.

John Harbou, of South Bend, a carpenter, who was at work on the paint shop wall of the Studebaker Brothers' building when it fell, on the 21st of last November, and had his leg broken, brought suit against H. L. Hinds and the company, in the St. Joseph Circuit Court for $10,000 damages. The trial lasted three days, and the jury, after being out eight hours, disagreed, standing six and six.

The regular semi-annual meeting of allopathic physicians in Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan took place at Laporte, on Tuesday. Dr. Humphreys, of South Bend, presided. Thirty-two physicians were present. Papers were read by several members, and an interesting lecture was give by Dr. Humphreys. Dr. Rose, of Laporte, was elected President for the ensuing year. The next meeting will take place at Goshen.

A reporter of the Indianapolis News relates this coincidence: "Yesterday at noon, for an hour or so, two horses—one belonging to Fount Robertson and the other to J. Perry Elliott—might have been seen standing on Washington street, hitched to the same ring, and last evening, during the terrific thunder storm which prevailed, the two barns in which those horses were kept—though situated a mile apart—were struck by lightning, the one horse being killed and the barn consumed, while the other was seemingly miraculously saved with but little damage."

The Alexandria Post gives the particulars of a hand-to-paw fight between Mr. Eli Archer and a black bear, at Lake Mary, in which Mr. Archer came out second best. Mr. Archer had fired two bullets into bruin, when they came to close quarters. The contest was a short one, when Mr. Archer precipitately retreated. He received some very serious injuries, one of his hands being badly lacerated and a gash an inch long cut through his upper lip, besides his clothes being nearly all torn off. He would undoubtedly have been killed but for his dog. Several of his neighbors went out the next morning and found the bear had died during the night, from the effects of the shot he received from Archer's gun.

Evansville's latest sensation is thus related by the Journal: "Some month or two ago, Mr. Walter Viele, of this city, lost a valuable solitaire diamond shirt-stud, which had cost $800. He had no clue to where it had been lost, and in no way could account for its disappearance. Yesterday morning a tramp entered G. W. Warren's store and offered to sell a shirt-stud at Mr. John Messick's jewelry stand in the store. The clerk alone being in, however, he desired the fellow to wait until Messick returned. He did as requested, which was very fortunate. While waiting, the stud was carefully examined, and it was suddenly recognized as that lost by Mr. Viele. A messenger was dispatched for Mr. Geo. B. Viele, who soon appeared and identified the pin. He paid the tramp $12, which he asked, and took the diamond."

President Porter, of Yale, has a succinct way of stating things. Recently he gave the following laconic advice to the students in the course of an address: "Don't drink; don't chew; don't smoke; don't swear; don't deceive; don't read novels; don't marry until you can support a wife; be earnest; be self-reliant; be generous; be civil; read the papers; advertise your business; make money and do good with it; love God and your fellow-man." Besides arithmetic and the languages, what else could they teach at Yale?

The city of Providence, R. I., having looked the matter up, finds that by lighting its 1,950 street lamps with electricity it can save $25,210 in lamp-lighters' services per annum.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

Soaking seed wheat in a solution of copper will prove an antidote to smut.

Graft the trees yourself. When you set a tree dig a hole large enough to allow the roots plenty of loose dirt to start in and be very careful not to crowd the roots. Pour in a basketful of chip dirt before putting in the tree and tread the dirt firmly about them.

Papering and painting are best done in cold weather, especially the latter, for the wood absorbs the oil of paint much more in warm weather, while in cold weather the oil hardens on the outside, making a coat which will protect the wood instead of soaking into it.

To test the quality of wool, take a lock from the sheep's back, place it on a measured inch. If the spirals count from 30 to 35 in the space of an inch, it equals the finest Electoral or Saxony wool grown. The diminution of the number of folds to the inch shows the inferiority.

Cribbing is caused in the first place by some foreign substance being pressed between the teeth, or by the front teeth growing too close together, thus causing pain. The horse, to avoid this, instinctively pulls at any hard substance, thus spreading the points of the the teeth, and by that means affording temporary relief. To remedy this fault, it is only necessary to saw between the teeth with a very thin saw; this relieves the teeth of all side pressure and effectually ends the trouble.

This is the way the Maine State Press puts the question of wood on farms: Every farm containing one hundred acres ought to have at least twenty acres in timber, either of the original forest, or of land for a while cultivated and then allowed to grow up of itself, or an artificial plantation produced by sowing or planting. No matter how unfavorable the conditions may be, from one of these sources a supply may always be within reach.

The Germantown Telegraph says: "Hep manure, where only a small quantity is gathered, is better adapted to the growing of onions than anything we ever tried. Although a very powerful manure, we have dosed our onion beds very liberally, and we never saw any but the best results. When large quantities are saved, it should be made fine, mixed with two or three times its bulk of gypsum, and applied to the corn hills at planting time."

Common grindstone spindles, with a crank at one end, are open to the great objection that the stone will never keep round, because every person is inclined more or less to follow the motion of his foot with his hand, which causes the pressure on the stone to be unequal. The harder pressure is always applied to the very same part of the stone, and will soon make it uneven, so that it is impossible to grind a tool true. To avoid this, put in place of this crank a small cog-wheel on the spindle, say with twelve cogs; have short spindle with a crank and a cog-wheel of thirteen cogs to work in the former. The stone will make a fraction of a revolution more than the crank, and the harder pressure of the tool on the stone will change another place at every turn, and the stone will keep perfectly rounded if it is a good one.

An exchange says: "The crowding of fowls in a limited space is the rock on which many persons, interested in poultry, have stranded; not profiting by the advice of those who have tried it, but becoming disgusted with the business, which they drop, not to renew. From fifteen to twenty fowls (the former number is preferable) in a room or coop, is al that should be attempted, generally. With this number, there will be a good supply of eggs, friendliness on the part of the fowls toward each other, together with peace and harmony; and it will not only be a satisfaction but a pleasure to care for them. Increase the number to any extent, and it will often be with more or less disastrous results, such as the breaking of eggs, quarreling and confusion, which will disgust, if not discourage, those who have them in charge. Sometimes, with a good range, and under uncommonly favorable circumstances, fifty fowls may be placed together, but never if they are yarded."

About the House.

Walls that have been whitewashed and need cleaning can be much improved in looks by passing a soft brush broom back and forth over the surface of the wall.

To clean wall paper—tie a small bag of bran over the brush end of a broom and pass it up and down over the wall. Shake up the contents of the bag occasionally and remove the dust from the bag by brushing with a small brush broom.

To wash calico without fading, infuse three gills of salt in four quarts of water. Put in the calico while the solution is hot, and leave until the latter is cold. It is said that in this way the colors are rendered permanent, and will not fade by subsequent washing.

Lemon Extract for Farmers' Wives. —Pare the lemons as thin as possible; the rind can be dried for a variety of uses. Slice them and take out the seeds. Heat them boiling hot with their weight in white sugar. Put in a tight can. A teaspoonful will flavor a pie or a custard nicely. This will keep a long time.

Oyster Ketchup.—Boil small oysters in their own liquor till the goodness is out; to every pint of clear liquor put half a pint of red wine, the same of white; mace, black, and Jamaica pepper, a quarter of an ounce each; pour it boiling hot on one dozen of shalots, half the rind of a lemon, and a piece of horse radish; when cold, mix it with the oyster liquor and bottle it.

It would require the application of tremendous mechanical power to stretch a bar of iron only the fraction of an inch in length; yet when heat expands it to the same extent, it does it at the expense of precisely the same amount of force. The same principle is forcibly illustrated by a wagon-tire, which sometimes crushes a wheel by its contraction when the heat is removed.

Dried-apple Pudding.—Two parts dried-apples, four parts raisins and currants, and three parts coarsely-broken bread crumbs. Stew the apples half an hour and chop them coarsely, then place them in layers in a porcelain-lined stew kettle, alternating them with the bread crumbs and the mixed fruits. Add the juice in which the apples were stewed, and stew or steam the whole slowly four or five hours.

Dressed Mutton.—To have it as it should be, the dish must be lined with mashed potatoes, the mutton nicely minced and properly seasoned, placed in the dish, and then covered over with mashed potatoes roughed with a fork, and placed before the fire till the little dish assumes the appearance of a nicely browned baked hedgehog. The hotter served, the better it will be relished, provided it has only been allowed to simmer and not to boil.

The Father of Waters.

The Mississippi river is the guardian and pledge of the union of the States of America. Had they been confined to the eastern slopes of the Alleghanies, there would have been no geographical unity between them, and the thread of connection between lands that merely fringed the Atlantic must soon have been sundered. The Father of Rivers gathers his waters from all the clouds that break between the Alleghanies and the furthest ranges of the Rocky Mountains. The ridges of the eastern chain bow their heads at the north and at the south; so that, long before science became the companion of man, nature herself pointed out to the barbarous races how short portages join his tributary rivers to the shore of the Atlantic coast. At the other sides his mightiest arms interlock with the arms of the Oregon and the Colorado, and by the conformation of the earth itself marshals highways to the Pacific. From his remotest springs he refuses to suffer his waters to be divided; but, as he bears them all to the bosom of the ocean, the myriads of flags that wave above his head are all the ensigns of one people. States, larger than kingdoms, flourish where he passes; and beneath his step cities start into being, more marvelous in their reality than the fabled creations of enchantment. His magnificent valley, lying in the best part of the temperate zone, salubrious and wonderfully fertile, is the chosen muster-ground of the most various elements of human culture, brought together by men summoned from all the civilized nations of the earth, and joined in the bonds of common citizenship by the strong, invisible attraction of republican freedom. Now that science has come to be the household friend of trade and commerce and travel, and that nature has lent to wealth and intellect the use of her constant forces, the hills, once walls of divisions, are scaled, or pierced, or leveled; and the two oceans, between which the republic has unassailably entrenched itself against the outer world, and bound together across the continent by friendly links of iron.—Bancroft's History of the United States.

Parisian Newspapers.

Arsene Houssaye writes from Paris to the New York Tribune: "We must go into society, on 'Change, or on the boulevard to learn the news, while the reporters of the daily papers are playing dominoes in the cafes. Do you want to know how a paper is made here? It is very simple; the journals make themselves out of one another. The scissors do far more than the pen. Paragraphs out of the evening papers become articles in the morning papers, and the reverse. You discuss with your opponent a political question already discussed a thousand times, and a thousand times more muddled at the end than the beginning. Darkness is thrown upon it. A prefect of the fourth of September, who was as good a prefect as he had been journalist, recounted while dining with me at the chateau de Breuil—for it was the prefect of Laon—how, one morning, seeing that all his associates had gone off to a civil funeral, he decided to make the paper by himself. He scissored away at other papers so much and so well, that he needed only a line of invention here and there to reduce to harmony those heterogeneous ideas gathered from every side. The paper came out at 4 o'clock, and at 5, his editor-in-chief, who had been to make a speech at the civil funeral, came to congratulate him, saying the paper had never been so complete or so interesting. Since that time the editor-in-chief has followed no other system. Perhaps you imagine in reading our papers that all those fine things leap alive from the brain of Minerva. They have usually existed at least a hundred times the life of the rose, and are taken up and turned inside out for the occasion. For instance, M. Emile de Girardin has always a highly interrogative article ready for any possible event. We call this reserved wit."

Some Successful Literary People.

Clemens, the humorist, better known as Mark Twain, has done better than any man of his turn of labor. He has been seven years before the public, and during that time has become rich enough to live on his income. His property in Hartford is worth more than $80,000. Mrs. Stowe has made more than any other American woman, and has probably cleared $100,000. This may seem like a large sum, but when it is spread through a quarter of a century, it is not such an immense thing as it at first appears to be. Marian Harlan (Mrs. Terhune), who has written industriously for twenty years, has probably made $15,000 by a dozen novels. Perhaps Mary J. Holmes has done equally well. Gail Hamilton (Miss Dodge) enjoyed a good sale for her books during the first few years, but her vanity got the better of her judgment, and she quarreled, and it at once impaired her popularity. She now has a corner in Harper's papers, and also in the Independent, but will never domuch in books again. Her impudence ward tothe venerable John Todd, who differed with her in opinion, showed how the vanity arising from success spoils real talent. Walworth, who was shot by his son, never made much out of his books, and they were, in fact, too inferior to sell without extraordinary puffery. Josh Billings (Shaw) has found unusual popularity. He is witty, and says many wise as well as funny things. It seems a pity that such a clever fellow should be obliged to borrow the jokes of poor Artemus Ward and print them as original, but such is one of the weaknesses of funny fellows.

All Sorts.

Portugal has emancipated her slaves.

Erie, Pa., has a school for deaf mutes.

Bashfulness is often like the plating on spoons—when it wears off it shows the brass.

Lo, the poor Indian, whose untutored mind sees wealth in the Black Hills, and to stick is inclined.

A lot of 5,000 pineapples was received recently by the Oneida (N. Y.) Community for canning.

A single queen bee will produce 100,000 bees in a season; the 100,000 bees will produce 50,000 swollen heels and the sale of twenty-two barrels of arnica.

Two years ago a Pennsylvania servant girl was sent to prison for stealing $200 from her employer. The money was found the other day where the man had hidden it.

The Duvals, Leroux, and Dubois seem to be the French Smiths, Joneses, and Robinsons. There are in Paris 4,500 Duvals, 3,250 Leroux, and 3,600 Dubois.—New York Tribune.

They have got a balloonist in New York who recently went so high that when he wanted to come down he had to take exceedingly good aim to hit the earth—it was so awful little.

The New York Herald says Melendez, who assassinated the ex-Vice President of San Salvador some time ago, was executed on the 29th of April. It took twenty-three shots to kill him.

A deer, owned in the County of Limerick, Ireland, recently jumped over a wall thirteen feet in height. It had been separated from its companions and to rejoin them took this extraordinary leap.

Gen. Fitz John Porter has presented to the Washington Association at Morristown, N. J., six solid mahogany chairs which have a historical connection with the personal life and times of Lafayette.

A French doctor, by an examination of matrimonial statistics, has discovered that out of 100 blonde women 37 remain old maids by the wayside, while out of 100 brunettes only 18 stop without a husband.

A lean and childlike Connecticut Yankee, wearing an unsuspected jacket of lead, is gathering in $5 bets at Newport, by offering wagers that "you can't guess within 100 pounds how much I weigh."

Prof. Blackie announces that he has already received $25,000 for the endowment of a Celtic chair at Edinburgh University. He expects to get $5,000 from London and $1,000 from the Colonies.

Speaking of the tenacity with which journalists cling to life, as illustrated in the cases of Messrs. Carruth and Anthony, the Louisville Courier-Journal suggests that the cause is fear of the life hereafter.

I would not advise any of those who hear me to drop an honestly and healthily conducted journal because of disagreeing with it on some single question, though it seems to them important.—W. C. Bryant.

Of the 4,448 persons committed to the Connecticut jails last year, and supported generally in idleness at a cost of $78,000 for board and $76,000 for attendance, 1,563 were hard drinkers and 2,140 moderate drinkers.

From Italy comes the trilling news that 300 American girls are preparing for the operatic stage. This ought to bring prices down. Competition is the soul of trade. Give us home talent. Lots of it—and cheap.

Hon. James G. Blaine and Secretary Bristow will deliver addresses at the dedication of the new college buildings of Washington and Jefferson College, at Washington, Penn., on June 26. They are both graduates of the college.

Instinct.

Prof. Hammond, of New York, relates many instances of instinct in animals. He says:

If the entire brain be removed from a frog, the animal will continue to perform those functions which are immediately connected with the maintenance of life. If the web between the toes is pinched, the limb is immediately withdrawn. If the shoulder be scratched with a needle, the hind foot of the same side is raised to remove the instrument. If the animal is held up by one leg it struggles. If it is placed on its back, a position to which frogs always object, it at once turns over on its belly. If one foot is held firmly with a pair of forceps, the frog endeavors to draw it away. If unsuccessful, it places the one foot against the instrument and pushes convulsively in the effort to remove it. Not succeeding, it writhes the whole body from side to side, and always in a forward direction.

All these, and even more complicated motions, are performed by the decapitated alligator. I have frequently seen the headless body of the rattlesnake coil itself into a threatening attitude, and, when irritated, strike its bleeding trunk against the offending body. On one occasion a teamster on the Western plains had decapitated one of these reptiles with his whip, and when bending down to examine it more carefully, he was struck by it full in the forehead. So powerful was the shock to his nervous system that he fainted and remained unconscious for several minutes. A natural historian relates that a viper whose head had been cut off moved determinedly oward its hole in the wall.

A Child of the Sea.

A man dressed in sailor costume was up in a New York criminal court the other day upon a charge of stealing a pair of boots. As he had no counsel, the court appointed a young lawyer to take charge of the defence. The lawyer opened the case with a speech, in which he alluded to his client as "a child of the sad sea waves, a nursling of the storm, whom the pitiless billows had cast, a forlorn and friendless waif, upon the shores of Time, after a life spent in fierce and heroic contest with the raging elements." Then the defendant was put in the dock and the fact was revealed that he was cook upon a canal-boat, previous to which he had hawked fish. The "nursling of the storm" is now in jail for six months.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, JUNE, 17, 1875

President Grant, Mrs. U. S. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Sartoris, and Col. and Mrs. Fred Grant have gone to their "cottage by the sea," at Long Branch where they will remain during the heated term.

Vice-President Wilson met his o'd friend Mr. Jefferson Davis, in the streets of Memphis a few days ago, and the two are said to have clapped hands with cordial and friendly order repairing immediately to a neighboring ice cream saloon, where they "discussed strawberries and ice and the memories of the past."

An Ohio paper says the reason why Grant is so anxious to name his successor has at last leaked out. When his time is up he wants to be appointed on the list of internal revenue officers who are charged with inspection in the whiskey department. His third-term back-down treaty with the United States was signed on that bung only.

Another dreadful accident at sea is reported in the papers of yesterday. The Vicksburg started from Montreal for Liverpool on the 27th of May, and when out 120 miles southwest of St. Johns, she ran plump into an iceberg, filled rapidly and sank. Of the eighty-eight souls on board only five succeeded in escaping to tell horrowing tale. These were picked up on the 5th of June, four days after the disaster.

Mayor Johnson, of Cincinnati has telegraphed to the secretary of state for instructions, when to celebrate the 4th of July. It appears that the 4th comes this year either on the 3rd or the 5th. The secretary replied that he could make it the 3rd and the mayor was satisfied. He was afraid some of the German citizens might be tempted to celebarte on the 4th, which would be very sad.

The summer hegira of the government has begun. Grant and Babcock Jewell and Delano, Robeson and Fish have already gone where the sad sea waves lap the beach sands and never tell their secrets. Bristow and Pierrepont are running the republic at the present time, but, with the advent of the dog days, they too, will vanish, and leave the capitol of our proud country in change of an office boy.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune, writing from South Carolina mentions the fact that Gov. Chamberlain has suddenly developed a zeal for reforming the corruptions existing in the offices of the state. What motive the governor may have for his singular conduct, none can tell, but most probably it is part of the great plan of "show virtue" to be used as campaign capital. By next summer this time the republican party will be an aggregation of saints.

Gideon, the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times, telegraphs yesterday's paper as follows: One of the reasons Morton's visit here is to secure some new appointments for some of his Indiana friends. The internal revenue bureau will need some twenty new special agents, until this whiskey excitement is over. Pratt has given Morton early information of this, and he has come on at once, to see that Indiana gets everything. His presence will bring a large crowd of politicians here, who begin to to think that this democratic state ought to rest a while in its demands for office. One of these incensed gentlemen has compiled a little tabular list, which shows how strongly represented is the state in some of the best places the government has in its gift. It is as follows:

Frazier, captured and abandoned property division, secretary's office	$10,000
Pratt, commissioner of internal revenue	6,000
New, treasurer of United States	6,500
Orth, minister to Austra(in gold)	10,000
Foster minister to Mexico	6,000
Tyner, ass't postmaster-gen	4,500
Ray, deputy commissioner of internal revenue	2,500
Yaryan, chief of division of internal revenue agents	3,500
Grubbs, postmaster, Dennison Tax	4,000
Premium on gold, $16,000	2,500
P. C. Shanks, $10 per day and expenses per annum	7,000

The Beecher Tilton business is closing up.

REMOVAL

Our enterprising Jewelry merchant, Joseph Abright, has removed his extensive stock to his new building on Main street, opposite Ford's new block, where he will be pleased to see his many friends. The new building has been erected with a view to the jewelry trade and is arranged with special features for that purpose. Handsome new show cases have been purchased, a fine new assortment has been added, and taken all in all, this establishment cannot be excelled in Northern Indiana. There is no line of goods in which the ordinary purchaser can be so completely swindled by irresponbible parties as in jewelry. Therefore, it is always best to buy such goods of a responsible party, one who has an established reputation for fairness and honesty. Mr. Abright has engaged in this trade in Auburn for a number of years, and has made no representations but what have been true Being an experienced jeweler, he knows what to purchase, and his recommendation of an article will always be found good. He keeps an extensive stock of clocks, jewelry, cutlery, musical instruments, &c., which he offers at reasonable prices. He gives his personal attention to repairing clocks, watches &c. Should you want a good watch or clock or anything in the jewelry line give him a call, at his new store on Main street.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct:
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, September Term, 1875.

Mary A. B. Fee, Adm'x of the estate of John Fee
vs.
William Hyler
Sophia Hyler,
Henry Funk,
Lucinda Funk,
} Complaint No. 106.

Now comes the plaintiff, by A. F. Pinchin, her attorney, and files her complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendants, William Hyler and Sopha Hyler are not residents of the state of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb County Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court house in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 15th, day of June, 1875.

J. R. LANNING Clerk.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September Term 1875

Richard Grambling,
vs.
Charles Brandt
Wenzel Ernst
Ernst wife of said Wenzel Ernst, whose name is unknown to plaintiff
Fredrick Buchanan
Peter Grambling
} Complaint No. 69

Now comes the plaintiff, by McBride & Morlan his attorneys, and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant's, Wenzel Ernst—Ernst wife of said Wenzel Ernst Charles Brandt and Fredrick Buchanan are not residents of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, given, said defendant that unless they be and appear on the first day of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th, Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 15th day of June, 1875.

J. R. LANNING Clerk

Annual Exhibit
OF THE
RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES

Of DeKalb County, State of Indiana, for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1875.

KIND OF FUND.	RECP'S	EXPEND
Balance in treasury June 1, '74	2853 26
Am't collected delinquent, '73	9103 64
" " duplicate, 1874	18807 18
Am't rec'd by treasurer, sale of bonds for new jail and Sheriff's residence	3500 00
Amt collected, all other sources	1215 41
Amt orders issued from June 1 1874, to June 1, 1875, on account as follows:
Expense of poor		1888 81
" county officers' salaries		5186 76
" Courts		4026 50
" Illegal tax refunded		186 30
" Miscellaneous orders		1296 89
" Insane		528 20
" Criminals		308 92
" Public buildings		3363 32
" Inquest		177 00
" Roads and bridges		4017 57
" Elections		117 80
" Book stationery, prin'g		1890 69
" Assessing revenue		573 80
" H. of R. deaf and dumb		40 98
" Interest on county orders		191 78
Balance in excess of orders issued for year end'g. June 1, '75		10809 36
	35479 49	35479 40

RECAPITULATION OF COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP REVENUE.

Balance in treas. June 1, 1874	3140 03
Amt special school tax revenue col'd to June 1, 1875	15088 69	15088 69
" Road revenue collected to June 1, 1875	11216 84	11216 84
" Township to June 1, 1875	1910 93	1910 93
" Dog Tax " "	1393 74	1393 74
" Com. school " "	5465 00	5465 00
" Add'l special " "	1168 09	1168 09
" Agr'l fund " "	63 00
" Redept'n on land " "	662 32	600 47
" County revenue " "	32626 22	25531 81
Bal. in treasury June 1, 1875		10269 80
	72734 87	72734 87

RECAPITULATION OF SCHOOL FUNDS.

Amt rec'd of State to June 1, '75	19046 30	19046 30
" con'gl. int. in treas " 1874	1263 00
" " collected " 1875	1486 76	1564 72
Com. school int. received to June 1, 1875	1599 77	1654 01
Cong'l school principal in treasury June 1, 1874	141 81
Same col'd to June 1, 1875	1049 69	1191 50
Com. school fund prin. in treasury June 1, 1874	45 56
Same collected to 1875	1744 29	1788 50
Balance in treasury June 1, '75		1332 75
	26377 78	26377 78

GRAND RECAPITULATION:

Total amt of twp., school and county rev. in treas June 1 '74	4591 09
Amt spec'l school tax collected since	15088 69	15088 69
Amt road tax collected since	11216 84	11216 84
" Township " "	1910 93	1910 93
" Dog " "	1393 74	1393 74
" Com. school " "	5465 00	5465 00
" Add'l special " "	1168 09	1168 09
" Red'mt land " "	662 32	600 47
" Agr'l fund " "	63 00
" Co. revenue " "	32626 22	25531 81
" Com. school " "	19046 30	19046 30
" Cong'l sch'l in. " "	1486 76	1364 72
" Com. " " "	1599 77	1654 01
" " " prin. "	1677 78	1788 50
" Con'l " " "	1049 69	1191 50
" Fines rec'd from Justices	66 51
Bal. in treasury June 1 1875		11602 65
	99112 65	99112 65

Balance of the Several Funds in the County Treasury, June 1, 1875:

County Revenue	$10,200 40
[illegible] ption of Land	5 90
[illegible] school Interest	1,381 40
[illegible]	68 40
Common School Principal	1 85

ISAAC HAGUE, AUDITOR.
Auburn, Ind. June 14, 1875.

STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1839.

GEO. DeWALD & CO.

Dry Goods & Notions.

Black Silks & Fine Dress Goods a Specialty.

We can make it to the interests of every person to trade with us. We buy for CASH and sell for CASH, keep the best goods, and sell at one price

ALSO AGENTS FOR THE

"Domestic" PATERNS.

The Best in Use. Send for a Catalogue.

Geo DeWald & Co
No. 1 Columbia Street
Fort Wayne Ind.,

Commissioners Allowances

The following is the allowances by the Commissioners at their June session 1875:

EXPENSE OF POOR:

J. R. Cosper	$ 12 90	T. R. Duncan	$ 54 00
J. B. Taylor	60 00	T. Wightman	124 86
Jon Donley	14 00	J. N. Miller	25 50
J. B. Griffith	40 00	A. Hughes	20 00
T. Monks	14 00	C. R. Wanemaker	5 00
N. Griffith	15 00	G. H. Duncan	5 00
J. J. Latson	17 00	D. Moody	1 00
H. W. Coburn	24 00	J. S. Holly	7 00
J. Spencer	8 15	A. G. Jones	7 26
L. D. Pattee	41 11	E. Sargent	2 00
Knisely Bro	1 50	Steifel & Ochs	2 75
D. Till	14 13	A. S. Leas	3 00
C. C. Shaffer	16 00	A. C. Brown	15 50
S. Edge	2 00	J. Kahn	15 85
I. N. Cool	8 20	W. S. Allen	5 00
J. Spooner	26 00	S. W. Ralston	33 62
J. L. Davis	67 02	Ed. Elridge	39 75
J. W. Wyatt	80 04	G. Barney & Son	31 88
N. H. Mathews	18 00	C. Klotz	4 50
S. W. Sprott & Son	5 65	J. A. Cowan	5 00
J. Beck	2 00	E. Hallett	1 00

EXPENSE ASSESSING REVENUE:

Ass'rs. on day, agreeing on uniform rate	$ 24 00
H. Dickerhoff	59 00
Andrew Baxter	100 00
A. W. Blair	119 00
D. D. Kinsey	80 00
Bennett Hickson	160 00
J. D. McAnally	166 00
J. R. Cosper	108 00
A. Conrad	114 00
I. C. Culbertson	100 00
Robert Culbertson	100 00
Samuel Smith	110 00
N. F. Fuller	58 00
Elihu Ocher	150 00

EXPENSE OF CRIMINALS:

C. R. Wanemaker	$ 5 00	N. Griffith	$ 10 00
G. H. Duncan	10 00	J. L. Davis	7 72
Wm. McDougal	5 00

EXPENSE OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS:

Crane & Co.	$ 4110 00	A. McEnterfer	$30 00
F. Groescop	5 00	P. & Clark	10 00
D. Bodine	7 00

EXPENSES OF PRINTING, AC:

C. P. Houser	11 10	Braden & co.	154 30
R. H. Weamer	18 00	Baxter & co.	4 00
T. C. Mays	1 00	Spring & co.	140 75
F. E. Davenport	13 50

Expense of Insane. E. Ensley co. treas $179 05

EXP. ROADS AND BRIDGES:

W. L. Meese	12 50	C. Wanemaker	10 00
N. Griffith	20 00	G. H. Duncan	15 00
Haskins & Son	2 00	D. Hecathorn	33 00
B. Greenwood	2 50	A. Baxter	5 00
J. K. Wood	2 50

EXPENSE OF COURT:

W. L. Meese	25 00	G. H. Duncan	5 00
C. Shaffer	14 00	W. L. Meese	18 00
Isaac Hague	18 00	J. R. Lanning	85 35
Sundry, May term	719 10

EXPENSE OF SALARIES:

J. A. Barns	133 50	I. Hague	798 83
C. Wanamaker	30 00	N. Griffith	30 00
G. H. Duncan	30 00

EXP. ILLEGAL TAXES:

M. Simonton	3 34	J. F. Holler	2 21
W. Fales	1 65	J. B. Casebeer	10 23

MISCELLANEOUS EXPENSE.

C. Faler wood	26 90	W. L. Meese	31 00
P. Blodgett "	26 25	I. Hague	41 93
A. Blodgett "	26 25	W. L. Meese	10 00
W. McIntyre	3 00	C. Wanemaker	2 90
N. Griffith	6 90	G. H. Duncan	11 90
N. Ensley	32 50	S. Lauferty	30
F. E. Davenport	6 66	Penfield & Moody
I. Hague	2 41	Blair bond case	81 51

Attachment Notice.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb county. }

George Dollaway } Before John S. Barns Jus-vs. } tice of the Peace, for Rich-
James Cody. } land township.

It appearing by the return of the writ herein that said defendant is not found, and it further appearing, by affidavit filed herein, that said defendant is a non-resident of the State of Indiana and a writ of garnishment in said case having been served on the Baltimore, Pittsburg and Chicago R. W. co., Indiana division. Notice is therefore given to said defendant to appear to said action at my office on the 9th day of August, 1875, at ten o'clock am. and answer or demur to the complaint herein, or the same will be determined in his absence.

J. S. BARNS, J. P.

June 14.

Administrator's Sale.

THE undersigned, Administrator of the Estate of John W. Sebert, late of DeKalb County deceased, will sell at public sale all the personal property, not taken by the Widow at the late residence of the deceased, 5 miles east of Auburn, on Friday the 2 day of July, 1875, the following property to-wit:

Two Mares, 1-horse buggy, 2-horse buggy 7 head of young cattle, hogs, wheat in the ground, 1 reaper and Mower, 1 sulky rake, 1 organ and other articles too tedious to mention.

TERMS—All sums under $3 cash; over $3 a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving his note with approved security, at 6 per cent. interest, waiving the benefits of valuation and appraisement laws.

ROBERT CULBERTSON, Ad'r.

AUBURN LIVERY
—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Ryan & Mader, pro's

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

They are prepared to furnish rigs at all times at reasonable prices. Stable east of Court House.

A NEW PLACE

TO GET A

Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with M. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R
IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,

Notions, etc., of

CHARLES KLOTZ

AT HIS

Old Stand

ON MAN STREET,

Opposite Court Square

AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accommodate customers, and sell them such good as they may need,

CLOTHING

Of all descriptions, and

HANDSOME SUITS

Made to Order!

TAKE SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

The Favorite Home Remedy.

This unrivalled southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

Purely Vegetable.

containing those Southern Roots and Herbs, which an allwise Providence has placed in countries where Liver Diseases most prevail. It will cure all diseases caused by derangement of the Liver or Bowels.

Simmons' Liver Regulator, or Medicine, is eminently a family medicine, and by being kept ready for immediate resort will save many an hour of suffering and many a dollar in time and doctors' bills.

After over Forty Years' trial it is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Eminent physicians commend it as the most

Effectual Specific

for Constipation, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, despondency, gloom and forebodings of evil, all of which are the offspring of a diseased Liver.

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

Armed with this ANTIDOTE, all climates and changes of water and food may be faced without fear. As a Remedy in Malarious Fevers, Bowel Complaints, Restlessness, Jaundice, Nausea,

It Has No Equal.

It is the Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World! Manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Ga. and Philadelphia.

Price $1. Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875

THE
NEW YORK STORE

ROOT & COMPANY!

Invite the attention this week, to a number of new patterns of Body Brussels Carpets, English Tapestry Carpets, Extra three ply Carpet, Extra super Ingrain Carpets. Also to their elegant line of low and medium priced Carpets, at 25, 35, 40 and 50 and 60c per yard, and to the most extensive line of Floor and Table oil cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Matts, Lace and Fottingham Curtains, etc., to be found in the city. N. B.—This department of our busines being under the charge of an experienced carpet man, parties who favor us with their orders will be entirely satisfied with the manner they are filled.

HOSIERY! Now in stock a complete stock of English, German and Domestic Cotton Hosiery for Ladies, Gentlemen, Misses, Boys and Children's use, in every size and quality at extremely low prices

Kid Gloves, Summer Gloves, and a full line now open for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, including Harris' Seamless Kid Gloves, and our favorite "Perinot Gloves," both makes unsurpassed for perfect fit and durability.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT! Silk goods department. Men's ware department. Linen goods department. Cloak and Shawl department. Fancy goods department. Our corset department. Cotton goods department. Muslin and Underware department. Parasol department. Sun umbrella department.

Newly assorted this week at

ROOT & COMPANY,
46 and 48 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne,
☞ Opposite the Court House.

☞ MANY New and Choice Goods on sale at Bond's Novelty Store, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Indiana. New goods arriving daily. Special bargains in

Table Linen,

Corsets, Gloves, Hosiery; Muslins, Flannels, White Goods, Ladies Ties, Handkerchiefs, Portmonies and many goods not kept elsewhere. Large four-story stone front building, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Ind.

FOR SALE.

Four Business Lots,

Adjoining the Court-House square, the most desirable and the only ones similarly located in Auburn each lot 22x80 feet.

Those wishing to purchase the best in the market should apply soon either to A. J. LITTLE Attorney at Law, or THOMAS BALDOCK. Terms reasonable. Also.

A HOUSE and LOT

adjoining the above. The house is new containing five rooms, with closets convenient and pleasantly located will be sold at a

BARGAIN.

Apply as above.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.,

26 East Berry street.

THE AUBURN

Marble Works!

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have permanently located in Auburn, and are now prepared to attend to all orders for which they are prepared to turn out in a superior manner at reasonable rates. Works west of the Bakery.

Monuments, Tomb-Stones, &c.,

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature, Decay and all the effects of youthful indiscription will for the sake of suffering humanity send free to all who need it, and receipt and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Suffers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN

THE FIRST

National Bank

OF AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of th U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Collecitions made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:

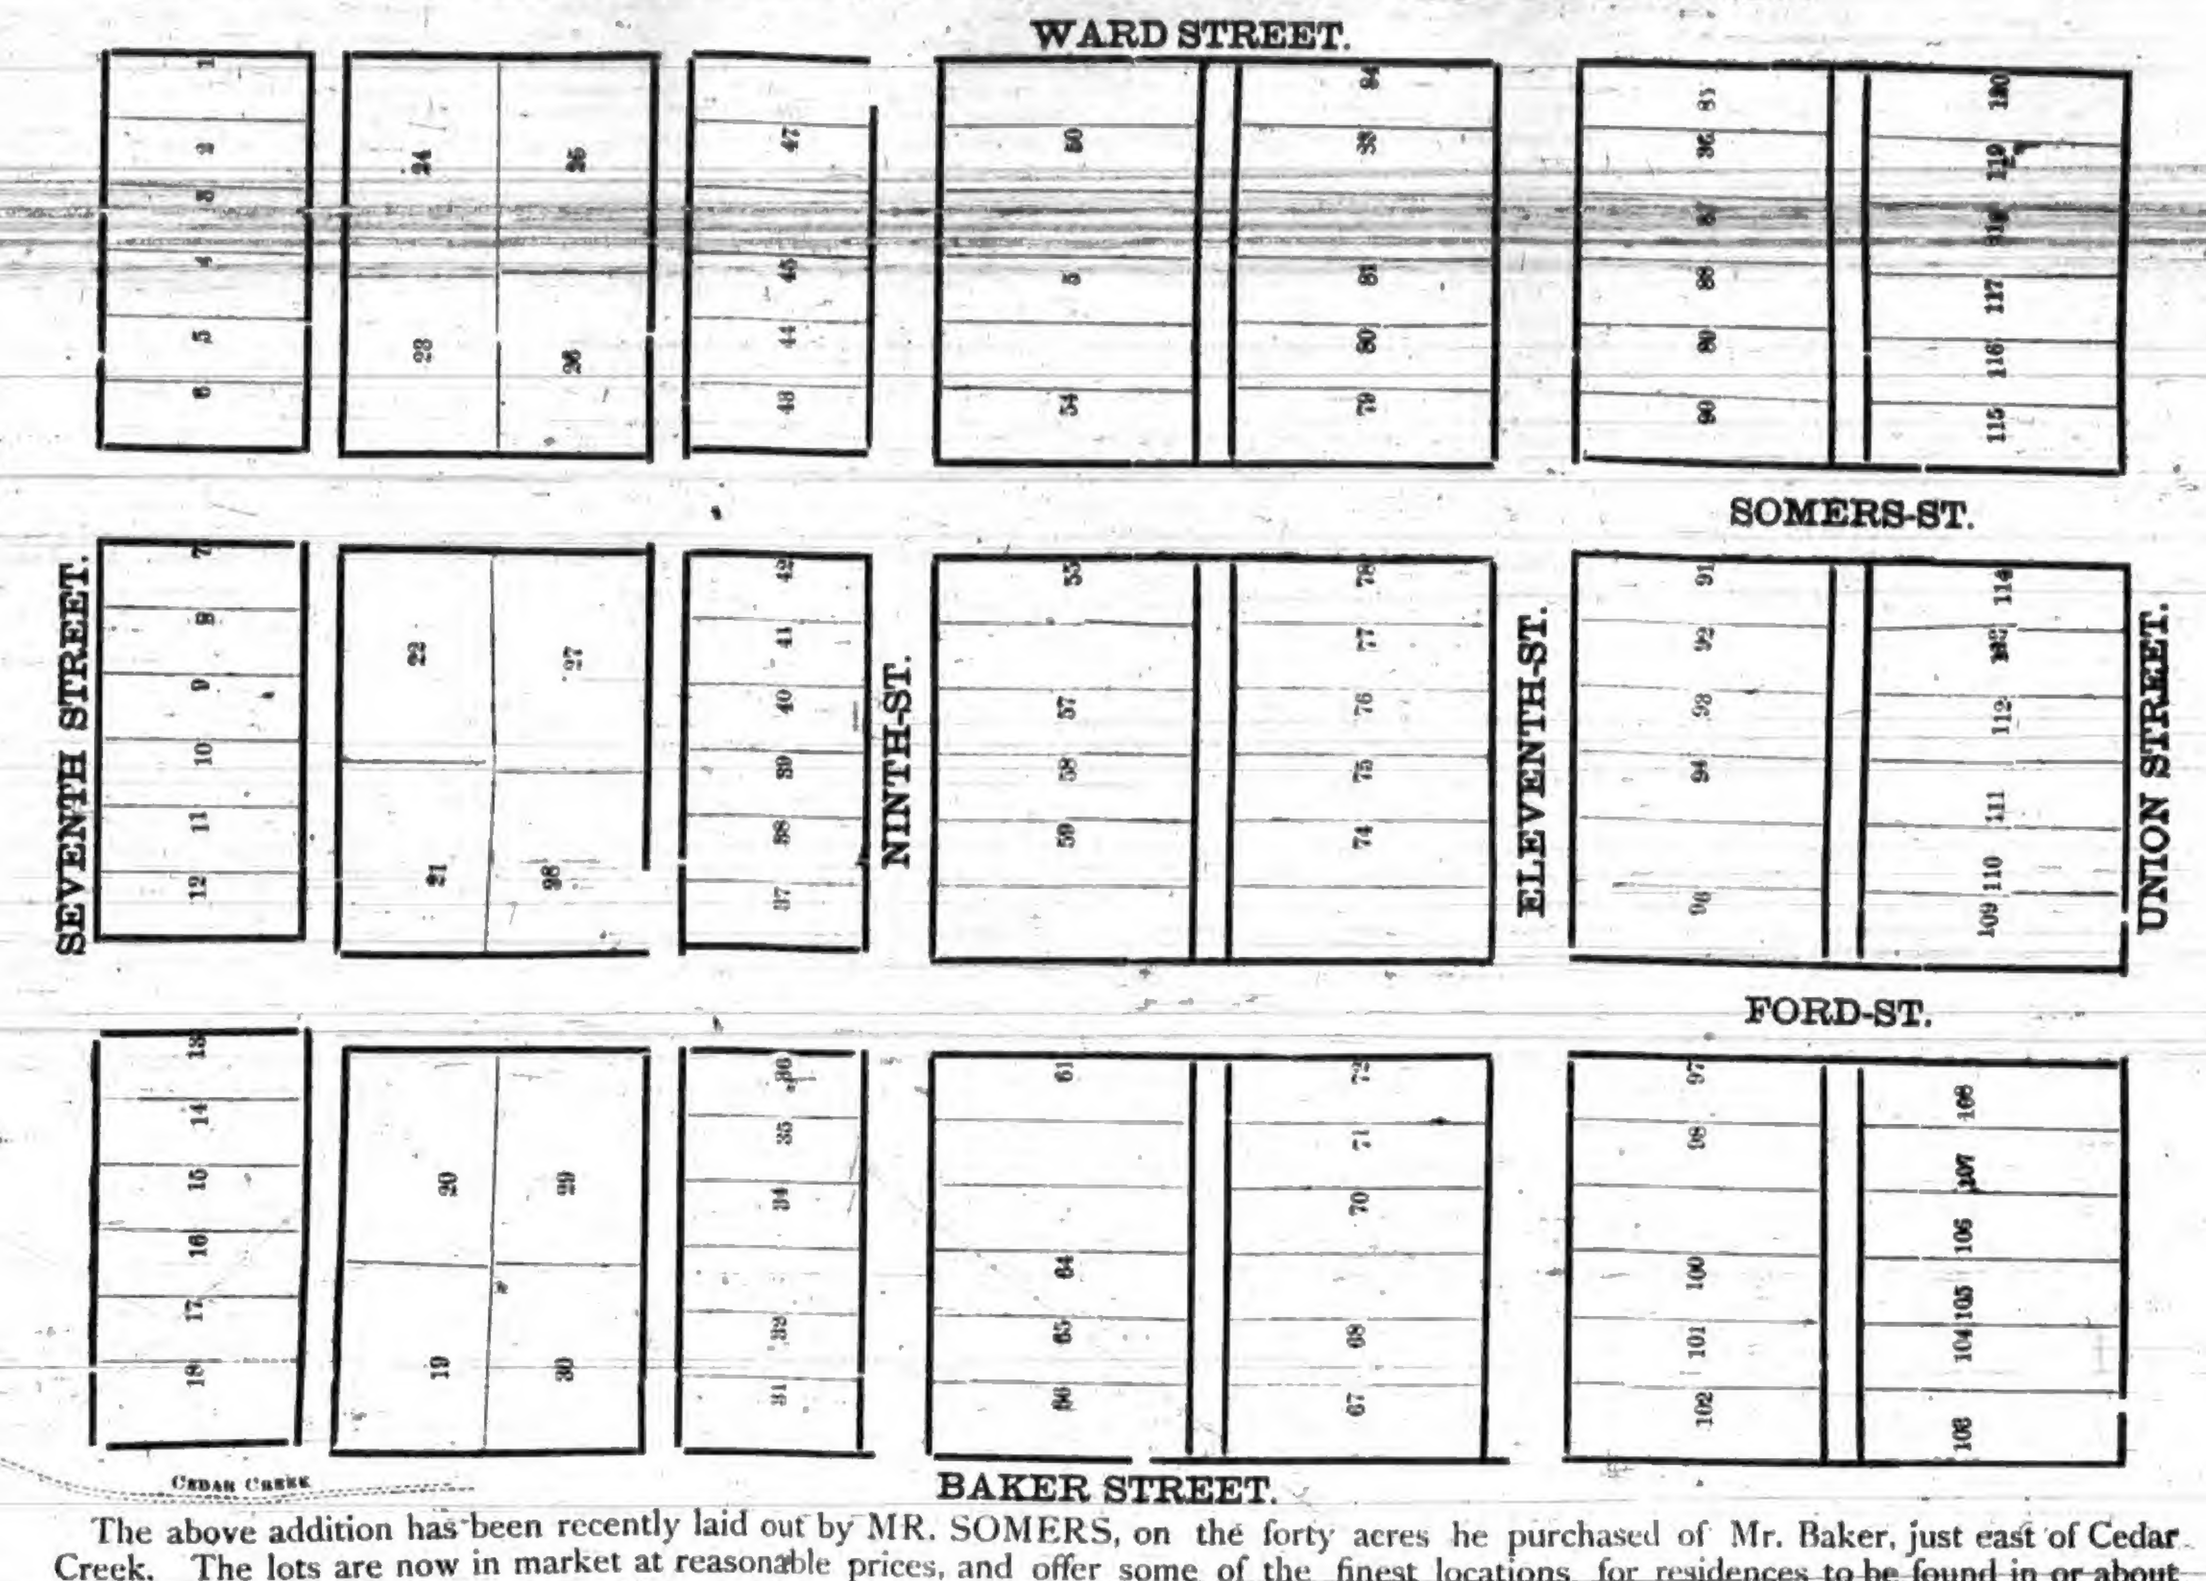
J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:

JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

April 29, 1875.

J. C. SOMMERS' ADDITION TO AUBURN.



The above addition has been recently laid out by MR. SOMERS, on the forty acres he purchased of Mr. Baker, just east of Cedar Creek. The lots are now in market at reasonable prices, and offer some of the finest locations for residences to be found in or about town. They are close to the Court House and business part of town, and are very desirable in other ways. Application should be made immediately if you want a good lot.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

A NICE rain Tuesday night.

THE weather has been quite cool.

JNO. HEBEL'S saloon has been fixed up in good style.

DAVENPORT, wants everybody to try his five cent cigars.

SPLENDID pattern of wall and window paper at Davenport's.

MR. ROTH'S brick residence has reached the second story.

DON'T fail to go on the excursion to Jackson, Mich, the 24th inst. For only $1.50.

THE M. E. District Conference was in session here yesterday. We will give proceedings next week.

MISS LUNA WALTERS of Bucyrus Ohio is here on a short visit, looking as handsome as ever.

MRS. MCINTOSH has our thanks for a lot of splendid strawberries, the first of the season.

A new crossing has been put down on Main-st., running from Ford's to Little's buildings.

GANGLE SHANKS JIM, will no doubt "swear off,"—attending Sunday School conventions we mean.

WE hear on the streets that one of our church members was at Garret, throwing dice for the drinks, the other day.

THE local of the Columbia City 'Post' grasped the hand of a wholesale liquor agent. He don't say what followed.

THE largest stock of Domestic Dry Goods in town, just received at Miller & Casebeers, look out for bargains.

THE Presbyterian society at Mrs. Geo Patterson's, yesterday, was largely attended, and everybody present seemed highly pleased.

THE ladies have a style of pinning their dresses back over the hips, though they there are very few in Auburn given to the habit.

BRICK work on the residence part of the new jail has commenced. The stone for the cells is coming in daily, furnished, we believe, from Greensburg, Ind.

A TALAHASSEE paper of last week says: "The first melons of the season were in market on Saturday. They were small and sold for 25 cents each.

THE Indianapolis "Sentinel" of last Thursday says: "James E. Rose, of Auburn, was yesterday admitted to practice in the Supreme Court.

Bargains in dress goods.
Bargains in white goods.
Bargains in parasols.
Bargains in Fans
Bargains in everything, at Miller & Casebeer's.

A PARTY from this place went to Cedar Lake to fish, several miles north, and brought home quite a large lot. The boys are under obligations to Mr. Tripplet for favors received.

THE game of base ball resulted last Thursday as we prophesied, in favor of the married nine, by a score of 39 to 35 Two of the married nine were carried from the field hors-du-combat.

When you want a good suit of clothes call on Miller & Casebeer, their goods are made to their own order, and satisfaction garanteed in every respect, prices as

THE festival given by our Catholic friends, last Tuesday evening, done very well considering the weather.—About $80 was taken in. The ladies of the church done well to retain their thanks for the liberal patronage extended.

LECTURE—We are requested to state that Hon. Schuyler Colfax, will deliver his lecture on "Abraham Lincoln" next Monday evening at Waterloo, at the Presbyterian church. Mr. Colfax has always been regarded as a fine orator, and his lecture where ever delivered, never fails to please.

Mr. Samuel Grosh having purchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Tarney, in the Lower Flouring Mill, will hereafter conduct it alone. He is manufacturing a splendid brand of flour and keeps mill feed constantly on hand. Mr Furnish, an experienced miller, will assist in turning out flour that cannot fail to suit everybody. tf

THE Hicksville "Independent" gives an account of an infanticide at that place a few days ago. A young girl by the name of Reinsdorf, a servant in Mr. Reisch's family, lately from Fort Wayne gave birth to a child which she made away with. It was found dead the next morning, though it was born alive. She is to be arrested.

THERE is a rivalry between the Fort Wayne "News" and the New Haven paper, as to who can the nearest ape the style of Sergt. Ed. Kennedy, with the odds in favor of the "News". By the way there is a sameness between the editorials of the "News" and the special dispatches of the Chicago "Times," that is at least wonderful. Perhaps they use the same type.

THERE was a little fracas in the lower end of town the other day. Dan Culver and brother were coming up from the Junction peaceably, when three hands from the lower brick yard asked them: "Where are you two s—of b— going." Down went a sack of flour from Dan's shoulder. and a skirmish of about ten minutes ensued, which resulted in the three young men getting very handsomely polished off. Served them right.

Music Lessons.

Our excellent teacher Miss Balcome, is giving great satisfaction to her pupils in instrumental music, and is devoting full time to each scholar. Her terms are ten dollars per term of twenty-four lessons a very reasonable charge. She can be found at her residence on Cedar Street. She will give lessons at the house of any one desiring them.

WE are glad to see that the Deputy Attorney General has thoroughly investeted the records of the Clerk of Whitley County, and has found them in admirable shape. This clearly vindicates Clerk Brown, and places him far in advance of a dirty political cotorie that done all they could to villify and traduce him last fall. We trust it is not to be established as a precedent, that the Democratic party shall withhold its endorsement of an officer, who can show an honest and efficient discharge of his official duties.

Representative Men

We learn from a private source that there was some little debate at the Sunday School Convention held at Newville last week, relative to the location for holding the next meeting. When Auburn was suggested, a "very prominent" citizens of this town, no other than the immortal James Griswold, of Connecticut, six feet two, in his stocking feet, arose with the precision of a liberty pole and opposed the designation of Auburn for the next meeting, as the business men would not give them a hearty reception, because they were not church going people nor identified with the Sunday-school interests.

Now, we object to lunatics represen- any interests in or about Auburn. We want representative men—men who are liberal and charitable, men who are practical and intelligent, and who have some little interests in our home affairs. Is James that kind of a man? Our business men have contributed liberally to the building of several new churches in this place, which goes to show that if they are not church-going people, they are church-building people. The children of our business men attend Sunday school, and their parents have an interest, entirely favorable to the Sunday-school cause. They remember the prayer of the Pharasee, and avoid street corners and house tops. The designating of a point at which to hold the the next convention was clearly a question of liberality with James. And in this we claim he is not a representative man. Take, for instance, the Eel River subscription matter and the name of James Griswold does not appear upon the list. He stood by and saw his neighbor, not worth pecunarily half as much, give his mite to this enterprise in which the people of Auburn were so much interested, and now James prates about the liberality of the business men. If there is an illiberal, uncharitable, and we may say unchristian person in Auburn, that person is James Griswold.—We are glad the convention took no notice of him, but wisely decided to hold their next session at this place. We believe the business men will give more than James to this great cause.

This is not said in the spirit of a personal attack, but as an answer of the business men to a manifest misrepresentation of their liberalty and generosity in everything that has contributed to the prosperity of our place.

Commissioners' Proceedings.

The Board of County Commissioners meet Monday June 7th, 1875, and transacted the following buisness: The Board, Township Assessors, and Auditor, organized as a Board of Equalization.

On motion it was ordered, that the assesement as returned by township, remain as returned by different township assessors. The assessment on Stamet's lots, reduced from 70 to $50. Also a reduction was ordered on the land of John Brandon, Jeremiah Plum, R. N. Crooks, F. Ditmars, Levi Till and J. N. Sloan.

Ordered that a reduction of 10 per cent in valuation be made on all land in Fairfield tp., as returned by assessor.

Ordered that 20 per cent of the valua-

Ordered that a reduction of 10 per cent on the valuation of all lands in Union township as returned by assessor be made.

Board of Equalization adjourned. James A. Barns, was appointed county Superintendent for two years.

A. L. Stratton, and A. W. Mathews were exempted from working on the highway.

PETITIONS.

By Sol Shilling and others, for an appropriation to build bridge across Bear Creek, between Concord and Jackson townships. The Board appropriated $50, to be superintended by Com. Wanemaker.

By T. R. Dickinson and others for the incorporation of Waterloo Cemetry Granted.

By W. Cowan for vacation change and location of public highway in Garrett. Veiwers appointed L. D. Britton, Dan'l, Gouser and R. G. Daniels.

By Charles Shoaf, for location of road in Union township, on west line of section 23. Viewers appointed, P. B. Nimmons, Jacob Ginter and Henry Gunsenhouser.

By G. W. Downs, for a bridge across branch of Cedar Creek, in Fairfield tp., of road running west on quarter section line of section 16, Com. Duncan, to superintend the work.

By I. C. Culbertson and others for an appropriation for the assessment of the different townships. Continued.

By Mary Schwitzer, for a private road in Smithfield township, granted.

J. P. Widney, for location of public highway in Union township, between section 31 and 32. Viewers appointed, James Goetschius, Dan'l Lintz, and Dan'l Thomas.

By Wm. Groscup, for location of highway, in Richland township, on quarter line of section 24, and north on the line of section 13. Viewers appointed, W. Teeters, D. B. Olinger, and Harvey Moody

By Wm. Gorrell and others, for the construction of a new bridge across Black Creek, in Butler township. Continued.

By Sam'l Lawhead, for a ditch in Concord township. Continued.

By I. O. Bachtel, for location of road in Richland township. Dismissed.

By Louis Pianson for vacation of alley in Packer's addition to the town of Butler. Dismissed.

By B. E. Childs, for ditch in Fairfield township. Continued.

The matter of a public highway between Noble and DeKalb counties, was dismissed.

By J. F. Huyck, for change of public higway in Smithfield tp., being the road running north and south through sections 20 and 17. Viewers appointed J. R. Walker, John Fisk and Joseph Craig.

REPORTS.

The viewers appointed for location of highway, in Franklin tp., in section 29 report favorable.

Remonstrance filed by Stephen Dixon and John Crowl, ordered Jery Plum, R. G. Daniels and G. B. Henning, view and assess damages.

Ordered that fifty cents for county purposes, and five cents for interest, on county Jail bonds, be levied on each

T. J. Tolen estimate of work done on the new Jail, less 20 per cent for $3,-200 for which the Auditor was ordered to draw warrant in favor of Crane, Duncan & Co.

Sunday School Association.

The DeKalb County Sunday School Association held its 10th annual meeting at Newville. Jund 8th and 9th, Elder S. B. Ward, President, called the meeting to order, and Vice Presidents J. De Long, P. B. Nimmons, S. P. Wartenbee, Mrs. W. Widney and J. Hadsell answered at roll call. After devotional exercises, reports from the following schools were received:

SCHOOL.	WHERE LOCATED	SUPT'S.
United Brethren,	Newville,	D. Moody.
Wesley Chapel	Newville-tp	W. Patterson.
Union,	Stafford-tp	M. Mays
Chaistian,	Newville-tp	H. Wanema'r
Stafford Center,	Stafford-tp	David Blaker
Casebeer	Troy-tp	Joseph Low
Fish Creek,	Troy-tp	T. Runnels
Mount Zion	Troy-tp	W. Waller
Big Run	Stafford	R. Arford
Auburn	Auburn	W. Griswold
First Baptist	Auburn	S. B. Ward
Meth Episcopal	Auburn	W. L. Mease
Union	Jackson-tp	J. Thompson
Grove Bethel,	"	C. Woolsey
Bear Creek	"	J. Wyatt
Coburn's Corn	Concord	F. Scholes
Meth Episcopal	Butler	D. McCurdy
"	Spencerville	Geo. Barney
Mt. Pleasant	Wilmington	J. McBride
Richland Center	Richland	P. Graham
Barker Chapel	Smithfield	W. Jackman
District No. 2	Concord	D. Reasoner
Union	Union	A. C. Brown
Union	Concord	R. Culbert'n
Sedan	Sedan	L. W. Treesh
Union	Waterloo	M. B. Willis
Christian,	"	C. Bassett
Meth Episcopal	"	A. Jackman
First Presbyterian	"	F. W Willis
Union	Hudson	M. Slabaugh
Cedar Lake	Smithfield	P. Parnell
Smith's Corners	"	J. P. Bell
Bethel Union	"	Jno Seiler
Christain	Butler	J. Snively
Showers Corners	Richland-tp	G. Showers
District No. 8	Jackson	Pendalum
" 9	"	Lawrence
" 9	"	S. McClelan
" 1	"	T. Shrives
Christian	Newville	S. Olmsted
Center	Fairfield

RECAPITULATION:

Number of schools reported	41
Number of scholars enrolled	2,280
Average attendance	1,880
Officers and teachers enrolled	478
Average attendance	275
Conversions of scholars during the year	187
No. of papers and pamphlets distributed	50,720
Amount collected in the schools	$720,28
Amount collected for county association	28,46

The president appointed the following committees: On resolutions, F. Willis, Dr. Knorr and J. Hadsell. On nominations, S. P. Wartenbe, M. B. Willis and Rev. J. B. Fowler. On Memori, D. D. Moody, A. Kinmont and Rev. Hadsell.

Each school was represented by a delegate for every 25 scholars reported.—The order of exercises, as heretofor arranged by the Executive Committee, was taken up in order, and many questions presented to the Association and discussed.

The question box was opened at different times during the session, and questions of practical utility were propounded and answered by the members

The committee on Memori reported the following, which was adopted by a standing vote:

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Great Head of the Church, during the last year to remove from their field of labor in the Sunday School to the Blessed Rest of Heaven, two faithful and efficient workers in Sunday schools, viz: Sister A. Fuscelman and Bro. Asa Pall; therefore,

RESOLVED, By this convention, while we feel deeply their loss, we rejoice to believe that they enjoy the blessed reward of the faithful.

2. That we earnestly recommend the fidelity of these workers—worthy of our imitation.

Dwight Moody and Elder Coburn pronounced fitting eulogies upon the life

The Treasurer made the following report, and that officer was instructed to loan the surplus at 10 per cent. interest:

Amount received from former Treasurer	$52 96
Interest on amount for one year	2 64
Amount received at present convention	27 96
Total	$83 56
Am't paid out by order of the convention	24 05
Leaving a balance in the treasury	59 56

The committee on resolutions reported the following.

WHEREAS, We believe the Sunday School to be of inestimable value in the establishment and up building of truth, and the correct moral training of our children, and in subduing crime and sin in our midst. and

WHEREAS We fully realize that intemperance, profanity and Sabbath breaking are the leading sins that are daily polluting the minds of the young and old, destroying the soul, body and mind, we feel called upon as Sabbath School workers to active service; therefore—

RESOLVED, That we will guard with zealous care the Sabbath School interests in our respective communities, studying to promote its growth, praying for its success, and working with renewed energy, that the greatest possible good may be accomplished.

2. That we will use every means in our power, by preaching, teaching and our combined influence against the evils of intemperance, profanity and Sabbath breaking; that we will strive to make indulgence in these indefensible sins unpopular, and, so far as we can, will train up the young with more respect for themselves than to indulge in them, in any shape or form.

3. That we regard the sabbath school as the best place to bring out the latent powers of the church, so much needed in our country, that we regard it the privilege, as well as the duty of every Church member, to work with us in the winning of souls to Christ.

4. That we offer our grateful thanks to our Father in Heaven, for the many manifestations of his favor through the labors of another year.

5. That we recognize clearly the approving hand of God in the general prosperity of our work.

6. That in the success attending our labors, in the general improvement of the schools, and in conversions to Christ from the ranks, we have a strong incentive to an increase in our zeal and labor in this good work.

7. That the general decay of moral culture in the family, calls earnestly for every christian to engage heartily in the Sunday-school work.

8. That the thanks of this convention are due the people of Newville and vicinity, for the kind and liberal manner in which they have entertained the delegates; to the Christian Society for the use of their church; also, to the organist of the convention, Miss Nettie Uris, for her faithful assistance.

The following officers were then chosen for the ensuing year: Vice President Mrs. S. W. Widney, Jackson, Joseph DeLong, Newvill; David Blaker Stafford Bryan Hadsell, Concord; P. B. Nimmons Wilmington; William L. Mease, Auburn S. B. Johnson, Waterloo; C. B. [illegible], South Richland; F. G. Fried, North Richland; Henry Seiler, Fairfield; Hiram Slaybaugh, Smithfield; Calvin Thurstin, Franklin; D. D. Kinsley Troy; J. R. Snively, town of Butler, Secretary—Alexander Kinmont; Assistant Sec'y—C. P. Houser and Frank N. [illegible] Treasurer—Simeon Duck; Choristers—L. W. Treesh and J. Kinsey; Executive committee—Elder S. B. Ward, Frank W Willis, Elder T. P. Sutton, E. D. Hartman and D. D. Moody, Elder S. B. Ward, Delegate to State Association.

The next meeting will be held in the 1st Baptist church, Auburn on the 2d Tuesday of June 1876.

The secretary was directed to make out the proceedings and the county papers were requested to publish them.

S. B. WARD, President.
W. C. MCGONIGAL, Secretary.

GOING TO TOWN.

BY KATE M. M. RAMSAY.

The horses stand ready, old gray and the brown,
For Paterfamilias is going to town;
The flour bag is empty, the kerosene low,
And father declares that to town he must go.
So the horses are harnessed and hitched to the cart,
While "pa" goes inside to make himself "smart."
He takes down the mirror with infinite care
And deposits it handily down in a chair,
And, mixing his lather, with face rather grave,
He proceeds to inflict a very clean shave.

This finished, he gets into his suit of "sheep's gray,"
(A suit that has "stood" him for many a day),
And calls for a collar in his own hasty style,
That "he's so long getting off," he grumbles the while.
The big jar of butter is covered and tied
And into the wagon it goes with a slide;
The hide of the heifer killed Monday for meat,
Is rolled up and carefully tucked under the seat;
"The boiler is leaky," declares Susan Jane,
"Until it is mended, I shan't wash again."

Thus "stumped," the old gentleman can't say a word,
And Tom is sent out to shove it aboard;
"The matches are out, the indigo, too,"
"I guess you'll make out if the duds aren't blue,"
Says "[illegible]," while scorn in the gray whisker [illegible]
Which ends up at last in a couple of [illegible]
"I must have a speller," little Billy sings out,
"And I want a round comb," says Bell with pout;
"I think you had better get yourself a new hat,
Your old one is shabby, you can't do with that."

"Proper sight," quoth the pater, his mind in a fume,
"You think if you want it, I'll bring you the moon,
Do you think of good greenbacks the men are all made?
I'd like to know when I'm to get my debts paid."
And grabbing his hat with a lowering face,
He mounted the wagon, with very bad grace,
And cracking his whip with consummate skill,
He would soon have been out of sight o'er the hill;
When "father," came borne to his unwilling ear,
And "father," in accents more thrilling and clear.

He groaned, stopped his horses, and took a fresh end,
And waited, while Tommy came plash through the mud;
"Well, what now, I thought I'd got arrants enough,"
Said he, just as Thomas came up with a puff.
"Why—here—is— a letter, ma wants you to mail,
And bring her some stout linen thread without fail."
The poor man shut his mouth with a smile very grim,
And made the old horses move on with a vim;
His "earlappets" mournfully flapped in the breeze,
As he passed out of sight near the white willow trees.
—Prairie Farmer.

THE ONE FALSE STEP.

"Do you know, Walter, it is exactly one year to-day since we first met? Just think of it. One year to-day!"

"Yes, Ella, darling; and one year to-day hence we'll be old marri—"

But here a dainty hand was applied blushingly to the daring lips. And the glowing prediction remained incomplete. The subject was changed with a promptness that seemed a simultaneous inspiration, and along the summer lane the handsome pair joyously jaunted in their cosy basket phaeton.

Walter Carleton was a rising young merchant, the junior member of a New York firm. He was of British birth, and his dark complexion, crisp ebon curls, and deep black eyes he derived from his Castilian mother.

Ella Goodrich was an Una-like creature, in the first flush of her gorgeous womanhood. She was a dark-bred blonde, and the only daughter of wealthy old Dr. Goodrich, of Kirkland.

Walter had received his earliest heart-wound from the dart of Ella's beauty at a Saratoga hop, and since then the course of their love had run as smoothly as two enthusiastic hearts could make it. Dr. Goodrich, besides closely observing the young man, had made the necessary inquiries respecting him, with the result of thoroughly satisfying his amiable partner and himself on the propriety of their daughter's choice.

It was really a pleasant afternoon—late in the summer—and the gray pony with the basket phaeton and the pair of turtle doves jogged along with a sort of "sober certainty of waking bliss," as Milton happily phrased it.

The miles flew by on angel's wings, and when Walter consulted his watch, lo and behold! it was within a few minutes of the Kirkland dinner hour; and they were a good five miles away!

"We must make all haste back," cried Ella, "pa dislikes to wait for dinner. Rufe, old man," this to the grey pony, "you must put your best foot foremost;" whereupon Rufe's mistress proceeded to admonish him with rein and whip.

Now, Rufe had not been used to this cavalier treatment, and he began to protest against it by manifold head-shakings, tail-switchings, elephantine hops and snortings, and generally by moving forward rather slower than before. Whereupon Ella scolded the perverse brute, and Walter took the whip and administered a sharp cut across the foreleg. This was enough. Rufus instantly performed some compound circus trick, and cleverly separated himself and the shafts from the body of the phaeton. Before you could say Jack Robinson the pair of lovers were rolling in the dust, and "Rufe" was complacently regarding the havoc he had made. Dusted and discontented, Walter and Ella regained their feet more scared than hurt and amused than vexed.

Ella said there was a blacksmith-shop a short distance off, and thither Walter ran while she watched the wreck and told "Rufe" what a disreputable old villain he was.

When Walter returned with the mechanic, a tall, bony-looking man with huge red whiskers and an immense Panama hat was talking to Ella. And not merely talking; it seemed to Walter that the man was annoying her, and attempting to take her hand—a liberty she seemed to repel with indignant energy.

"Well, be friends, anyhow, Ella, if you won't shake hands," he of the red whiskers was saying, as Walter, with flashing eyes and vengeful looks, unseen, approached.

"Stand off, sir!" cried he, pushing the intruder violently aside. "By what right do you presume to annoy this young lady?"

Ella uttered a little scream. The man staggered, and nearly fell; but, regaining his equilibrium, he quickly faced round, and fiercely fixed his reddish, chestnut eyes upon his assailant.

"Walter Carleton, as I'm a breathing sinner!"

"Dr. Farjeon!" with a violent start and change of color. "Good God, you here! I beg your pardon for my rudeness. I did not see your face; it was so unexpected. Why, how in the name—I mean how on earth did you ever turn up here?"

"O, that is easily explained," said Dr. Farjeon, with a meaning look. "You see, after we parted at Liverpool dock—"

"Ah yes; just so," said Walter, nervously. "Ella, my dear, Dr. Farjeon and I are old acquaintances—friends and all that, you know. Doctor, I shall be glad to meet you; that is, confound this mishap; we must get it repaired, and get home at once; musn't we, Ella?"

Ella had looked with speechless surprise at the chilling effect the doctor's sudden appearance had upon her lover. It had completely transformed him, crushing his gayety as one crushes a flower in the hand.

With a supercilious "good by, Miss Goodrich," and "I'll see you this evening, Walter," Dr. Farjeon proceeded on his way; when, with a mortified look, Walter said:

"Why, Ella, whatever is that man doing here?"

"If you had not interrupted him, he would have told you soon enough, the hateful, detestable fellow," she replied. "He lately bought pa's practice; and has come prowling about our house and persecuting me ever since; but to-day I made him feel how intensely I despise him. How on earth did you ever form that Jack-Sheppard-looking sawbone's acquaintance?"

"Merely professionally in Europe," replied Walter, dryly.

Walter's attempts at cheerfulness during the homeward drive were spasmodic failures; and after dinner a gloom settled upon him which Ella vainly sought to dispel. He said he had a slight headache, attributable, probably, to the shock in the afternoon drive.

Just as night was closing in, Dr. Farjeon was seen walking in the direction of the house, and somewhat abruptly Walter uttered some unsatisfactory explanation and joined him. The two men proceeded toward the hemlock grove, and Ella, watching from an upper window, could see that the doctor gesticulated threateningly, and that Walter, her daring and chivalrous Walter, seemed to make piteous appeals to the other's forbearance!

"What can it mean? Oh, whatever can it mean?" sobbed the yearning young heart, as she stood, weary and wretched, watching the retreating forms till they melted into the darkness.

In about an hour Walter returned. He was almost boisterously cheerful. There was triumph in his eye and satisfaction on his brow. Next day was Saturday, and Ella and he spent a delightful day, notwithstanding that he informed her business would call him to the city on Monday, but only for a few days. After that he said he would return and spend a whole uninterrupted fortnight at Kirkland.

On Sunday evening the lovers attended the village church; and as the congregation were dispersing, a lad in a slouch hat that almost concealed his features, suddenly approached Walter, and, with a quick and dextrous movement, placed a note in his hand and disappeared. The action was so sudden that the messenger had vanished before the young man had recovered from his surprise; and although Ella was close by his side, she neither saw the envoy nor the missive he delivered.

Walter was taciturn and reflective at the supper-table, and later in the evening he said he thought he would walk over to Albany before bed time, sleep at the Delavan, and get the early boat in the morning. Ella was clearly vexed and disappointed, but she bade him an affectionate adieu notwithstanding.

Next morning she rose later than usual, and on reaching the breakfast-table found great excitement. The parson and the village druggist were there, so was the ancient Miss Needleton, the scandal purveyor of the place.

"Pierced through the brain from ear to ear!" cried the spinster.

"Well, not exactly," said the druggist, "the ball seems to have entered the highest portion of the forehead rather to the left of the medial line, and proceeded downward through and to the base of the skull."

"That seems very extraordinary, doesn't it?" put in the parson. "I should have fancied the ball traveled the contrary direction—upward—and that the poor fellow was shot from behind."

"But there is the ball lodged as described," said Dr. Goodrich.

"What has happened, pa?" cried Ella, unable longer to bear the cruel suspense.

"Doctor Farjeon has been murdered!" cried the parson, the druggist, and the spinster in chorus, "murdered at ten o'clock last night by an assassin, who escaped from the surgery window."

"O, she's fainting!" cried the mother, rushing to her; "poor darling how the horrid news has shocked her!"

When she recovered she was in her room with her parents. Once alone, she thought long and earnestly of the tragedy; the mysterious relations between her lover and the murdered man, the sudden departure last night of the former, and his strange fits of gloom since he first met the doctor. But, O! it couldn't be. It was monstrous—it was cruel—it was unpardonable to mix Walter, even in imagination, with such a crime. No, no; it wasn't Walter. That was certain. She would at once write to him, and tell him what a very terrible crime had been committed. Of course he would want to hear about it from Kirkland before he read it in the newspaper. So she wrote a long letter to Walter; and while she was engaged on that pleasant task the police and idle villagers were scouring the country for the assassin. More than one had seen him enter the doctor's house the preceding evening and could generally describe his appearance.

It was twilight when Ella started with her letter to the post-office, half a mile distant, and it was almost dark when she reached the outer grounds of the Kirkland homestead. As she approached the gate, hidden among a clump of maples, a man's form, with outstretched arms, darted before her, and said in a hollow voice:

"My darling Ella!"

She looked an eager, wild look; her heart gave one sickening heave, and, with a sensation of choking, she gasped:

"O, my God, Walter! Say it wasn't you—say it wasn't you!"

He put his arm around her, and led her unresistingly into the heart of the shrubbery. Then, with tremulous earnestness, but with despair in every tone, he said:

"So help me, Heavenly Father, Ella! I am not guilty of—murder!"

She was stricken dumb. Every sense of her being was concentrated in hearing; and she gazed fixedly at his pallid face when the moon came out, and held his right hand in both of hers, while he whispered his strange, sad, terrible story. Briefly, it was this:

When a fatherless lad he was placed in a Liverpool banking-house, where he was a favorite. Gradually he mingled in "fast" society and frequented the gambling table; and, once, in a terrible strait, he forged his patron's name. Stricken down with sickness immediately after, and fever and delirium supervening, he raved incessantly about his crime. Dr. Farjeon, then a graduate, attended him, and possessed himself of the facts of the crime, and when he recovered brought the patron to the penitent's bedside. He was pardoned on promise of amendment, on condition that he would leave England forever. Dr. Farjeon was mortified at this display of magnanimity, and when he parted from Walter, said:

"Be careful in America, or I may have to play the detective in another role."

"You know," continued the fugitive, as the sobbing girl hung on his neck—"you know how we met; but you do not know that when we were alone the same night he threatened to expose what he termed my "antecedents," unless I would pay him $5,000 hush money. He said that he passionately loved you, Ella; that you laughed at him and despised him, insomuch that he literally raved and cursed at the prospect of our happiness.

"Well, last evening, as we left church, a lad put a note in my hand; and, when alone, I opened it and found it an imperitive command to meet him at his house between nine and ten. That is why I met you—"

"Well?" she eagerly cried.

"I went. He insolently told me I must "come down" with $20,000 within a week, or he would brand me before the world. I was greatly excited. I could not raise so much money, and I called him opprobrious names. He seemed to think I meant him personal harm, and, being naturally a coward, he drew his pistol. I seized it, and in the struggle it was discharged when both our hands were above our heads. You know the result. I jumped from the window and fled, I knew not whither."

"Then, it was only a dreadful accident," she burst out. "You have committed no crime. It was not your fault."

"Ah! Ella, dearest, who but yourself will believe—will be convinced of this?"

"Where is the note—the note he sent you last night? That will show something," she eagerly said.

"Lost, Ella."

The unhappy maiden uttered a despairing cry and fainted away, and almost at the same moment two officers sprang through the branches and arrested Walter Carleton for the murder of Simon Farjeon.

"Appearances are certainly very much against the young man," Dr. Goodrich was forced to admit to his wife, as they observed some symptoms of recovery in their daughter's brain fever. "Still some explanation may be forthcoming. I can't believe young Carleton a deliberate murderer."

The prisoner's lawyer was working like a beaver. Yet he was unable to account for the disappearance of the note, or to discover the messenger who had delivered it at the church door. If either turned up it would explain the prisoner's motive in visiting the doctor that night, while the direction of the wound, as well as the pistol, which was the dead man's, would probably be sufficient to acquit the prisoner.

The Coroner's jury fully committed the young man after they had heard the evidence of the two officers who arrested him, and who overheard his damaging confessions to Miss Goodrich. Everybody admitted that it would go hard with him, when an unexpected clue came to light.

There was an idiotic lad in the village who had a mania for stealing—especially articles of wearing apparel; and whenever poor Willie Webster was seen out of doors with a parcel he was pretty sure to be overhauled by the first villager he met.

One morning, at the stage to which our story has reached, the lunatic lad was observed by the parson to leave the residence of the late doctor with a large bundle. Visions of a wholesale kleptomania rushed through the holy man's brain, and he speedily pursued and captured Willie. The poor fellow's story was straight enough. Sally Mabane, the doctor's servant, had given him the clothes for himself, and they weren't the doctor's clothes either; they were Sally's clothes—Sally's own clothes, and nobody else's.

The parson steered the lunatic and the bundle back to Sally Mabane's presence, and sharply cross-examined her. Albeit she was a tough customer, the clergyman plied her with the terrors of the judgment day, of the undying worm and the quenchless brimstone fire—until she wilted and made an open confession. She had several times worn these boy's clothes on the late master's business. In fact, he had procured them for her. She had worn them the last time on Sunday night, when she delivered the note to young Carleton. She wept violently when the parson said he did not believe her story, and threatened to have her arrested.

"I assure you, sir, it's all true," she said, weeping violently; "I haven't told no lie, sir, here is the very letter I tuk the young gentleman, sir; I saw master write it, and I know it by that mark on the inside, for I saw him write it; it was lying in the surgery open, just like that (showing how) when I first saw him lying dead."

When the trial came on Sally Mabane's evidence and the fatal Sunday-evening letter led to Walter Carleton's acquittal. But the Liverpool story of the one false step that plunged two young hearts in misery and produced this blight and desolation also came to light. He never married Ella Goodrich, for there was an earlier and later taint upon his name—a forger and a homicide.

On the second anniversary of their acquaintance the lovers rode in the basket phaeton behind Rufe for the last time. And the next day she entered a monastery, and he sailed for South America.

DORRNG, a German physician, asserts that an average dose of four grammes of chloral hydrate suffices not only to procure rest and sleep in case of sea-sickness, but even to entirely cure the disorder.

An Indian Legend.

The following is told of a beautiful sheet of water known as the Spirit Lake, in Central Wisconsin: Many years ago, ere the foot of the pale face had trod the soil which the red man claimed as his own, many tribes dwelt near this lake; for in this lake were fish, and among the bluffs and in the neighboring forest were game; and the warrior, when tired of the chase, could seek pleasure and find it, bathing in the clear, bright waters, which he only, under the Great Spirit, claimed, and with his light canoe could take his love out boating. Indeed, it seemed to the happy red man a paradise, as well it might.

As fortune would have it, a Frenchman, more daring than his fellows, wandered from the settlements and found the lake; he indulged with the Indians in the pleasure and disappointment of the chase, and lingered long among them. When first he came among the red men, he was charmed by the beauty and loveliness of an Indian maiden, and made love to her.

She loved in return, and when the autumn leaves began to fall and the feathered songster to fly away to a southern home, the French hunter sought an interview with the aged chief, her father, to ask his consent to the hoped-for marriage.

But at the same time a young warrior, who had looked with jealous eyes upon the Frenchman, and had often in vain sought to win the affections of the fair maiden of his tribe, came to the old chief and asked for his daughter's hand. The chieftain, disdaining partiality to the warrior on account of the fact that he was one of his tribe, stepped to the bank of the lake with the two suitors, and pointing to a high and rugged-looking tree upon the opposite shore he said:

"He of you who shall first bring me an eaglet from the nest in yonder tree, shall be the successful suitor."

When the old chieftin ceased speaking, the hunter and the warrior sprang into their light canoes, and were across the lake in a trice. The warrior struck the shore first, but the hunter was the first to climb the crags and tree, and was descending with the eaglet, when the faithless warrior pushed him from a limb on which he stood, and the hunter was dashed in pieces on the ragged rocks below.

The Indian maiden, who had watched with painful interest the different transactions preceding, when she saw her lover fall, leaped far out into the lake with a wild, piteous cry, and sank into the clear waters, never to rise again. The superstitious red men fancy that the spirit of the departed maiden rules the storms, and that it would be death for an Indian to risk himself upon the waters of the lake.

Hollister's Luck.

The story of Col. W. W. Hollister in California reads like an Eastern romance. He entered the State in 1852 at the head of an emigrant train. Near the head of San Francisco Bay he noticed a flock of two thousand Mexican sheep feeding on the plain, attended only by two shepherd dogs. No man was in sight. He pondered over the scene, and finally determined to become a sheep raiser. He made his way back to Ohio and purchased several thousand head of sheep. With these he journeyed slowly overland to California, losing many by the way. When the division was made in the San Bernardino country his share was eight hundred sheep, three hundred of which were ewes. He was out of money, but as he grazed the animals on the open plains the food cost him nothing. He passed leisurely up the coast, finally halting at Monterey and making for himself a lodging place, if not a home. He prospered, as he found a ready market for his wool as well as mutton. In 1862 he and his brother formed a partnership with Albert and Thomas B. Dibblee, who had been wool-growers in Los Angles County. The sum of $60,000 was paid for the Lampoc rancho, which extends seven miles along the ocean coast and twelve miles inland. They stocked it with ten thousand head of sheep, mostly grade Merinos, and Thomas B. Dibblee assumed the management of it. In 1874 the property had increased in value until it was worth $1,500,000. One item. The aggregate increase from 400 ewes in twelve years was 28,000 sheep. The flocks of the great sheep farm this Spring number some fifty thousand head. The San Julian rancho, the present scene of operations, we are told, will carry 50,000 sheep through the dryest year, and 75,000 ordinarily. The annual sales of wool and sheep aggregate about $125,000. As the expenses are not more than $30,000, a pretty margin is left for profit. The soil of the rancho is very deep, and is strong, rich and productive, even on the tops of the hills. It was once a cavalry rancho of the Mexican nation, so chosen for its water and fertility. Sheep husbandry, when properly directed, is a profitable business on the Pacific coast.—Turf, Field and Farm.

A French Love Tragedy.

[Paris Correspondence St. Louis Globe.]

* * * The wedding was to take place on Christmas day. Three weeks before that date the affianced husband sought Minnie, and told her he had deceived himself; that he could not and would not abandon her; that he loved her ten times more than he ever could love the other woman. Minnie was happy, and yet she was wretched. She declared she ought not to keep him; that she must not keep him. Finally he told her that he did not believe his betrothed really loved him. This shook her resolution. She said no more. She determined, however, to see and judge for herself. She had learned where the fair Bostonian was residing, and, making some ingenious excuse, gained an interview, without revealing her true character. She found the American lovely; that she was well-nigh heart-broken at the neglect of her lover; that she knew he had a mistress; that she suspected he was still bound by his old attachment; that she was the barrier between her and happiness. The grisette went away. She saw the artist no more, but she wrote him a long letter, telling him how much he had wronged the beautiful girl he was engaged to; that she worshipped him and would make him happy. The next day Minnie was dead in her lodgings, asphyxiated by charcoal. She had deliberately destroyed herself to secure the happiness of another woman, and that woman her rival.

The Scourge.

The calamity which has visited Nebraska and Kansas, and later, Missouri, promises now to reach Southern Illinois and Indiana, and may include Ohio. The presumption that it will assume a national character seems hardly warranted. The locust, or grasshopper as it is more commonly called, cannot live long in a damp region. The raid doubtless took its start on the arid plains of the West, and must expend its force when the wet and cultivated fields of the East are reached. Such has been the history of like invasions in the past. Egypt, lying on the eastern border of the Sahara Desert, has been a frequent object of attack, as have also the districts east of Arabia Petrea. In the earlier history of this country portions of the New England States were devastated, and in the summer of 1838 the vicinity of Baltimore was infested so that it was impossible to do gardening to profit. Although in the instances mentioned the peculiar species have varied, their characteristics have been substantially the same, and some very interesting facts have been noted. As remarked above, we believe that in no case have they succeeded in traversing an extended area of tilled ground. They usually fly at great height, and from west to east, thereby apparently adding another to the list of arguments in favor of a steady easterly current in the upper air. When their force is about expended they seek the very ground they have ravaged and die thereon, sometimes causing a sickening stench. Their raids are necessarily short, seldom being repeated more than one season after their first appearance.

Of the depredations in Vermont, the late President Dwight, who was an eye-witness, says in his volume of travels:

> "They appear at different periods, in different years; but the time of their continuance seems to be the same. This year (1798) they came four weeks earlier than in 1797, and disappeared four weeks sooner. Their favorite food is clover and maize. Of the latter they devour the part which is called the silk, the immediate means of fecundating the ear, and thus prevent the kernel from coming to perfection. But their voracity extends to almost every vegetable, even to the tobacco plant and the burdock. For are they confined to vegetables alone. The garments of laborers, hung in the fields while they are at work, these insects destroy in a few hours; and with the same voracity they devour the loose particles which the saw leaves upon the surface of pine boards, and which, when separated, are termed sawdust. The appearance of a board fence, from which the particles have been eaten in this manner, and which I saw, was novel and singular; and seemed the result, not of the operations of the plane, but of attrition. At times, particularly a little before their disappearance, they collect in clouds, rise high in the atmosphere, and take extensive flights, of which neither the cause nor the direction has hitherto been discovered."

Maine was similarly visited in 1743, 1749, 1754, and 1756, all of which were exceedingly dry seasons.—Chicago Post.

Superstitious Buch.

Herodotus and Xenophon tell a story of the fall of Babylon, which is perhaps familiar to the reader. At the time that Cyrus was besieging the city it was announced to him that when a mule foaled the city would fall. The foaling of a mule was considered an impossibility. On this occasion, the mule, as everybody knows, did foal, and the army of Cyrus was let into the city by treachery. The allusion to the foaling of a mule occurs in Egyptian history, and was probably one of those wide-spread myths, which, as Baring-Gould shows, are constantly turning up in different forms at various points in history, and in different localities. The latest incident which calls up the Babylonian legend is the sudden death in Paris of M. D'Agrignac de Buch, the last descendant of the famous Captal de Buch. There was in the family, as in hundreds of others in Europe, a prophecy of the immortality of the race. In the DeBuch family, as in that of Macbeth, the prophecy was considered to mean nothing else. It was handed down in a couplet thus translated:

When a horse and a mule are one,
Then the last sire's race is run.

Unfortunately for the DeBuch family, the Directors of the Garden of Acclimation recently bred a mule which could not be distinguished from a mule. The marvel was shown to the last of the line, and, when he realized the situation, he fell dead upon the spot. The case is interesting as an historical as well as psychological study.

Danger of Protracted Sleep.

But here, as in so many other cases, the evil of deficiency has its counterpart in the evil of excess. Sleep protracted beyond the need of repair, and encroaching habitually upon the hours of waking action, impairs more or less the functions of the brain, and with them all the vital powers. This observation is as old as the days of Hippocrates and Aretætus, who severally and strongly comment upon it. The sleep of infancy, however, and that of old age, do not come under this category of excess. These are natural conditions, appertaining to the respective periods of life, and to be dealt with as such. In illness, moreover, all ordinary rule and measure of sleep must be set aside. Distinguishing it from coma, there are very few cases in which it is not an unequivocal good; and even in comatose state the brain, we believe, gains more from repose than from any artificial attempts to rouse it into action.

The New Dolly Varden Style.

We have been permitted to inspect a new Dolly Varden dress. The starboard sleeve bore a yellow hop vine in full leaf, on a red ground, with numbers of gray birds, badly mutilated by the seams, flying hither and thither in wild dismay at the approach of a green and black hunter. An infant class was depicted on the back; and in making up the garment truant scholars were scattered up and down the sides and on the skirt; while a country poultry fair, and a group of hounds hunting, badly demoralized by the gathers, gave the front a remarkable appearance. The left sleeve had on it the alphabet in five different languages. —Once a Week.

THE Allentown (Pa.) Chronicle and News says: "Jacob Ginter was a farmer and manufacturer of mill-stones in the Minisink Valley, and one day when out hunting he discovered the first specimen of anthracite coal. His son still carries on the old business at the old place, and, while in comfortable circumstances, he has not profited apparently from his father's great discovery, which has enriched so many men and created such a vast business interest in this State."

ANSWERED.

BY BELLE W. COOKE.

Not in my way nor at my time
My heart's petitions answer gain;
I ask, and all my days are full
Of longing that I may attain.
"This time," I cry, "do not delay;
Give me the boon I ask to-day."

But opportunity goes by,
And while I pray my lips are fed
With something that I have not asked,
Nay, what I wanted not, instead.
But still the food is sweet, I find,
And leaves no taste of gall behind.

The Master's hand has blessed the gift,
And so it must be good for me;
And yet my heart goes sighing still
For that which I had hoped to see.
No pain or labor would I spare
If he would only grant this prayer.

I see the hands of others filled,
With that which I have been denied;
And they care not, but scorn perchance,
Because they are so well supplied.
I see and pray (whate'er my quest);
"Lord, let me know when I am blest."

I wander on, nor e'er forget
The treasure that I crave the most,
And think, [illegible]
All opportunity is lost;"
When lo! I see the blessing sweet
Is lying, fair, beneath my feet!
—Independent.

Pith and Point.

'OURS at home—The baby.

A PAIR of tights—Two drunkards.

A-VEIL-ABLE space—A woman's face.

WATER-SPOUTS—Temperance lecturers.

THE home circle—Walking around with the baby at night.

WHY is a carpenter's wife an unhappy woman? Because her husband is always a jawin'er.

WHO was the longest Irishman ever heard of? Why, it was O'Leary, the 500 Milesian.

"I WONDER what makes my eyes so weak," said a fop to a gentleman. "They are in a weak place," responded the latter.

HOW TO kill the grasshopper—Administer half a teaspoonful of strychnine to each insect one hour before bedtime.—Commercial Advertiser.

ORNITHO-LOGIC: If all birds that sing are songsters, then all birds that roost are roosters; hence all hens are roosters.—Commercial Advertiser.

"LORD, make us truly thankful for what we are about to receive—these biscuits ain't fitten for a dog to eat," is the way a certain Monroe, La., man asks a blessing.

A SMALL boy in New Haven made a sensation for a short time, by quietly transferring a card bearing the words, "take one," from a lot of handbills in front of a store to a basket of oranges.

A MAN by the name of Munch keeps a saloon in a town not 500 miles from Minneapolis, and advertises a free lunch. If he is a vocalist, we would recommend to him the song, "Crunch, crunch, crunch, the boys are munching."

AN eccentric old fellow, who lives alongside of a graveyard, was asked if it was not an unpleasant location. "No," said he, "I never jined places in my life with a set of neighbors that minded their own business so stiddy as they do."

W. H. WOOD, of Cincinnati, an actor, recently quit the stage for the pulpit. You see, he was a stick; he pined for a change; he was tired of the boards; he saw the error of his ways; and he dusted. Subsequently he thought better of it, and is making his bow as heretofore.

"AH!" said a Sunday-school teacher, "ah, Caroline Jones, what do you think you would have been without your good father and pious mother?" "I suppose, mum," said Caroline, who was very much struck with the soft appeal, "I suppose, mum, as I should ha' been a horphing."

"I WANT it nice and strong and snug-like," said the widow, exhuming a fresh pocket-handkerchief, and controlling her sobs with difficulty. "Oh, that's all right, ma'am, that's all right," returned the undertaker, tapping the coffin merrily, "he couldn't get out of it, ma'am, if he had a mind to."

A WESTERN paper avers that: "When Mike was courting Kitty Mill, he begged—as lovers often will—in accents softly spoken, that she one lock of golden hair from her fair head to him would spare, by way of a love token. Now Mike and Kit are man and wife, their courting's turned to married strife, and a sad difference makes it; though still attracted by her hair, he ne'er now begs a lock she'll spare, but out in handfuls takes it."

WEALTHY widow (in answer to your warm vows of undying love and admiration—"Then do you really think me beautiful, Mr. O'Dowd—candidly, now?" Mr. O'Dowd—"Beautiful? indeed you are. Not, perhaps, in that cut and dried, regular and insipid fashion that passes for beauty with the vulgar herd; but, O! your face has a subtle charm—a-a—an ineffable something—a-a-a certain 'je ne say kwaw,' you know, which is far more rare and more precious than what the ignorant world calls 'beauty.'"—Punch.

FEAR not, thou that longest to be at home. A few steps more and thou art there. Death, to God's people, is but a ferryboat. Every day and every hour the boat pushes off with some of the saints and returns for more. Soon, O believer, it will be said to thee, as it was to her in the Gospel: "The Master is come, and calleth for thee!" When you have reached the boundary of your race below, and stand on the verge of heaven and the confines of immortality then there will be nothing but the short vale of death between you and the promised land; the labors of your pilgrimage will have nothing to do but to entreat God as Moses did: "I pray thee, let me go over and see the goodly land that is beyond Jordan—that goodly mountain, Lebanon."

A BOSTON paper says: "It is not likely to be any saving of expense to run horse-cars by clock-work. The work may be done by the hour, but in clock-work it takes two hands to run the time-table. We simply make a minute of the fact but will dial-ate." Who cares? The whole thing will be run on tick.—Cincinnati Star. We are happy to state that the above joke is not hours.—Detroit News. No; it is like all the rest of your jokes; taken at second hand.—Inter-Ocean.

The Masher of the Iron Mines.

He was always mad. During the flush times of 1872-73 he used to loaf around the docks and invite sundry and divers persons to climb up and sit on the fleshy part of his arm. He was muscular, and knew it. In the flush and boom of early manhood, he was the lofty ollyhock, toppling over the modest catnip. He wore his pants stuffed into high top boots, a strap girting his waist, blue flannel shirt turned under low down on his breast, and a broad hat which swept away from his beetling forehead like the fantail of a ferry-boat. When a barge load of coal or limestone tied up at the dock, he would shove his hands inside the top of his pantaloons, swagger up to the edge of the pier and spurt out three gills of tobacco juice. This was the size of his mouth. He was slow, and deliberate, and great. If he heard of a fighting mate on board any of the vessels in port, or even a common sailor whom nature had upholstered, as it were, to order, he longed for his blood, and sought him out with an earnestness that was beautiful in its devotion. Everybody liked him. He was frank, open-hearted, and would just as leave kick your head as to look at you. If he desired to drink, all he did was to saunter up to one of his numerous admirers and inquire what the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina, and the reply of the latter executive that he considered it a long time between drinks, usually ended in quenching his thirst at some body else's expense. He was a bruiser from Bruiserville, he was, and admitted, reluctantly, that he had cleaned out no less than four circuses and eleven canal boats during the course of his cheerful and happy existence. Buffalo Tom came up on an ore barge just to find out who he was, and went back supplied with data and information that exceeded his most sanguine expectations. The Detroit Pile Driver came up and had an interview, and his friends made him as comfortable as possible on his way back to that city. The panic came and he smiled a lofty smile, stepped on board the cars and beat his way out to Utah. Last winter a snow-slide rushed down the mountain and buried him sixteen feet deep. But he gradually wiggled out, came to the surface, and requested them to fetch on a decent snow-slide if they were going to have any truck with him!—Marquette Mining Journal.

Production of Precious Metals in the United States.

Professor Raymond, of the New York Mining and Engineering Journal, than whom there is no more competent authority, estimates the gold and silver products of the United States, since the discovery of the former in California, at the following amounts, stated annually:

GOLD.

Years.	California.	Other States.	Total.
1848......	$ 10,000,000	....	$10,000,000
1849......	40,000,000	....	40,000,000
1850......	50,000,000	....	50,000,000
1851......	55,000,000	....	55,000,000
1852......	60,000,000	....	60,000,000
1853......	65,000,000	....	65,000,000
1854......	60,000,000	....	60,000,000
1855......	55,000,000	....	55,000,000
1856......	55,000,000	....	55,000,000
1857......	55,000,000	....	55,000,000
1858......	50,000,000	....	50,000,000
1859......	50,000,000	....	50,000,000
1860......	45,000,000	$ 1,000,000	46,000,000
1861......	40,000,000	3,000,000	43,000,000
1862......	34,700,000	4,500,000	39,200,000
1863......	30,000,000	10,000,000	40,000,000
1864......	26,600,000	19,500,000	46,100,000
1865......	28,500,000	24,725,000	53,225,000
1866......	25,500,000	28,000,000	53,500,000
1867......	25,000,000	26,725,000	51,725,000
1868......	22,000,000	26,000,000	48,000,000
1869......	22,500,000	27,000,000	49,500,000
1870......	25,000,000	25,000,000	50,000,000
1871......	20,000,000	23,500,000	43,500,000
1872......	19,000,000	17,000,000	36,000,000
1873......	19,000,000	17,000,000	36,000,000
Total..	$986,800,000	$252,950,000	$1,240,750,000

SILVER.

From 1848 to 1858, $50,000 per annum.	$ 500,000	1867..........	$13,500,000
1859..........	100,000	1868..........	12,000,000
1860..........	150,000	1869..........	13,000,000
1861..........	2,000,000	1870..........	16,000,000
1862..........	4,500,000	1871..........	22,000,000
1863..........	8,500,000	1872..........	35,750,000
1864..........	11,000,000	1873..........	36,500,000
1865..........	11,250,000
1866..........	10,000,000	Total......	$186,500,000

The aggregate of gold and silver extracted from our mines in less than thirty years will thus be seen to be $1,427,550,000. Add the product of 1874, and it will exceed $1,500,000,000. It is sad to reflect that of this vast sum scarce $200,000 remains in the country. Our public policy has exchanged the remainder for the manufactures of foreign nations—in other words, to pay the balance of our imports over exports, in other than the precious metals. And that, too, whilst our banks are unable to redeem their issues in specie. Had we retained this vast amount of treasure, this would have been the richest and most prosperous nation on the face of the earth, and there would have been no question about resumption either.—Syracuse (N. Y.) Journal.

The Tower of London.

Mr. Hepworth Dixon grows enthusiastic over the age of the tower of London. He compares with it the most ancient edifices now known to exist, such as "the bit of palace at Vienna" (the next most antique), the Kremlin of Moscow, the Doge's palace of Venice, the Seraglio at Stamboul, and the oldest part of the Vatican. But the most ancient of these dates no farther back than the reign of Henry III., while the newest part of the tower was built by William the Conqueror, and the other portion flourishes in the ancient Saxon chronicles, and is claimed to have been and occupied by the Cæsars! Mr. Dixon winds up his comparison by pronouncing every other European relic of masonry a thing of yesterday, in view of the well-established reputation of the Tower of London.

A WHALE SKELETON IN WASHINGTON.—The carcass of a dead whale which floated ashore opposite Atlanticville last fall has, during the winter, under the direction of Prof. Henry, been denuded of its flesh, and the skeleton is to be forwarded to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington. The work has been done by the crew of the life-saving station at Atlanticville. The skeleton is 50 feet in length, and comprises 286 bones, weighing from one ounce up to 700 or 800 pounds. The skull or head bone is the largest, and the fin bones the smallest. The jaw bones are each about 15 feet long, weighing about 400 pounds. It is considered a fine specimen.

SMITH, the colored cadet who went to West Point, but was dropped for not keeping up with his class, has been appointed Inspector of the Militia in South Carolina, with the rank of Brigadier-General.

Humor of the Day.

[By the Detroit Free Press Fiend.]

THIS is the season of the year when the man with a garden rushes into the house, seizes pen and paper, shuts his teeth together hard, and dashes off the following and directs it to his neighbor: "Dear Sir: If your don't keep your confounded hens out of my garden I'll kill every blasted one of them!"

A LACROSSE street mother stepped to the door the other evening and called to her son, a lad of 11, who was one of a crowd seated on the edge of the walk. "Wait just a little while—just a minute," he replied; "I'm a hearing how some Injuns murdered a trapper, and I want to see if he got well."

AN old farmer yesterday called on a portrait painter with a view of having his daughter's face transferred to canvas, but when told that it would cost him $50 or more, he stood in the door and remarked: "Do you take me for a lunatic? Why, I got my whole hoss barn painted over two coats, last week, for $21!

WHILE a man was guzzling drink in a Larned street saloon yesterday a little ragged girl entered and sought him out, and instead of requesting him to come home, dear father, as poor brother Benny was dead, and the house was all dark, she whispered: "Now, old man, you'd better be dusting out o' here. Mam's coming around the corner with a club in her hand and both eyes shooting fire!"

A LADY passing up Grand River avenue, yesterday, heard a boy using profane words in his conversation with another, and she stopped and said:

"My dear boy, it grieves me to hear you make use of such profane language."

"Who's a using profane langwitch?" he asked.

"You were."

"No, I wasn't—I was only swearing at Jack!"

YESTERDAY a half-drunken fellow, armed with a club, came out of a saloon on Jefferson avenue, and as he brandished his weapon around he yelled:

"I'm going to kill some one!"

An elderly gentleman who looked as if he had experienced a great deal of suffering, halted and asked:

"Have you any particular choice whom you kill?"

"No, sir—find me some one!" was the answer.

"Well, I don't encourage murder," continued the oldish man, "but if you must kill some one I hope you'll knock over a tar and gravel roofer that promised to roof my house before that last shower!"

AN old lady, riding on a street car yesterday, took a clay pipe and tobacco from her pocket, and after filling the pipe and borrowing a match she leaned back for a smoke. The conductor entered the car, tapped her on the shoulder, and said:

"You can't smoke in here."

"I know it's a leetle crowded," she replied as she looked up, "but I'm used to travelin' and I guess I can put up with it!"

She was allowed to finish her pipe.

A WIDOW missed the train, yesterday, and after tearing around the Central depot for a while she sat down on a bench; called her three children around her and wailed:

"Oh, why did I leave York State and come to such a country?"

"To git a man!" promptly replied her son William, a lad of ten. "I heard Mr. Shine say that's what you was coming for!"

She seized him and sat him down on the bench with such force that his hat was jarred down over his eyes.

The Potato.

The potato haz eyes, but like the sadducers ov old, they see not.

Next to rice and bread, the potato sustains more life than enny thing in the shape ov food.

One haff the people on the Emerald Isle live on meat and potatoes, with the meat left out.

Potatoes dwell in the ground, and are az prolifick az a hen's nest.

They are planted in hills, one potato in a hill, and they giv yu back twenty for one. This iz generous.

Mixed with flour they improve bread, and tons ov starch are made out ov potatoes.

Hunny iz also made out of them, which iz so natral that some smart lawyers hav thought it waz an infringement on the hunny bee's patent.

The only mean thing that the potato can be made to do iz to turn itself into whisky.

Whisky can be made out ov potatoze, and there aint no liquid, nor no solid, known to man, that iz haff so mean and low-lived az potato whisky.

When a man gits so lo down that he iz willing to drink potato whisky for the sake ov gitting drunk, hiz boddy—and i am a good mind to say hiz soul—aint worth saving.

If there iz ennything that whisky, or deviltry ov enny kind, kan be got out ov, man is sure to hunt until he finds it and prostitutes it for hiz purposes. He would dig up his grandfather's bones and distill them if thare was fifteen per cent. ov whisky in them.

I aint prepared to prove the teetotal depravity of any man, but i do say that i hav known thousands ov them whose natures were nine-tenths depraved and the other tenth shaky.

All men and wimmen to-day ought to be angels, they have had a good chance, but live angels, mail or femail, are painfully skarse.—Josh Billings.

The Holyoke Disaster.

The Coroner's jury in the Holyoke church calamity have rendered a verdict. They find that no blame is to be attached to any person in immediate connection with the fire, but they cannot too strongly condemn the almost criminal carelessness shown in the construction of the galleries and means of egress therefrom. The jury declare that the parties who built and suffered such a death-trap to stand should receive the unmeasured censure of the community. The jury further find that the direct cause of the fire, with its terrible sacrifice of human life, is attributable to the use of trimmings of laces, paper, etc., about the altar, and to the fact that the building was sheathed with pine sheeting instead of being plastered. They strongly deprecate the use of such adornment and use of such finish in places of public resort.

HE who blackens others does not whiten himself.

Match-Making.

The better kind of matches undergo what is called "frame dipping," which consists in arranging the splints, already cut to the desired length of the match, in square wooden frames, at equal and short distances from one another. The composition is spread by a spatula on a smooth stone or metalic surface, warmed by steam, in a uniform layer of some thickness. The prepared frame is placed horizontally upon this, so that all the ends of the splints sink to the bottom of the composition. When the frame is removed, each splint is found dipped with a small button of paste, which in drying acquires the ordinary ovoid shape.

After all the dipping has been done, the matches are dried in rooms especially adapted for the purpose—artificially heated and [illegible]. The last thing of all is "boxing." The splints are removed from the frames or loosened from the bundles, as the case may be, by persons who are known as "emptiers." The same persons also act as "boxers" or "lidders," which name expresses the duties they have to perform. "Cross-cutting" is done prior to "frame-filling," but with bundles as was intimated, it follows the dipping. The vapors of the phosphorous escape in several of the processes; in mixing the composition, dipping, drying and boxing. The better class of manufactories have separate rooms for each of these, and only the persons especially engaged in them can inhale the poisonous emanations. But in some instances the entire business is done in one small room, and all the work people are more or less exposed.—Scribner.

STATISTICS show that of the thousands who die annually, a large proportion are destroyed, not by old age, or by the natural exhaustion of vitality, but through intemperance, or disregard either on the part of the sufferer, or his parents, of the simplest laws of nature. Such being the case—and figures cannot misrepresent facts—the conclusion is that were the causes of intemperance, its kindred vices, and a disregard of natural laws, removed, the average length of the human life-time would be extended proportionately. What agent most rapidly, harmlessly and certainly will eradicate these vices, or the tendency to them, is the question which has been as thoroughly and persistently agitated as has the search for the Philosopher's stone. The discovery has been made by Dr. Joseph Walker, whose widely known VINEGAR BITTERS are accomplishing wonders which the old fogy doctors never dreamed of. Try them and judge for yourself, as thousands are doing all over the country.

THE census of 1870 shows that there were 40,736 lawyers in this unhappy country, and that of these 5,913 belonged to the State of New York.

Dr. Livingstone's New Book.

This work has been looked for with the greatest interest. Up to the day of his death the doctor kept his records—during the last few weeks writing them with the red juice of berries across the face of old newspapers. These records were in part brought home, closely sealed, by STANLEY. The remainder were brought by his faithful attendants, who, at his death, embalmed his body, transported it hundreds of miles on their shoulders, and accompanied it to England. It is the most wonderful book of the age, and we are glad to know that the American Publishing Company, of 118 Randolph street, Chicago, have brought it out in a popular form, beautifully illustrated, and at a price within the reach of all. It must sell with great rapidity, and we know of no other book so good for an agent to work on. It is sold only by subscription.

SAVE MONEY AND HEALTH.—The reputation of the Wilson shuttle sewing machine is so thoroughly established that no word in its commendation is necessary. The plan adopted by the manufacturers of this famous machine of placing their prices so low as to come within the reach of the poorer classes, certainly entitles them to the gratitude of those who are really most in need of such an article. Machines will be delivered at any railroad station in this county, free of transportation charges, if ordered through the company's branch house at 197 State street, Chicago. They send an elegant catalogue and chromo circular free on application. This company want a few more good agents.

WILHOFT'S TONIC!—A SAFE, SURE, AND SCIENTIFIC CURE!—The unprecedented sale of this world-renowned medicine proves incontestibly that no remedy has superseded the use of this reliable Tonic. No spleen has been found so hard as not to yield to its softening influence, and no liver so hypertrophied as not to give up its long-retained billous secretions. and no Chill or Fever has yet refused to fall into line. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

HABITUAL constipation leads to the following results: Inflammation of the kidney's, sick and nervous headache, biliousness, dyspepsia, indigestion, piles, loss of appetite and strength; all of which may be avoided by being regular in your habits, and taking, say one of Parsons' Purgative Pills nightly for four or six weeks.

JOHNSON'S Anodyne Liniment may be used to advantage where any Liniment is desirable. In cases of sever cramps and pains in the stomach, it is undoubtedly the best article that can be used internally.

TEXAS.—Distribution of 65,000 acres of land to emigrants. Address J. E. FOSTER, Emigration Bureau, Houston, Texas.

GLEN FLORA SPRING WATER, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

HOW TO GET A HOME. See advertisement.

A MAN OF A THOUSAND.

A CONSUMPTIVE CURED.—When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, accident led to a discovery whereby Dr. H. James cured his only child with a preparation of Cannabis Indica. He now gives recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not dissipate—Night Sweats, Irritation of the Nerves, Difficult Expectoration, sharp Pains in the Lungs, Nausea at the Stomach, Inaction of the Bowels, and Wasting of the Muscles. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Pa., giving name of this paper.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES

A pair of shoes will cost you only 5 cents more with a SILVER TIP on than without, and it will add twice the cost of the shoe to their wearing value.

Lost! The name of the person who did not like CABLE SCREW WIRE Boots and Shoes. Any one finding such a person will be liberally rewarded by buying a pair and trying them.

CABLE SCREW WIRE

OPIUM HABIT Cured Cheap. No Publicity. Dr. Armstrong, Berrien, Mich.

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

$10 to $25 PER DAY—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

$5 & $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEO. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G CO., Buchanan, Mich.

TEXAS is to be the garden spot of the Union. J. J. Alston & Co., Paris, Tex., offer half million acres for sale cheap. Send for their LAND JOURNAL.

Chicago Business Directory.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.
CHICAGO SCRAPER & DITCHER CO., 80 LaSalle.
BANNERS AND GLASS SHOW-CARD WRITERS.
MUNN & DRUM, 215 W. Madison.
BOOTS AND SHOES—AUCTION AND COMMISSION.
JAS. P. McNAMARA & CO., 27 E. Washington.
CANNED FRUITS AND CRYSTAL LAKE PICKLES.
F. A. WAIDNER, 46 and 47 River.
COWING'S DRIVE AND WELL PUMPS, &c.
DOWNER & WOOLNER, 98 and 100 Franklin.
CROCKERY, CHINA AND GLASSWARE.
ABRAM FRENCH & CO., 101 & 103 Wabash-av.
ENGRAVER, SEALS, PRESSES, STEEL AND BRASS STAMPS, STENCIL TOOLS AND STOCK.
C. H. HANSON, 38 South Clark.
ENGRAVERS.
S. D. CHILDS, JR., & CO., 115 Franklin.
ENGRAVER, DIE SINKER & MANF'R. OF STENCILS.
L. BOCHE, 171 E. Randolph.
FLOWERS AND STRAW GOODS—SPECIALTY.
DALY, HENROTIN & CO., 144 and 146 Wabash-av.
FURNITURE.
A. L. HALE & BRO., 200, 202, 204 and 206 Randolph.
GLASS SHOW-CARD PAINTER.
J. J. G. BURGHOFFER, 199, 201 and 203 E. Randolph.
GRASS SEEDS.
ALBERT DICKINSON, 126 Kinzie.
GUNS—CUTLERY MANUFACTURERS.
W. E. SPENCER & CO., 84 State. Send for price-list
HARDWARE AND CUTLERY—WHOLESALE.
EDWIN HUNT & SONS, 58 and 60 Lake.
HEAVY HARDWARE—WHOLESALE.
KIMBARK BROS. & CO., 80 to 84 Michigan-av.
HOTELS.
BREVOORT HOUSE, 143 and 145 E. Madison. On the European plan. H. M. Thompson, proprietor.
METROPOLITAN HOTEL—$2.50 per day. Cor. State & Wash'n, site of old St. James, opp. Field, Leiter & Co.
OGDEN HOUSE—First-class in every particular. Barber & Forrey, prop'rs. Cor. Washington and Franklin.
WOOD'S HOTEL, 54 & 56 Washington. O. Sands, prop. Price $2 per day. G. S. Palmer (late City Hotel), clerk.
SAW MANUFACTURERS.
HENRY DISSTON & SON, N. W. cor. Randolph & Market
WASHING MACHINES.
For Circulars, etc., address CALKINS CHAMPION Washer Co., 207 Clark. Agents wanted everywhere.
WATCHES, JEWELRY AND JEWELERS' SUPPLIES.
COGSWELL, WEBER & CO., 106 and 107 State.

$3 SAMPLE Free and Big Pay to Male and Female everywhere. Address, THE UNION PUB. CO., Newark, N. J.

GEO. P. ROWELL & Co.

10 DOLLARS PER DAY } AGENTS WANTED to sell THE IMPROVED HOME SHUTTLE Sewing Machine. Address Johnson, Clark & Co., Boston, Mass.; New York City; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Chicago, Ill.; or St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE. Chicago Suburban Lots at $100 each—$10 down and $5 monthly for balance—within a short distance of city limits, with hourly trains and cheap fare. Send for circular. IRA BROWN, 142 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED for the fastest-selling BOOK ever published. Send for circulars and our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUB. CO., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

SOMETHING for you. Sells at sight. Our Agents coin money. We have work and money for all, men or women, boys or girls, whole or spare time. Send stamp for Catalogue. Address FRANK GLUCK, New Bedford, Mass.

DIRT—EST and hardest work in the house made comparatively easy and pleasant. Every one interested in reducing woman's work should send now a stamp for our circular. GRAY, DIXON & CO., 61 Clybourn Ave., Chicago.

F. J. NASH, 781 BROADWAY, New York, manufacturer of SOLID GOLD JEWELRY of every description. The stock is large, very choice, and is offered at retail at trade prices to keep our workmen going. Bills under $15, P. O. order in advance. Over $15, C. O. D. privilege to examine. Catalogues free.

AGENTS WANTED for the best selling book out. "Woman as a Wife and Mother," by Pye Henry Chavasse, M. D. Over 75,000 sold; liberal terms. Apply at once for territory and outfit to S. T. SOUDER & CO., 719 Sansom-st., Philadelphia.

HOW TO CURE Corns, Neuralgia, Asthma, Chills and Fever, Drunkenness, Rheumatism. TO MAKE Hair Grow, Ottawa Beer, Boots Waterproof, Yeast. Send 10 cents for either receipt or the 10 for 50 cents. PERRY & CO., P. O. Box 2321 or 212 Broadway, N. Y.

Book Keeping. Double Entry.—By Clark's method, so simplified that any one may master the science without a teacher. Bound in cloth. Sent post-paid on receipt of $1. Agents wanted. W. S. Clark & Co., 145 Race street (Aikens Newspaper Union Building), Cincinnati, O.

HOW TO GET A HOME.
IOWA LANDS, 800,000 ACRES.
Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to DAVIDSON & CALKINS, R. R. Land Office, Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

BURR MILLS FOR CORN, FLOUR & FEED,

large capacity, at all weight & prices. My specialty 30 years. Gold Medals for fine grinding with small power. 5000 sold. 50 patents for grinding & bolting vegetables and minerals, by hand, horse, wind, steam, or water power. Send stamp for cuts & prices.
EDWARD HARRISON, New Haven, Conn.

NO YOU WILL NEVER have FRUIT IF YOU DON'T SET IT OUT.

You can buy your fruit plants very cheap by contracting with me for them now. To be shipped in the fall, and no money required until the plants arrive. I will furnish good reference as to my reliability. Send for Price-List. Strawberries, Raspberries, Blackberries, Currants, Gooseberries, Grapes.
THOMAS LESLIE, Ipava, Ill.

DO YOUR OWN PRINTING!
NOVELTY PRINTING PRESS.
For Professional and Amateur Printers, Schools, Societies, Manufacturers, Merchants, and others it is the BEST ever invented. 13,000 in use. Ten styles. Prices from $5.00 to $150.00. BENJ. O. WOODS & CO. Manuf'rs and dealers in all kinds of Printing Material, 49 Federal St. Boston. Send stamp for Catalogue.

Established 1858.

PRINCE'S METALLIC PAINT. TRADE MARK, PATENTED.
The best and cheapest Paint in the World for Iron, Tin, or Wood. For sale by Dealers everywhere. PRINCES' METALLIC PAINT CO., Manuft'rers, 96 Cedar St., New York. CAUTION.—Purchasers will please see that our name and trade mark are on each and every package. Send for a Circular.

STOCKS
dealt in at the New York Stock Exchange bought and sold by us on margin of five per cent.
PRIVILEGES
negotiated at one to two per cent. from market on members of the New York Exchange or responsible parties. Large sums have been realized the past 30 days. Put or call costs on 100 shares $106.25.
Straddles $250 each; control 200 shares of stock for 30 days without further risk, while many thousand dollars profit may be gained. Advice and information furnished. Pamphlet containing valuable statistical information and showing how Wall Street operations are conducted sent to any address. Orders solicited by mail or wire, and promptly executed by us. Address
FREE
TUMBRIDGE & CO.,
Bankers and Brokers,
No. 2 Wall Street, New York.

YOUNG MEN Wanted to learn Telegraphing and take offices on new lines which we are furnishing with operators. Salary from $40 to $100 per month. Particulars mailed free. Address N. W. TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE, Janesville, Wis.

50 Of the prettiest CARDS you ever saw, with your name handsomely printed on them, sent, postpaid, upon receipt of 25 cents. Your friends will all want them when they see yours. Address W. C. CANNON, 46 Kneeland St., Boston, Mass.

AGENTS WANTED. LIVINGSTONE'S NEW BOOK!! His own story of the last seven years of his Life, his Death, etc. Splendid work, just out. Send for circulars and full information to AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

D. LANGELL'S NEW ASTHMA AND CATARRH REMEDY. Having struggled twenty years between life and death with ASTHMA, I experimented by compounding roots and herbs and inhaling the medicine. I fortunately discovered a wonderful remedy and sure cure for [illegible]. Warranted to relieve instantly so the patient can [illegible]. Druggists are supplied with sample packages for free distribution. Call and get one, or address D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio. Sold by Druggists. Full-size Package, by mail, $1.25.

SEA FOAM. E. W. Pierce & Co., Providence, R. I., say: "We have used the Sea Foam a long while and consider it the best Baking Powder in use." Demond, Hills & Nickerson, Grocers, Boston, Mass., say: "Wherever we have sold your Sea Foam it has given excellent satisfaction, and it is pronounced superior to any known Baking Powder." Try it. "Its economy is wonderful; it saves Milk, Eggs, &c., and sells like Hot Cakes." Send for Circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & Co., 176 Duane St., N. Y.

ELASTIC TRUSS. This new Truss is worn with perfect comfort night and day. Adapts itself to every motion of the body, retaining rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain until permanently cured. Sold cheap by the Elastic Truss Co., No. 683 Broadway, N. Y. City. Sent by mail. Call or send for Circular, and be cured.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.
The World is in Bloom. Nature wears her Summer smile. But the victim of Nervous Debility is like a blighted branch in the sunshine. Let him re-vitalize tone and purify his system with Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient, and within a week he will feel like a new man. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

REVERSE YOUR PLAN! Leave off purgatives and violent medicines that prostrate the vital powers, and for a BLOOD Purifier, try HAMILTON'S Buchu & Dandelion which acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, and removes the impurities of the system, by opening its outlets. Kross Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.

OPEN THE SEWERS!! When the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels do not act healthfully, the wastes from the action of the system remain in the blood, and produce irritation and disease. These organs are the outlets of the system and under the influence of Hamilton's Buchu and Dandelion, are kept in good running order. Kross Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.'S "VIBRATOR" THRESHER.
The BRILLIANT SUCCESS of this Grain-Saving, Time-Saving THRESHER, is unprecedented in the annals of Farm Machinery. In a brief period it has become widely known and FULLY ESTABLISHED, as the "LEADING THRESHING MACHINE."

GRAIN RAISERS REFUSE to submit to the wasteful and imperfect work of other Threshers, when posted on the vast superiority of this one, for saving grain, saving time, and doing fast, thorough and economical work.
THRESHERMEN FIND IT highly advantageous to run a machine that has no "Beaters," "Pickers," or "Aprons," that handles Damp Grain, Long Straw, Headings, Flax, Timothy, Millett and all such difficult grain and seeds, with ENTIRE EASE AND EFFECTIVENESS. Cleans to perfection; saves the farmer his thresh bill by extra saving of grain; makes no "Litterings;" requires LESS THAN ONE-HALF the usual Belts, Boxes, Journals, and Gears; easier managed; less repairs; one that grain raisers prefer to employ and wait for, even at advanced prices, while other machines are "out of jobs."
Four sizes made with 6, 8, 10 and 12 horse "Mounted" Powers, also a specialty of Separators "alone," expressly for STEAM POWER, and to match other Horse Powers.
If interested in grain raising, or threshing, write for Illustrated Circulars (sent free) with full particulars of sizes, styles, prices, terms, etc.
NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.,
Battle Creek, Michigan.

DR RIDGE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS
Sold in cans by Druggists, 35 cents and upwards.

BECKWITH PORTABLE FAMILY SEWING $25 MACHINE DOUBLE THREAD. BECKWITH S. M. Co NEW YORK & CHICAGO.

DR. WHITTIER,
No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. Dr. W.'s establishment is chartered by the State of Missouri, was founded and has been established to secure safe, certain and reliable relief. Being a graduate of several medical colleges, and having the experience of a long and successful life in his specialties he has perfected remedies that are effectual in all these cases. His patients are being treated by mail or express everywhere. No matter who failed, call or write. From the great number of applications he is enabled to keep his charges low. 36 pages, giving full symptoms, for two stamps.
MARRIAGE GUIDE,
260 pages, a popular book which should be read by everybody. No married pair, or persons contemplating marriage, can afford to do without it. It contains the cream of medical literature on this subject, the results of Dr. W.'s long experience; also the best thoughts from late works in Europe and America. Sent sealed, post-paid for 50 cts.

VINEGAR BITTERS. PURELY VEGETABLE. FREE FROM ALCOHOL. DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

R. H. McDONALD & CO.,
Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California, and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

OPIUM CURE The most successful remedy of the present day. Send for Paper on Opium Eating. Prof. D. Meeker, P. O. Box 475, Laporte, Ind.

Trusses, Supporters and Pile Pipes. "Seeley's Hard Rubber Trusses." Cool, cleanly, light, perfectly safe and comfortable. Free from all sour, rusty, chafing, strapping, or poulticelike [illegible] the profession, long tested, always reliable. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. Genuine stamped "I. B. Seeley." Establishments, 1347 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, and 737 Broadway, New York. Sent by mail or express, and sold by leading druggists. Send for catalogue.

C. N. U. No. 26

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

A New Store

With an entire new stock of

BOOTS & SHOES,

New STYLES of all kinds at the LOWEST PRICES at

J. E. WOODFORD'S

I have located at Auburn with a fine stock of BOOTS and SHOES, which will be sold at the Lowest Figures for Cash!

My Facilities for making CUSTOM WORK are not excelled anywhere and those favoring me—with their orders may be certain of getting the best material.

W. W. HUMES, Foreman.

To the trade, great inducements are offered in Leather, Findings, &c. Please call and examine my stock before purchasing.

FRESH ARRIVAL OF NEW GOODS

AT THE

GRAND CENTRAL

Woolen Goods for the next THIRTY DAYS sold without regard to C

A JOB LOT OF SHAWLS

Bleached and Brown Muslin,
Percales and Prints, Denims,
And Shirtings, Carpets and
Oilcloths, Table Linen and
Towling. A Large assort of

ALPACCAS,

AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Gents' Collars, Hats, and Suspenders. Ladies Collars and Cuffs. Willow Ware, Satchels, and Carpet Bags. COTTENADES from 15c to 35c per yd. fine assortment of

CASSIMERES,

at very low figures. Call at the Grand Central, next door to Davis' Hard ware store.

WILLIAM RICHMOND, Pro.

C. P. Houser & Co.,

—Dealer In—

BOOKS AND STATIONERY

BEST
Window Paper
HOLLAND'S
and Oil Shades always on hand and CHEAP for CASH,

PICTURES, FRAMES,
CORD,
and TASSELS,
Curtain and Window Fx'trs
the Best in the Market.

—The Largest and finest assortment of—

WALL PAPER

EVER BROUGHT TO THIS MARKET.

Their store is located in Easley's new brick block, North of the Court-House,
AUBURN, INDIANA.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

F. E. DAVENPORT,

Corner Main and Eighth-Sts.,

—DEALER IN—

Pure Drugs and Medicines,

DYE STUFFS, PERFUMERY,

Toilet Soaps Cosmetics, Hair Oils, Brushes, Combs, Toilet Mirrors and Druggists' Sundries in General.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY!

Wall and Window Paper!

Oiled, Linen and Slat Window Shades, and Shade Fixtures.

All the lattest POEMS and MISSELANIOUS BOOKS constantly on hand or ordered. Blank Books, Pocket Memorandas, Portmonies and Bill Books, WRITING PAPERS. All Styles and prices ALBUMS! ALBUMS! ALBUMS just received for the Holliday trade

Over $300.00 worth of Juvenile and Toy Books, which will be sold at panic prices. Smith's Gold Pens, warranted the best. Also steel Pens, Penholders, Pencils, Ink and Ink Stands &c.

SCHOOL BOOKS!

Covered with best Cover ever invented Free Of Charge

Davenport has the exclusive right to use this book cover in Auburn, and will give his patrons the benefit of the same.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In Amrican & Swiss Watches,

TOYS

FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,
Jewelry,
Clocks, Silver Ware!
GOLD PENS,
Ladies GOLD Chains,
Gents Chains,
Gold and Silver Rings,
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,

V. A BEARD

Grocer in Auburn, North of Court House on Seventh Street,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS

TEAS, COFFEES, SUGARS, SALT FISH.

Flour and Feed, Tubs Pails, Buckets, Sugars Boxes, Etc. A large variety

TOBACCOS AND CIGARS,

Confectioneries of all kinds, and Fancy Notions, Cove Oysters, &c. A speciality in Green and Dried Fruits, and Canned Fruits. Goods delivered inside the coporation.

Miller & Casebeer's

CORNER STORE AHEAD.

An immense stock of

SUMMER GOODS

JUST RECEIVED!

Call and examine Goods and Prices.

Goods marked down 25 per cent lower than ever offered before in this market. A mammoth stock of

FINE DRESS GOODS,

to select from, now is the time to call and

SECURE BARGAINS,

you can save 25 per cent, by buying your goods now at

MILLER& CASEBEER'S

Corner Store.

RAILROADS.

Indianapolis Peru & Chicago R.R.

TIME TABLE No. 12—Dec. 20, 1874.

Northward.

Stations.	No. 1	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Indianapolis	6 30a	12 25p	3 5 p	12 20
Noblesville	7 44	12 45	5 10	1 30
Tipton	[illegible]	1 10	5 47	2 15
Miami	9 27	1 50	6 38	2 55
Kokomo	9 11	2 25	7 01
Peru	10 05	3 15	7 40

Southward.

Stations.	No. 2	No. 4	No. 6
Indianapolis	6 00p	4 1 a	9 55a
Noblesville	4 47	3 15	8 34
Tipton	3 56	2 29	7 44
Kokomo	3 13	1 50	7 02
Miami	2 45	1 15	6 35
Peru	2 10	12 35	6 00

E. C. MURPHY, Supt Mich. Div,
E. M. HAWLEY, Master of Trafic.
C. B. ROBINSON, General Sup't,
J. P. WADE, Gen. Ticket Agt.

Lake Shore & Mich. Southern R.R

Air Line Division

ON and after Sunday, Nov. 15, 1874 Passenger Trains will leave Waterloo city and other stations as follows, daily except Sundays:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom'd'n
Butler	2:10 p m.	x 2:35 a m.	8:00 p m
Waterloo	2:56 "	2:53 "	8:19 "
Sedan	3:05	3:00	8:30 "
Corunna	3:10	3:06	8:35 "

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.18 pm	11.30 pm.	6:50 p m
Sedan	2.20	11.35	7:02 "
Waterloo	2:28 "	11:44 "	7:11 "
Butler	2:40 "	x12:01a m	7:55 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen T'c. Ag't
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin R. R.

Time Table to take effect May 23, 1875.

Going South.

Fort Wayne	1 15pm	[illegible]	5 35pm
Ossian	2 02		6 42
Bluffton	2 30	3 10	7 17
Keystone	3 02		7 57
Montpelier	3 15	3 41	8 08
Hartford	3 40pm	4 05	8 40
Eaton	4 0.		9 06
Muncie	4 07	4 47	9 45
McCowan's	[illegible]	5 05
New Castle	[illegible]	5 40
Cam. City	6 05	6 11
Beesons	[illegible]	6 27
Connersville	6 15	6 40
Indianapolis	[illegible]	6 50
Louisville	11 10	12 15pm
Cincinnati	[illegible]	9 40

Going North.

Cincinnati	[illegible]	1 40pm
Louisville		2 40	7 00pm
Indianapolis		7 25	4 20am
Connersville	10 22	[illegible]
Beesons	10 45	7 52
Cam City	11 04	8 12
New Castle	11 40	[illegible]
McCowan's	12 10pm
Muncie	12 52	[illegible]	6 50am
Eaton	1 12	10 28	7 29
Hartford	1 24	[illegible]	7 54
Montpelier	1 49	11 17	[illegible]
Keystone	[illegible]		8 36
Bluffton	2 30	11 58	9 15
Ossian	[illegible]	12 2 am	9 52
Ft. Wayne	3 45	1 15	11 00

W. W. WORTHINGTON, Supt.
ROBT. BILLIE, Gen'l Ticket Ag't.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect May 23d—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Mail	Accom.	Jack. Acm
Cincinnati		7 30
Louisville	7 00pm
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 45	4 55
Auburn	11 40	6 07
Waterloo	11 56	6 27
Summit		7 45
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 5	[illegible]	6 00 a
Reading	1 7		7 12
Bankers	2 12		7 52
Jonesville	2 30		8 20
Jackson	3 40		10 16
Detroit	6 30p m		2 00p
Grand Rapids	9 50
Lansing	5 47
Saginaw	9 43
Bay City	9 55

Going South.

Bay City	6 40 a m		2 15p
Saginaw	7 20		3 38
Lansing	10 40		9 55
Grand Rapids	7 50		12 00
Detroit	9 50		5 40
Jackson Dep	12 40		9 20
Jonesville	1 55		10 30
Bankers	2 12		10 47
Reading	2 26		11 00
Ar Angola	3 25	6 15	11 55
Pleasant Lake		6 26
Waterloo	4 05	[illegible]	12 33a
Auburn	4 20	9 25	12 49
Auburn Junction		6 30
Fort Wayne, Arrive	5 15	11 10	1 40
Indianapolis		10 30	6 50
Louisville			12 45p
Cincinnati			9 40a

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

DETOIT, EEL RIVER & ILLINOIS Rail Road.

Short Line between Auburn and the East and West.

Trains run on Cleveland time. Through trains will run on the following time, in effect Sunday May 23d, 1875.

Going East.			Going West.
No. 3, Express.	No. 1. Mail.	STATIONS	No. 2, Mail.	No. 4, Express.
5.40 P M	10 05 A M	lv Logans't ar	6.15 pm	7.30 am
5.55 "	11.25	Adamsboro.	7.00	7.10 am
6.05 "	11.38	Hoover's	5.55	6.53
6.12 "	11.48	Mexico	5.41	6.42
6.25 "	11.59	Denver.	5.55	6.30
6.32 "	12.30	Chili.	5.23	6.19
6.46 "	12.44	Roann	5.13	5.59
6.58 "	12.58 PM	Laketon	4.57	5.39
7.08 "	1.08	N. Manches't'r	4.40	5.25
7.16 "	1.15	Lib. Mills	4.29	5.14
7.29 "	1.25	Collamer	4.19	4.59
7.34 "	1.30	S. Whitley	4.07	4.49
7.44 "	*1.40	Taylor's	4.02	4.31
7.56 "	1.52	Columbia city	3.50	4.15
8.11 "	*2.06	Collin's	3.38	3.55
8.21 "	2.16	Churubusco	3.18	3 43
8.31 "	*2.25	Potter's	3.08	3.27
8.39 "	2.32	G. R. Crossing	2.59	3.15
8.46 "	2.39	Cedar Creek	2.39	3.03
8.57 "	2.50	Aub. Juncti'n	2.26	2.43
9.05 "	2.58	Auburn	2.20	2.35
9.[illegible] "	3.15	Mooresville	2.02	2 .14
9. [illegible] "	3.25 PM	ar. Butler lv.	1.50 P M	2.00 a m

CONNECTIONS—At Logansport with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St Louis, Logansport, Crawfordsville & Southwestern and Toledo. Wabash & Western R. R's. At Denver with Indianapils, Peru & Chicago Railway, for Rochester, Plymouth, LaPorte. Michigan City, Peru, Kokomo and Indianapolis At N Manchester with Cincinnati, Wabash & Mich R'y. At Columbia City with Pittsburg, Ft. W, & Chicago, for Ft Wayne Lima, Crestline and Pittsburg. At Grand Rapids crossing with Grand Rapids R'y. At Auburn Junction with Ft. Wayne Jackson & Saginaw, for Angola, Jackson and Saginaw R'y. for Butler with Lake Shore & Mich. Southern Caw. Toledo, Detroit and all eastern cities.

J. A. HUGHSTON, Gen. Ticket Agt.
A. B. SOUTHARD, Gen. Supt.

The COURIER is now the largest paper in the county, and can be had for $2 a year.

◆ ◆ ◆

Try the COURIER once, and see how you like it.

RAILROADS.

Pittsburgh, Ft Wayne & Chicago R R

ON and after May 23d, 1875, trains will run as follows, Sundays excepted.

Going West.

STATIONS	FAST EX	MAIL.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Pittsburg	2,00 A M		8,00 A M	2,00 PM.
Rochester	3 00 "	"	9,22 "	3,18 "
Alliance	5,25 "	"	12,30 P M	5.54 "
Orrville	7,10 "	A. M	2,25 "	7,31 "
Mansfield	9,07 "	"	4,40 "	9,28 "
Crest- ar	9.40 "	4,50 "	5,15 "	9,55 "
line ...lv	10,00 "	6,30 "	5,35 "	10,00 "
Forest	11,18 "	[illegible]	7,27 "	11,21 "
Lima	12,20 P M	11,26 "	[illegible]	12,27 "
Ft Wayne	1,40 "	2,25 P. M	11,30 A M	2,25 "
Plymouth	4,10 "	6,20	2,35 "	5,25 "
Chicago	7,50 "		6,30 "	6,00 "

Going East.

STATIONS	MAIL	FAST EX.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Chicago	5.15 a m	9,20 A. M.	5.35 A. M.	9,20 P. M
Plymouth	9.20 "	12,15 P. M.	9,05 "	12,50 A. M
Ft Wayne	12,20 Pm	2.45 "	11,45 "	3,50 "
Lima	2.40 "	4,35 "	1,55 A. M.	6,15 "
Forest	3.56 "	5,34 "	3,01 "	7,36 "
Crest- ar	5,35 "	6,55 "	4,40 "	9.20 "
line lv	A M	7,15 "	4.50 "	9.40 "
Mansfield	"	7,43 "	5,20 "	10,20 "
Orrville	"	9,38 "	7,10 "	12,45 PM
Alliance		11,10 "	9,00 "	3,05
Rochester	P M	1,07	11,12 "	5,40
Pittsburg	"	2,10 a m	12,15 A. M.	6,55

F. R. MYERS,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent

BALTIMORE & OHIO R. R

—o—

FROM 135 TO 6 MILES

The hortest route from the West to

Washington, Baltimore
AND THE EAST.

ONDENSED TIME TABLE, THRO' TRAINS.

VIA PARKERSBURG, Dec. 13, '74	Express	Fast Express,	St: Loui Ex.
Lve. Cincinnati	9 00‡ am	†4 30 p m	‡11 10pm
Arr. Chillicoth	12 55d n'n	s7 46	3 10 am
" Portsmouth	5 35 p m		11 10
" Marietta	5 56	12 06 n't	7 22
" Parkersburg	5 25 s	11 30	B6 50
Arr. Grafton	9 45	3 40 a m	11 10
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	B7 40	D3 20
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	6 51
" Staunton		5 15 p m
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30p m	4 50 am
" Baltimore	‡9 05 a m	1 50 a m	10 20‡pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50 p m	2 35 am
" New York	‡5 10	10 22	‡6 15
" Boston	5 50 a m		4 50 pm

VIA BELLAIRE—Dec 13, 1874	Express	Fast Express.	Fast Line
Lve. Cincinnati (via Dayton S. L.)	6 30 a m		‡3 50 p m
" Cincinnati (via P. C. & St. L.)	†7 00		†7 10 p m
" Columbus	11 55	4 00‡p m	12 20†
Arr. Newark	1 00 p m	5 25	1 45 a m
" Zanesville	2 10	6 55	2 47
" Bellaire	5 20	10 55	6 50
" Wheeling	6 45 p m	12 50 ngt	8 00
" Grafton	9 35	3 35 a m	11 05
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	7 40	D3 30 pm
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	9 51
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30 p m	4 50 a m
" Baltimore	9 05	1 50†	10 20‡pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50	2 35 a m
" New York	5 10	10 22†	‡6 15
" Boston	4 50 a m		4 50 p m

B—Breakfast. —Dinned. S—Supper. †Daily ‡Daily ex. Sunday. ‡Daily ex. Monday.

PULMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS

from Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Columbus, to,

WASHINGTON AND BALTIMORE!

—AND—

PHILADELPHIA

WITHOUT CHANGE.

Through Tickets, and further information can be obtained at all principal Ticket Offices throughout the West and South West.

THOS. P. BARRY, West. pass agt., Cin.
L. M. COLE, Gen'l ticket agt., Bal. Md.
THOS. R. SHARP, Mas. of Tran.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN,

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

Has the larfest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promtly attended to. Go and see his largest stock of G

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

re now in full running order and all orders fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give us a call and ascertain our prices.

Is Your Life Worth 10 Cents.

SICKNESS prevails everywhere, and everybody complains of some disease during their life—When sick, the object is to get well; now we say plainly that no person in this world that is suffering with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and its effects, such as Indigestion, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Sour stomache, Heart-burn, Palpitation of the Heart, Depressed Spirits, Biliousness, &c. can take GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER without getting relief and cure. If you doubt this, go to our Druggist and get a sample bottle for ten cents and try it. Regular size 75 cents. Two doses will relieve you.

◆ ◆ ◆

IF you want Job work got up in style, go to the COURIER office.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JUNE 24th, 1875. Number 25.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year, ...$2. | Six Months,......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column......	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column......	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
One Column......	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.
J. W. RICKEL. R. DEXTER TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the state. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUB'N CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store, Cool's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Miller and Casebeer's Store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON will attend to all calls in the time of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical disease. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing all the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience, of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel. My medicines are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of diceases without producing any bad effect, upon the nervous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of quinine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on fifth street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 34 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago.
O SANDS, Prop'r.
$3.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.
J. H. FORD, Pres't.
J. A. COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire Line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,
CHAIRS
Husk & Hair Matrasses
50 and 52 East Main Street,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

Thomas Baldock
Building Contractor
AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experience corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. U. Tarney
AUBURN MEAT MARKET!
KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Main-st first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store.

BRICK FOR SALE
FRITZ GROESCOP.

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick, about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable figures. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Kutzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some of the above Tile, which they are selling at a very low figure. We offer
Four Inch Sizes at 50 cts. per Rod,
Six " " " 75 " " "
Every person who intend to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office.
LANHAM & HOSE,
v5n11 Auburn, Indiana.

J. J. VanAuken,
COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying. Office with Rose & Hartman, Auburn Indiana. Persons requesting work by letter, should give township and section.

JAS. CLIFFORD,
WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,
Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

BAKER BROS.
PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!
AND
EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes, etc., always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.
BAKER BROS.

AUBURN
Meat Market.
Main St. Next door to Klotz's.
MICH HOUSTON
PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

MERCHANTS
National Bank!
FORT WAYNE, IND.
Capital and Surplus $112.000

Receives Deposits, Discounts Business Paper, issues Letters of Credit, and Collects at all points at the lowest rates of exchange.

Directors:
S. CARY EVANS, R. C. ROBERTSON,
H. C. HANNA, N. P. STOCKBRIDGE
A. C. DAWSON.
Organized 1865. April 9, '74

NEW Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep FLOUR, CORN,
OATS, MILL FEED,
&c. at all times and at the
Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs, &c.
WM. LANHAM.

Pencilings and Clippings.

FORT WAYNE is reported full of thieves and swindlers. Perhaps this is not news for some.

Now that men and boys are appearing in shirt sleeves, the evidence of a hard winter are plainly appearent to the observing eye.

TRUSSES! TRUSSES! TRUSSES!—Davenport has large and desirable assortment of spring and elastic trusses. He fits them himself and guarantees satisfaction.

SETTLE UP

Notice is hereby given that all those knowing themselves indebted to the firm of, Eldridge & Rainier, are requested to call and settle without delay.

$500,000 to loan on improved farms in Northern Indiana, in sums of one thousand dollars and upwards, on five years time. Security must be first mortgage.
WILLIAM FLEMING,
tf Fort Wayne Ind.

PRIVATE Dalzall calls upon the ex-soldiers of the United States to meet him in the woods near Caldwell Ohiot July 4th. If you meet him, don't le, him get out of the woods alive.—[Detroit Free Press.

KENTUCKY is a thoroughly Democratic state, and has been, since the days of Clay, under Democratic administrations. As the result Kentucky has no state debt and plenty of money in her state treasury. South Carolina is a Republican state and in eight years has made a debt of $23.000,000.

"AN active boy will do as much as a man." More. An active boy sent a ball through a window pane, frightened a horse with his kite, ruined a suit of new clothes, broke two of his mothers' goblets, tied the silver tea-pot to a dogs tail, and penned up a young snapping turtle in his father's hat box, in less than an hour.

A Deleware man married a woman because she was deaf, and he thought she'd keep her tongue still. So she did, but when he fell into the well and yelled himself hoars trying to make her hear, he wished she had ears a foot long and could hear a whisper a mile away.

THE inconsistencies of our orthography are something to contemplate.—T-o-n-g-u-e spells "tongue," the man that first spelled it should have been hongue. A-c-h-e spells "ache," and that's all you can mache of it. E-i-g-h-t spells "eight," no matter how much you depreceight the idea, and that a-i-s-l-e should spell "aisle," and f-e-i-g-n "feign" is enough to make anybody smaisle, if the effort were not too paignful.

HERE is a good thing on the "tater bug." Three men comparing notes; One says, "there are two bugs on every stock." A second says, "they have cut down my early crop are sitting on the fence waiting for my late crop to come up." "Pshaw," says the third, you know nothing about it. I passed a seed store the other day, and saw the bugs looking over the books to see who had purchased seed potatoes.

Detroit Free Press.

YESTERDAY afternoon a man who had been beaten in a lawsuit stood at the corner of Griswold street and Justice alley and cursed high and low. He was spouting away in vehement tones when a lawyer asked:

"Are you swearing at any body in particular?"

"No, blast you no!" ripped out the man.

"Well it's too bad to have all that wasted. I wish you would use a few of the biggest and best oaths on Hannibal Hamlin, the man who raised the rates on postage."

The man gave it to Hamlin right and left for eleven minutes, and then the police interfered.

A New York paper gives the following description of the foreman of the Beecher Tilton Jury. He wears a good deal of white shirt front, a high shirt collar, and a black tie. But the great characteristic of the foreman of the jury is the soft chameleon, like expression of his face. He reflects Evarts like a looking glass. Let any sit behind the counsel while he is speaking and keep his eye fixed on the foreman's face, and he can tell accurately at any moment the particular expression on Evart's features. When he smiles in good humor the foreman smiles in the same spirit; when a tone of solemnity enters into his voice and eye the foreman assumes a funeral look; when scorn curls the counsel's lip, the foreman involuntary looses his naturally good-natured expression of countenance and frowns at some imaginary foe.

Two colored men took refuge under a tree in a violent thunder storm.

"Julius, can you pray?" said one.

"No Sam," was the reply; "nebber prayed in my life."

"Well can't you sing a hymn?" Just then the lightening struck a tree near, by shivering it, when the first speaker exclaimed:

"See heah, honey, suffin 'ligious has got to be done, an' dat mighty sudden, too; s'pose you pass around de hat!"

In these days of venality, high taxes and corruption, it is something of a pleasure to clip the following truthful item, which we do from the Goshen Democrat:

"The democratic liberal party have made a good record so far in their brief authority. Their retrenchment in the Indiana legislature will save annually over a million of dollars. In Ohio they reduced taxation one million one hundred thousand In the state of New York they reduced the state taxs two millions. Such a cutting down of expenses as you will see by the same party in the next congress will astonish the high salary-grabbers. Let the people stand by the party of retrenchment and reform."

Real Estate Transfers.

Furnished by ROSE & HARTMAN, attorneys at law, who have the only Abstract of Titles in the county. Deeds and Mortgages as against "bona fide" purchasers, or mortgagees, must be recorded within 90 days from their execution. Mechanics Liens within 60 days from the completion of building.

J. Boyer to J. Lens N ½ lot 30 O P Waterloo. $3,305.

H. Rogers to E. Lisle about 7 acres near Garret. $532.

C. L. Hunt to J. Voegle W ½ of N W ¼ section 30 Richland. $2500.

L. Spangler to W. Teters lot 2 Auburn Junction. $100.

C. F. Mader to A. Peters lot 125 W add Auburn. $500.

R. S. Kester to J. A. Smith lot 1 G & D's add Auburn. $500.

J. C. Sommers to M. L. Goetschius S W ¼ of S E ¼ sec. 4 Jackson. $1600.

THE RAILROAD ULTIMATUM

From the Chicago Tribune.

Mr. John W. Garrett, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has been in this city since last Saturday. Mr. Garrett, stated to a Tribune reporter that it depended entirely on the Pensylvania railroad managers to terminate the present conflict. As far as he was concerned he would never move an inch from the position he had taken. As soon as the right was conceded to his road to enter New York over the Pensylvania railroad as he had been doing for thirty years and to make such rates from Baltimore and Chicago as he chose, he was ready for peace, and not sooner. He would not meddle the rates from Philadelphia and New York, and would be willing to maintain any rate the roads at those points should adopt He cared but little for the New York and Philadelphia traffic, his principal outlet for the produce from the Great West. Since the completion of his road to Chicago, the business of the Baltimore had received a great impetus, and property in that city had largely advanced in value. The Saratoga combination, which had been gotten up to run the Baltimore and Ohio Road, had only served to establish the road and give it a standing in the West, which otherwise it could not have obtained for many years. It had been and was now his firm object to maintain the freight rates fourth class, the principal freight shipped from the West, at 35 cents per 100. This was a reasonable rate, and gave his company a fair profit. The other lines had to submit to this rate or there could be no peace. They might go above or below their figure if they choose, but he would not be coerced by them into making a rate to suit them. He intended to manage his own business, and not have it managed by others. It was the interest of the people of the West to support his road, for otherwise reasonable rates could not be maintained. The passenger rates were now below a paying figure, and would be raised again after the restoration of peace. But under no consideration would he consent to raise them again to what they were before the war commenced, it could stand war any length of time Its financial condition never was better than at present, and the earnings were daily increasing.

BISHOP POLK'S DEATH.

Sherman kept pushing his way down toward Atlanta. It was in the campaign that the rebel Gen. Leodinas Polk, who had been a bishop of the South Episcopal church, lost his life. The story of his death is one of the dramatic incidents of the war reminding us of the death of the famous French Gen. Moreau who was killed by a shot from a battery which had been fired by the special order of Napoleon. On June 14th, Gen. Sherman, in conversation with General Howard, observed at the distance of eight hundred yards, a group of Confederate officers, evidently watching Federal troops through glasses. Sherman calls Gen. Howard's attention to this group and ordered him to compel it to keep behind its cover. Howard answered that his orders from Gen. Thomas were to spare artillery ammunition.—"That was right according to the general policy," says Sherman. "I explained to him that we must keep up the morale of the bold offensive; that we must use his artillery to force the enemy to remain on the timid defensive, and ordered him to cause a battery close by to fire three volleys." One of these volleys killed Gen. Polk. General Johnson afterward explained to Gen. Sherman the exact manner of Gen. Polk's death. He had ridden to Pine Mountain, accompanied by Gen. Hardee and Polk. He noticed the preparation of Sherman's battery to fire, and caused the soldiers to scatter. "They did so," says Johnson, "and he likewise hurried behind the parapet, from which he had an equally good view of the position but Gen. Polk, who was dignified and corpulent, walked slowly, not wishing to appear too hurried or cautious in the presence of the men, and was struck across the breast by an unexploded shell which killed him instantly." "It has been charged," says Sherman, "that I fired the shot which killed Gen. Polk, and that I knew it was directed against that General. The fact is, that at that distance we could not even tell that the group were officers at all. I was on horseback a couple of hundred yards off before my orders to fire were executed and had no idea that our shot had taken effect."

"To the editor of the New York Herald:

In your review of "Sherman's Memoirs" what purports to be a statement of the manner in which Gen. Polk was given, from which it appears that Sherman called Gen. Howard's attention to a group of officers on Pine Mountain, and "ordered him to compel it to keep under cover." Will you permit one who was attached to Gen. Howard's headquarters and who was by his side daily on the Atlanta campaign-one who with Howard and other officers, sat our horses beside the Fifth Indiana battery that fired the fatal shot—to give the true story from my notes published in a Western daily a few weeks afterward? There certainly is a grevious error either in your review or in Sherman's description of the tragedy. Gen. Sherman was not there and could not have seen the shot fired. Gen. Sherman may have however, as he rode to the rear, where he met Howard called his attention to what he (Howard) would see when our party reached Gen. David Stanley's front. The facts—in which I am sure I will be sustained in the main by Generals Howard and Stanley and the staff officers present—are these:

On June 14th Gen. Howard and staff left their headquarters for the front, where Stanley's division of Howard's (Fourth) corps had broken camp, and were awaiting the order to attact Pine Mountain. It was just after sunrise. A mile or two in rear of the advance, Howard met Sherman, but the conversation between them I did not hear, as two Generals conversed aside. Howard and staff joined Stanley and his staff on the road, in full view of Pine Mountain, and as we drew rein and exchanged greetings Stanley exclaimed:

"Howard, do you see that group up there on the crest of the mountain? I wonder who they are."

We all brought our field glasses to bear upon the point indicated, and could plainly see three persons standing in front of a line of breastworks and a large group in the background. We could not tell whether they were officers or privates, but as it was evident that they were watching our movements, Stanley suggested that a few shots be fired to drive them back under cover. Howard, who had suggested that perhaps Bishop Polk was in the party, made no objections, when Stanley turned to Captain Simonson, his chief artillery, with the remark:

"Simons, can't you unlimber, put a shot in the group and give the Bishop a morning salutation?"

I'll try it!" was Simonson laconic reply And away he galloped to the rear. A few minutes later a section of the Fifth Indiana battery (Simnson) was unlimbered within twenty feet of us. Lieutenant sighted the gun and the shot exploded over and to the right of the group Here my memory fails me, but my impression is a second shot was fired by the Lieutenant with no better effect. Simmon, when the gun had been reloaded dismounted and said: "Here Lieutenant, let me try it?" He took the range and the messenger of death sped on its mission. Our glasses were bent upon the group, and we observed a commotion as the shot took effect in the group that scattered to the rear. While Simmon was upon his knees sighting the gun for another discharge, Capt. Leonard, chief of Howard's signal corps, sitting on his horse beside me, read the Confederate signal code that our officers had interpreted at Lookout Mountain and caught the words:

"Gen. Polk is killed!" With a look of amazement, Leonard turned to Howard and Standley and exclaimed:

"Bishop Polk is killed!"

"What?" exclaimed Howard, "have you interpreted the signal correctly?"

"Yes, General; Simonson's last shot killed him. They are signaling it along the line."

Young men who were cracking jokes instantly ceased, and for a moment none spoke. Then General Howard said:

"Well, a christian has fallen. Such is war" Just then Simonson cought the words, Bishop Polk is killed!"

He was sighting the gun, and lifting his eyes that glared fearfully, exclaimed:

"What is that, Leonard?"

"Bishop Polk is killed! Your last shot did it. They are signaling it over mountain," I replied.

Simonson's head dropped upon the "vent," where it rested a moment. Then raising his eyes, he exclaimed;

"Thank God! Yesterday they killed my dear brother; I have killed a Lieutenant General, and I am avenged!"

Without discharging the piece, Simonson arose, remounted and joined the staff. Silently he repaired to his regular duties, and the line being formed, we advanced slowly against the mountain, every one of us feeling that we would have rejoiced had some other than Louisana's fighting bishop gone before Simonson's first and only shot. The enemy were so demoralized that he avacuated the mountain, and half an hour afterwards we stood upon the spot where Polk fell and saw the ground stained with his blood. A day or two after, poor Simonson, the only one of us who rejoiced at the bishop's death, fell, shot on the skirmish line in Acworth woods.

Then was the Confederacy avenged. It is possible that Gen. Sherman had been to front that morning, and seeing the group referred to, ordered Howard to disperse it; but certain it is that he nowhere near Howard when Simonson's shot felt for the heart of Leonidas Polk, the fighting bishop.

NEW YORK, May 17th. 1875. J. D.

What is a "Rattler"?

We have often wondered what was meant by the word, and now the Willard Nash, of the Pharos, enlightens us.

A friend wants to know the definition of "rattler." He bought a horse a few days ago, because the owner recommended him as a "rattler." The horse eats well, sleeps most of the time, and can trot a mile in thirteen minutes.

He bought a double-barreled gun, which was warranted to be a "rattler." The gun kicks so badly that our friend is ashamed to look a mule in the face. It is dangerous to persons only who have the temerity to stand behind it.

The next step was to buy a dog. He bought a "rattler." He lays in the shade and wakes up only at meal time. Book agents, peddlers and lightningrod men invade the premises without fear, and even sewing machine venders do not disturb his slumbers.

Our friend was invited to attend church last Sunday. He was informed that the preacher was a "rattler." He went. The pulpit orator devoted the time to a discussion of the question of cremation. He took the ground that it was all wrong. Told his congregation that they need not worry about the matter, however, as a large majority of them would get scorched by and by without any change in the mode of burial; and that the minority were not borne to be burned up. Our friend listened with marked attention, and bought a lot in Mount Hope cemetry next day, but he is still unable to determine what the word "rattler" means.

HON. O. S. WILLETT, of Noble County is rusticating in Europe.

IT is a little suggestive to hear a man inquiring for a wig in less than ninety days after his marriage.

THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL.

[The following spirited poem, by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, is taken from the Bunker Hill Memorial, published by Osgood & Co., of Boston. It was read as a part of the exercises attendant upon the centennial anniversary of the battle, at Boston, June 17:]

GRANDMOTHER'S STORY OF BUNKER HILL BATTLE:

AS SHE SAW IT FROM THE BELFRY.

'Tis like stirring living embers, when, at eighty, one remembers
All the achings and the quakings of "the times that tried men's souls;"
When I talk of Whig and Tory, when I tell the Rebel story,
To you the words are ashes, but to me they're burning coals.

I had heard the muskets' rattle of the April running battle;
Lord Percy's hunted soldiers, I can see their red coats still;
But a deadly chill comes o'er me, as the day looms up before me,
When a thousand men lay bleeding on the slopes of Bunker Hill.

'Twas a peaceful Summer's morning, when the first thing gave us warning
Was the booming of the cannon from the river and the shore:
"Child," says grandma, "what's the matter, what is all this noise and clatter?
Have those scalping Indian devils come to murder us once more?"

Poor old soul! my sides were shaking in the midst of all my quaking,
To hear her talk of Indians when the guns began to roar:
She had seen the burning village, and the slaughter and the pillage,
When the Mohawks killed her father with their bullets through his door.

Then I said, "Now, dear old granny, don't you fret and worry any,
For I'll soon come back and tell you whether this is work or play;
There can't be mischief in it, so I won't be gone a minute"—
For a minute then I started. I was gone the livelong day.

No time for bodice-lacing or for looking-glass grimacing;
Down my hair went as I hurried, tumbling half-way to my heels;
God forbid your ever knowing, when there's blood around her flowing,
How the lonely, helpless daughter of a quiet household feels!

In the street I heard a thumping; and I knew it was the stumping
Of the Corporal, our old neighbor, on that wooden leg he wore,
With a knot of women round him—it was lucky I had found him,
So I followed with the others, and the Corporal marched before.

They were making for the steeple,—the old soldier and his people;
The pigeons circled round us as we climbed the creaking stair.
Just across the narrow river—oh, so close it made me shiver!
Stood a fortress on the hill-top that but yesterday was bare.

Not slow our eyes to find it; well we knew who stood behind it,
Though the earth-work hid them from us, and the stubborn walls were dumb:
Here were sister, wife, and mother, looking wild upon each other,
And their lips were white with terror, as they said THE HOUR HAS COME!

The morning slowly wasted, not a morsel had we tasted,
And our heads were almost splitting with the cannons' deafening thrill,
When a figure tall and stately round the rampart strode sedately;
It was PRESCOTT, one since told me; he commanded on the hill.

Every woman's heart grew bigger when we saw his manly figure,
With the banyan buckled round it, standing up so straight and tall;
Like a gentleman of leisure who is strolling out for pleasure,
Through the storm of shells and cannon-shot he walked around the wall.

At eleven the streets were swarming, for the red-coats' ranks were forming;
At noon in marching order they were moving to the piers;
How the bayonets gleamed and glistened, as we looked far down and listened
To the trampling and the drum beat of the belted grenadiers.

At length the men have started, with a cheer (it seemed faint-hearted),
In their scarlet regimentals, their knapsacks on their backs,
And the reddening, rippling water, as after a sea-fight's slaughter,
Round the barges gliding onward blushed like blood along their tracks.

So they crossed to the other border, and again they formed in order;
And the boats came back for soldiers, came for soldiers, soldiers still;
The time seemed everlasting to us women faint and fasting—
At last they're moving, marching, marching proudly up the hill.

We can see the bright steel glancing all along the lines advancing—
Now the front rank fires a volley—they have thrown away their shot;
For behind their earthwork lying, all the balls above them flying,
Our people need not hurry; so they wait and answer not.

Then the Corporal, our old cripple (he would swear sometimes and tipple)—
He had heard the bullets whistle (in the old French war) before—
Calls out in words of jeering, just as if they all were hearing—
And his wooden leg thumps fiercely on the dusty belfry floor.

"Oh! fire away, ye villains, and earn King George's shillin's,
But ye'll waste a ton of powder before a 'rebel' falls;
You may bang the dirt and welcome, they're as safe as Dan'l Malcolm
Ten foot beneath the gravest ne that you've splintered with your balls!"

In the hush of expectation, in the awe and trepidation
Of the dread approaching moment, we are well nigh breathless all;
Though the rotten bars are failing on the rickety belfry railing,
We are crowding up against them like the waves against a wall.

Just a glimpse (the air is clearer), they are nearer—nearer—nearer,
When a flash—a curling smoke-wreath—then a crash—the steeple shakes—
The deadly truce is ended; the tempest's shroud is rended;
Like a morning mist it gathered, like a thunder-cloud it breaks!

Oh the sight our eyes discover as the blue-black smoke blows over!
The red-coats stretched in windrows as a mower rakes his hay;
Here a scarlet heap is lying, there a headlong crowd is flying
Like a billow that has broken and is shivered into spray.

Then we cried, "The troops are routed! They are beat—it can't be doubted!
God be thanked, the fight is over!"—Ah! the grim old soldiers smile!
"Tell us, tell us why you look so?" (we could hardly speak, we shook so)
"Are they beaten? Are they beaten? Are they beaten?"—"Wait awhile."

Oh the trembling and the terror! for too soon we saw our error;
They are baffled, not defeated; we have driven them back in vain;
And the columns that were scattered, round the colors that were tattered,
Toward the sullen silent fortress turn their belted breasts again.

All at once, as we are gazing, lo the roofs of Charlestown blazing!
They have fired the harmless village; in an hour it will be down!
The Lord in heaven confound them, rain his fire and brimstone round them—
The robbing, murdering red-coats, that would burn a peaceful town!

They are marching, stern and solemn we can see each massive column
As they near the naked earth-mound with the slanting walls so steep.
Have our soldiers got faint-hearted, and in noiseless haste departed?
Are they panic-struck and helpless? Are they palsied or asleep?

Now! the walls they're almost under! scarce a rod the foes asunder!
Not a firelock flashed against them! up the earthwork they will swarm!
But the words have scarce been spoken, when the ominous calm is broken,
And a bellowing crash has emptied all the vengeance of the storm!

So again, with murderous slaughter, pelted backward to the water,
Fly Pigot's running heroes and the frightened braves of Howe;
And we shout, "At last they're done for, it's their barges they have run for;
They are beaten, beaten, beaten; and the battle's over now!"

And we looked, poor timid creatures, on the rough old soldier's features,
Our lips afraid to question, but he knew what we would ask;
"Not sure," he said; "keep quiet—once more, I guess, they'll try it—
Here's damnation to the cut-throats!" then he handed me his flask, Saying "Gal, you're looking shaky; have a drop of old Jamaiky;

I'm afeard there'll be more trouble afore the job is done;
So I took one scorching swallow; dreadful faint I felt and hollow,
Standing there from early morning when the firing was begun.

All through those hours of trial I had watched a calm clock dial,
As the hands kept creeping, creeping—they were creeping round to four,
When the old man said, "They're forming with their bagonets fixed for storming;
It's the death-grip that's a-coming—they will try the works once more."

With brazen trumpets blaring, the flames behind them glaring,
The deadly wall before them, in close array they come;
Still onward, upward toiling, like a dragon's fold uncoiling—
Like the rattlesnake's shrill warning the reverberating drum!

Over heaps all torn and gory—shall I tell the fearful story,
How they surged above the breastwork, as a sea breaks over a deck;
How driven, yet scarce defeated, our worn-out men retreated,
With their powder-horns all emptied, like the swimmers from a wreck!

It has all been told and painted; as for me, they say I fainted,
And the wooden-legged old Corporal stumped with me down the stair,
And when I woke from dreams affrighted the evening lamps were lighted—
On the floor a youth was lying; his bleeding breast was bare.

And I heard through all the flurry, "Send for Warren! hurry! hurry!
Tell him here's a soldier bleeding, and he'll come and dress his wound!"
Ah, we knew not till the morrow told its tale of death and sorrow,
How the starlight found him stiffened on the dark and bloody ground.

Who the youth was, what his name was, where the place from which he came was,
Who had brought him from the battle, and had left him at our door,
He could not speak to tell us; but 'twas one of our brave fellows,
As the homespun plainly showed us which the dying soldier wore.

For they all thought he was dying, as they gathered round him crying—
And they said, "Oh how they'll miss him!" and, "What will his mother do?"
Then, his eyelids just unclosing like a child's that has been dozing,
He faintly murmured, "Mother!"—and—I saw his eyes were blue.

"Why, grandma, how you're winking!—Ah, my child, it sets me thinking
Of a story not like this one. Well, he somehow lived along;
So we came to know each other, and I nursed him like a mother,
Till at last he stood before me, tall and rosy-cheeked and strong.

And we sometimes walked together in the pleasant summer weather;
"Please to tell us what his name was?"—Just your own, my little dear—
There's his picture Copley painted; we became so well acquainted,
That—in short, that's why I'm grandma, and you children all are here!

BETTY'S FORTUNE.

"Gracious goodness! a telegram for pa," cried Betty Bunting, from behind the counter of the little stationer's shop.

"Pa, a telegram for you! Pa, do hurry!" screamed Mrs. Bunting from the back parlor, where she was setting the tea-table. "A telegram!"

"Pa!" cried Betty again. "Pa, where are you?"

"Here," cried a voice from some mysterious regions below a trap-door in the end of the shop.

And from the aperture a head and shoulders emerged.

"Five black inks is broke," continued the voice, "and it's all over the assorted initial note. Couldn't come before. Well, now?"

"A telegram!" screamed Mrs. Bunting.

"Please to sign, sir," cried the messenger, presenting his book.

Mr. Bunting, having signed the book, walked into the back room to get his spectacles.

The ink had spotted his nose and daubed his fingers, and his countenance was woe-begone.

"Miss Betty looked after him and sighed.

"What has happened to poor pa now?" she said to herself. It's not anything good, of course."

"Betty!" screamed her mother at that instant.

"It's something dreadful," said Betty; and she walked into the back room slowly, preparing herself for something very unpleasant.

"Look at that, Betty," screamed her mother. "Just read that. I never did. Before I was married a fortune-teller told me I should ride in my coach, but I never thought it would come true. Read that, Betty."

And Betty, seizing the open communication, read as follows:

"Mr. Yorrick Bunting, stationer, —— street, New York: Come to Bloomsbury immediately. Your uncle, Yorrick Bunting, is dead. You are his sole heir. Fish & Schotcher, Bloomsbury."

"How much was he worth, pa?" asked Betty.

"Half a million," said Mr. Bunting, n a queer voice. "What I am a-thinking, my dear, is this: if it is true, them there five blacks and that there dozen of assorted note ain't of no consequence."

"The whole shop ain't of no consequence," said Mrs. Bunting. "Drat the shop! Betty, I suppose you'll have to go and mind it. There's some one knocking dreadfully."

Betty Bunting went into the shop, while her bustling mother hustled and fidgeted her slow-going husband away on his journey.

Her mind having taken in the idea of the great change in her circumstances, she was already trimming an imaginary velvet polonaise with real lace, when a voice awoke her from her reverie with a—

"Betty, what are you thinking of?"

"Oh, dear, how you startled me, Tom!" said Betty. "I'm making a goose of myself, I suppose. Pa is the unluckiest creature in the world. It can't be that he is worth money at last; but come in to tea, and we'll tell you about it."

So Tom, who was a journeyman carpenter, and who had been engaged to Betty for some time, went into the back room, and there, over tea and toast, decided that there could be no mistake in the matter.

There was no mistake.

The poor little stationer was no longer to be bothered by apprehensions of being unable to make both ends meet.

Miss Bunting could have as many velvet suits as she chose; Mrs. Bunting could ride in her carriage.

The young carpenter hardly knew whether to rejoice or grieve.

"You'll quite look down on me now, Betty," he said, when all was settled, the fine residence purchased, and the velvet polonaise actually finished and on.

Betty vowed to remain true forever, and only stipulated that "in company" he should call her Elizabetha.

"I don't mind when we are by ourselves," she explained, "but Betty is so common."

Half a million will admit any one into society.

Elizabetha was apt, and ready to adapt herself to the circle in which she soon found herself.

She dressed more than any one else, and, as she was rather pretty, she "took" amazingly.

She was still very loving to Tom, but she intimated to him that Wednesday nights were the only ones she could devote to him exclusively, on account of her engagements.

So the winter passed and summer came.

Fashion was flitting to the country, and the Buntings, once only too happy if they could enjoy a few "excursions" during the season, must flit with her.

Mrs. Bunting commanded Mr. Bunting to engage rooms at the most fashionable hotel, and Mr. Bunting, having endeavored to discover which was the most fashionable, obeyed her behest.

Why they should leave home and go to a hotel he could not imagine.

If they wanted the country, there was old Cousin Pepper.

But Mrs. Bunting would not hear of it, despite the letter from that worthy cousin, in which occurred these lines:

"I have kept the back bedroom and the front attic for you as usual. We are all anxious to congratulate you."

A dreadful life poor Mr. Bunting felt it to be at the hotel.

It was bad enough to be waited on by so many servants at once, but these tall waiters in black oppressed his soul.

At times he felt that there was danger of making a mistake, falling into familiar conversation with a waiter, and ordering a gentleman of position, perhaps a nobleman, to bring him a glass of water, there was so very little difference in the costume.

He had been happier in the stationer's shop, with crosses and losses, and bad bills and anxieties, many a time and oft.

"What a distinguished looking man," siad Miss Bunting to to a lady friend one morning.

"He should be," replied the other. "He is most aristocratic. His favorite servant is with him, and he has told our maid all about the way they live at hom.. It is regal. He has been introduced to Mrs. Spice, and she says he admires us very much—you know we are always together—and pines for an introduction."

Evidently he did not pine in vain; that afternoon the introduction was made.

Sam stood at a respectful distance, by order of his master, who had said:

"Don't go, Sam. I may need something."

The girls were in raptures.

Such elegance they had never seen; such splendor they had never heard of—never in all their lives.

Anecdote after anecdote confirmed their idea of his wealth.

Diamonds were spoken of.

"That reminds me," said Mr. Peyton, "of a little scene at home. Mamma is rather particular about her diamonds; quite a judge. Buys them unset, and has them set to suit her taste. She wanted to have some last Christmas. They were for a necklace for Emma. Well, the dear old lady sent for one of those jeweler fellows to show her some. He came, and he went into mamma's boudoir to show her them. Ha! ha! I laugh when I think of it. Ten minutes after, we heard a quite dreadful noise. Out rushed the jeweler fellow; behind him sailed mamma, quite excited, her little white hand glittering with jewels tight clinched, her eyes flashing.

"'Put him out!'" she cried, 'put him out! He has had the impertinence to show me a diamond with a flaw!'"

They spoke of dinners.

Mr. Peyton mentioned the banquets they gave at home.

They spoke of quarrels.

Mr. Peyton mentioned that he had fought duels.

Ah, it was all so elegant, so fine, so charming.

Poor Betty Bunting had never seen anything so aristocratic before; and when this wonderful gentleman devoted himself to her, when he asked permission to "speak to her father," her vanity quite overcame her.

She forgot her vows to poor Tom, and having accepted Mr. Peyton without regard to them, wrote to the young carpenter a dreadful little letter, in which she assured him that she was too young to know her own heart when she engaged herself to him, and sent him back his ring.

All Tom wrote back in answer was this:

"It is no surprise to me to hear what you tell me. Some people cannot bear prosperity; and indeed, if you had been willing to hold to your engagement, we never could have led a happy life. I've known that a long time now. TOM."

Betty tore this letter into bits, and was glad to be rid of him so easily.

So she was engaged to Mr. Peyton and they were to be married almost at once.

Mr. Bunting had agreed to settle a large sum of money on his daughter.

He had been told it was always done in high life, and he had no doubt of it.

He had also been told that Tom and Betty had fallen out, and he knew that this was no uncommon thing.

Mrs. Bunting understood the whole affair thoroughly, and approved her daughter's course; but Bunting had loved honest Tom, and mourned for him and said to his wife that Tom was a fine fellow, and worth ten of that Mr. Peyton, with all his money.

In this mood the trio went back to the city residence, and the grand wedding preparations began.

The wedding reception was to be an immense one, and the ceremony was to be performed in the finest church in the city, with the assistance of an extra clergyman, one being quite inadequate to the performance of such weighty duties.

It was the eve of the wedding-day.

Mr. Peyton was dining with his mother-in-law to be; Sam was relating his marvelous stories of the Peyton wealth in the kitchen, when suddenly the door-bell rang.

The boy who opened it was heard to give a cry.

Then came a woman's scream.

"What has happened?" cried Mrs. Bunting.

The bridegroom-elect turned pale.

At this instant the door opened, and in marched a man of severe and acute countenance, followed by four policemen.

He cast a glance around the table, and pointed to Mr. Peyton.

"That's the man," he said. "Arrest him."

The policemen seized the gentleman's arm.

Another passed his hand under his coat, and drew forth a pistol.

They evidently knew his habits, and were prepared for them.

Mr. Bunting, in terrible excitement—his wife in hysterics on one side, his daughter fainting on the other, endeavored to interfere—endeavored to assure the policemen that they had made some mistake.

Then remembering Mr. Peyton's stories, he faintly ejaculated:

"Perhaps it's a duel. That there duel you fought with the Colonel, you known, Mr. Peyton?"

To which the gallant gentleman made no answer, as he was led away by the police.

The man who had accompanied them remained behind.

He addressed Mr. Bunting respectfully.

"Sir," he said, "we regret to have given you pain and inconvenience, but we have saved you from the machinations of the greatest rascal on earth."

"This man whom we have just arrested is no other than Peter Smith, alias Slippery Ned, who has committed every crime under the sun, and has just escaped from prison.

"The man who passed for a family servant is a fellow who escaped with him and a companion in his last burglary, on the proceeds of which the two have been playing their little game for the purpose of entrapping an heiress."

"We have saved your daughter from an awful fate, sir, and she will suffer less than she must have done had this rascal accomplished his purpose. Of course, I need not tell you that we have secured the servant also."

With this explanation the detective departed, and we have only to add that his story was perfectly true.

Poor Elizabetha Bunting never saw her splendid aristocrat again, and though she wrote a penitent letter to Tom, and signed herself "his repentant Betty," she never saw Tom again, either.

He had loved her dearly, but all his love for her was gone.

Real love seldom survives esteem, whatever a blind and silly passion may do.

He wrote to her to this effect, though mildly and kindly, and he signed himself "Your well-wisher, Thomas Trueman."

The California Wood-Rat.

Mr. A. W. Chase, of the United States Coast Survey, gives the following account: "I am partial owner of some property on the Oregon coast, on which a saw-mill had been placed; but which, owing to various causes, has never been in operation. On this property was a dwelling-house for the hands, on which, on work being discontinued, were stored a quantity of stuff, tools, packing for the engine, six or seven kegs of large spikes; in the closets, knives, forks, spoons, etc. A large cooking stove was left in the rooms. This house was left uninhabited for two years, and, being at some distance from the little settlement, it was frequently broken into by tramps who sought shelter for the night. When I entered this house, I was astonished to see the immense rat's nest on the stove. On examining this nest, which was about five feet in heighth, and occupied the whole top of the stove (a large range), I found the outside was composed entirely of spikes, all laid with symmetry, so as to present the points of the nails outward. In the center of this mass was the nest, composed of finely divided fibres of hemp-packing. Interlaced with the spikes we found the following. About three dozen knives, forks, and spoons, all the butcher-knives, three in number, a large carving knife and steel, several large plugs of tobacco; the outside casing of a silver watch was disposed of in one part of the pile, the glass of the same watch in another, and the works in still another; an old purse containing some silver, matches and tobacco; nearly all the small tools from the tool closets, among them several large augurs. The ingenuity and skill displayed in the construction of this nest, and the curious taste for articles of iron, many of them heavy, struck me with surprise."

Utilization of Peat.

Should success attend the systematic efforts now being made in this country and Europe for the more thorough utilization of peat, its industrial and economical importance will, it is expected, be only second to that of coal. Independent of its simple and prodigious capabilities as fuel, the various products of peat and their uses comprise sulphate of ammonia, a substance employed in the preparation of ammonia, of caustic ammonia, and in the manufacture of various fertilizing composts; acetate of lime, which is in constant demand as a source of acetic acid, and of various acetates largely consumed by calico printers; pyroxylic or wood alcohol, used in vapor lamps, and affording a remarkably brilliant light; naphtha, used for making varnishes, for dissolving caoutchouc, and for various other purposes; heavy and more fixed oils, applicable for lubricating machinery, especially when in suitable combination with other unctious substances; also, paraffine, the uses and value of which are too well understood to require explanation here. These are some of the substances, though not all, the profitable production of which, by improved modes and processes, is now being sought.

MRS. MARY SWEENEY, of Jackson, Mich., beat a man in the race for poundmaster. The possibility for puns about this is simply unlimited.

Influence of Imagination.

We have before spoken in our columns of the power of the imagination in the simulation of disease, but it is a curious subject and one daily receiving exemplification. The instance of a soldier in the French service, condemned to die, and who was handed over to the surgeons as a living subject, is recalled to us at this moment. The man who was enjoying perfect health was placed in a hospital, and told that all the patients about him were suffering with small pox. This was not true. There was no such disease in the institution, and yet it is a well-authenticated fact that the condemned soldier was soon taken violently sick and actually displayed all the symptoms of the supposed disease. He was removed from the hospital undeceived, got well immediately, and was consigned to prison to suffer the punishment awarded to him by the court.

A similar illustration, much nearer home, has lately occurred in Indianapolis. A young man in that city went into a drug store, with a dolorous countenance, and with a deep sigh asked for fifty cents' worth of strychnine. The druggist observed his mood, and quietly seemed to fill his order in good faith, but in reality gave him a harmless potion, which the young fellow swallowed with a theatrical flourish, exclaiming as he did so, that his affections had been blighted, and he "had taken the poison to get even." He would not live to be so used. Life was a blank, and so on. The druggist told him there were not fifteen minutes' life in him, and that he was already beginning to fade about the eyes! At this information the youth sank to the floor, and the perspiration streamed from his forehead. He was becoming very sick, bodily and mentally, and actually appeared to be dying.

At this juncture, the medicine man himself became alarmed at the effect of the dose, and examined the jar from which he had taken the potion. It was sugar of milk, sure enough, perfectly harmless, and yet it was producing spasms! What was to be done? As a last resort the disconsolate youth was informed that he had taken no poison, but in place of it a harmless dose, a bushel of which would not kill. This information put a stop to the dying business on short meter. The patient revived instantly, got up and walked out of the store with a good round oath, declaring that he would yet be even with the world at large and somebody in particular. A physician present said that unless he had been undeceived the youth would have died in a quarter of an hour!—New York Weekly.

Opening Car Windows.

You are sitting in the first stages of a cold, or your wife at your side has a little fever, and the car is warm and undeniably close. Suddenly some person of either sex remarks audibly, what everybody perceives and deplores, that the air is close. He or she adds that such an atmosphere is unwholesome, that it is positively poisonous, that the car is a Black Hole, and that we are all suffocating; and thereupon, the train flying at the rate of thirty miles an hour, on a bitter night or day, up goes the window, and the blast drives full upon you and madame, heated and ill, and there is no escape for you, all the seats being full, but to go forward and stand. The good man or woman holds the ground, insists that the oxygen is exhausted, that we are all breathing carbonic acid gas, and all the books agree that apoplexy, paralysis, softening of the brain, with a vast train of occult maladies, begin under just such conditions.

"And so, madame, to spare yourself the chance of some remote disease you expose my wife to immediate pleurisy and pneumonia."

"Sir, you know nothing of the hygienic laws."

"Madame, you know nothing of common sense."

It is true that fresh air is desirable but will not these peripatetic philosophers learn that icy blasts or sudden chills may be fatal? When one of the apostles of fresh air opened a car window under these circumstances, a gray-beard sitting behind instantly arose and closed it again emphatically. And when the astounded lady, looking at him severely, said, in a tone of exceeding wrath, "Sir!" he answered blandly, "my dear madame, a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." She looked scornful, but not in the least as if she understood its meaning. "I mean only," he said, "that the one illness which you are sure to give me may be more fatal than the two and twenty which you think to prevent by opening the window. Madame," he added solemnly, "I have been there before." But she turned her back; and, as she said afterward, if there was less fresh air, there were fewer colds.—Harper's Easy Chair.

Phil. Sheridan as a Society Man.

He possesses Hibernian politeness and hospitality, is very far from being dull, slow or unpleasing in conversation, notices all those little attentions to a lady's comfort which more youthful gallants frequently neglect, and is quite au fait in all society matters. He has often to repress an oath which rises to his lips as naturally as a compliment, and occasionally there is an amusing struggle between the two for supremacy. A lady who had some business of importance called one morning to see him, and as he had not yet come down stairs, seated herself in the parlor to await him. Presently he came running down, and almost flying into the room, shot past the lady, who was naturally astonished at his remarkable entree. "God bless my soul, madam," ejaculated the astonished bachelor, as he recovered himself. "I came near jumping over you." Then in his politest and most suave manner, "I beg you will excuse me. I had not the remotest idea there was a lady in the house, or I should not have entered the room in that manner. That d——d black scoundrel of mine never announced you."—Chicago Letter.

THEY had a good deal of trouble with an elephant in Rhode Island, recently. It appears that they were feeding one end of him in Massachusetts and the other end got into a farm yard in Connecticut. The neighbors came out and attacked the Connecticut part with pitchforks, and the Massachusetts end got mad. There was a good deal of excitement for a time, and a majority of the inhabitants stepped over into the adjoining States till it was over.—Norwich Bulletin.

A VISION OF OLD BOOTS.

Here in my chamber I'm sitting repining
Over the days that are long passed away,
When life was a circuit of dining and whining
The world for my oyster, mankind for my prey.
Time has not spared the thin shoes I am wearing,
Split is the upper and punctured the sole.
Still, let me pause from this useless despairing—
Seek 'mid these old ones a pair that is whole.

This is the pair I wore when I went courting
The fairest of girls and the faithfulest, too;
Well I remember how I came disporting
My clothes and my graces at once to her view.
She loved me, poor simpleton!—sought my caresses,
Was willing from country and kindred to fly!
Happy for her that a Godhead which blesses
Fixed early the hour she was fated to die.

Wellingtons, mind you the days when a rambler
Used you to walk into many a hell;
The time that he practiced the trade of a gambler,
Loading the dice and his pockets as well?
Bluchers, you speak of a different story—
That day I went down to the village of old,
And saw my poor dad broken-hearted and hoary
Peacefully laid in the welcoming mould!

Pumps that I danced on and merrily pranced on,
Cannot be very much good to me now—
Now that a run of ill-luck I have chanced on,
So that to live I can scarcely see how.
False is the adage, "There's nothing like leather"—
False as the notions I had of myself.
Fortune and boots are both broken together,
And both should be certainly laid on the shelf.

Pith and Point.

ON the wing—Feathers.

SPELL-BOUND—B-o-u-n-d.

THE present day—Your birthday.

SINGLE skulls—Unmarried boatmen.

AN Irish doctor lately sent in his bill to a lady as follows: "To curing your husband till he died."

WHEN the New Albany Ledger spoke of the Bishop of Punster, it probably meant the Bishop of Munster.

LOAFERS around saloons appear as if they own the whole establishment, while they only have a lean on the bar.

QUILP says he'd rather find his "sermon in stones" than pay $7,500 for a church pew, as they do in New York.

A WAG lent a clergyman a horse that ran away and threw him, and then claimed credit for spreading the gospel.

THE chaplain of a State prison was asked by a friend how his parishioners were. "All under conviction," was the reply.

A LOUISVILLE heathen Chinee has just been married to a damsel of the African persuasion—the first case of the kind on record.

A WAG of a gourmand, who had made himself ill by feasting on fish, said he embodied the trio of the fiery furnace, thus—shadrack, me-sick, and abed-we-go.

WHILE waiting at a railroad station, one ministerial brother asked another what his carpet-bag contained. The answer was, referring to seven written sermons, "Dried tongue."

A COUNTRY editor cannot be as bold and independent in his paper as his city brother. He has to collect his own subscription, and almost everybody in the country keeps a dog.—Danbury News.

WHEN a clown in a circus gets $125 per week for giving out solid jokes, it is no wonder that a country minister on $500 per annum, part potatoes, oats, hay, and shoulder-hams at that, should get discouraged.

"Mule spinners make as high as $100 per month."—Exchange. Thanks. We'd rather not. We've tried it. We tickled the heels of a mule once and we spun higher than $100 a month. We spun at the rate of a mile a minute.

A LADY had a Sunday school class in one of the churches. Two brothers attended it alternately. One Sunday the lady asked one of the boys if he would be there on the following Sunday. "Oh, no!" said he, "I can't; it's my turn to saw wood."

A GENTLEMAN who thinks it high time that the little "Johnny" poetry should give place to something neater and more fully charged with sentiment, sends the following as largely combining both:

"Oh, bury Bartholomew out in the woods,
In a beautiful hole in the ground,
Where bumble-bees buzz and the woodpeckers sing
And the straddle-bugs tumble around;
So that in winter, when the snow and the slush
Has covered his little bed,
His brother Artemus can go out with Jane
And visit the place with his sled.

Our Female Employes.

That many women should be obliged to earn their living at the expense of health is one of the unfortunate facts of our incomplete civilization. That this fact will exist until the majority of social problems are solved seems more probable than most hypotheses. But there are conditions enforced upon some forms of female labor which are not only unnecessary, but absolutely criminal. Prominent among such is the practice of compelling shop-girls to stand behind counters from seven or eight o'clock in the morning to six, eight or ten o'clock at night. There is not a physician in the land who will not tell any employer of female help that, as a rule, women, by anatomical structure, are unfit to stand all day long, particularly in this country, where nerves and false living have made them infinitely more delicate than Nature ever intended. There are establishments wherein may be found printed regulations commanding employes "always to stand, to dress neatly and to be absent only half an hour at dinner." It may be, as Milton says, that "they also serve who only stand and wait," but why must shop-girls "always stand" while serving mammon? That they should be "dressed neatly" is proper; that they should be absent "only half an hour at dinner" is thoroughly American and highly improper as conducive to dyspepsia and its attendant ills; that they should "always stand" is brutal.

Americans, shopkeeping or otherwise, are not in the habit of possessing stomachs; are they also without bowels of compassion? Is there something in the nature of a high stool inimical to trade? Has total depravity marked it for its own? Is a sitting position, which women take as instinctively as ducks take to water, offensive in the sight of gods and men? What is the meaning of rules that set physiological rules at defiance and slowly dig the graves of countless pale-faced girls? As there is a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, there should be a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Female Laborers. Will no chivalrous Bergh arise to fight the battles of the weak? Or has chivalry so faded into the baseless fabric of a dream that the might of capital will crush out the rights of humanity as persistently in the future as it did in the past?—New York Tribune.

Elephants at Sea.

The hoisting into the air, and lowering of elephants into the hold of a ship, is not only an unusual sight to most men, but also a strange experience to most elephants. They were lashed with strong ropes, slung as far as practicable in slings, hoisted up with cranes with threefold tackles, and lowered into the steamer's hold like bales of cotton. When in the hold, they were placed in pens built of strong teak-timbered baulks, bolted to the ship's side to prevent them from breaking loose. The fear the animals suffered was the only pain they underwent; and by watching the eyes of the poor beasts their terror was very manifest. Tears trickled down their mild countenances, and they roared with dread, more especially when being lowered into the hold, the bottom of which was sanded for them to stand upon. We are told that one timid female elephant actually fainted, and was brought to with a fan and many gallons of water. At sea it appears that the animals got into a curious habit of occasionally—evidently with a preconcerted signal—setting to work rocking the ship from side to side, by giving themselves, simultaneously, a swinging motion as they stood athwart the ship, the vessel rolling heavily as if in a seaway. This they would do for a spell of an hour or more, and then desist for several hours until the strange freak took them again. When they reached port they were hoisted out of the hold and swam on shore, thirty-five being thus safely landed without any accident whatever. When they were released from the slings it was a supreme moment for the mahout who was always on the elephant's neck from the time of its touching the water to letting go. As the word was given to let go, each of the elephants, either from the lightness of his heart at being freed from his floating prison, or from his own weight, we are not sure which—lightness of heart, like lightness of head, causes elephants to play pranks—plunged down deep into the water, the mahout on his neck. The anxiety on the face of the mahout, just one second before the plunge, was a study; so, too, was it when elephant and man rose to the surface again, the former blowing water from his trunk and the latter from his nose.—Calcutta Englishman.

The Laws of Crowds.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican thinks experience has furnished material enough from which just a few of the laws that govern human beings under panic may be formalized. Its axioms are worthy of consideration in every locality where crowds are liable to congregate:

1. It don't take a big crowd to choke a narrow passage. A hundred people will do it as well as a thousand.

2. When people are piled en masse in a passage and the building is afire, there will be more corpses taken out of the pile than living beings. Human beings die quick under those circumstances.

3. It doesn't take a big crowd to block a door that opens inward so snug that there is no more passage than there is through a brick wall. The strength of frenzied men and women avails anything against a door.

4. It is the exits which are in constant use by the whole body of the public which are of use at such times. No others are of use at such times. No others are of practically much consequence. Back passages and private entrances might almost as well not be. The frantic do not know of them and cannot be taught them in this world.

5. The barrenest and safest places may be converted into tinder-boxes by very trivial circumstances. Churches which are safe enough commonly may be decorated murderously. Even our barren City Hall was converted, not long ago, into a wilderness of painted canvass and flaring lights, a miniature city, among which circulated many hundreds of people. It was a death-trap. A hall or a church which may be safe with a stove may become a death-trap by the introduction of a furnace under the stairways.

6. "Presence of mind" may as well be counted out as a saving element. We can make over our churches, we can't make over men and women; it is pretty evident by this time that we can't make men and women to fit the churches and be sure of their surviving the process.

Eat the Grasshopper.

The State Entomologist of Missouri has just published a report on "Noxious Insects," in which he gives a more elaborate account of the grasshopper, its habits, habitats, etc., than has been attempted elsewhere. The report contains a large amount of valuable information on the subject, and finally concludes with the startling inquiry, why should not the 'hoppers be made use of as food? This is not suggested as a means of destroying them, but rather of utilizing an evil which cannot be otherwise disposed of. The report says:

"Our own Snake and Digger Indians industriously collect them and store them for future use. Deprived of wings and legs, they are esteemed a great delicacy, fried in oil, or they are formed into cakes and dried in the sun—sometimes pounded into flour, with which a kind of bread is made. * * * Why should the people of the West, when rendered destitute and foodless by these insects, not make the best of the circumstances, and guard against famine, by collecting, roasting and grinding them to flour? Surely, with modern cookery, they can improve on the Digger Indians, in making a locust dish that shall be attractive and palatable even to those not predisposed, from sharpened appetites, to judge favorably; and in any event it would pay, under such circumstance, to roast and preserve them as food for poultry and hogs."

Doubtless this suggestion will strike most readers at first as very disgusting, and yet there is nothing so very horrible in it. The matter of diet is largely one of education and habit. An oyster or a clam is not any more appetizing in appearance than a grasshopper, and it probably required as much nerve for the first man to swallow one of the former as it would to bolt the latter. Snails are not a popular article of diet in this country, but they are highly prized and eagerly captured in portions of Europe. The delicate little crustaceans called shrimps are quite as repulsive looking as the grasshoppers, but hardly anybody needs to be told how edible they are. In some parts of this country crow is considered an abomination; in others these birds are eaten as freely as domestic fowls, which latter, by the way, feed on some things that a cleanly grasshopper would not touch. We trust the question of the edibility of this interesting little brute will be settled before he makes a general descent on this State, so that by the time he comes our people may be prepared to serve him up hot and cold, in soups, pot-pies, patties and hash.—Indianapolis Journal.

Ceylon Coffee Plantations.

The coffee plantations are under the superintendence of Peria Doris and Sinne Doris, (managers and assistant managers,) who receive an annual salary of from 1,500 to 4,000 rupees ($750 to $2,000). In all cases a bungalow, more or less indifferently furnished, is provided. It is rare that a superintendent's salary exceeds the higher figure mentioned. Residents in Ceylon calculate that a rupee would go twice as far in England as it does in the East, and experience proves that this is a fair calculation. With this fact before us, how is it possible that these young coffee planters can put by anything for a "rainy day?" They never dream of saving out of their salaries, and the only way in which they occasionally accumulate a few thousand rupees is by fortunate speculations in coffee, or coffee plantations; speculations where much risk is run, but little hard cash is required, and once in a while a good thing is secured. In these cases the speculator takes his chance, sometimes making money, but more frequently losing it. But how about those who have nothing but their salaries to depend upon? Their case is a hard one. Most of the engagements are for three years' service—quite long enough in such an unhealthy climate. It is not an exaggeration to say that at the end of the period mentioned, in nine cases out of ten, the planter finds it impossible to return to Europe for a change, for the simple reason that he cannot afford the expense, and even if he could, he is unable to pay off the debts with which he has saddled himself. The proprietors of the coffee estates reside in England, perhaps paying a visit once in a year or two to the island, but many of them not coming to take the risk in the face of the reputation which the place has for fever, etc. Nearly all the superintendents are Scotchmen, and if any one can live economically it is the "canny Scot." It is a rare thing, however, to meet with one of these estate managers who is not insolvent. Provisions—that is to say the natural products of the country—are not expensive, but everything European is subject to a high rate of customs' duty, and consequently almost fabulous prices are asked for articles of European origin. Wines and spirits are about double the price in Ceylon as compared with their price in England. Butter is about forty-five cents per pound, bacon even higher, and cheese may be placed in the same category. Wearing apparel is nearly three times the price asked in England. The credit system in vogue at the hotels extends also to the stores, and it is not a matter of surprise that the European estate managers find themselves over head and ears in debt before they have been a couple of years in the island. Few of them have any private income, for if they had, they would not run the risk attached to living in an unhealthy climate. It is well known that a protracted residence in the East is a severe trial upon the constitution of Europeans. A return to England for a month or two every three years is considered as essential to health, and if a man cannot undertake the journey, but is compelled to remain at his post, the chances are that at thirty or thirty-five he is prematurely in his dotage.

New Mode of Ventilation.

The London Times recently gave a valuable account of a mode of ventilation adopted by Mr. Tobin, a retired merchant of Leeds, and which rests on the principal that a narrow stream of air can be sent up through lighter air, like the jet of a fountain through the ordinary atmosphere, by atmospheric pressure from outside, and that when it reaches the ceiling it will be reflected off in all directions, just as the water falls back in a number of infinitesimal rills, and so melt away very gradually into the less pure air of the room, before reaching the persons who need it. The modus operandi is to introduce vertical tubes, communicating with the outer air, in parts of a large room or public building where people are not likely to sit or stand, the tubes rising, say four or five feet, above the floor. Directly the air in the room begins to be rarified, the pressure of the air on the air outside sends streams of air up these tubes, which continue to rise in narrow streams, just like jets of water, and without dispersing till they reach the ceiling, where they are reflected back in spray, as it were, of pure air—spray which mixes very gradually indeed, and so as to avoid all draft with the rarified air of the room, and gradually expels all the bad air by way of the chimney. The system seems to have worked almost miraculously in the Leeds Borough Police Courts, and also in the Liverpool Police Court, whose Stipendiary Magistrate, Mr. Raffles, has borne the most grateful testimony to the results of the experiment, and Mr. Tobin is now engaged in introducing it into London.

Picking the Ears.

Picking the ears is a most mischievous practice; in attempting to do this with hard substances an unlucky motion has many a time pierced the drum and made it as useless as a pierced India rubber life preserver; nothing sharper or harder than the end of the little finger, with the nail pared, ought ever to be introduced into the ear, unless by a physician. Persons are often seen endeavoring to remove the "wax" of the ear with the head of a pin; this ought never to be done: first, because it not only endangers the rupture of the ear by being pushed too far in, but if not so far, it may grate against the drum, excite inflammation and finally an ulcer which will finally eat all the parts away, especially of a scrofulous constitution; second, hard substances have often slipped in, and caused the necessity of painful, dangerous and expensive operations to fish or cut out; third, the wax is manufactured by nature to guard the entrance from dust, insects, and unmodified cold air, and when it has subserved its purpose it becomes dry, scaly, light, and in this condition is easily pushed outside by new formations of wax within.

Against Needless Cruelty.

Cardinal Manning, in a recent letter, puts his foot down thus forcibly upon vivisection: "I cannot pretend to estimate the scientific utilities of vivisection; but I have no need of any such refinements to enable me to say that the infliction of physical pain without just cause is an abuse of the dominion that God has given to man over the lower creatures. It is lawful to take their life for the food of man; but it is not lawful, even for this just and necessary purpose, to take their life by needless pain. To inflict the exquisite and prolonged torments described by those who have been present at vivisection can, in my belief, be brought under no moral law, nor under any right possessed by man over any of his fellow-creatures."

GLAD TIDINGS FOR THE SLAVES OF KING ALCOHOL.—How many a manly form is palsied; how many a noble mind is destroyed; how many a priceless soul lost through the curse of strong drink! To the despairing victims of the Satanic tyrant, Alcohol, whose shattered nerves, and trembling limbs, and racking headaches, seem to find no relief except in the renewed use of the fatal poison which brings them every day nearer to their miserable end, we announce glad tidings of great joy! DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS contain not a single drop of alcohol in any form, but are a sovereign remedy for the ills of drunkenness. They restore tone and strength to the system, and entirely eradicate the pernicious appetite for liquor. Try a few bottles of VINEGAR BITTERS, and you will never crave strong spirits again, but find your health repaired, your mind restored, and be once more a man in the best sense. Health is cheap when VINEGAR BITTERS are $1 a bottle. 40

WILHOFT'S TONIC is not a panacea—is not a cure for everything, but is a catholicon for malarious diseases, and day by day adds fresh laurels to its crown of glorious success. Engorged Livers and Spleens, along the shady banks of our lakes and rivers, are restored to their healthy and normal secretions. Health and vigor follow its use, and Chills have taken their departure from every household where Wilhoft's Anti-Periodic is kept and taken. Don't fail to try it. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.—The Wilson shuttle sewing machine is to-day the simplest, most perfect, most easy operated, best made, most durable, and, in every way, most valuable sewing machine in existence, and it is sold fifteen dollars less than all other first-class machines. Machines will be delivered at any railroad station in this county, free of transportation charges, if ordered through the company's branch house at 197 State street, Chicago. They send an elegant catalogue and chromo circular free on application. This company want a few more good agents.

IF Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is half as valuable as people say it is, no family should be without it. Certainly no person, be he lawyer, doctor, minister, or of any other profession, should start on a journey without it. No sailor, fisherman, or woodsman should be without it. In fact, it is needed wherever there is an ache, sprain, cut, bruise, cough or cold.

FARMERS and "Horse Men" are continually inquiring what we know of the utility of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, and in reply, we would say, through the columns of this paper that we have heard from hundreds who have used them with gratifying results; that is also our experience.

GLEN FLORA SPRING WATER, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

HOW TO GET A HOME. See advertisement.

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT IT.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, ALLEGHENY CITY, Pa., November 10, 1874.

MESSRS. CRADDOCK & CO.:

The East India Hemp has been taken by Rev. Matthias Binder, O. S. B., and Rev. Sebastian Arnold, O. S. B., both assistant pastors of this Church, and so far has given relief to both. They suffered from affections of the LUNG AND BRONCHIAL ORGANS. We have recommended, through charity to sufferers, the Cannabis Indica to different persons, and continue the same in good conscience, knowing the effects by experience. Please find inclosed check for twelve bottles of syrup, pills and ointment. We shall inform you in due time what further success the medicine shall meet with.

Yours truly,
REV. FERDINAND WOLF, O. S. B.

N. B.—This Remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not dissipate—Night Sweats, Irritation of the Nerves, Difficult Expectorations, Sharp pains in the Lungs, Sore Throat, Nausea at the Stomach, Inaction of the Bowels, and Wasting of the Muscles.

$2.50 per bottles, or three bottles for $6.50. Pills and Ointment, $1.25 each.

Address CRADDOCK & CO.,
1032 Race Street, Philadelphia.

Send for circular.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES Did you ever see a child that did not have holes through the toes of its shoes? If you did they were protected by SILVER TIPS. They never wear through at the toe. Try them.

If you want to know what CABLE SCREW WIRE means, ask your Shoe Dealer, and if he can't tell you make up your mind he has some pegged work on hand that he wants to sell before he dare tell you. GABLE SCREW WIRE

$10 to $25 PER DAY—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G CO., Buchanan, Mich.

OPIUM HABIT Cured Cheap. No Publicity. Dr. Armstrong, Berrien, Mich.

Guns Catalogue Free. Rudolph & Co., 1018 N. 5th St. Louis, Mo.

SOMETHING for you. Sells at sight. Our Agents coin money. We have work and money for all, men or women, boys or girls, whole or spare time. Send stamp for Catalogue. Address FRANK GLUCK, New Bedford, Mass.

FOR SALE. Chicago Suburban Lots at $100 each—$15 down and $5 monthly for balance—within a short distance of city limits, with hourly trains and cheap fare. Send for circular. IRA BROWN, 142 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

GEO. P. ROWELL & Co.

10 DOLLARS PER DAY AGENTS WANTED to sell THE IMPROVED HOME SHUTTLE Sewing Machine Address Johnson, Clark & Co., Boston, Mass.; New York City; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Chicago, Ill.; or St. Louis, Mo.

DIRT Best and hardest work in the house made comparatively easy and pleasant. Every one interested in reducing woman's work should send now a stamp for our circular. GRAY, DIXON & CO., 81 Clybourn Ave., Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED for the fastest-selling BOOK ever published. Send for circulars and our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUB. CO., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

NEW TIME TABLE.
A TON OF HAY deposited in 3 to 5 minutes to any part of Mow or Stack with Nellis' O. H. Horse Hay Fork and Patent Conveyer. No extra expense to Farmers for Conveyer. Descriptive Catalogue free. Reliable Agents wanted. Address A. J. NELLIS & CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

TO AGENTS. THE BROOKLYN SCANDAL, its rise, progress and termination, with an impartial epitome of the Testimony on the Trial, by O'Connor, of New York, and Judge Neilson's charge to the Jury, and their Verdict. Illustrated. For terms apply to PARK PUBLISHING CO., Hartford, Conn.

$3 SAMPLE Free and Big Pay to Male and Female everywhere. Address THE UNION PUB. CO., Newark, N. J.

$10, to $500. Invested in Wall Street often leads to fortune. A 72-page book explaining everything, and copy of the Wall Street Review SENT FREE. JOHN HICKLING & Co., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, N. Y.

F. J. NASH, 781 BROADWAY, New York, manufacturer of SOLID GOLD JEWELRY of every description. The stock is large, very choice, and is offered at retail at trade prices to keep our workmen going. Bills under $15, P. O. order in advance. Over $15, C. O. D. privilege to examine. Catalogues free.

AGENTS WANTED for the best selling book out. "Woman as a Wife and Mother," by Pye Henry Chavasse, M. D. Over 75,000 sold; liberal terms. Apply at once for territory and outfit to S. T. SOUDER & CO., 113 Sansom-st., Philadelphia.

Book Keeping. Double Entry.—By Clark's method, so simplified that any one may master the science without a teacher. Bound in cloth. Sent post-paid on receipt of $1. Agents wanted. W. S. Clark & Co., 161 Race street (Albany Newspaper Union Building), Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS WANTED. LIVINGSTONE'S NEW BOOK!! His own story of the last seven years of his Life, his Death, etc. Splendid work, just out. Send for circulars and full information to AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

ATTENTION, OWNERS OF HORSES.

Ask your Harness Maker for the Zinc Collar Pad. They are warranted to cure any sore neck on horse or mule, or money refunded, if printed directions are followed. Send 75c. for sample. Zinc Collar Pad Co., Sole Manuf'rs, Buchanan, Mich.

HOW TO GET A HOME.
IOWA LANDS, 800,000 ACRES.
Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to
DAVIDSON & CALKINS,
R. R. Land Office, Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

NO YOU WILL NEVER have FRUIT IF YOU DON'T SET IT OUT.
You can buy your fruit plants very cheap by contracting with me for them now. To be shipped in the fall, and no money required until the plants arrive. I will furnish good reference as to my reliability. Send for Price-List.—Strawberries, Raspberries, Blackberries, Currants, Gooseberries, Grapes.
THOMAS LESLIE, Ipava, Ill.

N. F. BURNHAM'S TURBINE WATER WHEEL
Was selected, 4 years ago, and put to work in the Patent Office, Washington, D. C., and has proved to be the best. 19 sizes made. Prices lower than any other first-class Wheel. Pamphlet free. N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS. Langley's Patent Slate Paint—For Shingle, Tin, Iron and Gravel Roofs. This is a Fire and water-proof Paint, especially designed for shingle Roofs. An old roof Slate Painted will outlast a new one unpainted, and a new roof will last three times as long Slate Painted. As a matter of economy, a roof needs paint more than any other part of a building. Price 40 cents per gallon. Send for Pamphlet. Agents wanted. WILLIS G. JACKSON, General Agent, 169 Washington St., Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED FOR PATHWAYS OF THE HOLY LAND.
Being a Full Description of Palestine, its History, Antiquities, Inhabitants and Customs, according to the Great Discoveries recently made by the Palestine Exploring Expeditions. It sells at sight. Send for our extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

C. W. Reed, Grocer, New Haven, Ct., says:—"Your Sea Foam cannot be excelled north of the equator; for Good Bread and Fine Biscuit it is a Wonderful Preparation." So say all. Pitcher, Flintner & Co., Wholesale Dealers, Boston, say:—"We take pleasure in recommending your Sea Foam as The Best Baking Powder we have ever sold." Parties once using it will have no other. Its sales are immense. Send for circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & Co., 176 Duane St., N. Y.

DO YOUR OWN PRINTING!

NOVELTY PRINTING PRESS.
For Professional and Amateur Printers, Schools, Societies, Manufacturers, Merchants, and others it is the BEST ever invented. 12,000 in use. Ten styles. Prices from $5.00 to $150.00. BENJ. O. WOODS & CO. Manuf'rs and dealers in all kinds of Printing Material, 49 Federal St. Boston. Send stamp for Catalogue.)

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.

MEDICINE RENDERED USELESS! VOLTA'S ELECTRO BELTS and Bands are indorsed by the most eminent physicians in the world for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, liver complaint, dyspepsia, kidney disease, aches, pains, nervous disorders, fits, female complaints, nervous and general debility, and other chronic diseases of the chest, head, liver, stomach, kidneys and blood. Book with full particulars free by VOLTA BELT Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Smith Organ Co.,
BOSTON, MASS.
These Standard Instruments
Sold by Music Dealers Everywhere.
AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWN.
Sold throughout the United States on the
INSTALLMENT PLAN:
That is, on a System of Monthly Payments.
Purchasers should ask for the SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN. Catalogues and full particulars on application.

OPIUM Habit Cured
A certain and sure cure, without inconvenience and at home. An antidote that stands purely on its own merits. Send for my quarterly magazine, (it costs you nothing,) containing certificates of hundreds that have been permanently cured. I claim to have discovered and produced the FIRST, ORIGINAL AND ONLY SURE CURE FOR OPIUM EATING.
DR. S. B. COLLINS, La Porte, Ind.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

Bottled Bliss. It is impossible to conceive of a more refreshing draught than is afforded by Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient, which combines the advantages of a luxury with those of the purest, safest and most genial alterative and tonic ever administered as a cure for dyspepsia and bilious affections.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

CHEAP FARMING LANDS
The C., R. I. & P. R. R. Company
Is offering for sale at Low Prices and Most Reasonable Terms,
TO ACTUAL SETTLERS,
Some of the Most Desirable and Fertile Unimproved Land in IOWA!
These Lands are situated on or near the line of its railroad, the GREAT CENTRAL ROUTE from the Eastern States to the Pacific Coast, and are mostly between the important cities of Des Moines and Council Bluffs, in the best Agricultural and most rapidly-developing portion of Iowa.
PRICES ARE LOW,
Ranging from $5 to $10 per acre,
The average price being somewhat less than $8.
Exploring Tickets, by purchasing which railroad fare can be applied on payments for land, are for sale at the principal ticket offices of the Company in Iowa and Illinois. For Maps, terms of sale and directions to intending purchasers, address
J. L. DREW, Land Commissioner,
C., R. I. & P. R. R. CO., DAVENPORT, IOWA.

LARGE SIZE
MEDIUM SIZE
SMALL SIZE
MERCHANT'S
GARGLING
OIL
FAMILY USE

Whether for use on man or beast, Merchant's Gargling Oil will be found an invaluable Liniment and worthy of use by every resident in the land. We know of no proprietary medicine or article now used in the United States which shares the good-will of the people to a greater degree than this. Yellow wrapper for animal, and white for human, flesh.—N. Y. Independent.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL
Is the Standard Liniment of the United States. Established 1833. Large size, $1.00; medium size, 50 cents; small size, 25 cents. Small size for family use, 25 cents. Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company.
JOHN HODGE, Secretary.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEO. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

STOCKS
dealt in at the New York Stock Exchange bought and sold by us on margin of five per cent.
PRIVILEGES
negotiated at one to two per cent. from market on members of the New York Exchange or responsible parties. Large sums have been realized the past 30 days. Put or call costs on 100 shares $106.25.
Straddles $250 each; control 200 shares of stock for 30 days without further risk, while many thousand dollars profit may be gained. Advice and information furnished. Pamphlet containing valuable statistical information and showing how Wall Street operations are conducted sent to any address. Orders solicited by mail or wire, and promptly executed by us. Address
FREE
TUMBRIDGE & CO.,
Bankers and Brokers,
No. 2 Wall Street, New York.

"Best Paint in the World!" THE RUBBER PAINT
Every Man His Own Painter.
ANY SHADE from PURE WHITE to JET BLACK
Our RUBBER PAINT has been used on many thousand buildings and has always proved entirely satisfactory. We have numerous testimonials like the following, viz.: M. F. SHEPPARD & CO., Penn Yan, N. Y.: "We believe it to be the BEST PAINT manufactured." W. W. LELAND, "Eutaw House," Baltimore: "Having used your Paint on the Grand Hotel, Saratoga, and this Eutaw House, I recommend its use to all." Be sure that our TRADE-MARK (a fac-simile of which is given above) is on every package. Prepared ready for use and sold by the gallon only. Send for Sample Card and Price List.
Branch Offices & Factories, 506 West-st., NEW YORK. 210 South Third St., ST. LOUIS, MO. 83 West Van Buren Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.'S
"VIBRATOR" THRESHER.
The BRILLIANT SUCCESS of this Grain-Saving, Time-Saving THRESHER, is unprecedented in the annals of Farm Machinery. In a brief period it has become widely known and FULLY ESTABLISHED, as the "LEADING THRESHING MACHINE."

GRAIN RAISERS REFUSE to submit to the wasteful and imperfect work of other Threshers, when posted on the vast superiority of this one, for saving grain, saving time, and doing fast, thorough and economical work.
THRESHERMEN FIND IT highly advantageous to run a machine that has no "Beaters," "Pickers," or "Apron," that handles Damp Grain, Long Straw, Headings, Flax, Timothy, Millett and all such difficult grain and seeds, with ENTIRE EASE AND EFFECTIVENESS. Cleans to perfection; saves the farmer his thresh bill by extra saving of grain; makes no "Litterings;" requires LESS THAN ONE-HALF the usual Belts, Boxes, Journals, and Gears; easier managed; less repairs; one that grain raisers prefer to employ and wait for, even at advanced prices, while other machines are "out of jobs."
Four sizes made with 6, 8, 10 and 12 horse "Mounted" Powers, also a specialty of Separators "alone," expressly for STEAM POWER, and to match other Horse Powers.
If interested in grain raising, or threshing, write for Illustrated Circulars (sent free) with full particulars of sizes, styles, prices, terms, etc.
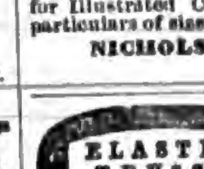
NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.,
Battle Creek, Michigan.



THE ELASTIC TRUSS AND SUPPORTER is now superseding all others, being adopted everywhere by the leading physicians, surgeons, druggists, army and navy, hospitals, gymnasiums, etc., etc.
The success and universal satisfaction they have given, as well as the great number of radical cures they have effected, has demonstrated the fact that rupture can be surely cured without suffering or annoyance, and without the danger of incurring Spinal Disease or Paralysis, often caused by the severe pressure of Metal Trusses and Supporters. It is the only sure cure for Hernia, as it is the only Truss in use that will hold the rupture securely in all positions in which the body can be placed. It will perform radical cures when all others fail. It can be worn with ease and comfort when no spring truss can be used. When once adjusted, no motion of the body or accident can displace it. These instruments have the unqualified approval of the most eminent practitioners in the profession.
From the numerous testimonials in our possession we append the following:
"After the experience of months, patients testify strongly to its efficacy, as well as to the ease and freedom from inconvenience with which the instrument is worn. With superior advantages, the Elastic Truss possesses in a high degree ALL requisites and qualifications claimed for other inventions. I have no hesitation in regarding it as an important means for the relief and cure of Hernia.
"J. M. CARNOCHAN, M. D.,
"Ex-Health Officer of the Port of New York, Surgeon-in-Chief of New York State Hospital," etc., etc.
GEO. V. HOUSE, M.D., Superintendent Elastic Truss Co.: Dear Sir: After suffering for thirty years, in my own person, from the use of every form of Metallic Truss procurable in this country and in Europe, I, two years ago, applied your Elastic Truss, and since that time I have experienced comfort and satisfaction, and been taught the truth, that the Elastic Truss is the only instrument that should be used for the relief and cure of Hernia; and now, after more than thirty years' continuous practice, and having adjusted many hundreds of Trusses (and for the last twenty months yours exclusively), I gratefully declare it to be my deliberate opinion that your Elastic Truss is the only one entitled to the confidence of the public; that elasticity is the only power at all adapted to the requirements of a Truss or Supporter, and am convinced that your Elastic Truss actually cures a large proportion of all cases to which it is applied, not only among children, but in numerous cases within my own knowledge of patients from 50 to 75 years of age.
H. BURNHAM, M. D.,
Prof. of Anatomy and Surgery, N. Y. E. Medical College.
Beware of cheap and worthless imitation Elastic Trusses, which some parties advertise and sell, fraudulently representing that they are manufactured by the Elastic Truss Co.
These Trusses are sent by mail to all parts of the country. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Before purchasing any other, write for Descriptive Circular (free) to the
ELASTIC TRUSS CO.
683 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS
Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.
The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.
R. H. McDONALD & CO.
Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California, and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

Judge Lee's Decision
Hon. Judge Lee of Bucyrus, O., says: "One morning last December I was seized with a violent pain in the neck of the bladder; alarmed, I sent for my physician. He examined me and prescribed Hamilton's Buchu and Dandelion. In a day or two I was much better, but having a return of the pain I continued the medicine. In two weeks I was entirely relieved, and I send you a calculus or gravel which I passed. When it first came it measured just an inch in length and one quarter in diameter. My distress is all gone and I have had no symptom of return. Next to God I thank you for my recovery." KRESS MAN'F'G CO. Cin.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS
Sold in cans by Druggists, 35 cents and upwards.

HALL'S PATENT STANDARD SAFES AT "HARD PAN" PRICES. HALL'S SAFE & LOCK CO. CHICAGO, ILL.

BECKWITH PORTABLE FAMILY SEWING $25. MACHINE DOUBLE THREAD BECKWITH S. M. Co. NEW YORK & CHICAGO.

"PSYCHOMANCY, or Soul Charming." How either sex may fascinate and gain the love and affection of any person they choose, instantly. This art all can possess, free, by mail, 25 cents; together with a Marriage Guide, Egyptian Oracle, Dreams, Hints to Ladies, &c. 1,000,000 sold. A queer book. Address T. WILLIAMS & CO., Pub's, Philadelphia.

DR. WHITTIER,
No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. Dr. W.'s establishment is chartered by the State of Missouri, was founded and has been established to secure safe, certain and reliable relief. Being a graduate of several medical colleges, and having the experience of a long and successful life in his specialties, he has perfected remedies that are effectual in all these cases. His patients are being treated by mail or express everywhere. No matter who failed, call or write. From the great number of applications he is enabled to keep his charges low. 36 pages, giving full symptoms, for two stamps.
MARRIAGE GUIDE,
260 pages, a popular book which should be read by everybody. No married pair, or persons contemplating marriage, can afford to do without it. It contains the cream of medical literature on this subject, the results of Dr. W.'s long experience; also the best thoughts from late works in Europe and America. Sent sealed, postpaid for 50 cts.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Aubrun Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, JUNE. 24, 1875

The great railroad war between the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pensylvania Central roads have been amicably adjusted and now freights will go up.

McCulloch confesses to some ignorance concerning the present state of the bond business. His ignorance is self-evident. A constitutional amendment stands in the way of the course which he recommends.

We notice a lot of fine buggies over at Ryan & Mader's livery stable, form the celebrated manufactury of Van Nest & Sons., Tiffin, Ohio. Mr. Ryan, is agent at this place for the vehicles, and has sold several in the last few days, giving excellent satisfaction. It is a known fact that this firm has sold these buggies for years in every part of the west, in competition with manufacturies at Chicago, Cincinnati and other places. They use the best material, get them up in the best of style, and sell them at reasonable rates.

The World tells a good story about how General Grant laid out a colored citizen who was caught stealing brother-in-law Sharp's pet dog. He ought to have called the police of course, and it was very wrong in him to engage in a low broil, but the public will be inclined to wink hard at the act in consideration of the pluck displayed on this and divers other occasions.

A young lady in Indianapolis sought to impart the hue of health to her cheeks the other evening when dressing for a party, and found the requisite bloom in the coloring matter of some sinnamon candy. During the evening her cheeks became very much swollen, and the poison soon after communicated itself to her eyes. She is now quite blind, and there seems to be but little hope that she will ever regain her eyesight.

Hugh McCulloch's last letter on American finances is taken up mainly with a history of the repudiation of the internal improvement bonds in this state. To that act he attributes a great share of the want of faith in American credit in foreign markets, and he sighs to have Indiana redeem its reputation. Such a course would spare Mr. McCulloch many thousand blushes, but whether he would make any money in the operation or not he fails to say.

The Chicago Times makes a curious suggestion for doubting the capacity of the public schools and giving the children a half holiday. It proposes that there shall be two sessions in each school every day, one beginning at 9 o'clock in the forenoon and closing at half past twelve, the other beginning at one 1 o'clock in the afternoon and closing at half past four. Children that attend the forenoon session would not be required to be present in the afternoon, and vice versa There is a great deal of sound sense in the scheme.

An American gentleman named Firmin has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Paris, for pretending to take photographs of deceased persons by means of spiritual manifestations. He will, of course, proceed to disengage himself from his fetters to the sound of the gay and festive guitar and other spirit instruments, and float on spirit hands out through the gratings of his prison window, much to the amazement of the gaping Frenchmen. What is the use of confining such a modern Owen Glendower, who has all the spirits of the vasty deep ready to do his biddings?

Somebody who wrote to Mr Beecher asking: "Is suicide never justifiable in extreme?" gets the following reply in this weeks Christion Union:

"Sucide is wrong. It proceeds either from distrust in God, from cowardice, or from mistaken views. It is a fine generalization of Bushnell that God has two vocations—one of work, another of suffering, and that the vocation of suffering is the highest. If God calles you to hopelessness, poverty, disgrace the insane hospital, who knows but that even in the worst of these there may be needed discipline for you. Do not rashly dash from your lips any bitter cup held by the Father's hand. Nevertheless, let us never judge with harshness those mistaken souls who in moments of distraction, or under the influence of wrong views, have fled out of life.—Pity them. But a brave and trustful christian man ought not so much as to think of deserting his life till God gives him release."

Earth-quake.

A shock of an earth-quake was fe't in Ohio and this State last Friday. The following will show how it was received from points in this state and Ohio:

Anderson, Ind.—Very strong shock Buildings all over town shook.

Jeffersonville, Ind.—Felt quite sensibly.

Vincennes, Ind—Felt the jar considerably.

Union, Ind.—Felt slightly.

Not felt at Terry Haute, Peru, Logansport, Kokomo, Argus and Richmond, Ind.

Sidney, O—The houses were shaken badly, causing people to run out. At Anna, O., six miles north of Sidney, on the Dayton & Michigan railroad, it cracked all the houses, knocking chimneys down, and goods, etc, off the shelves in the stores. No one is reported killed.

DeGraff, O.—Terrible shock, resembling earth-quake, jaring buildings almost from their foundations.

Urbana, O.—Swayed buildings so one could see their motion.

Tennyson's new drama is published and the London Times says it contains more true fire than anything that has been written since the days of Shakespeare. Let us hope that the Thunderer is not mistaken, for certainly a good poem would be a godsend to the English speaking people just now. If Alfred has surpassed everybody since Shakespeare's time, he must have gone back to some of his "ancient founts of inspiration," for he has done nothing but grind out the dreariest platitudes during the past few years. He appears to be utterly spoiled with pedantry and self-conceit. However the American public will be glad to give the old man another chance.

A Mexican bandit was recently shot and killed near Lone Pine, Inyo county, Cal. The "investigating committee" which went out to discover the cause of the robber's death made a report. We quote from the Inyo Independent, which says the following is a verbatim copy: "Lone Pine, Inyo county, Cal., May 29, 1872—We the undersigned members, who were sent by the committee of six to investigate and find all particulars regarding the killing of the Mexican, do find that the man was one of the robbers or bandits, and that his name was Jose Maria Guerro, that we found him in the coffin described, and that we buried him according to Hoyle. G. H. Palmer, E. Julius Chellius, Jeses Avaya Coronado."

The Great Insult.

From Mr. Bonner's New York Ledger.

But I was made to believe that the public good called me to make the sacrifice * * * * * ——but it must be remembered that all the sacrifices except that of comfort, had been made in accepting the "first term."—Gen. Grant's Letter to Gen. White.

A few years ago there was a man who had been educated in our West Point Academy at the public expense. He had dropped out of the army and became a hauler of cord wood to the St Louis market. Common reports says he used to be found dallying long by the roadside on his way home.

Later he was a clerk in a leather store in Galena very poor.

He was appointed a colonel in the army, and promoted and promoted and promoted, until he had the command of all our armies. Many persons always thought that much, very much of his success was owing to the superior opportunities that were given him.

Finally a rank and title never before conferred in this country were created especially for him. He was made the General of the United States army. Then he was nominated for President of the United States and elected. Next he was re-elected.

Elected and re-elected to what? To the hiest elective office ever created by man! To an office, to hold which in the infancy and beginning of the republic, George Washington, was proud! An office which Thomas Jefferson and James Madison and Jno Quincy Adams and Andrew Jackson gloried in the privilege of filling.

And now look upon the beggar on horseback—the penniless hauler—despised then, not for his poverty, but for his gross weaknesses and faults, coming out in a letter and spitting in the face of the whole American people, and insulting them in the most odious and offensive manner, and prating upon the "sacrifices"—which he—HE—Ulysses Grant uses—the sacrifices he made in becoming the Chief Magistrate!

Out upon the poor fool! Who does he imagine he is? Let the contempt of the whole great American people he has insulted cover him countless fathoms deep!

Fort Wayne District Conference of the M. E. Church.

The Fort Wayne District Conference of the M. E. Church convened at Auburn, Ind., June 15th and adjourned the 17th. Rev. T. Stabler, Presiding Elder of the District presided. Rev. W. H. Daniel was elected Secretary, Rev. C. King, assistant and Rev. H. M. Lampert, Recording Secretary. Each charge in the District, save one, was represented in the Conference by one or more members.

A committee was constituted to obtain by lease suitable grounds within the bounds of the District for District camp-meeting purposes. These grounds are to be thus obtained with the privilege of purchasing, when sufficient means have been raised. This will admit of the erection at once of permanent tents. The committee is to report at the next District Conference.

The Conference decided to hold a District Sabbath School Convention at Fremont, Steuben county, Indiana, on the day immediately preceding the meeting of the Ministerial Association at that place, in October next.

A resolution was passed declaring it to be the sense of the Conference that the Presiding Elders should be elected by the Annual Conference instead of appointed by the Bishops.

On motion, the Conference expressed its purpose to make a liberal donation visit, in conjunction with the charges, to the presiding elder.

The report of the committee on Sabbath Schools advised the use of the Berean Lesson Leaves and the Sabbath School Journal. Teachers' meetings should be held wherever practicable. The Sunday School Advocate is strongly recommended to be used in all schools where one or more papers are taken.

From the report of the committee on Temperance it may be seen that the Conference regards it the duty of the Christian Ministry and the Church, to speak out constantly and uncompromisingly the voice of God on the great evil of intemperance. And not only is it the duty of christians to array themselves against the use of intoxicants, but all who desire as citizens the good of society, if that desire be genuine, must be found on the side of temperance. As a means to the overthrow of intemperance, all Sunday School workers and educators are urged to most earnestly and persistingly impress upon the minds of the young the duty and necessity of total abstinance.

"A very pleasant affair occurred on the last evening of the Conference. At the close of the services, Rev. J. W. Welch, pastor of the M. E. Church, at Auburn, in a touching little speach in behalf of the ladies of that place, presented each of the pastors of the District present with a beautiful bouquet. This was responded to by Rev. T. Stabler, P. E., in a speech full of appreciation for the flowers and gratitude toward the ladies, in this he uttered only the feelings of each pastor.

The county papers of the District will please copy as the request of the Conference. W. H. DANIELS, Secretary.

The Allen and Rooke prize fight did not come off last Thursday, but there was an Allen affair over in Ohio the same day, of greater importance. Gov. "Rise up, William Allen," was renominate by acclamation to beat Hayes, next October, for Governor.

TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE.

"CHOOSE YOUR VOCATION AND HONOR IT."

The Independent Telegragh Institute, located in Auburn Dekalb Co. Ind., are offering the best opportunity of learning Telegraphy Railroad business and Phonographical writing ever offered to the public. Tuition very low and good boarding furnished Students for $3.50 to $3.75 per week, and situations furnished students as soon as they are capable of taking charge of a Telegraph office. Wages from $40 to $100 dollars per month. For further information address. Independent Telegraph Institute, Lock Box 76, Auburn Indiana.

OFFICERS.

J. E. SHREVE, Superintendent.
Prof. S. S. Shaner Principal Instructor R R. Dep't.
Dr. L. Sanders Instructor Phonographical Writer.

Administrator's Sale.

THE undersigned, Administrator of the Estate of John W. Sebert, late of DeKalb County deceased, will sell at public sale all the personal property, not taken by the Widow at the late residence of the deceased, 5 miles east of Auburn, on Friday the 2 day of July, 1875, the following property to-wit:

Two Mares, 1-horse buggy, 2-horse buggy 7 head of young cattle, hogs, wheat in the ground, 1 reaper and Mower, 1 sulky rake, 1 organ and other articles too tedious to mention.

TERMS—All sums under $3 cash; over $3 a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving his note with approved security, at 6 per cent. interest, waiving the benefits of valuation and appraisement laws.

ROBERT CULBERTSON, Ad'r.

Attachment Notice.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb county.

George Dolloway vs. James Cody. } Before John S. Barns Justice of the Peace, for Richland township.

It appearing by the return of the writ herein that said defendant is not found, and it further appearing, by affidavit filed hereto, that said defendant is a non-resident of the State of Indiana and a writ of garnishment in said case having been served on the Baltimore, Pittsburg and Chicago R. W. co., Indiana division. Notice is therefore given to said defendant to appear to said action at my office on the 9th day of August [illegible] and answer or demur to the complaint herein, or the same will be determined in his absence.

June 11. J. S. BARNS [illegible]

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct:
DeKalb County

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, September Term, 1875.

Mary A. B. Fee, Adm'x of the estate of John Fee vs. William Hyler, Sophia Hyler, Henry Funk, Lucinda Funk, } Complaint No. 106.

Now comes the plaintiff, by A. F. Pinchin, her attorney, and files her complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendants, William Hyler and Sopha Hyler are not residents of the state of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb County Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court house in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 15th, day of June, 1875.
J. R. LANNING Clerk.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September Term 1875.

Richard Grambling, vs. Charles Brandt, Wenzel Ernst, Ernst wife of said Wenzel Ernst, whose name is unknown to plaintiff, Fredrick Buchanan, Peter Grambling } Complaint No. 69

Now comes the plaintiff, by McBride & Morlan his attorneys, and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant's, Wenzel Ernst—Ernst wife of said Wenzel Ernst Charles Brandt and Frederick Buchanan are not residents of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore given said defendant that unless they be and appear on the first day of the DeKalb Circuit Court to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determin'ed in their absence.

Witness my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 15th day of June, 1875.
J. R. LANNING Clerk

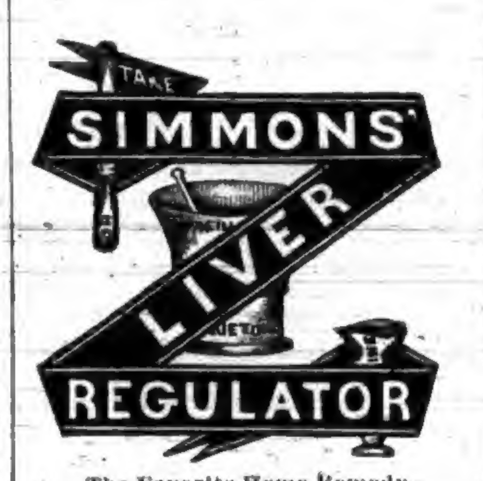
A NEW PLACE

TO GET A

Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with M. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.



The Favorite Home Remedy.

This unrivalled southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

Purely Vegetable.

containing those Southern Roots and Herbs, which an allwise Providence has placed in countries where Liver Diseases most prevail. It will cure all diseases caused by derangement of the Liver or Bowels.

Simmons' Liver Regulator, or Medicine, is eminently a family medicine, and by being kept ready for immediate resort will save many an hour of suffering and many a dollar in time and doctors' bills.

After over Forty Years' trial it is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Eminent physicians commend it as the most

Effectual Specific

for Constipation, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, billious attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, despondency, gloom and forebodings of evil, all of which are the offspring of a diseased Liver.

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

Armed with this ANTIDOTE, all climates and changes of water and food may be faced without fear. As a Remedy in Malarious Fevers, Bowel Complaints, Restlessness, Jaundice, Nausea,

It Has No Equal.

It is the Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World! Manufactured only by
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Ga. and Philadelphia.

Pice $1. Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875

For sale at F. E. DAVENPORT'S drug store.

☞ MANY New and Choice Goods on sale at Bond's Novelty Store, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Indiana. New goods arriving daily. Special bargains in

Table Linen,

Corsets, Gloves, Hosiery; Muslins, Flannels, White Goods, Ladies Ties, Handkerchiefs, Portmonies and many goods not kept elsewhere. Large four-story stone front building, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Annual Exhibit

OF THE

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES

Of DeKalb County State of Indiana, for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1875.

KIND OF FUND.	REC'T'S	EXPEND
Balance in treasury June 1, '74	2853 26
Am't collected delinquent, '73	9108 64
" " duplicate, 1874	16807 18
Am't rec'd by treasurer, sale of bonds for new jail and Sheriff's residence	3500 00
Amt collected, all other sources	1215 41
Amt orders issued from June 1 1874, to June 1, 1875, on account as follows:
Expense of poor		1869 31
" county officers' salaries		5166 76
" Courts		4036 50
" Illegal tax refunded		166 30
" Miscellaneous orders		1296 89
" Insane		508 30
" Criminals		308 93
" Public buildings		3363 32
" Inquest		177 00
" Roads and bridges		4617 37
" Elections		117 80
" Book stationery, prin'g		1890 69
" Assessing revenue		578 80
" H. of R. deaf and dumb		40 93
" Interest on county orders		191 78
Balance in excess of orders issued for year end'g, June 1, '75		10909 36
	85479 40	85479 40

RECAPITULATION OF COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP REVENUE.

Balance in treas, June 1, 1874	3149 03
Amt special school tax revenue col'd to June 1, 1875	15088 69	15088 69
" Road revenue collected to June 1, 1875	11216 84	11216 84
" Township to June 1, 1875	1910 93	1910 93
" Dog Tax " "	1393 74	1393 74
" Com. school " "	5465 00	5465 00
" Add'l special " "	1168 69	1168 69
" Agr'l fund " "	63 00
" Redempt'n on land "	602 32	690 47
" County revenue" "	32626 23	25531 81
Bal. in treasury June 1, 1875		10269 30
	72734 87	72734 87

RECAPITULATION OF SCHOOL FUNDS.

Amt rec'd of State to June 1, '75	19046 30	19046 30
" con'gl. int. in treas " 1874	1253 60
" " collected " 1875	1486 76	1564 72
Com. school int. received to June 1, 1875	1599 77	1654 01
Cong'l school principal in treasury June 1, 1874	141 81
Same col'd to June 1, 1875	1049 69	1191 50
Com. school fund prin. in treasury June 1, 1874	45 56
Same collected to 1875	1744 29	1788 50
Balance in treasury June 1, '75		1332 75
	26377 78	26377 78

GRAND RECAPITULATION:

Total amt of twp., school and county rev. in treas June 1 '74	4591 00
Amt spec'l school tax collected since	15088 69	15088 69
Amt road tax collected since	11216 84	11216 84
" Township " "	1910 93	1910 93
" Dog " "	1393 74	1393 74
" Com. school " "	5465 00	5465 00
" Add'l special " "	1168 09	1168 09
" Red'mt land " "	602 32	690 47
" Agr'l fund " "	63 00
" Co. revenue " "	32626 23	25531 81
" Com. school " "	19046 30	19046 30
" Cong'l sch'l in. "	1486 76	1564 72
" Com. " " "	1599 77	1654 01
" " " prin. "	1677 78	1788 50
" Con'l " " "	1049 69	1191 50
" Fines rec'd from Justices	66 51
Bal. in treasury June 1 1875		[illegible]
	99112 65	99112 65

Balance of the Several Funds in the County Treasury, June 1, 1875:

County Revenue	$10,200 40
Redemption of Land	5 90
Congressional school interest	1,331 40
Agricultural Fund	64 00
Common School Principal	1 35

ISAAC HAGUE, AUDITOR.
Auburn, Ind. June 14, 1875.

FOR SALE.

Four Business Lots,

Adjoining the Court House square, the most desirable and the only ones similarly located in Auburn each lot 22x80 feet.

Those wishing to purchase the best in the market should apply soon either to A. J. LITTLE Attorney at Law, or THOMAS BALDOCK. Terms reasonable. Also,

A HOUSE and LOT adjoining the above, The house is new containing five rooms, with cistern convenient and pleasantly located will be sold at a

BARGAIN

Apply as above.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,

Notions, etc., of

CHARLES KLOTZ

AT HIS

Old Stand

ON MAN STREET,

Opposite Court Square

AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accommodate customers, and sell them such good as they may need,

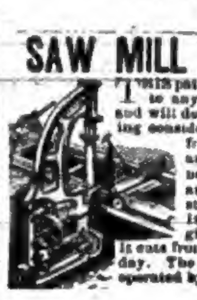
CLOTHING

Of all descriptions, and

HANDSOME SUITS

Made to Order!

SAW MILL FOR THE PEOPLE.



THIS patent portable Muley Saw Mill is adapted to any locality, will saw any kind of logs, and will do as much work (power and hands being considered) as the best Circular Mills. Its frame, head-blocks, and working parts are of the most substantial and permanent kind, being made entirely of iron and steel. It is usually set up and started in from one to two days time. It is generally driven by threshing engines of not exceeding ten horse power. It cuts from 2000 to 4000 feet of inch lumber per day. The Mill and Engine may conveniently be operated by two men. Send for circular.

CHANDLER & TAYLOR.
Indianapolis, Indiana

Fruit House Prices.

Now for the 4th of July! It Will Soon be Here

And for the occasion we have laid in a large supply of Fireworks, Torpedoes, Fire Crackers and everything you can think of, to celebrate the day. All amounts of $5 we discount 10 per cent; of $2 and upwards we discount 20 per cent. We make this inducement to private parties who form clubs to celebrate; also to those who buy to sell again. This is only on Fireworks and Flags; the Fire-crackers and Torpedoes are net prices. CALL AND SEE US, you Merchants, and others from a distance and we will

Beat Chicago and Cincinnati,

AT LEAST 10 PER CENT ON PRICES.

Fire Crackers, per box,	$2 50	Torpedoes, per thousand	25c
Per pack	07	Per pack	04

Then we have Serpents, Flags, Roman Candles, Tri-colored, Bengal Lights, Silver Shower Candles, Flying Pigeons, Sky Rockets, Flower Potts, Grasshoppers, Blue lights, Triangles, Radiators, Pin Wheels, Scroll Wheels, Triolettes, Floral Bumbshells, Ladies' Union Fans, Percussion Pistols. American Flags, Balloons, Pulling Crackers, Chinese Bamboo Lanterns, Chinese Balloons, Chinese Lanterns and so forth.

TEAS! TEAS! TEAS!

No Middle Men with us, either on Teas, Coffees, or Sugars, With all the complaints of dull times, our Tea trade has doubled within the last three years. No secret in it—simply purchasing of the Importers and selling direct to the consumer, thereby saving to our customers the profits of the Speculator, Jobber and Wholesale Grocer, which is at least 10 to 20 cents on each dollar,

Young Hyson,	30, 60, 80, $1, 00, best 1 10	Oolong	30, 60; best 95
Gunpowder	60, 1 00; best 1 10	Uncolored Japan,	50, 60; best 90
Imperial,	60; 90; best

SUGARS! SUGARS!

WHITE, YELLOW AND BROWN.

Coffee A,	10½c	N. O, Genuine,	9c
Coffee B,	9½c	Good Brown	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	20 and 27c
Second Best Rio,	23c

CANNED FRUITS.

At Prices never Before Heard of.

Peaches per can	20c	Damsons per can,	20c
Blackberries per can,		Green Gages per can,
Tomatoes per can,	10 c	Strawberries per can,
Corn per can,	10 c

Wines and Liquors.

Still a few Gallons Left.

Sherry and Port per gallon,	$1 50 and 2 00	Old '76 for medical use	$3 00
Sherry and Port in bottles,		Port Wine per gallon	1 50 and 2 00
California Angelica and Sweet Muscatelle, per gallon,	1 50 2 00	California wine per gallon	1 50 and 2 00
New England Rum, per gallon,	best 2 00	Sweet Cawba Wine per gallon	1 25
Holland Gin, Old Tom,	1 50 and 2 50

SYRUPS, SYRUPS.

Best Sugar, Loaf, per gallon,		Extra Golden per gallon,	60
White Dripps, per gallon,	85 $1 00	New Orleans per gallon,	70c to 1 00
Silver Dripps per gallon,	75	Cuba Molasses per gallon,

CANDIES! CANDIES!

Stick, French and American.

Best Stick per pound	18c	Bon Bons	80c
French Mixed	25c	Japanese Cocoa Nut	25c

☞ We have a hundred other different kinds of candies ☜

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Fish and Neats Foot Oil per gallon,	1 00	Head Light Oil per gallon,	25c
Coal and Rose Oil per gallon,	20c	Machine Oil per gallon,	50c

FISH, FISH, FISH, FISH,

A Large Assortment of both		Salt Water and Lake Fish
No. 1 White Fish ½ bbl	6 00	No. 1 Mackeral in Kits.	1 25
No. 2 do do	5 00	No. 1 Family in Kits
No. 1 Lake Shad ½ bbl.		George's Bank Codfish per pound
No. 1 Pickeral ½ bbl		Extra Mess Mackeral " "	1 50 and 1 75
White Fish in kits No. 1	1 25	Herrings each	1c
White Fish family No. 3	1 00	Pickeral and Trout ½ bbl	5 50

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

The duty of 4c cents per pound goes on tobacco March 1st. This thing we anticipated, and in consequence we have a large stock ahead, so that our customers, as long as the present stock lasts, shall have goods at the old price.

Choice Plug, Five Bros. per pound		Fine Cut	60, 80, and 90c
Good Richmond Navy per pound	50c	Shorts	40c
Ladies Twist, very fine	65c	Smoking	35c best 40c
Long John Tens	50c

25 Cents on the Dollar Saved at THE FRUIT HOUSE

THE FIRST

National Bank

OF AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of th U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Collections made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:

J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:

JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

April 29, 1875.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

AUBURN MARKETS.

CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Wheat—White	$1.10	Hogs—live	$6.00
Amber—red	1.05	Hogs—dressed
ye	75	Turkeys—live	.08
Oats	56	Chickens—live	.07
Corn	@ 65	Butter	.16
Potatoes	@ 85	Lard	.15
Flax Seed	1.60	Eggs	12
Clover Ceed	6.50	Tallow	.07
Wool	45 @ .60	Timothy Hay	19.00

GARDENS look tempting.

Abright's room looks nice.

ASK the boys what time it is?

EVENING strolls are fashionable

DRAMATIC performance on the 3rd of July.

SOME of our sidewalks need repairing badly.

THE weather is fine for growing purposes.

MR. STEEL is moving in his new residence.

THE bakery on 8th street has been painted.

AGENTS for sewing machines are plenty just now.

RELLING cant stand the smell of chloroform.

GARRET is going to have a dance in a short time.

ALWAYS get ice of Al. Wells, and then you know its good.

DON'T fail to read the advertisements this week.

You better look at Miller & Casebeer's clothing before you buy.

SEVERAL boys bet on the ball game Tuesday. Yes.

A LARGE crowd witnessed the ball game Tuesday.

Remember Beard when you want cheap teas.

CAN'T we have a night police? Something should be done.

THERE seems to be quite a lot of wool coming into market.

THE Markle hotel will soon be in running order.

MEN are still busy working the streets They need it.

IT will soon be time to agitate that old ordinances relating to the muzzling of dogs.

STRAWBERRIES are selling for 15 cts per quart.

THEY are beginning to advertise for the summer trade.

WE don't hear no complaints of the crops this year.

Go to Eaton & Jackman, and buy you a nice nobby hat.

STRAW hats at very low prices at Eaton & Jackman's.

EATON & JACKMAN keeps the best stock of cloths in town.

How. SHAFFER, one of our old town boys, was in the city Tuesday.

IF you want a good cigar step in at Link & Weaver's.

THE M. E. Parsonage is being painted up in good style.

THERE was a good many intoxicated men about the city last Saturday.

OLD JNO. ROBINSON's circus is billed for this place July 27th.

Go to Beard's for fish and salt, and get the best.

FORD's block is almost completed.—All the work is done stylish.

A FINE line of white vesting, at Eaton & Jackman's.

THE firm of Mensch & Moor at Garret, have commenced their new building.

PROF. KEINTZ, leader of the Fort Wayne band, gave us a call yesterday.

SEVERAL of our citizens attended the lecture of Colfax, at Waterloo, last Monday.

A LARGE number of our citizens went on the excursion to Jackson this morning.

J. A. SMITH is on the road for the Excelsior hardware implement and machine trade.

IF you want a good paper, devoted 2 the collection of local and general news take the COURIER.

OUR lively friend F. E. Davenport is as happy as a lark, over the coming of a new born boy.

THE Fort Wayne Fruit House advertisement has been chaged. Great inducements on fire-works are offered.

JNO. L. DAVIS is going to put a stock of hardware at Garret. Johnny Robbins will conduct the trade.

THERE will be a dance at Newville, on the 2nd of July, in Mr. Andrews' new barn. A good time is expected.

GEO. HOPNIX, charged with stealing a note from Mr. Lockwood, has been furnished quarters in castle Meese.

THE Chicago "Times" of last Monday said, "Honorable S. C. Swinceford, of Auburn, is at the Grand Pacific.

THE Pioneer Hardware store received the second car load of nails this season, one day last week.

GENTS' call and have your clothing made nobby, and in style at Eaton & Jackman's.

MR. MONTGOMERY, is the boss cutter of the county, and always to be found at Eaton & Jackman's.

THE theives tried Ed. Eldridges back door, but "Sandy" was at their heels too quick.

THE Socal of the Presbyterian church will be entertained by Mrs. Dr. Knorr, next Wednesday afternoon and evening A cordial invitation is extended to all.

BRICK work on the jail has been stopped, owing to there being too much motar used. What has been done will be taken down again.

WE learn that thieves entered the house of Mrs. Hare last Monday evening We did not learn what success they had this time.

THE residence of J. C. Sommers, in his new addition is progressing rapidly. Many will build across the Cedar before long.

DR. ARNOLD, one of those agreeable and goodlooking gentlemen that wholesale houses will indulge in, visited our sanctum yesterday.

WE wrote an announcement of the excursion to Jackson, for our paper last week, but it was overlooked by the compositor and did not appear as intended.

A fellow named Horace Halcomb, was was arrested in Kendallville the other day, charged with stealing $10,000 worth of goods from a merchant at Auburn New York.

DON'T forget to come to Auburn on the 3th of July. We are to have one of the best dramatic performances ever before given in our place. The actors are professionals.

The "Pharos" says, "A prominent Logansport physician holds that a man should never permit himself to be roused out of a deep sleep in the morning. His practice is rapidly increasing."

MORRIS GODFRY is to be married in Fort Wayne this week. We know a fellow named Morris, and a gal named Godfry. Perhaps the two are to be made one.

'OUR brother-in-law is mad, either because we forgot to mention his good fortune, or because his girl wasn't a boy.—Its not such a "Gross" affair—only seven pounds.

AN elephantess belonging to How's circus was safely delivered of a baby elephant at the expositions grounds in St. Joseph, Mo., said to be the first of these animals ever born in the United States.

A TEAM of horses ran away, last week, near Garret. They were on the track and the express train being so close to them that they never left the tract until the engine struck them. Both horses were killed.

IT is mistaken politeness to say. "Excuse my glove," when shaking hands with a friend, and simply ridiculous to make him wait while you draw it off. Give him a good hearty shake, and he will feel the honesty of your friendship.

TRY the COURIER one year and see how you like it

AN entire block of buildings at Anderson, including the Odd Fellows' hall, were destroyed by fire last week. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, and the loss is hastily estimated at $50,000, with a probable insurance of half that amount.

THE activity of the young is like that of the rail cars in motion—they tear along with noise and turmoil, and leave peace behind: The quietest nooks pervaded by them lose their quietude as they pass, and recover it only on their departure. The best gift is serenity.

ADVERSITY exasperates fools, dejects cowards, draws out the faculties of the wise, puts the modest to the necessity of trying their skill, awes the opulent, and makes the idle industrious. Much may be said in favor of adversity, but the worst of it is, it has no friends.

BENEVOLENCE is the most graceful and agreeable of all affections. It embraces all being capable of enjoying any portion of good—manifests itself in being pleased with the share of good every creature enjoys, in a disposition to increase it, in feeling an uneasiness at their sufferings.

IF you wish particularly to gain the good grace and affection of certain people, men or women, try to discover their most striking merit, if they have one, and their dominant weakness—for every one has his own— then do justice to the one and a little more than justice to the other.

BOLD.—Last Monday night theives entered the house of Thos. Baldock, thro' the back window. Several of the boarders had their watches taken and some money. The thieves used matches to light their way to the different rooms, as a large number were found scattered about the house the next morning.

SOMETHING in the air, perhaps the perfume of sweet flowers or the song of birds, induces us to believe that summer is here. How beautiful the forests look, and the green carpet of nature's verdure. With the exception of the temperature, the weather has been very favorable this spring.

NOTICE.—To the Ladies of Auburn vicinity, I will be in your city June 29th with a large stock of Real Hair Goods. Please call Sample room at Swineford Hotel.

Mrs. J. R. SHIBLEY,
Toledo, O.

THE ball game was won by the Butler boys. Both nines played well, the latter being the best average players. The little Juvenile behind the bat was as good a catcher as the county could rake up. The Butler boys must not congratulate themselves on beating Auburn, because we can pick up a nine that will discount the game played on Tuesday.

WE are glad to know that at last the government is waking up to the fact that great frauds are being perpetrated in all parts of the country in the whisky traffic. The recent wholesale seizures of distilleries in some of the large cities is evidence that the reign of rascality is near its end.

WE learn through Constable Rosenberry that a fellow stole a horse after night, the other day, and after riding awhile he got "turned around" and the horse took him back home. Both were captured. The horse belonged to Henry Gunsenhouser, living east of the city, in what is know as the "Moore settlement" The man is waiting for a trial.

Mr. Samuel Grosh having purchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Tarney, in the Lower Flouring Mill, will hereafter conduct it alone. He is manufacturing a splendid brand of flour and keeps mill feed constantly on hand. Mr Furnish, an experienced miller, will assist in turning out flour that cannot fail to suit everybody. tf

Mr. Woodhull, of Angola, and C. A. O McClellan, of Waterloo, have purchased a lot at Pleasant Lake, on which they intend erecting the necessary buildings for a summer resort. Now buy a corner lot, put up a cottage, donate to Grant, and we will have the head of the best civil service the world ever saw in our midst in a jiffey.

THE first drug store at Garret makes its appearance to-day, under the name of Eli. Kuhlman & Co. Mr. Kuhlman has been assisting Mr. Davenport in the drug business in this place, and there is not a young man within our acquaintance whom we could recommend more heartily than Mr. K. He is prompt, attentive, courteous and affable, and understands his business thoroughly. We wish the new firm success.

MONEY makes a man rich and makes him poor; rich in this world's goods, but poor in his chance for the next. It makes no difference how much money he may have, he cannot secure a life assurance in heaven with it. It makes a man happy and makes him miserable; happy when he has just enough to not trouble him, and miserable when he has more than he needs to get along with comfortably, for speculation often plays with a man's judgment. It makes a man wise and makes him a fool; wise when he uses it to increase his understanding, and a fool when he uses it to get drunk. It makes a man friends and makes him enemies; friends of those whom he uses it to aid, and enemies of those who are jealous of his prosperity. Its true.

MICHAEL ERLE.

This splendid play will be presented at Ensley's Hall on Saturday evening, July 3d, with Mr. Height, of Ft. Wayne in the leading character. There is not another in the country who can excell Mr. Height in this roll. Harry height is also to assist in one of the leading characters. The performance will conclude with the splendid comedy of "The Kiss in the Dark." As this will be the only attraction this year in Auburn for the Fourth of July, which is to be celebrated on the 3d, we hope to see a crowded hall, both in the afternoon and at night.

A FAEE PASS

TO

Barnum's Hippodrome

From New York.

Your last chance: Save your money: Combine business with pleasure.

To every purchser of $10 worth of clothing we will present gratis a ticket to Barnum's World's Fair and Hippodrome, which exibits at Fort Wayne on July 7th.

SAM, PETE & MAX,

Star Clothing House, 5 Main and 33 Calhoun Sts., Fort Wayne Ind.

THE brick masons have stopped work on the Jail. Architect Tolan notified the contractors that the brick already on the ground, were not according to contract for facing for outside walls, and could not be used for that purpose. Yet the men under the contractor for the brick work in the face of this notice, proceeded a few days afterward to lay them in the outside wall. The architect came along the other day and found them at work and ordered them to stop, as the work would not be accepted. The walls, several feet high, will have to come down. Mr. Tolan, is determined to have the work done according to contract, and we believe when it is done it will be a good job. While we regret the loss of time and labor to the contractor, we are glad to notice a disposition to have good work done.

WE have at last fond out the uses and purposes of the musquito, thank providence. If there is anything that gives us happiness it is this fact. This festive insect was created for the sole purpose of driving man out of the malarial districts. But sometimes man refuses to go, as in this country. Then this wonderful comic creature injects a liquid which answers two purposes, first to render the blood thin enough to be drawn through its tube, and second to inject that which possesses the principles of quinine. In these times of an abundant musquito crop people should think of this and be patient. Quinine in this way costs no money, and as long as you can get it for nothing pay no attention to personal inconvenence. For our part we prefer a shake or two, to the visits of these pesky things.

ONE of our experienced millers offers the following advice to those who go to mill.

When you drive up to the door, and one of the employers meets you don't fail, in a loud and commanding voice to tell him you want to see the miller.

"Anything in particular, he is busy at present," says the employee.

Then put thunder into your voice and say you are in a hurry and want to talk to him. The miller finally appears. Now put a deeper frown on your phiz and proceed to erectify him as follows: "That last batch of flour you made for me is not worth a d——. My wife says it wouldn't raise at all."

Miller finally suggested that perhaps the yeast might not been good. Tell him you know better whether you do or not. Tell him you did not get as much flour as you should have received, no matter whether your wheat was dirty and damp. Say anything to frighten the timid soul, even if you have to hint that he stole some of your grist. By the adoption of these suggestions you will not only make the miller honest, but he will give you grist, toll and all just to keep you good natured.

IT is good for a man to have holy and quiet thoughts, and at moments to see into the very deepest meaning of God's word and God's earth, and to have, as it were, heaven opened before his eyes; and it is good for a man sometimes actually to feel his heart overpowered with the glorious majesty of God, and to feel it gushing out with love to his blessed saviour; but it is not good for him to be there, any more than it was for the apostles. They had to leave that glorious vision and come down from the Mount of Transfiguration and do Christ's work; and so have we; for, believe me, one word of warning spoken to a little child; one crust of bread given to a begger man because he is your brother, for whom Christ died; one angry word checked, when it is on your lips, for the sake of Him who was meek and lowly of heart; in short, any, the smallest endeavor of this kind to lessen the quantity of evil whice is in yourselves and those around you, is worth all the speculations, and raptures, and visions, and feelings in the world; for those who are the good fruits of faith, whereby alone the tree shall be known, whether it be good or evil.

ONE of our married men, is a little suspicious of the actions of another married man, and thinks there is something Beecher like in the nods and looks, which said party pays to the only inmate of his domicil. Build a fence around your house sixteen feet high if you want peace.

IF you have the ague go and get a perscription from Dr. Shutt, and it will knock it so far that it will not come back for a year.

Platform of the Ohio Democracy.

"The Democratic party of Ohio, in state Convention assembled, proclaim the following propositions of political faith and action:"

1 A sacred adherence to the principles of government declared and put in practical operation by the father of the Republic."

"2. Oppositions to aggressions by either Department of the Government upon the functions of the others, and to the exercise by Federal authority of any of the powers reserved by the Constitution to the State respectively, or to the people."

"3. The protection of the Government to all citizens, without regard to race, color or previous conditions of servitude.

"4. The president's service should be limited to one term, at a salary of $25,000 a year.

"4. Retrenchment and reform in every department of Government, Federal, State and local.

"6. No grants of land or money by the Government, or use of its credit to railroad, steamship or other companies.

"7. The preservation of the remnant of public lands for the benefit of citizens of the United States and foreign emigrants who have declared their intention to become such, who will occupy and cultivate the same.

"8. That the contraction of the currency heretofore made by the Republican party, and the further contraction proposed by it with a view to the forced resumption of specie payment, has already brought disaster to the business of the country, and threatens it with general bankruptcy and ruin. We demand that this policy be abandoned, and that the volume of currency be made and kept equal to the wants of trade, leaving the restoration of legal-tenders to par with gold to be brought about by promoting the industries of the people, not by destroying them.

"9. That the policy already initiated by the Republican party, of abolishing legal-tenders and giving National Banks the power to furnish all the currency, will increase the power of an already dangerous monopoly, and the enormous burdens now oppressing the people, without any compensating advantage; and that we oppose to this policy the demand that all the National Bank circulation be promptly and permanently retired; and legal-tenders be issued in their place.

"10. That the public interest demands that the Government should cease to discredit its own currency, and should make its legal-tenders receivable for all public dues except where respect for the obligation of contracts requires payment in coin; and that we favor the payment of at least one-half of the customs in legal-tenders.

"11. The extention of the present National Banks, and the establishment in their stead of a system of free banks of discount and deposit only, under such regulations as the State may respectively prescribe, and no paper currency except such as may be issued directly by and upon faith of the general Government.

"12. A tariff for the sole purpose of revenue.

"13. We favor the complete separation of Church and State, independence and absolute freedom of opinion, equal and exact justice to all religious societies, and purely secular education at the expense of the tax-payers, without division among or control by any sect, directly or indirectly, of any portion of the Public School Fund. In view of the admirable provisions of our state Constitution upon these subjects, which are due to the energy and wisdow of the Democratic party, we denounce the Republican platform as an insult to the intelligence of the people of Ohio and a base appeal to sectarian prejudices.

"14. That we are opposed to the passage of what are called sumptuary laws, or any interference with social habits or customs not in themselves criminal; and we reprobate any espionage by one class of citizens upon another, under any pretense whatever.

"With this declaration of principles and policy we arraign the leaders of the Republican party for their extravagant expenditure and profligate waste of the peoples' money; for their oppressive, unjust and defective system of finance and taxation; for their continued tyranny and cruelty to the Southern States of Union; for their squandering of public lands; for their continuance of incompetent and corrupt men in office, at home and abroad, and for their general mismanagement of the Government. And we cordially invite all men, without regard to party associations, to cooperate with us in expelling them from power, and in securing such an administration of public affairs as characterized the purer and better days of the Republic."

OPERETTAS AND CANTATAS

SUITABLE FOR

School Exhibitions!

AN HOUR IN FAIRY LAND. A Cantata in One Act. No change of scenery required, except for Tableaux introduced behind the main scene. Price 60c, in paper; 75c in boards.

MAUD IRVIN; OR, THE LITTLE ORPHAN. An Operetta in five acts, for children's use—Dramatic, Singing and Tableaux. Price 60c in paper; 75c in boards.

NEW YEAR'S EVE. A cantata in 3 parts, representing the 4 seasons. No change of scenery required, except for tableaux introduced behind the main scene. Price 60c in paper; 75c in boards.

PAULINE, THE BELLE OF SARATOGA. An operetta for adults, in 2 acts. Suitable for parlor or stage. No scenery required. Price $1, in boards.

Copies sent, post paid, on receipt of price.
Address, J. L. PETERS, 843 Broadway, N. Y.
P. O. Box 5429.

Old John Robinson.

Where is the family throughout the length and breadth of this great country in which the above name is not a household word, the synonym for pleasant and instructive occasions in which millions have participated in years gone by. Well, this same John Robbinson is to be in Auburn, with his great world's exposition July 27th. There is but one exposition of this kind traveling and that is the original Old John Robinsons, none others are genuine. For years he has maintained his reputation before the public for veracity, honesty and enterprise. His representations have been found true and faithful.

This exposition is a miniature word, replete with all that is startling, beautiful, grand from every zone and every clime, holding within it representatives from every inhabitable country on the globe, and showing up the monsters of the hidden deep. Birds and beasts that have never been exhibited in this country make their first appearance with this mammoth institution.

Three new elephants, just imported a few days ago, have been added to the list of attractions since the printing of the bills, some of them of enormous size and weight.

One hundred and sixty horses, the most beautiful to be found, are used in the performances of this wonderful combination. As the exposition travels by rail these horses are not used to haul wagons over the country, but appear daily in the ring.

The exposition contains a large collection of animals among them the Giraffe, Rhinoceros, 4 Elephants, Zebra, Dromedaries, Lions, Tigers, and a hundred others, many of which have never been exhibited. The monster Aquarium contains features never attempted before.

There are nine Sea Lions, with their bright expressive eyes, playing and sporting like dogs in the water, some of them weighing over a ton. Two crocodiles fifteen feet long, two Sea Turtles weighing 1,500 and four seals.

The Aviary contains large, new and beautiful birds of the most attractive species.

We have not space to enumerate one half of the great attractions of this Great World's Exposition. Every man, women and child should attend. One ticket admits you to the whole exposition.

STOP THAT COUGH.

NO pulmonary complaint however obstinate, can resist the healing influence of DR. MORRIS' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound.—Nothing that we have ever sold acts so promptly and effectly in coughs, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, asthma and all diseases of the throat, lungs and chest, leading to consumption. It is a certain cure for Whooping Cough and croup. Contains no opium and is pleasant to take. Cough-worn victims whose lungs are racked and torn with paroxysms that threaten to choke them, find speedy relief in its use. Trial size 10c Ask for Morris' Syrup, take no other.

P. E. DAVENPORT, Druggist.

Is Your Life Worth 10 Cents.

SICKNESS prevails everywhere, and everybody complains of some disease during their life.—When sick, the object is to get well; now we say plainly that no person in this world that is suffering with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and its effects, such as Indigestion, Costiveness, Sick Headache Sour stomache, Heart-burn, Palpitation of the Heart, Depressed Spirits, Biliousness, &c. can take GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER without getting relief and cure. If you doubt this, go to one Druggist and get a sample bottle for ten cents and try it. Regular size 75 cents. Two uses will relieve you.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed Administrator of the estate of John Houlton, late of DeKalb County, Ind., deceased. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

NANCY HOULTON, Ad'x

Sure to Please the Ladies,

CATLIN'S SAD IRON HEATER!

PRICE $1.25.

SAVES one half the fuel, and makes comfort for Ladies while ironing in warm weather. Agents wanted everywhere. Send stamp for terms.—Address, VAN ALSTINE & CATLIN, Sharon, Wis.

GILES' LINIMENT

TRADE MARK

IODIDE OF AMMONIA

Cures Neuralgia, Face Ache, Rheumatism, Gout, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Sore Throat, Erysipelas, Bruises or wounds of every kind in man or animal.

Giles' Liniment Iodide of Ammonia has been used by myself and family with satisfactory results. I recommend it to all persons suffering with pains or aches of any kind. It surpasses anything I have ever used. G. H. MILLER, President, Real Estate & Savings Bank, Baltimore Md.

Sold by all Druggists. Depot No. 451 Sixth Avenue, New York. Only 50c and $1 per bottle. No. 55 3w

THE STAR WELL AND PROSPECTING AUGER.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD!

Mr. LEVI BROWN, living two miles south of Corunna, has purchased the right of this celebrated Auger, and is now prepared to put in wells. Everything is warranted and satisfaction guaranteed.

LEVI BROWN.

THE PHŒNIX TILE MACHINE.

IT is well adapted to the wants of Tile Makers. It is usually driven by the power of two horses. [illegible] of the machine. It may be converted into a single delivery machine. It has a simple and ready means of taking up the wear on the [illegible] and edge of the chamber, thus correcting all leakage of [illegible], and adding years of service to the machine. [illegible] It is fully warranted. [illegible]

CHANDLER & TAYLOR
Patentees and Manufacturers,
Indianapolis, Ind.

SEND FOR CIRCULARS.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay and all the effects of youthful indiscretion will for the sake of suffering humanity send free to all who need it, the receipt and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDE
Cedar St. New York.

Try the COURIER one year and see how you like it.

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, JUNE 24, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

THE International Typographical Union closed its session at Boston by electing the following officers: President, Walter H. Bell, Philadelphia; First Vice-President, James Harper, Montreal; Second Vice-President, C. F. Sheldon, Kansas City; Secretary and Treasurer, William A. Hutchinson, Chicago; Corresponding Secretary, W. S. Pride, Wilmington, Del.... Charles C. Fuller, President, and J. T. Maury, Treasurer, of the Chaplin Paper Company, of Norwich, Conn., have absconded, leaving outstanding obligations estimated to amount to $70,000, the greater part of which is believed to be in forged notes.

THE steam yacht Octavia, built at Cleveland in 1864, for T. W. Kennard, engineer of the Atlantic and Great Western railroad, is under surveillance at New York, suspected of being fitted out to aid the Cuban insurgents.... The Boston express train for New York ran off the track near the latter city, last week, narrowly escaping destruction. Two parlor coaches were overturned and a number of passengers quite severely bruised. Vice-President Wilson was in the rear coach and escaped injury. Miss Annie Louise Cary, the vocalist, was slightly hurt. Ex-Speaker Blaine occupied a seat in the first coach, and received slight injuries.

THE long strike in the Pennsylvania regions is ended, the miners having agreed to resume work at the price offered by the mine owners at the beginning of the strike.

THE Court of Appeals, of the State of New York, has set aside the sentence in the case of Boss Tweed and ordered his discharge.

A TERRIBLE explosion occurred last week in Boston, in a large building used as a manufactory of fireworks. The men and boys were employed in the building at the time, only one of whom escaped uninjured. Without a moment's warning, the building was blown up with a terrific report, and a confused mass of inflammable material at once took fire and was entirely consumed before any assistance could be rendered by the fire department. Six bodies, burned and charred beyond recognition, were taken from the ruins.... Tappin Wentworth, of Lowell, Mass., who died a few days ago, bequeathed the bulk of his property to Dartmouth College. The bequest is estimated at $175,000.

THE centennial celebration of the battle of Bunker Hill took place at Boston on the 17th of June, and was the grandest demonstration that ever occurred in this country. The procession was immense, numbering over 50,000 persons, 20,000 military being in line, including troops from Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina and other States. The enthusiasm was intense, bells ringing, cannon roaring, and flags floating everywhere. The buildings of the city were most profusely decorated, and arches of flowers and evergreens were erected at all prominent points of the city. The streets were one vast mass of people, and it is estimated that there were 350,000 visitors in the city. The exercises at Bunker Hill monument were very interesting. Gen. Chas. Devens, Jr., was the orator of the day, his speech being confined to a graphic description of the battle. He was followed by Gen. Sherman, Governor Hartranft, Vice-President Wilson, Governor Ingersoll, and others, in short addresses. In the evening the city was ablaze with fire-works and calcium lights, and receptions were given to Gen. Sherman and the various regiments of visiting military.

THE WEST.

BILL KING has given bail to appear for trial at Washington on the charge of perjury.

HEAVY frosts visited some portions of Central and Western Michigan on the night of June 13, doing considerable damage to growing crops. ....It has been decided that the new Custom-House at Chicago is insecure, and that no safe foundation can be had without commencing on piling. All the work of Mullett, therefore, will have to come down, and Architect Potter will construct an entirely new building.

THE city of Quincy, Ill., was recently visited by a tornado of unusual violence. Twenty-seven buildings were unroofed or totally demolished, and scarcely a chimney was left standing in the track of the cyclone. The pecuniary loss is estimated at upward of $100,000. Only one person was killed, though many marvelous escapes are reported.

A FRIGHTFUL accident occurred near Chariton, Iowa, on the Burlington and Missouri River railroad, last week, by which five passengers were killed outright, and a number injured. The cause of the disaster was the high wind that prevailed at the time, which drove a freight train into the caboose of a stock train that had stopped for coal.... Two murderers were executed in Illinois on Friday, the 18th of June—John Casey at Paris, and Nathan Burgess at Effingham.... At Chicago, last week, while a party of workmen were blasting in a lime quarry, a premature explosion of powder occurred, resulting in the instant death of four of the men. The poor fellows were literally torn to pieces, and burned with the powder in the most shocking manner.

THE SOUTH.

AN atrocious murder was committed at Salem, Rutherford county, Tenn., last week. Wm. Jerrett returned home from a visit and found his wife lying dead on the floor with a cord drawn tightly around her throat. It is thought money was the object of the murder, as some was found missing.

WASHINGTON

ALL the members of the commission to treat with the Sioux for the relinquishment of the Black Hill have been appointed. The commission as constituted is as follows: Senators Allison and Morrill, Mr. Comingo, member of Congress from Missouri, Bishop Haven, the Rev. Mr. Hinman, and the Hon. F. W. Palmer, editor of the Chicago Inter-Ocean. All the members have signified their acceptance except Senator Morrill and Bishop Haven. The commission will rendezvous at Yankton about the middle of July, and will proceed thence to the various Sioux agencies.

THE Treasury Department has issued the new regulations relative to the examination of baggage of passengers from abroad. Every passenger will be compelled to make a sworn statement of the number of packages contained in each package, and to specifically state whether there are any articles intended for use of other persons. Any misrepresentation of facts will subject the baggage to forfeiture.

GENERAL.

AFTER thirteen years and repeated fruitless efforts the iron safe of the United States man-of-war Cumberland, which was sunk in Hampton Roads by the Rebel ram Virginia, in 1862, has been recovered by a party of divers. The safe is supposed to contain about $100,000 in gold, which will go to the lucky finders.

AN American fishing-boat has picked up and brought into St. Johns, N. B., nine of the crew and three of the passengers of the lost steamship Vicksburg.... Several oil tanks and two or three warehouses belonging to Lockhart & Frew and Graff, Bennett & Co., just outside of the city of Pittsburgh, were destroyed by fire last week. About 150,000 barrels of oil were consumed. Total loss, $400,000.

THE grasshoppers have forsaken Western Missouri, and are taking their flight northward.

TOM MCGEHAN, a notorious desperado, made famous by the tragic end of his counsel, Hon. C. L. Vallandigham, who lost his life in explaining some points in the trial of McGehan for the murder of a man named Myers, was assassinated in his saloon, at Hamilton, Ohio, at 12 o'clock last Monday night.

THE lumber operatives of Chicago recently threatened a strike in consequence of a reduction in their pay, but better counsels prevailed, and they very sensibly concluded they would be cutting their own throats by such a course, as a number of unemployed were ready to take their place. They therefore continued to work as usual at reduced rates.

RECENT fires: The business portion of Newfield, N. Y., with a loss of $150,000; J. P. Kipp's carriage factory, New York, loss $100,000; at Barrasois, Cape Breton, destroying five houses and sweeping everything between there and Green Cove, a distance of nine miles, and burning the latter place.... Advices from the Rio Grande frontier indicate that affairs are becoming desperate in that region. A band of Cortina's cattle thieves who were caught raiding on the Texas side were attacked and twelve of them killed. This enraged Cortina, who is Mayor of Matamoras, and has fully 3,000 men at his command. He threatens to retaliate, and the settlers, as well as the citizens of Brownsville, are preparing for hostilities, which seem imminent.

THE war between the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads is ended, the two companies having compromised their difficulties.

POLITICAL.

THE California Republican State Convention met at Sacramento, on the 11th, and nominated the following ticket: Governor, T. G. Phelps; Lieutenant-Governor, Joseph M. Cavis; Secretary of State, O. H. Hallett; Comptroller, J. J. Green; Surveyor, R. E. Gardner; Treasurer, William Beckman; Attorney-General, E. D. Sawyer; Clerk of Supreme Court, Grant J. Taggart; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Ezra C. Carr. The platform adopted recognizes the career of President Grant; accepts the letter of the President as a final settlement of the third-term question; declares that the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments to the Constitution should be maintained; condemns that portion of the Southern people who intimidate the colored voters; demands economy and honesty in the administration of State and county governments; and that the State and its common schools be kept free from ecclesiastical or secular control; a declaration of war upon the railroad companies which deny and resist the right of State regulation and control of fares and tolls, and a pledge that the Republican members of the Legislature will vote for a fair and reasonable reduction in this direction.

THE Maine Republicans have nominated Gen. Selden Connor for Governor.

THE Democratic State convention of Ohio, at Columbus, last week, was one of the largest ever held. The following ticket was put in the field: Governor, William Allen, of Ross; Lieutenant-Governor, Samuel F. C. Treyon, of Hamilton; Supreme Judge, Thomas Q. Ashburn, of Clermont; Auditor, E. M. Greene, of Shelby; Treasurer, John Schreiner, of Meigs; Attorney-General, Thomas E. Powell, of Delaware; member of the Board of Public Works, H. E. Geghan, of Erie.

FOREIGN.

AN order has been issued from the Imperial Chancellor at Berlin prohibiting the circulation of the Catholic Gazette, of Baltimore, for two years, within the boundaries of the German empire.... The Italian Parliament is greatly exercised over a bill for the suppression of brigandage in Sicily and elsewhere. The brigands appear to have nearly as many friends as opponents in the Chambers.... News has just been received of a terrible earthquake in New Grenada, South America. The destruction was great in the valley of Cucula, on the Venezuelean frontier. Some 16,000 lives are reported lost by the calamity.... A crisis is imminent in Greece which may result in the abdication of the King. Turkish men-of-war have been ordered to cruise in Greek waters. The Russian Minister has advised the King not to abdicate without securing the rights of his heir to the throne. The intervention of foreign powers is probable.

THE proposed new law in France regulating the press prohibits newspapers criticising the President or the form of government under severe penalties, and they are not to be allowed to publish "false" news or petitions for a change in the Constitution.... The officers of the United States squadron have received a most cordial welcome in Berlin from the Prince Imperial and the Chief of the German Admiralty.

AT Toronto, recently, Chief Justice Draper gave judgment in the Peel election case, and disqualifying Mr. Chisholm for offering two electors situations, in the event of their losing employment through voting for him.... The upper house of the Prussian Diet adjourned after finally passing the bill withdrawing the State grants from the Roman Catholic clergy.

THE failure of Alex. Collie & Co., commission merchants, of London and Manchester, Eng., is announced, with liabilities at £3,000,000.... The American Rifle Team received a grand ovation on their arrival at Dublin last week. The streets were crowded, the buildings profusely decorated, and the enthusiasm immense.

THE suspension of the firm of Bennett, Benson & Co., of Quebec, is announced, with liabilities estimated at over $1,000,000.... After having passed through the vicissitudes of infancy and reached the mature age of a thousand years, Iceland finds that her troubles have just begun. The venerable island away off toward the frozen regions has had a terrible touch of the other extreme, and what with a general outbreak of volcanoes supposed to have subsided centuries ago, earthquakes and furious storms of ashes and cinders, the unfortunate Icelanders have suffered a disaster the equal of which is unknown in history. About one-fifth of the entire population have been rendered homeless and destitute, and several hundred persons are reported to have perished.

PORTUGAL has prohibited the introduction into that country and the adjacent islands of potatoes from the United States.... A shooting match at Dublin for the Rifle Club challenge cup was participated in by some of the Americans, and although the cup was won by Rigby, a Dublin gunmaker, the shooting was regarded as showing the superiority of the Americans, as the match was mainly for practice, and this was their first visit to the scene of the coming contest.... There is a general feeling of disquietude in London business circles, and a number of failures are announced, mainly of houses engaged in the East India trade.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

The financial situation is without particular change. The offerings of loanable funds were large, and the market was dull. Government bonds firm.

	Buying.	Selling.
U. S. 6's of '81	120¾	120⅞
U. S. 5-20's of '62 (ex. int.)	117¾	118¼
U. S. 5-20's of '64 (ex. int.)	118¼	118¾
U. S. 5-20's of '65 (ex. int.)	122¼	122¾
U. S. 5-20's of '65 January and July	123	123½
U. S. 5-20's of '67 January and July	124¾	125
U. S. 5-20's of '68 January and July	124¼	124¾
U. S. 10-40's	118¾	119
U. S. new 5's of '81 (ex. int.)	117¼	117½
U. S. currency 6's	122¼	122¾
Gold (full weight)	116¼	116¾
Gold coupons	116¼	116¾
Gold exchange	116½	116¾

BREADSTUFFS.

The movement in the grain markets has been moderately active during the past week, speculators taking hold freely, and liberal sales were made for July delivery. The prevailing feeling was generally a trifle firmer than during the preceding week, and the closing quotations show a slight improvement on wheat, corn and barley, while oats were weak and easier. The forward movement was fair of wheat, but light on the other grains, and the stock in store is still considerably larger than usual at this season of the year. Wheat was heavier almost all week. Corn was irregular, ruling higher and lower alternately. The warm weather on Friday caused a pressure to sell and values were 1c lower. Saturday the cold weather caused an advance. Oats were weak and lower, the favorable weather increasing the pressure to sell. Rye was quiet and steady. Barley was firm and in demand.

The following table shows the prices current at the opening and close of the past week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash	$ .95 @ .96	$ .98¼@ .98½
No. 2, seller June	@ .95	@ .98¾
No. 2 seller July	.97 @ .98	@1.00¾
No. 2 seller August	.99 @ .99¾	1.00¼@1.00¾
No. 2 corn, cash	.67 @ .68	.67½@ .68
No. 2 corn, seller June	@ .67	@ .67½
No. 2 corn, seller July	.69½@ .70	@ .69
No. 2 corn, s. August	.72½@ .73	.71½@ .71½
No. 2 oats, cash	.62½@ .63	.58½@ .59
No. 2 oats, seller June	.62½@ .63	.58½@ .58½
No. 2 oats, seller July	.57 @ .57¼	.56½@ .57
No. 2 oats, s. August	.42 @ .43	@ .41½
No. 2 rye, cash	@ .98	@ .96
No. 2 rye, s. August	@ .78	@ .78
No. 2 rye, s. Sept.	@ .75	@ .75
No. 2 barley, cash	@1.18	@1.25
No. 2 barley, s. Sept.	.98 @1.00	@1.05½

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

There was but little done in cooperage during the week, and prices were a shade easier for lard tierces, but the other descriptions remain unchanged. Quotations range at $1.10@1.15 for pork barrels, $1.35 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.00 for whisky barrels, and 50@53c each for flour barrels. Lumber was fairly active, but an easier feeling was developed and prices were a trifle weak. At the close of the week but few cargoes remained unsold. Quotable at $10.00@11.50 for common boards, $10.00@12.00 for joist and scantling, $11.00@15.00 for square to round pickets, and $1.25@3.00 for No. 1 to A sawed shingles. In wood there was no change of importance noticeable. Prices remain steady at $7.50 per cord for hickory and maple, $6.50 for beech, and $6 for slabs at the yards.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

There was a fair demand for Hungarian and millet seeds, and prices were very firm, but for the other descriptions the inquiry continues light, and, although but a limited number of sales were made, prices remain steady and firm. Sales of timothy ranged at $2.30@2.40 for fair to good, and $2.45@2.55 for prime. Clover was inactive and nominal at about $6.40@6.50 for prime medium; flax quotable at $1.60@1.65 for good crushing; Hungarian sold at $1.40@1.50 for prime, and $2 was paid for prime millet. There was quite a good demand for buckwheat and a fair business was reported at $1.35@1.40 for prime.

PROVISIONS.

The movement in this market shows a slight increase over the amount of business transacted during the previous week. The feeling was somewhat unsettled, and prices were rather irregular, although the fluctuations were not severe. The advices from Eastern markets were somewhat varied in tenor, while foreign were firmer for lard, but quoted an easier feeling in meats. Cash mess pork closed steady at $19.37½@19.40; seller August was in fair request at $19.60@19.67½, and closed at $19.62½@19.65. Cash lard quiet but firm at $13.30; seller July closed at $13.35@13.37½, and August at $13.60@13.65.

LIVE STOCK.

The cattle market was active and higher all the week, but closed easier on Saturday. Native steers $5.00@7.00; bulk of sales, $6.00@6.50; Texans, $2.50@4.50; stockers, $2.50@4.50. Hogs were also higher, but closed easy. Yorkers, $6.90@7.40; heavy, $6.90@7.50. Sheep dull at $2.50@4.50.

PRODUCE.

There was no particular change noticeable in the condition of the butter market during the past week. The receipts were liberal and there was quite an accumulation in the supply. The inquiry was chiefly on local account, though occasionally shippers bought a few lots, but the latter class of buyers, as a rule, were not willing to pay the prices asked by holders, and the movement from this source was light. The feeling throughout was one of weakness, and prices suffered a slight depreciation. Quotations ranged at 23@24c for extras 18@22c for firsts, 14@18c for seconds, 12½@14c for thirds, and 9@12c for grease and common old stock. There was a good demand for Eastern beans, and a fair business was reported at $1.90 for prime, but for Western the sales continue slow and prices were irregular; quotable at $1.00@1.80, according to quality. Broom corn was moderately active and firmer prices were maintained; quotable at 11½@14c for No. 1 to extra hurl, and 10½@11½c for good to choice stalk braid. Beeswax quiet at 26@28c for good to prime yellow. Cider was dull and easier; quotable at $4.00@4.50 per brl for choice sweet, and about $3.00 in kegs. Cranberries were also dull at $8.00@10.50 per brl for good to choice cultivated, and about $3.50@3.75 in one-bushel boxes. There was a fair movement in cheese, but prices were a shade easier. The principal sales of new were made at 9½@10c for prime; common old sold at 3@6c. Dried fruits under more liberal offerings were a shade easier; quotable at 8½@8¾c for Michigan and New York apples, 9@9¼c for halves peaches, and 9½@9¾c for blackberries. Dried peas sold slowly at $2.00@2.10 for choice green, and about $1.65@1.75 for marrowfat. Eggs were in fair request, and the market during the week ruled quite steady; closed at 14½c. Feathers remain dull at 48@52 for prime live geese, and 30@35c per lb for prime turkey tail feathers. Green fruits were very dull, and the apples offered on the market were nearly all in bad order. Sales were made in lots at $1@1.50 per brl for good, and in a retail way at $1@2.50, according to quality. Hides were firm, but quiet. Green salted quoted at 8c all round; calf, 12½@13c, and dry calf, 18@19c. Honey was almost unsalable, and prices were weak at 18@23c per lb for comb, and 10@11c for strained. The season for brewing is about over, and the demand for hops was very light. Prices were a shade lower. Quotable at 20@30c per lb for common to choice from first hand. Maple sugar dull, with speculators about the only buyers. Quotable at 8@12½c per lb for pure new. There was a fair demand for choice fresh receipts of new potatoes at $4.00@4.75 per brl, but common lots were very dull and sales ranged at $2.50@3.00. Potatoes remain rather quiet. Eastern peachblows sold at 70@75c in car lots, and Western do at 60@65c. Poultry was rather quiet. Turkeys sold at 11@12c per lb, old chickens at $3.50@4.25 per doz, and spring at $2.00@3.00 per doz, according to size and quality. Vegetables remain dull at $2.00@3.00 per brl for onions, and $1.25@1.50 per barrel for parsnips. There was a fair demand for choice carcasses of veal, but common sold slowly. Sales ranged at 3@7½c for poor to choice.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	11 @ 13
HOGS—Dressed	9 @ 10
COTTON	15¾@ 16¾
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 60 @ 4 90
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 16 @ 1 18
No. 1 Spring	1 23 @ 1 24
CORN	84 @ 86
OATS	60 @ 71
RYE	88 @ 1 10
PORK—New Mess	19 25 @ 19 75
LARD—Steam	11 @ 15

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red	1 35 @ 1 36
CORN—No. 2 New	67 @ 69
OATS—No. 2	58 @ 60
RYE—No. 2	1 10 @ 1 12
PORK—Mess	19 50 @ 19 75
LARD	11 @ 13
HOGS	6 25 @ 7 50
CATTLE	4 75 @ 6 50

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 03 @ 1 05
No. 2	1 00 @ 1 01
CORN—No. 2	67 @ 69
OATS—No. 2	@ 56
RYE	93 @ 95
BARLEY—No. 2	98 @ 1 00

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT—Red	1 20 @ 1 25
CORN—New	71 @ 73
OATS	64 @ 66
RYE	1 08 @ 1 10
PORK—Mess	19 00 @ 19 50
LARD	12 @ 13

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—Extra	1 27 @ 1 29
Amber	1 24 @ 1 26
CORN—New	75 @ 77
OATS	63 @ 65

DETROIT.

WHEAT—Extra	@ 1 25
Amber	@ 1 20
CORN	69 @ 72
OATS	60 @ 62

CLEVELAND.

WHEAT—No. 1 Red	1 22 @ 1 24
No. 2 Red	1 17 @ 1 19
CORN	72 @ 75
OATS	65 @ 67

Fractional Currency Gossip.

"Lucretia," she said, with a long-drawn sigh, as she gently closed the last volume of "The Mill on the Floss," which she had drawn from the Treasury Department library a day or two previous, "don't you think that George Eliot's works are very elevating in their character?"

"Yes, indeed I do," responded Lucretia, ceasing for a moment the work of counting a large pile of fractional currency which lay before her. "They teach us the virtue of self-denial so beautifully."

"Yes, and who can help feeling scorn for the little vanities of the world after reading the noble, almost inspired words of the great authoress?"

"No one that reads them I am sure, my dear; but when is the dressmaker going to finish your new plaid?"

"I don't know; the hateful thing has disappointed me four or five times. I think she is real mean, too, because I promised to pay her half cash as soon as the suit was finished."

"Oh, they are all alike, Araminta, mine has served me the same way. But are you going to send your mother any money next pay day?"

"I would like to, Lucretia, but really I won't be able to. You know I haven't paid up entirely for my new hat, the one with the hyacinth flowers and the mauve trimmings. I guess ma is only fussing, she don't really need the money."

"I can't send anything home either, although mother gave me fits in her last letter. I have over seventy dollars to pay, and I don't know how in the world I shall do it, and send her all I make beside."

And then both the girls sighed and said a few more complimentary things about George Eliot, and went on with their work of counting mutilated currency.—Washington Chronicle.

The Story of an Overcoat.

The advantages that newspaper readers have over those that do not read them is incalculable. Here is a case in point to show the truth of this assertion. A few days ago the peasants in the valley of the Chevreuse were greatly excited over the discovery of an overcoat in a field. It was a thick and comfortable garment, unlike anything seen in the district, and evidently belonged to a stranger. A crime was suspected, and all the more readily because Chevreuse is not far from Limours, the scene of several mysterious murders, the authors of which had never been discovered. The police were sent for, the magistrates came upon the ground, the people of the district assembled, an old official inquiry was issued. The peasants began to gossip, and several remembered to have seen men in similar coats passing in the dusk of evening, followed later by men of villainous aspect. While the authorities were carefully examining the ground to find the tracks of the assassins, Count Breteuil drove by reading a newspaper, and got out to see what was the matter. He took the coat and found it marked, "Silvel." The mystery was explained to him for he had just then read of the good air-ship Zenith that had gone up on the 23d and sailed away over the Valley of the Chevreuse, and the Zenith was commanded by Capt. Silvel. Count Breteuil took the coat and sent it to its owner in Paris. M. Silvel had taken up his coat to put it on, but had to adjust a rope at the moment, and threw it across the edge of the basket. He unfortunately hit it with his foot and pushed it overboard, and had to suffer for his negligence during the cold hours of the night. —Paris Letter.

Witty Actors.

There was some humor in the retort of a country actor of the name of Knipe to the famous Barry, who was, like myself, impatient of the incompetency of the players of the company. "Do not speak your speech, sir, in that drawling way," said Barry, in his energetic manner. "Look at me, sir; speak it in this way—'To ransom home revolted Mortimer!'—that's the way to speak it, sir." To which the actor immediately replied, "I know that, sir—that is the way; but you'll please to remember you get £100 a week for speaking it in your way, and I only get thirty shillings for mine! Give me £100, and I'll speak it in your way; but I'm not going to do for thirty shillings what you get £100 pounds for." —Macready's Reminiscences.

REMARKABLE LONGEVITY.—There ar frequent and remarkable instances of longevity among the Russians. A man born in 1760 has just died. He was six feet five inches in height, and was possessed of immense strength up to the time of his death, which resulted from a fall. Another man born in the same year is still living. Among the notabilities at court are a number of octogenarians, and one lady, a nonogenarian, who reads without spectacles and walks without a stick.

An Eccentric Star.

The most singular thing connected with the proper motions of the stars is that one or two stars are flying through space with such enormous rapidity that the combined attraction of all the stars visible with the telescope could never stop them. This seems to be especially the case with a small star, invisible to the naked eye, designated in astronomical literature as "Groombridge, 1830," from the name of the astronomer who first recorded its position. The rate of motion of the star is about seven seconds per year—the greatest known. It was hence concluded that it must be very near us, and a number of astronomers have sought to determine its parallax, but have found it to be only a tenth of a second. Its apparent motion in a year being seventy times its parallax, it moves at least seventy times the distance from the earth to the sun in a year, or 18,000,000 of miles every day, and more than 200 miles every second. From what we know of the distribution, masses, and number of the stars, it seems probable that the attraction of all the bodies in the universe can never stop this headlong speed, nor bring this star into an orbit, and that consequently it will pass through our universe, and leave it entirely in its passage through infinite space. If we had accurate observations of the star's position 3,000 or 4,000 years ago, we could speak with more certainty of its destiny. We may expect that our posterity of a few thousand years hence, will, by the aid of the observations and tables we shall transmit to them, be able to come to a definite conclusion respecting the age and the structure of the universe.

The Coolie Trade.

We have been disposed in this country to regard the coolie trade as only another form of slavery, and the British Foreign Anti-Slavery Society has, in many recent publications, taken the same view. Some time since a deputation from this society waited upon Lord Carnarvon, the English Secretary for Colonial Affairs, and asked for the prohibition of the coolie trade to the English colonies. His Lordship replied that "coolie emigration, if carefully watched, might be a blessing to the colonies and the emigrants; that even in the Pacific, Bishop Paterson had advised regulation, and not suppression, and that he himself might be trusted, for he had just emancipated the slaves on the west coast of Africa." The difficulty about the coolie question is the disposition of the settlers to deal with coolies as with slaves, practically by keeping them for a term of years, and by enforcing imprisonment upon them in the event of their refusing to labor. The London Spectator makes a wise suggestion when it says "that were the single principle that a contract to labor is a civil debt, and nothing else, fairly carried out, there would be very little oppression." Labor should be bought and sold as sugar is purchased, and then the coolies would work for those who treat them well and pay them properly. One problem is how to punish kidnapping, which is one of the evils attending the coolie trade, and it is properly suggested that if kidnapping were made piracy and punishable with death, it would be over in a year.—New York Herald.

Plan for the Preservation of Peace.

The general inconvenience arising from "war scares" has suggested to an ingenious Frenchman a scheme for mitigating, and in the long run probably averting, the evils caused by thus trifling with the nerves of Europe. His plan also has the merit of meeting the views of not only those who hold that international differences should be adjusted by the sword, but also of those who, on the other hand, advocate "a resort to arbitration." Under the new system there will be both fighting and arbitration; and plenty of both. He proposes that, when two nations growl and scowl at each other to such an extent as to make the general society of nations uncomfortable, and to agitate the stock exchanges throughout the continent, it shall be submitted to an international court of arbitration to decide whether the two nations shall not be called upon to fight out their quarrel at once, whether prepared or not for immediate hostilities. In the event of their declining to do so at the bidding of the court, they are to be simultaneously attacked by all the other nations, and to bear the whole cost of the movements against them. It is improbable, however, that they will bring matters to this pass by refusing to fight when desired to do so; for it may be taken for granted that they would infinitely prefer a sanguinary tussle with each other to being together engaged in defending themselves against an attack of the whole civilized world, and being thus united by a bond of sympathy totally at variance with their mutual feeling of antagonism.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Arctic Exploration.

Within the Polar circle there is an enormous area, comprising at least 2,000,000 square miles, of which we know simply nothing. We shall have presently to speak of the various speculations regarding the nature of this vast extent of the world's surface; it is enough for our immediate purpose to say that we do not know anything whatever about it. Whether it is land, water or ice; whether the climate is cold or warm; whether there are inhabitants, animals, plants, or whether it is a howling wilderness—speculation has included almost every possibility, and almost every absurdity; but of knowledge such as alone intelligent men can be content with, we have absolutely none. To attain some such knowledge is the first object now proposed in Arctic exploration. It is considered unfitting and unseemly, in the present state of scientific progress, that there should be this large area of our earth's surface still so utterly unknown. The examination of it is loudly called for; it is a problem of universal interest, the solution of which appeals not to commercial profits, pecuniary advantage, increased facility for transport and communication, but simply, in the first instance, to those higher feelings and yearnings which, whatever our remote ancestry, now distinguish us from the brutes. We want to traverse this unknown space and see and know what it is.—Edinburgh Review.

AN edition of the Bible is to be printed in London with all the proper names accented to show their pronunciation.

"Beware of Confidence Men."

The number of men who are "victimized" by and the amount of money gained by "confidence men" of one kind or another in cities are surprisingly large and do not seem to grow less, notwithstanding the number of signs with the above inscription and the frequent warnings of the press. We attach very little importance to giving details of this or that particular trick by which men are deceived. It is much safer to rely on some general principles, for it is safe to say that the cases are very rare in which a man has lost money through "confidence men" of any kind, when the loss is not attributable to an excess of credulity, ignorance of business customs, or a desire to make money too easily or dishonestly.

Among the rules it is well to bear in mind when traveling or in large cities, the following may be named: It is neither the best of taste, nor very safe to be making a show of large quantities of money. Ordinarily it is best not to carry large sums on the person. If this seems advisable a sum sufficient for the ordinary expenses should be kept separate and the rest need not be exhibited nor spoken of.

It is neither necessary nor advisable to tell strangers your name, business, destination, and general history. One need not shut himself up like an oyster. The little courtesies and talk of civilized life should be found among travelers, but many a man could trace his loss of money to too free talk about himself.

While little courtesies and favors may properly be exchanged between strangers, the cases are extremely rare in which a stranger should propose or you should offer favors which require the loaning of money or the purchase of property. When a stranger finds himself in need of little or much money and asks you for it, proposing to give as security, or sell at a great sacrifice, a fine watch or valuable diamond, or to secure you by a check, draft or bonds, etc., it is perfectly safe to express your regret that it is not convenient for you to accommodate him, as some hundreds of men who have received brass watches, glass pins or worthless checks can testify.

Proper inquiries will almost invariably be civilly and correctly answered by railroad conductors, ticket agents, policemen, hotel clerks, etc. As a rule, they should be addressed to such men rather than to strangers, however friendly.

If in a city you are addressed by some "old friend" who calls you by your own or some other name, but of whom you have no recollection, there is no objection to being as polite as he is, but there are very good reasons for not going out of your way to oblige him, or acting on his advice, however plausible—as a good many men who have stopped to "take a drink" with such a "friend," or gone with him "to see the sights" or to look up a "good chance to make money," have found out to their cost.

It ought not to be necessary to caution any one against accepting invitations to patronize lotteries, cheap auctions, etc., or against betting with monte-men, or gamblers of any kind, but it is unfortunately true that large numbers of men who ought to know better have been "swindled" in these ways. For such men it is not easy to get up much sympathy.

To sum up, the man who quietly attends to his own business, neither seeking nor permitting too great familiarity on the part of strangers, who transacts his business so far as possible with well established and reputable firms, and who is not led astray by apparent opportunities to make money dishonestly, will rarely have need to complain of being swindled by confidence men.—Western Rural.

The Widow Cabochard.

At the Pere la Chaise cemetery, near Paris, there stands in a conspicuous position a splendid monument to Pierre Cabochard, grocer, which closes thus: "His inconsolable widow dedicates this monument to his memory, and continues the same business at the old stand, 161 Rue Mouffetard." A Parisian paper relates that a short time ago a gentlemen who had noticed the above inscription was led by curiosity to call at the address indicated. Having expressed his desire to see the widow Cabochard, he was immediately ushered into the presence of a fashionably-dressed and full-bearded man, who asked what was the object of his visit. "I came to see the widow Cabochard, sir." Well, sir, here she is." "I beg pardon, but I wish to see the lady in person." "Sir, I am the widow Cabochard." "I don't exactly understand you. I allude to the relict of the late Pierre Cabochard, whose monument I saw yesterday at Pere la Chaise." "I see, I see," was the smiling rejoinder. "Allow me to inform you that Pierre Cabochard is a myth, and therefore never had a wife. The tomb you have admired cost me a good deal of money, quite a small fortune indeed, and, although no one is buried there, it proves a first-rate advertisement, and I have no cause to regret the expense. Now, sir, what can I sell you in the way of groceries?"

Highwaymen in Mexico.

The works on Mexico which I read on the voyage between New Orleans and Santa Cruz impressed me with the idea that Mexico was filled with rascals who rivaled Richard Turpin and Robin Hood. It was asserted that "the country is full of robbers. Stage coaches are robbed on every road. The government is powerless to protect life or property," and there were stories of warlike preparations to meet those banditti. But I have seen neither robbers nor fears of robberies. We came up over the railroad without either guard or weapons, and I am told here that the apprehensions of brigands had no foundations except in the imagination of the writers. And so of the "Alameda," or public park here. It is gravely asserted in the last-written and most interesting book on Mexico, in speaking of this park, that "one cannot walk there in midday without peril." Yet the American Minister tells me that he sends his children there almost daily to play, and to-night, about 10 o'clock, a friend took me to walk there. We wore our watch-chains and breast-pins, and carried no weapons—not even sticks—but no one troubled us. Hundreds were promenading under the trees in perfect security, and I returned to write this letter, with my faith in the stories of Mexican brigandage terribly shaken.—Perley, in Boston Journal.

AUBURN COURIER

T. G. MAIS, Publisher.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

A Frenchman sent to New Caledonia for murdering his wife wanted to marry a woman there whose crime was the murder of her husband; but the authorities refused to let them marry until certificates of the death of their respective spouses had been duly obtained from France.

The present Ministry of Great Britain are urging a plan for the gradual extinguishment of the national debt of that country. It is proposed to reduce the debt at the rate of $10,000,000 annually, and, as the entire debt is now about $3,700,000,000 it would require some 370 years for the complete carrying out of the scheme.

Advices from Spain indicate that the government of King Alfonso is weakening; that there is a movement on foot in Madrid for the restoration of the republic; and that there is a possibility that the Carlists may yet be successful. Spain is the sick member of the European family of nations, and appears to be getting no better very fast."

On Bird's Island, in Scott county, Mo., about two and a half miles from the Cape county line, there is a hill three miles in circumference which is a well-known landmark to all who ever visited the "swamps." During a heavy rainstorm which occurred in that section on Saturday night, about three-fourths of an acre of this hill slid into the swamp, of course carrying with the earth trees of the largest size, shrubbery, etc.

San Francisco is proud of its Palace Hotel, and items like this crop out in each issue of the city newspapers: "A Salt Lake man visiting this city was amazed at the Palace Hotel. When he went home, he confidentially remarked to a party of his friends: 'Why, you could hang the tabernacle out of the seventh story of this great house, and it wouldn't appear bigger than a bird cage, and Brigham would look like a fly-speck.'"

A house-owner took a policy in the Agricultural Insurance Company, of Watertown, N. Y., stating to the agent that the size of his house was unknown, and not sure about this, the agent verbally promised that he should not be held strictly to the statement. The policy, however, stipulated that all the statements were warranties, and the house being in fact 24x29 when it was burned down, the company refused to pay, and the Supreme Court held them not bound.

The International Typographical Convention in session at Boston named Philadelphia, and July 1, 1876, as the place and date for holding the next annual convention. The Greeley Monument Committee reported that a fund of $5,052 was sufficient to guarantee the erection of a suitable memorial within a year. A resolution was adopted requiring subordinate Unions to refuse full membership to young men under 20 years of age, and instructing Unions to admit none who have not served four years at the business.

In South Carolina the financial and industrial situation is better than at any time since the war, and the same is also true of Mississippi. In the latter State there is more land under cultivation, and better worked at that, than ever before. An increase of from four to six and even ten per cent. in cotton over the average of the past several years is anticipated in the cotton product, while there will be much larger corn crops also. General thrift is looked for when the crops are ready for the market.

The Shah of Persia made a bargain with Reuter, the news Prince of Europe, by which his country was to have railroads and telegraphs in abundance; but his European trip dissatisfied him with the arrangement, and the trade was "off." He then made a railroad concession to one Falkenhagen, and now the cable reports that it has lapsed, because the contract was not fulfilled. The times are hard on that side of the Atlantic as well as this, and wild-cat railroad speculations are at a discount.

Three great railway magnates—Jewett, of the Erie, Vanderbilt, of the New York Central, and Scott, of the Pennsylvania Central—are trying to get ahead of Garrett, of the Baltimore and Ohio. The latter is the great bear of transportation rates, while they would "bull" the charges to extortionate rates. Much the same contest was waged several years ago, when Dean Richmond was the head-center of the anti-Garrett ring. The combination failed then, and we believe it will fail now.

There was a singular performance in a Boston court last week. During the trial of a case, a juryman began questioning a witness in such a manner that the District Attorney called him (the juryman) as a witness. This was objected to by the other side as an unheard-of proceeding, but the court ruled that the evidence was admissible, and it was received, though it is probably the first time in the history of Massachusetts Courts that a juror has testified in a case upon which he is to give a verdict.

The Schenectady Union relates an interesting story connected with the last days of the fatal illness of a young lady named Agnes Ledgerwood, in the town of Putnam, Washington county. She had expressed a desire for a boiled partridge, but her friends deeming it impossible to procure one, endeavored to persuade her out of the notion by offering to obtain a squirrel. This idea did not seem to suit her, and her appetite craved the partridge alone; and strange to say, during the same day a partridge flew against the house, and becoming disabled, was readily caught and cooked for the dying girl. It was about the last of earthly gratifications she was permitted to enjoy, as she soon after expired.

An Eastern paper recently contained a letter from a passenger on board a steamer running between New York and Aspinwall, in which the Captain was charged with timidity because he slowed his engine rather than run the risk of entering the harbor in a fog, and the company was called upon to remove him or else to give him orders to make quicker passages. It is just this sort of idiocy on the part of the traveling public which leads to such disasters as the wreck of the Schiller. Passengers who know nothing whatever of the means proper to be taken to insure the safety of a steamer, but who are anxious to make a fast passage at any risk, are always ready to accuse a Captain of timidity who prefers safety to speed. There is little doubt that had the Captain of the Schiller stopped his vessel to sound, his passengers would have resented the delay. No Captain likes to be called a coward, or to have passengers writing letters to the newspapers calling on his owners to remove him. The result is that Captains run risks in order to make quick passages and please the public, and when by so doing they occasionally lose their vessels they are denounced almost as violently as they would have been had they brought their ships into port safely, but also a few hours late.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

There are 101 farmers in the Connecticut Legislature.

The "Democratic-Liberal" party of Minnesota will hold its nominating convention at St. Paul July 7.

Ex-Secretary Richardson, accompanied by his wife, arrived at San Francisco May 26, on their tour around the world.

The Minnesota Republican State Central Committee has determined to call a State nominating convention at St. Paul July 28.

It is said that "Carl Schurz intends to bring his parents to this country on his return." That is to say he has gone back after his old Schurz.—Detroit Post.

Fault is found with Mayor Barnum's inconsistency in beginning a crusade against the Sunday liquor traffic at Bridgeport while he leases his New York hippodrome building to Gilmore for a music and beer garden.

General Breckinridge leaves a son who bears the name of "Owen County Breckinridge," in honor of the county which secured the election of his father to Congress in 1853, in the contest with Governor Letcher.

For delinquent County Treasurers, New York bears off the palm. Their number is fifteen, and the aggregate of their delinquencies is $622,973. Proceedings have been commenced against them by the Attorney-General of the State.

R. B. Elliott is said to be the smartest colored politician in the South. Of the fifty colored lawyers in South Carolina, he is the only one who gives promise of reaching a fair rank in the profession. He is the favorite candidate for the United States Senate.

A rumor has been in circulation mentioning that a serious rupture had occurred between Senator Morton and Secretary Bristow, growing out of differences of opinion concerning the distribution of offices under the Treasury Department. There is no foundation whatever for this report.

The oldest ex-United States Senator now living is said to be Peleg Sprague, formerly of Maine, who was Senator from that State from 1829 to 1835. He also represented the Kennebec District in Congress from 1825 to 1829, was subsequently for many years Judge of the United States District Court of Massachusetts, and is now living in Boston at a greatly advanced age.

The Utica Herald, noticing the demand of the National Temperance Convention at Chicago for a prohibitory enactment by Congress, says that Congress is as likely to subsidize a railroad to the moon as to interfere with the sale of liquors. The Herald manifestly believes the suppression of intemperance to be a matter of morals rather than of politics, and holds each of these sciences in an exclusive domain.

If Vice-President Wilson should need a certificate of the illness which the newspapers are constantly charging upon him, it will not do to apply at the Tribune office. Calling there yesterday, he found that the elevators were up at the moment, and so, scorning the idea of waiting for such helps, he promptly climbed the ten flights of stairs. Clearly he can't plead physical weakness as a reason for being excused from public service, or for delaying work on that third volume of his history, which has been so long promised.—New York Tribune.

INDIANA NEWS.

The State Prison North has 466 inmates.

John B. Blish, of Seymour, was the successful applicant for a place in the Naval Academy from the Third District.

A new two-cent evening Republican paper has been started at Lafayette. J. L. Cox & Brother are the publishers. Col. James Tullis, formerly County Treasurer, is local editor.

Jonathan Runyan, of South Bend, knows what it is to be buried in a sand bank for ten minutes. He will keep "out from under" in the future, for he says he "hates the sensation."

The Michigan City News has reduced itself one-half in size, and reduced the subscription price in a like proportion. It is said that part of it will hereafter be printed in the German language.

A man named John Lanfus was run over near Wilford by a train on the Baltimore and Ohio railway on Saturday night, and cut completely in two. Thirteen dollars and a bottle of whisky were found in his pockets.

Jefferson Davis has been invited to deliver an address before the Bartholomew County Agricultural Society this fall; and has signified his intention to accept, if the time can be agreed on to suit his engagements.

A saw-mill owned by S. J. Zimmerman, near St. Joseph, took fire last week, and was totally destroyed. The fire is supposed to have originated from some sawdust on top of the engine-boiler. Loss about $6,000; no insurance.

A man living in Clay township, near South Bend, had 24 sheep killed and wounded by two dogs. He followed the dogs to South Bend, and succeeded in killing them both, but was soon afterward arrested, on complaint of the dogs' owner, for shooting within the city limits. On a hearing he was discharged.

Five years ago a gentleman from Southport stumbled over the grindstone lying in the middle of the pavement in front of the Metropolitan Theater, in Indianapolis, dislocating his ankle. Last Thursday night he stumbled over it again, suffered another dislocation, and remarked the coincidence in some very muscular language.

The following figures show the financial condition of New Albany for the year ending May 20, 1875, as per City Clerk's report to the Council: Total indebtedness, $341,258.21. The receipts for the fiscal year, ending May 19, 1875, $142,425.14. The expenditures for the year amounted to $122,914.96. Total amount of city orders outstanding May 20, 1875, $9,718.21.

The courts of this State are determined to maintain their prerogative of divorce-granting. A few days ago two people in Indianapolis were married by a curious ceremony, one feature of which was an agreement that the marriage should cease whenever either of them got tired of it. The Grand Jury has been instructed to indict them. When divorces are as cheap as they are there is no excuse for trying to shirk the fees required by law.

The location of the camp ground at Lafayette has been surveyed and the lots laid out. There is to be a sale on or about the 1st of July. Several cottages are to be erected at once. There are about two hundred lots. The repairs on the old institute building are in progress. A new roof and a complete change in the style of architecture are among the improvements. A week or two hence and this commodious structure will be converted into a first-class boarding-house or summer hotel. Camp meeting will be early in August.

Changes have recently been made in Indiana postal affairs as follows: Postmasters Appointed—Belle Union, Putnam county, James N. Bourne; Deerfield, Randolph county, David S. Collins; Jonesboro, Grant county, Samuel R. Spence; Lawrence, Marion county, Isaac Records; Marshalville, Morgan county, Thomas W. Kingsbury; New Corner, Delaware county, Philip Wooding; Rainesville, Warren county, C. H. Hoffman; Rolling Prairie, LaPorte county, James Powell; Urneyville, Johnson county, Henry Fisher.

The Central Bank of Indianopolis, owned by Ridenour, Cones & Co., was robbed on Tuesday evening of $7,000. The circumstances are as follows: Three accomplices, two men and a woman, after having registered at the Bates, drove to the bank while only two clerks were in the office. One clerk went outside to wait on the woman, while the other was engaged by the second accomplice, leaving the third free to make a raid on the safe. The plan was well formed and successfully carried into effect, but the thieves spoiled their game by leaving immediately on a western-bound train. Dispatches announcing the capture of the entire party have been received from Lafayette, though their correct names are not yet known.

The scarf worn by Sam Houston at San Jacinto, and wrapped about a wound he received in the famous charge in that battle, is now on exhibition at a dyeing establishment in Alexandria, Va.

A Boston street car conductor hanged himself rather than use a bell punch.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

Plant tomatoes and egg plants in rich soil, pinch the shoots back above the flowering spurs. By pinching in and exposing the fruit it will ripen much earlier.

The first great requisite in making a lawn is to have a good drainage; after which prepare the ground by deep plowing and also by subsoiling, the soil requiring to be well pulverized and enriched to expect any success in our hot climate.

That mules are much better than horses on the farm no one can doubt who has used them together. The mule will do more work than a horse on less food, and is rarely diseased. They will not endure the abuse of a hard driver as the patient horse will, and very often, as an Irishman said, "get up on their ear," and drive the keeper from the stable.

Now, before the grass is any higher, is the best time one can have to go over all the mowing fields and pick up every loose stone that may be in the way of the scythe or the mowing machine. If there are many, it would be better to take a team along and carry them off at once, than to throw them in heaps to remain, no one knows how long, a source of vexation to the driver of the mower, tedder or horse-rake.

Onion seed may be sown at any time from March to September, but those only can be depended upon for ripening which are sown in the first and second spring months. The seed may be sown with any of the sowing machines for small seeds, in drills nine inches apart, thinned out afterwards to four inches in the row. Five pounds of seed sow an acre. The seed is as often sown in drills one foot apart, and from a quarter to half an inch in depth. Cover with fine soil and press the surface compactly with a light roller.

A correspondent of the New York World writes: "I find it pays to put wood ashes and lime and a light sprinkling of salt around each peach tree. The top earth should be removed from the trees before the ashes, lime and salt are put around it. If the trees are not all unthrifty it will restore them to life again, and in a short time they will look as thrifty as if nothing had been the matter with them. I think this helps to make the fruit stay on. I would advise every one that has a few trees to try what I have recommended, and see if their fruit does not ripen better and grow finer than when they are left to have their own way."

A writer in the National Live Stock Journal says: "I think the Jerseys require more food when in milk than the Ayreshires, and they will milk up to the time of calving, if well fed. They are not dainty feeders, but will eat coarse food with better relish than any other stock I have ever owned. If I thought the Ayreshires as good for a butter dairy as the Jerseys I should use them, as I could stock my farm with Ayreshires for about one-half the cost of stocking it with good Jerseys. On the other hand, if I wanted cows for making cheese or to feed young animals or selling milk, I should select Ayreshires, their milk being rich in the qualities which go to make cheese or bone and muscle."

In the absence of any means for subterranean ventilation of a stable, a perpendicular ventilating shaft or flue is preferable to openings in the walls during cold weather. Of course precautions must be taken that no animal shall get directly under the flue. It will be found that a column of vitiated air will seek a vent through the center of the shaft up into the atmosphere outside, while a cylinder of fresh air surrounding this will come down at the same time, lining the walls of the shaft till it gets into the building, and then dissipating itself everywhere. The shaft should be of ample dimensions, to produce the most satisfactory results; and the space next to its walls for the admission of cool air need not be as great as that provided for the egress of bad air—the latter being more or less rarefied.

About the House.

In dealing with furniture, remember to keep water away from anything soluble therein, oil from everything porous, alcohol from varnish, and acid from marble.

A thick paste of strong gum arabic, into which plaster of Paris is stirred, makes an excellent china cement. Apply with a brush, and let the article stand three days.

To take ink spots out of mahogany, touch with a feather dipped in a teaspoonful of water, to which a few drops of spirits of niter have been added, and rub quickly with a wet cloth.

Stove luster when mixed with turpentine and applied in the usual manner is blacker, more glossy and enduring than when mixed with any other liquid. Applied to an old rusty stove it will make it look like new.

To clean wall paper—tie a small bag of bran over the brush end of a broom and pass it up and down over the wall. Shake up the contents of the bag occasionally and remove the dust from the bag by brushing with a small brush broom.

Farmers' wives who sometimes lament the lack of "modern conveniences" their isolated life entails upon them will not look on the want of gas as so great a deprivation, perhaps, after learning that in Syracuse, N. Y., recently, a newspaper office which exchanged gas for kerosene saved by that measure $118.07 in a single month.

Buttermilk Pancakes.—One teaspoonful soda, two teacups sweet skimmed milk, two tablespoonfuls thin cream; thicken with flour to a stiff paste; it will take nearly two teacups of sour buttermilk to form thin enough to bake. Always add a small handful of cauell and the same of bran; it is more wholesome for children. Give them a trial, and you will say you never ate good pancakes before.

The following is a good cure for scurvy legs among fowl: Take sulphur, two ounces; charcoal, pulverized, one-fourth ounce; train oil, enough to form a paste. Apply with the hand, by rubbing well in. Allow it to remain for three days; then wash off in mild weather, with good soapsuds, and repeat the dressing as often as it is necessary.

The following is commended as a recipe for making vinegar: One gallon of water, one and a quarter pounds of raw sugar, and a quarter of a pint of yeast. At a temperature of eighty degrees it will be sufficiently acid in three or four days to be drawn off, when an ounce of cut raisins and the same weight of cream of tartar should be added; after a few weeks the sweet taste will entirely disappear, when it may be bottled.

Fruit Pudding.—Chop six apples fine; grate six ounces of stale bread; add six ounces of brown sugar, six ounces of currants, washed carefully and floured. Mix all well together with six ounces of butter, a cup of milk and two cups of flour, in which two teaspoonfuls of baking powder have been thoroughly mixed. Spice to taste. If necessary, add more milk in mixing. Put in a pudding bag, tie loosely, and boil three hours. To be eaten with cream sauce.

The Great Kean.

Macready says of Kean in his reminiscences: "Sir Edward Mortimer was one of Kean's most finished portraitures. He had grasped the complete conception of the character, the Falkland of Godwin's "Caleb Williams," and was consistently faithful to it through every varied shade of passion. There was an absence of all trick in the performances. He had subjected his style to the restraint of the severest task. His elocution was flowing, discriminating, and most impressive. In his deportment there was the dignified ease of one accustomed to receive obedience; the mild and gentle manner of his address to his dependents spoke the benevolence of his nature, while his woe-worn aspect told of some settled grief that was preying on his heart. The very mournfulness of tone in which before his entrance he called for Winterton prepared the spectator for the picture of blight and sorrow that his appearance presented. When in Wilford's utterance at the word "murder" the chord was struck that seemed to vibrate through every fibre of his frame, the internal struggle to regain his self-possession quite thrilled the audience. His trembling hands turned over rapidly the leaves of the book he held, as if to scratch its pages that were evidently a blight to his bewildered sight, till the agony of his feelings overbore all efforts at expression, and with tiger fury he sprang upon the terrified youth. But to instance particular points in a personation disfigured by so few blemishes almost seems an injustice to a most artistic whole. Throughout the play the actor held most absolute sway over his hearers; alike when nearly maddened by the remembrance of his wrong and the crime it had provoked, in his touching reflection on the present and future recompense of a well-regulated life, in pronouncing the appalling curse upon Wilford's head; or, when looking into his face and in the desolateness of his spirit, with a smile more moving than tears, he faintly uttered: "None know my tortures!" the terrible avowal of the guilt that had embitterred existence to him brought, as it were, the actual perfection of the deed before us. The frenzy of his vengeance seemed rekindled in all its desperation as he uttered: "I stabbed him to the heart." He paused as if in horror at the sight still present to him, and following with his dilated eye the dreadful vision, he slowly continued: "And my oppressor rolled lifeless at my foot!" The last scene was a worthy climax to a performance replete with beauties, that in all its wildest bursts of passion never "overstepped the modesty of nature."

About Beauty.

There is nothing more unfavorable to female beauty than late hours. Women who, either from necessity or choice, spend most of the day in bed, and the night at work or in dissipation, have always a pale, faded complexion and dark-rimmed, wearied eyes. Too much sleep is almost as hurtful as too little, and is sure to bloat the person with a pallid and unwholesome fat. Diet also has a marked influence upon personal beauty. Generous living is favorable to good looks, as it tends to fill out and give color and sleekness to the skin. A gross and excessive indulgence, however, in eating and drinking, is fatal to the female charms, especially where there is great tendency to "making flesh." Regularity of time in the daily repast and scientific cooking are the best means of securing not only good health but good looks. The appetite should never be wasted during the intervals between meals on pastry, confectionery or any other tickler of the appetite, which gratifies the taste, but does not support the system. Exercise, is of course, essential to female beauty. It animates the whole physical life, quickens the circulation of the blood, heightens the color, develops the growth, and perfects the form of each limb and the entire body. It also gives elasticity and grace to every movement.

Dr. Beecher's First Carpet.

Seventy years ago carpets were rarely seen in American families of the middle classes, as they are now rarely found in Germany. Dr. Lyman Beecher gives an amusing account of the autobiography of his first carpet at East Hampton, L. I. His wife spun a bale of cotton and had it woven. Then she fitted it to the floor, sized, and painted in oils, with a bright border around it, and bunches of roses and other flowers over the center. She took also some common wooden chairs and cut out figures of gilt paper, gluing them on and varnishing them. The general effect was very beautiful. The East Hampton people were quite startled by the novelty. One of the old deacons called at the house, but stopped at the parlor door, as if afraid to enter. "Walk in, deacon; walk in," said the minister. "Why, I can't 'thout stepping on it," was the answer. Then surveying it with evident admiration, he gasped out, "D'ye think ye can have all this and heaven too?"

The Sioux City Journal makes the curious statement that immense quantities of black bass are being caught out of the Upper Elkhorn, in Nebraska. Such a thing as a black bass was never known in that country until after the railroad accident at Elkhorn three years ago.

All Sorts.

Sherman was a year writing his "memoirs."

Nevada is bragging that one of her county jails has not a single occupant.

This is the season when the daughter of the house furtively oils the hinges of the garden gate.

There are three elephants in jail in Rochester, the charge against them being larceny of peanuts.

The income of the New York Herald last year was $1,700,000, of which $600,000 went to its proprietors net.

Two grains of quinine dissolved in two ounces of water and snuffed into the nostrils will, it is said, cure hay fever.

San Francisco boasts of a Greek church, a Russian Bishop, and regular services according to the Greek church ritual.

The Waterford, Ireland, guardians now incarcerate tramps in the Insane Asylum, and pauperism is becoming unfashionable.

The Boston people have decided that Jesse Pomeroy's life should be preserved, and he will go to prison instead of the gallows.

The boys who groan under the weight of a big string of fish these times should remember that it does not take many perches to make an acher.

Twenty-three car-loads of oysters arrived in San Francisco the other day from the East. The bivalves are to be planted in San Francisco bay.

"It's generally the case with bad boys," philosophically remarks Miss Anthony, "that they look like their mother, and act like their father."

The old maids of Athens, Ga., are on the war path. They've actually requested the Legislature to make it a special offense for any widow to marry again.

It takes just one cent to send an ordinary paper by mail from Canada into the United States, but according to our postal laws, as existing at present, it takes four cents to send the same paper back.

The piece of fat in the middle of a leg of mutton is called the "Pope's Eye," because one of the Popes was so fond of that bonne bouche that he had a sheep slaughtered every day for the sake of that particular piece.

A woman in Manhattan, Kan., wished to plaster a room, but she could buy only the lime and sand. Then she sheared her dog to get the hair, put the plaster on herself, and papered the walls. That's the way grit wins in Kansas.

The tenement house system prevails to a great extent in Boston; 51,313 people, or nearly one-sixth of the entire population, are packed into 2,688 tenements, averaging nearly twenty persons a tenement. The infant mortality is consequently fearful.

A smoker in a Doylestown (Pa.) stage (no ladies in the vehicle) dropped a match with which he had just lighted a cigar. The match lit the newspaper mail, and all that was saved of the venerable vehicle, after cooling it in a mill-dam, was the running-gears.

Statistics have been collected in France, Algeria and Prussia, by which it is shown that the Jewish race has a mean average duration of life exceeding that of Christians of about five years, and that they enjoy a greater immunity from disease than Christian races.

Dr. Hall says: "The longer one puts off drinking in the morning, especially in the summer, the less he will require during the day. If much is drank during the forenoon the thirst often increases, and a very unpleasant fullness is observed, in addition to a metallic taste in the mouth."

M. Eugene Pereire, the Paris banker, whose great grandfather invented the system by which deaf mutes are taught to speak and to understand from the movement of the lips, has just announced that a school of instruction, to be supported by his family, will be opened in Paris in August.

Queen Victoria has a shrewder head for business than she is ordinarily credited with. Some time since, for the sake of encouraging a struggling artist, she purchased Mrs. Thompson's picture, "Roll Call." Since the purchase the picture has been on exhibition at a shilling a head, and has paid for itself ten times over.

Carl Helmerding, the Berlin actor, had a birthday, and a friend sent him an ingenious acrostic; it consisted of fifteen bottles of wine, so arranged that the initial letters of the wines spelled the name of the actor. The wines were Cerous, Assmannshauser, Rauzan, Lafitte, Hochheimer, Estephe, Liebfrauenmilch, Mancobrunner, Emilion, Rauenthaler, Didesheimer, Ingelheimer, Niersteiner, Giscours.

A Novelty in Surveying.

The delicate chemical balance has been added to the list of surveyors' instruments. By the aid of this instrument the number of acres in an irregularly shaped surface may be accurately computed. The method by which this is applied is simple enough. The plan of the desired territory, having been first measured and reduced by scale to paper, is then cut out and carefully weighed. A portion of the same paper—that is, paper of the same weight and thickness—is then cut to a size that will represent one acre, and its weight recorded. By dividing the weight of the paper that represents, in outline, the whole section surveyed, by the weight of that which represents one acre, the quotient represents the number of acres and fractions of an acre in the whole. This way of measuring surface gives less trouble, less calculation, and less liability to error than any other easy method.

The following is given as the costume of a fashionable lady in 1700, per ye last ship from ye port of Bristol, England, to his Majesty's plantations in North America: "A black silk petticoat, with a red and white calico border; cherry colored stays, trimmed with blue and silver; a red and dove-colored damask gown, flowered with large trees; a yellow satin apron, trimmed with white Persian; muslin headcloths, with crawfoot edging; a black silk furbel. red scarfs and spotted hood."

A New Store

With an entire new stock of

BOOTS & SHOES.

New STYLES of all kinds at the LOWEST PRICES at

J. E. WOODFORD'S

I have located at Auburn with a fine stock of BOOTS and SHOES, which will be sold at the Lowest Figures for Cash!

My Facilities for making CUSTOM WORK are not excelled anywhere and those favoring me—with their orders may be certain of getting the best material.

W. W. HUMES, Foreman.

To the trade, great inducements are offered in Leather, Findings, &c. Please call and examine my stock before purchasing.

FRESH ARRIVAL OF NEW GOODS

AT THE

GRAND CENTRAL

Woolen Goods for the next THIRTY DAYS sold without regard to

A JOB LOT OF SHAWLS

Bleached and Brown Muslin,
Percales and Prints, Denims,
And Shirtings, Carpets and
Oilcloths, Table Linen and
Towling. A Large assort of

ALPACCAS,

AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Gents' Collars, Hats, and Suspenders. Ladies Collars and Cuffs, Willow Ware, Satchels, and Carpet Bags. COTTENADES from 15c to 35c per yd. fine assortment of

CASSIMERES,

at very low figures. Call at the Grand Central, next door to Davis' Hard ware store.

WILLIAM RICHMOND, Pro.

C. P. Houser & Co.,

—Dealer In—

BOOKS AND STATIONERY

BEST Window Paper HOLLAND'S and Oil Shades always on hand and CHEAP for CASH.

PICTURES, FRAMES, CORD, and TASSELS, Curtain and Window Fx'trs the Best in the Market.

—The Largest and finest assortment of—

WALL PAPER

EVER BROUGHT TO THIS MARKET.

Their store is located in Ensley's new brick block, North of the Court House, AUBURN, INDIANA.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

F. E. DAVENPORT,

Corner Main and Eighth-Sts.,

—DEALER IN—

Pure Drugs and Medicines,

DYE STUFFS, PERFUMERY,

Toilet Soaps Cosmetics, Hair Oils, Brushes, Combs, Toilet Mirrors and Druggists' Sundries in General.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY!

Wall and Window Paper!

Oiled, Linen and Slat Window Shades, and Shade Fixtures.

All the lattest POEMS and MISSELANIOUS BOOKS constantly on hand or ordered. Blank Books, Pocket Memorandas, Portmonies and Bill Books, WRITING PAPERS. All Styles and prices ALBUMS! ALBUMS! ALBUMS just received for the Holliday trade Over $300.00 worth of Juvenile and Toy Books, which will be sold at panic prices. Smith's Gold Pens, warranted the best. Also steel Pens, Penholders, Pencils, Ink and Ink Stands &c.

SCHOOL BOOKS!

Covered with best Cover ever invented Free Of Charge

Davenport has the exclusive right to use this book cover in Auburn, and will give his patrons the benefit of the same.

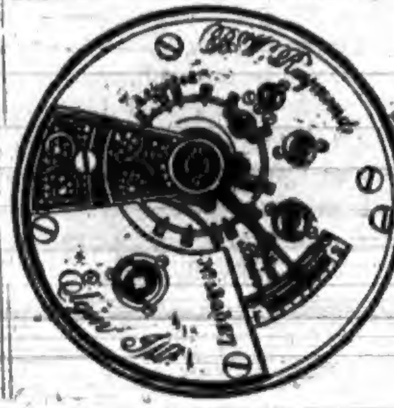
GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In Amrican & Swiss Watches,

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,
Jewelry,
Clocks, Silver Ware!
GOLD PENS,
Ladies GOLD Chains,
Gents Chains,
Gold and Silver Rings,
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,



TOYS

FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

V. A BEARD

Grocer in Auburn, North of Court House on Seventh Street,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS

TEAS, COFFEES, SUGARS, SALT FISH.

Flour and Feed, Tubs Pa ls, Buckets, Sugars Boxes, Etc. A large va iiety

TOBACCOS AND CIGARS,

Confectioneries of all kinds, and Fancy Notions, Cove Oysters, &c. A speciality in Green and Dried Fruits, and Canned Fruits. Goods delivered inside the copora ion.

Miller & Casebeer's

CORNER STORE AHEAD.

An immense stock of

SUMMER GOODS

JUST RECEIVED!

Call and examine Goods and Prices.

Goods marked down 25 per cent lower than ever offered before in this market. A mammoth stock of

FINE DRESS GOODS,

to select from, now is the time to call and

SECURE BARGAINS,

you can save 25 per cent, by buying your goods now at

MILLER& CASEBEER'S

Corner Store.

RAILROADS.

Indianapolis Peru & Chicago R.R.

TIME TABLE No. 12—Dec. 20, 1874.

Northward.

Stations.	No. 1	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Indianapolis	6 30a	12 20p	3 55p	12 20
Noblesville	7 44	12 29	5 10	1 30
Tipton	8 20	1 15	5 57	2 15
Miami	9 37	1 50	6 38	2 55
Kokomo	9 11	2 26	7 01
Peru	10 08	3 16a	7 40

Sotubward.

Stations.	No 2	No. 4	No. 6
Indianapolis	6 00p	4 16a	9 50a
Noblesville	4 47	3 13	8 34
Tipton	3 50	2 29	7 44
Kokomo	3 13	1 40	7 02
Miami	2 40	1 16	6 35
Peru	2 10	12 35	6 00

E. C. MURPHY, Supt Mich. Div,
E. M. HAWLEY, Master of Tran.
C. B. ROBINSON, General Sup't,
F. P. WADE, Gen. Ticket Agt.

Lake Shore & Mich. Southern R.R

Air Line Division

ON and after Sunday, Nov. 15, 1874 Passenger Trains will leave Waterloo city and other stations as follows, daily except Sunays:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom'd'n
Butler	2:40 p m.	x 2:35 a m.	8:00 p m
Waterloo	2:56 "	2:53 "	8:19 "
Sedan	3,08	3,00	8:30 "
Corunna	3,10	3,06	8:35 "

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.15 pm	11,30 pm	6:50 p m
Sedan	2.20	11.35	7:02 "
Waterloo	2:28 "	11:44 "	7:11 "
Butler	2:40 "	x12:01 a m	7:55 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin R. R.

Time Table to take effect May 23, 1875.

Going South.

Fort Wayne	1 15 pm	2 00a.m	5 35pm
Ossian	2 02		6 42
Bluffton	2 30	3 10	7 17
Keystone	2 02		7 57
Montpelier	3 12	3 41	8 08
Hartford	3 40pm	4 05	8 40
Eaton	4 0.		9 08
Muncie	4 37	4 47	9 45
McCowan's	4 53	5 05
New Castle	5 30	5 40
Cam. City	6 05	6 11
Beesons	6 22	6 27
Connersville	6 35	6 40
Indianapolis	6 30	6 50
Louisville	11 10	12 45pm
Cincinnati	10 30	9 40

Going North.

Cincinnati	7 30am	1 20pm
Louisville		2 40	7 00pm
Indianapolis		7 25	4 30am
Connersville	10 32	7 35
Beesons	10 45	7 52
Cam City	11 04	8 12
New Castle	11 40	8 55
McCowans	12 15pm
Muncie	12 32	9 53	6 50am
Eaton	1 02	10 28	7 29
Hartford	1 24	10 50	7 54
Montpelier	1 49	11 17	8 52
Keystone	1 58		8 36
Bluffton	2 30	11 38	9 15
Ossian	2 59	11 26am	9 52
Ft. Wayne	3 45	1 16	11 00

W. W. WORTHINGTON, Supt.
ROBT. RITLIS, Gen'l Ticket Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect May 23d—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations	Mail	Accom.		Jack. Acm
Cincinnati		7 30
Louisville	7 00pm
Indianapolis	4 35am
Ft Wayne	10 45	4 35
Auburn	11 40	6 07
Waterloo	11 56	6 37
Summit		7 35
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 8	6 00		6 00 a
Reading	1 17			7 34
Bankers	2 12			7 52
Jonesville	2 20			8 20
Jackson	3 40			10 16
Detroit	6 30p m			2 00p
Grand Rapids	9 30
Lansing	5 47
Saginaw	9 03
Bay City	9 55

Going South.

Bay City	6 40 a m			2 45p
Saginaw	7 30			3 38
Lansing	10 40			9 55
Grand Rapids	7 30			12 08
Detroit	9 50			5 40
Jackson Dep	12 40			9 30
Jonesville	1 55			10 30
Bankers	2 12			10 47
Reading	2 26			11 00
Ar Angola	3 25	6 15		11 55
Pleasant Lake		6 26
Waterloo	4 05	7 55		12 33a
Auburn	4 20	9 25		12 49
Auburn Junction		8 30
Fort Wayne, Arrive	5 15	11 10		1 40
Indianapolis		10 30		6 50
Louisville				12 45p
Cincinnati				9 40a

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO,

26 East Berry street.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervou Debility, Premature, Decay and all the effects of youthful indiscription will for the sake of suffering humanity send free to all who need it, and receipt and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Suffers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so b ddressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDE Ceder St. New York.

RAILROADS.

Pittsburgh, Ft Wayne & Chicago RR

ON and after May 23d, 1875, trains will run as follows, Sundays excepted.

Going West.

STATIONS	FAST EX.	MAIL.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Pittsburg	2,00 A M		8,00 A M	2,00 PM.
Rochester	3 00 "		9,22 "	3,[illegible] "
Alliance	5,35 "		12,30 P M	5,54 "
Orrville	7,10 "	"	2,25 "	7,31 "
Mansfield.	9,07 "	"	4,40 "	9,20 "
Crest- ar	9.40 "	A. M	5,15 "	9,55 "
line ...lv	10,00 "	"	5,35 "	10,00 "
Forest	11,16 "	4,50 "	7,27 "	11,24 "
Lima	12,20 P M	6,30 "	8,45 "	12,27 A.
Ft Wayne	2.40 "	8:10 "	11,35 A M	2,25 "
Plymouth	4.40 "	11,20 "	2,35 "	5,25 "
Chicago	7,50 "	2,25 P. M	6,30 "	8,50 "

Going East.

STATIONS	MAIL	FAST EX.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Chicago	5.15 a M	9,20 A. M.	5.35 P. M.	9,20 P. M
Plymouth	9.00 "	12,15 P. M	"	12,50 A. M
Ft Wayne	12,20 PM	2.45 "	11,45 "	3,50 "
Lima	2.40 "	4,35 "	1,35 A. M.	6,15 "
Forest	3.56 "	5,34 "	3,03 "	7.36 "
Crest- ar	5,35 "	6,55 "	4.40 "	9.20 "
line lv	A M	7,15 "	4.50 "	9 40 "
Mansfield	"	7.43 "	5,20 "	10.26 "
Orville	"	9.38 "	7.10 "	12.45PM
Alliance		11,10 "	9 00 "	3,05
Rochester	P M	1.07	11,12 "	5,40
Pittsburg	"	2,10 a m	12,15 A. M.	6,55

F. R. MYERS,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent

BALTIMORE & OHIO R. R

FROM 135 TO 6 MILES

The horteest route from the West to

Washington, Baltimore

AND THE EAST.

ONDENSED TIME TABLE, THRO' TRAINS.

VIA PARKERSBURG, Dec. 13, '74	Express	Fast Express,	St. Louis Ex.
Lve. Cincinnati	9 00‡ am	†4 30 p m	‡11 10pm
Arr. Chillicoth	12 55d n'n	s7 46	3 00 am
" Portsmouth	5 25 p m		11 10
" Marietta	5 56	12 06 n't	7 22
" Parkersburg	5 25 a	11 30	b6 50
Arr. Grafton	9 45	3 40 a m	11 10
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	s7 40	b3 30
" Martinsburg	4 35.	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	6 51
" Staunton		5 15 p m
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30p m	4 50 am
" Baltimore	‡9 05 a m	1 50 a m	10 20‡pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50 p m	2 35 am
" New York	‡5 10	10,22	‡6 15
" Boston.	5 50 a m		4 50 pm

VIA BELLAIRE—Dec 13, 1874	Express	Fast Express.	Fast Line
Lve. Cincinnati (via Dayton S. L.)	6 30 a m		‡3 50 p m
" Cincinnati (via P. C. & St. L.)	†7 00		†7 10 p m
" Columbus	11 55	4 00‡p m	12 20†
Arr. Newark	1 00 p m	5 25	1 45 a m
" Zanesville	2 10	6 55	2 57
" Bellaire	5 20	10 55	6 50
" Wheeling	6 45 p m	12 30 ngt	8 00
" Grafton	9 35	3 35 a m	11 05
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	7 40	b3 30 pm
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	6 51
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30 p m	4 53 a m
" Baltimore	9 05	1 50†	10 20†pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50	2 35 a m
" New York	5 10	10 22†	†6 15
" Boston	4 50 a m		4 50 p m

B—Breakfast. D—Dinned. S—Supper. †Daily ‡Daily ex. Sunday. §Daily ex. Monday.

PULMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS

from Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Columbus, to

WASHINGTON AND BALTIMORE!

—AND—

PHILADELPHIA

WITHOUT CHANGE.

Through Tickets, and further information can be obtained at all principal Ticket Offices throughout the West and South West.

THOS. P. BARRY, West. pass agt., Cin.
L. M. COLE, Gen'l ticket agt., Bal. Md.
THOS. R. SHARP, Mas. of Tran. "

J. G. FLEDDERMAN,

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

Has the larfiest and fines stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

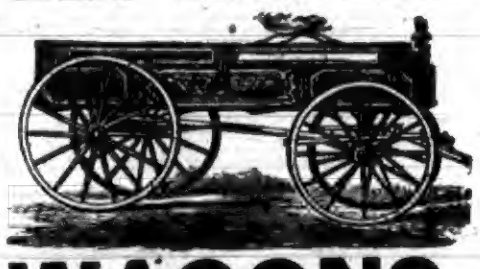
Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promtly attended to. Go and see hislargestock of G

The Auburn



WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

re now in full running order and all ord ers fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give us a call and ascertain our prices.

THE AUBURN

Marble Works!

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have permanently located in Auburn, and are now prepared to attend to all orders for which they are prepared to turn out in a superior manner at reasonable rates. Works west of the Bakery.

Monuments, Tomb-Stones, &c.,

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JULY 1, 1875. Number 26.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,.........$2. | Six Months,.......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square......	2 50	4 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
One Column.......	18 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.
J. W. RICKEL, R. DEXTE TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo, Indana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUB-N CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Mo day in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store. Coel's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Miller and Casebeer's Store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON will attend to all calls in the time of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical disease. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing all the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience, of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel. My medicines are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of diceases without producing any bad effect, upon the nervous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of quinine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on fifth street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 34 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago.
O SANDS, Prop'r.
$2.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.
J. H. FORD, Pres't.
J. A. COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire Line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,

CHAIRS

Husk & Hair Matrasses

50 and 52 East Main Street,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experience corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. U. Tarney

AUBURN MEAT MARKET!

KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Mein-st first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store.

BRICK FOR SALE

FRITZ GROESCOP.

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick, about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable figures. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Kutzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some of the above Tile, which they are selling at a very low figure. We offer

Four Inch Sizes at 50 cts. per Rod.
Six " " " 75 " "

Every person who intend to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office.
v5n11 LANHAM & HOSE, Auburn, Indiana.

J. J. VanAuken,

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying. Office with Rose & Hartman, Auburn Indiana. Persons requesting work by letter, should give township and section.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

BAKER BROS.

PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!

AND

EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes etc, always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.

BAKER BROS.

AUBURN

Meat Market.

Main St. Next door to Klotz's.

MICH HOUSTON

PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

MERCHANTS

National Bank!

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Capital and Surplus $112.000

Receives Deposits, Discounts Business Paper, issues Letters of Credit, and Collects at all points at the lowest rates of exchange.

Directors:

S. CARY EVANS, R. C. ROBERTSON,
H. C. HANNA, N. P. STOCKBRIDGE
A. C. DAWSON.

Organized 1865. April 9, '74

NEW

Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep

FLOUR, CORN,
OATS, MILL FEED,
&c. at all times and at the

Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs, &c.
WM. LANHAM.

Pencillings and Clippings.

THE proprietors of the Bucyrus, mowing and reaping machine works are talking of removing them to Terre Haute.

$500,000 to loan on improved farms in Northern Indiana, in sums of one thousand dollars and upwards, on five years time. Security must be first mortgage.

WILLIAM FLEMING,
tf Fort Wayne Ind.

AN obliging gentleman, who thinks that personal favors do not cost much, while they make friends, was applied to by a colored man for a certificate of character by which he might get a situation. The testimonial proved to be more complimentary, than Scipio himself had expected, and that worthy on recovering from his astonishment, exclaimed: "Say, Mr. ——, won't you gib me something to do on dab recommendation?".

A countryman has made several calls on a neighbor without being able to catch him in, and meeting him by chance one morning, received the following instructions as to the course to be pursued on future occasions: "You may have observed, he said, with a look of great sagacity, that the old 'ooman freekently gets fled, an' so when she's that way he jest foller the wall down to the goosberry patch, and you're pretty likely to find me sumwher's."

A Highland minister given somewhat exaggregation in the pulpit was remonstrated with by his clerk, and told of its ill effects upon the congregation. He replied that he was not aware of it, and wished the clerk, the next time he did it to give it a cough by way of hint.—Soon after he was describing Sampson's tying the foxes tails together. He said:

"The foxes in those days were much larger than ours, and they had tails twenty feet long."

"Ahem!" come from the clerk's desk.

"That is" continued the preacher "according to their measurement, but by ours they are fifteen feet long."

"Ahem! ahem!" still more vigorous.

The parson leaned over the pulpit and shaking his finger at the clerk said:

"Ye cough there all night, mon—I'll nae take off a 'fut more. Would ye hae the foxes with nae tails at a'?"

DULL TIMES.

There can be no general business activity and apparent prosperity in the country till money is twice its present value in Wall street. It was quoted last week at 2½ to 3 per cent, a rate which shows that there is no adequate demand for it—or, at all events, no demand offering adequate security. But an accumulation of money at the center means a deficiency at the extremeties and the abscence of a healthful circulation. This is caused by a general lack of confidence. So many investments in railroads, mines, and other enterprises have proved disastrous, and few or no new enterprises are attempted, or if attempted, cannot obtain the necessary capitol.

It is when everybody is improving his own property, and perhaps building a new house or store upon it, and when new factories, hotels, steamboats, ships, railroads, canals are being built or old ones enlarged, that everybody is employed at good wages and every kind of business thrives. It is then that thriving business men lay out more and more means in the employment of labor. All classes purchase good food and good clothes; all spend money freely in traveling or anything else they desire, and everybody appears to be prospering. This process goes on till every kind of enterprise and production is overdone, and a sudden stagnation sets in like a wintry blast over a garden. Great failures and great losses occur, capitalists try to get each his own means gathered together and placed in safe keeping, even at the lowest rates of interest. It is not profit so much as security that the capitalist desires, and he keeps his money quietly till the time for safe and profitable use shall come around again.

The nation is in this state just now, but the time for active enterprise is probably not far distant.

For, be it observed, the time of greatest depression is in some respects the time of the greatest accumulation. People work hard and spend little, and consequently capital, or improved property, which is the same thing, increases rapidly. When this process has gone on for a year or two, accumulation begin to look about for investments, and then the time of expansion and so-called prosperity comes round again, which, being in many respects a time of waste brings round once more the inevitable collapse.

A COQUETTISH DETECTIVE

OR, THE FATAL RING.

I was stopping at the Hotel Winsor, in the Rue de Rivoli, Paris.

One morning I was smoking in the colonnade, when a tall, elegantly-dressed gentleman asked permission to light his cigar by mine.

I saw at a glance that he was a Frenchman, although his English was almost perfect.

"Have you heard the news?" he inquired.

"No."

"The Countess de Marville—the fairest of the fair—was found murdered in her bed last night, her bureau broken open, and ten thousand francs missing from it. Ah, it was terrible! There were marks on her throat; the bruit who did the deed effected his entrance through the window of her chamber, near which, unfortunately, was a tree, planted years ago by the distinguished grandfather of the Countess. Little did he imagine the terrible use that would be made of it."

"This is bad news. How any man could harm a woman thus, in cold blood is more than I can imagine."

"Ah, Monsieur, if you had ever seen the Countess you would wonder still more. She was beautiful—beautiful as an angle," he added, stroking his whiskers with an unmistakable air of vanity. "I knew her well."

"Indeed!"

"Oh, yes; there are in Paris few popular women unknown to me."

His manner was decidedly conceited, and I felt disgusted with him. My coldness evidently repelled him, for he soon left me.

Afterward I heard from other accounts of the late tragedy. Among the details of the affair was one which peculiarly impressed me, and which my first informant had not spoken of—an oversight that surprised me, as the occurance he had not mentioned was of that kind which would be most apt to strike the fancy.

Upon the throat of the Countess, the murderer, in throttling her, had left a mark from a ring he wore—the impression of a chariot wheel, with a star in the center.

"This," said my latest informant, may lead to the discoverer of the murderer. Jean Mosqueau is already visiting the jewelers' shops in the city, find out from which, and by whom, a ring with the chariot wheel device was purchased.

"Who is Jean Mosqueau?"

"What, Monsieur! have you not heard of Monsqueau, our famous detective? Although his courage is well known, you would not, to look at his fair girlish face and delicate form, believe that he could fight a gnat.

A week later I was aboard the steamer bound from Calais to Dover. Among the passengers I beheld one whose face had a familiar look. I was not long in recognizing this person as the same I had seen in front of the Hotel Winsor, and who had first informed me of the murder of the Countess. He was certain a very handsome man, although his conceited air was a blot upon his good looks.

He moved languidly hither and thither now and then turning his brown eyes admiringly upon the pretty lady passingers, while striking his whiskers with one which hand, upon the middle finger of which was a superb diamond ring.

I am of a rather suspicious nature, which combined with a lively imagination, has often led me into singular errors. Now a strange impulse moved me to advance and hold out my hand to a man whom I had involuntary disliked from the first, in order that I might have a chance to glance at his ring. Somehow the idea possessed me that I should discover a chariot wheel device upon the glittering bauble!

The stranger did not at first recognize me He soon did, however, and frankly extended his left hand, which was not the one containing the ring.

My brain fairly reeled; the man's behavior was the conviction of my suspicions.

"The other hand, if you please," I said, in a low stern voice.

"Monsieur will excuse me, if he please My other arm is lame with rheumatism.

He beheld me glance toward the half-hidden ring and I was sure I saw him start and turn pale while at the same time looking much surprised.

He, however, opened his right hand, as if perfectly willing for me to shake it if I choose. Then I had a good look at the ring, and felt ashamed of my suspicion. The device was a common heart which certainly bore no resemblance to a chariot wheel.

After a little general conversation, to recover my self-possessoin, I turned away resolving future to have a better opinion of my fellow creatures.

The stranger's good looks seemed to attract the attention of many of the ladies. One especially, a modest looking little thing, attired in black, kept directing furtive glances at the handsome passenger. Finally she blided so close to him that, in turning, he brushed against her.

An apology, smilingly received by the little lady— a remark about the weather on the part of the gentleman—and the two were soon conversing with animation. Meanwhile the blushing cheek and bright eyes of the fair one seemed to betoken that she was well pleased with her companion, whose air was now more conceited than ever.

"I am afraid we shall have a storm," she remarked, pointing towards a dark cloud, upon which the captain of the boat was anxiously gazing.

With an air of nonchalance, he pulled a red cigar case from his pocket, asked his companion if she objected to smoking, and being answered negatively, opened the case. Then, quickly returning this to his pocket, pulled forth another of blue color.

"How many cigars do you smoke in a day?" inquired the lady, evidently amused at the sight of two cigar-cases.

The other colored, and it struck me that his voice faltered slightly, and his hand trembled, as he made some laughing retort.

Soon the storm came pouncing down upon us. We were midway in the channel, so that we cought the full force of the sea and gale. Both were terrific. The sea swept the boat which lay so far over that her machinery was soon damaged so that it could not work. The wind screaming like a demon, threw her over still further.

Suddenly we observed the sailors endeavoring to loosen a long-boat on the davits astern. Meanwhile there was an aminos grinding, smashing noise under the counter. The truth could not long be concealed, we were sinking.

The ladies screamed; the handsome passenger lost his self-possession, and ran wildly hither and tither. Meanwhile the cool behavior of the little lady in black contrasted strangely with the agitated demeanor of those around her. There she stood, calm and immovable, her brighe blue eyes fixed upon the handsome sranger, of whom she did not lose sight for a moment.

"Keep quiet, ladies and gentlemen," sang out the captian. "Keep quiet, and don't crowd round the boat so! There will be room for you all; and besides, there is a schooner coming to our assistance," pointing to a vessel bowling along toward us before the wind.

There was, however, a picnic among those addressed. The moment the boat was lowered, into it they all bundled, among them the handsome passenger. A huge sea, coming along roaring like thunder, parted the takles, tearing the boat from the steamer before either the lady in black or myself could enter it. The handsome passenger, losing his balance, fell over the gunwale, and unable to swim, wildly threw us his arms.

I must acknowledge that I was engrossed with the perilous situation of my fair companion and myself—now the only two left aboard the steamer—that I paid little attention to the drowning man. The steamer was in fact, going down fast—was nearly ingulfed in the stromy waves, her heated and half-submerged boiler hissing as the steam came gushing out like the spout from a whale

I was advancing to throw an arm round the little lady, fearing to see her washed away, when quietly and cooly motioning me back with one hand, she seized a coil of rope and threw the end to the handsome passenger.

He cought it, when turning to me the lady requested me to help her to haul the man aboard.

I complied, marveling at the love and devotion thus shown by a woman toward an acquaintance of an hour.

His power over the female sex must be great, I thought. This idea flashed clearly across my mind in spite of my danger. The schooner however, was now quite near, and I had every reason to believe we should be picked up.

I was right. We were taken aboard the schooner, the handsome passenger among the rest. Then the lady in black quietly pulling forth a revolver, pointed it at the head of him whom she had rescued.

"Out with that red cigar-case!" she said stearnly. "I would like to see what Monsieur carries in it."

"Why—why?" stammered the stranger "What is ——?"

Before he could say another word, the little Amazon, thrusting her disengaged hand in his pocket, pulling forth the red cigar-case, and opening it a ring dropped to the deck. This ring she picked up, and holding it before us all she exclaimed, "I have at last. The jeweler assured me it was the only kind of device in all Paris—a chariot wheel! This person is the murderer of the Countess de Marville."

The handsome passenger stood as if frozen to the deck, making no resistance as the lady in black slipped a pair of handcuffs over his rists.

"By what right," he then stammered "do you——?"

He paused as the other threw off her dress and false hair, revealing the person of a slender man with delicate garlish features.

"I am Jean Mosqueau, the detective," he quietly remarked; "and I robbed the waves of this rascal that the scaffold might not be cheated."

There is little to add.

The main proof having been obtained other proofs of the prisoner's guilt were brought forth, showing him guilty beyond doubt.

Long before his execution his name ascertained to be Louis Resseneau a noted adventurer and gambler who, however, by cool effrontery and a winning address, backed by his good looks, had been enabled to move in the first circle of Parision society.

THE following piece of character reading was among the first we put in type, nearly twenty years ago:

We once saw a young man gazing at the *ry heavens, with a † in 1 ☞, a —— of pistols in the other. We endeavored to attract his attention by .ing to a ¶ in a paper we held in our ☞, relating 2 a young man in that § of the country, who had left home in a state of mental derangement. He dropped the † and pistols from his ☞ ☞ with the ! "It is I of whom U read. I left home bo4 my friends knew of my design. I had s0 the ☞ of a girl who refused 2 lis10 2 me, but smiled b9ly on another. I ——ed madly from the house, uttering a wild 2 love, and without replying to the ? ? ? of my friends, came here with this † & —— of pistols, to put a . 2 my existence. My case has no ‖ in this §.

THERE is a solid vote of the Southern carpet-baggers and cut purses which Grant easily holds in the hollow of his hand, and which will be cast for his renomination when the National Republican Convention is held next year, if he demands it. And with this vote firmly secured, the influence which Grant and the office-holders have upon the workings of the party's machinery in the North and West ought easily to command the forty or fifty additional votes in convention which would be necessary to give him the nomination for the third term which he cares no more for, than for the first term. The Republicans of South Carolina, the most thoroughly Republican in the south, last September, pledged themselves to the support of President Grant for "the third-term" assured by so doing we shall preserve that peace and unity throuhout the whole country so necessary for its prosperity; and it was only the other day that Gov. Chamberlain of South Carolina, albeit he is ostensibly to lead a "clean life," after a rather unclean public career, declared to a newspaper correspondent that though he was opposed to a third-term, he didn't know but that he should support Grant if he were renominated.—South Carolina Repulicans are in no wise dependent upon the force or favor of Grant for political office and emoluments in their own State. They stand by him of their own free choice, but hungar Radicals and carpet baggers in other Southern states where their party is a majority must inevitable gravitate towards Mr. Grant's third-term fleshpots by the attraction of mere hunger. There is no hope for them but in revolution and arbitrary power to give them office and the spoils of Washington.—The turbulence of these fellows was not finally put at rest by the gallant Democratic defeat of the Force bill last Mar. What power they still possess for working positive evil to the destinies of the nation we shall learn in due season.

Mr. Samuel Grosh having putchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Tarney, in the Lower Flouring Mill, will hereafter conduct it alone. He is manufacturing a splendid brand of flour and keeps mill feed constantly on hand. Mr Furnish, an experienced miller, will assist in turning out flour that cannot fail to suit everybody. tf

OPERETTAS AND CANTATAS

SUITABLE FOR

School Exhibitions!

AN HOUR IN FAIRY LAND. A Cantata in One Act. No change of scenery required, except for Tableaux introduced behind the main scene. Price 50c, in paper; 75c in boards.

MAUD IRVIN; OR, THE LITTLE ORPHAN. An Operetta in five acts, for children's use,—Dramatic, Singing and Tableaux. Price 50c in paper; 75c in boards.

NEW YEAR'S EVE. A cantata in 2 parts representing the 4 seasons. No change of scenery required, except for tableaux introduced behind the main scene. Price 50c in paper; 75c in boards.

PAULINE, THE BELLE OF SARATOGA.—An operetta for adults, in 2 acts. Suitable for parlor or stage. No scenery required. Price $1, in boards.

Copies sent, post paid, on receipt of price.

Address, J. L. PETERS, 843 Broadway, N. Y.
P. O. Box [illegible]

THE FAT MISSIONARY.

[The Washington Capital thus recites through a contributor the woes of the Rev. Oleus Bacon, missionary:]

It was all in a fore-and-aft schooner
That he sailed to that far countree,
And, according to Captain Simminson,
It was beautiful for to see
How warmly those heathen welcomed him,
And how grateful they seemed to be,
And now, in their simple, innocent way
They patted him, now on his knee,
And now on his cheek, and now on his chin,
And, in short, made only too free
With the Reverend Oleus Bacon,
As was sent upon a mission
To the islands near Feejee.

But I have an affidavit
Captain Simminson took afore me,
(And Simminson is a Christian man),
How standin' that night on his lee,
And a-[illegible] up his canvas
All ready to put to sea,
He noticed a fire on the island
As was burnin' remarkably free;
But he had no idea those devils
Were makin' a fricassee
Of the Reverend Oleus Bacon
As was sent upon a mission
To the islands near Feejee.

But so it turned out; and therefore I say
As Simminson said to me,
If the Board of Foreign Missions
Had any eyes for to see
They'd never have sent a man out there
A missionary for to be,
The make of whose person was tempting
In the very least degree,
Or one as was anyways bulgy at all,
Still less, one as bulgy as he;
This Reverend Oleus Bacon
As was sent upon a mission
To the islands near Feejee.

However, the Lord was in it,
At least, so it seems to me;
Or something was in Mr. Bacon
As didn't at all agree
With the stomachs of those heathen men,
But made 'em throw up quite free;
And I happen to know what that something was,
It was cavendish and rappee!
Nevertheless, it was somewhat unfortunate,
As most any man may see,
That the Reverend Oleus Bacon
Ever started on that mission
To the islands near Feejee.

THE GATEPOST.

Whether it was fate or that gatepost which was responsible Royal France was never able to decide.

It had not been demonstrated to a certainty that the young gentleman was unable to stand upright at that stage of his existence, but this much is sure, that he very seldom did it when any object which afforded leaning room was at hand. Gregory and Morton had just gone by with their fishing-rods, calling for him to join them, but the gatepost was shaded over by a drooping elm, and Mr. France had braced one shoulder against it while he lounged there in complete idleness, looking away with a rather tired expression across the sunlit landscape. The trout-brook ran through the shadeless meadows, and was a good half-mile distant, either of which reasons alone would have been sufficient to account for his refusal.

Do not understand that the tired expression was the result of any great task in progress or achieved. It was only an indication of the state of boredom which had long been hir normal condition. It is not the best of signs when a man is supremely indolent at four-and-twenty, and this Royal France was. That he preferred to saunter rather than to walk, to lean rather than to stand independently, to lounge rather than occupy himself in any definite way, all lent him a sybaritic exterior which gave little hint to the capability for a steadfast purpose hidden underneath, but the capability was there nevertheless.

After all, it must have been the gatepost, for it was that, and that alone, which chained him to the spot. The straw hats and white linen of his friends had disappeared from view, the sound of the piano and Miss Lowrie's voice floating out through the window assured him—

"I am waiting, love, for thee—"

when the flutter of a woman's summery garments appeared in the path, and came sweeping down it close beside him. Mr. France put out a hand and swung the gate wide open without as much as a glance at the shape—women had ceased to be an object of curiosity to him—but this one halted abruptly as she came abreast of him. There was a reason for it, very trivial, but we all know that a trifle before this has been the pivot on which many a man's destiny has turned. The silk fringe of her sash had caught upon his button.

"I beg pardon," she said, and a little dimpled hand was put out to detach it. Very ordinary words, but the clear, vibrant timbre of the voice struck him. He looked at her then, and the picture, as he saw her first in the golden afternoon light, was one that remained with him through all his after life. He saw a shape—tall, supple, youthful—a clear, dusk face, a childlike rosy mouth, two big, dark, velvety eyes—wonderful eyes, into whose gold-brown depths he looked for one instant, and all-unconsciously lost his heart on the spot to the owner.

She passed on, and suddenly the gatepost lost its charm. Miss Lowrie had left the piano and was standing by the nearest window as he turned and sauntered in.

"Take care that you aren't worse ensnared hereafter," she warned him laughingly.

"Who is she—one of the angels we entertain unawares?"

"An angel—all but the wings." There was a dry inflection to Miss Lowrie's tone. "She is Miss Dunbar—Meta Dunbar. She only came to-day."

"And she is to stay?"

"She is to stay. Apropos of that, did I hear Morton say this morning you think of leaving us?"

"An incorrect statement if you did," answered France, carelessly. "I mentioned to him that Uncle Phil had written for me, but it will probably be some time yet before I exclaim with Tell in relation to my native State—'Ye crags and peaks, I am with you once again!' I am not prepared to give up the delights of the vale yet."

"You are sure it is the vale and not Miss Dunbar?" asked Miss Lowrie, a trifle audaciously. If the audacity covered a pang, he did not guess it, for, to his credit be it said, egotism was not one of France's faults. He replied lightly, and sauntered away thinking—

"She doesn't like Miss Dunbar, but then what woman ever does like another prettier than herself?"

He was early in the parlor that night and engaged in a conversation with one of those married ladies whose range of acquaintance and accommodating spirit both are unlimited, while he watched for the young lady who had suddenly become an object of interest to him. The buzz which announced her when she came seemed to indicate that she was an object of universal interest.

"Do you know her?" asked Mrs. Madison. "Lovely, is she not?"

"I have not the pleasure, and yet I thought I knew every one here or expected."

"O, but this is easily accounted for—she was not of the elect. I mean she is never expected anywhere."

Royal looked puzzled and his friend hastened to explain.

"She has an old curmudgeon of a father who is as chary of her and keeps her as close as ever beauty was kept immured in her castle. The difference is that Meta is wide awake and rebels sometimes. It is due to that fact she is here now, but you may be sure she will not be left very long unguarded."

"You are right, she is lovely," said France as he gazed. "Will you present me?"

"What! under the enemy's fire?" asked Mrs. Madison, laughingly. "Don't you see how jealously Miss Lowrie is watching? There, my dear boy, don't pose for injured innocence; I acquit you where she is concerned, however she herself may be inclined to view the matter. She had a grudge against my favorite before this too."

"Meaning Miss Dunbar?"

"Exactly, and it was all on account of Morton yonder. Miss Lowrie thought she had secured him, but Meta came upon the tapis and spoiled the game for her. I admit I was rejoiced, though it was a little hard on Morton; he was thoroughly in earnest for the only time in his life I suppose."

"And he failed to conquer? Something new in his experience that." Mr. France glanced across at the good-looking fellow who was well known as a masculine flirt.

"He failed, of course, as every one must. That is an understood thing. If you are sure you are to be trusted—"

"As I surely am if my presentation depends upon it."

He had a bow and a smile and half a dozen words from Miss Dunbar after that. She wore gold-colored tulle with a foam of lace, from midst of which her white shoulders gleamed, a line of milky pearls about her throat, another tangled in the bronze hair massed high upon her head.

Her rarely perfect face, with cheeks slightly flushed and eyes shining like black diamonds in that blaze of light, was before him yet after her palpable presence was removed. Her face mingled in his dreams that night, and was in the first recollection which came to him with his morning's awaking.

And it was the first sight which met him when he went below. She was standing upon the piazza as he appeared in the doorway, a pink wrapper with sweeping watteau folds surrounding her like a rosy cloud, great fragrant water-lilies mingled with some green foliage filling her arms.

"Good morning, Miss Dunbar," spoke Mr. France as her glance was lifted to him. "You will put us all out of countenance if such early rising is your usual practice."

"It surely shall be while I am left to enjoy my liberty in my own way. Possibly you may not know what a novelty that is to me. I had another incentive this morning in my beauties here. My first act after arriving was to hire a youth of the rising generation to scour the country after these darlings for me. How exquisite they are!"

Her face went down over the odorous mass, and Mr. France, with appreciated gaze drinking in the whole fair picture, murmured:

"Exquisite, indeed! I hope you haven't negotiated with that youth for the season, Miss Dunbar. Permit me the pleasure of supplying such a daily offering hereafter."

"You will find it a trouble, I fear. If I have a weakness for anything, it is for water-lilies. I am never strong enough to resist them."

Miss Dunbar's room was not without the creamy blossoms after that while they lasted, and this beginning was followed apace by such a growing friendship, that others looking on grew concerned for the result. Mrs. Madison, with a real interest in the girl, and a real wish for her welfare, interposed first.

"If it were only an ordinary flirtation, Meta, I shouldn't think of interfering," she said, with a very disturbed spirit. "I like Royal France, and I think I know him as well as any one does. He is not like the men you have thrown over before this; if he is not already heart and soul in earnest, he will be soon, and a disappointment then could not help blighting all his life. You aren't such a wretch as to do that for him?"

"Well," said Miss Dunbar, very coolly, "have you anything more to say? I prefer having all sides of the question."

There was a certain sort of repressed defiance in her face which sent a misgiving like a shock into the other's mind.

"What do you mean by it, Meta? Your father would never consent, and there is Ellerby whom he has chosen—you never would dare to defy him!"

"Wouldn't I?" asked Miss Dunbar, dreamily.

"You know you wouldn't, and, besides—O, dear me! Don't hold me responsible if you get into trouble through this, Meta. I can't countenance what I am sure your father will disapprove."

Morton also, who was France's friend, undertook to caution him.

"It won't do, old fellow, take my word for it. Meta herself is all any man could wish for; I've got over my one-time weakness in that quarter, so don't think I speak through any personal object. I know Dunbar pere if you don't, and I tell you a haughtier or harder old flint never existed. He's made his choice, and if she died for lack of it he'd never forgive her once she disobeyed him. Besides, there's your own prospects, Royal. That uncle whose heir-expectant you are isn't the most reliable customer on the face of the earth. You've miffed him already by giving no heed to his numerous summonses, and he's as like to turn on you as not. It isn't past Miss Lowrie to put him up to it, and I observed she took good care to post herself in your affairs before she left here."

"I shouldn't like to credit any woman with such a mischievous intent, Morton."

"I hope you won't be obliged to, that's all! But don't build upon any meanness being beyond a jealous and malignant woman. For the rest, my dear boy, there's no one wishes you more good in the world than I do."

"Thank you Morton, heartily; I am sure of that."

"France made light of one part of his warning, that regarding Miss Lowrie, dismissed it with scarcely a second thought. She had left the place a week before, as the result proved, on vengeful thoughts intent. A few more days passed during which those two recognized now as lovers by all in the house tasted the sweets found in that fleeting time, and then came the end.

They met one evening just as the silvery summer dusk was closing down. Each wore a grave and troubled look; a little constraint which had not been there before was in their manner.

"Will you come with me for a row upon the river, Meta?" he asked. "It may be our last one. I have bad news to tell you."

"And I you. Perhaps I should not call it bad news, but papa is coming to-morrow. It will be the last."

"Unless"—said Royal, and said no more until the river had been reached, and they were afloat in the little skiff which they found at the landing.

In that "dim, religious light," in the quiet of that hour, the angel of peace seemed to have dropped her mantle over the earth. The stillness was unbroken save by the voice of insects, the ripple of the current, the soft dip of the oars. Stars began to twinkle faintly in the evening sky, and the shore-line grew indistinct in the distance. Then Royal drew in his oars and let the boat drift with the tide.

"I have had a letter from Uncle Phil," he said, very quietly. "He has married Miss Lowrie, and I am disinherited."

"For me—Oh, Royal! and that is her revenge!"

The exclamation broke from her unthinkingly, then all over her face spread a quick, burning flush. If for her his own words had never yet told her so, but now reserve or concealment were things of the past.

"If it were for you, Meta! Oh, my darling! I love you so! You knew it, you must have known it, but after that came I never thought to tell you so in words. Forgive me if I pain you by doing it now when what might have been never can be. Had it been different, could I offer you fortune, as I once hoped"—his voice broke, and he cut short his words suddenly.

She only looked at him, such a wistful look, it almost shook his resolution. He knew if he had only said the word "Come," she would go with him, willingly, gladly, then, but the stubborn pride inherent in him rose. He could have died as easily as tempt her to the lot of poverty and hardship he alone had to offer then.

"I can only say God bless you, and good-by, now, Meta. I shall pray heaven for your happiness always."

"My happiness—oh, Royal!" But he would not hear either the reproach or the appeal in that cry.

He unshipped his oars again; but in changing his position before he took a single stroke, he gave a sudden start. It was followed by the gurgling sound of water welling up into the boat. He turned his face toward her; the calmness of intense excitement was in his voice.

"There was a rotten plank—my foot went through, as though it had been so much paper. Try not to be frightened. There is no possibility of keeping the skiff afloat, but I can swim ashore with you, I think. For heaven's sake, don't lose your presence of mind now, Meta."

He was pulling off coat and boots as he spoke. In moments of extreme danger, the right thing to be done will often flash through the mind instantaneously; so now he had divested himself of superfluous clothing and wrenched one oar loose from the row-lock in less time than it takes to tell. The other resisted his effort, and there was not one second to lose. The shore was a full quarter mile or more away—alone, he could reach it; with her—

"You cannot, Royal," she said, stilly, "Don't mind me; go, you can save yourself."

"Meta!"

"Then we will die together. I love you, Royal; death is less cruel than you would have been, it will not part us."

A light-like inspiration was in her face, she put her arms about his neck, then the water closed over the sinking boat and only his strength and that little insufficient spar separated them from death.

How it was done Royal France never could have told, he could never think of the age of agony embraced in that time afterward without a shudder. Swimming, supporting her, saving his strength all he might, the control she kept over herself and the implicit obedience she gave to his directions aiding him, the shore was reached at last.

After that there could be no question of parting between them.

"Papa will never consent," said Meta, "but I owe him no duty. If you will take me, Royal, gladly and happily I will be your wife."

Long afterward Royal was wont to say—

"Heaven bless the gate-post! But for it and the encounter I should have gone in answer to Uncle Phil's summons and so have missed my wife."

How She Taught Him.

A paper printed in Eufaula, Ala., prints the following as a veritable incident which occurred the other day in that city: "A lady hired an old negro woman named Charlotte, who had the most exalted opinion of her own individuality and originality. Whenever a subject was under discussion in the family, Charlotte would be sure to state her own superior method of proceeding in such matters. On one occasion the lady was talking of sending some of the children to school, when Charlotte put in her oar, as usual: 'Lor! Missus,' she said, 'what mek you pay money fur to send de chile to school? I got one smart boy named Jonus, but I larns him myself.' 'But, Aunt Charlotte,' replied the lady, 'how can you teach your child when you don't know one letter from another?' 'How I teach him! I jis mek him tek de book an' set down on de flo, an' den I say: Jonus, you tek yo eye from dat book, much less leggo him, an' I skins you alive.'"

Here is an extract from a letter written to her lover by a Montgomery, Alabama, girl: "For your sake, darling, I have quit using chewing-gum; would you quit gum for me? I would not have quit gum for any other person in the whole world!"

THE TURF.

Some Peculiarities of Race Horses.

(From the Pall Mall Gazette.)

There is an inclination sometimes to confound a severe race and a severe finish. The two expressions do not mean by any means the same thing. A severe race may be won with very great ease, but the pace has been severe throughout. On the other hand, a race run at so moderate a pace that there has been no "tailing off" may produce the severest and most desperate finish. To finish well is obviously one of the qualities most essential both in a jockey and in a horse; but, as there are jockeys, so there are horses that have not that quality naturally, and cannot attain it artificially. Some horses, again, seem to inherit it to a remarkable degree, while others appear to inherit a lack of it. It is asserted, on more or less trustworthy authority, that the stock of Monarque, sire of Gladiateur, "are nearly all of them endowed with inexhaustible courage, and will struggle on long after they are completely beaten" (horresco referens), the offspring of the Baron, sire of Stockwell, "the moment they cannot win easily are disheartened and renounce the struggle, even before it is begun." A fearful charge, which one cannot repeat without trepidation, is brought against the Flying Dutchman. It is hinted that on the memorable occasion on which he suffered his only defeat and succumbed to Voltigeur the incomparable Dutchman "flinched," and it is roundly declared that faintness of heart is the characteristic of all his progeny. The Frenchmen who gave £4,000 for him must have repented long ago in dust and ashes of their bargain, for it is a question if he ever begat any really good horse but Dollar, winner of the Goodwood Cup and of the Brighton Cup in 1864. It does not necessarily follow, however, that a horse which refuses to struggle and finish well refuses from lack of courage. As are the temperaments of men, so are those of horses. There is your good "examination man" and your bad "examination man;" some men, whether from a feeling of disdain, or of resentment, or of contrariety, or of levity, or of abstraction, or of melancholy, or from sheer inability to give full effect to all their powers at a given time, just because they are called upon fail to display in competition the superiority which distinguishes them upon every other occasion. Some pretty women are thrown completely into the shade upon certain momentous occasions, when they ought to look the best, by others who cannot hold a candle to them generally. This is especially noticeable and notorious in the case of brides, and the reason seems to reside in the idiosyncracy which, involving no excess or deficiency of courage, leads to an unexpected and incomprehensible result. Clever children and clever dogs, it will be allowed, nearly always disappoint one when they are desired to show off, especially if the desire is to entail any sort of competition; and courage or the want of it has nothing to do with the failure. So horses that will not "try" may not always fail from faintness of heart, but from a very different cause. It is rather curious that a horse which cannot be whipped and spurred into doing what, if he could speak, he might decline to do on conscientious grounds, should be stigmatized as "coward;" we usually consider it cowardly to take the opposite course. The horse that resents the first touch of whipcord or steel, and indignantly puts back his ears and swerves right away from the track, may be an obstinate and an aggravating brute, but from another point of view he may be said to show a high spirit. He is, however, clearly not to be relied upon, unless he can be trusted to "finish" on his own account, and exhaust himself to the last ounce without any "assistance;" and it is doubtful whether such a paragon of a horse was ever foaled. It is related of Wizard, second to Thormanby for the Derby, that he was the most difficult horse in the world to ride, and the most impossible to "finish" with, because he declined to do anything on compulsion, treated racing as a personal amusement, was as indignant at a whipping as a modern school-boy, ran just as fast and as long and as straight as it pleased him, and could never be brought to understand that he was bound to struggle to the last gasp for the sake of his backers' money. He was dubbed both imposter and coward; but he would more justly, perhaps, have been called an "impracticable ass." Some people have said that horses have no memory, but that depends upon what you understand by memory; it can hardly be denied that they have some faculty which answers the purpose of rendering them sometimes so averse from undergoing a repetition of a severe finish that, divining by the unmistakable reminder of the whip and spur the moment when it is about to commence, they will imitate the behavior of Balaam's ass and refuse to countenance their riders' intentions. And they may be animals of originally unquestionable courage and generosity, whose "hearts have been broke," as the saying is, by abuse of their noble endurance. "A great number of excellent horses," says an authority, "have been ruined forever in that manner." It might seem as if the creatures remembered the futility as well as the severity of their punishment, for it is in the nature of things that a loser should be more distressed than a winner, though it is not invariably the case; but, of course, that very fact would invalidate the argument based upon the semblance. As it can seldom be worth while to run the risk of having a "broken-hearted 'oss," a jockey who finishes well can show his judgment very often as well as his mastery of the manual and cruel exercise. "When a horse is coming in second," says the Wise Man, "very close, but his inferiority to his antagonist is manifest, a prudent and discreet jockey will be very careful not to make him struggle and wear himself out to no purpose, as he cannot possibly win." As for what is called a "fine" finish, it is an expression very likely to mislead the uninitiated, who may consider it identical with either a brilliant finish or a close finish. It is more like the former than the latter in one sense, and the latter than the former in another; for it means that the race is won by a shave, but that the shave is voluntary. Many a race is believed to have been lost by a jockey's infatuated passion for this sort of juggling finish, which displays his calculation and dexterity.

After-Thoughts.

How very often it happens in conversation, as Bernard Barton remarks in one of his letters to Crabbe, that the thing you might and would and should have said occurs to you just a little too late. He draws on his own experience for the record of many a long and animated discussion with a friend, after which he called to mind some pithy argument that would have smashed his opponent's case, and which, affirms the gentle Quaker poet, "I should have been almost sure to have had at my fingers' ends had I been quietly arguing the matter on paper in my own study." Cowper complains that when he wrote a letter to any but a familiar friend, no sooner had he dispatched it than he was sure to recollect how much better he could have made it. Horace Walpole opens his epistle with the remark that mere answers that are not made to letters immediately are like good things which people recollect they might have said had they but thought of them in time; that is, very insipid, and the apropos very likely forgotten. Vanity, as well as vexation of spirit.

Little Henry Esmond, when pointed out by saucy Trix to my Lord as "saying his prayers to mamma," could only look very silly. If he invented a half-dozen of speeches in reply, that was months afterward; "as it was, he had never a word in answer." Mr. Thackeray's writings offer divers illustrations of the same kind. There is Mr. Batchelor, for instance, when impertinently quizzed to his face by that supercilious Captain Baker. "'Sir!' says I; 'sir' was all I could say. The fact is, I could have replied with something remarkably neat and cutting, which would have transfixed the languid little jackanapes, * * * but, you see, I only thought of my repartee some eight hours afterward, when I was lying in bed, and I am sorry to own that a great number of my best bon mots have been made in that way."

Dr. Holmes suggestively records on the subject of mistakes and slips in writing, that he never finds them out until they are stereotyped and then he thinks they rarely escape him. Southey once assigned as a reason for his not reading for the bar that he was so easily disconcerted; that the right answer to an argument never occurred to him immediately. "I always find it at last, but it comes too late; a blockhead who speaks boldly can baffle me." A state of mind figured in a modern poem:

"Speech, only quick to blush its own delay,
Made me a fool, when fools had their own way,
And awkward-silent when conceit was loud."

Charlotte Bronte relates how Mr. Thackeray met her at the door, at the close of one of his readings, and frankly asked her what she thought of it; and how, liking his naivete she was entirely disposed to praise him, having plenty of praise in her heart, "but, alas! no words on my lips. Who has words at the right moment? I stammered out some lame expressions"—and doubtless hit on some neat and pithy eulogium soon after his back was turned.

The good dame in one of Mrs. Gaskell's fictions is speaking for thousands when she says of the rector and his wife that they "both talk so much as to knock one down, like; and it's not till they have gone, and one's a little at peace, that one can think there are things one might have said on one's own side of the question." And so again John Sereolaske, introduced by Philip van Arteveldeas our "sagacious friend"—than whom a better counsellor need not be, if only he have full scope beforehand to ponder and devise what to say; but "ask him on the sudden" a simple enough question, and—

"—Confounded will he stand
Till livelier tongues from emptier heads have spoken;
Then on the morrow to a tittle know
What should have been his answer."

Secrets of the Toilet.

The toilet has become one of the fine arts, and some of its secrets, as narrated in a recently-published work, are curious. Think of the lady, whose white hands you admire, wearing cosmetic-gloves every night, spread inside with the following preparation: "The yolk of two fresh eggs beaten with two teaspoonfuls of the oil of sweet almonds, one ounce of rose-water, and thirty-six drops of tincture of benzoin. Make a paste of this, spread it freely on the hands, and draw on the gloves afterward." As a "composition for the face," the same volume presents the following recipe from the collection of Doctor Cazenave, a foreign physician: "Three ounces of ground barley, one ounce of honey, and the white of an egg, mixed to a paste, and spread thickly on the cheeks, nose and forehead, before going to bed. This must remain all night, protecting the ace by a soft handkerchief or bits of awn laid over the parts on which the paste is applied. Wash it off with warm water, wetting the surface with a sponge, and letting it soften while dressing the hair or finishing one's bath. Repeat nightly, until the skin grows perfectly fine and soft, which should be in three weeks, after which it will be enough to use it once a week. This paste was used by the Romans. With this, care must be taken to bathe daily in warm water, using soap freely, toning the system afterward, if one can bear it."

Language of Color.

The following is said to be the French method of the meaning attached to colors, but it appears to us to smack rather of the laboratory than of genuine sentiment. They hold out that violet is analogous to friendship, blue to love, as suggested by blue eyes and azure sky. A bunch of violets would, therefore, tell a lady's suitor that friendship is all that he has a right to expect. Yellow is paternity, or maternity; it is the yellow ray of the spectrum which causes the germ to shoot. Red figures ambition; indigo the spirit of rivalry; green, the love of change, fickleness, but also work; orange, enthusiasm; white, unity, universality; black, favoritism, the influence exerted by an individual. Certain persons have the gift of fascinating all who approach them; and black, which absorbs all the rays of the spectrum, is the reverse of white, which combines them in one. Beside the seven primitive colors, gray indicates poverty; brown, prudery; pink, modesty; silver-gray (semi-white), feeble love; lilac (semi-violet), feeble friendship; pale pink, false shame.

There is an old saying that a child at two years old is half as tall as he ever will be, and after a few experiments in measuring one can easily believe it, but not before.

LESSONS TAUGHT BY LITTLE THINGS

Men are too prone to underrate
Themselves and what they do,
Because their work indifferent seems,
Though it is useful, too;
Yet not a blow was ever struck
That made the anvil ring,
But had its place in that vast world
Where industry is king.

A penny, trifle though it be,
The smallest of all coin,
Becomes the very heart of wealth
When it and others join;
So little streams that from the hills
Come laughing in their glee,
When they flow down the rocky shore
Expand into a sea.

E'en from the simple seed which ranks
Among the smallest things,
And seems a lifeless particle,
The richest harvest springs;
And effort, howsoever small,
If useful and combined,
Shall build the grandest monuments
Ever raised by hand and mind.

Look at the granite corner-stone
In its deep solitude;
Alone it does not seem to be
With mighty power imbued!
But as stone after stone is laid,
The towering columns rise,
Till stands a temple beautiful
Revealed against the skies.

Then let us value every act,
However small, we do,
And measure it by usefulness,
To which it must be true;
For he has wisdom learned who knows
The fruit that labor brings,
Who owns the wondrous potency
Of even little things.

Pith and Point.

A stamp act—Treading on people's toes.

The bump of destructiveness—A railway collision.

The census gives Philadelphia two female carriage builders.

This is the way an "intelligent comp" set up the Halls of the Montezumas: "The Hells of the Monte Games."

"Two soles that beat as one," remarked the boy to his mother, as she was dealing with him for his sins with both slippers at once.

There are few things more barbarous than "mentioning" a man for an office every year for ten years, and never electing, or even nominating him.—Boston Globe.

A Cleveland young man has a scrap-book containing the marriage notices of all the women that he has loved, and he sits out in the moonlight and reads it and cries.

A visitor to the jail incidentally mentioned that this was a backward spring. "I should say it was," proclaimed a discouraged prisoner. "Here it is the 20th of May and we hain't had green peas yet!"—Danbury News.

When you want to send her a line by postal card, write with the following preparation: Ten grains of hypho-sulphite of soda in sixteen teaspoonsful of water. Then, you see, the postoffice clerks won't know who she is. Heat brings out the writing.

We heard recently how one man cured a neighbor newspaper borrower. It is told thus: "Mr. ——, father wants to borrow your paper. He says he only wants to read it." "Well, go back and ask your father to send me his supper. Tell him I only want to eat it." The next evening the boy did not come.

The more married men, the fewer crimes there will be. Marriage renders a man more virtuous and more wise. An unmarried man is but half of a perfect being, and it requires the other half to make things right; and it cannot be expected that in this imperfect state he can keep the straight path of rectitude any more than a boat with one oar can keep a straight course.—Voltaire.

PRETZELS.

It is seldom that a bank teller will tell anything about his bank.

Croquet players appear never to have room enough. They always want one lawn mower.

Wooden legs made from oak are liable to acorn.

Now is the time to load mad dogs up to the muzzle with buck shot.

Little Eddie Puthoff, of St. Louis, put off his earthly garments the other day, and in that cherubic condition climbed the golden stair. But though gone he is not to be forgotten. His sister thus renders him immortal:

Little Eddie, you are not here,
You are gone forever, my darling dear;
When I see the stars up in the sky,
I think I see you looking both ways with your eyes.
—Sister Nettie.

The Value of Time.

When the Roman Emperor said, "I have lost a day," he uttered a sadder truth than if he had exclaimed, "I have lost a kingdom." Napoleon said that the reason why he beat the Austrians was, that they did not know the value of five minutes. At the celebrated battle of Rivoli, the conflict seemed on the point of being decided against him. He saw the critical state of affairs, and instantly took his resolution. He dispatched a flag to the Austrian headquarters with proposals for an armistice. The unwary Austrians fell into a snare. For a few minutes the thunders of battle were hushed. Napoleon seized the precious moment, and while amusing the enemy with mock negotiations, rearranged his line of battle, changed his front, and in a few minutes was ready to renounce the force of discussion for the stern arbitrament of arms. The splendid victory of Rivoli was the result. The great moral victories and defeats of the world often turn on five minutes. Crises come, the not seizing of which is ruin. Men may loiter, but time flies on wings of the wind, and all the great interests of life are speeding on, with the sure and silent tread of destiny.

Washington's White Horses.

According to G. W. P. Custis' recollections, the grooming of Washington's white horses was something surprising. The night before the horses were expected to be ridden they were covered entirely over with a paste, of which whiting was the principal component part; then the animals were swathed in body-clothes, and left to sleep upon clean straw. In the morning the composition had become hard, was well rubbed in, and curried and brushed, which process gave to the coats a beautiful glossy and satin-like appearance. The hoofs were then blacked and polished, the mouths washed, teeth picked and cleaned, and the leopard-skin housings being properly adjusted, the white chargers were led out for service.

Terrible Volcanic Eruptions in Iceland

(London Cor. New York Times.)

About six weeks ago there was a heavy rain of ashes and cinders along the northern coast of Norway, covering the ground several inches deep. Investigation revealed the fact that these strange materials, coming from a northwesterly direction like immense clouds through the air, were of volcanic origin. It was at once thought that there must have been an eruption of Mt. Hecla, in Iceland. A steamer was dispatched from Copenhagen, and that vessel has returned from Rejkjavik with news of an unparalleled disaster. It seems that the outbreak began on Christmas, and has continued ever since with scarce any interruption. For seven weeks before Christmas the inhabitants were terrified by subterranean noises like thunder, which extended through nearly two-thirds of the islands. Early in January followed earthquakes in all directions, and at last, an old extinct volcano near Vatrayskud opened, and for four weeks continued to eject immense quantities of fire, lava, ashes, and a muddy fluid mass at boiling heat. The village, and some smaller hamlets and farms within a radius of 20 miles, were destroyed, and over 1,000 people had to flee for their lives.

After four weeks this volcano ceased, but at that moment another extinct volcano, nearly 100 miles away, near Myvatu, sent its burning mass upon the peaceful habitations around. This eruption lasted for several weeks, the village of Myvatu became a prey to the fiery elements, and the whole country for more than 50 miles around was devastated. More than 800 of the people are reported as having been rendered homeless. Early in March there seemed to be a general upheaval of the earth in the whole central portion of the island; new mounds, as it were, rose to the surface, some to a height of several hundred feet and over 1,000 feet in diameter at the base, amid tremendous shocks of thundering beneath. They split open at the top and vomited forth their burning contents upon the surface around them, covering a distance of 200 miles. Ten thousand people are said to have lost nearly all their possessions, and the remainder, who live nearer to and along the coasts, some 40,000 in number, are themselves too poor to support such a vast number of needy people. Several hundred persons are also reported to have perished. The world-renowned Geysers have dried up since the terrible eruption began, and instead of water, these mysterious funnels emit immense quantities of hot smoke and ashes, which, during the night, rising several thousand feet into the air, appear like gigantic columns of flameless fire, visible for hundreds of miles. It is said that no historic record of any volcanic eruption anywhere in the world compares with this, either in territory over which it extends, the number of newly-opened craters, or the time of its duration. The Copenhagen government has issued an appeal for aid to the sufferers.

Remarkable Dream.

A dignitary of the Church of England, of rank and reputation, furnishes the editor of Glimpses of the Supernatural with the following remarkable dream, which occurred to himself: My brother had left London for the country to preach and speak on behalf of a certain church society, to which he was officially attached. He was in his usual health, and I was therefore in no special anxiety about him. One night my wife woke me, finding that I was sobbing in my sleep, and asked me what it was. I said, "I have been to a strange place in my dream. It was a small village, and I went up to the door of an inn. A stout woman came to the door. I said to her, 'Is my brother here?' She said, 'No, sir, he is gone.' 'Is his wife here?' I went on to inquire. 'No, sir—but his widow is.'" Then the distressing thought rushed upon me that my brother was dead, and I awoke sobbing. A few days afterward I was summoned suddenly into the country. My brother, returning from Huntingdon, had been attacked with angina pectoris; and the pain was so intense that they left him at Caxton—a small village in the diocese of Ely—to which place on the following day he summoned his wife, and the next day, while they were seated together, she heard a sigh, and he was gone. When I reached Caxton, it was the very same village to which I had gone in my dream. I went to the same house, was met and let in by the same woman, and found my brother dead, and his widow there.

Extempore Speech.

When Cato rose in the Roman Senate and held up a ripe fig, saying, "This fruit was gathered at Carthage three days ago," to illustrate the nearness of their enemies, and all Rome exclaimed that Carthage must be destroyed, we should find it hard to imagine that Cato, before he did it, climbed into a box four feet square and which came up almost to his armpits, and that he drew out of his pocket a very illegible manuscript and took out his handkerchief and wiped his glasses, then adjusted his specs, and then bent down his head, looked twice at his paper to see if he was right, then muttered, "Brethern this fig—no, this fruit—brethern, this fruit was gathered—I say was gathered—at Carthage three days ago," and then fumbled into his pocket till he found the fig, and then laid it out upon the board on top of the box where he rested his manuscript. It would be hard for us to imagine this eloquence; and we should feel very certain that, if this course had been taken, all Rome would have shouted, "Cato must be destroyed!"—The Advance.

"Cutting a Dido."

This phrase is older than most people imagine. Do you call to mind the story of Dido, Princess of Tyre? Her husband, Acerbas, priest of Hercules, was murdered for his wealth by the King Pygmalion, brother of Dido. The widowed Princess was enabled to escape from Tyre, bearing with her the wealth of her husband, and accompanied by a number of disaffected nobles.

After a variety of adventures they landed on the coast of Africa, where Dido bargained with the natives for as much land as she could inclose in a bull's hide. Selecting a large tough hide, she caused it to be cut into the smallest possible threads, with which she enclosed a large tract of country, on which the city of Carthage soon began to rise.

The natives were bound by the letter of their bargain, and allowed the cunning queen to have her way; and after that, when any one had played off a sharp trick, they said he had "cut a Dido." That was almost three thousand years ago, and the saying has come down to our day.

A FRIGHTFUL DISASTER.

More About the Earthquake in New Grenada—Sixteen Thousand Lives Lost.

Further information has been received by way of Havana of the calamity in New Grenada. The whole valley of Cucuta, in New Grenada, near the Venezuelan frontier, has been devastated by an earthquake, and it is said that 16,000 persons have lost their lives. The valley of Cucuta is in the Province of Pamlona, a mountainous section of New Grenada, in which the peak of Almorzadero, 12,850 feet high, is situated. The range to which this belongs is about 250 miles from the Pacific coast, about the same distance from the Carribean sea, and but a short distance from the Venezuelan frontier. In this region traces of the most violent volcanic action are visible on every hand. This action is of so recent a date as in many places to keep the soil in a heated condition.

There have been numerous earthquakes in the United States and South America, but none in connection with which such tremendous destruction is recorded as in the above. In 1811 occurred the famous series of earthquakes in Missouri, which Humboldt studied and described. Over an extent of country stretching for 300 miles southward from the mouth of the Ohio river the ground rose and sunk in great undulations for months. The disturbances continued over what has since been called the "sunk country" until March 26, 1812, when they ceased coincidently with the great earthquake of Caracas. About midnight on February 20, 1835, the city of Concepcion, Chili, was destroyed by an earthquake. It probably originated near the islands of Juan Fernandez, where a volcano burst through a depth of 400 feet of water, sending up a column of fiery ejecta, which killed immense numbers of fish in the vicinity. Many thousands of persons lost their lives on this occasion.

On March 19, 1873, the city of San Salvador was utterly destroyed. Three shocks were experienced, but the inhabitants were, by the previous noises, so well warned that a comparatively small loss of life (about 500) took place. The frequency of earthquakes in this region is expressively told in the name given to it by the aboriginal Indians—Cuscatlan—"the land that swings like a hammock."

But by far the most awful earthquake ever recorded in history is that of Lisbon, on the 1st of November, 1755. About 9 o'clock in the morning a hollow thunder-like sound was heard in the city, although the weather was clear and serene. Almost immediately afterward, without any other warning, such an upheaval and overturning of the ground occurred as destroyed the greater part of the houses, and buried or crushed no less than 30,000 persons. As it was a festival day most of the churches were filled with their congregations, and each church became a flaming sepulcher for the hapless victims, for the burning tapers set the woodwork on fire, and the people were both crushed and burned. In the whole region about 60,000 persons lost their lives; and on the opposite side of the Mediterranean, in Morocco, the earth opened and swallowed a town with 8,000 inhabitants. The enormous sea-waves caused by these disturbances destroyed hundreds of vessels with their crews.

Our Neighbors.

One of our church societies has long been wrestling with the question, "Who is thy neighbor?" Some of the members incline to the belief that, in the scriptural injunction, "Love thy neighbor," all mankind is meant; others contend that they only are our neighbors who are friendly to us; while yet others, of illiberal and contracted views, maintain that one is to have no neighbors outside of the pale of one's own church. Let them settle it as they may, the neighbor will be a neighbor still. We have one of the right royal sort in our mind's eye. He keeps his chickens shut up when we make garden; he lends us good books, and borrows ours; returns what he borrows—and never asks for those he loans; comes over often and chats, without telling us his grievances and troubles, or seeking to learn ours; gives no advice, and asks for none; cares not whether we have family prayers or domestic broils; if he thinks our baby doesn't look like us, he takes no pains to mark the points of difference; on general matters he expresses his own views boldly, and does not think us a blasted fool if we do not coincide with them; he calls on us when we are sick, and doesn't talk to us of dark, dismal holes in the ground, or tell us of a number of persons he has known who exhibited the same symptoms as ours, and finally died after a terrible and protracted illness; when we die, he will attend to the funeral arrangements, see that no second-hand coffin is palmed off on us, and tenderly support our apparently grief-stricken widow when the falling clods send back to her ears the rattling notes of freedom; finally, he will assist her to get another and better husband. Heaven bless our neighbor! There are few like him. More's the pity.—Brunswicker.

A Mysterious Time-Piece.

We have heretofore noticed the construction of an electric clock by Mr. Edward Clark, the ingenious silversmith of this city. It requires no winding, but is moved solely by electricity. If unobstructed, it will run continuously for an indefinite period. A singular fact in connection with it was recently discovered by Mr. Clark. Pointing the finger to the right hand toward the dial of the clock, it was observed suddenly to cease running. After close and unavailable scrutiny to detect the cause, Mr. Clark pointed the finger of his left hand toward the dial when the clock instantly renewed its time-keeping. The experiment has been repeatedly witnessed by many of our citizens. No cause is apparent for the strange phenomenon. Even at the distance of six or eight feet, with a large plate glass window intervening the effect is the same. The solution of this singular mystery will prove an interesting subject of investigation to scientific minds.—Paris (Ky.) Citizen.

Plain Talk.

The American Journal of Education has the following, which will do for school directors to ponder over:

One of our County Superintendents writes as follows:

"I wish you would say in the 'Journal,' that school officers should be elected for their ability and efficiency, or for their good sense, and not because 'it is Tom's turn,' or 'Dick wants it,' or 'Harry belongs to your party,' or your church, or married my wife's sister.

"That school directors have other duties, than providing for impecunious male or female relatives.

"That a good teacher is cheap, and a poor one dear at any price.

"That babies should not always be sent to school to 'get them out of the way' (for a good teacher may be an indifferent nurse), neither should pupils be kept at home to do chores.

"That a building so full of dirt, decay, disease, discomfort, disagreeableness and discouragement, as to be totally unfit for anything else, will not necessarily be a good school house.

"That simply paying a man's school tax will no more insure his children a good education, than paying a minister tax will give him a warranty deed of heaven."

The Velocity and Duration of Lightning.

A large flash of lightning, distinctly seen, often leaves upon the mind an impression that it has lasted fully a second or more, but it is proved that such is not the fact. Its velocity is at the rate of 288,000 miles per second. The utmost duration of a flash from beginning to end is estimated not to exceed the sixtieth part of a second, though retained upon the retina so much longer. This may be proved during a storm on a perfectly dark night by setting a wheel to work so rapidly that in a steady light its spokes appear to blend and become individually invisible. It being dark, and the wheel rapidly revolving as above, when a flash of lightning occurs the wheel will appear to the eye motionless, every spoke being distinctly and separately visible and still. This was first observed by Wheatstone, and is recorded by him, in conjunction with other similar experiments, as conclusive proof that the duration of the flash is excessively brief.

VINEGAR BITTERS.—The great merit of VINEGAR BITTERS has made them the leading medicine of the day, and respectable druggists everywhere write: "They are the best and most popular preparation in the market." They have stood the test of public opinion and won confidence. They sell rapidly because they cure. If you are sick you want reliable medicine. VINEGAR BITTERS commend themselves to the ailing and afflicted, as they are deficient in one thing alone, viz.: the stimulant that unduly excites the brain, and creates a morbid thirst for spirits! There is no phase of Indigestion, Biliousness, Nervous Disease, or Physical Debility, in which they will not effect a cure. Invalids who are wasting away from want of proper action in the liver, stomach and bowels, will find them a constitutional specific, and a fountain of vitality and vigor as refreshing and exhilarating as a cool, gushing spring of water to the parched and fainting traveler in the desert. 41

AN observing man at Niagara Falls said, half musingly, and partly to the hackman that was swindling him, "I think that couple yonder are on a bridal tour, are they not?" "No, sir," said the hackman, whose hour was nearly up, "they are on Terrapin Tower."

WILHOFT'S TONIC is not a panacea—is not a cure for everything, but is a catholicon for malarious diseases, and day by day adds fresh laurels to its crown of glorious success. Engorged Livers and Spleens along the shady banks of our lakes and rivers, are restored to their healthy and normal secretions. Health and vigor follow its use, and Chills have taken their departure from every household where Wilhoft's Anti-Periodic is kept and taken. Don't fail to try it. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

TOOTHACHE proceeds from ague in the face, operating upon the exposed nerve of a decayed tooth. Rub the gum thoroughly with the finger, wet with Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, heat the face well, and lap a flannel wet with the liniment on the face; also put a little of the liniment into the cavity of the tooth on cotton.

THE system frequently gets out of order and should at once be regulated, else other troubles will ensue; when physic is needed take Parsons' Purgative Pills; they are a safe, wholesome, and natural medicine.

GLEN FLORA SPRING WATER, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

HOW TO GET A HOME. See advertisement.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES
A penny saved here and there counts up at the end of the year. Buy only SILVER TIPPED Shoes and you will save dollars instead of cents. Parents remember this.

CABLE SCREW WIRE
Millions of dollars would be saved yearly if all would buy CABLE SCREW WIRE Boots and Shoes. The easiest, driest, and most durable Shoe ever worn. All genuine goods are stamped patented.

$10 to $25 PER DAY—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G CO., Buchanan, Mich.

$3 SAMPLE Free and Big Pay to Male and Female everywhere. Address, THE UNION PUB. CO., Newark, N. J.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEO. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

AGENTS WANTED for the fastest-selling BOOK ever published. Send for circulars and our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUB. CO., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.

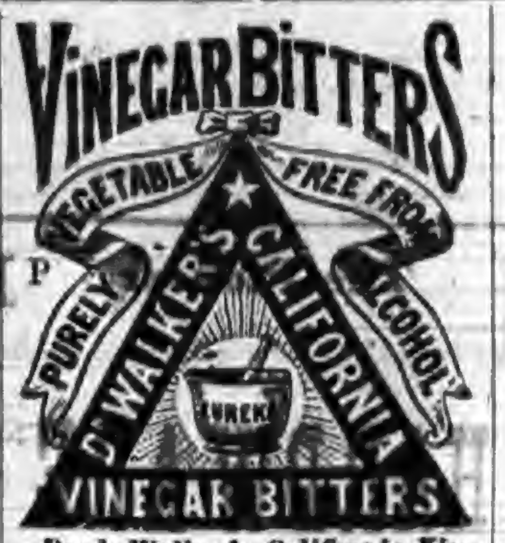
SOMETHING for you. Sells at sight. Our Agents coin money. We have work and money for all, men or women, boys or girls, whole or spare time. Send stamp for Catalogue. Address FRANK GLUCK, New Bedford, Mass.

FOR SALE. Chicago Suburban Lots at $100 each—$15 down and $5 monthly for balance—within a short distance of city limits, with hourly trains and cheap fare. Send for circular. IRA BROWN, 142 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

I WILL SELL, AT A GOOD BARGAIN, one undivided quarter of the WM. H. BEACH & CO. PAPER MILL in South Bend. For terms, address J. A. HENRICKS, South Bend, Ind.

FLORIDA The Florida Agriculturist, Weekly, $3 a year. Send 10c. for specimen. Proceedings Florida Fruit-Growers' Association—meeting of 1875—25 cts. Address WALTON & Co., Jacksonville, Fla. Say where you saw this.

$10 to $500. Invested in Wall Street often leads to fortune. A 72-page book explaining everything, and copy of the Wall Street Review SENT FREE. JOHN HICKLING & CO., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, N. Y.



Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative, as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

R. H. McDONALD & CO.,
Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

THE WEEKLY SUN, 8 pages, 56 broad columns, from now to New Years, postpaid, 50 cts. Address THE SUN, N. Y.

10 DOLLARS PER DAY AGENTS WANTED to sell THE IMPROVED HOME SHUTTLE Sewing Machine. Address Johnson, Clark & Co., Boston, Mass.; New York City; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Chicago, Ill.; or St. Louis, Mo.

NEW TIME TABLE.
A TON OF HAY deposited in 3 to 5 minutes to any part of Mow or Stack with Nellis' O. H. Horse Hay Fork and Patent Conveyer. No extra expense to Farmers for Conveyer. Descriptive Catalogue free. Reliable Agents wanted. Address A. J. NELLIS & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

OPIUM CURE The most successful remedy of the present day. Send for Paper on Opium Eating. Prof. D. Meeker, P. O. Box 475, Laporte, Ind.

Whether for use on man or beast, Merchant's Gargling Oil will be found an invaluable Liniment and worthy of use by every resident in the land. We know of no proprietary medicine or article now used in the United States which shares the good-will of the people to a greater degree than this. Yellow wrapper for animal, and white for human flesh.—N. Y. Independent.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL

Is the Standard Liniment of the United States. Established 1833. Large size, $1.00; medium size, 50 cents; small size, 25 cents. Small size for family use, 25 cents. Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company.
JOHN HODGE, Secretary.

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

50 Of the prettiest CARDS you ever saw, with your name handsomely printed on them, sent, postpaid, upon receipt of 20 cents. Your friends will all want them when they see yours. Address W. C. CANNON, 46 Kneeland St., Boston, Mass.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS
Sold in cans by Druggists. 35 cents and upwards.

Book Keeping. Double Entry.—By Clark's method, so simplified that any one may master the science without a teacher. Bound in cloth. Sent post-paid on receipt of $1. Agents wanted. W. S. Clark & Co., 145 Race street (Aikens Newspaper Union Building), Cincinnati, O.

PAINTER'S Manual.—House and sign painting, graining, varnishing, polishing, calcimining, papering, lettering, staining, gilding, etc., 50c. Book of Alphabets, 50c. Scrolls and Ornaments, $1. Carpenter's Manual, 50c. Watchmaker and Jeweler, 50c. Taxidermist, 50c. Soapmaker, 25c. Authorship, 50c. Lightning Calculator, 25c. Hunter and Trapper's Guide, 20c. Dog Training, 25c. Of booksellers, or by mail. JESSE HANEY & CO., 119 Nassau street, New York.

HOW TO GET A HOME.
IOWA LANDS, 800,000 ACRES.
Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to
DAVIDSON & CALKINS,
R. R. Land Office, Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

NO YOU WILL NEVER have FRUIT IF YOU DON'T SET IT OUT.
You can buy your fruit plants very cheap by contracting with me for them now. To be shipped in the fall, and no money required until the plants arrive. I will furnish good reference as to my reliability. Send for Price-List. Strawberries, Raspberries, Blackberries, Currants, Gooseberries, Grapes.
THOMAS LESLIE, Ipava, Ill.

SEA FOAM
C. W. Reed, Grocer, New Haven, Ct., says—"Your Sea Foam cannot be excelled north of the equator for Good Bread and Fine Biscuit it is a Wonderful Preparation." So say all Pitcher, Flintner & Co., Wholesale Dealers, Boston, say—"We take pleasure in recommending your Sea Foam as the Best Baking Powder we have ever sold. Parties once using it will have no other. Its sales are immense. Send for circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & Co. 176 Duane St., N. Y.

NEEDLES FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES can be obtained at about one-half the usual rates by ordering direct. Singer's, 40 cts. per dozen; Wheeler & Wilson, 60 cts.; Howe's, 50 cts.; Grover & Baker, 50 cts.; and others in proportion. Inclose the amount and Needles will be returned by first mail. Address DEFIANCE NEEDLE CO., 658 Broadway, N. Y.

OPIUM Morphine Habit and Intemperance
Speedily cured by DR. BECK'S only known and sure Remedy. No CHARGE for treatment until cured. Call on or address
Dr. J. C. BECK, 112 John St., Cincinnati, O.

A MAN OF A THOUSAND.
A CONSUMPTIVE CURED.—When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, accident led to a discovery whereby Dr. H. James cured his only child with a preparation of Cannabis Indica. He now gives recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not dissipate—Night Sweats, Irritation of the Nerves, Difficult Expectoration, sharp Pains in the Lungs, Nausea at the Stomach, Inaction of the Bowels, and Wasting of the Muscles. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Pa., giving name of this paper.

ELASTIC TRUSS. This new Truss is worn with perfect comfort night and day. Adapts itself to every motion of the body, retaining rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain until permanently cured. Sold cheap by the Elastic Truss Co., No. 683 Broadway, N. Y. City. Sent by mail. Call or send for Circular, and be cured.

Established 1858.
PRINCE'S METALLIC PAINT. 72 lbs. N. Y. 300 lbs. TRADE MARK, PATENTED.
The best and cheapest Paint in the World for Iron, Tin or Wood. For sale by Dealers everywhere. PRINCES' METALLIC PAINT CO., Manuf'trers, 96 Cedar St., New York.
CAUTION.—Purchasers will please see that our name and trade mark are on each and every package. Send for a Circular.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT
Bottled Bliss. It is impossible to conceive of a more refreshing draught than is afforded by Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient, which combines the advantages of a luxury with those of the purest, safest and most genial alterative and tonic ever administered as a cure for dyspepsia and bilious affections.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

"THE Best Paint in the World!"
Every Man His Own Painter.
ANY SHADE from PURE WHITE to JET BLACK
Our RUBBER PAINT has been used on many thousand buildings and has always proved entirely satisfactory. We have numerous testimonials like the following, viz.: M. P. SHEPPARD & CO., Penn Yan, N. Y.: "We believe it to be the BEST PAINT manufactured." W. W. LELAND, "Eutaw House," Baltimore: "Having used your Paint on the Grand Hotel, Saratoga, and this Eutaw House, I recommend its use to all." Be sure that our TRADE-MARK (a fac-simile of which is given above) is on every package. Prepared ready for use and sold by the gallon only. Send for Sample Card and Price List.
Branch Offices & Factories, 506 West St., NEW YORK.
210 South Third St., ST. LOUIS, MO.
83 West Van Buren Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

DO YOUR OWN PRINTING!
NOVELTY PRINTING PRESS.
For Professional and Amateur Printers, Schools, Societies, Manufacturers, Merchants, and others it is the BEST ever invented. 13,000 in use. Ten styles. Prices from $5.00 to $150.00
BENJ. O. WOODS & CO. Manuf'rs and dealers in all kinds of Printing Material, 49 Federal St. Boston.
Send stamp for Catalogue.)

Judge Lee's Decision
Hon. Judge Lee of Bucyrus, O., says: "One morning last December I was seized with a violent pain in the neck of the bladder; alarmed, I sent for my physician. He examined me and prescribed Hamilton's Buchu and Dandelion. In a day or two I was much better, but having a return of the pain I continued the medicine. In two weeks I was entirely relieved, and I send you a calculus or gravel which I passed. When it first came it measured just an inch in length and one quarter in diameter. My distress is all gone and I have had no symptom of return. Next to God I thank you for my recovery." KRESS MAN'F'G CO. Cin.

STOCKS
dealt in at the New York Stock Exchange bought and sold by us on margin of five per cent.
PRIVILEGES
negotiated at one to two per cent. from market on members of the New York Exchange or responsible parties. Large sums have been realized the past 30 days. Put or call costs on 100 shares $106.25.
Straddles $250 each; control 200 shares of stock for 30 days without further risk, while many thousand dollars profit may be gained. Advice and information furnished. Pamphlet containing valuable statistical information and showing how Wall Street operations are conducted sent to any address. Orders solicited by mail or wire, and promptly executed by us. Address
FREE
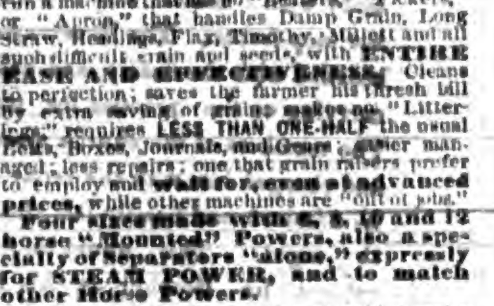
TUMBRIDGE & CO.,
Bankers and Brokers,
No. 2 Wall Street, New York.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.'S
"VIBRATOR" THRESHER.
The BRILLIANT SUCCESS of this Grain-Saving, Time-Saving THRESHER, is unprecedented in the annals of Farm Machinery. In a brief period it has become widely known and FULLY ESTABLISHED, as the "LEADING THRESHING MACHINE."



GRAIN RAISERS REFUSE to submit to the wasteful and imperfect work of other Threshers, when posted on the vast superiority of this one, for saving grain, saving time, and doing fast, thorough and economical work.
THRESHERMEN FIND IT highly advantageous to run a machine that has no "Beaters," "Pickers," or "Aprons," that handles Damp Grain, Long Straw, Headings, Flax, Timothy, Millett and all such difficult grain and seeds, with ENTIRE EASE AND EFFECTIVENESS. Cleans to perfection; saves the farmer his thresh bill by extra saving of grain; makes no "Litterings;" requires LESS THAN ONE-HALF the usual Belts, Boxes, Journals, and Gears; easier managed; less repairs; one that grain raisers prefer to employ and wait for, even at advanced prices, while other machines are "out of jobs."
Four sizes made with 6, 8, 10 and 12 horse "Mounted" Powers, also a specialty of Separators "alone," expressly for STEAM POWER, and to match other Horse Powers.
If interested in grain raising, or threshing, write for Illustrated Circulars (sent free) with full particulars of sizes, styles, prices, terms, etc.
NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.,
Battle Creek, Michigan.

BECKWITH PORTABLE FAMILY SEWING $25. MACHINE. DOUBLE THREAD. BECKWITH S. M. Co. NEW YORK & CHICAGO.

DR. WHITTIER,
No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. Dr. W.'s establishment is chartered by the State of Missouri, was founded and has been established to ensure safe, certain and reliable relief. Being a graduate of several medical colleges, and having the experience of a long and successful life in his specialties, he has perfected remedies that are effectual in all these cases. His patients are being treated by mail or express everywhere. No matter who failed, call or write. From the great number of applications he is enabled to keep his charges low. 36 pages, giving full symptoms, for two stamps.
MARRIAGE GUIDE,
260 pages, a popular book which should be read by everybody. No married pair, or persons contemplating marriage, can afford to do without it. It contains the cream of medical literature on this subject, the results of Dr. W.'s long experience; also the best thoughts from late works in Europe and America. Sent sealed, post-paid for 50 cts.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Aubrun Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, JULY, 1, 1875

The jury in the Beecher-Tilton case went out to find a verdict last Friday.

Lagrange County Commissioners would grant no liquor licenses at their June term. Lagrange is intensely radical which is the only explanation we can offer.

Vice President Wilson, has written a letter, in which he says he has never asked, or intimated to anybody that he wanted to occupy the high office of President. What if he did, he wont occupy it if the court knows herself.

Boss Tweed has been released from Blackwell's Island, by order of the court of appeals, which decided in his favor. He went to New York, where he was rearrested on a civil suit for defrauding the city out of $6,000,000 The fine is set at $3,000,000.

John A. Bingham said that Evarts in his defense of Andrew Johnson, sought to make his address immortal by making it eternal. The jury must have adopted the same style of oratory in their effects to persuade each other.

Mr. B. A. Martin, who was a witness in the trial, is engaged to Miss Florence Tilton. The rash young man has probably not reflected that the consummation of his plans will make Mrs. Morse his grandmother-in-law.

The Ohio Democracy seem to be pretty well united this year. In the last campaign Senator Thurman did not act very effectively with the party but this year he will give his hearty cooperation in the great cause. Look out for a brilliant campaign and a glorious victory.

The Cleveland Plaindealer accuses the republicans of Ohio of organizing a political body known as "The Order of '76," with grips, pass-words and affirmations, after the manner of the Knownothings of 1854, and that the oath of admission provides that the applicant shall not vote for any foreigner or Roman Catholic for office.

The newspaper correspondents at Washington, finding things dull since the government went off to its cottage at Long Branch, have returned their old employment of retiring Secretary Delano. In justice to him, it should be said that Columbus himself does not show the faintest symtom of resigning, and will not, as long as there are any Indians to deal with.

Syracuse, Ind., has had a Beecher scandal, lately. A Rev. Mr. Coates has been carrying on a criminal intimacy with a widow, who resided with her step-father. The Reverend rascal boarded with the family, and has been carrying on the practice for months. The members of the church assembled and charged him with the crime which he admitted, and hastily left the place that night. This would be a good subject for Beecher, at his Friday night prayer meetings.

A man by the name of Keeley, has invented a new motive power, which requires only air and water. It furnishes the power that will do the future work of the world—a power generated without expense, by a simple mechanical contrivance, without the aid of heat, chemicals, or electricity. There are plenty of people who claim that he really has made a discovery that will entirely do away with the use of steam power, and if he has, it will be conceded to be the greatest discovery the genius of the world has yet produced.

The names of the gentlemen from whom the respective party will be pretty sure to select the candidates for President next year are not many Here is a catalogue:

Republicans.—B. H. Bristow, O. P. Morton, E. B. Washburne, E. D. Morgan, H. Wilson, J. G. Blaine.

Democrats.—T. A. Hendricks, A. G. Thurman, W. Allen, T. F. Bayard J. S. Black, S. J. Tilden.

Each of these lists seems complete as the case stands at present. It is possible, but not probable, that new men may come up in the course of next fall and winter. For instance if Gen. Hayes should be elected Governor of Ohio by a rousing majority, he would take a place in the Republican list, but if he should be beaten, his chance of reaching such distinct-

Itself Its Only Parallel.

P. T. BARNUM'S
GREAT ROMAN HIPPODROME

The Barnum Universal Exposition Prop's
P. T. BARNUM. President.

Will Exibit at

FORT WAYNE,
JULY 7th, 1875.

Two Grand Performances at 2 and 8 o'clok p. m.

Acres of Wide-spread Canvass and the Largest Amphitheatre in the World. An army of men, women and children; hundreds of Thoroughbred and Imported Horses· Gilt and Gold besprinkled Chariots and Tableau cars; Solid Silver and Jeweled Armor; Glittering Paraphernalia, and the most elaborate, brilliant and expensive Wardrobe ever beheld. Historical Pageant of the Congress of Nations!

Producing a grand succession of Intellectual Surprises, embracing the following changes, equivalent to sitting in full view of the Royal Courts of the whole world. Magnificent Revival of the Sports of Ancient Greece and Rome!

With all the exciting Races and many Realistic Pictures of the olden times.

Pete at Perkin, Or Celestial Holiday!

Indian Life, or Chase for a Wife!

Presenting Loonchi's Tribe of Wild Indians and Mexican Rangers in scenes incident to savage life.

M'lle D'Atalie, Satsuma and Little All Right, and Lazelle, Millson and Master Lazelle,

In a trio of acts.

Vision of the Houris—Grand March of the Amazons—Ballet Divertisement—Grand Operatic Chorus, &c.

Prof. W. H. DONALSON, the distinguished Aeronaut, will make gratuions Assensions in the AIR-SHIP P. T. BARNUM.

Free Admission to all who purchase THE LIFE OF P. T. BARNUM, written by himself down to the present period of 1875, with nearly 1,000 pages and 50 full-page illustrations, reduced in price from $3.50 to $1.50 for sale within the Great Hippodrome.

Uniformed ushers in attendance.

Admission 50c; Children under 9 years 25c. Reserved seats extra.

Doors open at 1 and 7 P. M.

Every facility will be afforded the public for procuring Tickets on the wagons on the lot, but to accommodate such as prefer to avoid possible delay by obtaining them at the customary small advance, a few tickets will be left for sale at Stockbridge's Book Store, 12 Columbia-st, Fort Wayne. Regular and excursion trains will run at hours to accommodate visitors.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R
IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,
Notions, etc., of
CHARLES KLOTZ
AT HIS
Old Stand
ON MAN STREET,
Opposite Court Square
AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accommodate customers, and sell them such good as they may need,

CLOTHING
Of all descriptions, and
HANDSOME SUITS
Made to Order!

CARPETS,
FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO,
36 East Berry street.

The Pioneer

HARDWARE
Emporium!

Now full to overflowing with an Immense stock of

HEAVY AND SHELF

Hardware, Cutlery, Tin Ware.

I would call special attention to my department of

HARDWARE,
FURNISHING &
BUIDERS STOCK,

in which will be found everything at the very

LOWEST PRICES,

Such as:—

OILS, PAINTS,
GLASS,
NAILS,
SASH,
DOORS, ETC

—A FIST-CLASS—

Tin-Shop,

in connection with the Hardware Store, with a skillful foreman. All kinds of Tin-ware manufactured and repaired on short notice.

JOHN L. DAVIS,

FOR SALE.
Four Business Lots,

Adjoining the Court House square, the most desirable and the only ones similarly located in Auburn each lot 22x80 feet.

Those wishing to purchase the best in the market should apply soon either to A. J. LITTLE Attorney at Law, or THOMAS BALDOCK. Terms reasonable. Also.

A HOUSE and LOT

adjoining the above. The house is new containing five rooms, with closets convenient and pleasantly located will be sold at a

BARGAIN

Apply as above.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct:
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, September Term, 1875.

Mary A. B. Fee, Adm'x of the estate of John Fee
vs.
William Hyler
Sophia Hyler,
Henry Funk,
Lucinda Funk, } Complaint No. 106.

Now comes the plaintiff, by A. F. Pinchin, her attorney, and files her complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendants, William Hyler and Sopha Hyler are not residents of the state of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb County Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875 at the Court house in Auburn, in said Count and State and answer or demur to said complaint the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 14th day of June, 1875.

J. R. LANNING Clerk.

AUBURN LIVERY
—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Ryan & Mader, pro's

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

they are prepared to furnish rigs at all times at reasonable prices. Stable east of Court House.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature, Decay and all the effects of youthful indiscription will for the sake of suffering humanity send free to all who need it, and receipt and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Suffers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN Ceder St. New York.

Fruit House Prices.

Now for the 4th of July! It Will Soon be Here

And for the occasion we have laid in a large supply of Fireworks, Torpedoes, Fire Crackers and everything you can think of, to celebrate the day. All amounts of $5 we discount 10 per cent; of $20 and upwards we discount 20 per cent. We make this inducement to private parties who form clubs to celebrate; also to those who buy to sell again. This is only on Fireworks and Flags; the Fire-crackers and Torpedoes are net prices. CALL AND SEE US, you Merchants, and others from a distance and we will

Beat Chicago and Cincinnati,

AT LEAST 10 PER CENT ON PRICES.

Fire Crackers, per box,	$2 50	Torpedoes, per thousand.	25c
Per pack	07	Per pack	04

Then we have Serpents, Flags, Roman Candles, Tri-colored, Bengal Lights, Silver Shower Candles, Flying Pigeons, Sky Rockets, Flower Potts, Grasshoppers, Rise lights, Triangles, Radiators, Pin Wheels, Scroll Wheels, Triolettes, Floral Bumbshells, Ladies' Union Fans, Percussion Pistols, American Flags, Balloons, Pulling Crackers, Chinese Bamboo Lanterns, Chinese Balloons, Chinese Lanterns and so forth.

TEAS! TEAS! TEAS!

No Middle Men with us, either on Teas, Coffees, or Sugars. With all the complaints of dull times, our Tea trade has doubled within the last three years. No secret in it—simply purchasing of the Importers and selling direct to the consumer, thereby saving to our customers the profits of the Speculator, Jobber and Wholesale Grocer, which is at least 10 to 20 cents on each dollar,

Young Hyson,	30, 60, 80, $1, 00, best 1 10	Oolong	30, 60; best 85
Gunpowder	60, 1 00; best 1 10	Uncolored Japan,	60, 60; best 91
Imperial,	60, 90; best

SUGARS! SUGARS!
WHITE, YELLOW AND BROWN.

Coffee A,	10½c	N. O, Genuine,	9c
Coffee B,	9½c	Good Brown	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	20 and 27c
Second Best Rio,	23c

CANNED FRUITS.
At Prices never Before Heard of.

Peaches per can	20c	Pamsons per can,	20c
Blackberries per can,		Green Gages per can,
Tomatoes per can,	10 c	Strawberries per can,
Corn per can,	10 c

Wines and Liquors.
Still a few Gallons Left.

Sherry and Port per gallon,	$1 50 and 2 00	Old '76 for medical use	$3 00
Sherry and Port in bottles,		Port Wine per gallon	1 50 and 2 00
California Angelica and Sweet Muscatelle, per gallon,	1 50 2 00	California wine per gallon	1 50 and 2 00
New England Rum, per gallon,	best 2 00	Sweet Cawba Wine per gallon	1 25
Holland Gin, Old Tom,	1 50 and 2 50

SYRUPS, SYRUPS.

Best Sugar, Loaf, per gallon,		Extra Golden per gallon,	60
White Dripps, per gallon,	85 $1 00	New Orleans per gallon,	70c to 1 00
Silver Dripps per gallon,	75	Cuba Molasses per gallon,

CANDIES! CANDIES!
Stick, French and American.

Best Stick per pound	18c	Bon Bons	30c
French Mixed	25c	Japanese Cocoa Nut	25c

We have a hundred other different kinds of candies

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Fish and Neats Foot Oil per gallon,	1 00	Head Light Oil per gallon,	25c
Coal and Rose Oil per gallon,	20c	Machine Oil per gallon,	50c

FISH, FISH, FISH, FISH,

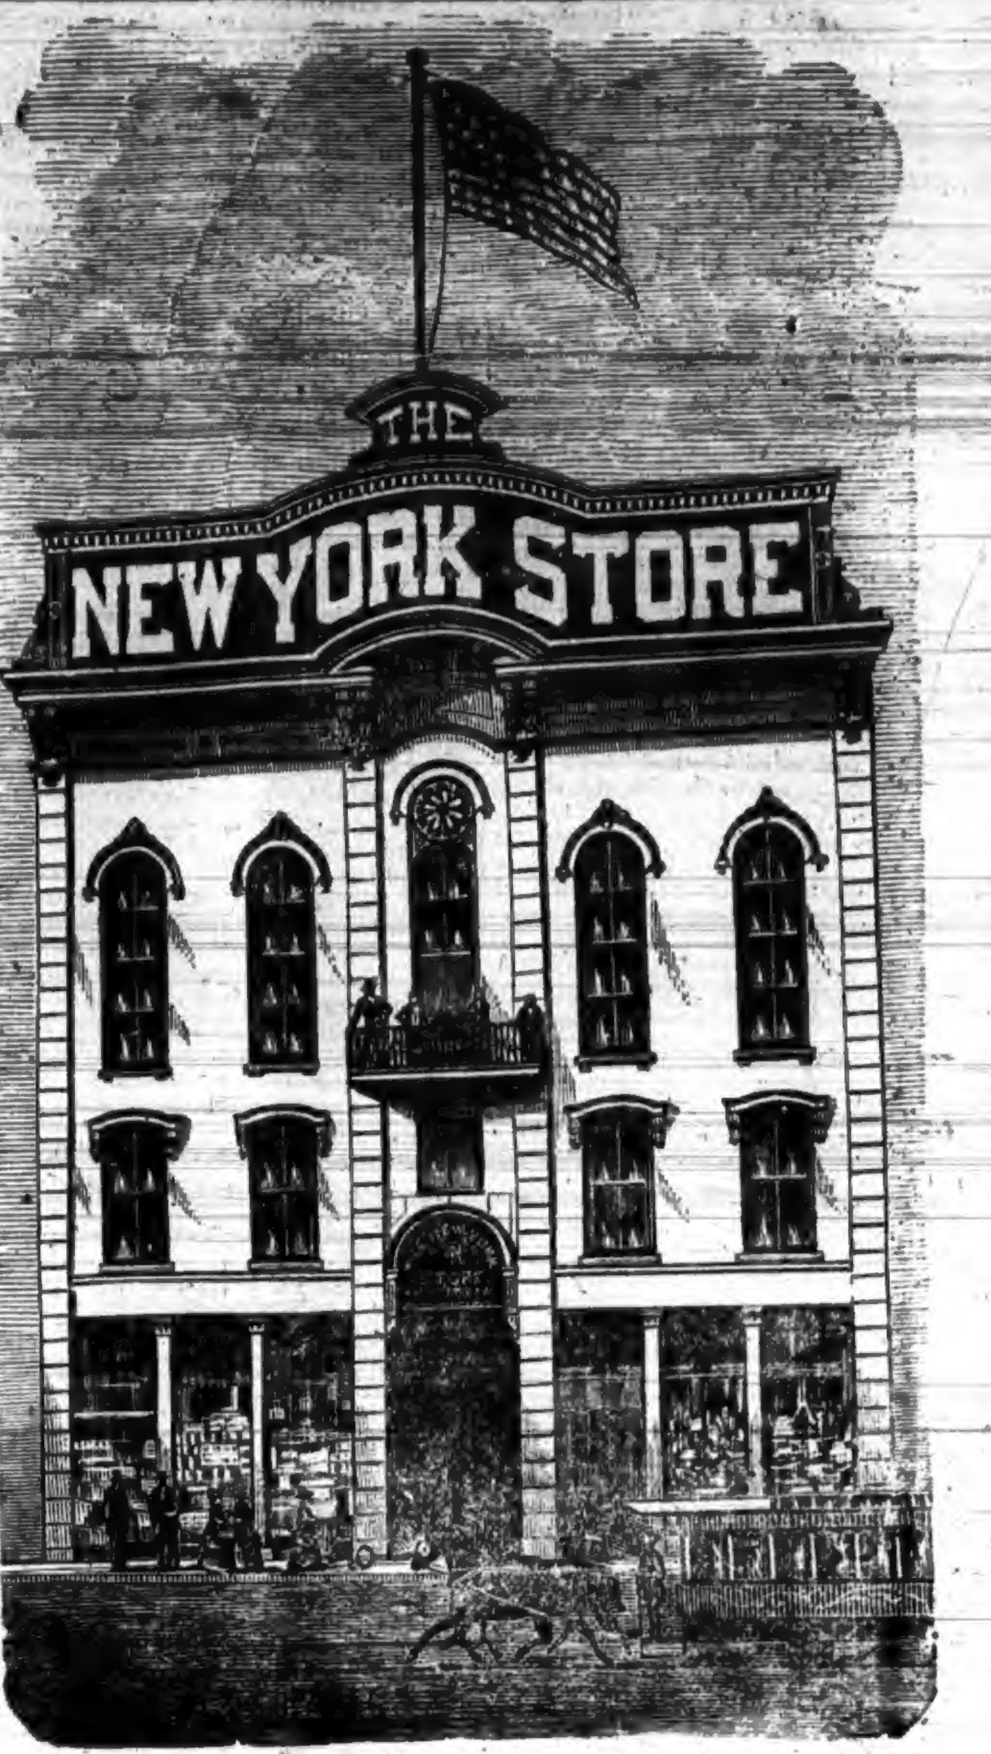
A Large Assortment of both		Salt Water and Lake Fish
No. 1 White Fish ½ bbl	6 00	No. 1 Mackeral in Kits	1 25
No. 2 do do	5 00	No. 1 Famile in Kits
No. 1 Lake Shad ½ bbl.		George's Bank Codfish per pound
No. 1 Pickeral ½ bbl		Extra Mess Mackeral " "	1 50 and 1 75
White Fish in kits No. 1	1 25	Herrings each	1c
White Fish family No. 3,	1 00	Pickeral and Trout ½ bbl	5 50

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

The duty of 4c cents per pound goes on tobacco March 1st. This thing we anticipated, and in consequence we have a large stock ahead, so that our customers, as long as the present stock lasts, shall have goods at the old price.

Choice Plug, Five Bros. per pound		Fine Cut	60, 80, and 90c
Good Richmond Navy per pound	50c	Shorts	40c
Ladies Twist, very fine	65c	Smoking	35c best 40c
Long John Tens	50c

25 Cents on the Dollar Saved at
THE FRUIT HOUSE



We Keep Our Trade

ACTIVE & LIVELY

Notwithstand the general complaint of dull trade and hard times, from the fact that we are daily in receipt of fresh, attractive goods, which we offer to our patrons at as low prices as are named by any house in the western country.

EXAMINE

Bargains in Suit Department, Bargains in Lace Shawls, Bargains in Lace Jackets

Bargains in Black Grenadines, Bargains in Stripe Grenadines, Bargains in Summer Silks

Bargains in Black Silks, Bargains in Thin Dress Goods, Bargains in Suiting Goods

New Parasols,

New Kid Gloves. New Embroideries. New Fancy Ties New White Goods. New Hosiery. New Fancy Goods. New Hamberg Net. New Rufflings, Etc., Etc.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.

Complete in every respect, and prices much lower than they will probably be after the first of August.

ROOT & COMPANY,
46 and 48 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne,
Opposite the Court House.

STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1839.

GEO. DeWALD & CO.

Dry Goods & Notions.

Black Silks & Fine Dress Goods a Specialty.

We can make it to the interests of every person to trade with us. We buy for CASH and sell for CASH, keep the best goods, and sell at one price

ALSO AGENTS FOR THE

"Domestic" PATERNS.

The Best in Use. Send for a Catalogue.

Geo DeWald & Co
No. 1 Columbia Street
Fort Wayne Ind.,

SAW MILL FOR THE PEOPLE.

THIS patent portable Muley Saw Mill is adapted to any locality, will saw any kind of logs, and will do as much work (power and hands being considered) as the best Circular Mills. Its frame, head-blocks, and working parts are of the most substantial and permanent kind, being made entirely of iron and steel. It is usually set up and started in from one to two days time. It is generally driven by threshing engines of not exceeding ten horse power. It cuts from 2000 to 4000 feet of inch lumber per day. The Mill and Engine may conveniently be operated by two men. Send for circular.

CHANDLER & TAYLOR.
Indianapolis, Indiana

TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE.

"CHOOSE YOUR VOCATION AND HONOR IT."

The Independent Telegraph Institute, located in Auburn Dekalb Co. Ind., are offering the best opportunity of learning Telegraphy Railroad business and Phonographical writing ever offered to the public. Tuition very low and good boarding furnished Students for $3,50 to $3.75 per week, and situations furnished students as soon as they are capable of taking charge of a Telegraph office. Wages from $40 to $100 dollars per month. For further information address, Independent Telegraph Institute, Lock Box 76, Auburn Indiana.

OFFICERS.
J. E. SHREVE, Superintendent.
Prof. S.S. Shaner Principal Instructor R R. Dep't.
Dr. L. Sanders Instructor Phonographical Writer.

A NEW PLACE
TO GET A
Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with M. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.

THE FIRST

National Bank

OF AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of the U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Collections made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:
J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:
JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

April 29, 1875.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

AUBURN MARKETS.

CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Wheat—White	$1.10	Hogs—live	$6.00
Amber—red	1.05	Hogs—dressed
ye	75	Turkeys—live	.08
Oats	36	Chickens—live	.07
Corn	60 65	Butter	.16
Potatoes	67 85	Lard	.15
Flax Seed	1.60	Eggs	.12
Clover Seed	6.30	Tallow	.07
Wool	45 @ .60	Timothy Hay	12.00

MANIAC'S OATH.

BASE BALL is lively.

THE weather is cool.

CORN looks splendid.

PAINTERS are all busy.

PREPARE for harvesting.

NEW peas are in market.

THE clover crop is good.

EXCURSIONS are numerous.

JNO. HEBEL has a new clerk.

CY. LOCK is fixing up a nice saloon

KENDALLVILLE celebrates this year.

STEP in and see Abrights new store.

FOR a good cigar go to C. D. Hare's.

RUSSIAS, six for one dollar, at Stamets

BEAUTIFUL white goods at Stamet's.

THE cattle are in good condition now.

FOR a good glass of soda water go to Davenport's.

THE ball club goes to Butler to-morrow.

MEN are working the roads on Seventh Street.

Tommy Leasure is with Beard again in the grocery.

HALF FARE to Angola next Saturday to hear Colfax.

WORK on the shops at Garret is progressing lively.

WE notice threshing machines on the streets already.

Williams and McDougal have put up a soda fountain.

OUR streets are getting in a pretty good condition.

C. D. Hare keeps a nice article of lemonade always on hand.

A LARGE assortment of millienery goods at reduced prices ht Stamet's.

CASTERS! CASTERS! CASTERS! CASTERS at Abright's.

Go to Abright's to get the best spoons, forks and knives.

ABRIGHT, is selling watches cheaper than ever.

ALL of our exchanges report thieves being around. Watch close.

A FINE line of white vesting, at Eaton & Jackman's.

THERE are several new adds this week Look over them.

ABRIGHT just received a large invoice of sewing machine needles of all kinds.

SEE change in Root & Co., advertisement in this weeks issue.

NEW style of white sacque goods just received at Stamet's.

READY made goods and Linen dress goods in variety at Stamet's.

THE popular play next Saturday, at Ensleys hall is the topic the of season.

THE woolen mills, under the management of Mr. Porter, is commanding a large trade.

A side walk is needed along Hebel's corner. We hope it will be put down immediately.

SEE A. J. Little if you wish to purchase lots in Sommers' new addition, over Cedar Creek.

IF you want a good job of roofing or spouting done call on Goodman, 1 door south of Auburn House.

Rev. J. Emery Fisher and lady, of Illinois, visited their many friends here last week.

THE Rockfords and Haymakers will play a match game on the Eel River ground a week from Saturday.

ROOT & Co. have made a change in their advertisement this week. Look elsewhere.

SEE the advertisement of P. T. Barnum's great show in this issue. Half fare tickets can be secured.

ANGOLA, Fort Wayne and Kendallville will celebrate on the 3rd. Kendallville on the 5th.

GENTS' call and have your clothing made nobby, and in style at Eaton & Jackman's.

WILLIAMS & McDOUGAL, has a large lot of choice cigars. Their five cent cigars cannot be beat. Try them.

IF our citizens would cut down the weeds along their lots on several streets it would not be out of order.

RUSSIA has now joined Germany, England, Belgium and France in a decree against American potatoes.

NOTICE—All those knowing themselves indebted to me, will please call and settle at once, and oblige V. A. Beard.

WE saw a nice new ring on the first finger of a young lady in town the other day. What does that indicate?

T. B. Totten will remove his stock of goods next week to the room occupied by Ehlers' drug store.

THE house on Fluke's corner is vacant If there was a large brick business house in its place it would not be vacant.

Hon. S. S. Shutt, of Spencerville, gave us a call last Monday. He reports every thing promising in that locality.

THE frisky ground squirrel can now be seen wending his way around the farmers corn field.

From the "Press's" description of the Colfax lecture it was not a superlatively grand affair.

PROF. KIBSEY, closed a term of music lessons at Cherubusco last week. He goes to Buchanan Mich., for a short season.

IT is believed that the government can begin to substitute silver change for fractional currency about the first of September.

THERE is some complaint against our butchers for slaughtering animals inside the corporation. The Town Board have ordered it stopped.

SALOONISTS in Auburn will have to pay about $80 town license, if such license money goes into the town treasury.

DON'T forget the "Maniac's Oath" next Saturday. Have your forth on that day. Auburn will be lively enough to suit everybody.

THE sports about the city have done considerable betting on the ball game to be played at Butler to-morrow. Those interested in the Butler boys, are giving odds from five to ten tallies.

THE new Billiard tables for Lock's saloon were damaged to some extent, and Cy refused to take them. The lovers of the game will have to wait until others return.

Mr. Daniel Littlefield returned to Auburn last Monday, and is now with F. E. Davenport. There is no such thing as staying away from a town that has so many pretty girls as Auburn.

MANY of the excursionists to Jackson last Thursday, returned the next morning delighted with the twelve hours on their way back. That long a ride for 75 cents is cheap.

THE cornest market has been quite lively the past week, at 60 cents per bushel. Oats 45, wheat $1.12, wool is coming in slowly and is paying from 40 to 45 cents per pound.

DELEGATIONS are coming in from Garret and other points to witness the finest performance in the dramatic line ever before given in the county—The Maniac's Oath.

AN excellent hint was noted the other day, suggesting that farmer's girls keep the accounts of the farm. Several advantages would result. First; the accounts would be kept; a most important matter for the success of the farmer Second; in would be of great advantage to the girls. It would teach them how to keep accounts, it would give them employment, and better than all, it would establish in them business ideas and habits that might prove of vast advantage in after years.

THE MANIAC.

Remember the splendid Drama to be given at Ensley's Hall next Satuday afternoon and evening, entitled the Maniac's Oath, in which Mr. Hight, of Fort Wayne, appears in the leading character. It will be one of the finest dramatic efforts you will ever see in Auburn.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Detroit Tribune says: If an edged tool is so hard as to crumble, grind it on a dry stone until the edge turns blue; it will then cease to break and the temper will generally prove to be about right.

JOE. OBER is building a handsome residence on South Van Beuren street. Some one has knocked off a gable end or two of that building. If this thing is repeated, Joe proposes to go for the guilty ones.

EVERYBODY is preparing to attend the dramatic play at Ensley's hall next Saturday afternoon and evening. We are certain that all will be pleased with the performance, as Mr. Hight is first-class in every respect.

NEW necklaces are of small gole beads strung on a fine chain. They are intended to go twice around the throat, and hang down on the breast. These necklaces were fashonable about thirty years ago.

AT last has our patience been rewarded. Miss Rosa Shaffer has made us the recipient of a most beautiful bouquet, the first we have received this season.—It takes Rosa's to make such a handsome present.

OUR clever and accomodating barber, Sammy Pommert, with his practical jour to assist him is taking the lead in the tensorial art. Sammy is buliding up a fine trade and its all because he attends to business and does work in the best manner.

OUR town Marshal is doing splendid work all over town. He ordered one of our citizens to take care of the corpse of a pig one minute after it died. Nothing like being prompt, if you do have to watch awhile to be in at the death.

THOSE enterprising gentlemens Messrs Mensch & Moore, of Garrett City, will furnish hacks free of charge from Auburn to Garrett, on Monday night.—Those wishing to attend the grand ball should remember this fine opportunity.

THERE is a newspaper at New Haven called the "Gladiator," or some outlandish name, and if you want to see it squirm, just compare the editor to Sergt Ed. Kennedy. He calls a horse a mare and actually don't know the difference.

THE new twenty-cent coin is out fresh from the mint. On one side are a spead eagle and the words "United States of America— twenty cents," on the other side the stars the Goddess and 1875. It is larger, by its rim, than the five-cent nickel, and about the same thickness.

THE Indianapolis "Journal" proudly says it "has yet to hear of a single Ind., republican who favors the re-election of President Grant for a third term." No; the Indiana republicans are desirous of giving Senator Morton a first term.—[Courier-Journal.

AN unmentionable garment was found on the excursion train last Thursday, and returned to Auburn for the owner, who can have it by calling on the gentlemanly agent at the depot. This road is always prompt in returning things found on trains.

THE excursion to Jackson last Thursday was a monster affair. Some twenty cars were used to accommodate the crowd, and then many did not get to go. The M. E. Church at this place and at Waterloo will realize a handsome sum from the proceeds.

Mensch & Moore give a grand ball on next Monday evening at their new establishment in Garret City. They have engaged a good band, and will furnish a good lunch at 12 o'clock. The bar will be closed and no liquor permitted on the ground.

AMONG the delinquent tax-payers at Long Branch is U. S. Grant, the amount of delinquent being $85. If Gen. Grant were the mercenary person a venal and subsidized democratic press would have us to believe him to be, he would long since have given the Long Branch tax-collector a European mission and taken a receipt in full.—[Courier-Journal.

Mr. Fluke has donated to the town thirty feet off the east side of his property where he resides, for a street, in order to have a sixty foot street south to the school grounds. This is a generous donation, and we are glad to notice that a few of the old residents are falling into the way of the liberal, enterprising people of the town.

IT is said said that the offal from the slaughter house is being deposited in Cedar Creek. This should not be done if we have any regard for health. It floats down along the creek opposite the town and creates a terrible stench. It is to be hoped our usually clever and enterprising butchers will avoid this in the future.

MRS. BEECHER rolled over in bed at 2 o'clock the other morning and said to her husband, who was reading Dumas; "Now Henry Ward, are you coming to bed or not?" Whereupon the old man remarked absently, turning over another page, "Such a thing may be, but according to the best of my recollection I don't know anything about it."—[Rochester Democrat-Chronicle.

WE were never more astonished than to read yesterday a funeral notice of the death of Miss Mary McNerny, at Upper Sandusky, Ohio. From that we judge she must have died last Saturday. No particulars as to the cause of her death. Miss Mary had many friends here who will sincerely mourn the loss of so estimable a young lady.

The Fort Wayne Jackson & Saginaw railroad will issue half fare tickets to and from any point on their line on the third and fifth of July. It has also made arrangement by which a party of ten or more can go to Pleasant Lake, from any point at half fare.

WHEN we consider that the inhabitants of Garrett are made up mainly of Irishmen, Baltimore rebels and Holmes county Democrats, it is strange that Tom Mays talks so unkindly about the future city.—Waterloo Press

It is equally a matter of wonder to us that Charles Kolumbus talks so favorable of our western neighbor.

WE learn from Mr. Samuel Carter, of Pleasant Lake, who is interested in fruit culture, that in that vicinity the fruit prospects are quite flattering, except for peaches. There will probably be a fair crop of apples, although a good share of the winter apples are killed. Small fruit promises well, as a general thing. There will be quite an abundance of strawberries and raspberries are doing well. Grapes will be late, but it is thought there will be a good yield of Concords.—Republican.

THE Waterloo Press says: The preleminary examination of young Griffith on Monday last, before Justice Long, of this place, for assaulting and stabbing Charles DeLong at Corunna recently, resulted in the discharge of the accused It seems to have been a drunken affray, in which it was impossible to put all the blame on one side. The persons most indignant at the result, so far as we are able to notice, were some of the witnesses, they receiving no fees when the state lost the case.

THE pupils of Miss Balcome, gave a private reherasl last Friday evening, at her residence, which proved a very pleasant affair. It is rarely that we see such proficiency made as was evinced by this class. Will Eldridge, done admirable considering the short time he has been practicing, and Jimmie Steele, plays like a professional. All the rest done well, and the entire programme was but an evidence of the efficiency, and thoroughness, of their accomplished teacher.

Barnum's Hippodrome.

It may be said that without doubt no show on earth every came to this part of the country with such a brilliant reputation, and it has every merit that such an aggregation could have. Gilded chariots, superb costumes, dazzling banners, and beautifully caprisoned animals all lend their presence to the splendid scene. The procession, in which the entire force of the great traveling company has been thrown, is really magnificent. This grand institution is to exhibit at Fort Wayne July 7th, afternoon and evening.

THE Steuben "Republican" says, "At the annual meeting of the DeKalb Co. Sunday School Association, held at Newville, June 8th and 9th. forty-one schools were reported, representing an aggregate membership of 2,290 scholars and 478 teachers and officers. We think that does pretty well for benighted DeKalb, and we are sorry to say we fear it is a better showing than can be made in Steuben county. At least there does not seem to be as much interest taken in Sunday School work throughout this county as is evinced in DeKalb. Why not?

THE ordinary observer may look upon the temperance organization as being on the wane, but a careful survey will admit of no such conclusion. The temperance people are as numerous to-day as ever, and are working with a zeal and energy worthy the great cause. Because new liquor laws have taken the place of more prohibitory ones, does not argue that their great aim has been abandoned, for they are neither discouraged nor despondent. In fact we believe these apparent reverses will finally force them to the fountain-head of this great evil, and show them their errors of past, in trying to dam up the water, after it had attained a momentum from away up the mountain side.

CATTLE AT LARGE.—We believe there is a law on our statutes, prohibiting the running at large of bulls. Several mean scrawny specimens of these animals have been having the freedom of the town lately. If they were fine good blooded stock, there would not be so much objection. But they are of the worst pattern, and to propogate their kind is an infliction that no community ought to bear. If owners of these animals persist in allowing them to run at large, we hope other means will be resorted to, to put an end to the practice.

There are several breechy cows in this town that want killing, and if they fool around that corn field in the lower part of town much longer, they will get it too. No good citizen will allow any of his stock to work injury to his neighbor, when once the fact is known to him.

PLEASANT LAKE.

One of the most beautiful summer resorts we know of for miles around, is located north of us a few miles, at the above named place. An excursion party from this place and Waterloo went up there last Tuesday to enjoy its many features, and were delighted Nature could not have fashioned the lake more beautifully or improved the grove that lies, with its deep green foliage, so conveniently near. In fact nature has done all that could be done; and now it is left to the artistic skill of man to add that which may contribute to the ease and comfort of the pleasure seeker.—And for this important work we are glad to say the right man has been found in the person of V. E. Simmons, Esq., a gentleman known for his energy and enterprise, his good taste and judgment, his agreeable and courteous bearing. The grove has been fenced in, a fine large hall has been erected in the center and other buildings will be erected without delay. A number of new boats have been placed upon the lake, among them a fine yacht, and others will be added to meet the demand. We do not know of a more attractive place, where real enjoyment can be found at moderate expense, than at the appropriately named town of Pleasant Lake.

CLARANCE SMITH, of the Fort Wayne "News" gave us a call yesterday. He is furnishing the "Daily News" every evening for 25 cents a month. Orders recived at the postoffice.

HON. JOHN SHINN, the great Newark Auburn & St. Joe Railroad man, of the black swamp Ohio, was in town the other day, looking up the interests of that line. As it made his feet sore to ride, he walked, and as his shoes happened to be out in a fence corner in the corn field when he started, and being indifferent to minor, matters, he came without them. He paid us a brief visit, left a copy of the constitution in our hands, and vanished as a shadow. He spoke encouragingly of the prospects of the road, and showed us in his brilliantly descriptive way, the great object of this great through route. We suggested the bridging of Lake Michigan from St. Joe to Chicago, a distance of a few miles more or less, but he seemed to think that a secondary consideration to the building of the road. We never saw him looking so well, though he told us an extensive job he had just completed, the construction of a ditch 8 x 4 inches it may have been feet, through his plantation. There is a pensiveness about the old man really beautiful to contemplate. He was dressed in a suit of handsome blue broadcloth drilling, a dimly checkered shirt, and a fine leghorn straw hat. Think of the tireless devotion he has evinced since the inception of this road years ago. The fact is that road must be built or the old man's heart will break.

WELL another bachelor has become a benedict, and two more souls made happy. W. L. Penfield, Esq., one of our promising young Attorneys, believing in that ancient manifesto, that it is not good for a man to live alone, struck his colors, and fell, pierced by an arrow from the bow of that little fellow, generally represented as short of raiment. Miss Luna Walters, one of the Ohio's fairest daughters is the blushing bride It was naughty in them to run away off to Michigan to consummate their happiness, yet we forgive them, and wish them a thousand joys and blessings, and the usual number of special providences

A FREE PASS

TO

Barnum's Hippodrome

From New York.

Your last chance: Save your money: Combine business with pleasure.

To every purchaser of $10 worth of clothing we will present gratis a ticket to Barnum's World's Fair and Hippodrome, which exibits at Fort Wayne on July 7th.

SAM, PETE & MAX,

Star Clothing House, 5 Main and 33 Calhoun Sts., Fort Wayne Ind.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

NOTICE is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb Circuit Court, the undersigned Administrator of the estate of DAVID PERRY, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises, on

SATURDAY, JULY, 31st, 1875,

the equal undivided third part of the undivided thirteenth twentieth of the tracts of land hereinafter described, situated in DeKalb county, in the State of Indiana, and subject to the life estate of NANCY FISHER, surviving widow of said decedent therein, to-wit:

A part of section two in township thirty-five [35 north of range fourteen (14) east, bounded by a line commencing at the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of said section two [2] and running thence east on the county line 3 70-100 chains, thence south 46 degrees west one chain, thence south 56 degrees west 1 20-100 chains, thence south 68¼ degrees west, 2 40-100 chains, thence south thirty-four degrees west 7 chains thence north 45 degrees west 1 56-100 chains, thence north 27 degrees west 2 63-100 chains, thence north 87 degrees west 9 47-100 chains, thence south 84 degrees west 10 65-100 chains, thence south 15 degrees 34 minutes west 16 86-100 chains, thence north 60¼ degrees east 7 30-100 chains, thence south 58¼ degrees west 6 37-100 chains, thence north 16 85-100 chains to the northwest corner of the northwest quarter, thence east on the county line to the place of beginning containing fifty-five acres, and a part of said section two bounded by a line commencing at the south bank of Fish Creek 3 17-100 chains south of the quarter post on the north side line aforesaid and running thence south on the east line of said northwest quarter aforesaid 7 3-100 chains, thence south 85 degrees 35 minutes west 3 13-100 chains, thence south 1¾ degrees west 2 37-100 chains, thence north 81 degrees 45 minutes west 3 92-100 chains, thence north 25 degrees 55 minutes east 3 4-100 chains, thence north 64 degrees 25 minutes east 4 23-100 chains, thence north 9 degrees 15 minutes east 3 06-100 chains, thence 2 55-100 chains to the place of beginning containing five acres more or less.

TERMS. One third cash, one third in nine months, and the remaining third in eighteen months, with notes at interest waiving valuation and appraisement laws, and secured by good freehold security for the deferred payments. Sale to begin at 2 o'clock P. M.

OLIVER P. LEARNED, Adm'r.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the shoulders, cough, chills, dizziness, sour stomache, bad taste in the mouth, billious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which Simons' Liver Regulator is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

Simmons' Liver Regulator,

OR MEDICINE,

Is harmless,
Is no drastic violent medicine.
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
It is a faultless family medicine.
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind.
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

Price $1. Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875

For sale at F. E. DAVENPORT'S drug store.

STOP THAT COUGH.

NO pulmonary complaint however obstinate, can resist the healing influence of DR. MORRIS' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound.—Nothing that we have ever sold acts so promptly and effectly in coughs, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, asthma and all diseases of the throat, lungs and chest, leading to consumption. It is a certain cure for Whooping Cough and croup. Contains no opium and is pleasant to take.—Cough-worn victims whose lungs are racked and torn with paroxysms that threaten to choke them, find speedy relief in its use. Trial size 10c Ask for Morris' Syrup, take no other.

F. E. DAVENPORT, Druggist.

Is Your Life Worth 10 Cents.

SICKNESS prevails everywhere, and everybody complains of some disease during their life—when sick, the object is to get well; now we say plainly that no person in this world that is suffering with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and its effects, such as Indigestion, Costiveness, Sick Headache Sour stomache, Heart-burn, Palpitation of the Heart, Depressed Spirits, Billousness, &c. can take GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER without getting relief and cure. If you doubt this, go to our Druggist and get a sample bottle for ten cents and try it. Regular size 75 cents. Two doses will relieve you.

THE PHŒNIX TILE MACHINE.

IT is well adapted to the wants of Tile Makers. It is usually driven by the power of two horses. It delivers tile at the two opposite ends of the machine. It may be converted into a single delivery machine. It has a simple and ready means of taking up the wear on the plunge head and sides of the chamber, thus preventing all leakage of mud, and adding years of service to the machine. It makes from 500 to 700 rods of tile per day. It is fully warranted. It may readily be adapted to Steam Power. The dies [illegible] Trucks at [illegible] prices.

CHANDLER & TAYLOR
[illegible]
Indianapolis, Ind.

SEND FOR CIRCULARS.

Sure to Please the Ladies.

CATLIN'S SAD IRON HEATER!

PRICE $1.25.

SAVES one half the fuel, and makes comfort for Ladies while ironing in warm weather. Agents wanted everywhere. Send stamp for terms.—Address, — VAN ALSTINE & CATLIN, Sharon, Wis.

GILES' LINIMENT

IODIDE OF AMMONIA

Cures Neuralgia, Face Ache, Rheumatism, Gout, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Sore Throat, Erysipelas, Bruises or wounds of every kind in man or animal.

Giles' Liniment Iodide of Ammonia has been used by myself and family with satisfactory results. I recommend it to all persons suffering with pains or aches of any kind. It surpasses anything I have ever used. G. H. MILLER, President, Real Estate & Savings Bank, Baltimore Md.

Sold by all Druggists. Depot No. 451 Sixth Avenue, New York. Only 50c and $1 per bottle.

Sold by J. H. EHLERS.

No. 26 4w

Administrator's Sale.

THE undersigned, Administrator of the Estate of John W. Sebert, late of DeKalb County deceased, will sell at public sale all the personal property, not taken by the Widow at the late residence of the deceased, 5 miles east of Auburn, on Friday the 2 day of July, 1875, the following property to-wit:

Two Mares, 1-horse buggy, 2-horse buggy 7 head of young cattle, hogs, wheat in the ground, 1 reaper and Mower, 1 sulky rake, 1 organ and other articles too tedious to mention.

TERMS—All sums under $3 cash; over $3 a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving his note with approved security, at 6 per cent. interest, waiving the benefits of valuation and appraisement laws.

ROBERT CULBERTSON, Ad'r.

Attachment Notice.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb county.

George Dollaway vs. James Cody. } Before John S. Barns Justice of the Peace, for Richland township.

It appearing by the return of the writ herein that said defendant is not found, and it further appearing, by affidavit filed herein, that said defendant is a non-resident of the State of Indiana and a writ of garnishment in said case having been served on the Baltimore, Pittsburg and Chicago R. W. co., Indiana division. Notice is therefore given to said defendant to appear to said action at my office on the 9th day of August, 1875, at ten o'clock am. and answer or demur to the complaint herein, or the same will be determined in his absence.

J. S. BARNS, J. P.

June 14.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County
In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September Term 1875.

Richard Grambling, vs. Charles Brandt, Wenzel Ernst, Ernst wife of said Wenzel Ernst, whose name is unknown to plaintiff, Fredrick Buchanan, Peter Grambling } Complaint No. 69

Now comes the plaintiff, by McBride & Morian his attorneys, and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant's, Wenzel Ernst—Ernst wife of said Wenzel Ernst Charles Brandt and Frederick Buchanan are not residents of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, given, said defendant that unless they be and appear on the first day of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th, Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 15th day of June, 1875.

J. R. LANNING Clerk

TAKE the Courier one year.

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

FRANK L. DOW, Charles L. Sanborn, and Edward M. Richardson were drowned in Lake Winnipiseogee, N. H., last week, by the capsizing of their boat.

AT Lowell, Mass., the other day, John T. Daniels, who had lived unhappily with his wife since their [illegible] an end to their terrible wrangles by first shooting her through the head and producing a mortal wound, and then blowing out his own brains. As usual, rum was the demon that led to the perpetration of the horrible tragedy.... The city of Pittsburgh, Pa., was visited the other day by a most disastrous fire. About a million dollars worth of property in the best business portion of the city was swept away.... The members of the Board of Public Works, the Mayor, and Chief Engineer of Jersey City, have all been indicted for being concerned in the illegal payment of $90,000 for work in 1873.

THE Beecher-Tilton trial was productive of a genuine sensation, on Tuesday, June 23. Mr. Beach, during the course of his argument for Tilton, intimated that some of the jurymen had been bribed or attempted to be influenced by parties in the interest of the defendant. Thereupon one of the jurors, Mr. Hull, arose and denied the imputation, saying that the only attempt to unlawfully bias them had come from Tilton's side in sending them envelopes containing the stories published in the New York Sun about Beecher having seduced the affianced bride of Henry C. Bowen. Messrs. Shearman and Abbott, the only members of Beecher's counsel who were present, dared Mr. Beach to the proof of his assertions, and he said he was ready and willing to produce the evidence whenever the court would set a time. Judge Neilson said the proper time to consider the charges would be after the rendition of the verdict, when, if it could be made to appear that the jury had accepted bribes, or that an attempt had been made to bribe them, the guilty parties would be punished.

BOSS TWEED was released from Blackwell's Island Prison a few nights ago. His liberty, however, was of short duration, as he was re-arrested on the following morning and lodged in Ludlow Street Jail in default of $3,000,000 bail.... Chief Washburn and his secret-service detectives made a large haul of counterfeiters at Pittsburgh, the other day. A new style of counterfeiting was developed in the course of the search among the effects of the criminals. It appeared that they had turned their attention to railroad passes, and had on hand a beautiful collection, embracing the counterfeited signatures of officers of the leading roads in the country.

THE complaint in the suit brought in the name of the people against Peter B. Sweeney, to recover over $7,000,000, which, it is alleged, was fradulently abstracted from the treasury of the county of New York, has been filed in the County Clerk's office.

THE double-scull race for the amateur championship of the United States, between Frank E. Yates, of Grand Haven, Mich., and W. B. Curtis, of Chicago, against R. H. Bainbridge and Ed. Smith, of New York, was rowed on the Harlem river last week, and resulted in a victory for the Westerners. The distance was three miles, and the time of the winners was 19 minutes [illegible] seconds.

THE WEST.

PORTIONS of the States of Ohio and Indiana were visited by an earthquake on the 18th of June. The shock was severe at many points, although no casualties are reported other than the cracking of the walls of a few buildings.... [illegible] rain-storm [illegible] the city of St. Louis [illegible] the 18th of June, causing great destruction of property. It also extended [illegible] portions of Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska, doing considerable damage.... A passenger train on the Rock Island railroad was thrown from the track and down a thirty-foot embankment, near Plattsburg, Mo., a few nights since. Two passengers were killed outright, and the express messenger, engineer and baggageman seriously injured.... The new dome for the Dearborn Observatory at Chicago has been completed, and the splendid powers of the great telescope can now for the first time in eleven years be utilized to their full extent.

A KANSAS CITY telegram thus briefly chronicles the manner in which half-a-dozen Western gentlemen who had been illicitly dealing in horse-flesh were disposed of: "Cooke, the leader of a band of horse-thieves, and five of his followers were lynched at Wilmington, Kansas, on Wednesday night. This band has been for some time committing depredations in Sedgwick and Callaway counties.".... A fire at Grand Rapids, Mich., last week, destroyed sixty buildings, embracing the entire mercantile business of West Bridge street. Loss, $200,000; insurance, about $60,000.... The most remarkable as well as the best played game of base-ball on record was contested at Chicago last week, between the local club and the professional nine from Hartford, Conn. Eleven innings were played before the subborn contest was decided, at the end of which the score stood at the unprecedented low figure of one to nothing in favor of Chicago.... A recent Kansas City telegram gives this encouraging picture of the prospect in Kansas: "From parties just returned as well as through letters and telegrams as to the crop prospects in Kansas, all agree that the like was never before known in the State. Heavy farmers in the western part of the State are telegraphing here for harvest hands, and complain that they can't get men enough to harvest. Harvesting in Southern Kansas has commenced, and the average is immense."

A NEBRASKA correspondent of the Chicago Tribune tells of a swarm of locusts from 30 to 75 miles wide, half a mile deep, passing through the air at a speed of fifteen miles an hour for sixty hours continuously, and driving people indoors for fear of being smothered to death.

ADVICES from the Black Hills expedition under the lead of Prof. Jenny are of an exciting nature. Col. Dodge, the officer in command of the escort, writes that gold in paying quantities has been found, and that Custer's report is fully confirmed. One hundred men were found in the hills, busily at work, and taking out gold at the rate of from $5 to $25 per pan. They report quartz mines as abundant and Indians scarce.

A NEW and dangerous counterfeit of $5 notes of the First National Bank of Canton, Ill., is in circulation.... An Omaha dispatch says: "Prominent frontiersmen and army officers express the opinion that there will be great trouble with the Sioux, Cheyennes and Arrapahoes this summer and fall. At least two large war parties have left the reservations in the last two weeks. The cavalry in this department are unable to keep them on the reservation through limited numbers. It will be impossible for the soldiers to guard the Black Hills and attend to the Indians."

THE Commission appointed to examine the walls and foundations of the new Chicago Custom-House have made their report. They find that the soil underlying the foundations is many places is soft and treacherous, and that the layer of concrete was not of sufficient width to equalize the pressure of the weight [illegible] the stone used in the walls was of all shades and qualities, and lacking in the essential requisite of uniformity of color and texture; that a most outrageous system of patching has been resorted to in order to conceal defects, and that even the mortar was poor with which the stones were laid. Fraud and incompetency are shown to have flourished unchecked in the construction of the building.

THE SOUTH.

ADVICES from Texas show that the apprehensions of war on the border are not entirely without foundation. The Texans, driven to desperation by the frequent raids across the Rio Grande, have organized with the determination of exterminating Cortina's gang of bandits, even if they have to follow them to the City of Mexico. A conflict may be precipitated at any moment.

AT Austin, Texas, Deputy United States Marshals Allen and Blood have been indicted and arrested for voluntarily and corruptly allowing McCartney, the counterfeiter, to escape.

THE notorious Younger and James brothers are said to be in Kentucky, and many of the banks in that State have placed armed guards over their vaults.

REPORTS from Arkansas are to the effect that the crops are looking splendid. More wheat has been raised, and the prospect for a large corn crop and cotton crop are better than ever known before in the history of the State.... Work on Capt. Eads' jetty system at the mouth of the Mississippi has commenced, and pile-driving and wharf-building have been pushed forward with great rapidity. The prospects are considered very encouraging, as the pile-drivers can be worked in all kinds of weather.

WASHINGTON

A WASHINGTON dispatch states that a naval force with steam launches will be ordered to the mouth of the Rio Grande to look after our interests there, and co-operate with the army in the suppression of Mexican raids.... The trial of Hinds, the postal contractor, for fraudulent practices, terminated in his acquittal.

GENTLEMEN in official position, says a Washington telegram, are apprehensive that unless prompt measures be taken in regard to continued raids on the Texas border, the United States and Mexico may be involved in serious difficulties. The army will now act promptly in protecting American citizens, assisted by such naval appliances as the necessity may demand. Gen. Ord has been placed in command of all the forces on the Rio Grande.

THE Postmaster-General has just established 299 additional postal money-order offices.

THE Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that the following 5-20 bonds of 1862 will be paid at the Treasury Sept. 24, 1875, and that interest on them will cease on that day: Coupon bonds, known as the fourth series, act of Feb. 25, 1862, dated May 1, 1862, as follows:—Coupon bonds of $50, from No. 11,001 to 12,700, both inclusive; $100, from No. 59,101 to No. 64,500, both inclusive; $500, from 31,901 to No. 34,000, both inclusive; $1,000, from No. 91,501 to 96,900, both inclusive; total, $500,000.

GENERAL.

THE ship Champlain was recently wrecked on the California coast. All of the crew escaped with the exception of the Captain and one seaman.

REPORTS received by the Agricultural Bureau at Washington from different sections of the country indicate that the winter and spring wheat will yield four-fifths of a full crop. Rye promises better than wheat, but will fall below the usual average. Oats are in good condition, and will reach nearly a full yield in the States of the largest production. The barley crop promises well. Clover shows a fair average condition. Fruit prospects fair to good in the East, and below the average in the West.

ST. JOHN'S Day was very generally celebrated throughout the country by the Masonic fraternity.

POLITICAL.

THE Democrats of Maine have nominated Gen. Charles W. Roberts for Governor.

THE California Independent State Convention met in Sacramento last week, and nominated the following ticket: Governor, Gen. Bidwell; Lieutenant-Governor, Romulo Pacheco; Secretary of State, W. Roush; Comptroller, Lauren E. Crane; Treasurer, F. Baehr; Attorney-General, P. Vandlif; Surveyor-General, E. Twichell; Clerk of Supreme Court, Paul Morrill; Superintendent of Public Instruction, J. W. Guinn.

THE Democrats of Iowa met in State Convention at Des Moines on the 24th of June and nominated the following ticket: For Governor, Shephard Leffler; Lieutenant-Governor, E. B. Woodward; Judge of the Supreme Court, W. J. Knight; Superintendent of Public Instruction, A. B. Wright.

FOREIGN.

A BONDED warehouse and several adjacent buildings in Dublin were destroyed by fire last week. The loss is estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.... The report that the Emperor of Russia had withdrawn from the tripartite alliance is denied.

AT Chen-Kiang, China, recently, some native soldiers insulted the United States Consul and his wife. Two of them were arrested and taken to the British consulate, when the soldiers endeavored to rescue them. The Europeans hastily mustered and prepared to defend the consulate, but the Chinese authorities succeeded in quieting the mob. A United States and a British man-of-war have gone there from Shanghai, and there will probably be no repetition of the outrage.... The London Times, in a review of Tennyson's new dramatic poem, "Queen Mary," just published, declares that there is "more true fire in this drama than in anything which has appeared since Shakespeare's time.

GREAT BRITAIN has been somewhat agitated over a proposed visit to Eton University by Moody and Sankey, the Chicago evangelists. The newspapers generally disapprove of the visit, a protest signed by 650 boys has been made against it, and a memorial in favor of it received 300 signatures.... Germany and Belgium have shaken hands over their little differences, the former power expressing satisfaction at the friendly spirit evinced in the late communications from Belgium.... The French Assembly has appropriated $120,000 to defray the expense of representing that country at the Philadelphia Centennial.

GREAT BRITAIN has declared war against Burmah.... A London dispatch states that Moody and Sankey were not permitted to hold services at Eton College.

THE German government is preparing a Parliamentary measure prohibiting public religious processions. This is another blow at the Catholics.... A London dispatch states that ex-Premier Gladstone has reconsidered his determination to retire permanently from active participation in politics, and, after much coaxing and persuasion, has consented to resume his old position as leader of the Liberals.... Wilson & Armstrong, of London, have failed, with liabilities at $1,000,000.... The Anglo-Burmese war story proves to be a canard.

HEAVY floods have recently occurred in the Garonne and other rivers in France, causing immense damage to property and occasioning large loss of life.... It is reported that the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise intend making a tour of the United States.... Count Von Arnim has been found guilty, at Berlin, of abstracting State papers, and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

The money market remains quiet, the principal demand for favors being from grain and provision operators. The supply is ample, and rates easy at 7@10 per cent., according to security offered. Government bonds firm.

	Buying.	Selling.
U. S. 6's of '81	126	126¼
U. S. 5-20's of '62 (ex. int.)	117¾	118
U. S. 5-20's of '64 (ex. int.)	118¾	119⅛
U. S. 5-20's of '65 (ex. int.)	122⅛	122½
U. S. 5-20's of '65 January and July	123¾	124⅛
U. S. 5-20's of '67 January and July	125	126¼
U. S. 5-20's of '68 January and July	124¾	125¼
U. S. 10.40's	119	119¼
U. S. new 5's of '81 (ex. int.)	117⅛	117⅜
U. S. currency 6's	122½	123⅛
Gold (full weight)	116¾	117⅛
Gold exchange	116⅞	117⅛

BREADSTUFFS.

The grain markets attracted considerable attention from speculators, and quite an active speculative business was transacted. Generally speaking the market was firmer, and the current range of prices was higher, although at the extreme close the markets weakened and the advance gained early was almost entirely lost. The movement has been mainly speculative, seller July being the favorite option. The June shorts had generally made provision for their contracts, and they were therefore indifferent about buying. The liberal shipping movement in wheat and corn, and the reduction in the stock in store, together with conflicting crop reports, were the principal causes of the advance established early in the week, while the reaction toward the close was due to increased offerings consequent upon the desire to realize at the advance, and the more favorable weather. Wheat closed lower. Corn 1@2c higher. Oats ½c better, and barley a trifle higher than at the opening.

The following table shows the prices current at the opening and close of the past week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash	$1.00½@1.01	$ .98¾@ .99
No. 2, seller June	@1.00½	@ .98¾
No. 2, seller July	1.01 @1.02	@ .99¾
No. 2, seller August	1.01 @1.01½	@1.00½
No. 2 corn, cash	.67½@ .68	@ .69½
No. 2 corn, seller June	.67½@ .68	.69½@ .70
No. 2 corn, seller July	.69½@ .69½	.70 bid
No. 2 corn, s. August	.72½@ .72½	.72½ bid
No. 2 oats, cash	.57½@ .58	@ .58½
No. 2 oats, seller June	.57½@ .58	.58 bid
No. 2 oats, seller July	.56½@ .57	.53½@ .56
No. 2 oats, s. August	.41½@ .41¾	.40½@ .40½
No. 2 rye, cash	.95 @ .97	@ .98
No. 2 barley, cash	@1.30	1.35 @1.40
No. 3 barley, s. Sept	1.05 @1.03½	@1.07
No. 3 barley, cash	@1.15	1.18 @1.26

PROVISIONS.

The movement was fair in this market during the week just past, but rather an unsettled feeling prevailed, and a further decline was sustained in values. The principal cause for the weakness that prevailed was the light demand on shipping account and the unfavorable advices received from Eastern markets. At the extreme close, however, a change came over the market, and a fair portion of the early decline was recovered. Cash mess pork closed strong under a good demand at $19@19.10; seller June closed at $18.65; seller July at $19, and seller August at $19.20. Cash lard quiet at $13.20; seller July in moderate request at $13.10@13.20; seller August closed at $13.35@13.40.

PRODUCE.

There was an increased inquiry for butter during the week and the business transacted was somewhat larger, and quite a number of round lots were disposed of. The shipping demand has been mainly for firsts, and seconds dragged slowly. The receipts continue fair, but the shipping movement had the effect of keeping the stock reduced, though with some dealers certain grades have accumulated. Quotations ranged at 20@24c for extras; 17@20c for firsts; 14@17c for seconds; 11½@14c for thirds, and 9@11c for grease and common old stock. Beans were in fair request and steady; offerings light; quotable at $1.85@1.90 for prime Eastern mediums, and $1.00@1.80 for poor to good Western. The demand continues good for broom corn, and prices ruled firm at 11½@14c for good to choice hurl, 11@13c for good to choice stalk braid, and 6@8½c for crooked. Beeswax quiet at 26@30c for good to prime yellow. Cheese sold quite readily, and former prices were maintained; quotable at 9@10c for good to prime new, and 8@9c for fair; some common old sold at 6@8c. Cider ruled dull at $4.75@5.00 per brl for choice; common and sour dull at $3.00@3.50 per brl. Cranberries sold slowly at $5.00@7.00 per brl for poor and soft cultivated, and $8.00@9.00 for choice to extra. Eggs were moderately active and steady; closed at 15½@16c for fresh in carries. Feathers were dull at 48@52c per lb for prime live geese, and 3@5c for chicken. Green fruits were without essential change. Apples were dull, with but few good on the market. Quotations range at $1.25@1.50 per brl for good russets in lots, and $1.00@2.50 in a retail way, according to quality. There were some new apples on the market, which sold at 75c@$1.00 for one-third bu boxes. Plums were in large supply, and sales ranged at 75c@$1.00 for choice. New peaches sold at $2.50, and pears at $1.75@2.00 for one-third bu boxes. Hops were quiet at $20@30c per lb for fair to choice. Honey ruled dull and weak at 18@23c for good to choice in comb. There was very little change from last week in hides; sales were made at 8c all round for selected green salted, and 12@12½c for calf. The demand for hay was rather light and prices were weak. Timothy quotable at $16.00@19.00 per ton for good to prime; mixed about $15.00@16.00, and prairie $15.00@17.00. Maple sugar was dull at 7½@8c per lb. There was a fair demand for old potatoes, at 80½@85c for peachblows in car lots, and 75@80c for Western do. New potatoes were scarce and firm at $5.50@6.00 in barrels. Pop corn 2@3c per lb. Salt was easy and 10@12c lower; quotable at $1.50 for Onondaga and Saginaw fine, and $1.70 for ordinary coarse. Old vegetables were but little called for and the market ruled dull; new were quite active and sales were made at $1.75@2.00 for cabbage in crates of two doz each, $1.75@2.00 for one bushel boxes of green peas and string beans, 50@75c per doz for cucumbers, and 50@60c per doz for kohlrabi. Strawberries were in larger supply and lower. The market closed at $1.75@2.00 per case for Michigan, and 10c per quart for Southern Illinois. Veal was in fair request at 5@8½c for common to choice. The receipts of wool were fair, but prices ruled steady at 38@42c for coarse to fine washed; 25@32c for coarse heavy to fine light unwashed.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

These markets were both dull, and the amount of business transacted was exceedingly light. For seeds there was no demand excepting a few orders for buckwheat, and holders being generally anxious to close out their consignments, a weak feeling prevailed and the market closed a shade easier. Timothy quotable at $2.35@2.45 for fair to good, and $2.50 for prime. Clover was [illegible] @4.50 for prime medium. Sales of hungarian ranged at $1.25@[illegible] for prime; closed at the inside. Millet quotable at $1.75@1.90, and buckwheat sold quite readily at $1.35@1.40 for prime. Highwines were inactive, with buyers and sellers apart. At the close there were sellers on the market at $1.10, and $1.15 was bid.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

Trade in cooperage, as is usual at this time of the year was light, but there were only a few small lots offered on the market, and values were maintained. Quotable at $1.12½ for pork barrels, $1.45 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.00 for whisky barrels, and 45@55c for flour barrels. There was but little demand for lumber, and sales dragged slowly, but values, although rather weak, were without material change. Strips and boards closed at $8.50@14.00, joist and scantling at $[illegible], lath at $1.50, and shingles at $2.25@2.70. Wood was very quiet at about former prices. Quotable at $[illegible] per cord for hickory, $6.50@7.00 for maple, $5.50@6.00 for beech, and $4.00 for slabs at the yards.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	11	@ 13
HOGS—Dressed	9	@ 10
COTTON	15¾	@ 16¼
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 60	@ 4 90
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 11	@ 1 13
No. 1 Spring	1 20	@ 1 23
CORN	81	@ 83
OATS	62	@ 65
RYE	98	@ 1 00
PORK—New Mess	19 50	@ 20 00
LARD—Steam	12¾	@ 13¾
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	1 31	@ 1 33
CORN—No. 2 New	63	@ 65
OATS—No. 2	53	@ 55
RYE—No. 2	1 01	@ 1 03
PORK—Mess	19 50	@ 19 75
LARD	11	@ 13
HOGS	6 25	@ 6 50
CATTLE	4 75	@ 6 50
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 03	@ 1 05
No. 2	1 00	@ 1 01
CORN—No. 2	67	@ 69
OATS—No. 2	..	@ 57
RYE	95	@ 97
BARLEY—No. 2	1 20	@ 1 25
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 20	@ 1 27
CORN—New	69	@ 71
OATS	60	@ 65
RYE	1 08	@ 1 10
PORK—Mess	19 00	@ 19 50
LARD	12	@ 13
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—Extra	1 25	@ 1 27
Amber	1 21	@ 1 23
CORN—New	72	@ 74
OATS	65	@ 67
DETROIT.
WHEAT—Extra	..	@ 1 27
Amber	..	@ 1 23
CORN	68	@ 70
OATS	59	@ 61
CLEVELAND.
WHEAT—No. 1 Red	1 21	@ 1 23
No. 2 Red	1 16	@ 1 18
CORN	73	@ 75
OATS	61	@ 63

THE GRASSHOPPERS.

Their Visit to Omaha Described—Scenes of Devastation in Nebraska.

[Omaha Cor. Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

The writer was in Omaha when the hoppers were first seen in this vicinity. Their appearance, as we looked toward the sun, was amost identically that of large snowflakes. The wind was blowing at the rate of twelve miles an hour to the west of north, and their course was the same. About 11 o'clock clock a. m. they were first observed, with only an occasional straggler coming to the ground; about 2 o'clock they began lighting, and at once went to work satisfying a ravenous appetite. As they approach nearer the earth in their descent a noise is produced like the buzzing of a swarm of bees. After lighting the ground is not everywhere equally covered with them. Some fields in the same neighborhood are spared, while crops in others are taken—and taken so quickly as to be incredible to tell. The infinite decimals of teeth to gnaw, and a like number of stomachs to satisfy, make speedy work of devastating a field of growing wheat, oats, barley, corn, potatoes, or cabbage.

Before nightfall they appeared to be in motion, but only above the top of vegetation, and a stranger to their habits knows not the meaning of such movement; and it was not made apparent till the night had passed. At 5:45 next morning (as soon as the dew had evaporated) they began like chickens flying down from roosting places, and havoc was made of the nearest vegetation. At 10 o'clock the air was again filled with new-comers sailing in the same route of those of yesterday, only, if possible, more of them. The chief part of them fly at a great height, and are discernible only by looking toward the sun or a cloud. Those that stop seem to belong to a lower stratum, and when on the wing rise high enough only to avoid the tops of trees and bluffs.

At 2 o'clock p. m. those that stopped with us the night before began rising and leaving, and by 4 o'clock not enough remained to do any mischief. At 5 o'clock others came, and the next twelve hours was a repetition of their conduct the night before.

On Wednesday morning the air was filled with them an hour earlier than on yesterday, favored with a hot sun and a brisk gale from the same direction for the last forty-eight hours. Those that tarried with us from Tuesday evening raised up to accompany their friends in their voyage Dakotaward. After their departure no more alighted during the day, but the sun was partially concealed till 2 o'clock p. m. by the great throng making haste to reach some region that will be more congenial to their stay. At the last-named hour the number flying was perceptibly fewer, and an hour later very few could be seen in the air, and we were temporarily rid of them.

If all the grasshoppers that have passed over this city in the past three days had lighted, a belt of country from this to the south line of Dakota would have been covered two feet in depth. And if a like number has gone over a greater share of the area of this State, the same is true of the whole as well as a part. Pity the people of the region where they may light! Destitution or starvation awaits them, except relief be furnished from abroad. Those who have been accustomed to the pests in Kansas are of the opinion that the continuous wind from the same direction for the past three days has so favored their flight that the likelihood of their having left us for this season is encouraging. They are pestilential as cholera, and as uncontrollable. If the parties appointed by authority to investigate them can make any advances in a discovery of their origin, or improvise a method of annihilation before the fledging period, they will deserve being pensioned by Congress for a lifetime.

Yesterday I visited several farms and endeavored to form a judgment as to the proportion of damage done to crops; but without more help than I had an accurate estimate could not be made. Then I must add the outcome that will take place in some fields, about which I can tell nothing, as it is dependent upon the seasonableness of the weather for the remainder of the crop-growing season. I venture to say that, if the grasshoppers let us alone henceforward, the crops in this vicinity will average one half of what they would have been before their coming.

A STATE AUDITOR INDICTED.

The Grand Jury Indict Clinton, the Louisiana Embezzler, on Four Counts.

[From the New Orleans Picayune.]

Yesterday morning the grand jury brought in four true bills against Auditor Clinton. The following are the counts:

1. Misfeasance in office on June 1, 1874, in willfully refusing to perform a duty enjoined on him by law, to-wit: To issue to N. W. Travis a warrant for $500 upon the Treasury.

2. Misdemeanor in office for illegally taking away the sum of $2,000 from the special levee fund and crediting the same to the general fund.

3. Extortion in office on June 1, 1874, in corruptly receiving a fee of $500 for drawing a warrant in favor of N. W. Travis.

4. Embezzlement of $20,000 of the public money while Auditor of Public Accounts, on Dec. 31, 1873.

At 11:45 a capias was served upon the Auditor by the Sheriff. He took the matter with great nonchalance, and promised to repair to the court to give bond, which he did at half-past 2 o'clock. The bail was fixed at the sum total of the amount involved—that is, $23,500. Messrs. J. Hernandez, A. Baldwin and Lafayette Folger are sureties for $20,000 of the above sum, and Messrs. N. C. Folger, E. Fulton and J. Bache for the remaining $3,500.

In view of this action of the grand jury, Gov. Kellogg promptly issued instructions to the Judge of the Superior Court and the Attorney-General to proceed immediately with the prosecution, and to push it as rapidly as possible to a final judgment.

Locusts as Food.

Yesterday morning Messrs. Riley and Straight determined to test the cooked locust question, in regard to its adaptability as food for the human stomach. * * * * Without much waste of ceremony there were five persons seated, and we were helped to soup which plainly showed its locust origin, and tasted like chicken soup—and it was good; after seasoning was added, we could distinguish a delicate mushroom flavor—and it was better. Then came batter-cakes, through which locusts were well mixed. The soup had banished silly prejudice and sharpened our appetite for this next lesson, and batter-cakes quickly disappeared also. Baked locusts were then tried (plain 'hoppers without grease or condiment), and either with or without accompaniment, it was pronounced an excellent dish. The meal was closed with dessert "a' la John the Baptist—baked locusts and honey—and, if we know anything we can testify that distinguished scripture character must have thrived on his rude diet in the wilderness of Judea. We believe this is the first attempt at putting this insect to its best use, and the result is highly satisfactory to those brave enough to make the attempt.—Warrensburg (Mo.) Daily News.

Salaries in England and the United States.

An investigation into the compensations paid for clerical labor in England was recently instituted by the British government, showing such to be considerable lower than in this country. A clerk on the lowest round of the ladder, insurance or railway company, was found to receive about £80 a year, equal to $445 of our currency. This, on the average, is all a boy of 20 or so, "with the world all before him where to choose," has to expect, if he chooses to "clerk it" in any of the above mentioned classes of institutions. Unfortunately, however, increase of years does not bring proportionate increase of pay. After twenty or twenty-five years of faithful service, few clerks receive over £250 or $1,984 in paper. The London and Northwestern railway, indeed, out of its 4,647 employes only gives 95 over £300. These would be starvation figures, certainly, did not the low rents and cheapness of living generally in London, as compared with New York and other large cities in this country, compensate in part. In the matter of vacations, too, the English custom is, perhaps, more liberal than the American, two weeks for the younger clerks and a month for veterans being allotted.

THE HIRED GIRL PERFORMS A DENTAL OPERATION.—A hired girl should be ingenious. One of them, in the employ of a West street family in Danbury, discovered a unique way of extracting teeth. She suffered nearly a whole week with an aching tooth, but had not courage to go to a dentist. One afternoon it troubled her so much as to force her to look about for a remedy, and she finally hit upon a plan. With a piece of stout twine she made a loop, which she put about her tooth. Then she took a bit of soap and rubbed it on the floor opposite the back door. The other end of the twine she fastened to the knob of the closed door. Then she took a position on the soaped boards, so as to make the twine nearly taut, and commenced to lean back. When she had acquired a slope of about forty-five degrees, the soap suddenly took hold, and she came down on the floor with such force as to knock a pair of ten-dollar vases from a mantel upstairs. And there she sat reaching out for breath when the affrighted family made their appearance, while the offending tooth dangled from a string against the door.

Lectures and Books.

Any man who is really anxious to study can do so infinitely better by himself, with the help of books, than he can possibly do by attending any lectures that may be delivered. It is hardly possible for any man, unless he attends a long course of lectures, which a thousand unforeseen accidents may prevent him from being able to do, it is hardly possible for any man to study in that manner any subject systematically and consecutively; and, moreover, inasmuch as the lecturer has to address himself to a very large number at once, and of different capacities, he must address himself in such a manner as to be understood by all. But a man who studies and reads for himself can pick out for his reading that class of information which, if I may be allowed to use the phrase, he is most capable of assimilating and digesting.—Lord Stanley.

Maryland and Massachusetts.

The first troops which started for the South upon the eve of the War of the Rebellion were from Massachusetts. The President's proclamation had hardly been issued before the Sixth Massachusetts was on its way to the [illegible], and the 19th of April, 1861, found them in Baltimore. The violent events which marked their march across that city are [illegible] matters of history. The [illegible] of secession notwithstanding [illegible] of the city [illegible] all its forces to oppose [illegible]. Cheers for Jeff Davis and the Southern Confederacy greeted them, and, as the troops paid no heed to taunts or threats, the mob became emboldened to break out in open violence. Stones, bricks, and other missiles were hurled at them, and at last the rabble fired upon the troops, and the first blood of the War was shed, and the first victims were Massachusetts soldiers. This was the commencement of the war for slavery. Fourteen years later, on the very spot where Toombs had threatened to call the roll of his slaves, arrives a regiment of troops from Maryland. Their line of march through Boston and Charlestown is witnessed by thousands of enthusiastic spectators, who greet them with cheers of welcome. There is no thought of the 19th of April, 1861. During the afternoon, Post No. 7 of the Grand Army of the Republic, composed entirely of men who had fought in the War of the Rebellion against the South, some of them soldiers who marched through Baltimore on that memorable day, invited the Fifth Maryland, composed of men who had fought against the North, to Boston Common, and presented their former antagonists with a stand of colors, which were accepted in behalf of the regiment by a Sergeant who had fought valiantly against the flag at Appomattox. The speech of the Maryland Colonel shows the spirit in which this flag was received: "This standard will be received with enthusiasm by our people, as tangible evidence of your brotherly love, and henceforth under its protecting folds, as in the days of the Revolution, Massachusetts and Maryland will be found shoulder to shoulder." Prior to this presentation, the Maryland soldiers had still more suggestively and touchingly shown their feelings by a little incident as full of tender beauty as it was of large-hearted and chivalric manliness. On their way to the scene of the presentation, they went quietly and without any intimation of their purpose to the soldiers' monument in Charlestown, erected to the memory of the soldiers of that city who had fallen in the War of the Rebellion, and placed upon the cenotaph a beautiful shield of flowers with the inscription "Maryland's Tribute to Massachusetts." The chief beauty and suggestiveness of the graceful deed lies in the quietness and modesty with which it was done.—Chicago Tribune.

Arab Boys.

It is very curious to go to the Syrian school-houses and see the piles of shoes at the door. There are new bright-red shoes, and old tattered shoes, and kob-kobs and black shoes, and sometimes yellow shoes. The kob-kobs are wooden clogs, made to raise the feet out of the mud and water, having a little strap over the toe to keep it on the foot.

You will often see little boys and girls running down steps and paved streets on these dangerous kob-kobs. Sometimes they slip, and then down they go on their noses, and the kob-kobs fly off and go rattling over the stones, and little Ali or Yuse, or whatever his name is, begins to shout "Ya Imme!" Ya Imme!" ("O, my mother!") and cries just like little children in other countries.

But the funniest part is to see the boys when they come out of school and try to find their shoes. There will be fifty boys, and, of course, a hundred shoes all mixed together in one pile. When school is out the boys make a rush for the door. Then comes the tug of war. A dozen boys are standing and shuffling on the pile of shoes, looking down, kicking away the other shoes, running their toes into their own, stumbling over the kob-kobs, and then making a dash to get out of the crowd. Sometimes shins will be kicked and hair pulled, and tarbooshes thrown off, and a great screaming follows, which will only cease when the teacher comes with "Asa," or a stick, and quells the riot. That pile of shoes will have to answer for a good many schoolboy fights, and bruised noses, and hard feelings, in Syria.

You will wonder how they can tell their own shoes. So do I. And the boys often wear off each other's shoes by mistake or on purpose, and then you will see Selim running with one shoe on and one of Ibrahim's in his hand, shouting and cursing Ibrahim's father and grandfather until he gets back his lost property.

Victims of Their Curiosity.

An officer from the plains, speaking of the wanton destruction of game by tourists, says: "Antelope will take care of themselves. No horse can catch them, and not one dog in a hundred can run them down. They are very hard game to kill, and the only way to get them is to steal upon them or practice on their curiosity. They are the most curious of animals. Any unusual sight does not appear to frighten them. They will watch a kite or a big piece of paper fluttering in the wind, and used as a cover for the hunter, until it is within a few rods of them. Any gay colored ribbons or cloth shaken at them attracts their curiosity, and they will not run until they have satisfied themselves about it."

MUTUAL TOLERATION.—The house will be kept in turmoil where there is no toleration or lenity shown to each other's failings, no meek submission to injuries, no soft answer to turn away wrath. If you lay a single stick of wood in the grate, it will go out; put on another stick, and they will burn, a half a dozen, and you will have an effective blaze. There are other fires subject to the same condition. If one member of a family gets into a passion, and is left alone, he will cool down, and possibly be ashamed and repent. But oppose temper to temper, let one harsh answer be followed by another, and there will soon be a blaze which will enwrap them all in its burning heat.

O'BRIEN, the Irish giant, died poor, but his skeleton sold for $40,000.

AUBURN COURIER

T. G. MAYS, Publisher.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

A. S. Abell, of the Baltimore Sun, is probably the wealthiest journalist in the United States, his fortune being estimated at from seven to ten millions of dollars.

Jonathan Clifford, a Vermont veteran of the war of 1812, contributed to the Centennial curiosities in Boston a powder-horn of antique pattern, which has smelled the smoke of three American wars—the French and Indian, the Revolution, and the war of 1812.

It is rumored that an alliance, offensive and defensive, has been formed between Russia and Great Britain, and that the tripartite alliance between Russia, Germany and Austria has been broken owing to the suspected warlike designs of one of the parties to it—Germany.

Mr. John T. Delane, editor of the London Times, first became connected with the great journal as assistant editor in 1839, and upon the death of Mr. T. Barnes assumed the chief editorship, in 1841. Now, after a service of thirty-six years, it is announced that he will shortly retire.

Next fall will be a hard time for returning European tourists. Secretary Bristow having determined that this bringing home a dozen more trunks than are needed for a traveler's wardrobe, and pinning together costly fabrics, just to "pass through" the Custom House, must be stopped.

It is evident that the effects of the "hard times" in various parts of the world are but just being felt in England. Failures of iron and mercantile interests are of almost daily occurrence of late in that country, and, as an effect, Canada is also experiencing a severe stringency and has an occasional business failure.

Parson Brownlow, having been challenged to fight a duel, claims the right to select the weapons, and names the following terms: The parties are to meet in an open-topped hog-pen, after a hard summer rain, armed with dungforks; and whoever shall toss the other out shall be regarded as having killed him in mortal combat.

They shoot birds with base ball in the East. While some schoolboys in Littleton, N. H., were playing ball recently, a ball batted by one of them struck a swallow in the air and brought him down as suddenly as if he was hit with a bullet. This incident raises the hope that the great American game may yet be put to some practical use.

In Dallas, Tex., a few nights since, James T. Obenchain was shot and seriously wounded by John Stone. Stone remarked, "I feel as if I am going to kill somebody to-night." Young Obenchain replied, jestingly, "A gnat or mosquito, perhaps," when Stone said something about being insulted, and, walking up to him, drew a pistol and fired.

An exchange thus relieves itself: "T-o-n-g-u-e spells 'tongue,' and the man who first spelled it so should have been hongue. A-c-h-e spells 'ache,' and that's all you can mache out of it. E-i-g-h-t spells 'eight," no matter how you deprecieight the idea; and that a-i-s-l-e should spell 'aisle,' and f-e-i-g-n 'feign," is enough to make anybody smaisle if the effort were not too peignful."

The Mennonites own about 150,000 acres of land along the line of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe railroad and have brought some $2,000,000 in gold into the country. Their attention is chiefly directed to cultivating the soil and to stock raising, though after a while it is expected that various kinds of manufacturing will be introduced. They dress in an exceedingly plain manner. They eat five times a day, and sleep ten hours, and are healthy and wealthy.

The "honest burglar" has been interviewed in New York—he was on the witness stand—and he says: "What with the burglar alarms in houses and stores, and the district telegraphs, and people growing economical and careful, and the newspapers hounding us, burglary, garroting and highway robberies and such things is actually hazardous and aint so easy to be did." Such, at least, is the account which the New York papers give of the interview; and spite of the allowance necessary to be made for the natural desire to give their city as good a character as possible, it is possible their report is an accurate one.

The Sioux Indians were made a good deal of in New York. Before leaving that city each member of the party was presented by E. Remington & Sons with one of their celebrated rifles, greatly to the delight of the Indians. Bull Eagle was also given a silver tankard with his name engraved thereon, and which he declared he would never disgrace by drinking fire-water out of it. Sitting Bull received a heavy silver statuette of a raging bull chained to a post, which pleased him greatly. Before leaving they sung a characteristic peace song, and departed in the best possible humor.

The remarkable disturbance of the forces of nature that has characterized the last three months, and expressed itself in storms and heavy rainfalls in this country, has been attended by still more violent phenomena in other parts of the globe, suggesting a cosmic cause for the perturbations. We hear of dreadful earthquakes in three widely separate regions—in Asia Minor on the 3d, 4th and 5th of May, attended by the loss of several hundred lives; in New Grenada on the 18th of the same month, attended by the loss of sixteen thousand lives and the destruction of many villages; and in Mexico, where the shocks were less violent and disastrous.

George Pepper, of Somerville, Mass., was recently stabbed to death by his wife. Pepper's life had been memorable for its accidents, and he had received hurts enough to kill half a dozen ordinary men. He was on board the Congress in its fight with the rebel ram Merrimac during the war, when his skull, nose and jaw were broken, the teeth of his upper jaw knocked out, a hole made in his side so that his intestines could be seen, and his thumb and one eye carried away, while he also received a shot in one arm and leg. Subsequently a circular saw took off the four fingers of the hand from which he had lost the thumb, and by the fall of a pile of lumber a leg and three ribs were broken.

Rudolph Bourman is the champion tramp printer of the continent. He arrived in San Francisco on the 3d of June, one hundred and thirty-five days from New Jersey, having walked the entire distance. Bourman left New Jersey on the 12th of last January without a cent in his pocket, determined to reach San Francisco without cost to himself. He walked from the starting point to Philadelphia, thence to Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and thence along the line of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads, until he arrived in the Golden City. He obtained food by asking for it from men in the section houses along the line of the railroad, and at almost every place where he stopped at he was kindly treated, and was furnished with something to eat and a place to sleep.

The grasshoppers don't stand much chance in Minnesota, for the people have organized a more intelligent warfare upon them than those of any other section. It was inaugurated in the Minnesota valley by a Mr. Reaney, who induced Le Sueur, Ottawa, St. Peter, Kasota and several other towns to offer bounties for catching grasshoppers, and the plan worked well from the start. In Le Sueur and Ottawa the grasshoppers were nearly annihilated in a few days by the school children, under the stimulus of bounties. Over 19 bushels were collected and destroyed in a single day. The bounty was at first 20 cents a quart, but it was reduced to 12½ cents a quart; without lessening the war in the least; for, at noon of the first day after this reduction, over 17 bushels had been taken to the Borough Clerk of Le Sueur and paid for. All sorts of contrivances have been devised for catching grasshoppers. Two boys, with a common sack having a hoop fitted to its mouth, have earned between seven and eight dollars a day. Two men, with a canvas trap on a two-wheeled machine, have made great havoc of the grasshoppers, and have brought in piles of them.

The Mosaic Dietary Laws.

It is strange that the Mosaic prescriptions for man's diet, chiefly taken from the tabernacle rites, have become, by common consent, the bill of fare of civilized society—with variations, of course. In the cities, especially, the main articles of food are those which the laws of Moses recommended. When in former days people dieted largely on pork, many became hogs themselves, and many diseases still raging among men have been conveyed into the human system by the consumption of pork, rabbits, hares and other animal food which the law forbids.

Physiologists understand well enough the importance of diet, and yet none have gone to the trouble of giving the Mosaic dietary laws a thorough scientific examination. Here are the Jews, after 3,000 years, a healthy, intelligent, energetic and fertile race. Much is said about their longevity, temperance, charitable disposition, etc.; still no scientist has taken the trouble to examine the food on which this race lived and thrived. The point is certainly, scientifically, very important.—American Israelite.

A Domestic Gobbler.

My father has on his farm two turkey hens and one gobbler. One of the hens had a brood of chicks, the other had just got ready to sit; she was accordingly furnished with twenty-three eggs. The next morning the gobbler was missing, and on search he was found sitting on a nest which he had made, about three feet from the hen, having twelve eggs under him. Whenever he and the hen both happened to be off the nest at the same time he always took the nest on which she had last sat, and he always had twelve eggs, leaving her only eleven. He sat his time out and left the nest with seven chicks, of which he takes the greatest care, calling them just as the female does, and is as savage as a dog in their defense.—J. R. W., in American Sportsman.

INDIANA NEWS.

Posey county has $58,000 ahead, and don't owe a cent.

The Vincennes banks can't get rid of their money at 9 per cent.

The late Sol. Bayless leaves his young widow a life insurance of $14,000.

The Mormons are endeavoring to establish a new church at Versailles.

Geologists say coal may be found in Northern Indiana at the depth of 300 or 400 feet.

The new school fund of Clark county will receive this year about $2,500 from liquor license.

The Commissioners of Monroe county refused to grant any liquor license at the term just held.

Capt. James M. Fay, one of the old citizens of Busseron township, Knox county, is dead.

The change from the Baxter law to the present Liquor law puts $3,000 in the school fund of Warrick county.

The Grangers of Lick Prairie recently planted ten acres of corn for a brother who was down with the measles.

The President has appointed Edward Stevenson, of Michigan, to be Register of the Land Office at Michigan City.

Alice Brown, known as the fasting girl of Evansville, is dead. She ate not a mouthful for fifty days previous to her death.

Ras. Weaver has returned to Lafayette from West Point, where he has just graduated with high honors. He will enter the regular service.

The first paper established in Indiana was the Western Sun, at Vincennes, Aug. 4th, 1804, by Elihu Stout, over the destinies of which Dr. A. J. Thomas now presides.

President Smith, of the Columbus, Chicago and Indiana Central road, reports the gross earnings of the road for the year ending January 31, 1875, were $3,705,575.69.

Some of the smaller manufacturers in New Albany are contemplating the use of water power in place of steam as a matter of economy, when the waterworks are completed.

It requires $58,000 per month to pay the employes of the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Layfayette road upon the main line, and about $9,000 more to pay the employes on the Martinsville and Whitewater Valley branches.

The Lake County Board, having appointed Mrs. Chesire County Superintendent, became satisfied at a subsequent day of their session that no one but a voter could hold the office, rescinded the order, and appointed Mr. McAfee.

In the Pulaski Circuit Court the cases of a number of car thieves, whose operations have previously been reported, were partly disposed of. Peter Wright, the leader of the gang, was sentenced for two years and disfranchised for life. The others were continued until the next term.

A melancholy accident happened at Fort Wayne a few days ago. Two girls, Mary Dailey, aged 12, and Alice Updegraff, aged 7, were playing in a room unoccupied save by them, when the oldest one took a loaded pistol from the bureau-drawer, and, firing at her companion, inflicted a fatal wound in the forehead.

The Board of Trustees of Purdue University have requested Gov. Hendricks to memorialize Congress in regard to placing an army officer at the head of the military department of the college. A request for a signal station at the college will probably be made at the same time.

The Rensselaer Union says: "Not a county in Indiana is setting up faster than Jasper. Within two years much of the land has increased in value from 25 to 100 per cent. In five years more there will be scarcely a tract of cheap land on the market here; and at that time if improvements increase at the ratio of two years back, there will not be an unenclosed foot of land in the county."

The Lafayette Courier says: "Mrs. Smith, a widow of Decatur, has commenced suit for damages against the proprietors of two drinking saloons of that place for a violation of the liquor law. Her eldest son, a young man of fine business qualifications when sober, committed suicide last winter by shooting himself with a pistol. It is claimed that the above parties sold him liquor under the mother's protest."

Frank E. Faxon, a student at the University of Notre Dame, was drowned in the lake at that place on Saturday morning. In company with six classmates, he was bathing, and while diving from a boat, about 70 feet from shore, the boat was capsized, and he, becoming overcome with fright, failed to accept an oar which was handed him, and was drowned. His parents reside in Detroit, and were expected to arrive at Notre Dame, to be present at his graduation.

Samuel S. Towle, an old resident and prominent citizen of Mishawaka, left home last Friday, ostensibly to go to his store, a couple of miles away, but not returning in proper time, search was instituted and kept up until next morning, when he was found in the woods on his farm hanging suspended by a hemp cord from a sapling, dead. He was about 60 years of age, and was slightly deranged from a fancy that the foundations of his house was insecure. His son was Speaker of the House in the Nebraska Legislature last winter. He also has a nephew member of a prominent law firm in Chicago.

The Madison Courier has the following: "A young lady patient of one of our physicians, residing a few miles from the city, who was convalescing from a spell of sickness, was frightened into a relapse the other day by a snake. She had lain down upon a lounge during the day, when she observed several mice run across the room from an opening in the floor near where she was lying, and was horrified to see a large brown spotted snake appear upon the floor in pursuit of the mice. Her screams brought her father to the room, who, comprehending the situation, made an attempt to kill the reptile, but it swiftly disappeared through the floor. The species of snake, we are told, is entirely harmless—even useful, as it destroys field mice, moles and other vermin which prey upon the products of the farm. In portions of Europe they are never molested."

A Martinsville correspondent addresses the following letter to the Indianapolis Journal: "Some time ago your columns contained an announcement of the arrest of Henry Phillips, in your city, for participation in the robbery of Jefferson Wooden, at Hall, in Morgan county, in December last. The crime with which he was charged was a bold and startling one, and had excited a great deal of public attention. The case was continued, and Henry, together with his brother, James H. Phillips, and Thomas Barrett, arrested at the same time, gave bond for their appearance. Last Tuesday was fixed for the preliminary examination. At the hour set for trial the defendants were in court with their witnesses, demanding a trial. Thereupon, the prosecuting attorney, satisfied that the evidence was wholly insufficient to warrant an examination, dismissed the cases, and the defendants were discharged. As the notice of his arrest was public, so also should be his vindication.

Horace Holcomb, alias Charles Sherman, alias J. O. Fairman, alias H. Huntress, was arrested at Kendallville last Sunday, charged with stealing $10,000 worth of goods from a wholesale boot and shoe establishment at Auburn, N. Y. One of the confidentia clerks was won over by Holcomb, and he stole the goods, bringing them to the latter in a basket to Auburn, N. Y., where they did the packing and shipping of the goods. This wholesale thieving has been going on for a period of three years. The clerk has been arrested. Holcomb made good his escape, but has been followed by Deputy Sheriff George Holden, of Cayuga county, since the 27th day of last April. Holcomb went first to Virginia, then to Carolina, then to Michigan, and from thence to Fort Wayne and Kendallville, where he was captured by Holden and Deputy Sheriff John G. Leter, of Noble county. He was pursuing the avocation of a spectacle peddler at Kendallville. He was taken to New York on a requisition from the Governor of that State.

The Spare Bed.

When I go to the country to visit my relations, writes M. Quad, the spare bed rises up before my imagination days before I start, and I shiver as I remember how cold and gravelike the sheets are. I put off the visit as long as possible, solely on account of that spare bed. I don't like to tell that I had rather sleep on a picket fence than to enter that spare room and creep into that spare bed, and so they know nothing of my suffering. The spare bed is always as near a mile and a half from the rest of the beds as it can be put. It is either up stairs at the head of the hall or off the parlor. The parlor curtains have not been raised for weeks; everything is as prim as an old maid's bonnet, and the bed is as square and true as if it had been made up to a carpenter's rule. No matter whether it be summer or winter, the bed is like ice, and it sinks down in a way to make one shiver. The sheets are slippery clean, the pillow slips rustle like shrouds, and one dare not stretch his leg down for fear of kicking against a tombstone. One sinks down until he is lost in the hollow, and foot by foot the prim bedposts vanish from sight. He is worn out and sleepy, but he knows the rest of the family are so far away that no one could hear him if he should shout for an hour, and this makes him nervous. He wonders if any one ever died in that room, and straightway he sees faces of dead persons, hears strange noises, and presently feels a chill galloping up and down his back. Did any one ever pass a comfortable night in a spare bed? No matter how many quilts and spreads covered him, he could not get warm, and if he accidentally fell asleep it was to wake with a start under the impression that a dead man was pulling his nose. It will be days and weeks before he recovers from the impression, and yet he must suffer in silence, because the spare bed was assigned him in token of esteem and affection.—Albany Journal.

Got to Do It.—"I shouldn't think you'd yell and scream that way," said a gentleman to a newsboy who was letting himself out to be heard a mile and a half.

"Does it hurt you any?" inquired the lad.

"No, it doesn't, but it will surely undermine your health—probably bring on dropsy."

"Let'er drop, then—yawl 'bout the murder—got to holler, if I die for it."—Detroit Free Press.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Two Pictures.

An old farm-house, with meadows wide,
And sweet with clover on each side;
A bright-eyed boy, who looks from out
The door with woodbine wreathed about,
And wishes his one thought all day:
"Oh! if I could but fly away
From this dull spot the world to see,
How happy, happy, happy,
How happy I should be!"

Amid the city's constant din!
A man who round the world has been,
Who, 'mid the tumult and the throng,
Is thinking, thinking, all day long:
"Oh! could I only trace once more
The field-path to the farm-house door,
The old, green meadow could I see,
How happy, happy, happy,
How happy I should be!"

Farm Rakings.

London market gardeners pay $200 per acre yearly rent for the land they cultivate, and their average profits are $500 per acre.

The sheep-raisers of New Mexico employ goats as leaders to their herds of sheep, because they understand a person's voice so well and will come whenever they are called. The goats have to be trained, and the sheep will always follow them. When a stream has to be passed this is very important. Raising goats is quite a business with the Mexicans. They will breed twice a year. The Mexican's eat them, and also sell them to those who raise sheep.

Use of the Currycomb.—Most farmers (or many, and we would like to say all,) keep currycombs, cards, brushes and the like in the horse barn, and use them daily, but how many cows throughout the country ever had a card or brush applied to their dirty sides? The dairy cows come out of the stable in the spring looking more filthy than the swine in the gutter. Does it pay to keep the cattle clean? Ask any intelligent farmer if it pays to use the brush on his horses, and then ask him to point out a reason why it does not pay equally well to give the cows the same attention and care.

Paper as a Plant Protector.—A gentleman residing in Guernsey, Channel Islands, writes to say that he has saved his crop of early potatoes under glass by spreading newspapers over them, while his neighbors lost theirs by the severe frost. He suggests that a convenient number of newspapers be pasted together, and the edges folded over strings, thus making a screen which would give the young shoots an excellent protection in the severest cold weather, and from the sun's rays in summer.

Sweeny in Horses.—A Southern farmer gives a remedy, which he says will, in nine cases out of ten, effect a speedy cure. Bake a flat pone of corn-bread, and let it be about two inches thick—when nearly done saturate thoroughly with tar, which can best be done by making small holes in the bread, and pouring in the tar. This being done wrap in a cloth, and apply to the affected shoulder, pressing it tightly and keeping it there until the bread becomes cold. By the next morning your animal will be ready for service. It is very important that the bread should be as hot as possible.

Hired Men.—Get the best hands, and keep them. When a man has become used to his work and his employer, he is worth more than a stranger. There is a way of making men interested in their work, of satisfying their self-respect, treating them courteously and reasonably, giving them credit for success, while holding them strictly responsible for failures; and above all, by paying them promptly and liberally, that will make their work worth double what it would otherwise be. As land advances in price, more labor must be expended on it to make it pay a profit, and by and by we must have a settled laboring class. We are now in process of educating this class of men, and must do it by good management.—Pen and Plow.

About the House.

Tin can be removed from copper vessels very thoroughly by immersing the objects in a solution of blue vitrol.

Equal proportions of turpentine, linseed oil, and vinegar, thoroughly applied and then rubbed with flannel, is an excellent furniture polish.

The German washerwomen use a mixture of two ounces turpentine and one ounce spirits of ammonia well mixed together. This is put into a bucket of warm water, in which one-half pound of soap has been dissolved. The clothes are immersed for twenty-four hours, and then washed. The cleansing is said to be greatly quickened, and two or three rinsings in cold water will remove the turpentine smell.

Did you ever hear of a pan dowdy? It is an old-fashioned New England dish and has a flavor of our grandmother's cookery. Make a rich crust, line a deep earthen pot with it; now slice some pie-apples quite thin for the first layer; strew the apples with molasses and spice and a teaspoonful of milk; cover with a thin crust and your pan dowdy is made. Bake in slow oven. A brick one is made use of in New England generally. When done, turn it on a platter and serve hot.

Currant Catsup.—A. E. C., in the Massachusetts Ploughman, writes: "I send you a receipt for making currant catsup, and in my mind it cannot be beat to any lover of baked beans as a dressing. To five pints of strained currants add three pounds of sugar, one pint of vinegar, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, one of pepper, one of cloves, one of allspice, one-half of salt. Scald them well three-quarters of an hour, then put in bottles and cork tight; it will keep for years, and as farmers generally have a quantity of currants that go to waste, I would like to have them try this, and I think they will never be sorry."

Waiting.

Riding countrywards yesterday, a citizen of Vicksburg came upon a mule and cart which had been "stalled" in a very bad hole in the center of the road. The negro owner and driver sat on the ground near by, and the gentleman halted and asked:

"What's the matter?"

"Stuck-ed," was the reply.

"Well, what are you going to do?"

"I dunno, Boss; I'se bin here a 'hole hour thinkin' whether I'd better do a hundred dollars worf of liftin' to save a fifty dollar mule, or go hom, afoot?"—Vicksburg Herald.

Commodore Vanderbilt goes to the New York Hippodrome every evening at sunset, to hear Gilmore's band.

All Sorts.

Artificial eyes for horses are announced.

Charleston is the flower metropolis of America.

There is some talk of re-establishing the Government Ordnance Works at Harper's Ferry.

Jeff Davis having kissed all the girls in a Texas town, a St. Louis paper says he is moving in an elliptical orbit.

The corporation of Dublin petitions Parliament to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday in Ireland.

The military powers of Europe have 20,000,000 horses ready to do battle, and the next war will be fought on horseback.

The Pittsburgh puddlers are accustomed to have an extra allowance for working in midsummer, known as the "hot dollar."

Burglars lack constant applications to become successful merchants. They frequently open stores, but never stay long in one place.

A farmer at Springfield, Tenn., recently plowed up a copper pipe, twenty-eight inches in length, sealed at both ends, and containing $138 in silver coin.

"It will come," said a candidate for Mayor of St. Louis the other day, while making a stump speech, "just as sure as it was that Romeo founded Rome."

A foreign company, with a capital of $20,000,000, has been organized for the purpose of investing in Louisiana land, and of pursuing agriculture as a science.

A man in Southwestern Missouri has discovered that the rock fence on his farm is made of zinc ore, and a neighbor finds himself with a chimney of the same material.

A live horse and a city passenger railway car, full of passengers, the conductor with the bell punch," was one of the attractions of a Philadelphia theater recently.

Eight or ten millions of young shad are incubating at Shad Island, near Castleton, Hudson river, one of the stations established by the New York State Fish Commissioners.

The Boston Gas Company has sunk an artesian well 1,750 feet deep, and the water raised from it is bitter and saline, and holds in solution a large proportion of chloride of calcium.

Levy, the Paris publisher, left a fortune of between three and four millions of dollars. He was originally an actor, and shed many tears of humiliation over his failures on the stage.

Buffalo has taken a step in the right direction in instructing the proper authorities to examine into the means of exit from public buildings, school-houses, chambers and places of resort.

A linguist, with seven languages at his command, was beaten out of all the money he had, at a Bowery faro-bank, the other day; and yet there are people who clamor for compulsory education.

It isn't often that any ordinary person accumulates a board bill of $40,000, but a San Francisco man has brought a suit for this amount for boarding the wife of a relative from March, 1849, to July, 1862.

The gum boots so universally worn by gravel miners in California and elsewhere, have latterly been lined with green flannel, the dye of which is arsenicated. Many persons have been poisoned thereby.

A case came up in the General Term of Common Pleas, New York, last week, whereby it was decided that when a generally docile horse suddenly causes damage through fright and fractiousness the owner is not liable.

A gentleman of Atlanta, Georgia, learning that the widow of Stonewall Jackson is living at Charlotte, North Carolina, in straitened circumstances, has offered, to give her an interest in a prosperous cotton factory.

This notice appears in one of the London morning papers: "Mr. Peter Tate has left his home. His wife and children would be thankful to any one who can give information of his whereabouts. He is subject to fits and resembles the German Emperor."

During a sanitary survey recently in Lincolnshire a man was found, aged 95 years, who had been in the habit of drinking a gallon of beer before breakfast, another during the day, and a few extra pints to top off with, and who had never been sick a day in his life.

J. C. Lamon, the oldest settler of the Yosemite Valley, died a few days ago and was followed to the grave by the inhabitants of the valley, two hundred tourists, and many Indians, a large number of the latter riding on horseback. He was buried near the grand Yosemite Falls.

A Big Story.

Mr. Sayre, of Lexington, lisps a little, and a good story is told of him, the better for its truth. Some years since an overseer of one of his farms told him he needed some hogs on his place. Says Mr. Sayre: "Very well, go and buy four or five thousand pigs right away, and put them on the farm." The man, accustomed to obey, and that without questioning, asked: "Shall I take the money with me to purchase them?" "No, thir. They all know me. Thend them here—I'll pay for them, or give you money to pay when you get them." The overseer went his way, and in two weeks returned, when the following conversation took place: "Well, Mr. Sayre, I can't get many pigs. I have ridden all over the country, all about, and can buy between eight and nine hundred." "Eight or nine hundred what!" "Eight or nine hundred pigs." "Eight or nine hundred pigths! Who told you to buy that many pighta! Are you a fool?" "You told me to buy them two weeks since. I have tried to do it." "Eight or nine hundred pighta! I never told you to do any thuth thing!" "But you did—you told me to go and buy four or five thousand pigs." "I did no thuth thing! I told you to buy four or five thous and their little pight, and you have done it, I should think." Mr. Sayre had pork to sell in the autumn.

A New Store

With an entire new stock of

BOOTS & SHOES,

New STYLES of all kinds at the LOWEST PRICES at

J. E. WOODFORD'S

I have located at Auburn with a fine stock of BOOTS and SHOES, which will be sold at the Lowest Figures for Cash!

My Facilities for making CUSTOM WORK are not excelled anywhere and those favoring me—with their orders may be certain of getting the best material.
W. W. HUMES, Foreman.

To the trade, great inducements are offered in Leather, Findings, &c. Please call and examine my stock before purchasing.

FRESH ARRIVAL OF NEW GOODS
AT THE
GRAND CENTRAL

Woolen Goods for the next THIRTY DAYS sold without regard to

A JOB LOT OF SHAWLS

Bleached and Brown Muslin,
Percales and Prints, Dennims,
And Shirtings, Carpets and
Oilcloths, Table Linen and
Towling. A Large assort of

ALPACCAS,

AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Gents' Collars, Hats, and Suspenders. Ladies Collars and Cuffs, Willow Ware, Satchels, and Carpet Bags. COTTENADES from 15c to 35c per yd, fine assortment of

CASSIMERES,

at very low figures. Call at the Grand Central, next door to Davis' Hard ware store.

WILLIAM RICHMOND, Pro.

C. P. Houser & Co.,

—Dealer In—

BOOKS AND STATIONERY

BEST
Window Paper
HOLLAND'S
and Oil Shades always on hand and CHEAP for CASH.

PICTURES, FRAMES,
CORD,
and TASSELS,
Curtain and Window Fx'trs
the Best in the Market.

—The Largest and finest assortment of—

WALL PAPER

EVER BROUGHT TO THIS MARKET.

Their store is located in Ensley's new brick block, North of the Court House,
AUBURN, INDIANA.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

F. E. DAVENPORT,

Corner Main and Eighth-Sts.,

—DEALER IN—

Pure Drugs and Medicines,

DYE STUFFS, PERFUMERY,

Toilet Soaps Cosmetics, Hair Oils, Brushes, Combs, Toilet Mirrors and Druggists' Sundries in General.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY!

Wall and Window Paper!

Oiled, Linen and Slat Window Shades, and Shade Fixtures.

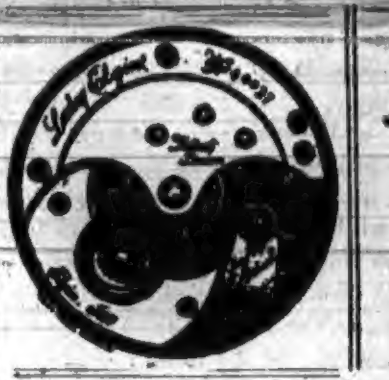
All the lattest POEMS and MISSELANIOUS BOOKS constantly on hand or ordered. Blank Books, Pocket Memorandas, Portmonies and Bill Books, WRITING PAPERS. All Styles and prices ALBUMS! ALBUMS! ALBUMS just received for the Holliday trade. Over $300.00 worth of Juvenile and Toy Books, which will be sold at panic prices. Smith's Gold Pens, warranted the best. Also steel Pens, Penholders, Pencils, Ink and Ink Stands &c.

SCHOOL BOOKS!

Covered with best Cover ever invented Free Of Charge

Davenport has the exclusive right to use this book cover in Auburn, and will give his patrons the benefit of the same.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT
ABRICHT'S
In Amrican & Swiss Watches,



TOYS

FANCY GOO DS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that, I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,
Jewelry,
Clocks, Silver Ware!
GOLD PENS,
Ladies GOLD Chains,
Gents Chains,
Gold and Silver Rings,
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,

V. A BEARD

Grocer in Auburn, North of Court House on Seventh Street,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS

TEAS, COFFEES, SUGARS, SALT FISH.

Flour and Feed, Tubs Pails, Buckets, Sugars Boxes, Etc. A large variet

TOBACCOS AND CIGARS,

Confectioneries of all kinds, and Fancy Notions, Corn Oysters, &c. A speciality in Green and Dried Fruits, and Canned Fruits. Goods delivered inside the coporation.

Miller & Casebeer's

CORNER STORE AHEAD.

An immense stock of

SUMMER GOODS

JUST RECEIVED!

Call and examine Goods and Prices.

Goods marked down 25 per cent lower than ever offered before in this market. A mammoth stock of

FINE DRESS GOODS,

to select from, now is the time to call and

SECURE BARGAINS,

you can save 25 per cent, by buying your goods now at

MILLER & CASEBEER'S

Corner Store.

RAIL ROADS.

Indianapolis Peru & Chicago R.R.

TIME TABLE No. 12—Dec. 20, 1874.

Northward.

Stations.	No. 1	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Indianapolis	6 30a	12 25p	3 55p	12 20
Noblesville	7 44	12 29	5 10	1 30
Tipton	8 20	1 12	5 57	2 15
Miami	9 37	1 50	6 38	2 55
Kokomo	9 17	2 26	7 08
Peru	10 05	3 15	7 40

Southward.

Stations.	No. 2	No. 4	No. 6
Indianapolis	6 00p	4 15a	9 55a
Noblesville	4 42	3 18	8 34
Tipton	3 56	2 20	7 44
Kokomo	3 13	1 50	7 02
Miami	2 46	1 15	6 35
Peru	2 10	12 35	6 00

E. C. MURPHY, Supt. Mich. Div.
E. M. HAWLEY, Master of Tran.
C. B. ROBINSON, General Sup't.
F. P. WADE, Gen. Ticket Agt.

Lake Shore & Mich. Southern R.R
Air Line Division

ON and after Sunday, Nov. 15, 1874 Passenger Trains will leave Waterloo city and other stations as follows, daily except Sundays:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom'd'n
Butler	2:40 p m.	x 2:35 a m.	6:00 p m
Waterloo	2:56 "	2:53 "	6:19 "
Sedan	3,05	3,00	6:30 "
Corunna	3,10	3,06	6:35 "

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.15 pm	11,30 pm	6:50 p m
Sedan	2.20	11,35	7:02 "
Waterloo	2:28 "	11:44 "	7:11 "
Butler	2:40 "	x12:01 a m	7:35 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin R. R.

Time Table to take effect May 23, 1875.

Going South.

Fort Wayne	1 15 pm	2 00a.m	5 35pm
Ossian	2 02	-	6 42
Bluffton	2 30	3 10	7 17
Keystone	3 02		7 57
Montpelier	3 12	3 44	8 08
Hartford	3 40pm	4 05	8 40
Eaton	4 02		9 06
Muncie	4 37	4 47	9 45
McCowan's	4 53	5 05
New Castle	5 30	5 40
Cam. City	6 05	6 11
Beesons	6 22	6 27
Connersville	6 35	6 40
Indianapolis	8 30	8 50
Louisville	11 10	12 45pm
Cincinnati	10 30	9 40

Going North.

Cincinnati	7 30am	1 20pm
Louisville		2 40	7 00pm
Indianapolis		7 25	4 30am
Connersville	10 32	7 35
Beesons	10 45	7 52
Cam City	11 04	8 12
New Castle	11 40	8 55
McCowans	12 15pm
Muncie	12 32	9 55	6 30am
Eaton	1 02	10 28	7 29
Hartford	1 24	10 50	7 54
Montpelier	1 49	11 17	8 52
Keystone	1 58		8 36
Bluffton	2 30	11 58	9 15
Ossian	2 59	11 28am	9 52
Ft. Wayne	3 45	1 15	11 00

W. W. WORTHINGTON, Supt.
ROBT. RILLIE, Gen'l Ticket Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect May 23d—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Mail	Accom.	Jack. Acm
Cincinnati		7 80
Louisville	7 00pm
Indianapolis	4 35am
Ft Wayne	10 45	4 35
Auburn	11 40	6 07
Waterloo	11 56	6 37
Summit		7 48
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 . 5	8 00	6 00 a
Reading	1 17		7 32
Bankers	2 12		7 52
Jonesville	2 30		8 20
Jackson	3 40		10 10
Detroit	6 30p m		2 00p
Grand Rapids	9 30
Lansing	5 47
Saginaw	9 03
Bay City	9 55

Going South.

Bay City	6 40 a m		2 45p
Saginaw	7 30		3 38
Lansing	10 40		9 55
Grand Rapids	7 30		12 00
Detroit	9 50		5 40
Jackson Dep	12 40		9 30
Jonesville	1 55		10 30
Bankers	2 12		10 47
Reading	2 28		11 00
Ar Angola	3 25	6 15	11 55
Pleasant Lake		6 26
Waterloo	4 05	7 55	12 23a
Auburn	4 20	9 25	12 49
Auburn Junction		6 30
Fort Wayne, Arrive	5 15	11 10	1 40
Indianapolis		10 30	6 50
Louisville			12 45p
Cincinnati			9 40a

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

DETOIT, EEL RIVER & ILLINOIS
Rail Road.

Short Line between Auburn and the East and West.

Trains run on Cleveland time. Through trains will run on the following time, in effect Sunday June 20th, 1875.

Going East.				Going Wes .
No. 7 Thro'	No. 5 Frei't	Mail	STATIONS	Mail	No. 6 W. F	No. 8 Local
3.40p	7.00a	10.50	lv Logans't ar	6.15p	7.25p	12.10p
4.08	7.30	11.06	Adamsboro.	5.55	7.00	11.45a
4.30	7.55	12.23	Hoover's	5.41	6.40	11.23
4.50	8.25	11.32	Mexico	5.33	6.25	10.55
6.00	9.30	11.45	Denver.	5.23	6.00	10.25
					5.10	10.05
6.15	9.50	12.15	Chili	5.13	4.55	9.50
6.46	10.40	12.31	Roann	4.57	4.25	9.20
7.14	11.20	12.47	Laketon	4.40	3.50	8.48
7.40	12.10	12.57	N. Manchest'r	4.29	3.25	3..0
8.00	1.10p	1.06	Lib. Mills	4.19	2.40	8.10
8.25	1.40	1.16	Collamer	4.07	2.00	7.47
8.40	2.10	1.22	S. Whitley	4.02	1.50	7.40
9.05	2.35	1.33	Taylor's	3.50	12.30	7.20
9.30	2.57	1.47	Columbia city	3.38	12.05	7.00
10.15	4.10	2.03	Collin's	3.18	11. a	6.15
10.45	4.50	2.14	Churubusco	3.08	10.32	5.50
11.10	5.15	2.24	Potter's	2.57	9.53	5.20
11.30	5.35	2:33	G. R. Crossing	2.49	9.35	5.05
11.45	5.55	2.40	Cedar Creek	2.40	9.20	4.50
12.15	6.30	2.52	Aub. Juncti'n	2.26	8.50	4.20
12.30	7.00	2.58	Auburn	2.20	8.00	4.10
1.00	7.30	3.15	Mooresville	2.02	6.57	3.35
1.25a	7.55	2.25p	ar. Butler lv.	1.50	6.25	6.25

CONNECTIONS—At Logansport with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St Louis, Logansport, Crawfordsville & Southwestern and Toledo. Wabash & Western R. R's. At Denver with Indianaplis, Peru & Chicago Railway, for Rochester, Plymouth, LaPorte, Michigan City, Peru, Kokomo and Indianapolis At N Manchester with Cincinnati, Wabash & Mich R'y. At Columbia City with Pittsburg, Ft. W, & Chicago, for Ft Wayne Lima, Crestline and Pittsburg. At Grand Rapids crossing with Grand Rapids R'y. At Auburn Junction with Ft. Wayne Jackson & Saginaw, for Angola, Jackson and Saginaw R'y, for Butler with Lake Shore & Mich. Southern Caw. Toledo, Detroit and all eastern cities.

J. A. HUGHSTON, Gen. Ticket Agt.
A. B. SLUTRAHD, Gen. Supt.

THE STAR WELL AND PROSPECTING AUGER.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD!

Mr. LEVI BROWN, living two miles south of Corunna, has purchased the right of this celebrated Auger, and is now prepared to put in wells. Everything is warranted and satisfaction guaranteed.
LEVI BROWN.

RAILROADS.

Pittsburgh, Ft Wayne & Chicago RR

ON and after May 23d, 1875, trains will run as follows, Sundays excepted.

Going West.

STATIONS	FAST EX.	MAIL.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Pittsburg	2,00 A M		9,00 A M	2,00 P M.
Rochester	3 00 "		9,22 "	3,13 "
Alliance	5,25 "		12,30 P M	5,54 "
Orrville	7,10 "	"	2,25 "	7,31 "
Mansfield	9,07 "	"	4,40 "	9,38 "
Crest- ar	9.40 "	A. M	5,15 "	9,55 "
line ... lv	10,00 "	"	5,35 "	10,00 "
Forest	11,15 "	4,50 "	7,27 "	11,36 "
Lima	12,20 P M	5,30 "	8,43 "	12,37 A.
Ft Wayne	2,40 "	9,10 "	11,35 A M	2,25 "
Plymouth	4,40 "	11,20 "	2,55 "	5,05 "
Chicago	7,50 "	2,25 P. M	6,30 "	8,30 "

Going East.

STATIONS	MAIL	FAST EX.	PAC. EX.	NIGHT EX
Chicago	5.15 A M	9,20 A. M.	5,35 A. M.	9,30 P. M
Plymouth	9.20 ,,	12,15 P. M.	"	12,50 A. M
Ft Wayne	12,20 PM	2.45 "	11,45 "	3,50 "
Lima	2.40 "	4,35 "	1,35 A. M.	6,15 "
Forest	3,56 "	5,34 "	3,01 "	7,38 "
Crest- ar	5,35 "	6,55 "	4.40 "	9.20 "
line lv	A M	7,15 "	4.50 "	9.40 "
Mansfield	"	7,43 "	5,20 "	10,30 "
Orrville	"	9,23 "	7,10 "	12,45 P M
Alliance		11,10 "	9,00 "	3,05
Rochester	P M	1,07	11,12 "	5,40
Pittsburg	"	2,10 a m	12,15 A.M.	6,55

F. R. MYERS,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent

BALTIMORE & OHIO R. R

FROM 135 TO 6 MILES

The hortest route from the West to

Washington, Baltimore
AND THE EAST.

ONDENSED TIME TABLE, THRO' TRAINS.

VIA PARKERSBURG, Dec. 13, '74	Express	Fast Express,	St. Louis Ex.
Lve. Cincinnati	9 00 am	†4 30 p m	‡11 10pm
Arr. Chillicoth	12 55d n'n	s7 48	3 00 am
" Portsmouth	5 35 p m		11 19
" Marietta	5 56	12 06 n't	7 22
" Parkersburg	5 25 s	11 30	s6 50
Arr. Grafton	9 45	3 40 a m	11 10
" Cumberland	2 00 a m	s7 40	b3 30
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	6 51
" Staunton		5 15 p m
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30p m	4 50 am
" Baltimore	‡9 05 a m	1 50 a m	10 20‡pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50 p m	2 35 am
" New York	‡5 10	10 22	‡8 15
" Boston.	5 50 a m		4 50 pm

VIA BELLAIRE—Dec 13, 1874	Express	Fast Express.	Fast Line
Lve. Cincinnati (via Dayton & L.)	6 30 a m		‡3 50 p m
" Cincinnati (via P. C. & St. L.)	†7 00		†7 10 p m
" Columbus	11 55	4 00‡p m	12 20†
Arr. Newark	1 00 p m	5 25	1 45 a m
" Zanesville	2 10	6 55	2 57
" Bellaire	5 20	10 35	6 30
" Wheeling.	6 45 p m	12 30 ngt	8 00
" Grafton	9 25	3 35 a m	11 05
" Cumberlain	2 00 a m	7 40	b3 30 pm
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's F'y	5 19 a m	10 54	9 51
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	8 50
" Richmond		10 30 p m	4 55 a m
" Baltimore	9 05	1 50†	10 20†pm
" Philadelphia	1 20 p m	6 50	2 35 a m
" New York	5 10	10 22†	†8 15
" Boston	4 50 a m		4 50 p m

B—Breakfast. D—Dinned. S—Supper. †Daily
‡Daily ex. Sunday. ‡Daily ex. Monday.

PULMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS

from Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Columbus, to

WASHINGTON AND BALTIMORE!

—AND—

PHILADELPHIA

WITHOUT CHANGE.

Through Tickets, and further information can be obtained at all principal Ticket Offices throughout the West and South West.

THOS. P. BARRY, West. pass agt., Cin.
L. M. COLE, Gen'l ticket agt., Bal. Md.
THOS. R. SHARP, Mas. of Tran. "

J. G. FLEDDERMAN,

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

Has the larfiest and fines stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promtly attended to. Go and see his largestock of G

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS
—OF—
J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

re now in full running order and all orders fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give us a call and ascertain our prices.

THE AUBURN

Marble Works!

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have permanently located in Auburn, and are now prepared to attend to all orders for which they are prepared to turn out in a superior manner at reasonable rates. Works west the Bakery.

Monuments, Tomb-Stones, &c.,

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JULY 8, 1875. Number 27.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,........$2, | Six Months,.......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	12 00	15 00	20 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	[illegible]
One Column......	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.

J. W. RICKEL, R. DIXTE TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butlers DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the state. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store, Case's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Miller and Casebeer's store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON will attend to all calls in the line of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical disease. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing all the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience, of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel. My medicines are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of diseases without producing any bad effect, upon the nervous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of quinine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on fifth street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $1 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.

C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 34 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago. O SANDS, Prop'r.

$2.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenaleben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.

J. H. FORD, Pres't.

J. A COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire Line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,

CHAIRS

Husk & Hair Matrasses

50 and 52 East Main Street,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experienced corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. U. Tarney

AUBURN MEAT MARKET!

KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Market first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store.

BRICK FOR SALE

FRITZ GROESCOP.

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick, about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable Rates. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Kutzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some lot of the above Tile, which they are selling at a very [illegible] price.

Four Inch Sizes at 35 cts., per Rod.

Six " " " 75 " " "

Every person who intends to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office.

LANHAM & HOSE, Auburn, Indiana.

J. J. Vanatken,

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying [illegible] Persons requesting work by letter, should give township [illegible]

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobacco es. &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

[illegible] the traveling public, we would [illegible] Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

BAKER BROS.

PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!

AND

EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes etc., always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.

BAKER BROS.

AUBURN

Meat Market,

Main St. Next door to Klotz's.

MICH HOUSTON

PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

MERCHANTS

National Bank!

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Capital and Surplus $112.000

Receives Deposits, Discounts Business Paper, issues Letters of Credit, and Collects at all points at the lowest rates of exchange.

Directors:

S. CARY EVANS, R. C. ROBERTSON,
H. C. HANNA, N. P. STOCKBRIDGE
A. C. DAWSON.

Organized 1865. April 9, '74

NEW

Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep

FLOUR, CORN,
OATS, MILL FEED,
&c. at all times and at the

Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs, &c.

WM. LANHAM.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusually fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO,

26 East Berry street.

[illegible] MANY New and Choice Goods on sale at Root's Novelty Store, 24 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Indiana. New goods arriving daily. Special bargains in

Table Linen,

Corsets, Gloves, Hosiery, Muslins, Flannels, White Goods, Ladies Ties Handkerchiefs, Portmonaies and many goods not kept elsewhere. Large four-story stone front building, 24 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R

IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,

Notions, etc., of

CHARLES KLOTZ

AT HIS

Old Stand

ON MAN STREET,

Opposite Court Square

AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accommodate customers, and sell them such goods as they may need,

CLOTHING

Of all descriptions, and

HANDSOME SUITS

Made to Order!

FOR SALE.

Four Business Lots,

Adjoining the Court House square, the most desirable and the only ones similarly located in Auburn each lot 22x80 feet.

Those wishing to purchase the lots in the market should apply soon to [illegible] Attorney at law, or THOMAS BALDOCK, [illegible] Also.

A HOUSE and LOT adjoining the above. The house is now containing five rooms, with closets, convenient and pleasantly located. Will be sold at a

BARGAIN

Apply as above.

MY MIDNIGHT PERIL.

The night of the seventeenth of October—shall I ever forget its pitchy darkness, the roar of the autumnal wind through the lonely forest, and the incessant down-pour of the rain? This comes of "short cuts," I muttered petulantly to myself, as I plodded along, keeping close to the trunks of the trees to avoid the deep ravine, through which I could just hear the roar of the turbulent stream forty or fifty feet below. My blood ran cold, as I thought what might be my possible condition. Why had I not been contented to stay in the high road?

Hold on! Was that a light, or were my eyes playing me false?

I stopped, holding on to the low resinous boughs of a hemlock that grew on the edge of the bank; for it actually seemed as if the wind would seize me bodily, and hurl me down the precipitous descent.

It was a light, thank Providence it was a light, and no "iguns fatus" to lure me on to destruction a death.

"Hallo-o-o-o!"

My voice rang through the woods like a clarion. I plunged on through the tangled vines, dense briars, and rocky banks, until, gradually nearing it, I could perceive a figure wrapped up in an oil cloth coat or cloak, carrying a lantern. As the dim light fell upon him I almost recoiled. Would not solitude and the woods be preferable to the companionship of this withered, wrinkled, hideous old man? But it was too late to recede now.

"What's wanting?" He snarled, with a peculiar motion of the lips, that seemed to leave his yellow stumps of teeth all bare.

"I am lost in the woods; can you direct me to R—— station?"

"Yes; R—— station is 12 miles from here."

"Twelve miles."

I stood aghast.

"Yes."

"Can you tell me of any shelter I could obtain for the night?"

"No."

"Where are you going?"

"To Drew's down by the maple swamp."

"Is it a tavern?"

"No!"

"Would they take me for the night?" I could pay them well.

His eyes gleamed; the yellow stumps stood revealed once more.

"I guess so! Folks do stop there.

"Is it far from here?"

"Not very." About half a mile.

"Then let us haste and reach it; I am drenched to the skin."

We plodded on, my companion more than keeping pace with me. Presently we left the edge of the ravine, entering what seemed like trackless woods, and keeping straight on until the lights of some habitation gleamed fitfully through the wet foliage.

'It was a ruinous old place, with windows all down to one side, as if the foundation had settled, and the pillars of of a rude porch nearly rotted away.

A woman answered my fellow companion's knock. My companion whispered a word or two to her, and she turned to me with smooth voluble words of welcome.

She regretted the poverty of their accommodations, but I was welcome to them, such as they were.

"Where is Isaac?" demanded my guide.

"He has not come yet."

I sat down on a wooden bench near the fire, and ate a few mouthfuls of bread.

"I should like to retire as soon as possible," I said, for my weariness was excessive.

"Certainly."

The woman started up with alacrity.

"Where you going to put him?' asked my guid.

"Up chamber"

"Put him up in Isaac's room."

"No."

"Its the most comfortable."

"I tell you no!"

But here I interrupted the whispered colloquy.

"I am not particular. I don't care where you lodge me, only make haste."

So I was conducted up a step ladder that stood in one corner of the room, into an apartment ceiled with sloping beams and ventilated with one small window, where a cot beadstead crowded close against the board partition, and a pine table and two chairs, formed the sole attempt at furniture.

"Anything more I get you sir?"

"Nothing, thank you."

"I hope you will sleep well, sir, when shall I call you?

"At four o'clock, if you please. I must get to R—— station in time for the seven o'clock express."

"I'll be sure and call you."

She withdrew, leaving me alone in the gloomy apartment with no very agreeable sensation.

"I will sit down and write to Alice," I thought. That will sooth my nerves and quiet me, perhaps.

I descended the ladder; the fire still growed redly on the hearth, my companion and woman sat beside it talking in a low tone, and a third person sat at the table eating, a short, stout, villainous looking man, in red flannel shirt and muddy trowsers.

I asked for writing materials, and returned to my room to write to my wife.

"My darling Alice,"

I paused and laid down my pen as I concluded the words, half smiling to think what she would say, could she know of my strange quarters.

Not until both sheets were covered did I lay aside my pen and prepare to slumber. As I folded the paper I happened to glance towards the couch.

Was it the gleam of a human dye observing me through the cracks of the board partition or was it but my own fancy? There was a crack there; but only blank darkness beyond, yet I could have sworn that something had sparkled balefully at me.

I took out my watch, it was one o'clock It was scarcely worth while for me to undress; I will lie down in my clothes, and snatch what slumber I could. So, placing my valise close to the head of my bed, and barricading the lockless door with the chairs, I extinguished the light and lay down.

At first I was very wakeful, but gradually a soft drowsiness seemed to steal over me like a misty mantle until all of a sudden some startling electric thrill coursed through all of my veins, and I set up excited and trembling.

A luminous softness seemed to glow and quiver through the room—no light of moon or star was ever so soft or penetrating and by the little window I saw Alice, my wife dressed in floating garments of white, with her long golden hair knotted back by a blue ribbon. Apparently she was beckoning to me with outstretched hands, and eyes full of anxious tenderness.

I sprang to my feet, and rushed toward her, but as I reached the window the fair apparition seemed to vanish into the stormy darkness, and I was left alone. At the self same instance the sharp report of a pistol sounded—I could see the jagged stream of fire above the pillow—straight through the very spot where ten seconds since my head had lain.

With an instantaneous realization of my daughter, I swung myself over the edge of the window, jumped some eight feet into the tangled rose bushes below and as I crouched there recovering my breath I heard a tramp of footsteps into my room.

"Is he dead" cried a voice up the ladder—the smooth deceitful voice of a woman with the half closed eyes.

"Of course he is" cried a voice back "that charge would have killed ten men A light there, quick, and tell Tom to be ready."

A cold agonizing shudder ran through me. What den of midnight murderers had I fallen into? And how fearful narrow had been my escape?

With a speed that only terror and deadly peril can give, I rushed through the woods, now illuminated by a faint glimmer of starlight. I know not what impulse guided my footsteps—I shall never know how many times I crossed my own tracks or how close I stood to the bank of the deadly ravine, but some merciful providence encompassed me with a guiding and protecting care, for when the morning dawned, with faint rays of orient light against the stormy eastern sky, I was close to the high road seven miles from R——

Once at the town, I told my story to the local police, and a detachment was sent with me to the spot.

After much searching and many false alarms, we succeeded in finding the ruinous old house; but it was empty and deserted. Our birds had flown; nor did I ever recover my valise and watch and chain, which latter I had left under my pillow.

"It's Drew's gang!" said the leader of the police; "and they've troubled us these two years. I didn't think, though they'll come back here just at present!"

Nor did they.

But the strangest part of my story is yet to come. I received a letter from sister, who was with Alice in her English home—whose intelligence filled me with surprise.

I must tell you something very strange that happened to us on the night of the 17th of October. Alice had not been well for sometime; in fact, she had been confined to her bed for nearly a week and I was siting beside her reading. It was late, the clock had just struck one, when all of a sudden she seemed to faint away growing cold and rigid as a corpse I hastened to call assistance, but all our efforts seemed in vain to restore life or animation, I was just about sending for the doctor, when her senses returned as suddenly as they had left her, and she sat up in the bed, pushing back her hair and looking wildly about her.

"Alice!" I exclaimed, "how you have terrified us all. Are you ill?

"Not ill," she answered, but I feel so strange! Glacie, I have been with my husband!

"And all of our reasonings failed to convince her of the impossibility of her assertions. She persists to this moment that she saw you on the night of the 17, of October, or rather the morning of the 18th. Where and how she cannot tell but we think it must have been a dream She is better now, and wish you could see how fast she is improving."

This is my plain unvarnished tale. I do not pretend to explain or account for its mysteries. I simply explain facts. Let psychologists unravel the labyrinthine skein. I am not superstitious, neither do I believe in ghosts, wraiths, and apparations; but this thing I do know—that although my wife was in England, in the body, the morning of the 18th of October, her spirit surely stood beside me in New York in the moment of the deadly peril that menaced me. It may be that to the subtile instinct and strength of my wife's holy love of all things are possible, but Alice surely saved my life.

Indiana Fairs.

The "fair" season in Indiana promises to be very lively this year. Societies and associations throughout the state are making active preparation for more complete and extensive exhibitions than ever before. Should the season be favorable for agricultural productions, which now seems probable, the exibitions will probably greatly surpass those of former years. The following announcements have already been made:

The Indiana state fair and exposition will open at Indianapolis, September 9th, and continue to October 21. The live stock exhibition will take place the 17th of September.

The following is the list of county and district fairs already announced:

Plymouth, September 19th to October 1st.
Peru, September 21 to 24th.
Terre Haute, September 14th to 19th.
Bridgeport, August 33rd to 28th.
Logansport, Sept. 8th to 11th.
Charleston, Sept. 6th to 11th.
Cambridge City, Sept. 14th to 17th.
Aurora, Sept. 7th to 11th.
Connersville, Sept. 7th to 10th.
Covington, Sept. 21st to 24th.
Pendleton, Sept. 7th to 10th.
Marion, Sept. 21st to 22th.
Gosport, Aug. 31 to Sept. 4th.
Corydon Sept. 14th to 18th.
New Castle, Aug. 24 to 27th.
Danville, Sept. 7th to 12th.
Kokomo, Sept. 21st to 24th.
Rensselaer, Sept. 19th to 18th.
Huntington, Sept. 21st to 24th.
Portland, Sept. 28th to Oct. 1st.
North Madison, Sept. 20th to 24th.
Seymour, Sept. 7th 10th.
Vincennes, Oct. 11 to 16th.
Crown Point, Sept. 29th to Oct. 1st.
Bedford, Sept. 13th to 19th.
Loogootee, Sept. 27th to Oct. 2nd.
Valley Mills, Sept. 9th to 11th.
Bloomington, Sept. 21st th 29th.
Waterloo, Oct. 5th to 8th.
Fort Wayne, Sept. 13th to 18th.
Bloomingdale, Sept. 8th to 10th.
New Harmony, Sept. 14th 17th.
Greencastle, Aug. 19th to 21st.
Rushville, Sept 14th to 17th.
Rockport, Sept. 28th to Oct. 2nd.
Lafayette, Aug. 30th to Sept. 4th.
Tipton, Sept. 14th to 17th.
Union City, Sept. 14th to 18th.
Russellville, Aug. 30th to Sept. 3rd.
Wabash, Sept. 11 to 17th.
Centerville, Sept. 14th to 17th.
Columbia City, Sept. 21st to 24th.
Worthington, Oct. 3rd to 10th,

Mr. Samuel Grosh having purchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Tarney, in the Lower Flouring Mill, will here after conduct it alone. He is manufacturing a splendid brand of flour and keeps mill feed constantly on hand. Mr Furnish, an experienced miller, will assist in turning out flour that cannot fail to suit everybody. tf

$500,000 to loan on improved farms in Northern Indiana, in sums of one thousand dollars and upwards, on five years time. Security must be first mortgage.

WILLIAM FLEMING,
Fort Wayne Ind.

tf

EDITORIAL CONVENTION.—The Northern Indiana Editorial Convention meets this year at Plymouth July 15. It is desired there shall be a full attedance.

Try the COURIER one year, and see how you like it.

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, JULY 8, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

Three executions took place on Friday of last week. At Dedham, Mass., James H. Costley was hung for the murder of Julia Hawkes, whose killing was traced to him upon evidence purely circumstantial, but of the strongest and most conclusive character. At Thomaston, Me., two murderers swung together—Louis Wagner, the bloody actor in the Isle of Shoals tragedy, wherein the victims were two Norwegian women who were so unfortunate as to have $20 in silver in their possession; and John True Gordon, who murdered in their beds his brother and the latter's wife and infant child, and then set fire to the house to conceal the crime. Gordon was hung while in a state of insensibility, resulting from an attempt at suicide by stabbing himself in the breast on the morning of his execution.

A terrible disaster occurred last week in a shaft of the Susquehanna Coal Company, near Wilkesbarre, Pa. A party of six carpenters were engaged in lining up the shaft, and while working near the top of the opening the scaffolding gave way, precipitating the unfortunate men to the bottom of the shaft, a distance of 500 feet. They fell into some thirty feet of water, and were killed either outright by the fall or drowned....Five persons were killed last week at Fall River, Mass., while attempting to drive across a railroad track in front of a train.

The New York Grand Jury has found six new indictments against William M. Tweed, for obtaining money from the City Treasury by false pretense.

A fire at Paterson, N. J., on the 29th ult., destroyed property valued at $200,000.....George W. Pemberton, the murderer of Mrs. Margaret E. Bingham, at Boston, has been sentenced to be hanged....Loader and Price, the two witnesses who confessed to a scene of criminality between Beecher and Mrs. Tilton in the Tilton parlor, are under arrest upon a charge of perjury, and both have confessed that the affidavits were false.

THE WEST.

A fearful tornado swept over a portion of the city of Detroit last Sunday, cutting a swath varying in width from 100 to 500 feet in a northeasterly direction as far as the corner of Grand River avenue and Twelfth street, a distance of more than a mile. The whirlwind assumed the shape of a water-spout, and was seen for miles away, while the crash of its destruction was heard distinctly in distant parts of the city. The damage to property is variously estimated from $20,000 to $50,000. Eighteen houses were demolished, and twenty others more or less injured, besides out-houses, barns, etc. Charles Peike was fatally injured, and his child, an infant 4 years old, was killed. Mrs. Fred Rademacker is fatally injured. Richard Bates, a boy 10 years old, was blown a furlong through the air and into an elm tree sixty feet high, whence he dropped to the ground, and was picked up dead. Mrs. Lizzie Perkins will probably die, and many others are very seriously injured. Nearly 100 persons were more or less bruised, and were attended by the doctors....The Sioux Indians have finally agreed to relinquish their hunting privileges on the Republican river, in Nebraska, receiving therefor the $25,000 appropriated by Congress for that purpose As the Interior Department will not trust the savages with the cash, they will receive their compensation in the form of horses, cows, harness and wagons.

A shocking wife-murder was perpetrated in Chicago a few days ago. John Condon, becoming enraged at the improper conduct of his wife, shot her through the breast, killing her almost instantly, and then shot himself in the head, inflicting a dangerous wound....A cold-blooded and brutal murder was committed at Ottumwa, Iowa, one day last week. Deputy City Marshal Logan was shot and killed by Jesse Scott Smith, of Batavia. Logan received two pistol-shots, one taking effect in the heart, killing him instantly. Smith was a desperate character, and was on his way to the jail, in charge of the officer, when the shooting occurred. Smith was promptly arrested by Marshal Van Ammon. Heavy iron manacles were riveted on his wrists and ankles, and he was then lodged in jail. The prisoner boasted that he was the "bird that did the deed," and he meant to kill Van Ammon. The excitement ran till 3 o'clock next morning and lynching was expected every moment. Between 1 and 2 p. m. next day, the prisoner was taken before Acting Mayor Felzer, and, on waiving examination, was remanded to jail. On coming down the stairs from the City Hall, a half dozen persons, backed by 500 coolheaded citizens, overpowered the officers in charge of him, and, throwing one end of a rope over Smith's head and the other on a lamppost, left his lifeless body dangling in the air, viewed by thousands of spectators, in the broad sunlight.

WASHINGTON

Judge Spence, Assistant Attorney-General for the Postoffice Department, has decided that Postmasters are liable on their bond for losses of government property passing through their Postoffices.

Secretary Bristow says that the decision is final to stop all work on the Chicago Custom-House....The rate on registered letters has been increased by Postmaster-General Jewell from 8 to 10 cents, because the former rate did not pay expenses....The Assistant Treasurer at New York has been directed by Secretary Bristow to sell $1,000,000 in gold coin on each Thursday in July, or $5,000,000 in all.

It is asserted in prominent official circles that the prosecution of illicit distillers will probably be a failure, owing to mismanagement.

The customs receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30 were $156,479,131, and the aggregate internal revenue receipts for the same period were $109,186,379....For the first time in twenty-two years the Treasury Department has been reorganized. The number of employes is fixed at 2,221 persons, with an aggregate annual compensation of $2,854,153.50, showing a reduction by the bill of 384 employes, and a saving of $507,600.45.

THE SOUTH.

Six persons, consisting of one man and five women, all colored, while rowing in a skiff in Hill's Lake, near Little Rock, Ark., a few days ago, were drowned by the capsizing of the boat. ....A special dispatch to the Chicago Inter-Ocean from Brownsville, Texas, states that the United States troops have recently been reinforced, and that detachments of cavalry are constantly scouring the country in search of Mexican raiders, many of whom are still on this side of the Rio Grande committing depredations and outraging defenseless women. The fact that our troops are taking the offensive justifies the belief that conflicts with Cortina's bandits will occur, when it would not be surprising if the latter were followed across the river, and hostilities between Mexico and the United States commenced in earnest.

An entire block of business houses was recently burned at McKinney, Texas. Loss $70,000....A dispatch received from Key West, Fla., states that the yellow fever is an epidemic at that place.

An incendiary fire at Helena, Ark., last week, destroyed two newspaper offices and one job printing office....At Baltimore, last week, Maj. J. Lois Clarke, a well-known citizen, was shot while seated at the dinner table of a hotel by H. W. Brewer, of Georgetown, who claimed to have been driven to the act to avenge a sister's wrongs. Clarke's wound is not fatal.

POLITICAL.

Vice-President Wilson has published a long letter in reply to the recent adverse criticisms upon him which have appeared in the Republican press in reference to his doings and utterances on his recent tour....The New York Prohibitionists met in convention at Syracuse, last week, and adopted a series of strong prohibition resolutions. The following ticket was put in the field: Secretary of State, G. D. Duzenbury; Comptroller, Anson A. Hopkins; Treasurer, Stephen B. Ayers; State Engineer and Surveyor, Geo. A. Dudley; Canal Commissioner, Ira D. Bell; State Prison Inspector, John B. Gibb; Attorney-General, Eli T. Marsh.

The Iowa Republicans held their State Convention at Des Moines on Wednesday, June 30, and nominated the following ticket for State offices: For Governor, Samuel J. Kirkwood; Lieutenant-Governor, J. G. Newbold; Supreme Judge, Austin Adams; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Alonzo Abernathy....The California Democrats met in State Convention at San Francisco on June 30, and nominated William Irwin for Governor....Congressman J. K. Luttrell has been nominated for re-election by the Democrats of the Third California District.

FOREIGN.

A serious revolution has broken out in the State of Senora, Mexico....Garcia, the Spaniard who stole a portion of Murillo's famous picture from the Cathedral of Seville, and who was kidnapped to Cuba and subsequently sent to Spain, was shot a few weeks after his arrival at Madrid, without trial by even a drum-head court-martial.

At Valparaiso, South America, recently, a terrible gale occurred, doing an immense damage to the shipping, and occasioning the loss of fifty lives....Fearful inundations have recently occurred in Bohemia, Moravia, Corinthia and Tyrol, and Boriat, with some loss of life and great destruction of property. Many bridges have been carried away, thousands of cattle drowned, and the crops in several districts totally ruined....A special dispatch from San Francisco announces that the revolution against the Mexican authorities at La Paz is in the full tide of success, and that Mexican troops had been sent from Mazatlan to quell the movement.

A furious rain and thunder storm passed over the city of Buda, Hungary, a few days ago, destroying many houses before their inhabitants could escape. At least 100 were drowned, and 500 are reported missing....The bill providing for a national debt sinking fund has passed a third reading in the British Parliament....A recent fire at Palacios, in the Province of Seville, Spain, destroyed 140 houses....Edmund Jones & Co., London, in the East India trade, have failed, with liabilities at £750,000....The French Assembly has voted $398,000 for the relief of the sufferers by inundations.

Ferdinand I., ex-Emperor of Austria, died at Prague, last week, aged 82....A royal ordinance has been issued commanding that members of Carlist juntas, and all families of which any member is in the Carlist service, be expelled from Spain, and directing that the property of Carlists be confiscated and devoted to indemnify communities suffering from Carlist requisitions.

The great international rifle match at Dublin, on the 29th ult., was attended by an immense crowd of people, and the enthusiasm was intense. At 800 yards the Irish team scored 338 against 337 for the Americans, but at the ranges of 900 and 1,000 yards, the American team carried the total score to a majority of 38 points, or 967 to 929. In the evening a grand banquet in their honor was given by the Lord Mayor of Dublin at the Mansion House. A large number of distinguished guests, including the Lord Mayors of London and York, were present. The Irish riflemen admit the superiority of the Americans throughout the match, and acknowledge that their victory was fairly won. The American team used breech-loaders; the Irish team all used Rigby's muzzle-loaders.

The loss by damage and destruction of property by the recent great inundations in Southern France is computed at $24,000,000 in the two cities of Toulouse and Agen alone. At least 2,000 men, women and children were drowned at Toulouse, where an hundred thousand destitute people are now dependent upon charity. The loss of life by the great flood on the river Danube, in Pesth, Hungary, was also very great. As far as heard from, about 450 dead bodies have been recovered, and many others have been swept down the river....Pope Pius has sent $4,000 to the sufferers by the late inundations in France....The Italian Parliament has passed the bill for the prevention of brigandage.

The Bridges of the West.

Nothing excels in wonder the bridge system of the West; all built up since the war. The Missouri is bridged at St. Charles (3,535 feet long), Boonville, Kansas City, Leavenworth, Atchison, St. Joseph ($1,000,000), and Omaha. The cost of these bridges was about $11,000,000, or $3,000,000 less than the single bridge and approaches at St. Louis. The Ohio is bridged eight times below Pittsburgh at a cost of $16,000,000. The Mississippi is bridged at St. Louis, Hannibal, Keokuk, Burlington, Clinton, Dubuque, Winona, LaCrosse, St. Paul, and other places, at a cost of $25,000,000. An engineer said a few days ago that the bridges of the United States built since the war had cost $150,000,000. The great bridges at Saybrook, Albany, Havre de Grace and Buffalo do not bear comparison with the bridge system of the West.

It's very hard to wive and thrive, both in the same year.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

The money market was more active but there was no change worthy of note, the supply of loanable funds being ample. Rate 7@10 per cent. Bonds firm and steady.

	Buying.	Selling.
U. S. 6's of '81	126	126½
U. S. 5-20's of '62 (ex. int.)	117½	118
U. S. 5-20's of '64 (ex. int.)	116⅝	118⅞
U. S. 5-20's of '65 (ex. int.)	122	123½
U. S. 5-20's of '65 January and July	122½	122⅞
U. S. 5-20's of '67 January and July	126½	125½
U. S. 5-20's of '68 January and July	124½	125
U. S. 10.40's	119	119½
U. S. new 5's of '81 (ex. int.)	117½	118
U. S. currency 6's	122½	122½
Gold (full weight)	116½	117½
Gold exchange	116½	117½

BREADSTUFFS.

The grain markets attracted considerable attention from speculators and operators generally, and quite an extensive business was transacted. The movement has been mainly on local speculative account, and the governing influences were therefore mainly of a local speculative character. The short interest generally looked for a decline in values, and were therefore indifferent about buying, while holders were generally anxious to realize, and there was a pressure to sell. Wheat closed higher for cash and June, under the influence of some demand for shipment, but the July option closed lower. Corn declined fully 4c per bu, with fine weather for the growing crop, and a rapid increase in the stock in store. The market however closed a shade firmer. Oats were decidedly weak and easy, declining about 6@7c for June and July delivery; receipts increasing and crop reports favorable. Rye was 3c lower and barley 15@20c per bu off.

The following table shows the prices current at the opening and close of the past week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash	$ .97½@ [illegible]	[illegible] .99
No. 2, seller June	.97½@ [illegible]	.99
No. 2, seller July	.99½@1.00	.99½
No. 2, seller August	.99½@1.[illegible]	1.00½
No. 2 corn, cash	.69½@ [illegible]	.67 @ .67½
No. 2 corn, seller June	.69½@ .69½	.67 @ .67½
No. 2 corn, seller July	.70½@ .70½	.67½@ .67½
No. 2 corn, s. August	.71½@ .72½	.69½
No. 2 oats, cash	.57 @ .58	.51½@ .51½
No. 2 oats, seller June	.57 @ .58	.51½@ .51½
No. 2 oats, seller July	.54 @ .55	.49½
No. 2 oats, s. August	.40½@ .41	.39
No. 2 rye, cash	.93	.90
No. 2 barley, cash	1.35 @1.40	1.20
No. 2 barley, s. Sept.	1.05 @1.07	.98

PROVISIONS.

There was a moderate speculative demand in this market during the past week, and this, coupled with more encouraging advices from Eastern and European markets, caused a steadier feeling to prevail, and although no particular advance was established, prices ruled very firm. The shipping inquiry was also fair, and the movement for the week shows a fair distribution of the various articles—a good portion of which was winter product. Cash mess pork closed quiet but firm at $19.25, seller July closed firm at $19 10@19.25, and seller August at $19.40@19.42½. Cash lard quiet but firm at $13.25; seller July in moderate request, and closed at $13.20; seller August closed steady at $13.42½@13.45.

PRODUCE.

There was no particular change exhibited in the price of butter, but a less active movement was noticeable and rather an unsettled feeling prevailed. The receipts were only fair and the quality of butter received was quite good. Quotable at 20@22c for extra, 17@20c for firsts, 14@17c for seconds, 13@15c for thirds, and 11@12c for inferior stocks. Beans were quiet, but former prices were maintained and the market ruled quite quiet. Eastern mediums sold at $1.90 for prime, and Western were quotable at $1.00@1.85 according to quality. There was more doing in broom corn and prices ruled firm. Quotable at 11½@14c for No. 1 to extra hurl, 11@13c for good to choice stalk braid. Beeswax dull at 28@30c per lb for good to prime yellow. Cheese was active and firmer. Sold at 9@10c for prime new in lots, and 10@11c in a retail way. There was nothing of consequence done in cider, and prices were nominal at $4.75@5.00 per brl. Dried fruits were dull, and prices for apples were easier, while the other kinds remain unchanged. Quotable at 7@8c for Michigan and New York apples; 8½@8¾c for halves peaches, and 9½c for blackberries. Dried peas nominal at $2@2.15 for choice green. Feathers were slow at 48@52c for prime live geese, and 20@35c for turkey tail feathers. Hay was quiet and easy; closed at $16@19.00 for No. 2 to prime timothy; $12@16.00 for No. 2 to prime prairie. Hides were dull at 8c for green salted, and about 14@15c for calf. There was no sale for honey, and prices were weak at 18@23c per lb for comb, according to quality. Hops were also very quiet; quotable at 20@30c per lb from first hands for fair to choice. Eggs were weak and easer; the market closed at 14@15c, the outside being for warranted fresh in carriers. Maple sugar was slow sale, and prices were about nominal at 7½@8c per lb for pure new. There was a fair local trade in old potatoes at 90c@$1.00 for Eastern peachblows from store, and about 85c in lots; Western sold at 80@90c, according to quality. New potatoes were in larger supply, and prices were lower. The market closed at $4.00@4.50 for choice, and some common sold at $3.00@3.50. Tomatoes were in fair supply, and prices ruled steady at $1.25 for ⅓ bu boxes, and $3.00 for one bu boxes. Vegetables were in good supply, but nearly all of the Southern arrivals were in poor order, and sales were slow at irregular prices. Veal was a trifle firmer, which was due mainly to lighter receipts. The arrivals of strawberries during the week were the largest of the season, and prices ruled considerably lower. The market closed at about 90c@$1.25 for fair to choice Michigan in 16 quart cases, but some extra were held above these figures. There was a moderate demand for light fleeces of wool, but heavy was dull and slow sale. Quotable at 38@43c for coarse to fine good conditioned washed, 25@32c for the same unwashed, and 40@48c for poor to prime tub washed.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

Seeds were neglected and the business transacted was exceedingly light. For small lots of timothy there was no demand and prices weak, while for round lots full former prices were paid. Quotable at $2.35@2.45 for common to good, and $2.50@2.60 for prime. Clover was in demand, and $6.50 was bid for prime, but holders generally asked $6.75, and the market was inactive. Flax sold at $1.60 for good crushing. Receivers found it very difficult to make sales of Hungarian, while dealers reported a fair trade at unchanged prices. Quotable at $1.00@1.35. Light sales of millet were made at $1.75@3.00 for prime. Buckwheat was very dull, and by the close of the week holders found it impossible to dispose of small lots; closed at about $1.00 for prime. Highwines, although very quiet, were steady and firm, the market closing at about $1.16.

COOPERAGE LUMBER AND WOOD.

There was but little business transacted in the cooperage market during the week, but as there was only a moderate amount offered on sale former prices were maintained. Quotable at $1.12@1.15 for pork barrels, $1.35@1.45 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.10 for whisky barrels and 45@55c for flour barrels. In lumber the movement was rather light until towards the close of the week, when under an increased demand trade was quite brisk and prices ruled steady, and firm. Quotable at $7.75@8.00 for joist and scantling, $8.25@14.00 for strips and boards, $2.25@2.65 for shingles and 8@14c for cedar posts. Wood remains inactive and nominal at $8.00 per cord for hickory, $7.00 for maple, $6.00 for beech and $4.00 for slabs in the yards.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.

Beeves	9 @ 11
Hogs—Dressed	9 @ 10
Cotton	16½ @ 16¾
Flour—Superfine Western	4 50 @ 4 80
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago	1 12 @ 1 14
No. 1 Spring	1 19 @ 1 21
Corn	78 @ 80
Oats	62 @ 64
Rye	90 @ 94
Pork—New Mess	20 25 @20 50
Lard—Steam	13¼ @ 13¾

ST. LOUIS.

Wheat—No. 2 Red	1 30 @ 1 32
Corn—No. 2 New	63 @ 65
Oats—No. 2	53 @ 54
Rye—No. 2	92 @ 95
Pork—Mess	20 00 @20 25
Lard	11 @ 12
Hogs	6 25 @ 6 80
Cattle	4 25 @ 6 25

MILWAUKEE.

Wheat—No. 1	1 04 @ 1 05
No. 2	1 01 @ 1 02
Corn—No. 2	66 @ 67
Oats—No. 2	[illegible] @ 52
Rye	92 @ 95
Barley—No. 2	1 02 @ 1 04

CINCINNATI.

Wheat—Red	1 18 @ 1 23
Corn—New	68 @ 69
Oats	55 @ 59
Rye	1 02 @ 1 04
Pork—Mess	19 75 @20 00
Lard	13 @ 14

TOLEDO.

Wheat—Extra	1 29 @ 1 31
Amber	1 26 @ 1 27
Corn—New	73 @ 74
Oats	56 @ 58

DETROIT.

Wheat—Extra	.. @ 1 27
Amber	.. @ 1 23
Corn	[illegible] @ 66
Oats	[illegible]

CLEVELAND.

Wheat—No. 1 Red	1 22 @ 1 23
No. 2 Red	1 17 @ 1 19
Corn	69 @ 71
Oats	55 @ 57

THE 'HOPPERS.

Where They Came From, and Where They Go.

(Omaha Letter to Chicago Tribune.)

I was astonished to read, among your editorial notes of yesterday, that "it is a curious fact that, while the grasshoppers came from the southwest last year, they are departing to the northwest this year," etc., or to that effect. Now, the fact is, that these insects did not come from the New Mexico plains last summer, as every citizen of Nebraska and Dakota well knows, but they did come, on the contrary, from the north and northwest, straight from the British Possessions. The following extract from a newspaper hints at the true version of his habits:

"The first thing in this connection that we are bound to notice is, that the grasshopper moves in no ascertainable regular rule; no general law. He is probably native to the region north of Salt Lake, and thus far has visited Nebraska only at intervals of several years. What brings him here at all? He gets on well enough for several years at a time without visiting us. Besides, there are a thousand miles of good grass between us and his native seat, and there are all the forests and glades of the mountains, of the uninhabited Yellowstone Valley, the plains of all British America, and the whole Pacific slope. Why, then, does he occasionally come into Nebraska? Why does he go southeast to Missouri, instead of due east to Illinois and Ohio? And, more strangely still, why does he pass over Nebraska without lighting, as he did three years ago, and disappear forever, so that no man can tell whither he has gone?"

It is a fact, whether curious or otherwise, that the progenitors of this identical "Missouri flock" (as it is called here, owing to the circumstances that it was mainly hatched out in that State this spring) devastated, or rather pastured in, West-Central British America three summers since; its progeny visiting Northern Dakota and Minnesota two years ago; the third generation descending upon Nebraska last summer, destroying it, and depositing its eggs in Missouri, the southeast corner of Nebraska, and the eastern part of Kansas, last autumn. This spring, the offspring (fourth generation) laid waste the region last above alluded to until about the middle of June, when they arose and flew in a direction precisely opposite to their course last year—northwest. The column was 120 miles east to west, extending from Central Nebraska to a point somewhere between Council Bluffs and Des Moines, in Iowa. They began to cross the Platte in countless millions on June 14 (a few small swarms had previously gone north), and had not entirely finished passage over that river until June 21, seven days later. They travel at a speed of about 13 miles an hour, or nearly 130 miles flight per day, average. Their vanguard is now 900 or 1,000 miles north-northwest of Omaha, and still advancing. Would it not be useful to follow this retreating host into its northern fastnesses, and track its movements for a few years in that vast wilderness, where it has formerly pursued its devious wanderings, unheralded and unknown, except as it occasionally emerges into the haunts of civilization, and is recognized in the newspaper-world for a few years, only to disappear soon, and be forgotten?

In '67 or '8, a swarm fully as large as this one visited this section from the British regions (probably by the same successive steps) disappearing the next year in the direction from which it came; but was little talked of East, as the country was then sparsely settled.

GREAT FLOOD IN FRANCE.

Hundreds of Lives Destroyed—One Town Almost Entirely Swept Away—2,000 People Rendered Destitute.

A cable dispatch from Paris, dated June 25, says:

The damage to property and loss of life by the flood in the river Garonne is greater than the previous reports have indicated. At Toulouse alone the bodies of 100 persons who were drowned were found in the houses which were flooded but left standing. Many other people perished, and their bodies were carried off in the houses that were swept away.

The loss of life by the flood at Toulouse is appalling. At St. Cyprian quarter 215 corpses have already been found. The violence of the torrent frustrated the efforts to rescue the unfortunate inmates of houses. Several men were drowned in the attempt. Twenty thousand persons are deprived of the means of subsistence in Toulouse alone. The disasters elsewhere are almost equal in magnitude. The lower part of the city of Morssac, on the Tenn, is under water. At Tremoullet, in the Department of Arriege, five houses only remain standing out of 400. In the District of Faix, same department, two villages are completely submerged, and many dead bodies found. Crops of all kinds throughout the inundated districts have been destroyed.

President MacMahon and Minister Buffet have left Paris for the scene of the destruction.

The Municipal Council of Paris has voted $20,000 for the relief of the sufferers.

Eighty persons were drowned in Verdun. Eight hundred houses have fallen in Toulouse.

At Bordeaux the Garonne is much swollen, but no serious catastrophe is reported.

It is said that altogether over 1,000 lives have been lost.

Later telegrams from France say that 900 persons perished in the flood at Toulouse alone. The outbreak of an epidemic is feared. It is believed that 2,600 houses have been swept away in the town and its environs. The damage there is estimated at from £12,000,000 to £15,000,000. The Paris correspondent of the London Times makes an appeal to British charity in behalf of the sufferers. The London Daily News' special says that the lowest estimate of deaths in the flooded districts is 2,000. It is proposed to bombard and destroy the St. Cyprian quarter of Toulouse to prevent danger from the crumbling walls of the houses that yet remain.

SOUTH AMERICAN EARTHQUAKE.

Great Destruction of Life—Eight Thousand People Buried in the Ruins of One Town.

A letter from Maracaibo gives further particulars of the great earthquake in Ecuador, of which some mention has previously been made in our news columns. At Cirenta the shock leveled every wall in the city, burying, in a single instant, 8,000 people out of a population of 10,000. Several who were not killed, subsequently died of their injuries, and many were murdered by robbers, who plundered in bands. The shocks continued, and fires burned much property. Those who were saved fled to the neighboring country and encamped. When the news reached Maracaibo, two steamers were sent out with bread and clothing to the sufferers by the American Consul and people; also a corps of physicians and a committee to disburse aid. The Governor sent soldiers to protect the people.

Reports from San Cayetono, Santiago, Grarulata, Arbaleda, Cucutella and San Cristeabel, all aggregating a population of 20,000, confirm the previous account of the destruction of life and property in those places. The shock was felt at Bogata and other places, and in Maracaibo there have been light quakes every day since.

Washington's Strength.

Gen. Wilson relates an account of a conversation with Mr. Custis, from which he obtained some interesting personal reminiscences of Washington. During a visit at Arlington House, Va., in 1854, the writer asked Mr. Custis if Washington could, like Marshal Saxe, break a horseshoe, and the reply that he received was, he had no doubt he could had he tried, for his hands were the largest and strongest he had ever seen. Mr. Custis then gave several instances of the General's strength, of which I recall the following: When Washington was a young man, he was present on one occasion, as looker on, at wrestling games, then the fashion in Virginia. Tired of the sport, he had retired to the shade of a tree, where he sat perusing a pamphlet, till challenged to a bout by the hero of the day, and the strongest wrestler in the State. Washington declined till, taunted by the remark that he feared to try conclusions with the gladiator, he calmly came forward, and without removing his coat, grappled with his antagonist. There was a fierce struggle for a brief space of time, when the champion was hurled to the ground with such tremendous force as to jar the very marrow of his bones. Another instance of his prodigious power was his throwing the stone across the Rappahannock at Fredericksburgh—a feat that has never been performed since. Later in life a number of young gentlemen at Mount Vernon were contending in the exercise of throwing the bar. Washington, after looking on some time, walked forward, saying, "Allow me to try," and grasping the bar, sent the iron flying through the air twenty feet beyond its usual limits. Still later in his career, Washington, whose age was like a lusty winter, "frosty, yet kindly," observed three of his workmen at Mount Vernon, vainly endeavoring to raise a large stone, when, tired of witnessing their unsuccessful attempts, he put them aside, and, taking it in his iron-like grasp, lifted it to its place, remounted his horse and rode on.

Sherman as a Speech-Maker.

General Sherman made the speech of the occasion at the Bunker Hill celebration. Here are some of his points:

"I am almost sorry to hear this called Breed's Hill. It is Bunker Hill to me. [Applause.] I will swear it is Bunker Hill. [Tremendous applause.] It was Bunker Hill when I was a boy, and it is recorded on that monument in granite. If Mr. Breed is about here he had better go away. [Loud and continued applause and laughter.]

"Prescott was the hero here. [Applause.] He worked all night with spades and mattocks, and he worked to a purpose, and the next day he fought where he had worked the night before, and he is entitled to all the honor and glory. Old Putnam has enough beside [laughter and applause], and I love to refer to the old idea of Putnam's riding down some stairs, where they were I don't know, but somewhere. [Laughter.] I should say the glorious old soldier and his example are worthy of a dozen monuments like that, even if built of gold. [Great applause.]

"You may think you are a very good-looking crowd as you stand or sit here, but you won't compare with what we saw as we came down the magnificent avenue to-day—not at all. [Laughter and applause.] You would hardly fill one of those cross streets, and we passed a thousand of them." [Applause.]

Couldn't be Bluffed.

At an auction of household goods on Harrison avenue yesterday, when a woman had made a bid on an old bureau, worth about two dollars, a boy slipped around to another woman and whispered:

"You see that woman over there with a blue bow on?"

"Yes."

"Well, she says that no woman with a red nose can buy anything at this sale!"

The woman with the red nose pushed her way into the crowd and put the price of the bureau up to $12, and as it was knocked down to her she remarked:

"I may have a red nose, but no cross-eyed woman with a blue bow on can bluff me!"—Detroit Free Press.

A man rushed breathlessly into a lawyer's office in St. Paul, and, approaching the legal luminary, excitedly remarked: "A man has tied a hoop to my horse's tail! Can I do anything?" "Yes," replied the attorney; "go and untie it." That was good advice, and didn't cost the man but five dollars.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

A man who had saved the life of a daughter of a Boston millionaire received $2.50 from the grateful parent. He was so overcome with the munificent bounty that he paid out every cent of it to seventeen organ grinders to serenade his benefactor.

DARING BANK ROBBERY.

The Clever Game of Two Men and a Woman in Indianapolis.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette thus describes the recent daring robbery of $5,800 from the Central Bank at Indianapolis:

It had been storming during the entire morning, but about twelve o'clock the rain came down in such torrents that for half an hour the streets were nearly deserted. About this time a hack drove up to the bank, and the driver announced that a lady, who was inside, desired to see some one connected with the institution. The President, Mr. J. M. Ridenour, had been absent since ten o'clock, and the cashier, Mr. C. B. Cones, had just that moment passed out to dinner, leaving the assistant cashier, Mr. Israel Taylor, and a teller, Mr. Robert Parker, in charge of the bank. Mr. Taylor therefore stepped to the carriage, and the better to protect himself from the rain, took a seat in the hack beside the lady. She was a large, stout woman, dressed in a traveling suit, with her face closely veiled. As soon as the hack door was closed she stated that she desired to buy $3,000 worth of London exchange; that she had been advised by "Mr. Williams" to do business with the Central Bank, and she hoped he would accommodate her if possible. Mr. Taylor replied that his bank could not accommodate her, but that the exchange could be procured at Fletcher & Sharpe's Bank, two or three doors south on the same street; they were honest men and would treat her with respect. Mr. Taylor thinks he was in the hack about three minutes. Just as Mr. Taylor left the bank by the Pennsylvania street entrance a short, stoutly built fellow, with light hair, reddish mustache, and sandy complexion, entered it by the Market street door, and immediately inquired of Mr. Parker if Mr. Ridenour was in. The teller, who could see Mr. Ridenour's desk from where he was standing, replied that he was not but was expected every moment. "I'm sorry," replied the stranger, "but perhaps you can give me the desired information." He then stated that his sister, having recently sold some real estate, desired him to place the proceeds, $4,700, on deposit where it would be safe and draw a fair interest, and that he would be under obligations if he (Parker) would inform him of their rules, rates, etc. Having done so briefly, he desired Mr. Parker to figure out for him the interest on $4,700 for one year at five per cent. While this request was being complied with, Mr. Taylor came in, and the stranger, having obtained the desired information, quietly withdrew, thanking the teller for his courtesy. For a moment Taylor and Parker exchanged jokes at the expense of the "veiled woman in the hack," when the former, not seeing the usual pile of money on the counter, said, "Parker, where's your money?" For an instant Parker stood like one struck with paralysis, and then, as if comprehending the situation, exclaimed, "It's stolen, that man and woman are in the conspiracy!" He ran to the rear of the room, and discovered that the door leading into the President's room from Market street was open. Just then Mr. Ridenour entered, and in a moment it was plain to all where the money had gone. In leaving the bank ten minutes before, Cashier Cones had very carelessly neglected to lock the back or west entrance on Market street, and while the lady had "flirted" with Taylor in the carriage, and the red mustached stranger had engaged Parker, thief number three, having gained access through this door, had quietly slipped up in the rear of Parker, pocketed the money and as quietly withdrawn and escaped. After leav ; the bank the two men seem to have separated. One went directly to the hotel, where he settled their bill, and, calling for a hack, ordered the driver, Ben. Irving, to drive as rapidly as possible for the depot. On the way the other man was picked up, and after settling their hack fare, both were lost in the crowd. The thirty-five minutes past twelve train for Chicago, via the I., C. and L. train, was about leaving, and it was thought the trio departed on it.

Mrs. Tilton Swears She is Innocent.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Tilton has published an affidavit in the New York papers, in which she says:

I declare in the presence of Almighty God that I am absolutely innocent of all the offenses charged against me with relation to H. W. Beecher, except that only under the influence of my husband, which I found it impossible to resist so long as I persisted in living with him. I have made charges against Mr. Beecher which were false and entirely unfounded, and which my husband knew to be false, and I declare that I left my husband willingly and without solicitation or inducement from any person, especially without any solicitation or suggestion on the part of Mr. Beecher, but, so far as I have any knowledge or information of his views, contrary to the desire of Mr. Beecher, and I did so because I had found by sad experience that the only result of my long endeavor to serve my husband was that I kept myself in his power, and it was impossible for me, so long as I lived with him, to resist his demands, or to speak the truth when he required me to deny it.

(Signed) Elizabeth R. Tilton.

Sworn to before Judge McCue, of the City Court, Brooklyn.

One of those things which no fellow can be expected to find out is whether Colonel Prescott or General Putnam commanded the Americans at Bunker Hill—a problem which is profoundly agitating the heart of Massachusetts, and which promises to remain a vexed question to all future time. The latest contributions to the literature of this controversy are from the pens of Mr. George E. Ellis, who has enlisted (metaphorically) under the historical gray linen sack which Prescott wore on the battlefield, and Mr. Samuel Adams Drake, who vigorously asserts the claims of "Old Put."

The Pig.—The pig was thus written up by a Georgia boy: The pig is about as big as a sheep, only a pig's wool isn't good for making stockings of. Why is a pig like a tree? Because he roots; that is a conundrum. A pig washes himself in the mud. A pig has four legs, one under each corner of his body. They pickle pigs' feet, but not until after the pig is done using 'em. A pig squeals awful when it rains, also when you pull its tail. A pig has got a first-rate voice for squealing, and he grunts when he feels good. You can't make a whistle of a pig's tail, 'cos it is crooked.

It is said that more than one-half of the world's population lives in Asia.

AUBURN COURIER

T. G. MAYS, Publisher.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

Donald McKay, the Chief of the Warm Springs Indians, who exhibited such great bravery and skill in fighting the Modocs at the lava-beds, is now an inmate of the Boston poor-house.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad is making arrangements for an excursion of prominent persons of Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Ohio and Iowa over the line of that road to Grenada, Col., leaving July 24.

The foul fiend of the Chicago Times, in chronicling the visit of forty editors from the States to Montreal, Canada, maliciously remarks that "there were never so many quill-drivers in the Queen's dominion since the days of the draft!"

A Chicago man was recently captured by a band of marauding Indians near Fort Laramie, and as the only hope of saving his scalp he began talking about the greatness of Chicago, and with such singular effect that they immediately left him, one of the braves remarking as he did so, "Sheecago man heap much dam too big talker for Injun. Cheyenne lose um left ear stay listen longer."

At Buel, the Utah mining camp, the other day, a fellow known as "Frenchy," entered a restaurant and ordered some hot cakes. The cakes were brought out steaming hot, but "Frenchy" found a fly in one of them, and flung the dish on the floor. The proprietor, J. D. Andrews, rushed into an adjoining room, got a double-barreled shot-gun, and mortally wounded the fastidious customer.

In the class about to graduate at Yale there are nineteen students who acknowledge their profanity, nine swear occasionally, two use a simple "damn" when exasperated, one swears on principle, and one swears like a pirate. Sixty smoke and seventy-two say they never gamble. Thirty-two never drink anything, and two set themselves down as "reformed drunkards;" only five, the statisticians say, can be called "hard drinkers."

The French courts are very severe upon Americans who live by their wits, and fleece Frenchmen. Some time ago, Gen. John C. Fremont was condemned to a year or two's imprisonment for floating fraudulent bonds; Perkins, the link between America and the Bourbon family, now languishes in a Paris jail because he cheated his landlady; and one Firman, an American Spiritualist, who took "spirit photographs," has just been convicted of swindling, and sent up for six months.

When Dio Lewis promulgated his grand economic theory of life at fifty cents per week it was supposed that the world had at last touched bottom, and that the days of poverty and want were numbered. But now comes forward an aged Georgian to whom the economy of Lewis is the most reckless extravagance. Fifty cents a week! Why, the sum total of his expenditures for food is but ten dollars a year, and his health and strength are all that can be wished. There is not much variety about his diet—in fact it is plain corn bread and water and nothing more—but he thrives upon it.

Count Waldeck had a rival centenarian in Philadelphia, if all accounts be true. Thomas Taylor, who has just died in that city, is alleged to have reached the age of 103 years. He was present at the burial of Sir John Moore, and at Waterloo, where he was Lieutenant of the 88th Connaught Rangers, then under the command of Col. Hancock, afterward Lord Castlemaine. In 1852 he came to America, and was made, by the help of Bishop Odenheimer, sexton of the Church of the Ascension, in Philadelphia, a position which he held until seven years ago. Mr. Taylor had received medals from the British government for bravery.

This is how a victim says it feels: "Take a man and pin three or four large table cloths about him, fastened back with elastic and looped up with ribbon; drag all his own hair to the middle of his head and " " tight, and hairpin on about five pounds of other hair and a big bow of ribbon. Keep the front locks on pins all night, and let them tickle his eyes all day; pinch his waist into a corset, and give him gloves a size too small and shoes ditto, and a hat that will not stay on without a torturing elastic, and a frill to tickle his chin, and a little lace veil to blind his eyes whenever he goes out to walk, and he will know what a woman's dress is."

Rev. J. M. Gregory, President of the Illinois Industrial University, has a very poor opinion of the daily press. In a recent sermon delivered in Des Moines, Iowa, he uttered the most bitter and scathing philippics against the secular daily newspapers. Among other things he said: "Never read the daily papers. No man of culture or literary ambition, or who desired to improve his mind, would do it. He would as soon ask his servant to empty a pail of slop on his head every day from the chamber-window as to read the daily papers. They are made up of short paragraphs—mere flash. They have no great, leading thoughts in them—nothing to inspire the mind; and their influence is pernicious."

A smart-looking young man entered an Iowa newspaper office a few days ago, and addressing the editor, remarked, "My dear sir, I am the agent of Madame Tufingerjack, the distinguished Italian prima donna, who will shortly give a few last farewell ——." But here the infuriated editor interrupted him with his editorial paste pot, and followed up the interruption with the editorial shears and the editorial jack-knife, and as the young man disappeared down the stairway, the editorial waste-basket kept him company, and about half a ton of original poetry simmered down his back and settled in his hair, making him look like a traveling book store. At last accounts the agent of Madame Tufingerjack was hunting a locality where editors are not so eccentric.

Whether it is a natural result of champagne atmosphere, and strawberries all the year round, we know not, but it has become evident that there is something in the air, in the soil, or in the social conditions of San Francisco which inspires the women of that sea-girt peninsula with a perennial yearning to kill lawyers. The number of lawyers who have been shot, or shot at, by females in San Francisco, is really appalling. Crittenden, McDermott and Cobb are among the most prominent cases, but the calendar, indeed, abounds with them; and now behold an attempt to take off W. H. L. Barnes. Old women attack young lawyers, and young women murder old lawyers, and all sorts of women precipitate themselves upon all sorts of lawyers, as if there existed a secret and mysterious propensity in the female breast as (developed under the influence of San Francisco fogs and gales) to hit a lawyer's head whenever seen.

A lady did a very brave thing at Jersey City, recently, the issue of which was that a desperate highwayman got safely lodged in prison. The lady, a Mrs. Hayes, was about to take the Communipaw ferry for New York, when a man approached, hoisted the signal for the ferry, and took up Mrs. Hayes' satchel as if to carry it aboard for her. When he saw the ferry coming, he boldly started to run with the satchel. The lady seized him and began to scream, when the ruffian threw the satchel into the water, and then attempted to drown the woman. Before he had dragged her to the water, however, some railroad men, attracted by the shrieks of the victim, approached, and the would-be murderer took to his heels. The subsequent chase was exciting, but resulted in the desperado's capture. Such an instance of remarkable courage on the part of a lady, when only an accident could save her life, seems deserving of special mention.

The Prince of Wales, with prudent management and close economy, will probably be able to make both ends meet. This young man gets $200,000 a year on account of being the eldest son of his mother, and consequently Prince of Wales and heir apparent. His wife gets $50,000 a year as a small remuneration for being married to such a husband. On coming of age he found the accumulated revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall awaiting his orders. These amounted to about $5,000,000, which, if properly invested in consols, must give him the neat annual income of $200,000 from this source alone. Then the annual revenues of Cornwall—which go into his pocket—are $375,000. He is also Colonel of the Rifle Brigade and Tenth Hussars, which are worth together at least $10,000 per annum. Exclusive, then, of the Field Marshal's salary ($15,000), and not including the allowance of his wife, the Prince of Wales draws about $785,000 each year of his valuable and expensive existence.

The Yellowstone River—Its Navigability Demonstrated.

A messenger, just arrived at Bozeman from the Yellowstone Valley, brings the gratifying news that the steamer Josephine has reached the mouth of Clark's Fork, seventy-five miles above the mouth of the Big Horn, and ascended that stream a few miles. She met with no obstructions on the way—easily getting over Wolf Rapids—and will probably ascend the Yellowstone to the old site of the Crow Mission, or within thirty-five miles of Bozeman. All this seems well authenticated. Some white men from the Crow Mission took dinner on the boat at the mouth of the Clark's Fork. The officers of the Josephine are reported to have pronounced the Yellowstone a better river to navigate than the Upper Missouri.

The foregoing is fully confirmed by advices from Gen. Clapp, Agent of the Crows, who is in receipt of dispatches from the officers of the Josephine. As we go to press guns are being fired, and citizens are rejoicing and wild with enthusiasm. The boat was only eleven days from Bismarck, including time taken in ascending tributaries.—Bozeman (Montana) Times, June 15.

Tweed still pines in jail the want of that $3,000,000 bail.

INDIANA NEWS.

The best farm in Floyd county is the poor farm.

Clear Lake has a young lady who is six feet tall.

White county has issued but one dram-shop license.

Plymouth has adopted the chain-gang system for street-cleaning purposes.

Laporte is infested by a gang of professional burglars, and the citizens talk about lynch law.

Many convicts of the Southern Prison were moved to tears when Col. Shuler left the institution.

The Dawn of Hope, published by Mrs. Purdy, of South Bend, is now issued weekly in lieu of monthly.

The people of Washington county are to have a fair at Salem. A company is organizing with a capital of $10,000.

The temperance people of Spiceland order their paper stopped when they find an application for liquor license in it.

The police of Lafayette are not uniformed, and they trail each other around and think they have a soft thing on a burglar.

At the old settlers' picnic, south of Richmond, last week, twelve persons were present who have been in Wayne county sixty-five years.

The Indiana dentists held their annual session at Indianapolis last week. The meeting was well attended, and the tusk-menders had a good time generally.

The County Commissioners of Vanderburg county have levied a tax of 45 cents for county purposes, and 15 cents for a new Court-House. The total is 5 cents less than last year's county tax.

Sentence has been passed in the Circuit Court at Bloomington upon Cornelius A. and Charles N. Menshon, for the murder of John Moore, of Kentucky, in April, 1871. The penalty affixed is imprisonment for life.

A mob of about 225 men lynched a colored man named William Keemer, at Greenfield, on the night of the 25th ult. He was arrested in Rush county for attempting to commit a rape on a white lady, and removed from Rushville to Greenfield for fear of violence.

The Illinois papers are growing more and more bold, and now claim St. Mary's. Under the head of Edgar county, the Paris Gazette is made to say: "St. Mary's of the Woods will have its Commencement exercises on the 20th of this month."

The expenses of Fayette county for the last fiscal year, according to the report of Auditor Green, foot up $18,029. The expenses of the city of Connersville for the year ended April 12, 1875, according to the report of City Treasurer Rhodes, foot up $15,167.

Mrs. Stewart, whose apron floated in the breeze while the new flag of freedom unfurled itself over Washington crossing the Delaware, still lives, her home being at Liberty, this State. Her friends hope to see her standing defiance to the storms of five score and ten years at the Centennial, next summer.

A mammoth cave has been discovered at Bedford. A part recently went down a distance of seventy feet, and then an incline of thirty feet, and found themselves in a chamber eighty by one hundred feet in area and one hundred high. An entrance into another apartment was blocked up, but a thorough exploration is soon to be made.

The quarterly meeting of the Northwestern Indiana Medical Society was held at Kendallville last week, with a full attendance of members. During a heated debate one of the members remarked that he had refused, on one occasion, to attend a dying woman in poor circumstances, for which he was soundly belabored by other members.

Judge Perkins, of Indianapolis, has decided, in a case under the new liquor law, that there must be legal ground of unfitness of character in an applicant for license, and that unfitness must be legally proved. The County Commissioners have no power to determine for themselves, irrespective of legal proof of the unfitness, the question of applicant's character.

A game of billiards played at Lafayette on Thursday evening between Parker A. Byers, of Lafayette, and Jacob Garratt, of Indianapolis, for $300 and the championship of the State, French caroms, resulted in favor of Byers, he completely walking away from his opponent by 400 to 201. Byers' largest run was 63, and his average 10 30-37. Garratt's largest run was 25, and his average 5 32-37.

A few mornings ago Mrs. Kelly, of Fort Wayne, was engaged in her kitchen, with her daughter, aged 4, playing on the floor. Having occasion to go out for a few seconds, Mrs. Kelly was horrified to hear her child give vent to heartrending cries. Rushing in, she found that the child had pulled a kettle of boiling water off the stove on herself, scalding her terribly. The skin and flesh on her arms and face peeled off. There are no hopes of her recovery.

A terrible murder was committed a Indianapolis on Thursday by a negro, Jerry Monroe. His divorced wife has been associating with one Martin, a hod-carrier, who was the original cause of the divorce. This awakened Monroe's desire for vengeance, and frequently of late he has expressed a determination to kill her. Early on Thursday he went to her house and assaulted her with a monkey-wrench, beating her head into a shapeless mass, and she died in an hour. Monroe says that he loved the woman and was determined not to live without her; that he meant to kill her, and that he does not care to live longer.

The Indianapolis Journal thus informs the traveling public how to save money by the judicious use of local tickets: "It may seem singular, yet nevertheless it is true, a passenger can save thirty cents on a trip to Cincinnati each way by purchasing a local ticket from Indianapolis to Hamilton, and then from Hamilton to Cincinnati, or vice versa. It comes about in this way: The C., H. and I. Company has an agreement with the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette road to maintain a through rate between the cities of Indianapolis and Cincinnati of four dollars to each passenger transported, while the local rate over the C., H. and I. road is but three cents per mile, making the fare but $3.70, in case you are so wise as to travel on a local instead of a through rate. We doubt if there is a parallel case to this in the United States."

TRAGEDY IN FLORIDA.

Vengeance of a Deserted Wife—The Faithless Husband and His Paramour Hunted Down.

Late Florida papers contain an account of a peculiarly interesting tragedy, in which a Mr. Keech, long missing from Fond du Lac, Wis., enacts a very important part. He arrived in Florida about a year and a half ago. He purchased a farm in St. John's county, not far from Matanzas inlet. He was industrious and energetic and soon became noted as one of the most prosperous farmers in the country. Mr. Keech was accompanied by his wife, or by a woman supposed to be his wife. To all appearance, the two lived together in the utmost peace and tranquillity. Some time ago a man calling himself J. Smith Newton, and representing himself as a land prospector, made his appearance in the Keech neighborhood, and remained several days. He finally left, and neither Mr. Keech nor his neighbors thought any more of the stranger. A few days ago, however, he again made his appearance, and, after making some inquiries of a Mr. Williams, proceeded to Keech's house. It happened that Mr. Keech owed Mr. Williams a small sum of money, and had promised to call and pay it the next day after Newton made his appearance. That day, however, and the next passed, and still Mr. Keech did not appear to fulfill his promise. Knowing his neighbor to be a very prompt man in his business affairs, Mr. Williams at once proceeded to investigate the cause of the unusual delay. Mounting a horse, he rode to the farm of Keech, and there discovered that a most atrocious murder had been committed. Mrs. Keech was found in her room shot to death, while Mr. Keech lay near by, with his throat cut, a bullet hole in the back of his head, and his skull crushed in. Mr. Keech's neighbors immediately assembled and organized two pursuing parties—one under the command of Mr. Virgil Dupont and the other under the command of the Sheriff of St. John's county. They followed the murderer nearly fifty miles, sparing neither whip nor spur, and finally came up with him in Volusia county, where he was endeavoring to make his way on foot to the St. John's river. The confession of the murderer, which has been made, invests the crime with mysterious interest. His name is J. Smith Newton, and he was born in Buenos Ayres, of English parents. He says that his purpose was not robbery, but the hope of ultimate gain. He states that the woman known as Mrs. Ellen Keech was not the wife of Mr. Keech, but his mistress, and that the real Mrs. Keech is a resident of Fond du Lac, Wis. Keech deserted his real wife, took up with the murdered woman, and fled to Florida. The prisoner says he was employed by Mrs. Keech, who is his aunt, to follow her truant husband and murder him and his mistress. As a reward for his trouble, Newton was to receive a share of the estate of Mr. Keech, which is said to be worth about $30,000. An attempt was made by some of the citizens of Orange county to lynch Newton, and it was the fear of this that led him to confess his crime.

The Unconsidered Trifles.

Two farmers started business side by side, a short distance from the city of Philadelphia, many years ago. Both were industrious, temperate, and attentive to business; but yet it was evident one of the two was rapidly outstripping the other in accumulating wealth. To their neighbors, this seemed a problem that could not be solved, but late in life the more successful of the two explained the matter in a very simple way by stating that while he let nothing go to waste about his farm, his friend overlooked the many small items that ought to pay the family's bills at the store.

Meanness and economy are by no means synonymous terms; and our thrifty friend had been collecting his nuts of various kinds, persimmons, the few vegetables that his own family did not need, and in fact all the odds and ends that are so well known to the farmer's boys everywhere. These were regularly added to his stock of butter and eggs at very little cost and sold upon the market stall, while the prowling population of the neighborhood appropriated these little outside luxuries from the less provident farmer's domain. Both were successful in life, but the one who paid attention to the little items, was eminently so, and could gratify as he went along very many desires for the luxuries of life, that the other felt to be beyond his means. Take care of the cents and the dollars will take care of themselves, is true in farming.—Poor Richard.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Work.

Sweet wind, fair wind, where have you been?
"I've been sweeping the cobwebs out of the sky;
I've been grinding a grist in the mill hard by;
I've been laughing at work while others sigh;
Let those laugh who win!"

Sweet rain, soft rain, what are you doing?
"I'm urging the corn to fill out its cells;
I'm helping the lily to fashion its bells;
I'm swelling the torrent and brimming the wells;
Is that worth pursuing?"

Redbreast, redbreast, what have you done?
"I've been watching the nest where my fledglings lie;
I've sung them to sleep with a lullaby;
By-and-by I shall teach them to fly,
Up and away, every one!"

Honey-bee, honey-bee, where are you going?
"To fill my basket with precious pelf;
To toil for my neighbor as well as myself;
To find out the sweetest flower that grows,
Be it a thistle or be it a rose—
A secret worth knowing!"

Each content with the work to be done,
Ever the same from sun to sun;
Shall you and I be taught to work
By the bee and the bird, that scorn to shirk?

Wind and rain fulfilling His word!
Tell me, was ever a legend heard
Where the wind, commanded to blow, deferred;
Or the rain, that was bidden to fall, demurred?
—Mary N. Prescott.

Minor Farm Topics.

Soil loosened two feet deep dries out less in summer than soil one foot deep. Rich soil grows a tree larger in one year than a poor soil will in three. Underdrained soil is cooler in summer than soil not under-drained.

A writer in Scribner's Magazine says the farmers of Holland, as though eager to recognize the all-important aid they derive from their cows, frequently cover them in summer with linen blankets, tied in place, to guard them from the attacks of insects, and to shelter them from the frequent raw sea winds. It is usual, too, to set up in the pasture fields convenient scratching-poles against which the cattle may rub their sides and necks with evident advantage.

According to the returns of the Department of Agriculture, the direct losses of sheep-owners by the ravages of dogs reach a million dollars annually in wool and mutton, and the indirect loss in the repression of sheep husbandry, and the consequent waste of a large percentage of the grass crop, is still larger. Reports from 500 counties, representing about one-fourth of the sheep of the United States, show a total of 79,285 sheep killed during 1874; and even these returns are not complete. In some of the States the loss is from four to eleven per cent. of the whole value of the sheep kept.

Sick Animals.—Nearly all sick animals become so by improper feeding in the first place. Nine cases out of ten the digestion is wrong. Charcoal is the most effective and rapid corrective. It will cure in a majority of cases, if properly administered. An example of its use: The hired man came in with the intelligence that one of the finest cows was very sick, and a kind neighbor proposed the usual drugs and poisons. The owner being ill and unable to examine the cow, concluded that the trouble came from over-eating, and ordered a teacupful of pulverized charcoal given in water. It was mixed, placed in a junk bottle, the head held upward, and the water and charcoal poured downward. In five minutes improvement was visible, and in an hour the animal was in the pasture quietly eating grass. Another instance of equal success occurred with a young heifer which had become badly bloated by eating green apples after a hard wind. The bloat was so severe that the sides were almost as hard as a barrel. The old remedy—saleratus—was tried for correcting the acidity, but the attempt to put it down always caused coughing, and did little good. Half a teacupful of fresh powdered charcoal was given. In six hours all appearance of the bloat had gone, and the heifer was well.—Live Stock Journal.

Balky Horses.—A correspondent gives some of his experience in this line, as follows: In 1855 I was forced to go ten miles behind a horse said to be "somewhat inclined to balk." He went on nobly for two miles, but about the middle of the first hill stopped. I remained quiet, and wondered if that was the first inclination to balk. After a few minutes I said "go along," and pulled gently on the reins. His ears went back and all four feet settled upon the mother earth. I had heard of turning balky horses around to start them, and so commenced pulling on a rein to turn him, and said again "go along," and the beast turned willingly, and so I "swung him round the circle," and faced up hill again, and he went to the top and onward, until he again concluded to stop and reflect. I turned his head homeward, and encircled his thoughts fifteen times in that ten miles, and I beat him at his own tricks, and never struck the spirited animal a blow. He was driven back by another person who had heard my story with some ridicule, and said "he'd break that spirit in him or kill him." He, however, broke both thills, and led the horse six miles, for go ahead of the man he would not. Spirited horses seldom balk. Like spirited women, you cannot drive them, but you can "swing them round the circle," and thus keep on life's journey together—i. e., after a fashion.

About the House.

Brown Bread.—Take 2 cups sweet milk, 1 cup sour milk, 3 cups meal, 1 cup flour, ½ cup molasses, 1 teaspoonful soda. Bake two hours.

Raisin Cake.—Take 1 cup flour, 2 cups cream, 1 cup butter, 4 eggs, 1 pound of raisins, cloves, cinnamon, candied lemon cut fine, 1 teaspoon of soda. Stir well.

Molasses Sponge Cake.—Take 1 cup molasses, 1 spoonful melted butter, 2 eggs beaten very light, ½ cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoonful cream tartar, ½ teaspoonful soda, 1½ cups flour, a little ginger.

Dusting articles of steel, after they have been thoroughly cleaned, with unslacked lime, will prevent them from rust. The coils of piano wires thus sprinkled will keep from rust many years.

If the chimney glass of a lamp be cut with a diamond on the convex side, it will never crack, as the incision affords room for expansion produced by the heat, and the glass, after it is cool, returns to its original shape, with only a scratch visible where the cut is made.

When is the best hour to have dinner? Noon-time will not suit the business men, yet it is the best for the rest of the household, and there the difficulty lies. Children should eat their heartiest meal at midday, and then go to bed after an early supper. For adults, if the male members of the household can get home at that hour, 5 o'clock is a suitable time. Then there is the whole evening for digestion before going to bed.

All Sorts.

Iron is now rolled into sheets not much thicker than gold leaf.

A daughter of Gen. Schenck is to be married ere long to the son of a well-known London banker, so gossip has it.

In a recent libel suit—Samuel Gurnsey vs. the Utica (N. Y.) Herald—the plaintiff was awarded six cents damages.

Elisha Yarbrough, who was hung at Carrollton, Ga., a few days since, for the murder of W. H. Smith, was less than 16 years of age.

England is thinking of giving young Capt. Boyton a position in her navy, on account of his success in conquering the British Channel.

Her two sons, aged respectively 90 and 100 years, recently attended the funeral of their mother, aged 132 years, at Acapulco, Mexico.

The Rev. H. C. Trumbull, of Hartford, will remove to Philadelphia soon, where he will assume the editorship of the Sunday-School Times.

I don't think you were born to reform the world," said a married Boston lady to the new pastor, who was inclined to praise her beauty rather too warmly.

Madame Long, alias Howard, a fortune teller and astrologist, has been consigned to the Lancaster, Pa., jail for six months as a common swindler.

This hasn't been a good season for circuses thus far. Five different circuses have been dissolved, and the lion goeth about mourning for his leg 'o' mutton.

It is said that the Harper Brothers have published within the interval between 1817 and 1874, 2,820 works, 1,335 of which were original and 1,485 reprints.

For the race-horse Kangaroo the Marquis of Hastings once paid 12,000 guineas—say $63,000. This horse now goes in front of a London cab at sixpence a mile.

Signor Joseph Beretta, of Pavia, Italy, aged 88, whips his consort, Clementina, aged 77, for her girlish flirtations with other young bucks, which tear his soul with jealousy.

Dr. Maurin suggests keeping the wire or mosquito-bar blinds of sick rooms wetted. The effect on the atmosphere is to refresh, as though a storm had occurred.

More Americans than foreigners were committed to the city prison of Boston during the month of May, which has never occurred before since the establishment of the prison.

Mr. Wenjkow has laid before the Geographical Society of St. Petersburg a project for making the Asiatic steppes arable. He proposes to turn the waters of the Don upon them.

The blood of Warren and Putnam is united by the marriage of their descendants—in Warren Putnam Newcomb, a boy of 16 years of age, now in the Hartford (Conn.) High School.

J. C. Van Pelt, the great Ohio temperance orator, is still a fugitive from justice. There is a reward of $200 on his head, and his photograph is circulating about the police headquarters.

A Greek priest, dressed in a long, flowing robe and red skull cap, is preaching to the people of Brownsville and other towns in Tennessee. His preaching, like his garb, is fantastic.

There is a French court trying the question whether a functionary charged with a process of the law is justified in seizing a soldier's two wooden legs if he can get them at a moment when they are not worn.

The St. Louis Republican proves to its own satisfaction, in the course of a column and a half article on the subject, that the prayers of the people of that State didn't kill or drive out a single grasshopper.

Oregon papers are bragging because a vessel built in that State has made the quickest run of the season from San Francisco to Liverpool with a cargo of wheat, outstripping the crack ships of several nations.

A turtle has been caught in Georgia which measures 4 feet 11 inches by 2 feet 10 inches, depth of hold 1 foot 8 inches, weight 300 pounds. It is to be sent to New York to line the aldermanic stomach of that corporation.

The 6th of August being the centenary of the birth of Daniel O'Connell, the Irish patriot, his admirers in and about Baltimore purpose celebrating it with appropriate ceremonies. Archbishop Bayley has entered warmly into the preparation.

Rev. Dr. Ives, of New York, has been called upon to dedicate and "beg for" nine hundred churches within about twenty years, and however large the sum needed to free the society from indebtedness, has never once left the pulpit until it was subscribed.

The Niagara hackman has once more come to the surface. He drove a young couple to a clergyman's house, officiated as "best man" for the bridegroom, drove the pair back to their hotel, and then called upon the clergyman to divide the fee with him.

The conductor of one of the grammar schools of Nashua, N. H., has discovered a useful method of teaching grammar and rhetoric. The pupils are awarded two marks for every error found in a local newspaper. Some of the brighter pupils manage to get forty or fifty marks a day in going over one of the papers.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, JULY, 9, 1875

A remnant of the glacial period has been found in Colorado. An enormous bed of ice has been found, said to be 60,000 years old. If age acts on ice as it does on wine, it must be good.

By the judicious exercise of the veto power Gov. Tilden of New York has saved the taxpayers of that State the snug little sum of $2,711,534. These Democratic Governors have strange ideas about reform.

Mortimer Thompson, better known to the reading public as "Philander Doesticks, died in New York Friday last,Thompson was one of the earlist of that class of humorous writers which have,since his day, become so numerous Thompson, like his class, soon died out the fickle public transfering there applause to each succeeding writer in his line, Artemus Ward eclipsed him and a hundred others helped to cover him up.

The Brooklyn jurors have received their per diem at the rate of two dollars per day, but claim five extra. As that matter is in the hands of the supervisors of Kings county, who are reputed of Mr. Beecher, their prospects for securing their claims are not brilliant. They should have struck for higher wages long ago.

Senator Morton is announced to stump Ohio this fall. He stumped Ohio two years ago, spoke of our great prosperity, and the panic came a few weeks after. If the Republicans of Ohio have any regard for the welfare of the country, they will keep Morton out of the state, as some dire calamity is sure to follow.

Sam Bard could only be induced to leave the Atlanta post-office, from which he had been ordered by the department, when his bondsmen abandoned him, and instructed the money order clerk not to notice him. Then Sam resigned and disbanded the Third Term Club. He contemplates the establishment on an anti third term newspaper.

Mr. Beecher remarked at his last Friday night prayermeeting that he didn't "propose to be put down in any way except as wheat is stamped into ground, and comes up a hundred fold"

We hope he won't be stamped, We don't wan't no hundred fold of this kind of cattle. Multiplication in Beecher's case is not desirably to the cause of christianity. Instead of putting him down, let him be put up.

There was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth in Washington when Treasurer New entered upon his official duties. His first public service was to dispense with surplus clerks, retaining the most servicable. As many of those discharged were the favorite females of congressmen, it does not require a very vivid imagination to see a storm cloud gathering above the political horizon, which may burst over the head of the business-like treasuror at any moment.

It is rather amusing to see what deep solicitude the Republican papers have for Senator Thurman, of Ohio They have taken great pains to announce his political death, and they apparently mourn over his premature demise. It may turn out, after all that Thurman is not dead. He may become the candidate of the people in the coming campaign. If so, will these Republican mourners over his supposed death, rejoice, or will they, like their cohorts of old, cry out, "Crucify him! crucify him!" We shall see.

The Chicago Times and a few small fry papers outside of the State of Ohio don't like the financial plank in the Ohio Democratic platform. What a pity, that Ohio did not make one to suit these growlers, who have never been of much use to the party anywhere. We believe the Ohio Democracy have about as good an idea of what the people in the state wants, as the Chicago Times, and its like. When the Democracy of Ohio or any other state stands firm for the rights of the mass of the people, then, and not till then, will victory perch upon banners. The great question of Democracy or Republicanism for years to come will be decided by Ohio this fall and instead of papers pretending to be Democratic, barking and growling, let them do what they can for our great principles, by placing the party in power, where in can work out the salvation of the country.

Jesse Pomerey, the Boston boy fiend, stands a possible chance to swing for his numerous crimes. For awhile it seemed likely that the mawkish sentiment which took the shape of petitions signed by tender-hearted woman might prevail, and there was a close tussel in the council of state, the governor himself voting for commutation But there were in that council a few descendants of the pilgrim fathers, and they decided the question the other way. So Jesse is to swing, but when? It rests with the governor to name the day, which he probably won't do.

A Republican paper spoke of the wealth and other substantial advantages conferred upon the South by the reconstruction measures of the Republican party. Its the first time we ever heard of an enormous state debt being a substantial advantage. The matter above referred to, must certainly have reference to the carpet bag populations, most of whom have realized handsome fortunes in a few years, while the people have been beggared and oppressed with enormous taxes. These Republican papers should be more definite, however, as to what they mean, as some of their readers might construe their assertions literally which is evidently the intention of the writers thereof,

Attorney-Gen. Pierrepont is making preparations for a raid on the dispensers of "crooked" justice in the south He is satisfied at last that the carpet baggers there, who have monopolized all the offices, are turning their patronage to pretty good account, and he proposes to clean out the nests. This will be a grand and glorious undertaking, and one can only marvel that it was not done years ago. The people of the south have long sent up to Washington an exceeding bitter cry because of the outrages and persecutions to which they have constantly been subjected, but no answer has been returned except perhaps a squad of soldiers to make the recalcitrants know their places. This has gone on until it cannot and will not be borne any longer, and the administration is cunning enough to know that another track must be taken. And now the south is to have justice—eleventh hour justice, but still better than none.

The Fort Wayne Sentinel says: The California democrats have just held state convention, and wonderful to relate. they declared in favor of gold and silver as the only possible circulating medium. Now we call upon the Cincinnati Enquirer to explain upon its hyothesis that gold is entirely unfit for purposes of money. How it happens that the California democrats after several years experience in handling the glittering trash, are so silly as to prefer it to that best money the world ever saw, the inconvertible, irredeemable. elastic, fluctuating green rag called the trersury note. Democrats with no experience in the bad character of gold might easily have made this mistake, but when men who see and handle gold daily, and are consequently quite alive to its manifold phases of unfitness for use as a circulating medium, still prefer it to paper, we think the phenomon requires an explanation.

Probably the agricultural college at Amherst, Massachusetts, comes about as near the idea of a farm school as any of the institutions that grew out of the congressional provision for that class of schools. It is announced that Farmer Dillon, who has charge of the practical operations in farming, is now making the farm pay its own way and something more instead of requiring an appropriation from the state to keep up the expenses of his department. The college is raising 16 acres of corn, five acres of oats, 18 acres of potatoes, four acres of rye, two of vines one of beets, and 123 acres in grass. They keep seven head of horses, 42 head of cattle, and thus are enabled to give off quite an aroma of the farm yard blended with the air of learning which prevades the place. This is an encouraging note for Purdue, the farm college of Hoosierdom. Farmer Burke will please make a note of the fact that his cotemporary in Massachusetts is making his farm show a profit in spite of the learned professors. Such a bright example is worthy of the most exalted efforts to imitate.

The American team of sharpshooters won a grand victory over the Irish team in Ireland the other day, though why they call them teams we don't know.

The Pioneer

HARDWARE

Emporium!

Now full to overflowing with an Immense stock of

HEAVY AND SHELF

Hardware, Cutlery, Tin Ware.

I would call special attention to my depapt ment of

HARDWARE,
FURNISHING &
BUIDERS STOCK,

in which will be found everything at the very

LOWEST PRICES,

Such as:—

OILS, PAINTS,
GLASS,
NAILS,
SASH.
DOORS, ETC

—A FIST-CLASS—

Tin-Shop,

in connection with the Hardware Store, with a skillful foreman. All kinds of Tin-ware manufactured and repaired on short notice.

JOHN L. DAVIS,

FIRE! FIRE!

DOWN BELOW

GET YOUR THIN

CLOTHING

While our Stock IS COMPLETE!

Summer Pants	50c
" Coats	75c
" Suits	$1.25

All other goods as low

We have busted the High Priced Clothing Ring, and you all know it

SAM, PETE & MAX
Star Clothing House
5 Main & 33 Cal.-Sts.,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

FOR SALE.

Four Business Lots,

Adjoining the Court House square, the most desirable and the only ones similarly located in Auburn each lot 22x80 feet.

Those wishing to purchase the best in the market should apply soon either to A. J. LITTLE Attorney at Law, or THOMAS BALDOCK. Terms reasonable. Also.

A HOUSE and LOT

adjoining the above, The house is new containing five rooms, with closets convenient and pleasantly located will be sold at a

BARGAIN

Applyasabove.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Set:
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, September Term, 1875.

Mary A. B. Fee, Adm'x of the estate of John Fee
vs.
William Hyler
Sophia Hyler,
Henry Funk,
Lucinda Funk,
} Complaint No. 106.

Now comes the plaintiff, by A. F. Pinchin, her attorney, and files her complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendants, William Hyler and Sopha Hyler are not residents of the state of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb County Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court house in Auburn. in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 15th. day of June, 1875.
J. R. LANNING Clerk.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervou Debility, Premature, Decay and all the effects of youthful indiscription will for the sake of suffering humanity send free to all who need it, and receipt and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Suffers wishing t profit by the advertiser's experience can do so b ddressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDE Ceder St. New York.

Fruit House Prices.

Now for the 4th of July! It Will Soon be Here

And for the occasion we have laid in a large supply of Fireworks, Torpedoes, Fire Crackers and everything you can think of, to celebrate the day. All amounts of $5 we discount 10 per cent; of $2 and upwards we discount 20 per cent. We make this inducement to private parties who form clubs to celebrate; also to those who buy to call again. This is only on Fireworks and Flags; the Fire-crackers and Torpedoes are net prices. CALL AND SEE US, you Merchants, and others from a distance and we will

Beat Chicago and Cincinnati,

AT LEAST 10 PER CENT ON PRICES.

Fire Crackers, per box,	$2 50	Torpedoes, per thousand	25c
Per pack	07	Per pack	01

Then we have Serpents, Flags, Roman Candles, Tri-colored, Bengal Lights, Silver Flower Candles, Flying Pigeons, Sky Rockets, Flower Potts, Grasshoppers, Blue lights, Triangles, Radiators, Pin Wheels, Scroll Wheels, Triolettes, Floral Bumbshells, Ladies' Union Fans, Percussion Pistols. American Flags, Balloons, Pulling Crackers, Chinese Bamboo Lanterns, Chinese Balloons, Chinese Lanterns and su forth.

TEAS! TEAS! TEAS!

No Middle Men with us, either on Teas, Coffees, or Sugars. With all the complaints of dull times, our Tea trade has doubled within the last three years. No secret in it—simply purchasing of the Importers and selling direct to the consumer, thereby saving to our customers the profits of the Speculator, Jobber and Wholesale Grocer, which is at least 10 to 20 cents on each dollar,

Young Hyson,	50, 60, 90, $1, 00, best 1 10	Oolong	30, 60; best 95
Gunpowder	60, 1 00; best 1 10	Uncolored Japan,	50, 60; best 90
Imperial,	60, 90; best

SUGARS! SUGARS!
WHITE, YELLOW AND BROWN.

Coffee A,	10½c	N. O. Genuine,	9c
Coffee B,	9½c	Good Brown	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	20 and 27c
Second Best Rio,	22c

CANNED FRUITS.
At Prices never Before Heard of.

Peaches per can	20c	Damsons per can,	20c
Blackberries per can,		Green Gages per can,
Tomatoes per can,	10 c	Strawberries per can,
Corn per can,	10 c

Wines and Liquors.
Still a few Gallons Left.

Sherry and Port per gallon,	$1 50 and 2 00	Old '76 for medical use	$3 00
Sherry and Port in bottles,		Port Wine per gallon	1 50 and 2 00
California Angelica and Sweet Muscatelle, per gallon,	1 50 2 00	California wine per gallon	1 50 and 2 00
New England Rum, per gallon,	best 2 00	Sweet Cawba Wine per gallon	1 25
Holland Gin, Old Tom,	1 50 and 2 50

SYRUPS, SYRUPS.

Best Sugar, Loaf, per gallon,		Extra Golden per gallon,	60
White Dripps, per gallon,	85 $1 00	New Orleans per gallon,	70c to 1 00
Silver Dripps per gallon,	75	Cuba Molasses per gallon,

CANDIES! CANDIES!
Stick, French and American.

Best Stick per pound	18c	Bon Bons	30c
French Mixed	25c	Japanese Cocoa Nut	25c

☞ We have a hundred other different kinds of candies ☜

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Fish and Neats Foot Oil per gallon,	1 00	Head Light Oil per gallon,	25c
Coal and Rose Oil per gallon,	20c	Machine Oil per gallon,	50c

FISH, FISH, FISH, FISH,

A Large Assortmen of both		Salt Water and Lake Fish
No. 1 White Fish ½ bbl	6 00	No. 1 Mackeral in Kits	1 25
No. 2 do do	5 00	No. 1 Famils in Kits
No. 1 Lake Shad ½ bbl.		George's Bank Codfish per pound
No. 1 Pickeral ½ bbl		Extra Mess Mackeral " "	1 50 and 1 75
White Fish in kits No. 1	1 25	Herrings each	1c
White Fish family No. 2	1 00	Pickeral and Trout ½ bbl	5 50

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

The duty of 4c cents per pound goes on tobacco March 1st. This thing we anticipated, and in consequence we have a large stock ahead, so that our customers, as long as the present stock lasts, shall have goods at the old price.

Choice Plug, Five Bros. per pound		Fine Cut	60, 80, and 90c
Good Richmond Navy per pound	50c	Shorts	40c
Ladies Twist, very fine	65c	Smoking	35c best 40c
Long John Tens	50c

25 Cents on the Dollar Saved at
THE FRUIT HOUSE

THE
NEW YORK STORE

We Keep Our Trade

ACTIVE & LIVELY

Notwithstand the general complaint of dull trade and hard times, from the fact that we are daily in receipt of fresh, attractive goods, which we offer to our patrons at as low prices as are named by any house in the western country.

EXAMINE

Bargains in Suit Department, Bargains in Lace Shawls, Bargains in Lace Jackets

Bargains in Black Grenadines, Bargains in Stripe Grenadines, Bargains in Summer Silks

Bargains in Black Silks, Bargains in Thin Dress Goods, Bargains in Suiting Goods.

New Parasols,

New Kid Gloves. New Embroideries. New Fancy Ties. New White Goods. New Hosiery. New Fancy Goods. New Hamberg Net. New Rufflings, Etc., Etc,

CARPET DEPARTMENT.

Complete in every respect, and prices much lower than they will probably be after the first of August.

ROOT & COMPANY,
46 and 48 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne,
☞ Opposite the Court House. ☜

STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1839.

GEO. DeWALD & CO.

Dry Goods & Notions.

Black Silks & Fine Dress Goods a Specialty.

We can make it to the interests of every person to trade with us. We buy for CASH and sell for CASH, keep the best goods, and sell at one price

ALSO AGENTS FOR THE

"Domestic" PATERNS.

The Best in Use. Send for a Catalogue.

Geo DeWald & Co
No. 1 Columbia Street
Fort Wayne Ind,

SAW MILL FOR THE PEOPLE.

THIS patent portable Mulay Saw Mill is adapted to any locality, will saw any kind of logs, and will do as much work (power and hands being considered) as the best Circular Mills. Its frame, head-blocks, and working parts are of the most substantial and permanent kind, being made entirely of iron and steel. It is usually set up and started in from one to two days time. It is generally driven by threshing engines of not exceeding ten horse power. It cuts from 2000 to 4000 feet of inch lumber per day. The Mill and Engine may conveniently be operated by two men. Send for circular.

CHANDLER & TAYLOR.
Indianapolis, Indiana

TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE.

"CHOOSE YOUR VOCATION AND HONOR IT."

The Independent Telegraph Institute, located in Auburn Dekalb Co. Ind., are offering the best opportunity of learning Telegraphy Railroad business and Phonographical writing ever offered to the public. Tuition very low and good boarding furnished Students for $3.50 to $3.75 per week, and situations furnished students as soon as they are capable of taking charge of a Telegraph office. Wages from $40 to $100 dollars per month. For further information address, Independent Telegraph Institute, Lock Box 76, Auburn Indiana.

OFFICERS.
J. E. SHIREVE, Superintendent.
Prof. S.S. Shaner Principal Instructor R R. Def't.
Dr. L. Sanders Instructor Phonographical Witer.

A NEW PLACE

TO GET A

Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with M. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.

THE FIRST

National Bank

OF AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of th U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Colleciions made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:

J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:

JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

April 29, 1875.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

AUBURN MARKETS.

CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Wheat—White	$1.10	Hogs—live	$6.00
Amber—red	1.05	Hogs—dressed	.....
Rye	75	Turkeys—live	.08
Oats	.55	Chickens—live	.07
Corn	@ 65	Butter	.15
Potatoes	@1.25	Lard	.12
Flax Seed	1.60	Eggs	12
Clover Seed	6.50	Tallow	.05
Wool	45 @ .60	Timothy Hay	12.00

THE patrons of husbandry have organized a corporative store in Whitley county.

S. C. SWINEFORD returned last Saturday from a pleasant trip through the Northwest.

WRONGS are often forgiven, but contempt never is. Our pride remembers it forever.

THE happiest man is the benevolent one; for he owns stock in the happiness of all mankind.

BARNUM'S hipodrome at Fort Wayne yesterday was an immense affair, and the crowd was very large.

P. B. SHIDLER, Most Worthy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F. of this State was in town yesterday.

MR. COWAN, of Garrett, fell while walking over the rickety sidewalk on 7th street, and hurt himself very badly.

BUY five dollars worth of goods at Stamet's and get a ticket to John Robinson's Great World's Exposition.

MRS. THOMPSON, of Wabash, Ind., oldest daughter of Mr. Yandes, is visiting her parents and friends in the city.

JOHN EHLERS will move into his new store this week. It is a handsome room, finely finished, and will make a most tasty drug store.

ANY person purchasing five dollars worth of goods at Harry Stamet's will receive a ticket to John Robinson's Great World's Exposition.

CHICAGO has had a scandal, Indianapolis has two. St. Louis and Cincinnati will have to be up and doing or they will be left behind.

IF people have no vices but their own few would have so many as they now have. Vices of adoption are, of all others the most disgraceful and unpardonable.

THERE are hopeful signs that public sentiment will in time grow strong and correct enough to put an end to the running at large of cows in the streets of Auburn.

INK may be taken out of a carpet by a little dissolved oxalic acid or salt of sorrel rubbed on with flannel, and afterward washed off with cold water; then rub on some hartshorn.

THE receipts from sale of tickets to Colfax's lectures on Lincoln amounted to about $200. Deducting all expenses the Odd Fellows cleared nearly $50. —Crown Point Register.

THE Angola Republican says Sheriff Meese, of DeKalb county, was in town last Wednesday, in search of house thieves who made a descent on Auburn, Monday evening, June 21st.

SIN against light and knowledge is most exceeding sinful; but the summit of iniquity is to take a diabolical pleasure in the wickedness of others, and to love sin for its own sake.

GUM-ARABIC mucilage may be prevented from molding or fermenting by the addition of a fow drops of sulphuric acid, or better still, of a small portion of quinine.

THREE bushels of clean sand, mingled with half a bushel of good lime and half bushel of cement, makes an excellent mortar, which is not liable to be dislodged by storms.

IN painting do not apply a succeeding coat before the previous one is dry. Do not use a lighter color over a darker one nor add dryers long before useing. Use as little dryer as will do the work.

THE potatoe bugs did not put in an appearance this year quite as soon as has been their custom; but they will probably make up by an energetic prosecution of the campaign what they lost by getting a late start.

THE Editorial Convention is to meet at Plymouth on the 15th, being Thursday. We wonder why Thursday was selected, a day on which many papers are issued. If we are not present this will account for it.

A NEBRASKA woman has papered her cabin with the report of the Beecher trial; and now she makes washing day shorter, and causes time to fly while at her knitting, by perusing the cheerful pages on the wall.

THE quarrel and bickering among the Fort Wayne M. D's. continues to the disgust of every reader of Fort Wayne newspapers.—Col. City Post.

We know of another quarrel that must be disgusting nearly as many readers.

PROBABLY no characteristic of the female mind is better developed than the docility with which women accept the fashions of the day. Be they beautiful or hideous, becoming or unbecoming, comfortable or torturing, they are the fashion and must be worn.

THE contract for the building of a new brick school house has been awarded Griffith & McCord recently of Fort Wayne. Their well known ability as contractors and builders is a sufficient guarantee of a good job.

THE crop reports from all parts of the West continue to be conflicting. From some localities the reports are highly favorable and from others the indications are bad. The situation seems to be badly mixed, but it seems rather certain that the yield throughout the entire country will be below the usual average.

MOORE'S STATION, between this place and Butler on the Eel River road has been favored with a postoffice. This point may soon develope into a nice little town. If any of our subscribers desire their papers sent there, we will do so when so directed.

A GENTLEMAN whose nose has become distinctly colored with the red wine he was wont to imbibe, said one day to his little son at the table: "You must eat bread, my son; bread makes your cheeks red." The little boy replied: "Father what lots of bread you must have snuffed up!"

CHOLERA in poultry may be lessened, and even cured, by fat meat rolled in pulverized ginger being given or pushed down three times a day, for two days—no water allowed. The third day allow lime water or cooked or scalded meal, mixed with red pepper tea or black pepper in the food. So says an exchange.

AL. WELLS is now proprietor of the ice cream parlors, over the postoffice lately owned by the Leasure Bros. He makes a splendid article, and it will be found a great, but inexpensive luxury this oppressively hot weather. Try a dish and astonish your stomach with something good.

TOM MAYS is said to have abandoned the turf in disgust; meanwhile White Stocking paces gaily in front of a milk wagon in the quiet village of Auburn. —[Ft. Wayne Sentinel.

Mistake, Sam. Its a corn plow. No milk in our'n.

THEY are still hammering away at that investigation of McIntyre, supeirintendent of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum. Miss Fawkner, the mute who was seduced, puts in pretty strong testimony against her seducer, Valentine. We believe the parties charged are even more guilty than Beecher.

ONE of the cleverest gentlemen in town gave us two dollars the other day, which we thought was to be credited on subscription. But he said no. And now what we have done to merit two dollars voluntarily paid without charge being made, is what bothers us.

MAJ. CASEBEER, Judge Lewis, Col. Ralston, Prof. Snyder and ourself have a new shot gun of the most improved pattern. There is no security for game in this section of the country, and we advise common humanity in general to give the above party a wide berth when you see them on the war path.

WE have received the first number of the Fort Wayne Gazette, under the new management of Williams & Hosler. It looks bright and attractive already, and for the sake of the respect we have for the new firm, we hope they will be able to make it a good investment. Were its political tone, from our stand, a healthful one, we could heartily wish it success in every respect.

Calico 6c a yard
Nice lot of Nobby Hats. Call and see us boys.
To close a large lot of dress goods at less than cost.
MILLER & CASEBEER.

FORT WAYNE should have a monument to Gen. Wayne. It's a burning shame for that beautiful flourishing city, bearing the name of the great general, to pass his services by with such silent contempt. We suggest an equestrian statue, to be paid for by the citizens.

THE REASON WHY MILLER & CASEBEER SELLS MORE GOODS THAN ANY TWO STORES IN AUBURN, IND.

They do not use any decoy ducks. stool pigeons or show tickets, to gull the public. But shall throw their entire stock of dry goods on the market at wholesale prices, we invite comparison and defy campetition.

WE notice some nice specimens of silver ore on exhibition at Abrights, and a fine silver brick, worth $734.40 in coin, $871.08 in currency at the bank, all the property of our friend J. Wall Dawson, of Fort Wayne. Mr. D. has been in the mining business several years in Colorado, and we hope he has struck a good lead that will pan out well.

Now is the time to buy your goods cheap and go to Robinson's show free. To every purchaser of five dollars worth of millinery goods, dry goods, or notions, we will present a free ticket to John Robinson's Great World's Exposition, which will exhibit at Auburn July 27th, 1875. H. H. STAMETS.
Seventh st., Ensley's Block.

SEVERAL of our young men went out to a lake north of town to bathe. In passing from the shore to the center of the lake the canoe was capsized, and one of the crew could not swim. At first he called for his lord-a-massy, and everybody else, but they failed to come to his relief. He finally struck out for the shore, and is now one of the most expert swimmers in the county. It was a Cool proceeding.

WE notice a bitter personal fight going on between Senator Bunyan of Kendallville, and Myers, of the Sentinel. A newspaper is not the place for such bitter personalities, and the less we have of them, the better it will be for all parties concerned.—[Indianian.

There would be nothing for Meyers to do, if the above suggestion were to be followed. He insists upon and must have a chance to clean a fellow out now and then, and Kendalville seems to furnish him plenty of material.

SI LOCK opened out his new billiard hall on ninth street in splendid shape last Monday. He has four most beautiful tables from the popular house of Brunswick & Co., Chicago. Tables, balls, cues and everything new, a game of billiards don't go so bad. No gambling permitted. Si has a fine room, where no minors will be permitted to enter, if he knows it. A billiard hall like this, conducted as Si will run it, cannot fail to be a good investment.

BAD as last year was for business, the net result of railroad operations is an improvement over the preceeding year. Poor's Manual, recently published, shows that the gross earnings of all the roads in the country were $6,000,000 greater than in 1873, and the net earnings about $6,000,000 greater also—the total savings being $12,000,000. What is surprising is the large increase in travel. The freight receipts were $9-500,000 less than in 1873, but the passenger receipts were $3,500,000 greater.

THE dramatic entertainment given at the hall last Saturday night, deserved a larger audience, though it can hardly be expected that people will come out during as heavy a rain storm as occurred that evening. Mr. Hight in his rendition of the maniac was very good. The play was hardly suited for an Auburn audience. Our people don't go much on tragedy. Miss Stella Yandes did splendidly, but Ola got through with her part very ordinarily. Mr. Marvin made a decided hit in D'Arville, and Mr. Knoder as a comedian is good. Harry Hight also done well. The play was repeated Monday night to not a very large audience.

LICENSES.—The following licenses were issued by the County Clerk, during last June: James W. Sherod and Sarah M. Palmer; Nathan B. Moore and Edith A. Hunt; Henry Zentz and Marietta A. Rose; A. J. Lisetor and Eliza J. Swihart; John G. Miller and Mary E. Smith; Levi Wildisin and Sarah J. Hall; John N. Rickel and Libbie Ketchum; J. S. Dull and Fanny Strow; John Pifer and Sarah Boyer; Benj. F. Firestone and Chloe Palmerton; Oscar P. Emery and Margret E. Maxwell; Samuel Langloy and Marthy Spittz; Samuel Stroh and Emma Mull; J. I. Graves and Fremice Wells.

WE refrained from saying much about the excursion to Jackson, from the fact there was no one particularly to blame for the unpleasantness resulting therefrom. In the first place no one expected such an outporing of the people, and in the next place no railroad could have made better provision for so unexpected a number in so short a time. Of course, in the jam and excitement numerous reports were circulated. One was that the committe had offered fifty dollars for another engine, and another was that the railroad refused to furnish it. Neither of them were true. The Committee did all in their power, so did the railroad. The best way is to pocket any inconvenience you suffered and find consolation in the fact that the church realized a handsome sum, and nobody was hurt.

COURIER two dollars per annum.

THE brick work on the jail, put up a few weeks ago, was torn down last week, new material secured by the contractors and now the work goes bravely on. We don't believe there will be another jail in the State that will excel the one now being constructed here, either in point of beauty, or the substantial character of the building. The sub contractors for the brick work are alone responsible for the extra labor of tearing down the work condemned by the architect, the principal contractors, Messrs. Crane, Duncan & Co., holding them good for all work not done according to specifications.

THE Scientific American says, to make perpetual paste—which will remain sweet for a year—dissolve a teaspoonful of alum in a quart of water, to which add sufficient flour to make a thick cream. Stir in half a teaspoonful of powdered resin and half a dozen cloves, to give a pleasant odor. Have on the fire a teacup of boiling water, pour the flour mixture into it, stiring well at the time. In a few minutes it will be of the consistency of mush. Pour it into an earthen vessel, let it cool, lay a cover on, and put it in a cool place. When needed for use, take out a portion and soften it with warm water.

A NUMBER of the favorite theories of fruit-growers have been scattered to the winds by the result of this year. In previous years whenever a sharp frost occurred at the time the peach trees were blooming it was always concluded that the fruit was killed. That theory failed to work this season, however, because while the peach trees were in bloom in lower Delaware and Maryland, there were not only severe hard frosts, but hard freezing and thick ice formed, and yet there will be an enormous crop in all sections of the Peninsula. Six or eight, and even ten million baskets are talked of.

OUR neighbor Hicksville is picking up in those points that go to make a town enterprising. The other week an infancide was recorded, and now comes a suicide. Mrs. Wm. Maxwell hung herself, Tuesday of last week in the following way, as we learn from the Independent:

On Tuesday she arose and went as usual about her household duties. The churning was done and Mr. Maxwell said he would go to town and get some ice for the butter. She objected to him going at first but finally told him to go and to hurry back. He went as quickly as he could but on returning could see nothing of her. He made a hasty search for her below and then went up stairs, where he found her with the rope around her neck dead. The upper rooms not being plastered she had thrown a rope around a brace on the rafters, and tying it around her neck leaned over and literally chocked herself to death, with her feet resting on the floor which she could have touched with her knees had she not leaned over. She was about fifty-six years of age, the fifth wife of Mr. Maxwell.

THEY don't hang criminals in Iowa, because the march of ideas has "struck in" in that belt of grasshopper pasture, but they are not particular as to the comfort of witnesses. Three years ago a man and woman living in Des Moines were charged with murder, and three witnesses who couldn't give bail for their apppearance, were put in jail, where they have remained ever since. Two of these miserable witnesses married in their prison cell, and a child has been born unto them. All this in highly civilized Iowa. Three years in a prison for simply knowing a man who killed another may be one of the improvements in dealing out justice to be a feature of the future, but we hope not. Let us hope at least that the van of progress may stop in Iowa, and stay there permanently. We of benigned hoosierdom can put up with the old fashioned relic of barbarism, the writ of habeas corpus.

THIS style of pulling everything back to the last degree of tightness, until a young lady, "ala mode," looks as though she had just passed through a first-class hurricane and everything had scudded to the rear to be out of harm's way, and when even her eyebrows seem trying to meet at the back of her head, this style, we say, may have its beauties, its gracefulness and even its modesty, but we fail to see it. We need, to help or dull, old-fogy vision, a pair of doubled-back-action eye-glasses, with all the patent improvements and the softening, flattering effects, straight from the hands of Madame Folly, presiding genius of Fashion Temple, situated on extravagance avenue, which lies Ruin. But we are getting allegorical and prosy, and it is all owing to our inability to grapple with this mighty subject.

One of the sad sights in this life is to see a yong and beautiful girl, gotten up in all the agony of contracted skirts, trying to move graceful through the "Glide Waltz," or to behold the dreadful look of uncertainty as to whether she will ever regain her perpendicular when she slowly settles back in the salute What matters it to the young girls of the period of the source from which this rediculous fashion emanates is corrupt? They still carry it to such extremes that their dear old grandmothers ought to turn in their graves and blush for them.

We end our cyncial protest by holding both hands up in favor of a woman's dress reform, wherein health, ease, and beauty of outline and harmony shall be studied and women shall be rescued from the corrupt and tyrannical sway of fashion.

From Corunna.

THE Fourth of July was celebrated on the night of the Fourth at twelve o'clock, by the firing of anvils and crackers. Several of the boys understand exactly what powder will do towards making the hand and face sore.

THE Dearborn House has been painted and now looks like a first-class hotel, which is so characteristic of the gentlemanly proprietors, Messrs. Dearborn and Finch.

W. B. ADAMS has added a fine outside appearance to his block of buildings by giving them a touch of the daubers brush. His new store room is almost completed.

IT is rumored that Mr. Frothingham, who owns a large amount of property at this place, will erect several business rooms on Main street that are not to be sneezed at.

THE U. B. Church is finished on the inside right up to the handle. The members show a lively spirit of enterprise and also good taste in the way they have arranged their new edifice.

A BUILDING has been put up at the north end of main street, which is being used for a cooper shop, and barrels in immense quantities are being sent out daily.

QUART drinks are the standard at Corunna under the new regulations. It don't seem to worry the boys.

JOE LOVELAND is there, and he ain't there. Now you see it and now you don't see it. When at home he is in the employ of Walker & Doolittle. He is no snide business fellow, and when he makes a brake he goes "clean" through, hook and line.

IF there was ever a burg that needed sidewalks, it is Corunna. After a rain you can't go a calling, trading or even get to the bridge without a mud boat. The citizens should take more interest in this very prominent feature, which, not only makes it convenient and comfortable, but looks well to the eye of strangers.

THE crops are all promising. If the weather will "let up" till after harvest the farmers in that vicinity will be happy. They are paying $1.17 for wheat, and are doing a large grain business.

RUF. EDDY has left the place and will hereafter rusticate with the enterprising people of Auburn.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed Administrator with will annexed of the Estate of Edward Clark, late of DeKalb County deceased.

Said Estate supposed to be solven.

OLIVER P. LEARNED, Adm'r.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct:
DeKalb Couny. }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, Sept. term, 1875.

Thomas Watkins, }
vs. } Complaint for divorce.
Mary Watkins. }

Now comes the plaintiff, by McBride & Morlan his attorneys and files his complaint herein together with an affidavit that said Defendant, Mary Watkins, is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless she be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb Circuit court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in her absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 6th day of July, 1875.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA } Sct:
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, Sept. term, 1875.

Leah Casselman
George Casselman
vs. } Complaint No. 101.
Dena E. Smith
Mourоe H. Smith
John A. Smith

Now comes the Plaintiff, by McBride & Morlan Attorneys, and file their complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendants are not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendants that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court to be holden on the fourth Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness, my name and seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 5, day of July 1875.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

NOTICE is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb Circuit Court, the undersigned Administrator of the estate of DAVID PERRY, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises, on

SATURDAY, AUGUST 14th, 1875,

the equal undivided third part of the undivided thirteenth twentieth of the tracts of land hereinafter described, situated in DeKalb county, in the State of Indiana, and subject to the life estate of NANCY FISHER, surviving widow of said decedent therein, to-wit:

A part of section two in township thirty-five [35] north of range fourteen (14) east, bounded by a line commencing at the northeast corner of the northwest quarter of said section two [2] and running thence east on the county line 3 70-100 chains, thence south 46 degrees west one chain, thence south 56 degrees west 1 20-100 chains, thence south 68¼ degrees west, 2 40-100 chains, thence south thirty-four degrees west 7 chains thence north 45 degrees west 1 58-100 chains, thence north 27 degrees west 2 63-100 chains, thence north 87 degrees west 9 47-100 chains, thence south 84 degrees west 10 65-100 chains, thence south 75 degrees 34 minutes west 16 86-100 chains, thence north 60½ degrees east 7 30-100 chains, thence south 58¼ degrees west 6 87-100 chains, thence north 16 85-100 chains to the northwest corner of the northwest quarter, thence east on the county line to the place of beginning containing fifty-five acres, and a part of said section two bounded by a line commencing at the south bank of Fish Creek 8 17-100 chains south of the quarter post on the north side line aforesaid and running thence south on the east line of said northwest quarter aforesaid 7 3-100 chains, thence south 65 degrees 55 minutes west 8 13-100 chains, thence south 1¼ degree west 2 87-100 chains, thence north 81 degrees 45 minutes west 8 93-100 chains, thence north 35 degrees 55 minutes east 3 4-100 chains, thence north 64 degrees 25 minutes east 4 22-100 chains, thence north 9 degrees 15 minutes east 5 56-100 chains, thence 56 degrees east 2 58-100 chains to the place of beginning containing five acres more or less.

TERMS—One third cash, one third in nine months, and the remaining third in eighteen months, with notes at interest waiving valuation and appraisement laws, and secured by good freehold security for the deferred payments. Sale to begin at 2 o'clock P. M.

OLIVER P. LEARNED, Adm'r.

MAINE had a double hanging, the other day. One of the victims was unconscious, from the effects of an attempt to commit suicide, and had to be carried to the scaffold.

TRY the Auburn COURIER one year, and see how you like it.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. &C. R. R.

Condensed time card, May 23, 1875.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No 5 Mail.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex
Pittsburgh	2 00 a.m	....	9 00 a.m	2 00 p.m
Rochester	3 00 "	....	9 22 "	3 12 "
Alliance	5 52 "	....	12 30 p.m	5 54 "
Orrville	7 10 "	....	2 25 "	7 21 "
Mansfield	9 07 "	....	4 40 "	9 29 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 40 "	....	5 15 "	9 55 "
" lv.	10 00 "	4 50 a.m	5 35 p.m	11 00 "
Forest	11 18 "	6 30 "	7 27 "	11 24 "
Lima	12 21 p.m	8 10 "	8 45 "	12 27 a.m
Ft. Wayne	2 40 "	11 20 "	11 35 "	2 45 "
Plymouth	4 40 "	2 25 p.m	2 35 a.m	5 25 "
Chicago	7 50 "	6 30 "	6 30 "	8 50 "

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex.	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex.	No. 8 Mail.
Chicago	9 20 p.m	9 20 a.m	5 35 p.m	5 15 a.m
Plymouth	12 50 a.m	12 15 p.m	9 05 "	9 20 "
Ft. Wayne	3 50 "	2 45 "	11 45 "	12 20 p.m
Lima	6 75 "	4 35 "	1 40 a.m	2 40 "
Forest	7 36 "	5 34 "	3 01 "	3 56 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 20 "	6 55 "	4 40 "	5 33 "
" lv.	9 40 "	7 15 "	4 50 "	....
Mansfield	10 20 "	7 45 "	5 20 "	....
Orrville	12 45 p.m	9 32 "	7 10 "	....
Alliance	3 05 "	11 10 "	9 00 "	....
Rochester	5 40 "	1 07 a.m	11 12 "	......
Chicago	6 55 "	2 10 "	12 15 p.m	....

No. 1, daily, except Monday, Nos. 2, 4, 5, 7 and 3, daily except Sunday, Nos. 9 and 6 daily.

F. R. MYERS,
General Pass. and Ticket Agent.

SIMMONS'
LIVER
REGULATOR

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes head ache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the shoulders, cough, chills, dizziness, sour stomache, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which Simmons' Liver Regulator is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

Simmons' Liver Regulator,

OR MEDICINE,

Is harmless,
Is no drastic violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
It is a faultless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind.
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

Price $1, Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875

For sale at F. E. DAVENPORT'S drug store.

ARE YOU DYSPEPTIC?

If so, and you desire immediate relief, go to the drug store of F. E. Davenport and get a bottle of DeCosta's Radical cure. It will tone up the stomach, assist digestion, restore the appetite, regulate the liver, and in fact make a new man of you. Delicate females will fine it peculiary adapted to their various disorders. It is the most efficacious antidote for all diseases arising from a disorded stomach, liver or a low state of the system, that has ever been prescribed or advertised. Try it just once, and you will, like thousands of others become its enthusiastic advocate Trial sized 25 cents.

Is Your Life Worth 10 Cents.

SICKNESS prevails everywhere, and everybody complains of some disease during their life—When sick, the object is to get well; now we say plainly that no person in this world that is suffering with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and its effects, such as Indigestion, Costiveness, Sick Headache Sour stomache, Heart-burn, Palpitation of he Heart, Depressed Spirits, Biliousness, &c. can take GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER without getting relief and cure. If you doubt this, go to our Druggist and get a sample bottle for ten cents and try it. Regular size 75 cents. Two oses will relieve you.

Sure to Please the Ladies,

CATLIN'S SAD IRON HEATER!

PRICE $1.25.

SAVES one half the fuel, and makes comfort for Ladies while ironing in warm weather. Agents wanted everywhere. Send stamp for terms.—Address, VAN ALSTINE & CATLIN, Sharon, Wis.

Administrator's Sale.

THE undersigned, Administrator of the Estate of John W. Sebert, late of DeKalb County deceased, will sell at public sale all the personal property, not taken by the Widow at the late residence of the deceased, 5 miles east of Auburn, on Friday the 2 day of July, 1875, the following property to-wit:

Two Mares, 1-horse buggy, 2-horse buggy 7 head of young cattle, hogs, wheat in the ground, 1 reaper and Mower, 1 sulky rake, 1 organ and other articles too tedious to menjion.

TERMS—All sums under $3 cash; over $3 a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving his note with approved security, at 6 per cent. interest, waiving the benefits of valuation and appraisement laws.

ROBERT CULBERTSON, Ad'r.

Attachment Notice.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb county. }

George Dollaway } Before John S, Barns Justice of the Peace, for Richland township, vs.
James Cody. }

It appearing by the return of the writ herein that said defendant is not found, and it further appearing, by affidavit filed herein, that said defendant is a non-resident of the State of Indiana and a writ of garnishment in said case having been served on the Baltimore, Pittsburg and Chicago R. W. co., Indiana division. Notice is therefore given to said defendant to appear to said action at my office on the 9th day of August, 1875, at ten o'clock am. and answer or demur to the complaint herein, or the same will be determined in his absence.

J. S. BARNS, J. P.

June 14.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September Term 1875.

Richard Grambling,
vs.
Charles Brandt
Wenzel Ernst
Ernst wife of said Wenzel Ernst, whose name is unknown to plaintiff
Fredrick Buchanan
Peter Grambling } Complaint No. 60

Now comes the plaintiff, by McBride & Morlan his attorneys, and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant's, Wenzel Ernst—Ernst wife of said Wenzel Ernst Charles Brandt and Frederick Buchanan are non residents of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, given, said defendants that unless they be and appear on the first day of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th, Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 15th day of June, 1875.

J. R. LANNING Clerk

TAKE the Courier one year.

OLD BACHELORS.

They are wanderers and ramblers—never at home,
Making sure of a welcome wherever they roam;
And every one knows that the bachelor's den
Is a room set apart for these singular men—
A nook in the clouds, of some five feet by four,
Though sometimes, by chance, it may be rather more,
With skylight or no light, ghosts, goblins and gloom,
And everywhere termed the old bachelor's room.
These creatures they say are not valued at all,
Except when the herd give a bachelors' ball.

Then, dressed in their best,
In their gold-broidered vest,
It is known as a fact,
That they act with much tact,
And they lisp, "How d'ye do?"
And they coo, and they woo,
And they smile, for a while,
Their fair guests to beguile;
Condescending and bending
For fear of offending.

Though inert,
They exert
To be pert,
And to flirt,
And they spy,
With their eye,
And they sigh,
As they fly.

And they whisk and they whiz,
And are brisk at the quiz.

For they meet
To be sweet,
And are fleet
On their feet,
Advancing,
And glancing,
And dancing,
And prancing.

Sliding and gliding with minute pace,
Pirouetting and setting with infinite grace.

And jumping,
And bumping,
And stumping,
And thumping,
And racing,
And chasing,
And pacing,
And lacing.

They are flittering and glittering, gallant and gay,
Yawning all morning, and lounging all day.

But when he grows old,
And his sunshine is past,
Three-score years being told,
Brings repentance at last.

He then becomes an odd old man;
His warmest friend's the warming-pan;
He's fidgety, fretful and weary; in fine,
Loves nothing but self, and his dinner, and wine.

He rates and he prates,
And reads the debates;
Despised by the men, and the women he hates.

Then pressing,
And dozing,
And cozing,
And nosing,
And poring,
And snoring,
And boring,
And roaring.

Whenever he falls in with a rabble,
His delight is to vapor and gabble;

He's gruffy,
And puffy,
And musty,
And fusty.

He sits in his slippers, with back to the door,

Near freezing,
And wheezing,
And teasing,
And sneezing,
And grumbling,
And mumbling,
And stumbling,
And tumbling,

He curses the carpet or nails in the floor.

Oft falling,
Oft bawling,
And sprawling,
And crawling,
Oft waking,
Oft aching,
And quaking,
And shaking,

His hand is unsteady, his stomach is sore.

He's railing,
And failing,
And ailing,
Uncheery,
And dreary,
And weary,

And groaning and moaning,
His selfishness owning,
Grieving and heaving,
Though naught is his leaving
But pelf and ill-health,
Himself and his wealth.

He sends for a doctor to cure or to kill,
Who gives him advice and offense and a pill,
Who drops him a hint about making his will.
As fretful antiquity cannot be mended,
The mis'rable life of a bachelor's ended.
Nobody misses him, nobody sighs,
Nobody grieves when the bachelor dies.

A SIERRA WEDDING.

It was late in the fall, and it certainly must have been a cold, frosty morning, for Sandy's teeth chattered together as if he had an ague, when he told the Judge. In fact, he stood around the Howling Wilderness more than half a day; but he could not, or at least would not, drink, though he did very many foolish things, and seemed ill at ease and troubled in a way that was new to him.

At last he got the Judge cornered. He took him by the collar with both hands, he backed him up in a corner, and as he did so his teeth chattered and ground together as if he stood half naked on the everlasting snows that surrounded them. He pushed his face down into the red apple-like face of the magistrate, and began as if he was about to reveal the most terrible crime in the annals of the world. All the time he was holding on to the Judge with both hands, as if he feared he might not listen to his proposal, but tear away and attempt to escape.

"Good, good!"

The Judge drew a long breath. He swelled out almost instantly to nearly twice his usual importance. You could have seen him grow. It was now the Judge's turn to lay hold of Sandy. For now, as the great strong man had accomplished his fearful task, told his secret, and done all that was necessary to do, he wanted to get away, to go home, to go anywhere and collect his thoughts, and to rest. The Judge held him there, told him the great advantages that would come of it, the high responsibility that he was about to put his shoulders to, and talked to him, in fact, till he grew white and stiff as a sign-post. Yet all that Sandy could remember, for almost all he said, was something about "the glorious climate of Californy."

Never rode a king into his capital with such majesty as did the Judge that day enter the Forks. He was swelling, bursting with the importance of his secret. But now he had Sandy's permission to tell the boys, and he went straight to the Howling Wilderness for that purpose. His face glowed like fire as he stood there rubbing his hands above the great, mounting blaze, and bowing right and left in a patronizing sort of a way to the miners who had sauntered into the saloon.

At last the little red-faced man turned his back to the fire, stuck his two hands back behind his coat, which he kept lifting up and down and fanning carelessly, as if in deep thought; stood almost on tiptoe, stuck out his round little body, and seemed about to burst with his secret.

"Oh, this wonderful Californy climate!" He puffed a little as he said this, and fanned his coat-tails a little bit higher, perked out his belly a little bit farther, and stood there as if he expected some one to speak. But, as the miners seemed to think they had heard something like this before, or at least that the remark was not wholly new, none of them felt called upon to respond.

"Well,"—the little man tilted upon his toes as he said this, and took in a long breath—"hit comes off about the first snow-fall."

He had said these words one at a time, and by inches, as it were—slowly, deliberately, as if he knew perfectly well that he had something to say, and that men were bound to listen.

This time they all looked up, and a half of them spoke. And oh! didn't he torture them! Not that he pretended to keep his secret of half a day—not at all! On the contrary, he kept talking on, and tiptoeing and fanning his coat-tails, and pushing out his belly, and puffing out his cheeks just as carelessly and indifferent as if all the world knew just what he was going to say, and was perfectly familiar with the subject. "Yes, gentlemen," puffed the little man, "on or about the first snow-fall, the widow, as a widow, ceases to exist. That lovely flower, my friends, is to be transplanted from its present bed to—to—into—the—wonderful climate of Californy!"

The Howling Wilderness was as silent as the catacombs of Rome for nearly a minute. The first thing that was heard was something like a red-hot cannon-shot. The cinnamon-headed man behind the bar dodged down behind his barricade of sand-bags, till only his bristling red hair and a six-shooter were visible. The decanters [illegible] together as if there had been an earthquake.

It was only a Missourian swearing.

Somebody back in the corner said, "Jerusalem!"—said it in joints and pieces; and then came forward and kicked the fire, and stood up by the side of the red little man and looked down at him as if he would like to eat him for a piece of raw beef.

A tall, fair boy went back to a bunk against the further wall, where the bar-keeper's bull dog lay sleeping in his blankets, and put his arms about his neck, and put his face down and remained there a long time. Perhaps he wept.

There was a great big hairy head moved out of the crowd and up to the bar. The head rolled on the shoulders from side to side, as if it was not very firmly fixed there and did not particularly care at this particular time whether it remained there or not. A big fist fell like a stone on the bar. The glasses jumped as if frightened half to death; they ran up against each other, and clicked and huddled together there, and fairly screamed and split their sides in their terror. A big mouth opened behind an awful barricade of beard, again the big fist fell down, again the glasses screamed and clinked with terror, and the head rolled sidewise again, and the big mouth opened again, and the big voice said:

"By the bald-headed Elijah!" and that was all.

Then there was another calm, and you might have heard the little brown wood mice nibbling at the old boots and the leather belts and tin cans stowed away among the other rubbish up in the loft of the Howling Wilderness.

Then the fist came down again, and the big mouth opened, and the big mouth said, slow and loud and long and savage, like the growl of a grizzly:

"Swaller my grandmother's boots!"

Then the man fell back and melted into the crowd; and whatever romance there was in his life, whatever sentiment he may have had, whatever poetry there was pent up in the heart of this great Titan, it found no other expression than this.

The genteel gambler who sat behind a table, with his green cloth and silver faro box, forgot to throw his card, but held his arm poised in the air till any man could have seen the jack of clubs, though a thousand dollars worth of gold dust depended on the turn. Yet all this soon had an end, of course, and there was a confusion of tongues and a noise that settled gradually over against the bar. Even there it was afterward remarked, though the men really interested did not know it at the time, that the cinnamon-headed dealer of drinks put cayenne pepper in a gin cocktail, and Schiedam schnapps in a tom and jerry.

Limber Tim was there in their midst, but was a sad and silent man. Perhaps he had been told all about it before, and perhaps not. Tim was not a talker, but a thinker. This to him meant the loss of his partner, the man he loved—a divorce.

Poor Limber! he only backed up against the wall, screwed his back there, twisted one leg in behind the other, stuck his hands in behind him, and so stood there until he saw a man looking at him. Then he flopped over with his face to the wall, dug up his great pencil from his great pocket, and fell to writing on the wall and trying to hide his face from his fellows.

"Rather sudden, ain't it, Judge?"

"Well, not so sudden—not so sudden, considerin' this—this—this glorious climate of Californy."

The wedding-day came. The camp had been invited to a man. There was but one place in the camp that could hold a tithe of its people, and that was the Howling Wilderness. The plan had been to have the wedding under the pines on the hill; but the wind came pitching down the mountain, with frost and snow in its beard, that morning, and drove them to the shelter. What a place was that Howling Wilderness! It was battle-field, prize-ring, dead-house, gambling-hell, court-house, chapel, everything by turns. There they stood, side by side and hand in hand, before the crackling fire, before the little Judge. The house was hot. It was crowded as thick as the men could stand. Tighter than sardines in a tin box the men stood there bareheaded, with hardly room to breathe. The fat little magistrate was terribly embarrassed. He had sent all the way across the mountains by the pack-train, by the last express, by the last man who had dared the snows; but no pack-train, no express, nothing had returned with the coveted, the so-much-needed marriage ceremony and service, which he had resolved to read to the people, interspersed with such remarks and moral observations as the case might require. Alas! the form of the ceremony had not arrived. He had nothing of the kind to guide him. He had never officiated in this way before. He had never studied up in this branch. Why should he have studied up in this line, when there was but one woman in all the camp, in all his little world?

As the form had not arrived, he had nothing in the world but his moral observations to use on this imposing occasion, and he was embarrassed as man had never been embarrassed before. He stood there trying hard to begin. He could hear the men breathe. The pretty little woman was troubled, too. Her face was all the time held down, her eyes drooped, and she did not look up—did not look right or left, or anywhere—but seemed to surrender herself to fate, to give herself away. Her soul seemed elsewhere, as if she sat on a high bank above all this, and was not of it or in it at all.

"Do you solemnly swear?"

The Judge had jerked himself together with an effort that made his joints fairly rattle. He hoisted his right hand in the air as he said this, and, having once broken ground, he went on: "Do you solemnly swear to love, honor, and obey?"

Poor Limber Tim, who had just room enough behind the Judge to turn over, here became embarrassed through sympathy for the little red-faced magistrate, and, of course, flopped over and began to write his name and the date and make pictures on the wall, with a nervous rapidity proportionate to his embarrassment.

"Do you solemnly swear?"

It was very painful. The little man took down his lifted flagstaff to wipe his little bald head; and he could not get it up again, but stood there still and helpless.

You could hear the men breathe as they leaned and listened with all their might to hear. They heard the water outside gurgling on down over the great bowlders, over their dams, and on through the canon. They heard the little brown wood-mice nibble and nibble at the bits of bacon rind and old leather boots up in the lofts above their heads; but that was all. At last the Judge revived, and began again, and in a voice that was full of desperation:

"Do you solemnly swear to love and protect and honor and obey till death do you part, and ——"

Here the voice fell down low, lower, and the Judge was again floundering in the water. Then his head went under utterly. Then he rose, and "Now I lay me down to sleep" rolled tremulously through the silent room from the lips of the Judge. Then again the head was under water; then it rose up again, and there was something like "Twinkle, twinkle, little star." Then the voice died again; the head was under water. Then it rose again, and the head went up high in the air, and the voice was loud and resolute, and the man rose on his tiptoes, and, beginning with "When in the course of human events," he went on in a deep and splendid tone with the Declaration of Independence to the very teeth of the very tyrannical King George, and then, bringing his hand down emphatically on the gaming table that stood to his right, said, loud and clear and resolute and authoritatively, as he tilted forward on his toes: "So help you God, and I pronounce you man and wife."—Joaquin Miller.

ANIMAL VOLUNTEERS.

When the "Spankers" were in the Crimea—they were light dragoons in those days, and not hussars, as at present—a large dog, I don't exactly know of what breed, but universally admired for beauty and intelligence, attached himself to that particular corps. Wherever the regiment marched, he invariably accompanied the troopers. Several times he went into action, and was once seriously wounded with the point of a lance. It would have been universally regretted had poor Luffin's wound proved fatal. One of the farriers undertook to dress it, so that, with a little care, he soon got well again.

Where the dog came from, or who was his original owner, nobody knew. He would never follow an individual soldier beyond the barrack gates, however kindly he might be invited; but when the men were in full dress, whether mounted or on foot, provided they went out in a body, Luffin insisted on taking up his proper position. One thing was very remarkable—he had sufficient discernment to enable him to distinguish a "church parade" from any other. He never showed any desire to attend public worship.

At the beginning of his military career he had to pick up his living as best he could. He was accustomed at meal-times to go from hut to hut, or among the tents when the men were under canvas. In some of these habitations he met with good treatment and a supply of food, but from others he was not unfrequently summarily and ignominiously ejected. However, Luffin, in course of time, was allowed regular rations at the regimental expense, towards which all the members of the corps contributed a share, from the Colonel to the drummer. The noble animal must have been aware of his promotion, for it was observed that he never went "a-begging" after.

One of Luffin's marks of high intelligence I cannot personally vouch for, but I have been assured of its truth. It was said, and generally believed, that he was in the constant habit of visiting the sentries during the night, especially in the Crimea, to see if the men were at their posts and on the alert. The reader must be told that, during a campaign, the troops are often so much harassed and fatigued that sentries will occasionally fall asleep as they stand—an act, however, which is looked upon as one of the gravest of military offenses. If Luffin found a man asleep, he sat before him in silence; but the slightest sound of approaching footsteps was sufficient to make him apprise the sleeper of the danger to which he was exposed. He would then trot off to the next post, where he scarcely halted if convinced that all was well. I am glad to be able to record the fact that his faithful services, in due time, obtained for Luffin the respect of every member of the corps. It would have been a high misdemeanor to offer him indignity.

Much that I have said in praise of Luffin may be properly applied to another Crimean hero called Jerry, belonging to the King's Royal Irish Hussars, whose services were estimated so highly that a medal was bestowed upon him as a just reward, and invested with which he afterwards ordinarily appeared in front of the regiment. When that gallant corps, on its return to Ireland, was publicly entertained by the citizens of Dublin, some doubt was expressed as to whether Jerry was eligible to become a guest; upon which the men declared that unless their canine comrade made one of the party they themselves would not put in an appearance. So, in the end, he shared the honor of a public banquet. Subsequently this faithful animal went out to India, and accompanied the regiment through all the dangers of the great mutiny; but during one of their marches the poor fellow strayed into a jungle, and was never heard of afterwards.

Princess Charlotte of Wales' regiment had once a poodle whose hind-quarters were shaved once a week, and its whole body submitted to the process of being pipe-clayed, which gave the animal a clean and smart appearance. It seems, however, that the dog's particular attachment was to the band, with which it always marched, and was at all times on terms of amity with the white-coats, especially the drummers, who were privileged to take all sorts of liberty in their treatment of him; at the same time he would countenance no liberty whatever on the part of the red-jackets, whether officers or men.

Many years since the Princess of Wales' (Yorkshire) Hussars possessed a regimental dog, which joined them at Ripon, and regularly marched to York for eight days' training, during which time he attended every drill and went daily to the field, where he charged in front of the squadrons with as much smartness as could be exhibited on the part of the best yeoman in that famous corps.

The gallant Welsh Fusileers are noted for a white goat which accompanies the regiment. The goat that was with the corps in Ashantee having there died, her Majesty made a present of another animal of the same description. We may be sure the gift will be highly prized and properly appreciated in its military capacity.

The Queen's Own Hussars have a goat—or at least they had very recently—which curiously enough seemed to prefer the vicinity of the hospital to the barrack-yard. Billy, though a general favorite, was occasionally troublesome. For instance, in hot weather it is necessary that the doors of the barrack church should be left open for the benefit of ventilation. At such times he had a decided opinion that he should be allowed to join the congregation. Now, had he been quiet, there would have been no strong objection to his being indulged so far; instead, however, of behaving with decorum suited to the occasion, he would walk about on the wooden floor, which caused a considerable clatter. If by chance he came in the way of a trooper against whom he might have had a grievance, he would butt at him, causing thereby such disturbance as made it necessary for him to be forcibly ejected. Instead of taking such a rebuke—which was usually accompanied with sundry cuffs and blows—in a proper spirit, he would deliberately walk round to the officers' entrance, and go into the church again as coolly as if his previous manners had been most praiseworthy.

"Orderly," said the Adjutant, at the close of the service, "see that the goat is shut up on a Sunday morning for the future."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"It's my opinion," said one of the men, when the parade was dismissed, "that Billy attracted more attention than the chaplain."

"I could hardly keep my countenance," observed another.

On one occasion Billy attended the funeral of a soldier belonging to the regiment, with the band, who played the Dead March, and a firing party, to discharge three volleys over the grave of the deceased at the close of the burial service. There, in strong contrast with his behavior at church, it was quite affecting to observe how serious he was in manner and deportment. He seemed to take an intense interest in the whole proceeding, and walked to the edge of the grave, into which he peered for some time, as if pondering on the common end of mortality. Billy was a genuine volunteer. He followed the regiment of his own accord while on the march through an Indian village, and continued on the route for some hundreds of miles. Embarking with the troops when they left for home, he has never deserted the regiment from that hour to this.—Chambers' Journal.

A Rough Experience.

A Chinaman in the employ of a family at Salt Wells Station, over the Pacific slope, passed through a decidedly thrilling experience recently. Salt Wells is a railroad station in charge of a man named McArthur. McArthur and his wife went away on a visit, and left the station in charge of a man named Ricks and a Chinaman. Subsequently Ricks was called away, and the Chinaman remained alone to keep things straight about the place. He had been thus alone but a day or two when a couple of men rode up to the station and demanded dinner. The Chinaman complied with the request, when the two men also insisted that he should feed their horses. The Chinaman went to the stable, and was opening a sack of barley, when the men came up behind him and fired their revolvers, hitting him in the head. The Chinaman fell and remained insensible for a few minutes, but knew enough to keep quiet. The would-be murderers were feeling his pulse, and one asked the other, "Shall we shoot him again?" "Oh, he'll be dead enough in time," was the answer. Then the ruffians went into the house, and, securing a pickaxe and shovel, began digging a grave for their victim in the cellar. The Chinaman quietly escaped and ran for assistance. A party was at once organized, and the robbers, who had taken what plunder they could carry, were pursued for fifty miles, finally escaping. The Chinaman, who saw his own grave being dug, will have a story to tell if he ever goes back to Asia, and a story of the most thrilling kind.

Jewell Among the Cincinnati Postoffice "Boys."

Postmaster-General Jewell, who has been making a tour of the Western cities, investigating the workings of the great postal machine, dropped into Cincinnati last week, and was escorted to the Postoffice, where all the employes were marshaled before him to hear a speech. He began with "How are you, boys?" and proceeded much in the same strain of a man talking to a school-class. He complimented them with being the working men of the department, who left all the glory to the great officers like himself, and Mr. Wahle. He told them not to ask for more pay, because it could not be given; not to go off on sprees, because he would only have steady men, and would give no man a second trial. Then he passed down the line and shook hands with "the boys."

Milwaukee millers turn out nearly 800,000 barrels of flour a year.

Natives of the Nicobars.

Charged with a friendly message from one of the Port Blair officials, and duly laden with a gift of wheaten loaves, I approached the principal house of "Capt. London," a good-natured, drink-craving Nancowrie, who supplies cocoanuts to the traders. On this occasion he is dressed like an admiral from the waist to the hat, but like a savage below. Each house is raised from six to eight feet on poles, so placed below high-water mark that the tide acts as the general purifier. A platform, half way up, forms the store-house of cocoanuts, uncooked pandanus, cocoanut-shells polished quite black and containing water, hencoops, and odds and ends. Here the housewife daily feeds the fowls, pigs, and dogs. The elevated house is dome-shaped, and carefully thatched with palm leaves to resist the heavy rains and winds. It is reached by a ladder or trunk of a tree, which can be drawn up when necessary. I was preparing to ascend the ladder to pay a visit of ceremony to the lady members of the family, when two of them presented themselves at the top in so primitive a state that it needed all the hospitable encouragement of the "Captain" to induce me to push my head up into the family sleeping-place through the square hole in the floor. The house was filled with smoke from the fire place right opposite this doorway, so that the eye had hardly become familiarized to the darkness when the effect of the green-wood smoke called forth copious tears. We present our lady friends to our readers in very different garments from that homely suit from which they received our party. With the old mother and the young wife we managed to exchange ideas through Hindostanee, aided occasionally by the head of the household himself, who, remaining below, was frequently appealed to by both the ladies and their visitor to act as interpreter. The house, to which there is no chimney, had with this exception all the cleanly and tidy appearance of a well-kept Highland shanty. A mat of pandanus fiber is placed at the doorway. On either side of the cooking-place are the black nishops, already described, or water-shells. Either side of the entrance is adorned with large jaws and tusks of pigs, of which the housewife is duly proud. All round are spears, boxes, and mats, so that only the center of the floor is available for squatting or sleeping. Most prominent of all is a life-size wooden image or images, sometimes representing a man, occasionally a full-rigged ship, with captain and speaking-trumpet, the whole resting on a fish which has the head of an aligator. These images are not, indeed, worshiped, but are doubtless considered a protection against the spirits, which alone cause terror to the generally simple and happy villagers.—The Savages in the Bay of Bengal.

Learned Fools.

The exuberant fecundity of the imaginative faculties of some geological savants led them into a blunder recently, which would be amusing if only it were a degree or two less ridiculous. It appears that in the Turkish collection of geological specimens which were exhibited at the Vienna Exposition were a number of odd-looking instruments of flint, six inches long, an inch broad, and a quarter of an inch thick. After a close examination of these unique curiosities, and a large amount of recondite cackling over them by learned geological experts, they were pronounced to be flint knives of the veritable Stone Age. The discovery was hailed as a great acquisition to science; and, in the opinion of these learned pundits, went far to prove that man existed and delved and worked with tools at a period far earlier than any of which we have any record in the Bible. Geologists were triumphant over these wonderful flints, which had proved the antiquity of pre-historic man and dissipated another of the fables of the Inspired Record. But "mark now, how plain a tale" has put these savants down, and how completely they hoaxed themselves by trusting to their own fertile imaginations. It has been discovered that the flints in question are modern instruments which are in universal use at this day by peasant husbandmen of Rumelia, Anatolia and Syria, in the construction of their threshing machines, which are armed with these knives. There is the whole of the mystery! The learned geologists knew all about the Stone Age, but were utterly ignorant concerning the present age. The incident is an evidence of the slight foundation on which the scientists are wont to build their facts, as well as of their easy credulity, or shall we say gullibility?—Christian Intelligencer.

An Earthquake at Sea.

The ship Hamilton, of Boston, arrived at New York a few days since with a cargo of sugar from Manilla. Her commander, Capt. Ross, states that at 3 a. m. on June 4, when in latitude 19 deg. 16 min., longitude 57 deg. 51 min., all on board felt the shock of an earthquake, which lasted fully ten minutes. During this time there was a heavy sea running, and in different places the water appeared to revolve in circles like a whirlpool. When the disturbance first began the sea was quite smooth, but as the shock increased in violence the waters became correspondingly agitated, terrifying those who were on deck, and arousing those who were sleeping below. Suddenly the vessel received a shock, as if she had grounded, and a peculiar rumbling noise filled the air. Simultaneously with the shaking, the sky assumed a dull, leaden hue. The atmosphere was also thick and hazy. During the continuance of the shock, control of the vessel was completely lost, and the ship refused to obey the helm. There was little, if any, wind at the time, yet the vessel was tossed about as though in the midst of a gale.

The Captain describes the upheaving of the waves as similar to what would occur if a series of heavy submarine explosions had taken place. The duration of the shock was long enough to enable those who were below to reach the deck and witness the unusual sight. After the disturbance had subsided, the sea again became as calm as before. The vessel sustained no damage, and her cargo appears to be intact, although her 5,000 boxes of sugar were thrown about by the shock.

"Ma, when is a griddle-cake inhabited?" "Why, my dear, when there is a little Indian in it."

BOIL IT DOWN.

Whatever you have to say, my friend,
Whether witty, or grave, or gay,
Condense it as much as ever you can,
And say it in the readiest way;
And whether you write of rural affairs,
Or particular things in town,
Just take a word of friendly advice—
Boil it down.

For if you go spluttering over a page,
When a couple of lines would do,
Your butter is spread so much, you see,
That the bread looks plainly through;
So when you have a story to tell,
And would like a little renown,
To make quite sure of your wish, my friend,
Boil it down.

When writing an article for the press,
Whether prose or verse, just try
To utter your thoughts in the fewest words
And let them be crisp and dry;
And when it is finished, and you suppose
It is done exactly brown,
Just look it over again, and then
Boil it down.

For editors do not like to print
An article really long,
And the busy reader does not care
For a couple of yards of song;
So gather your wits in the smallest space,
If you'd win the author's crown,
And every time you write, my friend,
Boil it down.

Pith and Point.

Singular—to see a garden walk.

Preferred creditors are those who do not dun.

What part of speech is kissing? A conjunction.

The first lesson in drawing—Drawing your breath.

On his last legs—a kangaroo—generally.—Exchange.

The doctor's works fill six feet of ground, but the dentist's fills an acher.

Black eyes and deceit are said to go together in women. But black hasn't a monopoly of deceit.

Jumping at conclusions—climbing over chairs at a theater when the curtain goes down on the last act.

Considering the hooks one is apt to get in this world, it makes a vast difference whose dress is gored.

It appears that coining copper is not profitable. The government has not made a half cent since 1857.

"This," thought a boy, while being trounced by his fond papa, "is very like a whale."—New York Mail.

When a Manitowoc girl wants cream cakes in a Chicago restaurant, she calls for "soft-shell doughnuts."

European news is getting scarce, and the cable man is repeating the old dispatches about the health of the Pope.

A mourning widower declares that nothing brings him such affecting memories of his dear, dead wife as to stumble over a flat-iron.

A little girl on the train was asked what motive was taking her to the city. "I believe they call it the locomotive," said the little innocent.

A wag being asked who was the inventor of butter stamps, remarked that it was probably Cadmus, as he first brought letters into Greece.

Philadelphia brags of having the most cleanly servant girls. They always hire out with the understanding that the mistress is to do the dirty work.

There is a man down at Bay Ridge who lost his wife last week, but you wouldn't know it if it were not for the crape collar around his dog's neck.

A Louisville man complained of marble table-cloths at a restaurant. He said he didn't like to wipe his mouth with a tombstone in the absence of a napkin.

Striking Coincidence.—The Baptist denomination is rapidly increasing in California, and a general system of irrigation for the entire State is under consideration.

Mamma (sternly)—"Now, Miriam, say grace." Miriam (who, for previous misconduct, has been deprived of pudding)—"For all they have received let them be truly thankful."

"What's de occasion of dat big smoke over dar?" inquired one colored man of another at the market the other day. "Fire, sah," was the answer. "And what's de occasion ob de fire?" "Combustshun." "And what's combustshun?" "My friend," replied the other, crossing his legs, "dar's heaps ob things in dis woruld dat no nigger ever knowed or ever will know, an' we'll change de subject to gooseberries."—Detroit Free Press.

Large Families.

The editor of the Brunswick (Me.) Telegraph has been investigating the matter of the size of some of the French Canadian families employed in the mills at that place, and gives a few of the facts he has ascertained. He says: "There is a family at work in the cotton mill which consists of father and mother and twenty-four children, all the children large enough being at work. The woman is the fourth wife. A brother of the husband living with his fifth wife in Montreal, has twenty-five children. Three families arrived here last week to go to work in the mill, and they number, all told, thirty-seven persons. A lady friend of ours, a few days since, met a French woman, who, looking at the babe in the carriage, said to our friend, 'I have got fifteen of those.' The only possible reply of the lady with the one babe was, 'Gracious!' Ten, and twelve, and fifteen children are by no means uncommon in the French Canadian families, but twenty-four is a little above the average."

Beer-Drinkers.

During a sanitary survey recently in Lincolnshire, a man was found, aged 95 years, who had been in the habit of drinking a gallon of beer before breakfast, another during the day, and a few extra pints at night to top off with, and who had never been ill a day in his life. To cap this, the experience of William Lewis, who died while drinking a cup of ale in 1783, is quoted as still more remarkable. He read eight chapters of the Bible each day, and drank eight gallons of ale during the night. He weighed 40 stone, and was lowered into his grave by the crane which lifted him to his carriage.

Alexander T. Stewart last week bought the Glenham woolen mills, at Matteawan, N. Y., for $200,000. The original cost of the mills was $1,200,000.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Who First Conceived the Idea of a Farmers' Industrial League—The Primary Organization.

Mr. O. H. Kelly, of Washington, Secretary of the National Grange of Patrons of Husbandry, has recently issued a volume giving a history of the conception, birth and growth of the order. We are indebted to the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean for the following interesting abstract of its contents:

Mr. Kelly was a farmer in Minnesota, and suffering severely from the drought of 1862-3, he came to Washington as a clerk in the Agricultural Department, and here he remained till 1866, when he went South to gather information for that department concerning the agricultural condition and prospects of the war-swept land. One of the results of his observation was an impression which afterward ripened into conviction, that one of the best means of reviving agriculture and restoring kindly feelings among the Southern people was the organization of a secret society of agriculturists, in which the two extremes of territory and political opinion could meet on a common basis and with a common purpose. When Mr. Kelly returned he broached the subject to many of his friends, but met with little encouragement. He persevered, however, and soon found a fellow feeling in an associate at Washington, who has told the story as follows:

"On a rainy afternoon in the fall of 1866 two gentlemen were introduced to each other by a mutual friend in one of the committee rooms of the National Capitol. The one was from the frontier of the new State of Minnesota, and was a fair type of the active, energetic, enterprising and go-ahead Western farmer, who had just returned from a tour of the South, whither he had been sent by order of the President of the United States to investigate and report to the Agricultural Department the condition and prospects of the agricultural resources of the South. The other was a Vermonter, so recently from the green hillsides of Yankeedom that the habit of asking questions whenever desirable information was to be obtained was still strong upon him. This chance meeting, so casual in its character, and so like, in its persons and its incidents, the thousands of accidental meetings of strangers that occur every day, strikingly illustrates the truth that > "'God moves in a mysterious way,

> His wonders to perform,' for from it sprang one of the grandest and most beneficent, moral, industrial, social and educational reforms of the century, if not of all time. The Vermonter at once marked his new Western acquaintance as legitimate prey. He had just returned, not only with his note-book filled with notes upon the agricultural condition and resources of the South, but with his head crammed with information and impressions as to the political feelings and the social status of its people, gleaned by personal contact with and observation among them. All this information and all these impressions the other desired to know, and enforced his demands with such pointed and persistent questions, that the afternoon was consumed in uninterrupted conversation and discussion. Dinner was forgotten, daylight faded, twilight deepened into darkness, the gas was lighted and the conversation still ran on. The evening hours had recorded themselves upon the dial and fled before the new friends separated, each having received ideas which neither had before entertained."

These gentlemen talked the matter over repeatedly till their plans were very much matured, and Mr. Wm. Saunders, of the Agricultural Department, whom I have just quoted, communicated the idea to friends he met at the meeting of the United States Pomological Society in St. Louis in 1868, with whom also it met with great favor.

Mr. Anson Bartlett, of North Madison, Lake county, Ohio, was the next gentleman to unite his fortunes with the incipient society, and a brisk correspondence was continued for several months, in which the plans were fully discussed and still farther matured. Miss C. A. Hall, a niece of Mr. Kelley, and at present Assistant Stewardess of the National Grange, was admitted to confidence, and to her, the multitude of farmers' wives and daughters owe their membership of the grange. These, with the Rev. Dr. Trimble, of Washington, Mr. Ireland, of the Postoffice Department, and J. R. Thompson constituted the body of communicants at that time.

When the plans were all made the question of a name came up, and, as is always the case, every person interested had one to suggest, each thinking his own the best. The following are some of the suggestions: "Independent Farmers," "Independent Order of Progressive Farmers," "Knights of the Plow," "Knights of the Sickle," "Knights of the Flail," "Rustics," "Mushrooms," "Fungi," "Lords of the Soil," "Brethren of the Vine," "Templars of Industry," "Companions of Labor," "Yeomen of Columbia," "Sons of the Soil," "The League of Husbandry."

Finally Mr. Anson Bartlett suggested "Patrons of Industry," which everybody thought was good, but too general, and Mr. Kelley's suggestion to substitute "Husbandry" was agreed to, and the infant was named.

Mr. Kelley then sent out circulars to leading agriculturists in the country, notifying them of the steps that had been taken, and soliciting their co-operation, together with any suggestions they might choose to offer in the way of further improvements before introducing the organization to the public.

Very encouraging replies were received from all sources, and on Nov. 15, 1867, a meeting was held in this city, as the minutes read, "for the purpose of organizing an order of agriculture in the United States." There were present six gentlemen. The order was formally organized, the name, "Patrons of Husbandry," was adopted, and the motto "Esto Perpetua" was chosen.

The committee who had been appointed to draw up a constitution performed their duty, and on the 4th of December it was adopted, and Mr. Ireland elected Master; Bartlett, Overseer; Thompson, Lecturer; Muir, Steward; and Saunders, Treasurer. Jan. 7, 1868.

Now the organization was complete, and it only remained to introduce the order among the people. This Mr. Kelley undertook to do, and on the afternoon of April 3, 1868, he started on a missionary tour to the benighted farmers. He found friends and assistance everywhere. At Fredonia, N. Y., on April 15, 1868, he organized the first grange. At Chicago the second grange was organized, and then Mr. Kelley began to spread his order over the West. The South next took it up, then the Territories, and now the Patrons of Husbandry stretch their long arms to the parent head at Washington from nearly every town and village in the land.

The Curse of Sewing-Machines.

"A mother," replying to some strictures in a daily paper upon the bold, even immodest conduct of "the beautifully dressed young girls, who, out of school hours, parade Fifth avenue, Chestnut, and Beacon streets," remarks, that "the censure probably would not be so severe if it were known how many of these beautiful dresses were cut out and made on the machine by the wearers. Innocence and ignorance are the true apologies for their unseemly behavior." She lays her finger on the main-spring of all the trouble. What but vanity and grossly vulgar subserviency to fashion could induce any mother to devote her child's few leisure hours to the construction of elaborate costumes, marvels of shirring, knife-plaiting, etc., etc.? The real martyrs to fashion are, after all, the shabby-genteel, whose souls and bodies must be worn out in toiling after her whims and changes. But, leaving the moral view of the question, there are other physical reasons which should forbid the use of the sewing-machine to any but adult women. Even to them it is doubtful whether it has as yet proved more of a curse than a blessing. On an average, quite as much time is now devoted in a family to the more elaborate garments which its use has brought into fashion, as formerly was given to the needle; and the appalling increase of debility and certain diseases among women, is proved to be largely due to its use. It will be of real benefit only when garments can be made by it with steam power, of a quality and finish which will supersede its use in the family altogether. Until then, this "benignant domestic fairy," as it is poetically called, is one to be handled with caution; it has, too, its malignant errand. At least, let young girls keep clear of it; and give their leisure time to higher studies than the mysteries of stylish costumes, and they will not long remain "ignorant" of the bad taste shown in heaping shirrs and frills on their delicate young bodies, or in the "unseemly behavior" which no gaudy costumes can excuse.—"Home and Society;" Scribner for July.

The Simoon of the Desert.

It is generally thought that the simoon, or sand whirlwind, destroys entire caravans by burying them alive. But Father Charmetant, a Roman Catholic missionary in Africa says this is a mistake, as the sand is very light, and may be easily shaken off. The greatest danger is the breakage of the water skins. The hot air which accompanies the simoon is so intense as to cause the water to evaporate so rapidly as to extend the skins until they break, and then the water is lost. In this way whole caravans can be lost. One great danger of traveling in the desert is the liability of being lost. The missionary tells the following incident:

I remember to have fallen into an exceedingly interesting conversation with a very intelligent Arab. Whilst talking we forgot ourselves, and allowed the rest of the caravan to go on in front, without taking heed of its movements.

Now it should be remembered that the desert is full of sand-hills, behind which it is easy to lose sight of the rest of your party. Suddenly the conversation was interrupted, and I perceived that my companion was seriously frightened.

We were lost. We tried in vain to obtain a trace of our friends. The sand had immediately hidden the traces of the camels and caravan.

We ascended one of the high sand-embankments, but all in vain; not a living creature was in sight.

My companion advanced, with his eyes fixed upon the ground, as if searching for something. At the end of about an hour he exclaimed, joyfully, "Father, we are safe. I see the camels have bitten these leaves," and he pointed to a little plot of wild absinthe plants.

We immediately directed our course to the South, and presently heard the noise of guns and shouts. Our party was searching for us in all directions, and in a state of utter consternation. When they saw us they were indeed rejoiced, for we had caused them two hours of the most terrible anxiety.

Spotted Tail's Note Book.

A reporter has been getting hold of Spotted Tail's note book, in which he records his observations at Washington. Here are a couple of extracts from it, translated out of the Sioux tongue:

May 26.—White man mighty uncertain. Me shake hands now with Great Father. Great Father never open mouth to pale face. He talk, talk, talk, to Spotted Tail. He no let me talk. What it all mean? Git up and git! Why? Great Father has a warrior son. He come to Black Hills. He find gold. He want Black Hills. Great Father say Indian country better than Black Hills. All right. Let white man go there—Spotted Tail stay where he is. Great Father's warrior son, he go to Indian country. May 27.—White man steal, steal, steal. Steal Black Hills, steal eight shirts, steal $5. Why come preach to red man? Why no practice? How, how, how!

A Christian Converted to Buddhism.

Judge Strange, of Madras, has recently been converted from Christianity to Buddhism. The Judge went from England to India an earnest Christian, and when not attending to the duties of his profession sought to convert the Heathen Hindoos around him. Singular to relate, his investigation of the Hindoo religion led him to adopt it as superior to Christianity, and he now declares the whole substructure of the latter to be a humbug, the New Testament to be a fraud and the earthly existence of Jesus himself to be doubtful. It is extremely probable, however, that the sudden stampede of the English Judge to the Hindoo camp will not have the effect of destroying the Christian faith or even shaking the confidence of those who have made a life test of its beneficial doctrines.—Courier-Journal.

ATTENTION is being drawn in England to the value of the mule. At a recent show the prize mule stood seventeen hands, and was proved to be much stronger than a horse. Another animal exhibited, and which was only twelve and a half hands high, had been driven the previous week 220 miles in forty-two hours, and entered London on the evening of the second day at a pace of ten miles an hour with no marks of fatigue.

A Dog's Long Journey Home.

The Cincinnati Commercial asserts that although the following story is not sworn to before a Justice of the Peace it is strictly true: "In August, 1872, Mr. Granel, the venerable gardener of Lars Anderson, Esq., and Mr. Anderson's son, Charles, were on a prairie chicken hunt in the neighborhood of Sheldon, Ill. They had along with them Mr. Granel's favorite imported dog Maxy. During a hot, thirsty tramp one day, when the stock of water with the party had been exhausted, the dog was overcome with with heat and fatigue. Poor Maxy was left for dead on the prairie, after the body had been covered with freshly-plucked grass, and other suitable funeral rites had been performed. On the following day the hunters passed that way, and out of sympathy visited the grave of the dog. The body had disappeared. The suspicion was aroused that, mayhap, the burial was a premature one, and accordingly a search for Maxy was made, but without success. The hunters lingered in the vicinity for several days, and under an offer of a liberal reward, village boys scoured the prairie for the body of the missing beast, though in vain, and the unfortunate fellow was given up for gone. On Wednesday last, who but Maxy himself should run into Mr. Granel's house, in this city, and greet Mrs. Granel in the same old friendly manner. But he was tottering on his feet, and seemed sorely battered and aged and thin in flesh. He gave no history of his travels, or how he had spent the three years away, or how he had traced his course for about 300 miles to the old home of his master and mistress. Truly, the good old dog received a hearty welcome from the venerable man and wife, who looked upon Maxy as a great pet. But, sorry to say, the dog seems to have come home to die, and probably, despite the best attentions, will survive only a short time."

IT was an ancient custom of the Spartans, in order to inculcate among their youth an abhorrence of intemperance and its kindred vices, to make their slaves drunk with wine in the public market-places, so that the rising generation, upon whom would some day devolve the honor and safety of the Lacedemonian Republic, might see before them all the ghastly details of the drunkard's disgrace, his loss of reason, and of physical strength. 'Twere well, perhaps, to-day, could some of our young men contemplate a similar instructive lesson drawn from the life, showing them, by a sharply drawn contrast, the advantages and true loveliness of abstinence and virtue.

For such as appreciate these, VINEGAR BITTERS is the beverage best adapted, it being purely a vegetable draught, devoid of alcohol or mineral poisons, and possessing all the virtues, but none of the damning curses, of the different poisons which year by year are sweeping away thousands of dollars and lives. 42

ABOUT forty years ago, John Casey, then a poor boy, left his home in Ireland to seek his fortune in the New World. He came West, worked along with a single eye to business (the other was blind), attended strictly to his neighbor's affairs, fostered the saloon interest, and last Friday he was triumphantly hanged in the presence of one of the largest concourses of people that ever assembled to grace an important event in the career of a fellow-citizen. Who says this is not a poor man's country?—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

A DISCONSOLATE citizen of Quebec laments that the only paying institution in that ancient city is a Punch and Judy show.

WILHOFT'S ANTI-PERIODIC OR FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.—This invaluable and standard family medicine is now a household word and maintains its reputation unimpaired. It is indorsed by the medical profession, and prescribed daily in the Charity Hospital and other Hospitals in New Orleans. Wilhoft's Tonic is thus highly recommended by the leading medical men of the country, and is worthy of such indorsement. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

IF a horse has a good constitution, and has once been a good horse, no matter how old or how much run down he may be, he can be greatly improved, and in many respects made as good as new, by a liberal use of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders.

A GENTLEMAN afflicted with the chronic rheumatism says: "No description of my case can convey the vast amount of benefit I have received from the use of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. I believe it is the best article in the world for rheumatism."

GLEN FLORA SPRING WATER, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

HOW TO GET A HOME. See advertisement.

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT IT.

STRATFORD, PERTH, ONTARIO, May 5, 1875.

MESSRS. CRADDOCK & CO.:

Last December I took a heavy cold, which settled upon my lungs. Our best physicians pronounced it Consumption, and treated me for it until March, when I was considered incurable. I then took the case in my own hands, and went to your Agent, David Sebring, of this place, and purchased your East India Hemp. Before I used one bottle I was better. I took a second and third, constantly improving in health and increasing in weight. At present I can work all day long, and eat like a man that is chopping wood. Knowing the merits of your medicine, I cheerfully recommend it to others, and send this for publication, if you wish.

Yours, gratefully,
MARTIN SEIFERLE.

87 Washington Street.

N. B.—This Remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not dissipate—Night Sweats, Irritation of the Nerves, Difficult Expectorations, Sharp Pains in the Lungs, Sore Throat, Nausea at the Stomach, Inaction of the Bowels, and Wasting of the Muscles.

$2.50 per bottle, or three bottles for $6.50. Pills and Ointment, $1.25 each. Address
CRADDOCK & CO.,
1032 Race Street, Philadelphia.

Send for circular.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES. All the advancement in science, art and civilization has not prevented children from kicking holes through the toes of their shoes. Only SILVER TIPS prevent this. Try them.

Have you seen the CABLE SCREW WIRE Boots and Shoes? Millions are being worn; all say they are the easiest and best Shoe ever made. Look out for the Patent Stamp. All others are base imitations. CABLE SCREW WIRE

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

$10 to $25 PER DAY—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEO. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G CO., Buchanan, Mich.

WANTED AGENTS. Samples and Outfit free. Better than Gold. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.

Guns Catalogue Free. Randolph & Co., 1018 N. 5th St. Louis, Mo.

$3 SAMPLE Free and Big Pay to Male and Female everywhere. Address, THE UNION PUB. CO., Newark, N. J.

THE WEEKLY SUN. 8 pages, 56 broad columns, from now to New Years, postpaid, 50 cts. Address THE SUN, N. Y.

BOOSEY'S Cheap Music. Full Catalogues Free by Mail. 32 East 14th Street, New York.

SOMETHING for you. Sells at sight. Our Agents coin money. We have work and money for all, men or women, boys or girls, whole or spare time. Send stamp for Catalogue. Address FRANK GLUCK, New Bedford, Mass.

10 DOLLARS PER DAY. AGENTS WANTED to sell THE IMPROVED HOME SHUTTLE Sewing Machine. Address Johnson, Clark & Co., Boston, Mass.; New York City; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Chicago, Ill.; or St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the fastest-selling BOOK ever published. Send for circulars and our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUB. CO., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

FLORIDA. The Florida Agriculturist, Weekly. $2 a year. Send 10c. for specimen. Proceedings Florida Fruit-Growers' Association—meeting of 1875—25 cts. Address WALTON & CO., Jacksonville, Fla. Say where you saw this.

FOR SALE. Chicago Suburban Lots at $100 each—$15 down and $5 monthly for balance—within a short distance of city limits, with hourly trains and cheap fare. Send for circular. IRA BROWN, 143 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

3 Pounds of Butter from 1 Quart of Milk. Can be made anywhere, by any one. No churning required. Receipt sent for 25 cents. Address P. O. Box 1741, Philadelphia, Pa.

GEO. P. ROWELL & Co.

50 Of the prettiest CARDS you ever saw, with your name handsomely printed on them, sent, postpaid, upon receipt of 20 cents. Your friends will all want them when they see yours. Address W. C. CANNON, 46 Kneeland St., Boston, Mass.

Officers and Soldiers Who lost horses in U. S. Army, no matter how lost, can get compensation. Pensions obtained for wounds or injuries, however slight. New pamphlet free. Address C. E. ARNOLD, Cincinnati, Ohio.

$10. to $500. Invested in Wall-Street often leads to fortune. A 72-page book explaining everything, and copy of the Wall Street Review SENT FREE. JOHN HICKLING & CO., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, N. Y.

PEOPLE WILL HAVE OUR GOODS. Send 25 cents and we will send by mail, prepaid, our LAMP FILLER, with which you can fill any Kerosene Lamp without removing chimney or getting grease outside of Lamp. At same time we mail you all our circulars and terms to agents on twenty useful household articles with which any person can make from $5 to $10 daily. We want Agents everywhere. NATIONAL AGENTS' EMPORIUM, BOSTON, MASS.

PIERCE WELL AUGER Company offers $1,000 to any one that will successfully compete with them in boring a 20-inch well, through soapstone and sand stone, and in taking up and passing bowlders and loose stones. Agents wanted in every State. $25 PER DAY GUARANTEED. Send for CATALOGUE. FREE. Address CHAS. D. PIERCE, Peru, Illinois.

$25 a day guaranteed using our Well Auger & Drills. $100 a month paid to good Agents. Auger book free. Jilz Auger Co., St. Louis, Mo.

ATTENTION, OWNERS OF HORSES. Ask your Harness Maker for the Zinc Collar Pad. They are warranted to cure any sore neck on horse or mule, or money refunded, if printed directions are followed. Send 75c. for sample. Zinc Collar Pad Co., Sole Manuf'rs, Buchanan, Mich.

HOW TO GET A HOME. IOWA LANDS, 800,000 ACRES. Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to DAVIDSON & CALKINS, R. R. Land Office, Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

LIVINGSTONE'S LIFE AND EXPLORATIONS with his "LAST JOURNALS," now ready! The ONLY complete Life and thrilling adventures in Africa of the great hero Explorer in his own language. Cheapest and best—only $2.50, splendidly illustrated. Outsells everything. AGENTS WANTED. Send for extra terms and proof; or, if in haste to begin work, send $1.00 for full outfit to genuine address, LIVINGSTONE'S PUBLISHERS, CHICAGO, ILL.

NEEDLES FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES can be obtained at about one-half the usual rates by ordering direct. Singer's, 40 cts. per dozen; Wheeler & Wilson, 60 cts.; Howe's, 60 cts.; Grover & Baker, 60 cts. and others in proportion. Inclose the amount and Needles will be returned by first mail. Address DEFIANCE NEEDLE CO., 658 Broadway, N. Y.

N. F. BURNHAM'S TURBINE WATER WHEEL Was selected, 4 years ago, and put to work in the Patent Office, Washington, D. C., and has proved to be the best. 19 sizes made. Prices lower than any other first-class Wheel. Pamphlet free. N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS. Langley's Patent Slate Paint—For Shingle, Tin, Iron and Gravel Roofs. This is a Fire and water-proof Paint, especially designed for shingle Roofs. An old roof Slate Painted will outlast a new one unpainted, and a new roof will last three times as long Slate Painted. As a matter of economy, a roof needs paint more than any other part of a building. Price 60 cents per gallon. Send for Phamplet. Agents wanted. WILLIS G. JACKSON, General Agent, 16 Washington St., Chicago.

SEA FOAM. C. W. Reed, Grocer, New Haven, Ct., says:—"Your Sea Foam cannot be excelled north of the equator, for Good Bread and Fine Biscuit it is a Wonderful Preparation." So say all. Pitcher, Flintner & Co., Wholesale Dealers, Boston, say:—"We take pleasure in recommending your Sea Foam as The Best Baking Powder we have ever sold." Parties once using it will have no other. Its sales are immense. Send for circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & Co., 176 Duane St., N. Y.

ELASTIC TRUSS. This new Truss is worn with perfect comfort night and day. Adapts itself to every motion of the body, retaining rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain until permanently cured. Sold cheap by the Elastic Truss Co., No. 683 Broadway, N. Y. City. Sent by mail. Call or send for Circular, and be cured.

NO YOU WILL NEVER have FRUIT IF YOU DON'T SET IT OUT. You can buy your fruit plants very cheap by contracting with me for them now. To be shipped in the fall, and no money required until the plants arrive. I will furnish good reference as to my reliability. Send for Price-List. Strawberries, Raspberries, Blackberries, Currants, Gooseberries, Grapes. THOMAS LESLIE, Ipava, Ill.

BOOK AGENTS Wanted to sell "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the cheapest book ever published; 885 pages, over 240 illustrations, $1.50. Thousands buy it at sight who could not be induced to purchase the high-priced books treating of Domestic Medicine. Unlike other books sold through agents, this work is thoroughly advertised throughout North America. This fact, together with the large size, elegant appearance, and many new features of the book, causes it to sell more rapidly than any work ever published in this country. Those of my agents who have had experience in selling books say that in all their previous canvassing they never met with such success or made so large wages as since commencing the sale of my work. For terms and territory, address (inclosing two postage stamps and stating experience) R. V. PIERCE, M. D., World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y. Note.—Mark envelope "For Publishing Dep't."

JOB PRINTING Office For Sale. On the first of July we shall offer our Job Printing Office for sale at a very low figure. We have over 200 fonts of the latest styles of Job Type, and everything which pertains to a complete Job Office outfit. Also, one Quarter-Medium Gordon Jobber of the latest improved style, one Hoe Card Press, and one Hoe Cylinder, 24x31 inch bed. Any number of second-hand News Cases. The attention of Printers is called to this sale, as we shall offer a great bargain for cash. For further particulars and specimen circular, address CHICAGO NEWSPAPER UNION, 114 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

Whether for use on man or beast, Merchant's Gargling Oil will be found an invaluable Liniment and worthy of use by every resident in the land. We know of no proprietary medicine or article now used in the United States which shares the good will of the people to a greater degree than this. Yellow wrapper for animal, and white for human. flesh.—N. Y. Independent.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL

Is the Standard Liniment of the United States. Established 1833. Large size, $1.00; medium size, 50 cents; small size, 25 cents. Small size for family use, 25 cents. Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company. JOHN HODGE, Secretary.

D. LANGELL'S NEW ASTHMA AND CATARRH REMEDY. Having struggled twenty years between life and death with ASTHMA, I experimented by compounding roots and herbs and inhaling the medicine. I fortunately discovered a wonderful remedy and sure cure for Asthma and Catarrh. Warranted to relieve instantly so the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Druggists are supplied with sample packages for free distribution. Call and get one, or address D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio. Sold by Druggists. Full-size Package, by mail, $1.25.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

Reject all Violent Purgatives. They ruin the tone of the bowels and weaken the digestion. Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient is used, by rational people as a means of relieving all derangements of the stomach, liver and intestines, because it removes obstructions without pain and imparts vigor to the organs which it purifies and regulates. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Judge Lee's Decision

Hon. Judge Lee of Bucyrus, O., says: "One morning last December I was seized with a violent pain in the neck of the bladder; alarmed, I sent for my physician. He examined me and prescribed Hamilton's Buchu and Dandelion. In a day or two I was much better, but having a return of the pain I continued the medicine. In two weeks I was entirely relieved, and I send you a calculus or gravel which I passed. When it first came it measured just an inch in length and one quarter in diameter. My distress is all gone and I have had no symptom of return. Next to God I thank you for my recovery." KRESS MAN'F'G CO. Cin.

STOCKS dealt in at the New York Stock Exchange bought and sold by us on margin of five per cent.

PRIVILEGES negotiated at one to two per cent. from market on members of the New York Exchange or responsible parties. Large sums have been realized the past 30 days. Put or call costs on 100 shares $106.25.

Straddles $250 each: control 200 shares of stock for 30 days without further risk, while many thousand dollars profit may be gained. Advice and information furnished. Pamphlet containing valuable statistical information and showing how Wall Street operations are conducted sent to any address. Orders solicited by mail or wire, and promptly executed by us. Address TUMBRIDGE & CO., Bankers and Brokers, No. 2 Wall Street, New York.

FREE

"THE Best Paint in the World!" RUBBER PAINT. RUBBER PAINT COMPANY CLEVELAND, O.

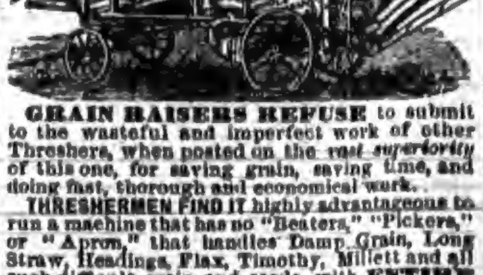
Every Man His Own Painter.

ANY SHADE from PURE WHITE to JET BLACK

Our RUBBER PAINT has been used on many thousand buildings and has always proved entirely satisfactory. We have numerous testimonials like the following, viz.: M. F. SHEPPARD & CO., Penn Yan, N. Y.: "We believe it to be the BEST PAINT manufactured." W. W. LELAND, "Eutaw House," Baltimore: "Having used your Paint on the Grand Hotel, Saratoga, and this Eutaw House, I recommend its use to all." Be sure that our TRADE-MARK (a fac-simile of which is given above) is on every package. Prepared ready for use and sold by the gallon only. Send for Sample Card and Price List. Branch Offices & Factories, 506 West st., NEW YORK. 210 South Third St., ST. LOUIS, MO. 83 West Van Buren Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.'S "VIBRATOR" THRESHER.

The BRILLIANT SUCCESS of this Grain-Saving, Time-Saving THRESHER, is unprecedented in the annals of Farm Machinery. In a brief period it has become widely known and FULLY ESTABLISHED, as the "LEADING THRESHING MACHINE."



GRAIN RAISERS REFUSE to submit to the wasteful and imperfect work of other Threshers, when posted on the vast superiority of this one, for saving grain, saving time, and doing fast, thorough and economical work.

THRESHERMEN FIND IT highly advantageous to run a machine that has no "Beaters," "Pickers," or "Apron," that handles Damp Grain, Long Straw, Headings, Flax, Timothy, Millett and all such difficult grain and seeds, with ENTIRE EASE AND EFFECTIVENESS. Cleans to perfection; saves the farmer his thresh bill by extra saving of grain; makes no "Litterings;" requires LESS THAN ONE-HALF the usual Belts, Boxes, Journals, and Gears; easier managed; less repairs; one that grain raisers prefer to employ and wait for, even at advanced prices, while other machines are "out of jobs."

Four sizes made with 6, 8, 10 and 12 horse "Mounted" Powers, also a specialty of Separators "alone," expressly for STEAM POWER, and to match other Horse Powers.

If interested in grain raising, or threshing, write for Illustrated Circulars (sent free) with full particulars of sizes, styles, prices, terms, etc.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Michigan.

VINEGAR BITTERS. PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL. DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California, and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

OPIUM HABIT Cured Cheap. No Publicity. Dr. Armstrong, Berrien, Mich.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE. MEDICINE RENDERED USELESS! VOLTA'S ELECTRO BELTS and Bands are indorsed by the most eminent physicians in the world for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, liver complaint, dyspepsia, kidney disease, aches, pains, nervous disorders, fits, female complaints, nervous and general debility and other chronic diseases of the chest, head, liver, stomach kidneys and blood. Book with full particulars free by VOLTA BELT Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Smith Organ Co., BOSTON, MASS. These Standard Instruments Sold by Music Dealers Everywhere. AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWN. Sold throughout the United States on the INSTALLMENT PLAN: That is, on a System of Monthly Payments. Purchasers should ask for the SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN. Catalogues and full particulars on application.

DR RIDGE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS

HALL'S PATENT STANDARD SAFES AT "HARD PAN" PRICES. HALL'S SAFE & LOCK CO. CHICAGO, ILL.

BECKWITH PORTABLE FAMILY SEWING $25. MACHINE DOUBLE THREAD. BECKWITH S. M. CO. NEW YORK

"PSYCHOMANCY, or Soul Charming." How either sex may fascinate and gain the love and affection of any person they choose, instantly. This art all can possess, free, by mail, 25 cents; together with a Marriage Guide, Egyptian Oracle, Dreams, Hints to Ladies, &c. 1,000,000 sold. A queer book. Address T. WILLIAMS & CO., Publishers, Philadelphia.

DR. WHITTIER, No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo., continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. Dr. W.'s establishment is chartered by the State of Missouri, was founded and has been established to secure safe, certain and reliable relief. Being a graduate of several medical colleges, and having the experience of a long and successful life in his specialties, he has perfected remedies that are effectual in all these cases. His patients are being treated by mail or express everywhere. No matter who failed, call or write. From the great number of applications he is enabled to keep his charges low. 36 pages, giving full symptoms, for two stamps.

MARRIAGE GUIDE, 260 pages, a popular book which should be read by everybody. No married pair, or persons contemplating marriage, can afford to do without it. It contains the cream of medical literature on this subject, the results of Dr. W.'s long experience; also the best thoughts from late works in Europe and America. Sent sealed, post-paid for 50 cts.

C. N. U. No. 27

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

A New Store

With an entire new stock of

BOOTS & SHOES,

New STYLES of all kinds at the LOWEST PRICES at

J. E. WOODFORD'S

I have located at Auburn with a fine stock of BOOTS and SHOES, which will be sold at the Lowest Figures for Cash!

My Facilities for making CUSTOM WORK are not excelled anywhere and those favoring me—with their orders may be certain of getting the best material.

W. W. HUMES, Foreman.

To the trade, great inducements are offered in Leather, Findings, &c. Please call and examine my stock before purchasing.

FRESH ARRIVAL OF NEW GOODS

AT THE

GRAND CENTRAL

Woolen Goods for the next THIRTY DAYS sold without regard to

A JOB LOT OF SHAWLS

Bleached and Brown Muslin,
Percales and Prints, Denims,
And Shirtings, Carpets and
Oilcloths, Table Linen and
Towling. A Large assort of

ALPACCAS,

AT BOTTOM PRICES,

Gents' Collars, Hats, and Suspenders. Ladies Collars and Cuffs, Willow Ware, Satchels, and Carpet Bags. COTTENADES from 15c to 35c per yd, fine assortment of

CASSIMERES,

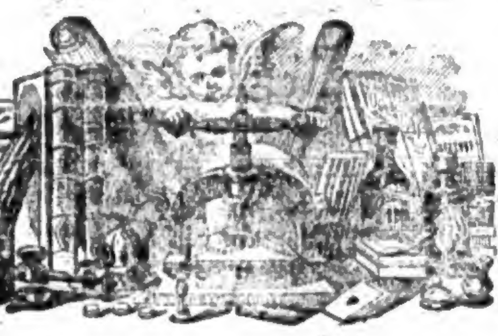
at very low figures. Call at the Grand Central, next door to Davis' Hard ware store.

WILLIAM RICHMOND, Pro.

C. P. Houser & Co.,

—Dealer In—

BOOKS AND STATIONERY



BEST
Window Paper
HOLLAND'S
and Oil Shades always on hand and CHEAP for CASH.

PICTURES.
FRAMES,
CORD,
and TASSELS,
Curtain and Window Fix'trs
the Best in the Market.

—The Largest and finest assortment of—

WALL PAPER

EVER BROUGHT TO THIS MARKET.

Their store is located in Ensley's new brick block, North of the Court House, AUBURN, INDIANA.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

F. E. DAVENPORT,

Corner Main and Eighth-Sts.,

—DEALER IN—

Pure Drugs and Medicines,

DYE STUFFS, PERFUMERY,

Toilet Soaps Cosmetics, Hair Oils, Brushes, Combs, Toilet Mirrors, and Druggists' Sundries in General.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY!

Wall and Window Paper!

Oiled, Linen and Slat Window Shades, and Shade Fixtures.

All the lattest POEMS and MISSELANIOUS BOOKS constantly on hand or ordered. Blank Books, Pocket Memorandas, Portmonies and Bill Books, WRITING PAPERS. All Styles and prices ALBUMS! ALBUMS! ALBUMS just received for the Holliday trade Over $300.00 worth of Juvenile and Toy Books, which will be sold at panic prices. Smith's Gold Pens, warranted the best. Also steel Pens, Penholders, Pencils, Ink and Ink Stands &c.

SCHOOL BOOKS!

Covered with best Cover ever invented Free Of Charge

Davenport has the exclusive right to use this book cover in Auburn, and will give his patrons the benefit of the same.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In Amrican & Swiss Watches,

TOYS

FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishment It will pay you to call and be convinced that I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,
Jewelry,
Clocks, Silver Ware!
GOLD PENS,
Ladies GOLD Chains,
Gents Chains,
Gold and Silver Rings,
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,

V. A BEARD

Grocer in Auburn, North of Court House on Seventh Street,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS

TEAS, COFFEES, SUGARS, SALT FISH.

Flour and Feed, Tubs Pails, Buckets, Sugars Boxes, Etc. A large var

TOBACCOS AND CIGARS,

Confectioneries of all kinds, and Fancy Notions, Cove Oysters, &c. A speciality in Green and Dried Fruits, and Canned Fruits. Goods delivered inside the coporation.

Miller & Casebeer's

CORNER STORE AHEAD.

An immense stock of

SUMMER GOODS

JUST RECEIVED!

Call and examine Goods and Prices.

Goods marked down 25 per cent lower than ever offered before in this market. A mammoth stock of

FINE DRESS GOODS,

to select from, now is the time to call and

SECURE BARGAINS,

you can save 25 per cent, by buying your goods now at

MILLER & CASEBEER'S

Corner Store.

RAILROADS.

Indianapolis Peru & Chicago R. R.

TIME TABLE No. 13.—Dec. 20, 1874.

Northward.

Stations.	No. 1	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Indianapolis	5 20a	12 25p	5 50p	[illegible]
Noblesville	[illegible]	12 20	[illegible]	[illegible]
Tipton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Kokomo	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Miami	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Peru	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Southward.

Stations.	No. 2	No. 4	No. 6
Indianapolis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Noblesville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Tipton	[illegible]	2 28	[illegible]
Kokomo	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Miami	2 40	[illegible]	[illegible]
Peru	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

[illegible]

Lake Shore & Mich. Southern R. R

Air Line Division

On and after Sunday, Nov. [illegible], 1874, Passenger Trains will leave [illegible] and other Stations as follows, daily except Sundays:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom'd'n
Butler	2:40 p m	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterloo	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Sedan	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Corunna	[illegible]	[illegible]	7:55

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.15 pm	[illegible] pm	[illegible] m
Sedan	2.20	[illegible]	7:02
Waterloo	2:28	[illegible]	7:11
Butler	2:40	[illegible]	7:35

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
[illegible] Gen. Tic. Agt.
[illegible] Division Su[illegible]

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Time Table to take effect May 23, 1875.

Going South.

Fort Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ossian	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bluffton	[illegible]	8 1?	[illegible]
Keystone	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Montpelier	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hartford	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eaton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Muncie	[illegible]	[illegible]	9 15
Mechanicsb'g	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
New Castle	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cam. City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Beesons	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Connersville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Indianapolis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Louisville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cincinnati	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Going North.

Cincinnati	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Louisville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Indianapolis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Connersville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Beesons	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cam. City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
New Castle	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mechanicsb'g	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Muncie	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eaton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hartford	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Montpelier	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Keystone	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bluffton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ossian	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	11 00

W. W. WORTHINGTON, Supt.
[illegible] Gen'l Ticket Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect May 24th [illegible] Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Mail	[illegible]	Jack. Acm
Cincinnati	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Louisville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Indianapolis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft Wayne	10 45	[illegible]	[illegible]
Auburn	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterloo	11 56	[illegible]	[illegible]
Summit	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pleasant Lake	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ar Angola	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Reading	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hunters	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Jonesville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Jackson	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Detroit	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Grand Rapids	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lansing	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Saginaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bay City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Going South.

Bay City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Saginaw	7 30	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lansing	10 40	[illegible]	[illegible]
Grand Rapids	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Detroit	9 40	[illegible]	[illegible]
Jackson Dep	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Jonesville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hunters	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Reading	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
At Angola	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pleasant Lake	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterloo	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Auburn	4 20	[illegible]	12 40
Auburn Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Fort Wayne Arrive	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Indianapolis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Louisville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cincinnati	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

P. [illegible] LOOMIS, Supt.
E. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

DETOIT, EEL RIVER & ILLINOIS Rail Road.

Short Line between Auburn and the East and West.

Trains run on Cleveland time. Through trains will run on the following time, in effect Sunday June 20th, 1875.

Going East.				Going West.
No. 7 Thru	No. 5 Fre't	Mail	STATIONS	Mail	No. [illegible] W. F	No. 8 Local
[illegible]	7 00a	[illegible]	lv Logans't ar	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	11.05	Adamsboro.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
4.30	[illegible]	[illegible]	Rosser's	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
4.40	[illegible]	11.32	Mexico	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	Denver.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
6.15	9.50	12.15	Chili	[illegible]	[illegible]	9 05
6.49	10.40	12.31	Roann	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
7.14	11.20	12.47	Laketon	4.30	3.50	8.48
7.40	12.10	[illegible]	N. Manchester	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
8.00	1.10p	1.06	Lib. Mills	[illegible]	2.40	[illegible]
8.25	1.40	1.16	Collamer	4.07	2.00	7.47
8.40	2.10	1.22	S. Whitley.	4.02	1.50	[illegible]
9.05	2.35	1.33	Taylor's	[illegible]	12.30	[illegible]
9.20	2.57	1.47	Columbia city	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
10.15	4.10	2.03	Collin's	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
10.45	4.30	2.14	Churubusco	3.08	10.32	[illegible]
11.10	5.15	2.24	Potter's	2.57	9.53	5.20
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	G. R. Crossing	2.49	[illegible]	[illegible]
11.45	[illegible]	2.40	Cedar Creek	2.40	[illegible]	4.50
[illegible]	[illegible]	2.52	Aub. Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	4.20
12.30	7.00	2.58	Auburn	2.20	8.00	4.10
1.00	7.20	3.15	Moorresville	2.02	[illegible]	[illegible]
1.25a	7.55	[illegible]	ar. Butler lv.	1.50	6.25	[illegible]

CONNECTIONS—At Logansport with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St Louis, Logansport, Crawfordsville & Southwestern and Toledo, Wabash & Western R. R's. At Denver with Indianapolis, Peru & Chicago Railway, for Rochester, Plymouth, LaPorte, Michigan City, Peru, Kokomo and Indianapolis At N Manchester with Cincinnati, Wabash & Mich R'y. At Columbia City with Pittsburg, Ft. W. & Chicago, for Ft Wayne Lima, Crestline and Pittsburg. At Grand Rapids crossing with Grand Rapids R'y. At Auburn Junction with Ft. Wayne Jackson & Saginaw, for Angola, Jackson and Saginaw R'y, for Butler with Lake Shore & Mich. Southern Caw. Toledo, Detroit and all eastern cities.

J. A. HUGHSTON, Gen. Ticket Agt.
A. B. SOUTHARD, Gen. Supt.

THE STAR WELL AND PROSPECTING AUGER.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD!

Mr. LEVI BROWN, living two miles south of Corunna, has purchased the right of this celebrated Auger, and is now prepared to put in wells. Everything is warranted and satisfaction guaranteed.

LEVI BROWN.

BALTIMORE & OHIO R. R

FROM 135 TO 6 MILES

The shortest route from the West to Washington, Baltimore AND THE EAST.

CONDENSED TIME TABLE THRO' TRAINS.

VIA PARKERSBURG Dec 14, '74	Express	Fast Express.	St Louis Ex.
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arr. Chillicothe	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arr. Grafton	[illegible]	[illegible]	11 10
" Cumberland	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" Martinsburg	[illegible]	[illegible]	6 10
" Harper's Ferry	[illegible]	[illegible]	6 51
" Staunton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" Washington	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" Richmond	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" Baltimore	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" Philadelphia	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" New York	[illegible]	10 22	[illegible]
" Boston	[illegible]	[illegible]	4 50 pm

VIA COLUMBUS [illegible]	Express	Fast Express.	Fast Line
Lve. Cincinnati	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lve Dayton S. L.	6 30 a m	[illegible]	[illegible]
" Cincinnati	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" Columbus	11 35	4 00‡p m	12 20†
Arr. Newark	1 00 p m	5 25	1 45 a m
" Zanesville	[illegible]	6 55	2 57
" Bellaire	[illegible]	10 55	6 50
" Wheeling	[illegible]	12 50 n'gt	8 00
" Grafton	[illegible]	[illegible]	11 05
" Cumberland	[illegible]	7 40	[illegible]
" Martinsburg	4 35	10 15	6 10
" Harper's Ferry	[illegible]	[illegible]	9 51
" Washington	7 15	12 40 n'n	6 50
" Richmond	[illegible]	[illegible]	4 00 a m
" Baltimore	[illegible]	[illegible]	10 20†pm
" Philadelphia	[illegible]	[illegible]	2 35 a m
" New York	[illegible]	10 22†	[illegible]
" Boston	[illegible]	[illegible]	4 50 p m

B—Breakfast. —Dinner. S—Supper. †Daily ‡Daily ex. Sunday. ¶Daily ex. Monday.

PULMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS

from Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Columbus, to

WASHINGTON AND BALTIMORE!

PHILADELPHIA

WITHOUT CHANGE.

[illegible] further information can [illegible] Ticket Offices through out the [illegible] West.

THOS. P. BARRY, West. passeng. agt., Cin.
L. M. COLE, Gen'l ticket agt., Bal. Md.
THOS. R. SHARP, Mas. of Tran.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN,

No. 37, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

Has the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

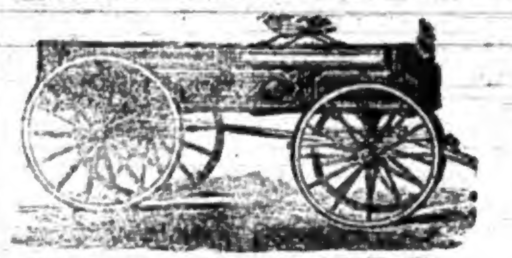
Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring.

[illegible] done in all the latest styles, from [illegible] largest stock of G[illegible]

The Auburn



WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders for

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give us a call and ascertain our prices.

THE AUBURN

Marble Works!

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have permanently located in Auburn, and are now prepared to attend to all orders for which they are prepared to turn out in a superior manner at reasonable rates. Works west the Bakery.

Monuments, Tomb-Stones, &c.,

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Ryan & Mader, pro's

Having on hand everything in the line of Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, &c we are prepared to furnish rigs at all times at reasonable prices. Stable east of Court House.

O J Hoffman

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JULY 15, 1875. Number 27.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year.........$2. | Six Months.......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	[illegible]	50 00
One Column.......	15 00	30 00	[illegible]	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.
J. W. RICKEL, R. DEXTER TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store, Ucal's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Miller and Casebeer's Store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, will attend to all calls in the time of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical disease. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing al the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience, of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel. My medicians are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of diceases without producing any bad effect, upon the nervous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of q inine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on fifth street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 34 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago.
O SANDS, Prop'r.
$2.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.
J. H. FORD, Pres't.
J. A COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire Line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind, Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,

CHAIRS

Husk & Hair Matrasses

50 and 52 East Main Street,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experience corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. U. Tarney

AUBURN MEAT MARKET!

KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Main-st first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store.

BRICK FOR SALE

FRITZ GROESCOP.

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick, about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable figures. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Kutzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some of the above Tile, which they are selling at a very low figure. We offer

Four Inch Sizes at 50 cts. per Rod,
Six " " " 75 " "

Every person who intend to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office. LANHAM & HOSE,
v5n11 Auburn, Indiana.

J. J. VanAuken,

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying. Office with Rose & Hartman, Auburn Indiana. Persons requesting work by letter, should give township and section.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

BAKER BROS.

PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!

AND

EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes etc, always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.

BAKER BROS.

AUBURN

Meat Market.

Main St. Next door to Klotz's.

MICH HOUSTON

PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

MERCHANTS

National Bank!

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Capital and Surplus $112.000

Receives Deposits, Discounts Business Paper, issues Letters of Credit, and Collects at all points at the lowest rates of exchange.

Directors:

S. CARY EVANS, R. C. ROBERTSON,
H. C. HANNA, N. P. STOCKBRIDGE
A. C. DAWSON.

Organized 1865. April 9, '74

NEW

Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep

FLOUR, CORN,
OATS, MILL FEED,
&c. at all times and at the

Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs, &c.
WM. LANHAM.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO,

26 East Berry street.

☞ MANY New and Choice Goods on sale at Bond's Novelty Store, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Indiana. New goods arriving daily. Special bargains in

Table Linen,

Corsets, Gloves, Hosiery; Muslins, Flannels, White Goods, Ladies Ties, Handkerchiefs, Portmonias and many goods not kept elsewhere. Large four-story stone front building, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R

IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,

Notions, etc., of

CHARLES KLOTZ

AT HIS

Old Stand

ON MAN STREET,

Opposite Court Square

AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accommodate customers, and sell them such goods as they may need,

CLOTHING

Of all descriptions, and

HANDSOME SUITS

Made to Order!

TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE.

"CHOOSE YOUR VOCATION AND HONOR IT."

The Independent Telegragh Institute, located in Auburn Dekalb Co. Ind., are offering the best opportunity of learning Telegraphy Railroad business and Phonographical writing ever offered to the public. Tuition very low and good boarding furnished Students for $3.50 to $3.75 per week, and situations furnished students as soon as they are capable of taking charge of a Telegraph office. Wages from $40 to $100 dollars per month. For further information address, Independent Telegraph Institute, Lock Box 76, Auburn Indiana.

OFFICERS.
J. E. SHREVE, Superintendent.
Prof. S.S. Shaner Principal Instructor R R. Dep't.
Dr. L. Sanders Instructor Phonographical Witer.

THE COURIER office is the place to get a good job done. We keep always on hand the best material in the market

"SCULPED."

"Injuns, stranger—Injuns? Yes. I know the whole gang of 'em from Red Cloud and Spotted Tail down to the toddling papooses. I ought to know 'em—I've fit 'em for nigh onto thirty years!"

He was a grim-looking old man, with grizzly locks in view under his coon skin cap. He had on a bear-skin coat, Indian moccasins, buckskin shirt and leggins, and he held a long rifle between his knees as we talked.

"These Western railroads are rapidly civilizing the country—fast killing off Indians, wolves and buffaloes?"

He looked around the car, which was handsomely furnished and finished, and sighed as he replied:

"Yes, times is gittin' wuss an' wuss down this way. I've been thinkin' of goin' up to the Yellowstone, whar a man can go out any time o' day and git up a squar fight with a grizzly or raise a rumpus with the reds."

"You must be quite an old man?"

"Only 'bout sixty. I aint quite so limber on a long run, an' can't sleep quite so well with the rain pouring down into my face, but if I thought I wasn't good for any three Injuns on the plains, or any grizzly that ever stood on legs, I'd ax you to shoot me!"

"Yo-must have seen wild times out here?"

"Purty wild—purty wild," mused the old man; "there used to be heaps o' reds out here, to say nothing of the wolves, bars and rattlesnakes, an' thar was a time when death rose up to shake hands with me."

"Ever taken prisoner?"

"I mought hev been—I guess I was!" he said as he uncovered his head.

"Why, you've been scalped!"

"They call it sculping, stranger!"

"And who did that?"

"This same blasted Red Cloud. He didn't use the knife, but he stood by and hollered and encouraged the chap who did it."

"Your sensations must have been terrible."

"There wasn't time to feel any sensations, stranger. They sneaked in on me an' Tom as we dozed, an' when I woke up Tom was riddled an' my sculp was hanging to an Injun's belt!"

"And what then?"

"Nothing much. I got up and killed two, wounded another, and legged it up a canon and got away. If it was to do over again I'd git my topknot back or fight the whole Sioux nation till somebody went under!"

He seemed lost in reflection for a moment, and then continued:

"I don't know what sculps are wuth in the market, but I guess I've got the full value o' mine. I've knocked over risin' of thirty Sioux since that night, an' I guess I'd be willing to pass receipts!"

"I suppose you've had a turn at half a dozen different tribes?"

"Less see?" he mused. "Thar's the Sioux, Blackfeet, Pawnees, Arapahoes, Shoshones, Cheyennes, an' three or four other tribes. They've all hunted me and I've hunted them, an' I can't say as they owe me anything."

"I notice a bad scar on your face."

"Purty good scar for a common man, but I kin show ye the sculp-lock of the Pawnee who made it. He jumped onto me jist after I had swum a river, and he thought he'd got hold of a jack-rabit. 'Twas a bad cut, and it kind a 'mazed me at fust, but when I did come too, he was gone afore he could yell twice! I said it was a pooty good scar, but it isn't quite ekal to this."

And he pushed up the leggins on his right leg and exhibited a scar which made me draw back. The foot, ankle, and the leg as high as I could see had been burned by fire.

"The Blackfeet had me fast to a stake once, ye observe," he explained. "That was the time when they poked each other in the ribs an' said they had a dead-sure thing on old Carter, but they wuz mistaken. They had me there three days, and I'd been kicked an' cuffed around until there wasn't any more fun in it, an' then they tied me to a stake an' lighted a fire around me. 'Twas pretty clus, stranger—pretty clus!"

"And how did you escape?"

"half a dozen of my old pards came along jist in time to knock over half the band, and save me."

There was silence again while he unbuttoned his shirt and showed me a bosom literally gridironed with scars.

"Well, thar may be two or three knife cuts thar," he explained, "but the heft o' them scars wuz made by a grizzly. He wasn't one o' these bar calves that some folks knock over an' then blow about, but a reg'lar three-story, old fashioned grizzly, such as ye don't find outside o' the darkest canons in the Rockies. I was bending over the fire when the varmint slid down a canon an' wuz right on hand afore I had any warnin'"

"And was it a hard fight?"

"It wuz a purty fight, stranger, because it wuz a fa'r fight. I had a big knife, an' he had teeth an' claws, an' we went in ter kill. He wuz good grit, but a leetle slow. There wuz about thirty days after that little epysode that my pard had to nuss me like a child."

"And you mean to die out here?"

"That's for the Lord to say, but I 'spects yer mor'n right. The Injuns is purty quiet down here, an' these keers is bringing heaps o' people West, but I'm goin' up whar a white man won't disturb the Lord's work for a hundred years to cum! I feel kinder mean an' small down here—as if I wuz hustin' rabbits, but up the Yellowstone a feller kin brace up after he's knocked over a red or two an' feel as if he wasn't foolin' away his young days!"

And that was old Carter.

A Detroit Man's Joke.

He did not look like a joker. One, to sit and study his face would have said that his soul was so lost in melancholly that he didn't care two cents whether the sun set at noon or steyed up until seven o'clock. He entered the ladies' sitting-room at the Central depot, walked up to a woman whose husband had left the room about ten minutes previously, and calmly inquired:

"Madam, your husband went out to see the river, didn't he?"

"Yes—why?" she asked, turning pale in an instant.

"He was a tall man, wasn't he?"

"He was," she replied, rising up and turning still paler.

"Had red hair?"

"He had—oh! what has happened?"

"Weighed about 180 pounds?"

"Yes—yes—where is he—where is my husband?" she exclaimed.

"Couldn't swim, could he?"

"He's drowned—my husband is drowned!" she wailed.

"Had a silver watch-chain?" continued the stranger.

"Where is my husband—where is the body?" she gasped.

"Do not get excited, madam. Did your husband have on a gray suit?"

"Yes—oh! my Thomas, my Thomas!"

"And stoga boots?"

"Let me see him—let me see him," she cried.

"Come this way, madam, but do not get excited. There, is that your husband, across the street at the peanut stand?"

"Why, yes, that's him; that's my husband," she exclaimed joyfully; "I thought you said he was drowned."

"No, madam, I did not. I saw him buying peanuts, and I believed it my duty to say to you that peanuts are not healthy at this season of the year."

He slid softly out, and she stood and chewed her parasol and started after him as if he were a menagerie on wheels—[Detroit Free Press.

More Cheek Than a Book Canvasser.

As an example of unlimited cheek, the performance of a young man who, until this morning, boarded on South Canal street, will do very well. This engaging young creature, whose name is surpressed at the request of his victims, left his boarding house last night, taking with him a gold watch and suit of clothes belonging to the proprietor, and a watch and hat and small amount of money from a fellow-boarder. This morning the victims of his thievery found the following note, which was addressed to the gentleman who lost the gold watch:

Mr. ——: Ere reading this you will probably have missed me, together with your watch and a few articles of clothing, etc. In acknowledging your past kindness to me, I can only say that the circumstances must be very arbitrary that would prompt me to leave you in this manner. During the last few days I got into a trouble unnecessary to state, and am forced to leave Chicago against my inclinations. I shall go to my brother in Cincinnati, and from there direct to New York, when I will see that your watch is returned, and that you are well paid for your clothes, etc.

I might, perhaps, ask a special favor that you don't give publicity to this matter, as it will injure me at home, and not add to the surety of your getting the things any sooner. Thanking you and Mrs. ——for your uniform kindness, and wishing I were more worthy of it, I am yours, truly.—[Chicago Post and Mail.

◆

A gentle, husbandless creature in Illinois writes to a lawyer who advertised that he would provide companions for unmarried persons: "My Dear Mr.——: This is to certify that I am a widow with thirteen children born; have had three husbands, each of which died in his own way. I have a small farm, and would take another husband yet, if I could find a young one; no old, bull-headed sardine need apply—he will not be taken in. Ten dollars will be given you to produce the man."

Breach of Promise in Baltimore.

A remarkable suit for breach of promise has recently been brought to light before the Baltimore courts, the details of which reveal a curious custom among the Polish Jews. The suit was brought by a Hebrew maiden named Yetta Mausinervitz against Isaac Mayloss, also a Hebrew, $10,000 damages being laid by the plaintiff. The alleged engagement was by a symbolic betrothal, each taking hold of the ends of a handkerchief and pulling it, the signification being that the parties are held or bound to each other, and sometimes, though not always, the words, "We are bound," or a similar phrase, are pronounced. A number of witnesses testified that such a custom of betrothal existed among orthodox Polish Jews though not among German Jews. It was proven that this ceremony was performed between the plaintiff and defendant, and that the defendant went to the house where she lived, taking with him his sister, and, after an hour's conversation with each other, they went through the form of handkerchief-pulling in the presence of several persons. The Judge instructed the jury that if such a custom existed among the Polish Jews, and if the custom had been observed by the parties, the contract of marriage need not be proven by express words, but may be shown by acts, by frequent visits and other significant attentions. The jury hung upon the ragged edge of the legal technicality for a while, and then found a verdict for the young lady who considered her affections blighted, and affixed the momentary value of the damages caused by the said blight at one cent.

The Inventor of the Wheelbarrow.

It takes a great man to do a little thing sometimes.

Who do you think invented that very simple thing called the wheelbarrow? Why, no less a man than Leonardo da Vinci.

And who was he?

He was a musician, poet, painter, architect, sculptor, physiologist, engineer, natural historian, botanist, and inventor, all in one. He wasn't a "Jack of all trades and master of none," either. He was a real master of many arts, and a practical worker besides.

When did he live?

Somewhere about the time that Columbus discovered America.

And where was he born?

In that beautiful city of Florence, in Italy.

Perhaps some of you may feel a little better acquainted with him when I tell you that it was Leonardo da Vinci who painted one of the grandest pictures in the world—"The Last Supper"—a picture that has been copied many times, and engraved in several styles, so that almost every one has an idea of the arrangement and position at the table of the figures of our Lord and His disciples; though I am told that, without seeing the painting itself, no one can form a notion of how grand and beautiful it is.

And only to think of the thousands of poor, hard-working Americans who really own of their wheelbarrow an original "work," in Leonardo da Vinci.

Drinking Water.

Dr. Hall is opposed to the immoderate drinking of water. He says:

The longer one puts off drinking water in the morning, especially in the summer, the less he will require during the day; if much is drank during the forenoon, the thirst often increases, and a very unpleasant fulness is observed, in addition to a metallic taste in the mouth.

The less a man drinks the better for him, beyond a moderate amount. The more water a man drinks the more strength he has to expend to get rid of it, for all the fluid taken into the system must be carried out; and as there is but little nourishment in water, tea, coffee, beer and the like, more strength is expended in carrying them out of the system than they impart to it. The more a man drinks the more he must perspire, either by lungs or through the skin; the more he perspires the more carbon is taken from the system; but this carbon is necessary for nutrition, hence the less a man is nourished the less strength he has.

Drinking water largely diminishes the strength in two ways, and yet, many are under the impression that the more water swallowed, the more thoroughly is the system "washed out." Thus the less we drink at meals, the better for us. If the amount were limited to a single cup of hot tea, or hot milk and water at each meal, an immeasurable good would result to all. Many persons have fallen into the practice of drinking several glasses of cold water, or several cups of hot tea or coffee at meals, out of mere habit; all such will be greatly benefitted by breaking it up at once; it may be very well to drink a little at each meal, and, perhaps it will be found that in all cases, it is much better to take a single glass of hot tea at each meal, than a glass of cold water, however pure.

POOR LITTLE JOE.

BY PELEG ARKWRIGHT.

Prop yer eyes wide open, Joey,
Fur I've brought you sumpin' great.
Apples? No, a derned sight better!
Don't you take no int'rest? Wait!
Flowers, Joe—I know'd you'd like 'em—
Ain't them scrumptious? Ain't them high?
Tears, my boy? Wot's them fur, Joey?
There—poor little Joe!—don't cry!

I was skippin' past a winder,
Where a bang-up lady sot,
All amongst a lot of bushes—
Each one climbin' from a pot;
Every bush had flowers on it—
Pretty? Mebbe not! Oh, no!
Wish you could a seen 'em growin',
It was sich a stunnin' show.

Well, I thought of you, poor feller,
Lyin' here so sick and weak,
Never knowin' any comfort,
And I puts on lots o' cheek.
"Missus," says I, "if you please, mum,
Could I ax you for a rose?
For my little brother, missus,
Never seed one, I suppose."

Then I told her all about you—
How I bringed you up—poor Joe!
(Lackin' women folks to do it,)
Sich a' imp you was, you know—
Till yer got that awful tumble,
Jist as I had broke yer in (Hard work, too) to earn yer livin'
Blackin' boots for honest tin.

How that tumble crippled of you,
So's you couldn't hyper much—
Joe, it hurted when I seen you
Fur the first time with yer crutch.
"But," I says, "he's laid up now, mum,
'Pears to weaken every day;
Joe, she up and went to cuttin'—
That's the how of this bokay.

Say! It seems to me, ole feller,
You is quite yerself to-night;
Kind o' chirk—it's been a fortnit
Sence yer eyes has been so bright.
Better! Well, I'm glad to hear it!
Yes, they're mighty pretty, Joe.
Smellin' of 'em's made you happy?
Well, I thought it would, you know!

Never see the country, did you?
Flowers growin' everywhere!
Some time when you're better, Joey,
Mebbe I kin take you there.
Flowers in heaven! 'M—I s'pose so;
Dunno much about it, though;
Ain't as fly as wot I might be
On them topics, little Joe.

But I've heerd it hinted somewheres
That in heaven's golden gates
Things is everlastin' cheerful—
B'lieve that's wot the Bible states.
Likewise, there folks don't git hungry;
So good people, wen they dies,
Finds themselves well fixed forever—
Joe, my boy, wot ails yer eyes?

Thought they looked a little sing'lar.
Oh, no! Don't you have no fear;
Heaven was made fur such as you is—
Joe, wot makes you look so queer?
Here—wake up! Oh, don't look that way!
Joe! My boy! Hold up your head!
Here's yer flowers—you dropped 'em, Joey.
Oh, my God, can Joe be dead?
—New York Graphic.

A BRAVE GIRL.

A Story of Twenty Years Ago.

It was one of the bleakest of November days, when loose shutters flap, swinging signs creak, and the wind, blowing in fitful gusts, plays the mischief generally, that a hasty message came to "Pine Farms," as the quaint, pine-studded old place was called.

An old and tried friend lay dying in the next village, the messenger said, and if Farmer Harris and wife would be there in time for a parting word they must come at once. The dying man had been from early boyhood John Harris' fast friend, and it was with trembling hands he hastened to harness the old gray mare—his wife meanwhile, with her daughter Bessie's assistance, hurrying together such articles as might be needed for a two days' absence.

In less than an hour everything was ready, and the white-haired couple, seated within the roomy space of the old-time chaise, lingered for a moment's conversation ere they departed.

The distance to Morton, the next village, was not great, nine or ten miles at most, and the intervening road, although unfrequented, considered perfectly safe; but on this occasion the farmer and his usually cheery old wife found themselves leaving the house with a strange feeling of reluctance. It might have been the effect of the message they had just received; or perhaps the weird dreariness of the day that so effected their spirits, but certain it was that neither had in all their lives experienced such utter depression, such an overwhelming foreboding of evil to come.

"I don't know why it is," the old lady remarked, as she kissed Bessie for the last time, "but I never hated so to leave home in my life. It seems as if I was leaving you to some danger."

"No fear of that," laughed pretty Bessie Harris. "Tom will be home in half an hour, and besides, we have plenty of firearms in the house should they be needed."

"Well," rejoined her father, "take care of yourself, anyway," and looking back as he drove away, "lock up the house directly."

"Whatever could have made them so nervous I wonder," thought Bessie, as she watched the chaise out of sight; "and the idea of my locking up now—why it's scarcely more than five o'clock."

Nevertheless the girl proceeded to do as she had been directed, and taking up her sewing, sat down by one of the windows to watch for Tom. Presently he came, a rustic Apollo in beauty, a young Samson in strength, and Bessie could not but smile to herself at the thought of danger, with herculean Tom so near. Yet danger, and that of the direst sort, was even then very near, lurking in the very air and casting its hideous shadow athwart the pathway of the sunny-hearted young girl.

The brother and sister sat down to tea, and Bessie laughingly related the strange nervousness her father and mother had evinced as they drove away that afternoon; but Tom only looked grave, and when an hour later a knock came at the kitchen door, he strode toward it with an involuntary expansion of muscle and a fist ready for use. But he almost laughed outright at his superstitious folly when the slight figure of a neighboring farmer's boy presented itself in the doorway. The lad, like the messenger of the afternoon, brought no good tidings. His young master, one of Tom's chums, had just been thrown from his horse, and the affrighted mother wanted him to come over, while he, the boy, went for the doctor.

It was a request not to be refused, and forgetting any fears he might have had on Bessie's account, the young man at once put on his hat and coat and prepared to obey the summons.

"Don't open the door to any one, sis," he called back as he left, "and if I return to-night I will tap three times on the door, and probably call out."

"I shall read until twelve," she pleasantly responded, "and if you come after that you will have to tap very loudly," and with a little laugh Tom strode away in the darkness toward his friend's house.

* * *

The old Dutch clock in the corner had just struck nine, and Bessie, reading in her comfortable arm chair, was startled by three distinct taps on the door from which her brother had recently passed out.

"What!" she exclaimed to herself, "Tom back so soon!"

And regardless of the admonitions of the afternoon, and the parting words of her brother, Bessie hastened to throw open the door; but no sooner had she drawn the bolt than a large man—not Tom, however—walked past her into the room, two others following quickly at his heels, the last one closing and locking the door behind him. The first of the three who had thus unceremoniously presented himself, from this fact as well as from his gigantic figure and peculiar bearing, appeared to be the leader of the party, and it was he who now addressed the affrighted girl.

"Young woman," said he, "we'll just state our business in two words, and remember, the first show of noise, even to a whimper on your part will fetch this," and he presented an immense horse-pistol close to her cheek. "And now to it," he continued with a grim smile at his companions. "If you happen to have any odd change or watches a-layin' around, we'll just take them along; and first, my beauty," and he looked sharply at her, "we three are a-goin' to have a little fun," and then drawing her down upon his knee he whispered a few words in her ear, then aloud, "so now show us to yer room like the pretty lass ye be."

Now, Bessie Harris, unlike her stalwart brother, was slight of build, with the delicately veined forehead and slender hands which betoken a constitution none too strong, and a decided tendency to nervousness, and how it was, as she afterwards said, that she did not drop down dead at the man's feet was more than she could possibly comprehend. But drop down she did not, and although her heart for the moment stood still, and her limbs seemed paralyzed with horror, the only line of action by which to save herself flashed with telegraphic rapidity across her mind.

It was evident the man expected a scene, and his eyes fairly gleamed in expectation of a determined resistance on her part, but at this, perhaps the most critical moment of all, Bessie made her first move, and to the fellow's great astonishment settled herself more comfortably in his lap, and smiled pleasantly in his face.

"You needn't be in such an everlastin' hurry," she said, falling into his own style of lingo. "My brother won't be back for hours yet, and we might as well have something to eat first. There is some splendid old ale in the cellar, and a cold turkey in the cupboard, and I'll get them out at once."

"The eatin' and drinkin'," returned the man with a coarse laugh, "is well enough, but, my pretty, yer tryin' to come some dodge or other, and I tell yer it won't do."

"You're a fool," she retorted, and putting her pretty arms around his neck, she whispered: "I am as fond of fun as you are, but they keep me so close I have but few chances in that way," and she added, with archness itself: "I don't like your two friends half as well as I do you."

As the girl made no movement to leave his lap, the man believed her, and had he been the most noted beau of the period, with a reigning belle at his feet, he could not have shown himself to have felt more highly flattered.

"You must come with me to the cupboard," she laughingly continued, and, suiting the action to the word, fairly dragged him across the room to where it stood, and from its depths quickly snatched up a bottle of old rye her father had just purchased for medicinal purposes.

"Smell that, all three of you!" she cried, "and then say I'm trying to come a dodge if you can."

The excitement of the moment had sent a crimson flame over her usually pale cheeks and a new brilliancy into her dark eyes, and Bessie, always pretty, now looked positively beautiful. The three men, fully awake to the beauty of her appearance, now laughed loudly, and each, taking a pull at the bottle, bade her do the same.

Although recoiling from the liquor, to which she was not used, she gave no sign, but drank as requested, hoping, as it burned its way down her throat, that it might strengthen her in the trying part she was about to enact.

The next thing was to get the three villains to eating, and with almost the rapidity of thought she had the table spread, setting cold fowl, ham, bread, cake, and preserves in tempting array before them. The sight of these viands, the girl had rightly calculated, could not be withstood by men leading the uncertain lives of those before her, and true enough, without a second invitation, they drew up to the table and "fell to" with the voracity of so many half famished wolves.

"Ain't you goin' to eat with us, gal?" asked the large man, his mouth already crammed with bread and cold fowl.

"Yes," she answered; "as soon as I draw some ale. That rascally old father of mine keeps it locked up; but," she added, "I know where to find the key."

The interesting trio here again laughed long and loud, and Bessie, as she left the room, re-echoed their mirth, in tones that to other than the depraved beings before her would at once have betrayed the terror and despair that was fast straining her nerves beyond their utmost capacity.

The house was built on the old Southern plan, with many rooms on the ground floor, several of which were bedrooms. One of these belonged to Tom, and opened directly into the kitchen, and it had been the girl's idea to pass into this room on the pretext of getting the key of the ale cellar, take down the loaded revolver which always hung beside the bed, shoot one or more of the robbers as they sat at the table, leap from the window, and run for life.

So far her plan had worked well. The three scoundrels were fairly attracted in another direction, it was but one step to the loaded revolver; but one other to the window, and escape in the impenetrable darkness beyond, but at this moment, the most intense of all, the horrid question [illegible] trembling through her mind, could she, so frail, so weak, succeed in evading three such determined desperadoes, and they within a few feet of her very garments!

At all events, she said to herself, she would try, and with an involuntary prayer to the Almighty for help, the brave girl seized the revolver, and aiming it at the large man's head fired her first shot, following it quickly with another at the one sitting next him. The third could only be a random shot, but Bessie sent it with unerring aim, and flying to the window, mounted the sill.

So true had been her aim, for Bessie was a capital markswoman, that two of the villains were already in the arms of death, but the third discharge had only taken effect in the last one's right arm. With the characteristic quickness of his class he once saw how matters stood, and without a glance at his fallen companions made for the girl, dealing her a heavy blow with the butt of his pistol.

She had nearly reached the window, and although hurt by the force of the blow was not stunned, and with wonderful nerve turned upon her pursuer, shoving him back with her left hand, while with her right she emptied a fourth charge from her revolver into his body.

With a bitter curse the man fell wounded but not senseless to the floor, while Bessie lost no time in making her leap from the window. But as if destined to be thwarted at every point, the poor girl instead of landing safely on the ground a few feet beneath her, found herself suspended midway on the framework of an old vine trainer that in the excitement of the moment she had altogether forgotten. Vainly she endeavored to wrench herself from its grasp; never had a vine trainer proved so imperishable as this; never a petticoat so strong as the one she then wore.

With the blood now streaming over her face and into her eyes and mouth from the blow she had just received, Bessie believed her last hour had come and groaned aloud.

"I hear you," bellowed the wounded wretch on the other side of the window, "and I'm crawling along the floor, and as soon as I git to the window I'm going to shoot you."

No cordial could have revived the fainting girl so effectually as the tones of that villain's voice, and once more she made an effort to free herself from the wooden arms of the vine trainer, and with no better success than before.

But too plainly could she hear the man endeavoring to fulfill his threat, the creaking of the boards betraying his gradual approach to the window, and the moments seemed longer than hours as they passed. The revolver had long since dropped from her hand, and a few minutes more would bring her would-be murderer to the support of the window sill. Her doom she said was now sealed; but as the darkest hour is often nearest dawn, so Bessie's deliverance at this instant presented itself. She had forgotten it, but her workcase or housewife as it was called in those days was in her pocket. It contained beside needles and thread a pair of small but extremely sharp scissors, and to these she was to owe her rescue.

It was but the work of a moment to get them out and cut herself loose from the tenacious framework, and a few seconds later Bessie found herself pounced with a heavy thud upon the frozen ground beneath her.

The man inside heard her fall, and renewed his already desperate efforts to gain the window, his face just appearing above the sill as Bessie regained the possession of the revolver, for which she had been quietly searching on her hands and knees.

The darkness of the night prevented his seeing her at a first glance, but with the bright light shining from the kitchen beyond, his head was plainly discernible, and with the last remnant of her fast departing strength she again raised the revolver and fired, then, with what speed she could muster, struck out for the road; and here it was, but a few rods beyond the garden gate, that Tom found her shortly afterward, in a senseless condition.

Of the three men, but one survived the contest of that fearful night, he being the one, as the reader will surmise, who persisted in following the fleeing girl to the very last limit of his power. But his after career was of but short duration, death claiming him before he could be brought to trial. The large man, who appeared to have died without a struggle, was found to have been the leader of a gang of marauders that were fast becoming the terror of that part of the country, and his sudden taking off proved a blessing to the community. The rest of the band, disheartened by his luckless end, left the country, and were seen no more.

For three long months Bessie hovered between life and death, and when she finally recovered somewhat of her former strength, it was with but a semblance of her old time joyousness of spirits, and a streak of gray mingled with the nut-brown hair so much admired by all who knew her.

Farmer Harris and his wife ever remembered the strange forebodings of that dark November afternoon, and Bessie, brave as she had shown herself to be, was never again left alone in the little wilderness of "Pine Farms."

Talleyrand and His Servant.

Talleyrand had a cofidential servant, in whose fidelity he placed implicit trust. But one day, when he had sent him to deliver an important letter, he was astonished beyond measure to see him open the letter in the street and read it. His quick wit devised a plan for punishing and mortifying the offender. On the next day he sent him with a letter to the same party, and added the postscript, "You may send a verbal answer by the bearer, for he is perfectly acquainted with the whole affair, having taken the precaution to read this previous to its delivery."

The servant, on reading this, was overwhelmed with shame at his exposure. But as Talleyrand never alluded to the fault to his face, nor upbraided him for treachery, gratitude sprung up in his heart at the forbearance of his master, and he was never known to be guilty of a similar fault. Talleyrand was a master of the human heart, and knew how to deal with all classes of men.

Strawberries have attained such a size that the long lost brother's arm is of no avail, and the mark has to be planted in the middle of his back.

THE DETROIT TORNADO.

Startling and Terrible Disaster—Awful Power of the Cyclone—A Scene of Terror and Dismay.

One of the most startling and terrible whirlwinds known in the history of Detroit befell that city on the afternoon of Sunday, June 27, resulting in a serious loss of life and the wounding of nearly fifty persons, besides tremendous destruction of property. From the Detroit Free Press we glean the following particulars of the dire calamity:

It is not difficult to conceive that such a remorseless monster carried death and mutilation on its wings. Everywhere were heard the cries of the wounded, whose bleeding and mutilated bodies were pitiful to look upon. Richard Bates, aged 11 years, was caught up and carried into the topmost branches of a tall elm which stood on the commons near his mother's house, at the corner of Fifteenth and Linden streets. His violent contact with the limbs tore the clothing from his person and he fell dead to the ground, a distance of fully fifty feet.

A little babe seven months old, the child of Carl Peca, who lived on Fourteenth street, was found dead in the street.

Mrs. Van Duzen, a widow with two children, on Fifteenth street, had gone up town to visit her father, and when she returned her house was nowhere to be found. It had been carried bodily at least two hundred feet, torn to atoms and scattered far and wide. The only recognizable portion of the building found was the front door.

Frederick Rademacher, who lived at 748 Sixteenth street, was sitting at home with his wife and two children, when he suddenly felt himself hurled through the air and saw the walls and timbers of his dwelling flying in every direction. He escaped with a slight scalp wound, but his wife was more seriously injured. The children were also considerably bruised.

Incident upon incident illustrating the peculiar action of this storm cloud, whirlwind or what it ever was, might be related if sufficient space were at command. Two horses were carried over a barn and flung to the earth dead, and numerous smaller domestic animals were made to perform some most astonishing gyrations. Houses on the outer edges of the track of the storm were punched full of holes by huge timbers that were whirled along end over end; shade and fruit trees were uprooted and carried a long distance; bricks from toppling chimneys rattled down and struck fleeing men and women, and through the roar of the storm came the most appalling shrieks.

The rain which had been falling steadily for an hour, ceased all at once. The sun burst out like a ball of fire—flashed out so swiftly that people leaped from chairs in alarm, believing the brightness to be the glare of a great conflagration. The glare lasted for a moment, and the sudden alarm was increased by the clang of the swift-tongued fire-bells. As men rushed out and looked here and there the tornado, born on the storm-lashed lake eighteen miles below, struck the city. It came like a flash. When one sees the black thunder-cloud creeping up the horizon he has time to get ready for its bursting. There was no time to prepare for this. True, there was a roaring, tearing, grinding sound, as if the earth was moving, but there was not time to close a door before the storm struck. People sitting in their chairs rose up at the awful sound, but had not moved a step before they were caught in the toils of the roaring, screaming cloud, and those who came out alive were drawn from the mass of boards, timbers, shingles, plaster, and brick which had once formed a dwelling for them.

A roar—a swoop down upon the devoted houses—then calmness, broken only by the wails of the wounded and the shrieks of terror-stricken women and children.

It was awful. Men viewed the wild desolation, and felt their cheeks grow pale over the terrible exemplification of nature's wrath. The cloud picked up houses as a child would pick up a ball—crushed them as a man would shiver an egg shell in his hand. Everything standing in its path had to fall, whether it was fence, or house, or tree. It picked up plank and board and beam, and whirled and tossed them high in the air, as if they were but reeds.

There was hardly time for one to know of the awful destruction before the sun went down and night came on, and the thousands of people crowding the narrow, unpaved streets, rushed here and there in the darkness, and shouted and called and brought report[illegible] each other which made the hearers [illegible]mble. Men, half crazed with excitement, rushing about in the darkness, meeting women who were distractedly searching for their children. Now and then there was a hush, as a crushed boy was pulled from the ruins. Then there was a cry of exultation as some victim, less badly injured, was helped out. It was a long, wretched night, and it was not until day dawned that one could be sure that more bodies were not hidden among the wrecks, or lying on the commons.

The following is a recapitulation of casualties:

Carl Peca, rib broken and severely bruised.
Mrs. Carl Peca, left hip dislocated, right leg broken in two places.
An infant child of Carl Peca killed.
Two Peca children slightly injured.
Richard Bates, aged 11 years, killed.
Mrs. Rademacher, badly cut and bruised.
Mrs. John Dolazail, internally injured and badly bruised.
J. Dol[illegible] cut about the head and shoulders.
Mrs. Chas. Bates, badly bruised.
Chas. Bates, severely bruised and cut.
Hammond Musko, both arms broken and body severely injured.
Joseph Bouilly, cut upon the head.
Jacob Neuschaffer, face severely cut.
Geo. Wingrave, cut about the face.
Joseph Merritt, face cut.
August Seymour, scalp wound and broken arm.
Mrs. August Seymour, badly bruised.
Mrs. Wm. Perkins, severely injured internally.
An infant child of Mrs. Perkins, severely bruised.

Diligent inquiry places the number of buildings totally destroyed and seriously wrecked at thirty-three, while there are twenty-eight slightly injured by loss of chimneys, windows, cornice and roofs.

It is said by those who have taken pains to inform themselves on the subject, that there is no country, civilized or savage, where bad teeth are so generally the rule, and good ones so rare an exception, as the United States.

Wonderful Instinct of a Race Horse.

The following is one of the most remarkable instances on record of the instinct of a horse: Immediately after the last day's meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club at Pimlico, this spring, Business, Artist, George West, and two or three other broken down racers were put up at auction by their owner, Mr. Joseph Donahue. As is generally the case, however, no one wanted to purchase them, and with the exception of Jim Crow, none were sold. They were taken back to the stables, and on the following day George West, the renowned steeplechaser, was sent to the farm of Capt. Powers, in Baltimore county, and turned out on pasture with a number of common work horses. Strange to say, however, the old racer refuses to associate with the common horses, and will not even remain in the same part of the field with them, except at certain hours. Every morning and evening during a racer's training he is walked slowly around in a small circle for an hour or so. These walking circles can be found near the stables at every race-track, and they are usually about one hundred feet in diameter. On the first morning after old George West was turned out of the stable at Capt. Powers' farm, he waited around the stable doors for some time, and neighed as if impatient. The old horse spent the entire first day walking up and down in front of the stables. On the following morning he was turned out again, and after standing around the stable some time he walked off to a distant corner of the field, where he proceeded to walk around in a circle of about fifty or sixty yards. The walk was kept up for an hour as steadily as he had ever done it in his palmiest training days. After exercising about an hour the old horse left his walking ground and capered around the field as if delighted. In the evening it was noticed that shortly before sundown he threw up his head, and, after neighing once or twice, galloped around the entire field seven or eight times. He then suddenly stopped and went to the small circle used by him in the morning and walked around it regularly for about an hour. At the expiration of that time he went to the stable. These exercises of walking and galloping have been repeated regularly ever since, and Capt. Powers states that the time George West begins exercising each day does not vary over a half hour. He was kept in the stable two days without getting out, but when turned out on the third he at once began his walk and kept it up as usual. The other horses in the field have followed his example, and now every morning and evening seven common horses may be seen moving regularly around the small circle like a string of racers, headed by George West. The sight is a novel one, and hundreds of persons have visited the farm during the past week to witness it. Beyond the walking, George West does not mix with the common herd at all, and takes his gallops entirely alone.—Baltimore American.

What Josh Billings Wants to Know.

Why a turkey's egg is speckled, and a duck's egg blue.

Whether a log floats faster in the river than the current runs, or not.

Why a goose stands fust on one leg and then on tother.

Why rabbits have a short tale and kats have a long one.

Why most all the birds build their nests out of different material.

Why lightning never was known to strike a beach tree.

Why the males among the feathered race do all the singing.

Why the blak snaik iz the only snaik in this country that kan klimb a tree.

Why a musk rat's tale has no fur on it, and a mink's haz.

Why a quail's egg is round, and a hen's egg iz pointed.

Why a bear alwuss climbs down a tree backwards.

Why a mule's bones are all solid, and their ears twice az long az a horses.

Why a dog alwuss turns around three times before he lies down.

Why a horse alwuss gits oph from the ground on his forward feet last.

Why, when a man gets lost in the woods, or on the plains, he alwuss walks in a cirkle.

Why a pig gathers straw in his mouth and runs about with them just before a rain storm.

Why natur will allow one cross between some animals and then allow no more.

Where the flys will all go when the cold weather sets in, and where they all cum from so suddenly next summer.

Why a hen alwuss knows her little ones from anothers, and why she will hatch out twelve duck eggs and think they are her own chickens.

Why an oyster and a klam are the only things I kno ov with animal life that don't hav to mov out of their places to git a living.

There is lots of hily eddikated people who won't believe the book of Genesis bekause they kan't prove it, who kan't answer korrectly one-third of the above questions.

Five Thousand Dollars for the Loss of an Eye.—A suit brought by William Glenn against Charles E. Mull, to recover $5,000 for having put out his eye, was tried and concluded in Supreme Court, Circuit, before Judge Westbrook and a jury yesterday. It appeared from the testimony that Glenn was leaving the theater accompanied by his wife, when Mull came in front of them and insultingly put his head up to Glenn's wife's face. After this insult Glenn approached the defendant, and the latter then struck him in the eye with his umbrella, causing the injury complained of. The defendant denied the insult, and said his hat was first knocked off by plaintiff. The jury found in favor of plaintiff for the full amount claimed.—New York Times.

Grasshoppers Three Centuries Ago.—Says an old book called "Bateman's Doome:" "In 1476 grasshoppers and the great rising of the River Isula did spoyle all Poland." And the Gentleman's Magazine of 1742 says "great damage was done to the pastures in the county of Bristol, England, by swarms of grasshoppers, and the like happened in the same year at Pennsylvania to a surprising degree." The same fact was also noticed then, "that they were infected with a parasite thicker than a horse hair and of a brown color."

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Write upon pages of a single size,
Cross all your t's and neatly dot your i's;
On one side only let your lines be seen—
Both sides filled up announce a Verdant Green.
Correct—yes, re-correct—all that you write,
And let your ink be black, your paper white;
For spongy foolscap of a muddy blue
Betrays a mind of the same dismal hue.
Punctuate carefully, for on this score
Nothing proclaims the practiced writer more.
Then send it off, and lest it merit lack,
Inclose the postage stamps to send it back;
But first pay all the postage on it too,
For editors look back on "six cents due,"
And murmur as they run the effusion o'er:
"A shabby fellow and a wretched bore!"
Yet, ere it goes, take off a copy clean—
Poets should own a copying machine;
Little they know the time that's spent and care
In hunting verses vanished—who knows where?
Bear in mind, observe it to the end,
And you shall make the editor your friend.

Pith and Point.

Who is the oldest lunatic on record?—Time out of mind.

What the barber said when his wife fell down stairs—Razor.

Wisdom and bad hand-writing don't always go together.

Rapt attention—Being knocked on the head to come to order.

Florida boys throw straw men to the alligators and then laugh and laugh.

"Are angels playing croquet, mamma?" asked a little four-year-old, the other evening, when she saw the meteors shoot.

If there was anything of the sort it would be easy enough to get blue blood in a man's veins by the transfusion process.

When an Eastern doctor strikes a Wisconsin town, he hangs out his sign and then hunts up the town sexton to inform him that he needn't lay any plans for a vacation.

As convincing proof that the grasshoppers read the papers, it is mentioned that they have this season entirely avoided a certain county which was mentioned last year as raising the poorest quality of wheat in Kansas.

That was a shrewd method which an Iowa girl recently adopted to induce all her friends to attend her wedding: She didn't let them know up to the last moment who the groom was to be.

Memphis, Tenn., announces a baby exhibition in which the ugliest infant is to receive a $50 prize. And that is right—though $50 will hardly compensate a mother for the awful decision that her sweet cherub is the homeliest baby in the show.

To find a policeman—Look down every area in the street. If you do not by accident happen to see one, ring the bell and inquire if the policeman is in the kitchen. Repeat this at every door, and you cannot fail eventually to find one.

A Captain in the navy, on meeting a friend as he landed, boasted that he had left his whole ship's company the happiest fellows in the world. "How so?" asked his friend. "Why, I have just flogged seventeen, and they are happy it is over; and all the rest are happy that they escaped."

By an order from the Postoffice Department, separate pouches for registered letters will soon be placed on all the principal mail routes in the country. This will be invaluable assistance to the mail robbers. Heretofore they have been obliged to carry off bags of unremunerative letters, and with much care and toil fish out the letters that had money in them. Thus doth a beneficent government extend its benefactions over all its subjects.—Detroit Tribune.

The English Failures.

The recent heavy failures in England, coming as they do nearly two years after our own failures of 1873, are the slow response to them. It is absurd to say that the commercial and industrial interest of one civilized country are independent of another. Interchange has become so active and intimate between all civilized nations, that one cannot remain unaffected by the misfortunes of others. The English failures are not the direct result of the break-down of our own credit two years ago, but they are caused by the prostration of trade which followed that break-down. The British monetary system is said to be an admirable one; still, it deals very largely in credit, and is affected by the causes that affect the credit of other lands. The British people have their panics and collapses as well as we, in spite of their greater prudence and caution, and during the last few years they have lost immense sums of money invested in the non-paying securities of foreign countries. The immediate cause of the late failures, it is said, is the increasing stagnation of trade, and the accumulation of stocks of unsalable manufactures at the mills. But to this is to be added, we suspect, the strikes of workmen in the collieries and mills. These strikes have ceased to be a phenomenon; they have become a constant disturbance, and have inflicted such large losses on manufacturers that the subject of the transfer of certain branches of manufacturers to Belgium and Germany and the United States is seriously debated. It is conjectured that other failures in England will follow those already taken place, as trade continues depressed, and the full effects of the stagnation are not yet seen.—St. Louis Republican.

Packed in Ice.

Elephants have been found in Siberia well preserved in ice, where they have been sleeping their last sleep for hundreds of years. Quite a trade in fossil ivory, the tusks of the ice-bound animals being valuable, has been carried on in that country for many years. The following paragraph, relating to an event of comparatively recent occurrence, shows how thoroughly nature can embalm the human body when she sets about it:

"The body of John Blackford, an American actor, who was lost three years ago in trying to ascend Mount Blanc without guides, is said, by a Swiss newspaper, to have been found in an immense block of ice which recently fell from the mountain. The body is thoroughly preserved."

A New York paper gives this piece of valuable information: "Don't dun your creditors through the postoffice with a postal card. An Ohio court has decided it to be libelous, as it tends to the injury of a man's business reputation."

EXTERMINATION OF ELEPHANTS.

Efforts of the Governor of Ceylon to Prevent Useless Slaughter of the Animals—Remarkable Discrimination of Rogue Elephants.

By the last accounts from Ceylon we hear that the Governor, with the full concurrence of the Secretary of State, has issued a prohibition against the destruction of elephants. This has already caused disappointment to sundry sporting travelers, and it is as well that it should be generally known, that others who are intent on the slaughter of big game may direct their steps elsewhere. The wholesale and wanton destruction of these useful and intelligent animals, which has too long prevailed, has at length aroused the attention of the Colonial government. They ought to be largely employed in public works. Their strength, which enables them to draw stones of huge magnitude and to place them wherever required, renders elephant work far more valuable and substantial than that of the weak Indian laborers employed on the roads and irrigation works in Ceylon. It is particularly in the construction of bridges that the value of elephants is manifest. Nothing can be more interesting than to watch the docility and intelligence of these great creatures in the performance of their tasks, now dragging, now pushing, to the exact spot, gigantic stones, and placing them in their appointed position with the accuracy of a mason.

Of late, unfortunately, the strength of the elephant department in Ceylon has dwindled down to the half of its full complement, and from every province where works of importance were going on demands come in for the assistance of elephants, but in vain. Formerly well-trained elephants were not difficult to purchase; many were owned by private persons, but still more by the representatives of the Buddhist temples, who let them out for hire when not wanted for religious processions. Now none of any value can be procured. The native headmen report that elephants are disappearing, and the wanton massacre of them in those parts of the island where there is sufficient population to capture them by a kraal has rendered it unlikely that the public want can be supplied by this means. No doubt they can be supplied by the employment of elephant catchers, but the cruelties practiced on the wretched animals by this process, in which hardly one in three survives the tying up operations after the elephants are noosed, induce the government to resort to it as seldom as possible.

In former days the number and boldness of elephants rendered their destruction a matter of necessity; now they are fully alive to their danger, and instinctively keep away, as a general rule, from villages where they know they will be encountered with firearms. Complaints, no doubt, sometimes come in that an outlying crop has been ravaged, in which case the punishment of the invaders is permitted. Rewards are also given for the destruction of rogue elephants, who occupy for a time some particular road, put to flight the post-runners, and tear open the bags, which are abandoned to them to divert their attention. The letters scattered about are shown by the runners in attestation of their story. It has, however, been remarked that, though ordinary letters in such cases are recovered, the registered letters have some particular attraction to the animal, and are carried off by him into the jungle.

In these circumstances it has been found necessary to put a stop to the issue of licenses to shoot and capture, except for government purposes, for some time to come; and it is desirable that sporting adventurers should be apprised that their only chance of being allowed a shot at an elephant in Ceylon is in the case of a notorious rogue, or of a herd indulging in too frequent visits to irrigation works, and consequent destruction to the dams.—London Times.

All that Remains of the Assassin Booth.

I happened up to the Surgeon General's Office the other day on business, and while waiting I took a stroll through the Museum up stairs. This is in Ford's old theater, where President Lincoln was shot. Among the many thousand specimens I was shown the third, fourth, and fifth cervical vertebræ, taken from the neck of the assassin Booth, while near by, in a small vial, was a portion of the spinal cord from the cervical region. The stranger would not know to whom these belonged, for there is nothing to inform him, nothing but a number and a description of the wounded parts from which they were taken, and the following announcement:—"From a case where death occurred a few hours after injury, April 26, 1865." I knew the correct history of them, for there was a Rochester boy with me, who, acting as orderly for Dr. Otis at the time (who cut these little bones and cords from the neck of Booth), carried them up to the Museum. This was John Callahan, formerly of Company M, 8th New York cavalry. Strange to say these relics of Booth are placed very near the place where stood the box in which his victim was when shot.—Washington Letter.

Being Made to Sing.

A French writer says: "Under the First Empire the opera came under the care of Gen. Duroc, Steward of the Imperial Household, and its whole troupe was made to march like a regiment. Neither Duroc nor his master brooked anything like insubordination. Questions of pay, pensions, and precedence were settled as systematically as at the War Office, and singers and songstresses who thought themselves ill-used had to grin and bear it or go. One evening a prima donna, having stipulated unsuccessfully for an increase of salary, thought good to mark her displeasure by not putting in an appearance at a court performance, but sending a medical certificate instead. Gen. Duroc, being aware that she was shamming, dispatched four gendarmes to her house with orders to make her come and sing or convey her to the military infirmary of the Val de Grace, at her choice. Needless to add that she sang, and sang tunefully.

Shocking.

A horrible story is told by the Enterprise (Miss.) Star. It seems that small-pox has been rather prevalent, and recently a negro woman, with five children, was attacked by the disease. As soon as it became known that the woman had the small-pox, the other negro families adjacent moved off, and left the miserable woman to her fate. The negroes claim, however, that they carried food near the house and called to the children to come out and get it. The woman lingered four or five days in great agony and finally died. No one would attempt to bury the remains for several days, and on the night of the 11th ult. the children were called out, and fire was set to the house, burning up everything in it, body and all.

TOBACCO.

The Government Manufactory in France.

Ever one knows that the monopoly of manufacturing tobacco by the State was suggested to Napoleon III. by the gorgeous appearance of a lady at one of the Court balls. Her diamonds, in fact, excited much admiration and not a little envy. "Who is she?" asked the Emperor, and the answer was, "The wife of a retired tobacco manufacturer." From that evening free trade in tobacco was doomed in France, nor has a republican form of government cared to do away with a most profitable source of revenue. At the same time it must be confessed that the produce of the Regie is, for the most part, "cheap and nasty." A visit which I have just paid to the manufactory on the Quai d'Orsay, one of the fifteen which exist in France, has confirmed me in this belief, though I came away with the impression that tobacco and no other leaf was, whether good or bad, exclusively used. The first thing which strikes a visitor on entering the establishment is the rank, overpowering smell of nicotine which pervades the whole place—a smell, moreover, which is utterly indescribable to those who do not know it. In the lower rooms, half-naked men, brown with the juice of the plant, were engaged in wetting the leaves and packing them in great stacks for the purpose of fermentation, which goes on for eighteen months. Close by, under a shed in an open yard, is the powerful steam-engine, of English make, which gives rotary power to all the machines on the premises. A large part of this machine work is devoted to the making of snuff, and this I was shown in all the various stages of its fabrication. Here, I find, it is composed of various tobaccos, such as Virginian, Hungarian, and French, together with all contraband tobacco—some of it very suspicious-looking stuff—seized by the Custom-House officers. This mixture is proportionately divided, and makes a total of 100 parts. The snuffmakers are, I was informed, the least healthy of all the persons employed in the establishment. It may be stated that the number is 2,000, of whom 1,600 are women and girls. Up-stairs are rooms devoted to the sorting of the leaves by experienced hands, who can tell at once if the tobacco be of foreign or of home growth, though I must confess that to me it looked much the same. In addition to the various snuff-cutting and pounding machines, a long gallery is filled with implements, also worked by steam, which neatly slice the compressed leaves into the pipe tobaccos known as "Maryland" and "Caporal," the latter being considerably coarser, but, it is said, purer than the former. "Caporal," indeed, is the favorite kind with what my guide called "les vrais fumeurs." When salted and dried these tobaccos are, after being weighed, compressed into paper packets by hydraulic pressure, fastened, and then reweighed, any overweight or the opposite being at once detected, and the packet condemned on the spot. This is entirely done by women, and the quickness and deftness which they display in "making up" is really astonishing. During the last two years there has been a very great demand for cigarettes—so great, indeed, that it has occasionally been greater than the supply. Consequently, there are many rooms filled with girls with strips of stamped paper—cut by machines in another room—before them, and each, with the aid of a gum-bottle and an ingenious little instrument, turns out 1,000 to 1,500 cigarettes a day. The manufacture of a cigar is certainly not a pleasing operation. The woman takes a handful of coarse-looking tobacco, gives it a roll with her hands, rolls a trimmed leaf round it, touches the end with brown paste to make everything secure, and the result is a cigar, which is then made of the required length by an instrument like a miniature turnip cutter. Some of those cigars cost as little as two for three halfpence, and few government brands are sold at more than 3d apiece. The Regie provides tobacco suited to every taste, therefore a whole department is devoted to the process of twisting rolls into what is known in England as pigtail, destined, for the most part, to be chewed by sailors and the populations of seaport towns, though I was shown a milder kind which is made expressly for and smoked in several departments. The government factory is certainly a curious, but not by any means a pleasant sight, and if any parent wishes to cure his son of the "pernicious habit of smoking" he could certainly not do better than take him to see the establishment on the Quai d'Orsay. Any confirmed smoker, however, I would advise not to go, as he would probably be disgusted without being cured.—Paris Cor. London Times.

Farming in Texas.

Mr. T. I. Bradford returned from Texas last Friday. He was down as far as Waco, in the central part of the State. Wheat and oats were in the shock, the yield being very large. Corn was six feet high; the first crop of Irish potatoes were being dug, and the second will soon be planted. A fair average yield of wheat is 30 bushels, and corn about 80. The former is worth $1.00 and the latter worth fifty cents. He reports it a fine farming and grazing country, with land ranging from $1.50 to $30 per acre, and, also, a very fine climate. Monday of last week when the mercury was up to 98 and 100 here, it stood at 90 at Waco, with a cool breeze blowing. Mr. Bradford thinks of going back in the fall.—Van Buren (Iowa) Democrat.

THE Irish language is fast disappearing from the speech of the people in Ireland, many of the native youth being unable to understand it. The Archeological Association of Ireland has petitioned the Commissioners of Education to "preserve the Irish tongue from being lost," by having it regularly taught in the schools.

A Curious Will.

John Jennings, a Brooklyn laborer, who recently died, made a will in 187, in favor of his sister, Mrs. Margaret Carboy. The will is contested by his brother on questions of fact, and as it is rather curious it is given in full:

"I, John Jennings, in sound mind and proper sence in the name of God make this will. I will two thousand dollars to Mrs. Carboy me sister, $700 to John Kindregan me wifes brother, if he dies before he can get the money his children may get it themselves, Mick, James and Cely. I also lave $600 to Celia, Mrs Larkin if she is dead her children may git the money equal shares and twenty pound to Margaret—Mrs. Madden, and if she is dead to her son Patrick or childer may get it. I also lave $50 to Bishop McCloskey for the new cathedral, and $50 for the Bishop of Brooklyn for the new cathedral, and $50 for the fathers in Houboucken for the nuns church, and $50 for the sisters, them that is most in need of it. I give full pour and a-thority and controle to sell my property in Brooklyn to my sister Mrs. Carboy and to receive all rent of it, House No. 365 Pacific street.

With good since Sound mind I make this will, the 10th day of Jan. eighteen seventy-three, 1873,

JOHN JENNINGS.

"Witness Peter Dally, Thomas H. Davey.

"Margaret if you get four thousand dollars for the house you give three hundred dollars to Delia and $300 each to the Margarets."

MATTER ENOUGH.—A ten-year old boy was yesterday seen weeping bitterly in Justice alley, and a kind-hearted pedestrian halted and inquired:

"What ails you, my son—why these tears?"

"Don't make fun of me!" wailed the boy in sorrowful tones. "I had two shillings saved up to go to the circus, and Uncle Bill's folks came in from Royal Oak and mother had to use it to buy strawberries for sup (sob) per!"—Detroit Free Press.

THE NEW PANACEA.—Modern science having demonstrated that alcohol is "neither food nor physic," but, on the contrary, a species of poison, the introduction of a potent tonic which is entirely free from it is certainly a subject for congratulation. DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS is a medicine which may be fairly characterized as an unobjectionable specific for many distressing and dangerous diseases.

Temperance organizations, heretofore in favor of permitting the sale of alcohol for medical purposes, are of opinion that VINEGAR BITTERS possess all the efficacy as an invigorant that has ever been even claimed for spirituous stimulants, and on this account, as well as because of the singular success which has attended its use in dyspepsia, liver complaint, disorders of the bowels, nervous diseases, general debility, and all maladies growing out of intemperance, they warmly recommend it as a restorative and alterative of surpassing excellence. 43

WILHOFT'S ANTI-PERIODIC OR FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.—This invaluable and standard family medicine is now a household word and maintains its reputation unimpaired. It is indorsed by the medical profession, and prescribed daily in the Charity Hospital and other Hospitals in New Orleans. Wilhoft's Tonic is thus highly recommended by the leading medical men of the country, and is worthy of such indorsement. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

WE copy the following from an exchange, which is important, if true: "Chronic diarrhea of long standing, also dysentery, and all similar complaints common at this season of the year, can be cured by the use (internally) of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. We know whereof we affirm."

THE cathartics used and approved by the physicians comprising the various medical associations of this State are now compounded and sold under the name of Parsons' Purgative Pills.

SUCH a thing as a newspaper was unknown in Japan a few years ago; now it boasts of thirty-four or more.

GLEN FLORA SPRING WATER, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

HOW TO GET A HOME. See advertisement.

A MAN OF A THOUSAND.

A CONSUMPTIVE CURED.—When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, accident led to a discovery whereby Dr. H. James cured his only child with a preparation of Cannabis Indica. He now gives recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not dissipate—Night Sweats, Irritation of the Nerves, Difficult Expectoration, sharp Pains in the Lungs, Nausea at the Stomach, Inaction of the Bowels, and Wasting of the Muscles. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Pa., giving name of this paper.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES. Some parents spend their money for Patent Medicine to cure their children's colds. Some save that money and prevent the colds by buying SILVER TIPPED Shoes, which never wear through at the toe.

Money is thrown away by all who do not buy the CABLE SCREW WIRE fastened Shoes. They are the easiest, most pliable and serviceable. Look out for imitations. All genuine goods bear the Patent Stamp. CABLE SCREW WIRE

WANTED AGENTS. Samples and Outfit free. Better than Gold. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G CO., Buchanan, Mich.

$10 to $25 PER DAY—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEO. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

NEW NOVELTIES for agents, address, MILLER & CO., Metropolitan Block, Chicago.

S. I. RUSSELL, 89 Fulton-st., Chicago, makes the cheapest splint market-basket in the country. Send for prices.

$3 SAMPLE Free and Big Pay to Male and Female everywhere. Address THE UNION PUB. CO., Newark, N. J.

THE WEEKLY SUN. 8 pages, 56 broad columns, from now to New Years, postpaid, 60 cts. Address THE SUN, N. Y.

WANTED AGENTS—Everywhere for the Centennial History—600 pages, 240 engravings, selling well. Address H. O. HOUGHTON & CO., 2 Somerset Street, Boston, Mass.

3 Pounds of Butter from 1 Quart of Milk. Can be made anywhere, by any one. No churning required. Receipt sent for 25 cents. Address P. O. Box 1741, Philadelphia, Pa.

FLORIDA The Florida Agriculturist, Weekly, $2 a year. Send 10c. for specimen. Proceedings Florida Fruit-Growers' Association—meeting of 1875—25 cts. Address WALTON & Co., Jacksonville, Fla. Say where you saw this.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.

10 DOLLARS PER DAY AGENTS WANTED to sell THE IMPROVED HOME SHUTTLE Sewing Machine. Address Johnson, Clark & Co., Boston, Mass.; New York City; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Chicago, Ill.; or St. Louis, Mo.

VINEGAR BITTERS
VEGETABLE
FREE FROM ALCOHOL
PURELY
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

R. H. McDONALD & CO.,
Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California, and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

SOMETHING for you. Sells at sight. Our Agents coin money. We have work and money for all, men or women, boys or girls, whole or spare time. Send stamp for Catalogue. Address FRANK GLUCK, New Bedford, Mass.

FOR SALE. Chicago Suburban Lots at $100 each—$5 down and $5 monthly for balance—within a short distance of city limits, with hourly trains and cheap fare. Send for circular. IRA BROWN, 142 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

PENNSYLVANIA MILITARY ACADEMY, Chester, Pa., Open Sept. 8th. Location healthful, grounds ample, buildings commodious. Civil Engineering, the Classics and English thoroughly taught. For Circulars apply to COL. THEO. HYATT, President.

OPIUM CURE The most successful remedy of the present day. Send for paper on Opium Eating. Prof. D. Meeker, P. O. Box 475, Laporte, Ind.

MERCHANT'S
GARGLING
GARGLING OIL

Whether for use on man or beast, Merchant's Gargling Oil will be found an invaluable liniment and worthy of use by every resident in the land. We know of no proprietary medicine or article now used in the United States which shares the good will of the people to a greater degree than this. Yellow wrapper for animal, and white for human flesh.—N. Y. Independent.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL

Is the Standard Liniment of the United States. Established 1833. Large size, $1.00; medium size, 50 cents; small size, 25 cents. Small size for family use, 25 cents. Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company. JOHN HODGE, Secretary.

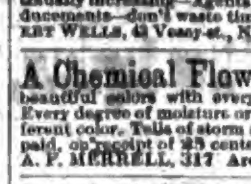
$10. to $500. Invested in Wall Street often leads to fortune. A 72-page book explaining everything, and copy of the Wall Street Review SENT FREE. JOHN HICKLING & CO., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, N. Y.

TEAS.—The choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for circular to ROBERT WELLS, 43 Vesey-st., N. Y., P. O. Box 1287.

A Chemical Flower resembling the Morning Glory. Changes into beautiful colors with every change of the atmosphere. Every degree of moisture or dryness represented by a different color. Tells of storm and fair weather. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of 25 cents. Agents Wanted. A. F. MERRELL, 317 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

PEOPLE WILL HAVE OUR GOODS. Send 25 cents and we will send by mail, prepaid, our LAMP FILLER, with which you can fill any Kerosene Lamp without removing chimney or getting grease outside of Lamp. At same time we mail you all our circulars and terms to agents on twenty useful household articles with which any person can make from $5 to $20 daily. We want Agents everywhere. NATIONAL AGENTS' EMPORIUM, BOSTON, Mass.

BURR MILLS FOR CORN, FLOUR & FEED,



large capacity, small weight & price. My specialty 30 years. Gold Medals for fine grinding with small power. 1000 sold. 30 patents for grinding & bolting vegetables and minerals, by hand, horse, wind, steam, or water power. Send stamp for cuts & prices.
EDWARD HARRISON, New Haven, Conn.

LIVINGSTONE'S LIFE AND EXPLORATIONS with his "LAST JOURNALS," now ready! The ONLY complete Life and thrilling adventures in Africa of the great hero Explorer in his own language. Cheapest and best—only $2.50, splendidly illustrated. Outsells everything. AGENTS WANTED. Send for extra terms and proof; or, if in haste to begin work, send $1.00 for full outfit to genuine address, LIVINGSTONE'S PUBLISHERS, CHICAGO, ILL.

SEA FOAM. C. W. Reed, Grocer, New Haven, Ct., says:—"Your Sea Foam cannot be excelled north of the equator; for Good Bread and Fine Biscuit it is a Wonderful Preparation." So say all. Pitcher, Flintner & Co., Wholesale Dealers, Boston, say—"We take pleasure in recommending your Sea Foam as The Best Baking Powder we have ever sold." Parties once using it will have no other. Its sales are immense. Send for circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & Co., 176 Duane St., N. Y.

NEEDLES FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES can be obtained at about one-half the usual rates by ordering direct. Singer's, 60 cts. per dozen; Wheeler & Wilson, 60 cts.; Howe's, 50 cts.; Grover & Baker, 50 cts.; and others in proportion. Inclose the amount and Needles will be returned by first mail. Address DEFIANCE NEEDLE CO., 658 Broadway, N. Y.

ELASTIC TRUSS.

This new Truss is worn with perfect comfort night and day. Adapts itself to every motion of the body, retaining rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain until permanently cured. Sold cheap by the Elastic Truss Co., No. 683 Broadway, N. Y. City. Sent by mail. Call or send for Circular, and be cured.

WITNESS MOODY & SANKEY. Witness Extra No. 2. Just issued. Contains Sermons by Moody, John Hall and others, with Engraving of Old Dutch (Fulton street) Church now being pulled down. Price, $2 per 100, 13 for 25 cents, or 5 for 10 cents, postpaid. NEW YORK DAILY WITNESS, published every morning. All the News. Only $4 a year. Try it one month for 35 cents, postage paid. JOHN DOUGALL, 2 Spruce Street, New York.

BOOK AGENTS Wanted to sell "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the cheapest book ever published; 885 pages, over 250 illustrations, $1.50. Thousands buy it at sight who could not be induced to purchase the high-priced books treating of Domestic Medicine. Unlike other books sold through agents, this work is thoroughly advertised throughout North America. This fact, together with the large size, elegant appearance, and many new features of the book, causes it to sell more rapidly than any work ever published in this country. Those of my agents who have had experience in selling books say that in all their previous canvassing they never met with such success or made so large wages as since commencing the sale of my work. For terms and territory, address (including two postage stamps and stating experience) R. V. PIERCE, M. D., World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y. Note.—Mark envelope "For Publishing Dep't."

Established 1858. PRINCES' METALLIC PAINT. 72 lbs. 100 lbs. N. Y. TRADE MARK, PATENTED. The best and cheapest Paint in the World for Iron, Tin or Wood. For sale by Dealers everywhere. PRINCES' METALLIC PAINT CO., Manufacturers, 96 Cedar St., New York. CAUTION.—Purchasers will please see that our name and trade mark are on each and every package. Send for a Circular.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. Reject all Violent Purgatives. They ruin the tone of the bowels and weaken the digestion. Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient is used by rational people as a means of relieving all derangements of the stomach, liver and intestines, because it removes obstructions without pain and imparts vigor to the organs which it purifies and regulates. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

"Best Paint in the World!" RUBBER PAINT. TRADE MARK. RUBBER PAINT CO. CLEVELAND. Every Man His Own Painter. ANY SHADE from PURE WHITE to JET BLACK. Our RUBBER PAINT has been used on many thousand buildings and has always proved entirely satisfactory. We have numerous testimonials like the following, viz.: M. F. SHEPPARD & CO., Penn Yan, N. Y.: "We believe it to be the BEST PAINT manufactured." W. W. LELAND, "Eutaw House," Baltimore: "Having used your Paint on the Grand Hotel, Saratoga, and this Eutaw House, I recommend its use to all." Be sure that our TRADE-MARK (a fac-simile of which is given above) is on every package. Prepared ready for use and sold by the gallon only. Send for Sample Card and Price List. Branch Offices & Factories, 506 West St., NEW YORK. 210 South Third St., ST. LOUIS, MO. 83 West Van Buren Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

50 Of the prettiest CARDS you ever saw, with your name handsomely printed on them, sent, post-paid, upon receipt of 20 cents. Your friends will all want them when they see yours. Address W. C. CANNON, 46 Kneeland St., Boston, Mass.

HOW TO GET A HOME. IOWA LANDS, 800,000 ACRES. Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to DAVIDSON & CALKINS, R. R. Land Office, Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

JOB PRINTING Office For Sale. On the first of July we shall offer our Job Printing Office for sale at a very low figure. We have over 200 fonts of the latest styles of Job Type, and everything which pertains to a complete Job Office outfit. Also, one Quarter-Medium Gordon Jobber of the latest improved style, one Hoe Card Press, and one Hoe Cylinder, 18x24 inch bed. Any number of second-hand News Cases. The attention of Printers is called to this sale, as we shall offer a great bargain for cash. For further particulars and specimen circular, address CHICAGO NEWSPAPER UNION, 114 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

Judge Lee's Decision. Hon. Judge Lee of Bucyrus, O., says: "One morning last December I was seized with a violent pain in the neck of the bladder; I was alarmed, I sent for my physician. He examined me and prescribed Hamilton's Buchu and Dandelion. In a day or two I was much better, but having a return of the pain I continued the medicine. In two weeks I was entirely relieved, and I send you a calculus or gravel which I passed. When it first came it measured just an inch in length and one quarter in diameter. My distress is all gone and I have had no symptom of return. Next to God I thank you for my recovery." KRESS MAN'F'G CO. CIN.

DR RIDGE'S FOOD for INFANTS AND INVALIDS. Sold in cans by Druggists, 35 cents and upwards.

BECKWITH PORTABLE FAMILY SEWING MACHINE $25. DOUBLE THREAD. BECKWITH S. M. CO. NEW YORK.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.'S "VIBRATOR" THRESHER. The BRILLIANT SUCCESS of this Grain-Saving, Time-Saving THRESHER, is unprecedented in the annals of Farm Machinery. In a brief period it has become widely known and FULLY ESTABLISHED, as the "LEADING THRESHING MACHINE."

THE NICHOLS SHEPARD & CO.
VIBRATOR
VIBRATOR

GRAIN RAISERS REFUSE to submit to the wasteful and imperfect work of other Threshers, when posted on the vast superiority of this one, for saving grain, saving time, and doing fast, thorough and economical work. THRESHERMEN FIND IT highly advantageous to run a machine that has no "Beaters," "Pickers," or "Apron," that handles Damp Grain, Long Straw, Headings, Flax, Timothy, Millett and all such difficult grain and seeds, with ENTIRE EASE AND EFFECTIVENESS. Cleans to perfection; saves the farmer his thresh bill by extra saving of grain; makes no "Litterings;" requires LESS THAN ONE-HALF the usual Belts, Boxes, Journals, and Gears; easier managed; less repairs; one that grain raisers prefer to employ and wait for, even at advanced prices, while other machines are "out of jobs." Four sizes made with 6, 8, 10 and 12 horse "Mounted" Powers, also a specialty of Separators "alone," expressly for STEAM POWER, and to match other Horse Powers. If interested in grain raising, or threshing, write for Illustrated Circulars (sent free) with full particulars of sizes, styles, prices, terms, etc. NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Michigan.

DR. WHITTIER, No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo. continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. Dr. W.'s establishment is chartered by the State of Missouri, was founded and has been established to secure safe, certain and reliable relief. Being a graduate of several medical colleges, and having the experience of a long and successful life in his specialties, he has perfected remedies that are effectual in all these cases. His patients are being treated by mail or express everywhere. No matter who failed, call or write. From the great number of applications he is enabled to keep his charges low. 36 pages, giving full symptoms, for two stamps. MARRIAGE GUIDE, 260 pages, a popular book which should be read by everybody. No married pair, or persons contemplating marriage, can afford to do without it. It contains the cream of medical literature on this subject, the results of Dr. W.'s long experience; also the best thoughts from late works in Europe and America. Sent sealed, post-paid for 50 cts.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, JULY, 15, 1875

Gen. Grant is now a grandfather his daughter Nellie giving birth to a ten pounder last Sunday.

Judge Chapman, of Indianapolis, decides that a simple agreement between a man and woman to live together as man and wife is necessary to constitute a legal marriage, but the knot cannot be untied as easily as it can be tied, for in such cases it requires a regular legal divorce to separate them.

Just at this moment there hangs over the public mind about the same degree of uncertainty in regard to the Keely motor as to the guilt or innocence of Mr Beecher. If the motor approximates to what is claimed, it is of vastly more consequence to the world than the whole Beecher family, with a liberal sprinkling of Tiltons thrown in.

The Chicago Times of yesterday says:

The hatchet is in reality buried! At Memphis, on Monday, Generals Forrest and Pillow delivered orations to a large concourse of citizens, mostly negroes. A colored society closed the proceedings by presenting Gen. Forrest a magnificent bouquet as a token of reconcilliation. The incident though surprising, is none the less gratifying And this the party of hate is slowly but surely becoming extenct.

Senator Thurman does not seem to be so prominent a candidate for the Presidency as he was sometime ago. Gov. Tilden is the next formidable rival of Gov. Hendricks, but for some inscrutable reason there is a general impression that the next President must come from the west. This places Mr. Hendricks at the head of the list, and makes his nomination for the place next to absolutely certain. The nomination of Mr. Hendricks will be followed by his election, for the reason that in the choice of no other man in the party can the democracy of the different states so cordially unite.

Gen. Frank P. Blair, died last Thursday evening at St. Louis. Although the general had been sick a long time without any hope of recovery, his death was sudden and at the time unexpected. It seems that the immediate cause of Gen. Blair's death last night was a fall he received in his house while walking from one room to another. He had been out for a drive in the afternoon, and returned about 5 o'clock and seemed to have enjoyed it much and received considerable benefit, but while walking in his room was attached with dizziness and fell, striking his temple against a piece of furniture, which rendered him insensible. Medical aid was immediately summoned, and every effort was made to restore him to consciousness, but no success, and at half past eleven he quietly passed away, surrounded by all the members of his family.

The reduction of the public debt from June 30, 1866, to June 30, 1874 according to official figures, was $580,-[illegible]. This is an average reduction of nearly $72,000 000 a year, and $200,000 a day. Will the persons who are always howling "corruption" make a note of the above?—Republican Paper.

Yes, make a note farmer, mechanic, tax-payer, that you, who are sweating and wearying in the heat of the day earning your bread and supporting your family by hard knocks, are paying the enormous sum from your earnings, while Grant and his officers are down at Long Branch basking in luxuries, basking in the cooling shade, and enjoying everything that high salaries can afford.

Make a note that it is not Grant or his administration that is paying off this immense sum of money, but that it comes from the people.

Make a note that these sums have been paid in since the war, and the public debt has not been reduced in proportion.

Make a note that corruption and fraud shall exist in high places, and will continue to exist until the present administration is superseded by a more economical and honest one.

A minister once said: "Those nice young men who stand outside the church door waiting for the girls to come out will some day stand around the inside of hell's door waiting for the girls to come in, but they won't come."

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the shoulders, cough, chills, dizziness, sour stomache, bad taste in the mouth, billious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which Simons' Liver Regulator is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

Simmons' Liver Regulator,

OR MEDICINE,

Is harmless,
Is no drastic violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
It is a faultless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind.
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

Price $1. Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875

For sale at F. B. DAVENPORT'S drug store.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R.

Condensed time card, May 23, 1875.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No 5 Mail.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex
Pittsburgh	2 00 a.m	....	8 00 a.m	2 00 p.m
Rochester	2 09 "	....	9 22 "	3 13 "
Alliance	5 52 "	....	12 30 p.m	5 54 "
Orrville	7 10 "	....	2 26 "	7 31 "
Mansfield	9 07 "	....	4 40 "	9 26 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 40 "	....	5 15 "	[illegible]
" lv.	10 00 "	4 50 a.m	5 35 p.m	[illegible]
Forest	11 15 "	6 30 "	7 27 "	[illegible]
Lima	12 20 p.m	8 10 "	8 45 "	[illegible] 27 a.m
Ft. Wayne	2 40 "	11 20 "	11 [illegible] "	2 55 "
Plymouth	4 40 "	2 25 p.m	2 20 a.m	5 26 "
Chicago	7 50 "	6 30 "	6 30 "	8 50 "

GOING EAST.

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex.	No. 8 Mail.
Chicago	9 20 p.m	9 20 a.m	5 35 p.m	5 15 a.m
Plymouth	12 50 a.m	12 15 p.m	9 05 "	9 20 "
Ft. Wayne	3 50 "	2 45 "	11 45 "	12 20 p.m
Lima	6 15 "	4 25 "	1 55 a.m	2 40 "
Forest	7 36 "	5 34 "	3 01 "	3 56 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 20 "	6 55 "	4 40 "	5 35 "
" lv.	9 40 "	7 15 "	4 50 "	....
Mansfield	10 20 "	7 45 "	5 20 "	....
Orrville	12 45 p.m	9 35 "	7 10 "	....
Alliance	3 05 "	11 10 "	9 00 "	....
Rochester	5 40 "	1 07 a.m	11 12 "	....
Chicago	6 55 "	2 10 "	12 15 p.m	....

No. 1, daily, except Monday, Nos. 2, 4, 5, 7 and 8, daily except Sunday, Nos. 3 and 6 daily.

F. R. MYERS,
General Pass. and Ticket Agent.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, DeKalb Conny. } Sct:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, Sept. term, 1875.

Thomas Watkins, vs. Mary Watkins. } Complaint for divorce.

Now comes the plaintiff, by McBride & Morian his attorneys and files his complaint herein together with an affidavit that said Defendant, Mary Watkins, is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless she be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb Circuit court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in her absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 6th day of July, 1875.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

Sure to Please the Ladies,

CATLIN'S SAD IRON HEATER!

PRICE $1.25.

SAVES one half the fuel, and makes comfort for Ladies while ironing in warm weather. Agents wanted everywhere. Send stamp for terms.—Address, VAN ALSTINE & CATLIN, Sharon, Wis.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

NOTICE is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb Circuit Court, the undersigned Administrator of the estate of DAVID PERRY, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises, on

SATURDAY, AUGUST 14th, 1875,

the equal undivided third part of the undivided thirteenth twentieth of the tracts of land hereinafter described, situated in DeKalb county, in the State of Indiana, and subject to the life estate of NANCY PERRY, surviving widow of said decedent therein, to-wit:

A part of section two [illegible] north of range fourteen (14) east, bounded by a line commencing at the [illegible] corner of the northwest quarter of said section two (2) and running thence east on the county line 3 70-100 chains, thence south [illegible] degrees west one chain, thence south 58 degrees west 2 55-100 chains, thence south sixty degrees west 2 40-100 chains, thence south thirty-four degrees west 7 chains thence north [illegible] degrees west [illegible] chains, thence south [illegible] degrees west 2 65-100 chains, thence north [illegible] degrees west 2 47-100 chains, thence south [illegible] degrees west 10 [illegible]-100 chains, thence south 75 degrees 30 minutes west 18 80-100 chains, thence north 60½ degrees east 7 20-100 chains, thence south 55½ degrees west 6 37-100 chains, thence north 18 55-100 chains to the northwest corner of the northwest quarter, thence east on the county line to the place of beginning containing fifty-five acres, and a part of said section two bounded by a line commencing on the south bank of Fish Creek 3 17-100 chains south of the quarter post on the north side line of said and running thence south on the east line of said northwest quarter aforesaid 7 2-100 chains, thence south 85 degrees 35 minutes west 3 18-100 chains, thence south 1¾ degrees west 2 37-100 chains, thence north 81 degrees 45 minutes west 3 80-100 chains, thence north 25 degrees 55 minutes east 3 4-100 chains, thence north 84 degrees 15 minutes east 4 80-100 chains, thence north 9 degrees 15 minutes east 5 58-100 chains, thence 65 degrees east 2 55-100 chains to the place of beginning containing five acres more or less.

TERMS—One third cash, one third in nine months, and the remaining third in eighteen months, with interest [illegible] without relief from valuation [illegible] laws, and secured by good freehold security [illegible] deferred payments. Sale to begin at 2 o'clock P. M.

OLIVER P. LEARNED, Adm'r.

THE PHOENIX TILE MACHINE.

[illegible]

SEND FOR CIRCULARS

CHANDLER & TAYLOR
Patentees and Manufacturers,
Indianapolis, Ind.

THE COURIER has the largest circulation of any paper in the county, and should be used by those wanting to advertise

The Pioneer

HARDWARE

Emporium!

Now full to overflowing with an Immense stock of

HEAVY AND SHELF

Hardware, Cutlery, Tin Ware.

I would call special attention to my department of

HARDWARE,
FURNISHING &
BUIDERS STOCK,

in which will be found everything at the very

LOWEST PRICES,

OILS,
PAINTS,
GLASS,
NAILS,
SASH,
DOORS, ETC

—A FIST-CLASS—

Tin-Shop,

in connection with the Hardware Store, with a skillful foreman. All kinds of Tin-ware manufactured and repaired on short notice.

JOHN L. DAVIS,

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,
And constructed with all [illegible] improvements—
The new and [illegible]

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders for

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give us a call and ascertain our prices.

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Ryan & Mader, pro's

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

ey are prepared to furnish rigs at all times a onable prices. Stable east of Court House.

THE AUBURN

Marble Works!

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have permanently located in Auburn, and are now prepared to attend to all orders for which they are prepared to turn out in a superio manner at reasonable rates. Works west the Bakery.

Monuments, Tomb-Stones, &c.,

Fruit House Prices.

Now for the 4th of July! It Will Soon be Here

And for the occasion we have laid in a large supply of Fireworks, Torpedoes, Fire Crackers and everything you can think of, to celebrate the day. All amounts of $5 we discount 10 per cent; of $20 and upwards we discount 20 per cent. We make this inducement to private parties who form clubs to celebrate; also to those who buy to sell again. This is only on Fireworks and Flags; the Fire-crackers and Torpedoes are net prices. CALL AND SEE US, you Merchants, and others from a distance and we will

Beat Chicago and Cincinnati,

AT LEAST 10 PER CENT ON PRICES.

Fire Crackers, per box,	$2 50	Torpedoes, per thousand	25c
Per pack	07	Per pack	04

Then we have Serpents, Flags, Roman Candles, Tri-colored, Bengal Lights, Silver Shower Candles, Flying Pigeons, Sky Rockets, Flower Potts, Grasshoppers, Blue lights, Triangles, Radiators, Pin Wheels, Scroll Wheels, Triolettes, Floral Bumbshells, Ladies' Union Fans, Percussion Pistols. American Flags, Balloons, Pulling Crackers, Chinese Bamboo Lanterns, Chinese Balloons, Chinese Lanterns and su forth.

TEAS! TEAS! TEAS!

No Middle Men with us, either on Teas, Coffees, or Sugars, With all the complaints of dull times, our Tea trade has doubled within the last three years. No secret in it—simply purchasing of the Importers and selling direct to the consumer, thereby saving to our customers the profits of the Speculator, Jobber and Wholesale Grocer, which is at least 10 to 20 cents on each dollar,

Young Hyson	50, 60, 80, $1 00, best 1 10	Oolong	30, 60; best 95
Gunpowder	60, 1 00; best 1 10	Uncolored Japan	50, 60; best 90
Imperial	60, [illegible]

SUGARS! SUGARS!

WHITE, YELLOW AND BROWN.

Coffee A,	[illegible]	N. O. Genuine,	9c
Coffee B,	[illegible]	Good Brown	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	30 and 37c
[illegible]	23c

CANNED FRUITS.

At Prices never Before Heard of.

Peaches per can,	20c	Damsons per can,
Blackberries per can,		Green Gages per can,
Tomatoes per can,	10	Strawberries per can,
Corn per can,	10

Wines and Liquors.

Still a few Gallons Left.

Sherry and Port per gallon,	$1 50 and 2 00	Old '76 for medical use	[illegible]
Sherry and Port in bottles,		Port Wine per gallon	1 50 and [illegible]
California Angelica and Sweet Muscatelle, per gallon,	1 50 2 00	California wine per gallon	1 50 and [illegible]
New England Rum, per gallon,	best 2 00	Sweet Catawba Wine per gallon	1 25
Holland Gin, Old Tom,	1 50 and 2 50

SYRUPS, SYRUPS.

Best Sugar, Leaf, per gallon,		Extra Golden per gallon,	60
White Dripps, per gallon,	85 $1 00	New Orleans per gallon,	70c to 1 00
Silver Dripps per gallon,	75	Cuba Molasses per gallon,

CANDIES! CANDIES!

Stick, French and American.

Best Stick per pound	15	Bon Bons	30c
French Mixed	20c	Japanese Cocoa Nut	25c

We have a hundred other different kinds of candies

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Fish and Neats Foot Oil per gallon,	1 00	Head Light Oil per gallon,	25c
Coal and Rose Oil per gallon,	20c	Machine Oil per gallon,	50c

FISH, FISH, FISH, FISH,

A Large Assortment of both Salt Water and Lake Fish

No. 1 White Fish ½ bbl	6 00	No. 1 Mackeral in Kits	1 25
No. 2 do do	5 00	No. 1 Famis in Kits
No. 1 Lake Shad ½ bbl.		George's Bank Codfish per pound
No. 1 Pickeral ½ bbl		Extra Mess Mackeral " "	1 50 and 1 75
White Fish in Kits No. 1	1 25	Herrings each	1c
White Fish family No. 2	1 00	Pickeral and Trout ½ bbl	5 50

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

The duty of 4 cents per pound goes on tobacco March 1st. This thing we anticipated, and in consequence we have a large stock ahead, so that our customers, as long as the present stock lasts, shall have goods at the old price.

Choice Plug, Five Bros. per pound		Fine Cut	60, 80, and 90c
Good Richmond Navy per pound	50c	Shorts	40c
Ladies Twist, very fine	65c	Smoking	35c best 40c
Long John Tens	60c

25 Cents on the Dollar Saved at

THE FRUIT HOUSE

THE
NEW YORK STORE

We Keep Our Trade

ACTIVE & LIVELY

Notwithstand the general complaint of dull trade and hard times, from the fact that we are daily in receipt of fresh, attractive goods, which we offer to our patrons at as low prices as are named by any house in the western country.

EXAMINE

Bargains in Suit Department, Bargains in Lace Shawls, Bargains in Lace Jackets

Bargains in Black Grenadines, Bargains in Stripe Grenadines, Bargains in Summer Silks

Bargains in Black Silks, Bargains in Thin Dress Goods, Bargains in Suiting Goods.

New Parasols,

New Kid Gloves. New Embroideries. New Fancy Ties. New White Goods. New Hosiery. New Fancy Goods. New Hamberg Net. New Ruffings, Etc., Etc,

CARPET DEPARTMENT.

Complete in every respect, and prices much lower than they will probably be after the first of August.

ROOT & COMPANY,
46 and 48 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne,
☞ Opposite the Court House. ☜

STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1839.

GEO. DeWALD & CO.

Dry Goods & Notions.

Black Silks & Fine Dress Goods a Specialty.

We can make it to the interests of every person to trade with us, We buy for CASH and sell for CASH, keep the best goods, and sell at one price.

ALSO AGENTS FOR THE

"Domestic" PATERNS.

The Best in Use. Send for a Catalogue.

Geo DeWald & Co
No. 1 Columbia Street
Fort Wayne Ind.,

FIRE! FIRE!
DOWN BELOW
GET YOUR THIN
CLOTHING

While our Stock IS COMPLETE!

Summer Pants	50c
" Coats	75c
" Suits	$1.25

All other goods as low

We have busted the "High Priced Clothing Ring, and you all know it.

SAM, PETE & MAX
Star Clothing House
5 Main & 33 Cal.-Sts.,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

A NEW PLACE

TO GET A

Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with M. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.

THE FIRST
National Bank
OF AUBURN, INDIANA.
Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of the U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Collections made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted.

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:
J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:
JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.
April 30, 1873.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Wm. McIntyre is rusticating at Milwaukee.

L. Bowers is putting an addition to his house.

Mrs Kline is out of the city visiting friends.

Don't fail to read Robinsons ad. on the last page.

The farmers are busy in the harvest fields now.

Dr. Fox has secured the sevices of Mr Burns to assist him.

Farmers say that the rust has damaged the wheat.

The Albion boys want to play a game of ball with our boys.

John Hebel has painted the front of his saloon brown.

A large amount of building is going on all over the city.

Some new streets are being opened in Ashley's addition.

The old Hall property at the South end of town is undergoing repair.

Miss Zimmerman, of Leo, sister to Frank, is here visiting friends.

Work on the second story of the new jail has commenced.

A. J. Little is putting an addition to his store room, on Main Street.

The weather is warm and dry. We have had rain enough for awhile.

Mrs Alice McKay, of Fort Wayne, daughter of J. A. is visiting friends here

Found—A small suit of clothes by W. A. Weter.

For Sale.—A new two horse wagon for sale. Enquire at Millar & Casebeer's.

Jas. Lowrey, he of theatical fame, has been in the city for several days past.

Miss Kitty Elwell is rusticating among her many friends in the Buckeye State.

G. W. Gordon, who has been quite sick with Pneumonia, is able to be about again.

The ball game last Saturday stood as follows: Leasure's 9, 35; Hay Makers 3. Close game.

Miss Alice Widney has finished her summer school, near Newville, and is again among her friends in the city.

We were glad to see the familiar face of our old friend Rev. W. B. Sandoe, in town last Tuesday.

Old John Robbinson take a whole page in the Courier this week, and we are consequently crowded for space.

T. B. Totten has removed his stock of goods to the room recently occupied by John Ehlers drug store.

Mr. Aldrich had two ponies stray away last Thursday, but found them at Green's Corners on Monday.

F. Buchanan can now "rock-a-by-baby" to his heart's content. Its a nice one, of the female gender.

When visiting Fort Wayne do not fail to call at Bond's Novelty Store.—Cheapest place to buy goods in the city.

We are glad to state that we have a regular correspondent at Butler, and our friends over there may now expect to hear something of themselves.

Dr. Williard, of Heidelburg College, Tiffin Ohio, was in town on Friday last, attending a special meeting of Zions classes, of the Reformed church.

The Butler boys want to know why the Auburn boys dont come to time on that game of base ball. We would like to know the reason, talk your cheese.

The Fort Wayne "Gazette" says, the immortal J. N. will lift the veil at this place on August 3d. We hope J. N. wont fool us this time.

Notice—Somebody bring back the Umbrella I left at the Base Ball Grounds Tuesday afternoon, and oblige; Thos. H. Sprott.

Leas & Bovee of Waterloo, went to the grasshopper country and bought one hundred and seventy nine head of cattle and now have them at Waterloo.

Wheat harvest has already commenced, very little being cut last week. The crop will be much better than anticipated in the spring.

John Leasure is now with Mr. Cool in the grocery, corner of Main and 7th streets. John is a steady, industrious boy, and will make a good clerk.

Another party leaves for Pleasant Lake to-day. This one is gotten up under the auspices of several of our young lady friends, and a joyous time may be looked for.

Goshen now indulges in the novelty of a boy hose company, duly organized under the laws of the city. The youngsters can send up a stream with the agility of old stagers.

The Ladies M. E. Social is to meet at our house next Wednesday evening We want every body to come, as we expect to open a keg of nails.

The late heavy rains have caused serious destruction to the crops in many sections, but it does not cover enough ground to cause any serious loss on the general result.

By some manner several of our subscribers were overlooked in sending out papers last week. We don't want it to occur again soon, and doubtless they are of the same opinion.

The Toledo "Commercial" says: Capt W. G. Alexander was presented yesterday, with a beautiful flag for the yacht John F. Kulmer, to unfurl at Putin-Bay next week by W. W. White, of real estate fame.

One of the Hamilton boys at Waterloo, was brought down last Saturday, and lodged in Jail on a charge, of assault and batery, made by old man Marsh.

The grass crop is immense this year though not of as good a quality as last year. Dr. Madden of Butler, told us last week that he took eighteen loads off of a piece of ground that yielded seven last year.

Another excursion to Pleasant Lake was made by a party from this place and Waterloo. This Lake is fast becoming a popular resort, and but little capital is needed to enjoy its beauties.

A cattle dressing contest by eight butchers took place at Albany N. Y., lately. Dinnien was the winner, dressing a bullock, after it had been killed, in 7 minutes and 29 seconds.

If in instructing a child, you are vexed with it for a want of adriotness, try, if you have never tried before, to write with your left hand, and then remember that a child is all left hand.

The handsomest ladies in the State, in both face and figure, and the most glorious type of womanhood, live right here in Auburn. The pin-back style of dress and the absence of vails, prove this to the utter dismay of rival towns.

They do have a murder case now and then at Fort Wayne, notwithstanding the generally peaceful character of that city. One Wall went for a fellow by the name of Cronk, and now Cronk lies in the silent tomb.

Our friend Goetschius with C. Houser has kicked over the traces of single life and now trots gaily in double harness. The boys carried him into Beard's yesterday, as a compliment, and he stood the soda water without a murmur

On Monday last we noticed a man having no use of his legs and arms, sitting in a cart made for his convenience, in front of the meat market. Many of our citizens pecuniarily assisted him by contributing their mites. The unfortunate is a resident of Monroeville Ind.

Bessie Turner is making quite an income out of the scandal trial. Large quantities of her photographs are sold in New York, on each of which she receives a royalty. Bessie would probably like to keep up this excitement on this basis.

One of our merchants was boasting the other day, of a wedding out-fit he sold to the victim of a recent wedding. It consisted, he said, of a box of collars, a pair of suspenders, and two socks. Of course the other articles were obtained somewhere else, as these alone would be heathenish.

New School House

The School Board of Auburn have determined on the erection of a new school house on the property recently purchased of Dr. Ford, on First Street. It is to be 36x26, two stories high, and to cost about two thousand dollars. We like the plans now in the hands of the Board, and believe it will make a handsome structure.

Sometimes there is something very expressive in a name. Two of our young bachelors have a "hole in the wall" and they call it Saint's rests, and its no misnomer, you would think, were you to here the pious ejaculations of these queer friends.

We notice that Messrs. Williams & McDougal are building up an immense trade, at their popular rooms, on Main Street. They serve a lunch that can't be equaled anywhere in the city, and their prices are very reasonable. Call in sometime.

We got a sack of flour from the Eagle Mills, the other day and our better half says it is the best she has had for a long time. Mr. Kagey superintends the grinding himself, at this mill, and knows just how to turn out a good article. If you want a peaceful home get good flour.

We neglected to say that Mr. G. H. Munn, has purchased the dry goods formerly owned by Wm Richmond. Mr M. is adding new goods and fixing up generally, and will make his prices lower than has ever been offered before in Auburn.

There will be a dance in Ensleys' Hall on show day, July 27th. Everybody is invited to be present. The order of dancing will be in sets, and no numbers will be sold. Good music has been engaged.

Now is the time to buy your goods cheap and go to Robinson's show free. To every purchaser of five dollars worth of millinery goods, dry goods, or notions, we will present a free ticket to John Robinson's Great World's Exposition, which will exhibit at Auburn July 27th, 1875. H. H. Stametz.

Last Friday night a week the Odd Fellows of Spencerville gave a public installation of officers and had an ice cream party in conjunction therewith in Provine's hall, which was a grand success in every way. The brotherhood there are enterprising and wide awake and though a small lodge, it is one of the best in the State.

C. P. Houser has the contract for furnishing the new school house with desks of the Smith patern; also of supplying a part of the old one with the same. He represents the very best school furniture in the country, and was in competition with the Sherwood and Bent Furniture Companies in getting this contract which speaks the loudest for the Andrews' Triumph Desk.

Our friend Jas Clifford, at Waterloo, has opened out a fine new billiard hall in the brick building of Dr. Winslow, first corner south of the railroad. The tables are at present down stairs but he intends putting them in the second story, and when completed it will be the finest in the country. Jim is enterprising and has the reputation of keeping orderly, well regulated places.

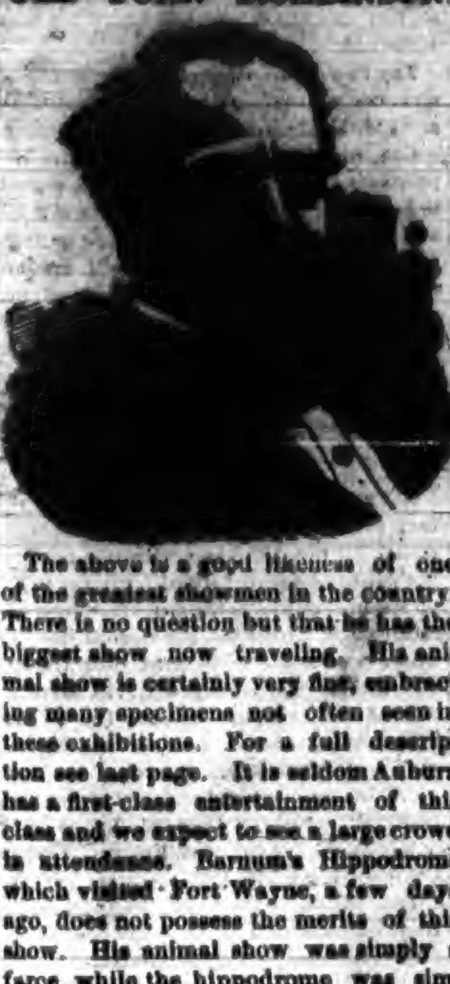
We stated week before last that Miss Mary McNerney had undergone the infliction of a funeral, but from late advices, she has been resurrected and is about as lively a piece of calico as can be found in the State. When we think of the tears that were shed over her supposed departure to that bourne, &c., we almost regret that the same thing has to be duplicated at some time in the future. Mary, you naughty girl, how could you fool dis darkey so.

At a wedding in the lower part of the county, the other day, one of the guests, being more practical than many on such occasions, presented the bride with a lot of soap. Well, why not? Now-a-days new married folks are started out with silver ware and gold rings, just as if that would keep them warm and clean A little more soap and not so much jewelery would be more in accordance with the christian religion.

Billiardistic.—The best game of billiards ever played in Auburn was witnessed last evening at S. J. Lock's Billiard Hall, the contestents being Mr. Eugene Carter, the champion of Ohio, and Paul Clifford of Waterloo. Several interesting games were played, after which Mr. Carter gave an exhibition of fancy shots that astonished and pleased all present. He is a nephew of Mr. Lock's and will be in Auburn quite often, as his father will have charge of the hall here. Paul Clifford never touched a cue until a year ago, and the splendid game he now plays is simply marvelous. At this rate it will require but a short time to place him in the front rank of billiardists in this country. We believe Paul can win the championship of the State of Indiana this fall. Carter is 23 and Paul 16, and the boys will be down again to please and delight us with their splendid playing.

We were shown a pattern of the Higgins Bent Wood Desk, at the Swineford House yesterday, now being introduced by Mr. Safler, the general agent. It is a handsome piece of furniture, and no doubt is capable of good service. We are glad to notice some improvements being made in this line over the old slab seat used a few years ago in our schools Every Trustee should secure these improvements as soon as possible, and as there is a good deal of competition in this line, there will be no necessity of paying an extortionate price.

OLD JOHN ROBBINSON.



The above is a good likeness of one of the greatest showmen in the country. There is no question but that he has the biggest show now traveling. His animal show is certainly very fine, embracing many specimens not often seen in these exhibitions. For a full description see last page. It is seldom Auburn has a first-class entertainment of this class and we expect to see a large crowd in attendance. Barnum's Hippodrome which visited Fort Wayne, a few days ago, does not possess the merits of this show. His animal show was simply a farce, while the hippodrome was simply an exhibition of the lavish expenditure of money. Old John goes on the old style, and gives a fine performance in connection with his menagerie. At Barnum's you had to pay two prices of admission. At this one price admits you to all.

It is currently reported that Samuel Morse and Lafe Bowser, the two newspaper reporters, who went up in the balloon with Donalson, last Tuesday at Barnum's show, actually fainted when they had gained an attitude of a few hundred feet. We don't believe it.—Sam is as brave a hearted a boy as ever threw mud, and Lafe—well, its simply increditable to believe that he would faint in such close proximity to the brewery on Water Street. The version the "News" gives of the affair may be correct as to the coming down, but as to the going up, its as great a story as that White Stocking is capering nimbly in front of a milk wagon.

We never knew what a farmer had to undergo in these modern times until the other day. We dropped in upon our well-to-do neighbor Col. Spangler, and shades of Franklin, what do you suppose we saw? Three sewing machine agents, all glaring at each other, and giving each member of the family a terrible game of talk. The next thing, up came a cow buyer, and the farmer had to race all over the farm to show the cattle. We looked for a book agent to arrive immediately, but he was busy buzzing a neighbor and could not get away. We found out what it all meant The lady of the house spread a splendid dinner, and they all sat down to it, and eat as though it had been the first square meal they had had for a month. Farmers, look out for agents and cow buyers.

FROM BUTLER.

Mr. Editor:—As the Courier has had no correspondent at this place for some time, I submit a few items for the inspection of its many readers.

Miss Sake Ochs has returned from her visit to Jackson Michigan.

The Sargent House has changed hands a man by the name of Green, from Chicago, being the present Landlord.

Boys, if you want your girls to enjoy a good dish of ice cream, go to Durkey's Its "orful" good.

Dr. Barnett and wife have returned from their visit to Maryland and Pensylvania, looking as pleasant and happy as ever.

Simon Ochs has bought over forty thousand pounds of wool at this place this season, and expects to still increase that amount.

E. S. Jones, dealer in groceries, is carrying on a lively trade in this place.

Strause & Co. still retain their old stand and are doing well.

Miss Celia Rank has gone into the millinery business, and invites the ladies to give her a call.

The Butler boys think in makes the girls tired to go buggy riding, so they propose walking till eleven or twelve o'clock at night. Boys you'd better get get a section of ginger bread and thus complete the picture.

Orin Hubbell, Sunner Otis, Geo. Hoopingarner of Bloomington, Ind., College and Eddie Fosdick, Charles Lewis, of Deleware, Ohio, College, are now visiting their parents here. They are all promising young men, and give forth flattering promises of the future.

A most scandalous affair took place here last Monday, in a suit before Justice Campbell, between attorneys, Pinchin and Hoffman, in which the word liar, and almost every other epithet known to the English language was used the justice allowing them to proceed in this most discreditable affair.

Kate.

The Sunday School of the Reformed Church, held a pic-nic yesterday in which a good many participated.

The new firm of Jackman & Eaton is rapidly growing into a fine trade.—They make a specialty of custom work and therefore employ the best of workmen. We advise all to try their work and style.

Excursion to Chicago.

A grand excursion to Chicago and return will be given over the Baltimore road on August 5th, 1875, under the auspices of the M. E. Church at Albion.—The fare for the round trip will be only $3 from Auburn, $2.85 from Garret, $2.75 from Avilla. Five coaches will leave the depot here at 4 o'clock on the morning of the 5th, and others will be added at the different depots to accommodate all who want to go. This company is amply able to furnish all the cars needed. A large supply of water will be furnished on the train. With one of those Camel-backs at the head of the train, there need be no fear of stalling. Tickets for sale at the postoffice. We hope to see a large number avail themselves of this chance.

A young couple in town were to be married, and the day was fixed. A few evenings prior thereto the young man thought he would go and see his sweetheart and make final arrangements. He waited for her to introduce the subject of their coming nuptials, and she likewise did the same, and the consequence was never a word was said and the day of their happiness passed without recognition. Come, make up, renew your troths, call in a preacher and be made one, and then hear the little bird singing in your heart.

BUTLER ITEMS.

Butler is making considerable improvements in the way of building, this season.

A daughter of our friend, Geo. Maxwell, was married a few days ago.

Geo. Hensler still keeps up a fine stock of hardware, notwithstanding the heavy demand made upon him in that line.

F. F. Conner, has sold out his harness store, but is still retained, being indispensible in that line of business.

Jas. Sternberg has taken charge of the Butler Hotel, and seems determined in bringing up the reputation of the house.

Haskins & Son have been doing a fine livery business this spring. They have the finest livery building in the county and know how to run the business.

A. F. Pinchin has the finest horse in the country. That and a doubled barreled shot gun, makes him extremely happy.

W. L. Blair has done an immense trade in agricultural implement line this season. The large ware room which was full of machines in the spring is about empty.

Dr. Hoopingarner, has his new store room about ready for business. It is a fine building, in a very desirable location.

Ike Hirchler, has an educated fly. It is placed upon a pedestal, and takes a small club in its paws, and rattles on a tumbler, as much as to say, "aind glass lager beer." Hundreds visit it every day and say about the same thing.

S. G. Green, of Chicago, has taken charge of the old Sargent House, and is now renovating and fixing it up preparatory to keeping one of the best Hotels in the county, and his long experience assures success.

There is one fellow in Butler who holds a full hand in one thing. A horse kicked him on the cheek one day. The cheek is all right, but the horses hoof hasn't entirely recovered. We forgot his name.

W. L. Blair, is our authorized agent for the Courier at Butler. Any one wanting to subscribe or pay subscriptions to the Courier or wanting job work, or advertising done will please call on him.

New Goods at the Grand Central.

Ladies Black Fans, goood styles and very cheap at the Grand Central.

Geo. H. Munn has reduced expenses every way possible in order that he may sell his goods cheap.

Geo. H. Munn does not give you a ticket to Robinson's show, but he will discount any bill of ten dollars enough to take you into two such shows.

Nice Dress Linen at the Grand Central.

Boots & Shoes 25c below cost at G. H Munn's.

I will put a price list in the paper next week. Look all through it.
G. H. MUNN.

B. F. Dill, of the Evangelical Association, will preach in the German Methodist Church on Thursday, July 22d, in the evening.

Ho, for Chicago.
Grand Excursion
Over the Baltimore & Ohio,
AUGUST 5th, 1875
A Grand Basket Pic-nic in Lincoln Park.

It is also proposed to visit the principal places of interest in the city.—Conveyance by Steamer or Street Car to and from the Park at all times.—Round trip tickets may be had at the follow rates of fare:

Auburn……	$3.00	Garrett……	$2.85
Avilla……	2.65	Albion……	2.50

Trains will leave the different stations as follows:

Auburn…	4:00 am	Garrett…	4:10 am
Avilla…	4:27 "	Albion…	4:57 am
Chicago ar11:27 "		and return leaving

Chicago at 9 pm. Proceeds to be applied to building M. E. Church at Albion

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed Administrator of the estate of Frederick Haut, late of DeKalb county, deceased. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.
Charles Haut, Jr., Adm.
July 1, 1875.

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

State of Indiana,
DeKalb County.

Notice is hereby given, that Oliver P. Learned Administrator of the estate of Gilbert C. Evertis, deceased, has filed his petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, his personal being insufficient to pay his debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of the Circuit Court of said county. Attest:
J. R. Lanning, Clerk.
July 15

NOTICE.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County } In attachment before J. P. Widney J. P. of Union-tp Charles Lockwood
versus
Richard Cantling

It appearing by the return on the writ issued herein that said defendant is not found.

Notice is therefore given to said defendant to appear to said action at my office on the 4th day of September 1875 at ten o'clock a. m.
J. P. Widney, J. P.
Dated July 8, 1875.
Penfield & Moody, attys for plff.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA,
DeKalb County } Sct:

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, September Term, 1875.

George Hensler,
versus
Isaac M. Johnson,
David Fay,
John W. Boyle,
Albert J. Mason,
Samuel Grenamyer,
James E. Rose,
Edward W. Fosdick
and John Sprott } Complaint No. 149.

Now comes the plaintiff, by P. V. Hoffman his attorney, and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant John Sprott is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb County Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court house in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demer to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 8th day of July, 1875.
J. R. Lanning Clerk.
July 15

NOTICE.

State of Indiana,
DeKalb County } Sct.

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September term, 1875.

George Shutt,
versus
David W. Comer,
Hiram P. Housel,
Mrs Hiram P. Housel
Alonzo Lockwood. } Complaint No. 106.

Now comes the plaintiff, by Penfield & Moody, his attorneys and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that the residence of said defendant, David W. Comer is unknown.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb circuit court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September a. d. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness, My name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 13th day of July 1875.
July 15 J. R. Lanning, Clerk.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA,
DeKalb County } Sct.

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September Term 1875.

Cyrus S. Stoy
John W. Boyle
versus
Isaac M. Johnson
Samuel Grenamyer
Albert W. Mason,
James E. Rose,
Edward W Fosdick
and John Sprott. } Complaint No. 138.

Now comes the plaintiff, by Rose & Hoffman, their attorneys and files their complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant John Sprott is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, given, said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th, Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 8th day of July, 1875.
J. R. Lanning Clerk,

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA,
DeKalb County. } Sct.

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September term, 1875.

Cyrus S. Stoy,
versus
John Burrell,
Winefred Burrell,
John W. Boyle,
Samuel Grenamyer,
Albert J. Mason,
James E. Rose,
Ed. W. Fosdick,
and John Sprott. } Complaint No. 139.

Now comes the plaintiff, by P. V. Hoffman, his attorney, and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant John Sprott is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb circuit court to be holden on the 4th Monday of September a. d 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness, My name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 8th day of July 1875.
J. R. Lanning, Clerk.
July 15

NOTICE.

State of Indiana,
DeKalb County } Sct.

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September term, 1875.

Orpha Blake
versus Eliza Franklin
Reuel Franklin
Laura Franklin,
Joseph W. Snell,
Fred. L. Andrews } Complaint No. 90.

Now comes the plaintiff, by Penfield & Moody her attorneys, and files her complaint herein, together with an affidavit that the residence of said defendants, Reuel Franklin and Laura Franklin is unknown and that the defendant Joseph W. Snell is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendants that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb circuit court to be holden on the 4th Monday of September a. d. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness, My name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 13th day of July 1875.
J. R. Lanning, Clerk.
July 15

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA
DeKalb County } Sct:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, Sept. term, 1875.

Leah Casselman
George Casselman
vs.
Dena H. Smith
Monroe H. Smith
John A. Smith } Complaint No. 101.

Now comes the Plaintiff, by McBride & Morian Attorneys, and file their complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendants are not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendants that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court to be holden on the fourth Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness, my name and seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 5, day of July 1875.
J. R. Lanning, Clerk.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed Administrator with will annexed of the Estate of Edward Clark, late of DeKalb County deceased.

Said Estate supposed to be solvent.
Oliver P. Learned, Adm'r

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

ALBERT BROWN was hung at Towanda, Pa., on Thursday, July 1, for the brutal murder, in August last, of Cora Greenleaf, a little girl of five years.

A FIRE in New York, Friday night, destroyed the Ice Box and Lumber Company's premises, together with stables containing six horses. Loss, $100,000; insurance, $75,000....The Governor and Council have decided not to commute the sentence of Pomeroy, the Boston boy-murderer, and he will be hanged....Alex. Hamilton, the Treasurer of Jersey City, has been sentenced to three years imprisonment, and to pay a fine of $1,000.

ON Monday afternoon, the 5th inst., a terrible collision occurred between two excursion trains on the South Side railroad, near Far Rockawny, Long Island, in which seven persons were killed and twenty-seven injured, some fatally. Great indignation existed at the time of the accident, and people were disposed o blame the railroad attaches. The killed were horribly mutilated.

OPERATIONS have been resumed at the Grant Locomotive Works of Paterson, N. J., which have been suspended for some past. Three hundred men are employed on locomotives for the Russian government....A dreadful storm of rain, hail and wind prevailed at New York on Tuesday last, unroofing houses, tearing up trees, etc., doing an immense amount of damage, and killing two men who were at work on a house....A party of seven lads, bathing in Wautuppa lake, near Fall river, Mass., a few days ago, joined hands and walked off the sand-bar into deep water, where six of the number, John W. Fielding, James William Jacques, William Dyer, Francis Kane and George McManus were drowned.

THE Plymouth Church congregation, at a meeting the other day, voted unanimously to raise the salary of Henry Ward Beecher to $100,000 a year. He has heretofore been receiving $20,000....Two heavy failures are announced from New Haven, Ct.: Tyler, Frost & Co., wholesale grocers and dealers in liquors, liabilities between $150,000 and $200,000; and W. H. Bradley & Co., carriage manufacturers, liabilities about $225,000.

FRANK D. MOULTON has addressed a letter to District Attorney Britton, of Brooklyn, demanding a trial on the indictment found against him at the instance of Mr. Beecher last summer.

THE WEST.

THE Sioux City papers give the particulars of a triple tragedy at the Winnebago Agency. An Indian of the tribe, in a fit of jealousy, killed the seducer of his wife, then stabbed her to the heart, after which he committed suicide....A dispatch from Lincoln, Neb., says: "Reports from the buffalo lands, in the western part of this State, report numerous wolves suffering from hydrophobia, making it dangerous for hunters. A young man named Ackerly, while sleeping on the prairie recently, was bitten on the nose by a skunk, and died in the most horrible agony with hydrophobia symptoms, the same as from the bite of a rabid dog."....Col. E. B. Carlin, the Quartermaster at Fort Sanders, Wy. T., committed suicide recently by cutting his throat from ear to ear. Financial embarrassment and the complication of his official affairs are assigned as the cause of his act.

THE entire village of Meridian, Neb., was destroyed by a tornado recently, and Alexandria, in the same State, was also badly damaged.

ANOTHER dispatch has been received at the War Department in Washington from Prof. Jenney, in which he reiterates his former statement that, so far, he has not found gold enough in the Black Hills to warrant any extended mining operations.

THE Governor of Kansas has sent to President Grant a strong remonstrance against the proposed settlement of the Sioux and other wild Indians in the Indian Territory.

GEN. FRANCIS P. BLAIR, JR., died at his residence in St. Louis on the 8th inst., in the 55th year of his age. He was stricken with paralysis in 1872, and has been in failing health ever since. Two months ago transfusion of blood was tried, with, it was thought, favorable results, but a relapse took place, resulting in his death in a few hours....A real estate lawsuit, which promises to rival in magnitude and duration the celebrated suit of Mrs. Gaines in New Orleans, is one of the probabilities in Chicago. A strip of land worth several millions of dollars, on which stand the Illinois Central depot and a portion of the tracks, is in dispute, having just been originally entered at the Land Office at Springfield, although it has been occupied and presumably owned by the railroad company for the last thirty years....The latest news from the Black Hills is not encouraging to gold-seekers.

WASHINGTON

GEN. SPINNER stepped down and out, and Mr. New took charge of the Treasury Department on the 1st inst. There was a good deal of excitement by the changes incident to the reorganization of the Department and the assumption of office by Mr. New. About 150 employes were discharged, fifty of whom were women. ....The decrease in the public debt during the month of June was $1,431,249, and for the fiscal year ending June 30, $14,399,514. The following is the official statement for June 30:

Six per cent. bonds	$1,100,865,550
Five per cent. bonds	607,132,750
Total coin bonds		$1,707,998,300
Lawful money debt	$ 14,678,000
Matured debt	11,425,820
Legal tenders	375,841,687
Certificates of deposit	58,415,000
Fractional currency	42,129,424
Coin certificates	21,796,300
Total without interest		498,182,411
Total debt		$2,232,284,531
Total interest		38,647,556
Cash in Treasury:
Coin	$79,854,410
Currency	3,973,951
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of deposit	58,415,000
Total in the Treasury		$ 142,243,361
Debt less cash in the Treasury		$2,128,688,726
Decrease of debt during June		1,431,249
Decrease since June 30, 1874		14,399,514
Bonds issued to the Pacific Railway Companies, interest payable in lawful money: Principal outstanding		$ 64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid		1,938,705
Interest paid by the United States		26,304,109
Interest repaid by transportation of mails, etc		6,134,311
Balance of interest paid by United States		20,120,791

A NOVEL suit has been brought in the District Court under the Civil-Rights bill by a white man, who sues the proprietor of a boarding-house for colored people for having ejected him from the house where he had engaged board.

THE Postmaster-General contemplates making an official tour of New England in August, and of the South in November. This trip will have the same general purpose as his recent Western tour.

NEW and extensive frauds in connection with the whisky ring are being made, and among those indicted for conspiracy are G. W. Fishback, late of the St. Louis Democrat; and Messrs. McKee and Houser, of the Globe-Democrat. W. O. Avery, Chief Clerk of the Treasury at Washington; A. H. Holt, Chief Clerk in the Internal Revenue Bureau are implicated....Under the act of July 12, 1874, providing for the resumption of specie payments, the Treasury Department has disposed of about $10,000,000 of bonds, known as the 5 per cents, authorized by the act of July 14, 1870, and with the proceeds has purchased about $9,000,000 in silver for the purpose of retiring fractional currency.

TREASURER NEW has imposed some grievous restraints upon the lady clerks in the Treasury Department. An order has been issued prohibiting visitors, and the ladies are not permitted to leave their work during business hours, as they formerly spent much time gadding about the halls.

THE SOUTH.

THE citizens of Bowling Green, Ky., are in great trepidation over the suspected presence of the dreaded James and Younger brothers in that vicinity. The various banks of the place have placed 100 needle-guns in the hands of citizens, together with ten rounds of ammunition each, to guard these institutions against the bandits....John Coughlin, aged 15, and two sisters named Keating, aged 13 and 15, all residing at Newport, Ky., were drowned in Licking river, a few days ago, by the upsetting of a boat.

IN the United States District Court at Fort Smith, Ark., last week, eight murderers from the Indian Nation were sentenced to be hanged. One of the men, after conviction, attempted to escape, and was shot dead. The other seven will be hung simultaneously on the 3d of September.

GEORGE APPLEWHITE, the last of the notorious Lowry gang of outlaws, has been arrested at Goldsboro, N. C., and is now in jail....The celebrated race horse Lexington died at Lexington, Ky., last week....The negroes had a Fourth of July celebration at the court-house in Vicksburg, Miss. Some difficulty occurred among the audience during the speaking, when firing commenced. Several negroes were wounded, and three unknown negroes fatally shot. John Hall, white, is supposed to be mortally wounded.

PAT MANNING, a retail grocer in Memphis, was shot and killed by Officer McCormick, on Tuesday last. Manning was beating one of his children, and was ordered to desist by the officer, but refused. The officer procured a warrant and attempted to arrest Manning, when the latter fired at him, the ball grazing his temple. McCormick then drew his pistol and fired, instantly killing Manning....Robert N. Yerby was shot and killed on the steamer A. J. White, near St. Louis Landing, Ark., a few days since, by B. L. Oliver and his son. The killing grew out of an old grudge, young Oliver first shooting Yerby in the temple. After he fell the elder Oliver fired at him. The Olivers then ordered the boat to land, which was done, and they escaped in the woods....Four persons were instantly killed, and seven seriously injured, by the explosion of a saw mill at Hot Springs, Ark., a few days ago....The business part of the town of Washington, Hempstead county, Ark., has been destroyed by fire.

A match game of billiards of 500 points, for $1,000 and the championship of the West and Southwest, was played last week at New Orleans between Henry Rhines, of Chicago, and Henry Miller, of New Orleans, the latter winning.... At a large meeting recently held at Charlottesville, Va., to consider whether or not that State should repudiate her debt, a series of resolutions denouncing repudiation in the warmest terms, were adopted with but one dissenting vote.

POLITICAL.

THE Temperance Reformers of California have nominated W. E. Lovett for Governor.

THE President has appointed William C. Nichols, Assistant Treasurer at Chicago; John Taffe, of Nebraska, Secretary of Colorado; John B. Clark to be Surveyor-General for Nebraska and Iowa; H. M. Keyser, of Illinois, Receiver of Public Moneys at Helena, Mon.; Charles D. Bradley, Attorney for Colorado.

THE Republican State Convention of Wisconsin was held at Madison on Wednesday, July 7. The following ticket was placed in the field: For Governor, Harrison Ludington, of Milwaukee; Lieutenant-Governor, H. T. Eaton, of Richland; Secretary of State, Hans B. Warner, of Pierce; Treasurer, Henry Baetz, of Manitowoc; Attorney-General, John R. Bennett, of Rock; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Robert Graham, of Oshkosh. The resolutions are as follows: Adherence to the indissoluble union of the States, the sovereignty of the Federal government, and the rights of States; government protection to labor; no union between Church and State; against a division of the school fund for sectarian purposes; recognizes President Grant's third-term letter; approval of the efforts of the present Administration to prevent and punish fraud; in favor of arbitration instead of war; adheres to the doctrine of legislative control over railroads and other corporations deriving power from the State; gradual resumption of specie payments; a tariff for revenue only; such a revision of the patent laws as will relieve industry from the oppression of monopolies; that true education and sound morals are the best agencies for promoting the cause of temperance....The Opposition Convention of Minnesota met at St. Paul on July 7. The following nominations were made: For Governor, D. L. Buell of Houston; Lieutenant-Governor, E. W. Durant of Stillwater; Secretary of State, Adolphus Bierman, of Olmsted; Auditor of State, M. Doran, of Lesueur; Treasurer, Albert Shaffer, of St. Paul; Chief Justice, L. Emmett, of Rice; Attorney-General, Richard Jones, of Olmsted; Clerk of Supreme Court, Archibald McLeod, of Duluth; Railroad Commissioner, J. M. Sencerbox, of Scott. The platform accepts the Fourteenth, Fifteenth, and Sixteenth Amendments to the Federal Constitution, and says that hereafter all parties must stand upon them; favors the rights of the States; opposes all attempts to limit the freedom of the press; favors preparatory and effective measures for the resumption of specie payments; a tariff for revenue only; no partial legislation; uniform excise laws and no sumptuary laws; strict economy in public affairs; State control over chartered corporations.

GENERAL.

ROBERT DALE OWEN, the well-known Spiritualist and scientist, has become insane. It is thought that this infliction was caused by the exposures of the impostures of some swindling mediums in Philadelphia a few months since. He had great faith in their pretended "manifestations," and when the fraud became known to him the shock was too heavy for him to withstand.

THE Postmaster-General has decided that the stamp on a postal card is not sufficient to carry any additional matter attached to the stamp.

GEN. SHERMAN recommends that the Indian prisoners at St. Augustine, Fla., be permitted to have their immediate families live with them, and it is said that the request of the Indians will be granted, although it will involve an expense of transporting 200 persons nearly 2,000 miles....The headquarters of the Patrons of Husbandry have been removed from Washington to Louisville, and the next meeting of the National Grange will be held in that city on the third Wednesday of November next.

FOREIGN.

ADVICES from Matamoras, Mexico, report that the notorious Gen. Cortina has been arrested by the Mexican authorities and his police disarmed and disbanded. Cortina is Mayor of Matamoras, and is the chief instigator of the recent raids across the Rio Grande into Texas. There was much excitement over the arrest and trouble was anticipated....A serious revolt of the peasants against the nobles in Transylvania, Austria, is reported. Many persons have been killed, including two Judges. ....Two more heavy London failures are announced, namely: Dacosta, Basito & Co., liabilities $1,200,000, and Kilburn, Kerhard & Co., liabilities $3,750,000.

THE British colony at the Cape of Good Hope has annexed sundry independent territories inhabited by 150,000 Caffres.

LATER advices from the United States of Colombia bring additional particulars of the destructive earthquake at Cucuta. The story of the catastrophe is confirmed in all its horrible details. A private letter from Salazar says: "The number of the dead is calculated at three-quarters of the entire population. The few families which are saved are now on the outskirts of what was the city, living on what they can procure, but they will soon be obliged to retire, as the putrification of the dead will not allow them to remain. It is heartrending to see the wounded, who can have no care, and who cannot remain long alive in their present condition. Four hundred mules were killed in the streets, and, as there is no one to remove them, the stench is becoming frightful." Another letter says that such was the violence of the shock that not a single house remained standing, and monuments in the cemetery were thrown down and many removed a considerable distance from their original site. In thirty seconds the City of Cucuta was converted into a mountain of ruins. The horrible blow resulted in the death of more than 10,000 persons, in addition to other thousands who were seriously wounded and bruised. Great numbers of haciendas have been destroyed, and hundreds of houses in the country overthrown, leaving the people homeless and consigned to poverty. Many of the trees were torn up by the roots and small hills were opened like a melon.

THE American rifle team were enthusiastically received in Belfast, Ireland, and were banqueted by the city authorities....A duel was fought the other day, in Belgium, between two Parisian journalists, Rosaite, of Le Presse, and Perevier, of Le Figaro, and the latter was wounded in the chest and arm....Gambetta, the distinguished French statesman, has peremptorily declined to accept a challenge from Paul de Cassagnac, the noted duelist....The father of Don Carlos has been arrested by the Spanish authorities.

THE London Times of July 8 summarizes the military and political situation in Spain, and gives a gloomy view of the Alfonsist cause. ....The Italian government has decided not to participate in our Centennial, on account of the considerable expense necessary....A large crowd assembled at Hendon, England, last week, to witness the pigeon-shooting match between A. H. Bogardus, of Illinois, and Geo. Rimmel, champion of England. Bogardus won easily. Bogardus has challenged all England to shoot against him....The Suffrage Extension bill has been defeated in the English House of Commons by a vote of 268 nays to 166 yeas.... Cassagnac, the Paris fighting editor, has published a letter, in which he threatens to kick Gambetta on sight.

AN international pigeon match, £800 and the championship of the world, has been arranged to take place at London in August, between A. H. Bogardus, the American champion, and Edward Thornton, of Yorkshire, England's champion—100 birds, Burlingham rules.... Cortina, the brigand chief of the Rio Grande border, has been safely conveyed from Matamoras on board a gun-boat and is now on the way to Vera Cruz....Portions of Switzerland were recently visited by a hail-storm of unprecedented violence and destructiveness. Many persons were killed, crops destroyed and valuable property damaged....Inundations and overflowing of the rivers of France continue to be reported, and railway traffic is interrupted, with occasional loss of life.... The London Standard decries immigration to the United States. It believes that Americans still covet Canada, and concludes the article in these words: "We wish Canadians to understand that England regards them as Englishmen, and would fight for Canada as for Kent. A suggestion to abandon Canada would overthrow the strongest ministry England has ever known."

TREATMENT OF BURNS. On the instant of the accident, plunge the part under cold water. This relieves the pain in a second, and allows all hands to become composed. If the part cannot be kept under water, cover it over with dry flour, an inch deep or more. In many instances nothing more is needed after the flour; simply let it remain until it falls off, when a new skin will be found under. In severer cases, while the part injured is under water, simmer a leek or two in an earthen vessel, with half their bulk of hog's lard, until the leeks are soft, then strain through a muslin rag. This makes a greenish-colored ointment, which, when cool, spread thickly on a linen cloth and apply it to the injured part. If there are blisters let out the water. When the part becomes feverish and uncomfortable, renew the ointment, and a rapid, painless cure will be the result, if the patient, in the meanwhile, lives exclusively on fruits, coarse bread and other light, loosening diet.—Hall's Journal of Health.

IT is estimated that 100,000 pounds of chloride of lime would sweeten Chicago river for about fifteen minutes, and Chicago may be happy yet.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

There were no new developments in connection with the money market. The demand for favors was light and the offerings ample. Interest rates quotable at 7@10 per cent., according to time and security. Government bonds were in good demand and very steady as follows:

	Buying.	Selling.
U. S. 6's of '81	122¼	122¾
U. S. 5-20's of '62 (ex. int.)	117½	118
U. S. 5-20's of '64 (ex. int.)	118¼	118½
U. S. 5-20's of '65 (ex. int.)	121¼	122
U. S. 5-20's of '65 January and July	120¼	120½
U. S. 5-20's of '67 January and July	121¼	122
U. S. 5-20's of '68 January and July	121¼	121½
U. S. 10.40's	118¾	119
U. S. new 5's of '81 (ex. int.)	117½	117¾
U. S. currency 6's	122¼	122¾
Gold (full weight)	116¾	117¼
Gold Coupons	116¾	117¼
Gold exchange	116¾	117¼

BREADSTUFFS.

There was considerable interest shown in the grain markets during the week under review, and quite an active speculative business was transacted. Speculators were the principal operators, and the bulk of the sales were for future delivery. There was a fair aggregate shipping demand for wheat, but for corn, oats, and the minor grains there was but a restricted shipping movement. The receipts were fair all round, but a comparison with the arrivals for the same time last year, shows a most marked decrease. The shipments also show a decrease on corn, but there was an increase in the forward movement of wheat. Seller August was the favorite option, the demand being principally for this delivery, while there was more desire to sell for July, the deliveries on maturing contracts being quite large. As a general rule a rather unsettled feeling prevailed, the market being governed mainly by local influences. A comparison of the annexed quotations will show the current prices at the opening and at the close of the past week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash	$ .99¼@ .99½	$1.02¾@1.03
No. 2, seller July	1.00 @.100½	1.02¾
No. 2 seller August	1.01½	1.03¼@1.03½
No. 2 corn, cash	.67¾@ .69	.68¼
No. 2 corn, seller July	.67½@ .68¼	.68½ bid.
No. 2 corn, s. August	.69¼@ .70	.70¼@ .70¾
No. 2 oats, cash	.51¼@ .52	.52¼ bid
No. 2 oats, seller June	.51¾	.52¾@ .53¼
No. 2 oats, seller July	.50 @ .51	.50¼@ .51
No. 2 oats, s. August	.39¼@ .39½	.39½@ .39¾
No. 2 oats, s. Sept	.38	.38 @ .38¼
No. 2 rye, cash	.90	.92
No. 2 barley, cash	1.20	1.18 @1.20
No. 2 barley, s. Sept	1.00	1.00 @1.01

PROVISIONS.

Rather an unsettled feeling pervaded this market during the week just past, and prices fluctuated quite frequently, but within a small range. Holders of provisions were generally asking a shade more than buyers were willing to pay, and the business transacted for outside account in consequence was rather light, but at the same time there was quite a good demand from speculators and a fairly active business was reported. Eastern advices were of a more favorable tenor, which was the principal cause for the existing firmness among holders. Cash mess pork closed at $19.40@19.60, according to the quantity and the reputation of the brand; seller July, $19.45@19.50, and seller August closed at $19.62½@19.65. Cash lard closed at $13.15, seller July at $13.12½@13.15, and seller August at $13.50.

PRODUCE.

A fair trade was reported in butter, though the movement was not as liberal as during the previous week. The receipts during the week were fair, and the supply on hand is perhaps a little larger than at this time last week, but receivers generally were firm in their views, and former prices were maintained. Quotable at 19@22c for extras, 17@20c for firsts, 14@17c for seconds, 13@15c for thirds, and 11@12c for inferior stock. Beans were rather quiet, but prices remain steady and firm. Quotable at $1.90 for prime Eastern medium, and $1.25@1.80 for Western, according to quality. There was a fair trade reported in broom corn, and prices were firm, as follows: 11½@14c for No. 1 to extra hurl, 11@13c for good to choice stalk braid, and 6@8½c for crooked. Beeswax was quiet at 26@30c. A large amount of cheese has been bought at the factories by shippers and exporters, and the receipts, therefore, were rather light, in view of which dealers generally were firmer in their views, and a slight improvement was noticeable in prices. The market closed at 10@10⅝c for prime new in lots, and 11@11½c in a retail way. Cider remains inactive and nominal at about $5.75@6.00. Dried peas were very slow sale, and prices were little better than nominal; quotable at $2.00@2.10 for choice green and $1.75@1.80 for marrowfat. The movement in dried fruits was only moderate, and prices under a more ardent desire to sell were weak and lower. The market closed at 7@8c for Michigan and New York apples, according to the quantity and quality. Peaches 8¼@8⅝c for halves and about 7¼@8c for mixed. Blackberries closed with sellers at 8½c. Eggs were in better supply and the market was weaker, closed at 14c for loose packages and 14½c in cases. There is no change in feathers: prime live geese, 48@52c; turkey tail, 30@35c, and chicken, 4@5c per lb. The demand for hides was light and prices were easier; green salted quotable at 8c all round; calf, 12½@13, and kip 8@10c. Honey was dull at 18@23c for choice in combs and 10@11c for strained. There was nothing of consequence done in hops; prices, however, remain steady at 20@30c per lb for fair to choice. Hay was quiet and easier. Timothy quotable at $15.00@19.00 for mixed to prime, and prairie, $9.00@15.00 for No. 2 to prime. Maple sugar was dull and very slow at anything over 7½c@8c per lb. There was but little trade in old potatoes, and new, under larger offerings, were lower; quotable at 80c@90c per bu for old Eastern peachblows, $2.00@3.00 per brl for small new, and $3.50@4.00 for good to choice. Salt was in fair demand and steady at $1.50 for Onondaga and Saginaw fine, and $1.70 for ordinary coarse. Vegetables were rather dull, and nearly all the arrivals from Southern points were in poor order; cabbage sold at $1.50@1.75 for crates containing two doz; beets, 20@25c per doz; asparagus, 40@50c per doz; string beans, $1.25@1.50 per bu when choice; choice tomatoes were in fair demand for green, and soft were dull—quotable at $1.25@1.50 for ½ bu boxes. There was a fair demand for light wool, but heavy was very slow sale; quotable at 38@43c for fine to coarse good conditioned unwashed, 25@32c for washed, and 40@50c for poor to prime tub. Veal was in fair request and steady; sold at 4@7½c for poor to choice.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

Dullness and inactivity continue to be the prevailing features in the seed market. There were but few lots of the various descriptions sold during the week, and rather an unsettled feeling existed, though no change in particular was exhibited in values. Timothy was quite firm, but prices owing to the difference in quality were very irregular. Quotable at $2.30@2.50 for common to good and $2.55@2.65 for prime. Clover was scarce and a shade higher. Quotable at $6.75@7.00 for prime medium. Nothing of consequence was done in flax—nominal at about $1.60 for good crushing. Some lots of prime Hungarian were sold at 90c, but most holders were asking a trifle over this figure, and some small sales from store were made at $1.25. Millet was quiet but firm at $2.00@2.25 for good to prime. Buckwheat was dull with free sellers of prime at $1.00. A good demand existed for highwines and the market ruled steady and firm. Closed at about $1.16.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

There was nothing new of importance noticeable in the market for cooperage. Trade as is usual at this time of the year was limited, but as the offerings were not excessive former prices were maintained. Quotations range at $1.12½@1.15 for pork barrels, and $1.35@1.45 for lard tierces; $1.90@2.10 for whisky barrels, and 45@55c for flour barrels. It should be understood that the outside prices for lard tierces is only paid for "standard" packages—the new size adopted recently by the Packers' Association. Lumber was very dull during the week. The orders from the interior were light, and as local dealers were buying rather sparingly the market closed with a good many cargoes unsold. The arrivals during the weke were fair. Quotable at $7.75@8.00 for joist and scantling. Strips and boards, $8.00@12.00 for common to fair, and $12.50@14.00 for good to choice. Shingles, $2.20@2.70, and lath, $1.50. There was but little doing in wood, and prices remain unchanged. Quotable at $8.00 per cord for hickory; $7.00 for maple; $6.00 for beech, and $4.00 for slabs at the yards.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	10	@	13
HOGS—Dressed	9	@	10
COTTON	15½	@	16¼
FLOUR—Superfine Western	5 50	@	[illegible]
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 15	@	1 16
No. 1 Spring	1 21	@	1 24
CORN	78	@	81
OATS	64	@	68
RYE	1 05	@	1 08
PORK—New Mess	20 50	@	20 75
LARD—Steam	13	@	13

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red	1 30	@	1 32
CORN—No. 2 New	66	@	67
OATS—No. 2	52	@	54
RYE—No. 2	90	@	95
PORK—Mess	20 25	@	20 50
LARD	12	@	13
HOGS	6 65	@	7 25
CATTLE	4 50	@	6 00

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 07	@	1 08
No. 2	1 03	@	1 05
CORN—No. 2	59	@	61
OATS—No. 2	..	@	53
RYE	95	@	97
BARLEY—No. 2	1 24	@	1 26

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT—Red	1 20	@	1 25
CORN—New	66	@	68
OATS	54	@	59
RYE	1 02	@	1 04
PORK—Mess	20 00	@	20 25
LARD	13	@	14

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—Extra	1 26	@	1 27
Amber	1 23	@	1 24
CORN—New	69	@	70
OATS	58	@	60

DETROIT.

WHEAT—Extra	..	@	1 28
Amber	..	@	1 24
CORN	65	@	66
OATS	60	@	64

CLEVELAND.

WHEAT—No. 1 Red	1 23	@	1 25
No. 2 Red	1 19	@	1 20
CORN	69	@	70
OATS	56	@	57

TILTON-BEECHER.

Conclusion of the Famous Trial—Disagreement of the Jury.

The celebrated trial of Tilton vs. Beecher has at last come to a conclusion, having resulted, as was generally anticipated, in a disagreement of the jury. The case was submitted to the jury on Thursday, June 24. On the following Thursday they came into court and notified Judge Neilson that there was no probability of an agreement. The Judge, however, sent them back to their room, with instructions to disregard the Price and Loader affidavits, which had been shown to be false. On the following day, Friday, July 2, they again sent a note to Judge Neilson, stating that it was impossible to agree upon a verdict, whereupon they were summoned into court. What followed is thus described by the Associated Press dispatches:

At 11:17 the jury filed into court, looking as if they had passed a sleepless night. In reply to the question: "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" Foreman Carpenter replied: "We have not, your Honor. We regret it very much that we find it impossible to agree."

Judge Neilson stated that he had learned by a note from the jury, early this morning, that in their opinion they should be discharged, as they could not agree, and some of their number were suffering in health. He experienced the force of that application very strongly, and had called them in now, at the earliest moment, giving to counsel and others an opportunity of being present. As they were about to separate, he would like them to carry away kindly recollections, and, so far as they could, remove whatever chagrin they felt at being detained so long. He wished them to recollect the fact that not until yesterday did they suggest that they could not agree, and that suggestion came from their foreman, signed by eleven, and accompanied by another from one juror, who thought an agreement possible. While he had perfect regard and confidence in the opinion of the eleven, and the explanation of the foreman, he thought something was due to the twelfth juryman. His Honor had the same thing on his mind yesterday at 4 o'clock, and he allowed Juryman Taylor to devote his time to bringing about an agreement, so far as he could. He learned from the note that they were unable to agree, and that the disagreement was founded on their inability to decide upon the weight of the testimony and the credibility of the witnesses, and it appeared to his Honor and every person conversant with the case that it was impossible for him to help them by any suggestions. Not even in his charge could he find a means of helping them on that point. The weight of the testimony rested with the jury. It was for them to say what witnesses they could believe and what witnesses they could not. The court had no right to interfere. He was glad to be assured that the disagreement did not arise from any want of attention on his part, and God knew there were some points on which he could do nothing.

The jury was then discharged, and filed out of court. Mrs. Beecher went to the railing and shook hands with each juryman as he passed. Thus ended the great Tilton-Beecher scandal suit.

The jury at one time were seven for conviction and five for acquittal, but at the close stood nine to three for Beecher.

It is rumored that Tilton will move for a new trial and a change of venue. It is also intimated that he will endeavor to procure the indictment of Gen. Tracy for perjury.

Mr. Beecher regards the result of the trial as a perfect vindication.

A Plethora of Peaches.

The peach growers of the Marland and Delaware Peninsula have done what American citizens always do when they are bothered—they have held a convention. The first thing to be settled was: How many peaches are there to be this year? Well, at the convention estimates fluctuated. Some said 8,000,000 baskets. Some said 6,000,000 baskets. The Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railway authorities have settled upon the larger figures, and have made preparations to transport that quantity. Middletown, it is said, is the largest peach-growing section of the Peninsula. Here, for instance, is Gov. Cochran, who will ship 125,000 baskets, and Mr. Shelcross, who will send to market 150,000 baskets. From this station the railroad company expects to carry 600,000 baskets, demanding 50 cars per diem, and two engines. The Mt. Pleasant crop is estimated at 500,000 baskets; Dover, 400,000. From the Queen Ann and Kent County railroad the estimate is 700,000. Then from other points, one writer thinks, there will be additional shipments, so that the crop will come up really to 10,000,000 baskets—New York Tribune.

AMERICA VICTORIOUS.

The Great International Rifle Contest at Dublin—The Yankee Boys Achieve a Signal Victory Over Their Celtic Competitors.

The great shooting match between the American and Irish rifle teams came off at Dollymount, near Dublin, Ireland, on Tuesday, June 29, the Yankees achieving a brilliant and well-earned victory over the sons of the Green Isle. From the cable dispatches we glean the following interesting particulars of the exciting contest:

The firing at the 800-yards range resulted in one point in favor of the Irish team, the score standing: Americans, 337; Irish, 338.

The shooting at the 900-yards range resulted: Americans, 327; Irishmen, 292. The shooting at the 1,000-yards range, which was remarkably fine on both sides, was won by the Americans by a score of 304 against 299 for the Irish. The match was thus won by the American riflemen by a total of 967 to 929.

The following is a summary of the individual scores in each match, 60 being the highest number that could possibly be scored:

AMERICANS.

	800 yrds.	900 yrds.	1,000 yrds.	Total.
Fulton	58	57	46	161
Bodine	52	59	51	162
Gildersleeve	56	56	52	164
Yale	57	52	52	161
Coleman	56	48	52	156
Darkin	58	55	50	163
Total	337	327	303	967

IRISHMEN.

	800 yrds.	900 yrds.	1,000 yrds.	Total.
Pollock	59	53	49	161
Wilson	58	50	55	163
Johnson	56	54	50	169
Hamilton	56	54	51	161
Milner	55	37	41	133
McKenna	52	44	53	149
Total	336	292	299	929

Total majorities at all ranges—Americans, 38.

The New York Times' special from Dollymount says at the close of the firing at 900 yards the defeat of the Irish was acknowledged, and luncheon was taken in chagrin, gloom, outspoken dissatisfaction, and symptoms of disorganization among the Irish. The crowd, which manifested intense anxiety as to the result, had now grown to about 30,000. Every Irish bulls eye was cheered, and a disturbance was becoming imminent. The police were powerless, and Dr. Hamilton addressed the crowd, standing in close shooting position. The Americans refused to proceed with the firing until order should have been restored. Every gentleman on the ground now became a policeman, and there was great hustling, and the disorder can hardly be exaggerated. A delay of thirty-five minutes resulted, when partial order was restored. At the 1,000-yard range, the Irish, dejected and nervous, shot wildly, and a succession of shots proved to be merely random. Milner missed his third shot, the crowd groaning vociferously. When he missed his ninth shot the uproar on the Irish side of the ground was tremendous. The eleventh shot he missed also, producing consternation. Hamilton scored a succession of threes, and blamed the crowd for his lack of success. Everybody seemed to be in bad temper. The ropes were broken by the Irish near the close, Fulton and Bodine not yet having finished. Fulton missed the targed through disorder. The crowd, cheering, rushed across the ground, causing great confusion.

Bodine quietly takes his position for the last shot, and the crowd ranges itself along the line of the fire, leaving a wide opening towards the targets, but only wide enough to expose two of the targets to the view of the firer. All control has been lost over them, but Bodine lies still and silent. A puff of smoke, and the crack of his rifle is heard, and his bullet flattens in the bullseye. A tremendous cheer is given for the Americans by the crowd en masse. The police stand firm around the teams, with the crowd on the outside, standing sturdy and ill-humored, but not towards the Americans. Maj. Leech addressed the Americans and surrounding mass, and declared himself beaten, and the Americans the first shots in the universe. He then called for cheers for Col. Gildersleeve and his men, which were not very heartily given, but when called for by a man in the crowd they were given with tremendous enthusiasm, the crowd bursting in to "shake hands" with the Americans and their ladies, amid vociferous cheering.

Col. Gildersleeve called for cheers for the Irish team, but there came no response, except from the Americans present. All of the Irish team blame something or each other, and the whole population is positively fierce with them. The Lord Mayors of London, Dublin, and York on the ground congratulated the victors. The Americans were extremely popular before the contest, and are much more so now, and their calmness, modesty, and self-reliance are extolled everywhere.

Old-Time Giants.

In a review of "The First Voyage Round the World, by Magellan," the following occurs: "They remained at the port of St. Julian two whole months without ever seeing anybody. However, one day, without anybody expecting it, we saw a giant, who was walking on the shore of the sea, quite naked, and was dancing and leaping and singing, and whilst singing he put the sand and dust on his head. Our Captain sent one of his men toward him, whom he charged to sing and leap like the other to reassure him and to show him friendship. This he did, and immediately led the giant to the little island where the Captain was waiting for him, and when he was before us he began to be astonished and to be afraid; and he raised one finger on high, thinking that we came from heaven. He was so tall that the tallest of us only came up to his waist; he was, however, well built. He had a large face, painted red all round, and his eyes also were painted yellow around them; and he had two hearts painted on his cheeks; he had little hair on his head, and it was painted white." Afterward they saw more of these giants, eighteen at one time, male and female, the women not quite so tall as the men. The giants were peaceable upon the whole, but one of the seamen was killed by them with an arrow, not without provocation.

THE Pope is bled four times a year by his doctors.

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAYS, PUBLISHER.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

THERE is no longer any doubt that the Pennsylvania coal-miners' strike is completely over. Most of the miners in the anthracite regions have resumed work at the rates offered six months since, and the suffering which has prevailed in the workingmen's families is therefore being slowly mitigated.

THIS time it is a Confederate soldier who, after carrying a bullet in his brain for nine years, had it unexpectedly fall through the roof of his mouth the other day. The bullet did not hurt his brain, and the brain does not appear to have corroded the bullet to any serious extent. If this thing goes much further we shall have a new school of doctors, who will claim that the forcible insertion of lead into the brain is a valuable hygienic practice.

REPORTS from the States of Tennessee, Arkansas, and Northern Alabama represent the cotton crop as giving signs of fully an average yield. In but few localities has any damage been done to the plant from any cause. The army worm has not made it appearance at all, while only a few complaints of lice are made. These reports are supposed to be an index of the condition of the crop throughout the South, and those who were fortunate enough to plant cotton liberally will find themselves relieved of all pressing financial troubles. Everywhere the negroes are reported to be working well—much better than ever before—since the war.

THE first result of annexing the Fiji Island to Great Britain is the death of a hird of the population. A British ship landed certain emigrants on the island who were ill with the measles. The disease spread with great rapidity, and the natives, knowing nothing of its nature, insisted upon rushing into the sea to alleviate the heat of the fever. The bathing produced dysentery, and the latter carried off 50,000. Of course this is a terrible affair, viewed merely from a humanitarian stand-point, but the result will be really a gain in the world, since the dead natives will be speedily filled by English emigrants, who will make a new Australia out of the Fiji Islands.

MOSES GEORGE, of Dansville, N. Y., a veteran of the war of 1812, and 80 years of age, extracted from his groin on the 28th of May a bullet which was buried there by the rifle of an Indian at the battle of Chippewa in July, 1815. It is somewhat blackened, but beneath a thin coating the lead is as pure and bright as it was over a half century ago. The limb has shortened six inches. The bullet did not come out by its original entrance, but about four inches above, and was taken out by veteran George himself, without the aid of instruments. After sixty years of anxiety on the subject, he is now relieved of solicitude as to the possible effect of lead in the system.

A CURIOUS legal case has just been tried in Ulster county, N. Y. James O. Schoonmaker agreed that if Stephen J. Case should get married within three months after the date of the contract, he would pay half of the clergyman's fee, board the wife six months without charge, and furnish a team and carriage for the wedded pair. Case, in case he should not marry within the specified time, agreed to pay for the use of the carriage for one day, besides damages. He failed to get married within three months, and then Schoonmaker sued him for two hundred dollars, and reveived a verdict in his favor. On appeal the first decision was reversed, and Schoonmaker has a heavy bill of costs to pay.

MR. D. L. MOODY, the Chicago revivalist, has won the respect of the patricians as well as that of the masses of England. Lord Shaftsbury speaks very highly of him. At a recent meeting of the Church Society of London he said that he was thankful to God that Mr. Moody had not been educated at Oxford. He (Mr. Moody) had a wonderful power of getting at the hearts of men, and while the common people heard him gladly, many persons of high station had been greatly struck with the marvelous simplicity of his preaching. The Lord Chancellor of England had said to him: "The simplicity of that man's preaching, the clear manner in which he sets forth salvation by Christ, is to me the most striking and delightful thing I ever knew in my life." His lordship expressed the opinion that Mr. Moody is no fanatic or mere enthusiast.

THE Indianapolis papers publish the text of an interesting decision on the subject of the marriage contract, delivered by Judge Chapman, of the Criminal Court in that city. An indictment had been found by the grand jury against a man and woman who had, in the presence of witnesses, but without the aid of clergyman or magistrate, solemnly taken each other for husband and wife, with a proviso or conditional agreement that the union was to last only so long as the "love-nature" of the parties held out. A criminal action was instituted with a view to the abatement of what was regarded as an odious public scandal. The court held that it was no scandal; that the parties are completely and lawfully married; and that they must remain so until regularly divorced, their agreement as to duration of "love-nature" being in law void and in morals vicious.

HARPER'S BAZAR pertinently suggests that there could not be a better time than the present for young folks to fix in their minds the important dates and details of our country's history. Schools might well throw aside for a while the regular histories of the United States, and arrange a popular series of lessons based on the centennials that will occur all along during the coming eight or ten years. The natural interest awakened in the young mind to obtain a clear and connected idea of an event whose hundredth anniversary is about being celebrated should be improved by teachers. It would be worth more than all the didatic precepts ever uttered to pupils about the importance of studying history. The occurrence of these centennials gives a reality to past events which the mere record of them does not, and thus the facts are impressed upon the young.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL PIERREPONT the other day rendered a decision in an interesting question of naturalization. In 1848, a Prussian by the name of Steinkoanler immigrated to this country and was naturalized in 1854. Subsequently he returned to Germany, taking with him a son, then aged four years, and a native of the United States. The son is now twenty years old, and the question at issue was as to his owing military service to Germany. The Attorney-General comes to the conclusion that the boy has two nationalities, one natural and the other acquired. The father returning to Germany, resuming his allegiance, the son partakes of the status of the father. Being a minor, and having enjoyed the protection of the German government, he, for the time being, or until of age, owes military duty, the obligations being reciprocal, but when the boy becomes of age, he can return to the United States as an American citizen with all the rights and privileges of such, and would even be eligible to the Presidency of the United States.

INDIANA NEWS.

THE hog crop of Indiana for the present year is estimated at 2,670,000.

AUDITOR ABBOTT estimates the taxable property of Allen county at $20,000,000.

FORT WAYNE had to close up its public baths on account of lack of patronage.

A FARMER of Bartholomew county recently had twelve sheep killed by lightning.

IT is intimated that Moses Fowler will build a female college at Fowler, Benton county.

THE old settlers at West Point and vicinity will hold their annual reunion August 6.

TWENTY-SEVEN churches furnish comfortable sleeping-places for residents of Fort Wayne.

SIX of the graduating class of Wabash College enter the ministry, and four will practice law.

BRAZIL has under contract public and private improvements to cost not less than $125,000.

THE last report of the First National Bank of Bloomington shows the deposits to be $120,000.

BEDFORD has a prospect that before the leaves fall, a new railroad will be built to that place.

JEFFERSONVILLE will start a shooting gallery with the Penitentiary as a background to stop the bullets.

A COMPANY has been organized to build a narrow gauge railroad from Indianapolis to Shoals, in Marion county.

A COLORED man in Winamac was poisoned by some liquor that he bought of a saloon-keeper of that town. He died in a short time.

THE first train of cars arrived in Robinson just six years from the day upon which the vote was taken upon the donation of $100,000 by the county.

JOHN MILLER, white, being refused license by the Clerk of Floyd county to marry Mary Simms, colored, went to Jeffersonville, got the papers, and they were married.

MRS. KATE ELLIOTT, daughter of the Hon. S. T. Powell, Supervisor of Internal Revenue, and the wife of W. H. Elliott, a well-known citizen of New Castle, died a few days since.

MORGAN CRONE, a German laborer, was brutally murdered at Fort Wayne, on Friday evening last, by a colored whitewasher named Joseph Wall, aged 61 years, for singing and praying all night. Wall is in jail.

A BALLOON ascension took place at Fort Wayne last week. The day being very pleasant the ascension was a fine one. Prof. Donaldson, S. E. Morse, of the Sentinel, and L. M. Bowser were in the balloon. It came down five miles south of the city in a wheatfield.

AT the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Indiana State University held last week, at Bloomington, Dr. Cyrus Nutt was dismissed from the Presidency, to take effect as soon as his successor shall be elected and qualified. Incompetency is the ground for his dismissal.

THE Jeffersonville News tells of a man in that city who whipped his wife the other day. After he got through, his sister also administered a beating to the unlucky woman. This was too much for her to stand, and, picking up her baby, she left for the home of her childhood, in Louisville.

NEAR Roanoke, a few days ago, an express train on the Wabash road ran over an unknown man, who was asleep, killing him instantly, cutting his head completely off, severing his legs from the trunk of his body, and mutilating the body so bad that the remains were picked up and put in a small-sized shoe box.

PATENTS recently issued to citizens of this State: Signs, H. J. Blowney, South Bend; windmills, B. Weirich, Middlebury; grain elevators, J. S. Metcalf, Indianapolis; weather-board gauges, D. Neff, Indianapolis; washing machines, J. Wise, Elwood; portable fences, S. Olmstead, Brooks; blackboard erasers, H. Grant, Richmond.

THE bloated capitalist who in these hard times happens to get accidentally hold of a ten-dollar bill, wants to look sharp if it happens to be on the Richmond banks. Lots of counterfeits on said banks are in circulation, and there is a peculiarity about them that they are all numbered alike, the numbers upon them being "165,167," and "1,496."

GEO. MORRIS, the Indianapolis billiard expert and athlete, achieved fame and run an imminent risk of breaking his neck in Greencastle on Monday of last week. Just as the dinner bell rung, one of the inmates of Michael Maloney's hotel, where he was stopping, discovered that a fire had started in the roof near one of the chimneys. There being no ladders about, the people were utterly at a loss how to reach the roof, and the building, a large three-story affair, must have been burned to the ground had not Morris got out of one of the upper windows, climbed the sash, and seizing the eave-trough or gutters, drawn himself over on the roof by sheer strength of muscle. Water was then passed to him in buckets, and almost in less time than it takes to tell the story, the fire was extinguished and the hotel declared safe. Sometime after (nearly twenty minutes) Morris had descended from his lofty perch, the fire-engines came up, and in fifteen or twenty minutes longer, would have been ready to begin operations.

FOR some time past monte men have been plying their nefarious vocation with great boldness on nearly all the Indianapolis railroads, particularly so on the I., C. and L., the I., B. and W. and Vandalia lines. The companies determined to break up the thieving business, and with that view secured the services of Bisbing and Thomas, detectives of Indianapolis, who have had their agents on the watch for two or three weeks. The first thing to do was to obtain some direct evidence against the thieves, and the next to find victims who would consent to prosecute. The matter was worked up quietly, and on Wednesday of last week, three of the gang were arrested at Crawfordsville, and two in Indianapolis. "Canada Bill," the leader of one of the "mobs," was also captured at Greencastle, but, for want of positive proof against him, the officers were forced, reluctantly, to release him. The warrant on which the Indianapolis party were captured called for three, and three men were taken, but one, proving himself innocent, was let off. The men were taken immediately to the Union depot, and from thence removed to Shelby county, the warrant having been sworn out by parties living near Shelbyville. They would give no names, and refused to be interviewed by detectives or reporters. The job has been worked up most successfully, and both the railroad companies and the traveling public will unite in a general rejoicing over the speedy and thorough rooting out of as dangerous a class of sharks as ever infested any community.

Power of the Imagination.

The Utica Herald tells the following story of an old lady in Philadelphia, Jefferson county, who acquired the habit of using morphia: After using it for relief from the pains of a tumor, no persuasion could induce her to give up the poison. Her family finally united in a deception, substituting carefully-prepared potato starch in morphia bottles. At first she thought the supposed drug an inferior article, but her physician, who was in the secret, assured her that it was all right, and she was satisfied. She continued to use the article for fifteen years, and to the day of her death, and could not do without it, never having learned the deception. At one time when she was ill the physician gave her Dover's powders, but she could not rest until she took her starch-morphia.

VIRGINIA once more comes to the front with the sword of Lord Cornwallis, exhumed near Richmond this time. This only makes thirteen swords and you know Cornwallis had over forty buckled around him.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

A WESTERN farmer says he fed seventy-two bushels of corn to four steers in forty-seven days and the lot gained 420 pounds in that time. Each bushel of corn made five and one-half pounds of beef.

FOR a small stable, say of ten cows, cut a hole through the floor and roof about the center of the stable, over the cows, one foot square, put four 3x3 scantling up at each corner, running above the roof from three to ten feet, according to surroundings; then board up tight with matched lumber, putting a little cornice on top so that it will look a little tasty, representing a nice chimney. Now go on the roof and place your face over the top of this chimney, and you will soon be convinced that the impurities of your stable are fast passing away.

CELERY.—The editor of the Journal of Horticulture, London, says sawdust is a good thing for earthing celery, placing it between the rows and around the plants after the leaves and stalks have been brought together, pressing the sawdust about them so as to compact and insure blanching perfectly. It is better, he thinks, than soil, not being so liable to cause stalks to rot, and is a good protection against frost. The only objection is that some sawdust may impart a taste to the celery.

A DISCOVERY ABOUT CORN.—The Western Rural tells of a man who plants, two or three weeks after the crop is planted, a new hill of corn every fifteenth row each way. And this is the reason: If the weather becomes dry after the filling time, the silk and tassels both become dry and dead. In this condition, if it should become seasonable, the silk revives and renews its growth, but the tassels do not recover. Then, for want of pollen, the new silk is unable to fill the office for which it was designed. The pollen from the replanted corn is then ready to supply the silk, and the filling is completed. He says nearly all the abortive ears, so common in all corn crops, are caused by the want of pollen, and he has known ears to double their size in this second filling.

RAPID GROWTH OF STEERS.—The Country Gentleman gives an account of two steers owned by Horace White, of Laona, N. Y., which is unprecedented, and shows the importance of abandoning the scrub race. Their weight at one year old was then given (1,549 pounds), and now Mr. White sends us the weight at two years old—2,942 pounds, showing a gain of 1,402 pounds in one year, or a little less than two pounds each per day. Mr. White writes that he is not fattening them, and they are now only in good thrifty condition, and he has aimed to feed in such manner as to make them grow as fast as possible. He expects to feed them until they are four years old, and have them fat at that age.

MEDICINE FOR POULTRY.—In ordinary cases it will not pay to give medicine to sick fowls. In the first place, but little is known of the diseases of poultry; and again there is an equal dearth of knowledge respecting remedies. Besides, the value of an average fowl is so inconsiderable that treatment will not pay unless very simple and very successful. The best course respecting poultry ailments is prevention. Try to secure such vigorous breeding stock and such complete sanitary conditions for all the birds at all ages, that illness will be rare. Then the strength of constitution will be such than any ordinary disease can be resisted without the aid of medicine, if good nursing is given. What we mean by nursing is this: Place sick fowls in a dry, sunny place, out of the wind, and safe from disturbance. Then give them food easy of digestion, such as mush, potatoes, and meat, every article cooked, and warm milk for drink. If, after all, they can't make out to live, say to yourself, by way of congratulation, "there are so many birds, not disease-proof, that have been weeded out of my stock at any rate."—Country Gentleman.

About the House.

TO BOIL AN EGG.—Drop it into boiling salted water, and let it remain four minutes before taking out, if you like it hard.

WASHING.—Use the best white starch. Starch the collars and cuffs when quite dry over night, and fold them separately in a linen towel.

DROP CAKE.—One cup butter, 1 cup powdered sugar, 2 cups flour, 3 eggs; juice and rind of one lemon. Mix butter and sugar to a cream, add the 3 eggs well beaten, then the flour, and last the lemon. Drop the batter on buttered paper, and bake in a quick oven.

TO GET RID OF ANTS.—Lay old bones or sponges saturated with molasses and water where they most do congregate, taking away everything else edible from that locality. When the bones are black with them or the sponges populous with them give them a bath in scalding water. This remedy is tedious, but it is effective.

COLD BRISKET OF BEEF.—Put the brisket in salt for a few days; bind it up with tape into a round; lay it in a stew pan with plenty of water, and stew gently for six or seven hours, with some fried vegetables, a little curry powder, and spices. While still hot put it to press under heavy weights; it can be garnished with tufts of scraped horseradish, and small heaps of red pickled cabbage.

MEAT JELLEY.—Fill a mold with any dressed meat, cut in slices (smaller than for hash), season with salt and pepper. Dissolve a packet of gelatine in one and a half pint of good stock; fill up the mold with the gravy, and put it into the oven for about half an hour. Let it stand till quite cold; turn it out and garnish with watercress. N. B.—A useful dish for children, or for breakfast or luncheon.

COLLARED BEEF.—Take a shin of beef-bone and remove all gristle and sinew, stew with the bones till quite tender, cut the meat into small pieces, season with sweet herbs, pepper and salt, add mushroom ketchup and a glass of red wine; let it simmer gently in the liquor in which it was dressed for half an hour; put it into a mold with slices of hard-boiled eggs, and when cold turn it out.

THE art of fancy cooking is better understood in America than the art of common cooking. There are more women who know how to make good cake than good bread—more who can furnish you with a good ice-cream than a well-cooked mutton chop; a fair charlotte russe is easier to gain than a perfect cup of coffee; and you shall find a sparkling jelly to your dessert where you sigh in vain for so simple a luxury as a well-cooked potato.

A Specimen Case of Hydrophobia.

We advise people not to be frightened by the latest reported case of hydrophobia. It is the popular belief that this disease is caused as the rule by the bite of a mad dog, but according to the reports of the death of Andrew Jackson, which occurred in Brooklyn last week, and who is said by the physicians to have lost his life by hydrophobia, there seems to be no more reason for this belief than for a good many others which are carefully cherished apparently for the sole purpose of making people unhappy. Some nine weeks ago Mr. Jackson borrowed a large Newfoundland dog from his employer and took it to his own house. He was very fond of the dog and kept it at home the next day. On his coming into the house in the evening, the dog, which had manifested homesickness during the day, became extremely playful, and in jumping about, in its gladness to see him, struck one of its teeth against the man's lips, just breaking the skin. The man was alarmed at once, and carefully washed the wound out, although he did not cauterize it. The next day he took the dog home, and told his employer what had happened. The latter took the animal at once to a dog fancier and told him to watch the animal carefully for signs of madness. Nothing peculiar was seen in the conduct of the dog, which was finally returned to its owner, and is now said to be in the country and in good health.

From the moment of receiving the injury, Mr. Jackson seems to have been thoroughly frightened, and although the wound healed up and physicians whom he consulted assured him that he was in no danger, he continually brooded over the subject. His friends tried to laugh him out of his fears and he would confess that he had no ground for his anxiety. Nevertheless his terror remained and increased, and finally he died in fearful agony, his illness and death being attended by all the well-known signs of hydrophobia. The physicians say that it was of hydrophobia that he died. Now, if the facts of this case are correctly reported, it seems clear either that the contact of a healthy dog's teeth with human flesh will produce hydrophobia, or else that Mr. Jackson's disease and death were caused by imagination. Heretofore it has been difficult enough to procure scientific evidence that the international bite of a mad dog will produce hydrophobia, and it therefore seems impossible of belief that an accidental bruise inflicted by the teeth of a dog in sound condition will occasion this horrible malady. On the other hand, many diseases are made more severe and even fatal by the fear of the patient, and the imagination alone is fully capable of producing fears which for the time being are as painful as if they were caused by something real. This case then appears to show that hydrophobia may be caused by intense and persistent fear of it, and to show nothing else. During the approaching hot season (when dogs are mistakenly supposed to be more dangerous than in colder seasons of the year) our citizens should see to it that they are not deluded into supposing that they are in danger of hydrophobia, since that delusion in this instance seems to have been the sole cause of the fatal malady.—New York Post.

Want of Knowledge About the North Pole.

At present there lies within a few weeks of us, and right between us and inhabited continents, a circle 1,400 miles across, of which we know not even whether it be land or water, or in what respects it is affected by some conditions wholly different from our own. Is it anything more than a great refrigerator for the production of cold—that is, for the absorption of heat? If water predominates there, then the cold need not be so extreme as we imagine; and just as the equator is not everywhere hotter than the tropics, just as the Eastern hemisphere is warmer by ten degrees of north latitude than the Western and the Northern, hemisphere very much warmer than the Southern, so even the Artic circle may have the benefit of some genial influences. It has at least half a year of continuous day. What if it be found sufficiently habitable for the establishment of stations in which the production and economy of heat will be the only serious difficulty? Science is sanguine, but it confesses itself to be hoping against hope as to the matter of its expectations. An animal or two, seeds that can stand any cold, some of the lowest forms of vegetable life, and perhaps organisms, in the sea, the possible revelations of an atmosphere completely clear of aqueous disturbance, figure prominently in the catalogue of hope. If, as is suspected, there be ingredients in the earth's atmosphere too subtle for chemical analysis, the spectroscope may detect them in a region where humidity no longer embarrasses the question. Then what is the Aurora? Is it of earth, or of heaven? Is it meteoric? Is it cosmic? Does it reveal a universal medium? Is it a magnetic phenomenon? At about the seventeenth degree of latitude the expediti[illegible] the other side of the Magnetic Pole, and will have to steer by rules the contrary of our own, and becoming more and more complex till the needle points finally to the center of the earth. At the Pole not only the compass, but even the sun, moon and stars will cease to be available for the usual purposes of observation; that is, if anything should happen to the chronometers, for all will then depend on the preservation of Greenwich time. The forlorn hope told off for the Pole will have to mark its track very carefully if it would be sure of retracing its course back again.—London Times.

A BOY once asked of his father who it was that lived next door to him, and when he heard the name inquired if he was a fool. "No, my little one, he is not a fool, but a very sensible man; but why do you ask the question?" "Because," replied the boy, "mother said the other day that you were next door to a fool."

All Sorts.

IN Connecticut there is one divorce to every nine marriages.

ACTIVE men wear boots. They can't stop to tie shoe-strings.

COL. MOSBY had his front teeth kicked out by a Virginia mule the other day.

JOHN C. BRECKENRIDGE's estate foots up $40,000. Representative Beck is one of the executors.

JACKSON, Mich., rejoices in the possession of a horse 51 years old, without a puff or a windgall.

A MARE belonging to an Iowa farmer the other day gave birth to twins—a horse and a mule colt.

AN English expedition has just been sent to Vigo Bay to search for the sunken treasure of the Spanish galleons.

A YOUNG lady in Massachusetts canceled her marriage engagement because "dad believes that we have a gold mine on our farm."

THE cost of starting a new paper may be inferred from the fact that it required five years and nearly two hundred thousand dollars to get the News where it could pay its own way.—Boston News.

THE Philadelphia Ledger says that "the grain trade at Philadelphia has recently received an impetus, freighting being active and the grain exports to Europe thirty per cent. larger than at this time last year."

FROM the best data obtainable it is estimated that after making a very liberal allowance for home consumption and the demand of Western markets, Texas will have, as a net surplus, over 2,000,000 bushels of wheat.

IT is estimated by competent authority that the accidental deaths occurring in and around the Comstock mines will average one death for every week in the year, while the serious accidents will average one for each day in the 365.

A PUBLIC-SPIRITED citizen of Pittsburgh, with an eye to the main chance, has offered to furnish an excellent band of music to perform every afternoon and evening in some of the prominent parks of that city, if he be granted the exclusive monopoly of the ice-cream business on the premises.

A COLORED philosopher observed on Sunday, while in conversation with a friend on Clay street, "I dusn't b'lieve in having a pardener when you've only got a small business. If yer make anything, why, yer don't git it, an' if yer lose, yer have to lose it all." "Jesso," remarked his acquiescent companion.—Richmond Enquirer.

THE largest well in the world is said to be in the village of Sperenberg, about twenty miles from Berlin. It is for some distance 16 feet in diameter, and is 4,194 feet in depth. It was begun five years ago with the object of ascertaining the existence of rock-salt beneath the strata of gypsum occurring in the locality. At the lowest depths the salt deposits continued, exhibiting the enormous thickness of 2,907 feet.

THE compulsory education law of Connecticut is reported to be working satisfactorily, and as the result of the various measures adopted for securing increased attendance, the proportion of children in the public schools has advanced from 80.38 per cent. in 1867-8 to 89.34 per cent. in 1873-4. The actual increase has been about 20,000, while the increase in enumeration in the same time was about 10,000.

ONE day last week while Capt. P. C. Ewan, of Clarendon, Ark., and Maj. S. L. Black, of Indian Bay, were examining some land near Prairie Cypress, in the southern end of the county, they were attacked by seven gray wolves—the most ferocious of their tribe. After a desperate struggle, they succeeded in killing five of them and the other two ran away. The gentlemen had only hickory clubs for weapons.

A CLARK county, Kentucky, paper has the following: "The wife of Benjamin Denning gave birth last Monday night to three sons. They are all doing well, and have been named Shadrach, Meshech and Abednego. Mr. Denning now has fourteen children living and one dead. He is forty-nine and she thirty-eight years old. The possibilities of the future must be appalling to the worthy couple, who are clever and honest, but very poor.

THE new "Encyclopædia Britannica" asserts that if the natural resources of America were fully developed the country would afford sustenance to 3,600,000,000 inhabitants—a number nearly five times as great as the entire mass of human beings now existing on the globe! It is further conjectured that it is not improbable, with the present rate of increase, that this prodigious population will be realized within three, or at most, four centuries.

CONNECTICUT still maintains its unenviable reputation in regard to divorces. The whole number granted in the State last year was 492—more than in any previous year, though the total has exceeded 400 annually since 1863—or almost one-ninth as many divorces as there were marriages (4,694), while in some other States the proportion does not exceed one in twenty. And thus—

THE metal from which the 5-cent "nickels" are made, is obtained from a deposit near the Gap, Lancaster county, Pa., which is considered the largest in the world yet discovered, and the only deposit of the ore worked in America. The ore has a gray color, is very heavy, and so hard that it is mined entirely by blasting. From 400 to 500 tons of the ore are taken from the mines per month, and the mining and working of this requires the labor of 175 hands.

Each year unto the last doth say:
"What you connect I cut away."

THIS story is from a Southern exchange: "An ancient darkey leaned over a Clay street gate yesterday, and called to the dusky proprietor of a cabin: 'See heah, Henry, isn't you 'bout ready to pay me dat two-bit?' 'Haven't nuffin to pay wid,' was the reply. 'You borrowed dat money a whole year ago, Henry,' continued the old man. 'Can't help dat—can't pay.' 'Henry, I believes you don't want to pay; I believes you is dishonest; and I shan't nebber ask you for de money again. I'll leave de Lord to collect it.' 'Shoo!' exclaimed Henry, greatly interested all at once; 'you hasn't any more money to lend on dose terms, has ye?'"

THE LARGEST SHOW ON EARTH

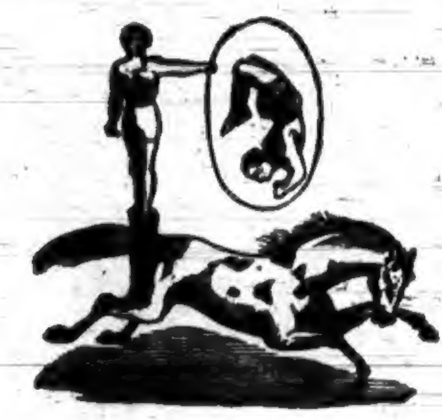
WILL EXHIBIT AT AUBURN

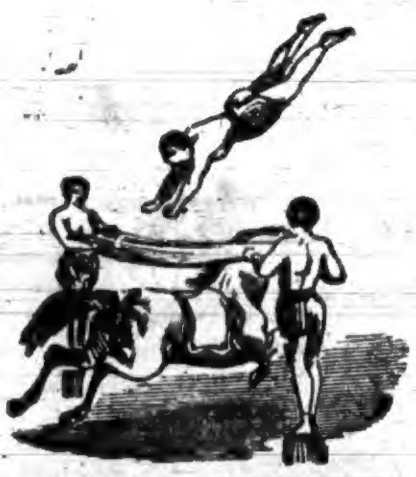
JULY 27th, 1875

JOHN ROBINSON'S

GREAT WORLD'S EXPOSITION!

This vast and colossal SHOW, known all over the Continent by its unparalleled, remarkable and brilliant success, and indorsed by the people and the press in every State as the most gigantic as well as the



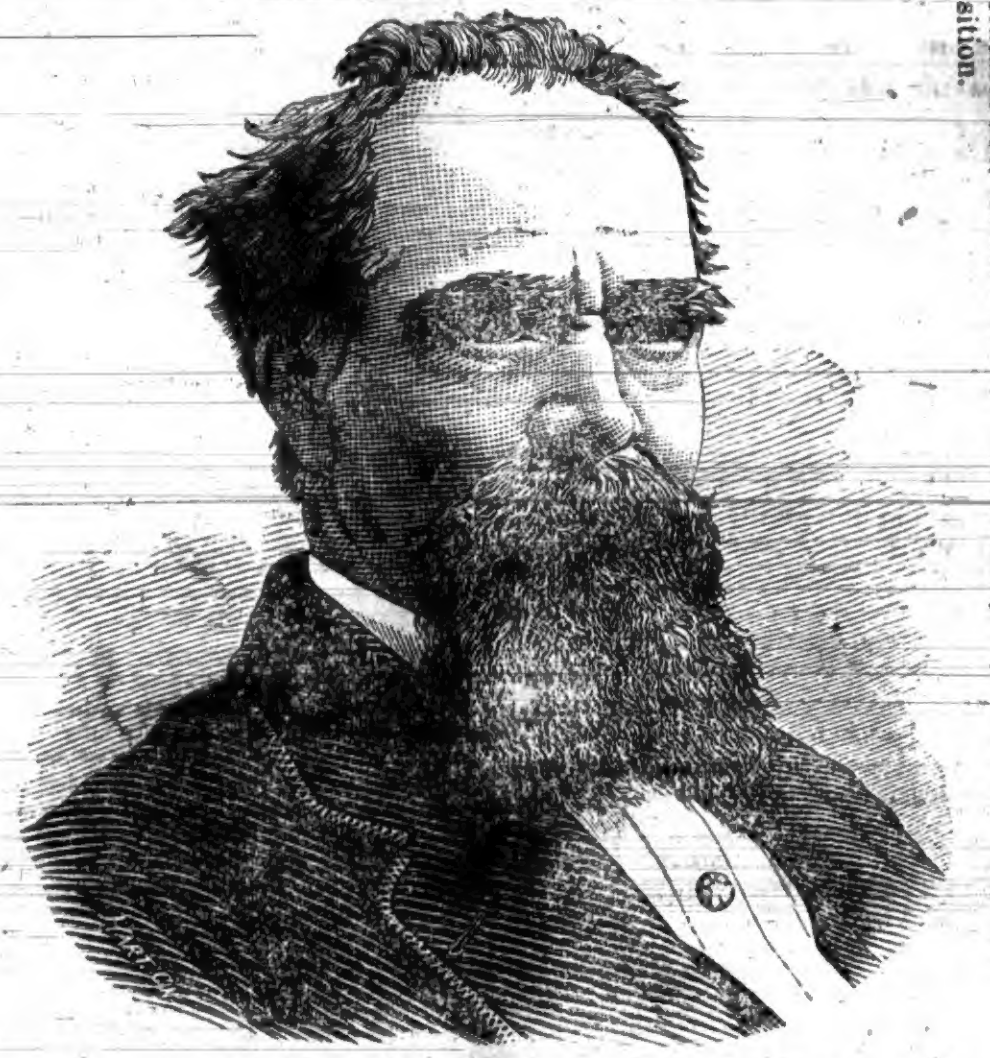


Greatest Show On Earth

Has been recognized, remodeled and rejuvenated throughout for the Spring and Summer Campaign of 1875, at the extraordinary outlay of over

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars,

Rendering it the most complete, active and remarkable exibition the management has ever presented to the public.



THE IMMENSE MANAGERIE,

Almost its myriads of wonderful Animals and Monsters, contains generous contributions from land, Sea and Air, and from every clime in Europe, Asia Africa and America, showing the marvelous and awe-inspiring handwork of the Omnipotent Creater. Among the special novelties will be exibited.—

A living Giraffe, that cost $10,000 in gold. A Black Sumatran Rhinoceros, weighing four thousand lbs and costing $15,000 in gold. A giant Ostrich, twelve feet high. A School of Monster Sealions and Seals. A Herd of Elephants, costing $40,000. Forty cages of wild Animals. Besides an almost unlimited number of the most remarkable and rare Wild Beasts, Sea Monsters, Wonderful birds, and unsurpassed Curiosities, animated, or inanimate, many being special features that are not owned or controlled by any other traveling exposition.

CLERGYMEN, SENATORS, STATESM'N,

and Heads of Families throughout the entire Union have endorsed it. Among the illustrious and world-famed Artists in this department are

Robert Stickney,

The most finished and graceful Equestrain now living.

THREE GREAT CLOWNS,

JOHN LOWLCW, ARCHIE CAMPBELL, F. ROBBINSON

JOHN LOWLOW'S

PERFORMING DOGS AND MONKEYS

These extraordinary animals have been trained to a degree of excellence hitherto unattempted.

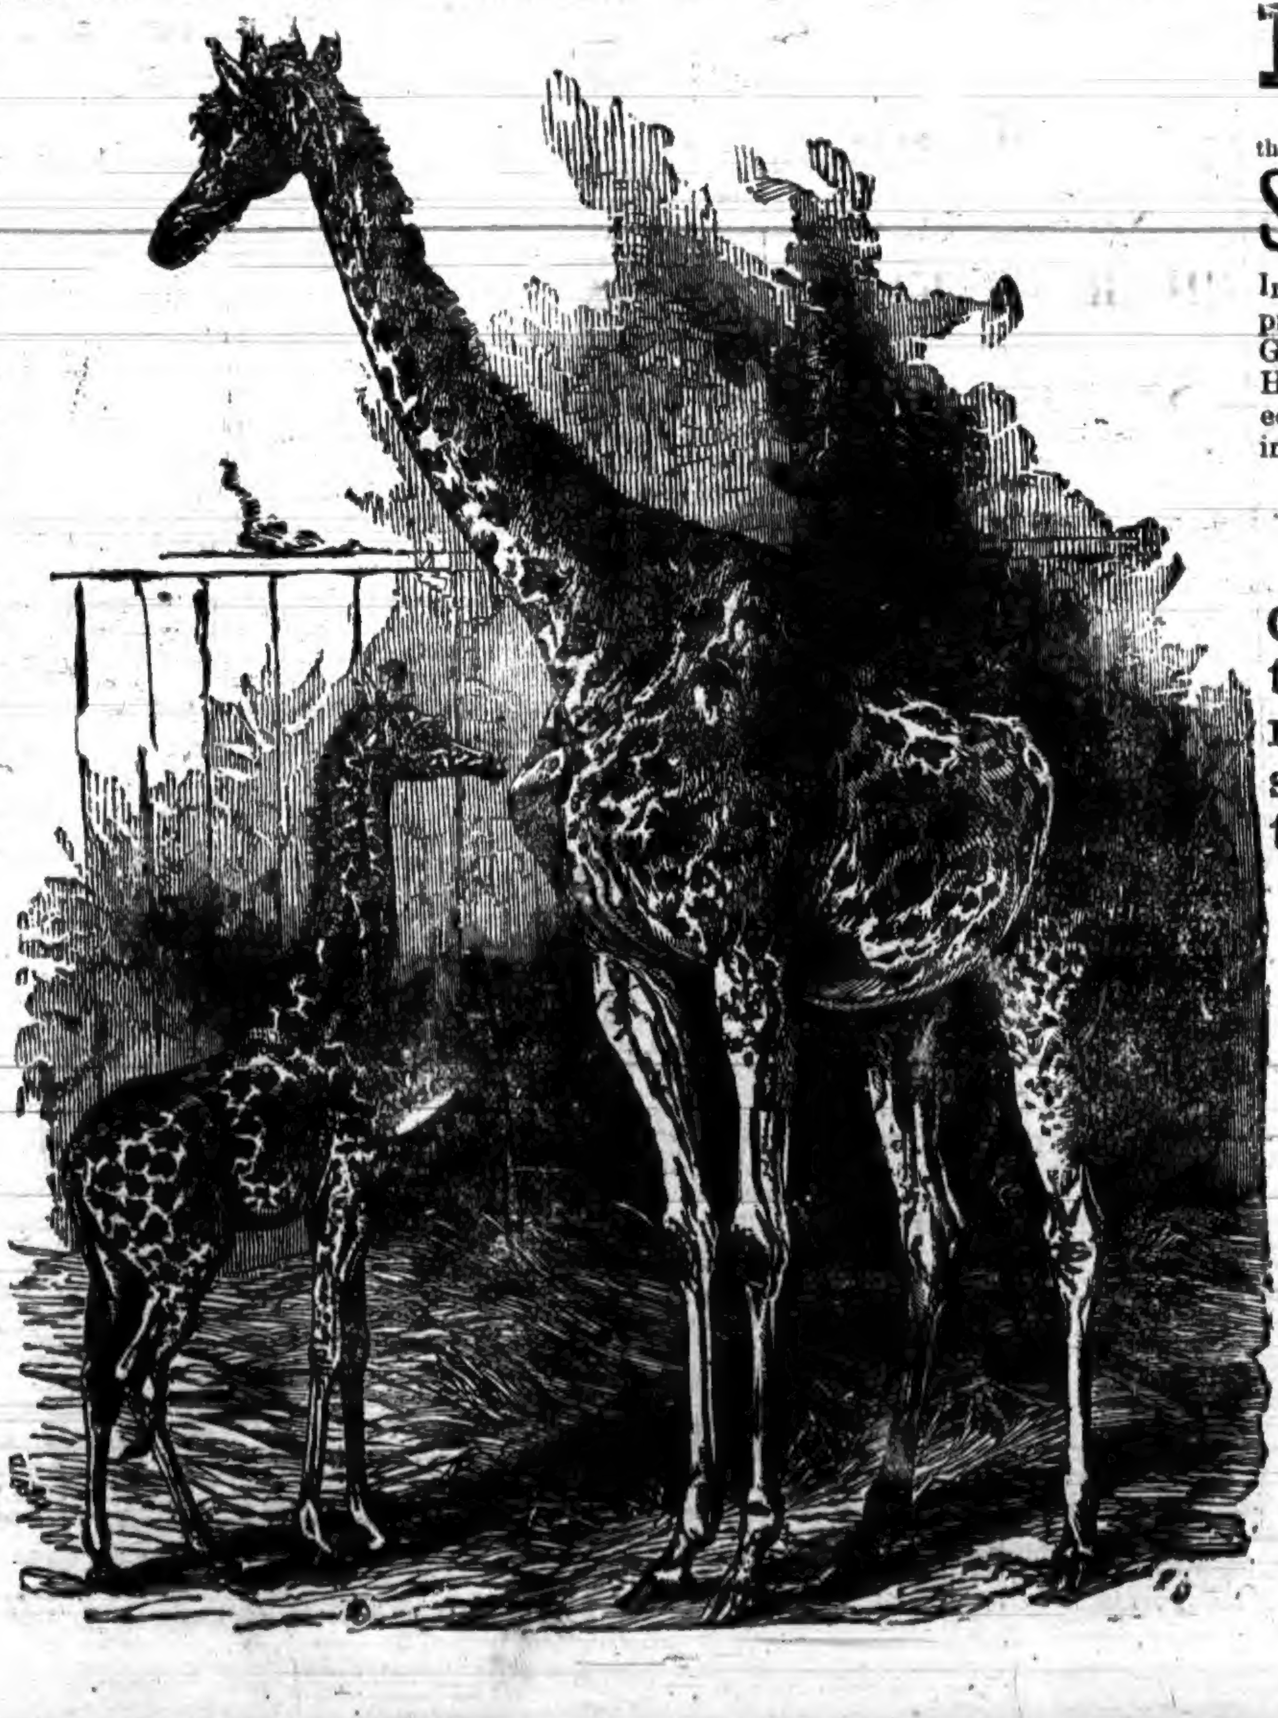
The current expense of this vast aggregation, with its many thousand Beasts, Birds, 60 ponies, 1600 men and horses, forty Musicians, 50 Male Performers, 15 lady riders and other features, that amounts to a daily expenditure of $2,000.

Agreeable to a long established custom of giving

Grand Holiday Street PARADE

This Monster show will, on the morning of the day of each exhibition, between the hours of 9 and 10, form a Grand Procession of Dazzling Splendor—a Golden Chariot Drawn by Four Elephants, unsurpassed as a Moving Parmorama of brilliant Chariots, Wagons, Cars, Cages, Carriages, Dens, Animals, Bands of Music, Ponies and Moving Tableaux of bewildering beauty, representing a lavish outlay of nearly

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars



Miss Emma Lake

The most graceful, charming and daring young Horsemen in the profession. In addition to which is the

Strictly Moral Circus

In which the talent employed is unequaled, and comprises the highest order of Brilliant Equestrians, Daring Gymnastics, Wonderful Acrobats, and beautiful trick Horses. The public, and particularly families, are assured that this department is without a blemish, and nothing is said or done that can offend the most fastidious taste of a refined or high toned community.

Two Performances Daily.

Doors Open at 1 & 7 O'clock One Ticket admits to all, and the Price of Admission is no more than charged by smaller shows, with only one or two tents.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JULY 22, 1875. Number 28.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

OneYear,.........$2. | SixMonths.......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
One Column.......	15 00	30 00	60 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Auburn, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.
J. W. RICKEL. R. DEXTE TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN,

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store. Cool's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Miller and Casebeer's Store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON will attend to all calls in the time of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical disease. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing all the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience, of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel. My medicines are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of diseases without producing any bad effect, upon the nervous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of quinine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on fifth street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 34 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago. O SANDS, Prop'r.
$2.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.
J. H. FORD, Pres't.
J. A COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire Line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,

CHAIRS

Husk & Hair Matrasses

50 and 52 East Main Street,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

Thomas Baldock
Building Contractor
AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experience corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. U. Tarney
AUBURN MEAT MARKET!

KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Main-st first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store.

BRICK FOR SALE

FRITZ GROESCOP.

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable figures. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Kutzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some of the above Tile, which they are selling at a very low figure. We offer
Four Inch Sizes at 50 cts. per Rod,
Six " " " 75 " " "
Every person who intend to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office. LANHAM & HOSE,
v5n11 Auburn, Indiana.

J. J. VanAuken,
COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying. Office with Rose & Hartman, Auburn Indiana. Persons requesting work by letter, should give township andsection.

JAS. CLIFFORD,
WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,
Cigars, Tobacco, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

BAKER BROS.
PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!
AND
EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes etc., always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.
BAKER BROS.

AUBURN
Meat Market.
Main St. Next door to Klotz's.
MICH HOUSTON
PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

MERCHANTS
National Bank!
FORT WAYNE, IND.
Capital and Surplus $112.000

Receives Deposits, Discounts Business Paper, issues Letters of Credit, and Collects at all points at the lowest rates of exchange.

Directors:
S. CARY EVANS, R. C. ROBERTSON,
H. C. HANNA, N. P. STOCKBRIDGE
A. C. DAWSON.
Organized 1865. April 9, '74

NEW
Feed Store!
WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Long's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep FLOUR, CORN,
OATS, MILL FEED,
&c. at all times and at the Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs. &c.
WM. LANHAM.

CARPETS,
FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock of all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusually fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO,
26 East Berry street.

☞ MANY New and Choice Goods on sale at Bond's Novelty Store, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Indiana. New goods arriving daily. Special bargains in

Table Linen,

Corsets, Gloves, Hosiery; Muslins, Flannels, White Goods, Ladies Ties, Handkerchiefs, Portmonies and many goods not kept elsewhere. Large four-story stone front building, 21 West Main-st., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Pittsburg, Baltimore & Ohio R.R
IS COMING.

Therefore buy your

Dry Goods,
Notions, etc., of
CHARLES KLOTZ
AT HIS
Old Stand
ON MAN STREET,
Opposite Court Square
AUBURN, INDIANA

Where he may be found at all times ready to accommodate customers, and sell them such goods as they may need.

CLOTHING
Of all descriptions, and
HANDSOME SUITS
Made to Order!

TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE.

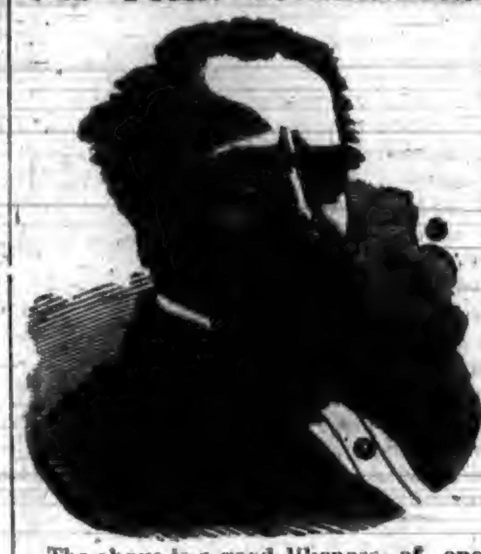
"CHOOSE YOUR VOCATION AND HONOR IT."

The Independent Telegraph Institute, located in Auburn Dekalb Co. Ind., are offering the best opportunity of learning Telegraphy Railroad business and Phonographical writing ever offered to the public. Tuition very low and good boarding furnished Students for $2,50 to $3.75 per week, and situations furnished students as soon as they are capable of taking charge of a Telegraph office. Wages from $40 to $100 dollars per month. For further information address, Independent Telegraph Institute, Lock Box 78, Auburn Indiana.

OFFICERS.
J. R. SHREVE, Superintendent.
Prof. S.S. Shaner Principal Instructor R R. Dep't.
Dr. L. Sanders Instructor Phonographical Writer.

THE COURIER office is the place to get a good job done. We keep always on hand the best material in the market

OLD JOHN ROBBINSON.



The above is a good likeness of one of the greatest showmen in the country. There is no question but that he has the biggest show now traveling. His animal show is certainly very fine, embracing many specimens not often seen in these exhibitions. For a full description see last page. It is seldom Auburn has a first-class entertainment of this class and we expect to see a large crowd in attendance. Barnum's Hippodrome which visited Fort Wayne, a few days ago, does not possess the merits of this show. His animal show was simply a farce, while the hippodrome was simply an exhibition of the lavish expenditure of money. Old John goes on the old style, and gives a fine performance in connection with his menagerie. At Barnum's you had to pay two prices of admission. At this one price admits you to all.

Daniel Wiltrout, a thrifty and well-to-do farmer, of Kosciusko county, traded a few day ago for a horse, and on Tuesday morning he hitched him and another horse to a reaper to commence harvesting. As soon as he started the team, this horse became frightened and started to run, and the reaper running over a sheaf of wheat, threw Mr. W. off, and the machine coming in contact with him he was cut almost asunder. He was dreadfully lacerated on the hip, and one of his thighs cut off, with the exception of a narrow bit of flesh. He is yet living but it is said that he cannot survive but a few hours.

For fifteen years. Tony Kelker has had his hand upon the throttle valve and his eagle eye upon the silver lined track, but no episode like the one of last Thursday night, has he ever met. A man was lying down in the cattle guard between here and Lafayette, and the train was running at the rate of 40 miles per hour. When about fifty feet of the guard, Tony discovered the prostrate man. It was too late to check the speed of the train, so he yelled at the man, blew the whistle and rang the bell, but the man would'nt get up. On went the train, and when it had uncovered the guard, it stopped and Tony went back. There lay the man with his coat entirely stripped from his body, without so much as a scratch on his body. Narrow escape, that.—[Fort Wayne News.

They are a bit particular at Indianapolis A prominent member of one of the most aristocratic churches is the owner of a fast horse. In fact, his only fault is a weakness for fast horses and No. 1 whiskey. It was only a week, as the story goes, that this devout man, who owns one of the best blocks in the city and is a capital prayer meeting. He was called on to lead in prayer. Full of the spirit (good Bourbon) he began it a very acceptable manner. Soon his mind drifted a trifle and he prayed: "And oh, Lord, if it be consistent with thy supreme will, may my horse win the race next Saturday!" The youngsters giggled and the elders looked over their spectacles and uttered a pious groan. The prayer was cut short and in a few days the brother with a weakness for horse flesh was "churched."

THE shoddy cloth peddler is around. Farmers, look out for him. He hails from Michigan, and is ready to take your note payable at the bank, and give you in exchange all the miserable trash you can carry. Take our word for it, all the glistening cloth he sells you will not wear until your note falls do at the bank. Beware of this class of swindlers for in every instance, the rascality of the vendor is only equaled by the worthlessness of the article he sells.—Never make a purchase or contract with a stranger when his simple assurance is the only evidence you have of any value To make sure of getting value, buy of and sell to men whom you know personally, or who are engaged in regular, permanent business, whenever this can be done. Other things being equal, buy and sell in the market nearest home.—Angola Republican.

"I'm in favor of a statute of Anthony Wayne," said Ike Wetz; "but I'd like to see one of Grey Alex, also." And Phil McNany between the two would not be ad.

The Potato.

The potato haz eyes, but like the sadducees ov old, they see not.

Next to rice and bread, the potato sustains more life than enny thing in the shape of food.

One half the people on the Emerald Isle live on meat and potatoes, with the meat left out.

Potatoes dwell in the ground, and are az prolificks az a hen's nest.

They are planted in hills, one potato in a hill, and they giv yu back twenty for one. This is generous.

Mixed with flour they improve bread, and tons ov starch are made out ov potatoes.

Hunny iz also made out of them, which iz so natral that some smart lawyers hav thought it waz an infringment on the hunny bee's patent.

The only mean thing that the potato can be made to do, iz to turn itself into whisky.

Whisky can be made out ov potatoes and there aint no liquid, nor no solid, known to man, that is half so mean and low-lived az potato whisky.

When a man gits so lo down that he iz willing to drink potato whisky for the sake ov getting drunk, his boddy—and I am a good mind to say his soul—aint worth saving.

If there iz ennything that whisky, or deviltry ov enny kind, kan be got out ov, man is sure to hunt until he finds it and prostitutes it for his purposes. He would dig up his grandfather's bones and distill them if there was 15 per cent. ov whisky in them.

I aint prepared to prove the teetotal depravity of any man, but I do say that i have known thousands ov them whose natures were nine-tenths depraved and the other tenth shaky.

All men and wimmen to-day ought to be angels, they had a good chance, but live angels, male or femail, are painfully skarse.—Josh Billings.

The calaboose at Fort Wayne is thus graphically described by the "Gazette." We have read of the Black Hole of Calcutta, Libby Prison, Saulsbury, and Andersonville. These names have entered into the history of our country and the world. They are known throughout the length and breadth of the land as having been horrible places. They were bad enough, as thousands who survive the horrors of confinement in either one or more places are ready to attest. During the time of the late war many a prisoner was ill-treated and suffered many an inconvenience, from which he has not fully recovered, by reason of a want of food and proper medical attendance; yet such are the results of war, but there is no excuse in our day and age, when all is peace and quietude in our midst, when the booming of cannon is no more heard, and the array of armies is not seen marching to the battle-field. Now that there is peace there is no excuse for ill-treatment of prisoners—if there ever was any excuse. The little cubby hole in which our city prisoners are confined has a dimention of about six feet ten inches in hight, and about eleven feet five inches wide. The space between the cages is about two and a half feet. The cages are very small and there is no ventilation in the room which the prisoners are confined. It is impossible for a man over six feet high to stand up inside of the cages. Very often two are obliged to occupy the same cell or cage, and either one or the other must sit up and try to rest his weary bones by making a night of it. Often three are put inside of these cages, and are obliged to submit to the dictates of the officers of the law. The place is not fit for a human being to rest, sleep or repose in. The stench arising therefrom is enough to sicken a hyena much less a human being made in the image and likeness of his Maker. The stench arising from the room in which the city prisoners are confined is more than we can describe; a dead mule, or a rotten turkey buzzard is no comparson.

Recent developments in connection with the exposures made of illicit practices by the whisky ring, have implicated a number of heretofore highly respected persons. Secretary Babcock, the first equerry of his excellency, Ulysses the First, will hardly escape, and it is whispered that another of Grant's household is equally involved. Fishback, of the St. Louis Democrat, who set the ball rolling, and who has received so much credit and applause therefor, it is now pretty definitely ascertained, was one of the largest frogs in the puddle. Indeed, he is believed to be thoroughly "en rapport" with the crooked whisky ring, and only betrayed his associates when it suited his purpose to do so. If Secretary Bristow follows up the investigations he has set on foot he will uncover many a white sepulchre.

$500,000 to loan on improved farms in Northern Indiana, in sums of one thousand dollars and upwards, on five years time. Security must be first mortgage.
WILLIAM FLEMING,
tf Fort Wayne Ind.

Dogs that Have "Shot Niagara."

Apropos to the case of a dog which, during low water, crossed the rapids above Niagara falls to return, the Niagara Falls Register recalls two instances in which dogs have been sent over the falls, and survived the plunge. In November, 1856, a troublesom female bull terrier was put in a coffee sack, by a couple of men who had determined to get rid of her, and thrown off from the middle of Goat Island bridge. In the following spring she was found alive and well about sixty rods below the ferry, having lived through the winter on a dead cow that was thrown over the bank the previous fall. In 1858 another dog, a male of the same breed, was thrown into the rapids, also near the middle of the bridge. In less than an hour he came up the ferry stairs very wet and not at all gay. The reason why the animals are not killed is that the water pours down so rapidly and in such quantities that the water below, so to speak, cannot run off fast enough, and it piles up in large water-cones, which are constantly forming and breaking. If any strong animal should fall on one of these cones, as upon a soft cushion, it might slide safely into the current below. The dogs were doubtless fortunate enough to fall in this way, aided also by the repulsion of the water from the rocks in the swift channel through which they passed. It is not impossible that some strong man, in a light strong boat, may thus, at some future time, go over the Horseshoe fall and not be killed.

Mr. Samuel Grosh having purchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Tarney, in the Lower Flouring Mill, will here after conduct it alone. He is manufacturing a splendid brand of flour and keeps mill feed constantly on hand. Mr Furnish, an experienced miller, will assist in turning out flour that cannot fail to suit everybody. tf

Excursion to Chicago.

A grand excursion to Chicago and return will be given over the Baltimore road on August 5th, 1875, under the auspices of the M. E. Church at Albion.—The fare for the round trip will be only $3 from Auburn, $2.50 from Garret, $2.75 from Avilla. Five coaches will leave the depot here at 4 o'clock on the morning of the 5th, and others will be added at the different depots to accommodate all who want to go. This company is amply able to furnish all the cars needed. A large supply of water will be furnished on the train. With one of those Camel-backs at the head of the train, there need be no fear of stalling. Tickets for sale at the postoffice. We hope to see a large number avail themselves of this chance.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

NOTICE is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb Circuit Court, the undersigned Administrator of the estate of DAVID PERRY, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises, on

SATURDAY, AUGUST 14th, 1875,

the equal undivided third part of the undivided thirteenth twentieth of the tracts of land hereinafter described, situated in DeKalb county, in the State of Indiana, and subject to the life estate of NANCY PERRY, surviving widow of said decedent therein, to-wit:

A part of section two in township thirty-five(35) north of range fourteen (14) east, bounded by a line commencing at the northeast corner of the northwest quarter of section two [2] and running thence east on the county line [illegible] chains, thence south [illegible] degrees west [illegible] chains, [illegible] thence north [illegible] chains to the northwest corner of the north quarter, thence east on the county line to the place of beginning containing fifty-five acres, and a part of said section two described as follows commencing at the south bank of Fish Creek [illegible] chains south of the quarter post on the north side line aforesaid and running thence south on the east line of said northwest quarter aforesaid [illegible] chains, [illegible] to the place of beginning containing thirty-five acres more or less.

TERMS—One third cash, one third in nine months, and the remaining third in eighteen months, with notes at interest waiving valuation and appraisement laws, and secured by good freehold security for the deferred payments. Sale to begin at 10 o'clock P. M.
OLIVER P. LEARNED, Adm'r.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA } ss:
DeKalb County }
In the DeKalb Circuit Court, Sept. term, 1875.
Leah Casselman
George Casselman
vs.
Dena E. Smith
Monroe H. Smith
John A. Smith
Complaint No. 101.

Now comes the Plaintiff, by McBride & Morlan Attorneys, and file their complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendants are not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendants that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court to be holden on the fourth Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness, my name and seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 5, day of July 1875.
J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed Administrator with the Will annexed of the Estate of Edward Clark, late of DeKalb County deceased.
Said Estate supposed to be solvent.
OLIVER P. LEARNED, Adm'r.

AUBURN COURIER

THURSDAY, JULY 22, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

The thunder storm which passed over New England last Saturday was an unusually severe one. Several persons were killed and injured by the lightning in different parts of Massachusetts, and in Portland, Me., four churches were set on fire and more or less damaged....By the temporary suspension of the Atlantic Cotton Mills, at Lawrence, Mass., 1,200 operatives are thrown out of employment....All the business portion of Portville, Cattaraugus county, N. Y., except the depot and one store, were destroyed by fire one day last week. Loss, $60,000; insurance, $40,000....Edward Kelly, bridge watchman, and his wife and child, were run over by the cars at Otsego, N. Y., last week, the child alone escaping death....At Long Branch, last week, Mrs. Algernon Sartoris, daughter of President Grant, gave birth to a fine boy weighing 10½ pounds.

A BOLD and startling robbery was committed in New York, in broad daylight, last week. At noon two well-dressed strangers obtained admission to the house of Mathias M. Dancer, 50 West Eleventh street, by representing themselves to be Croton water-tax collectors. They had no sooner entered than they seized Mrs. Dancer, who was alone, bound, gagged, and handcuffed her; then admitted five other confederates, when all proceeded to ransack the house from top to bottom. They obtained $40,000 in Virginia State bonds, but overlooked $10,000 New York Central securities. After the departure of the robbers, Mrs. Dancer succeeded in attracting the attention of a passer-by, and she was rescued from her painful position. The robbers escaped.... Logan Brothers, oil dealers of Pittsburgh, have failed. Liabilities, $350,000.... While a party of Orangemen, with ladies and children, were returning from celebrating the Battle of the Boyne at a picnic, on the 12th inst., they were attacked by a mob in the streets of Lawrence, Mass., and several of the party severely injured. Word was sent to the Mayor, who soon arrived at the scene of the riot with a squad of police to protect the Orangemen. The mob then made a furious onslaught on the police and Orangemen, with a shower of bricks and stones, and every one of the party were hurt, excepting the Mayor, some seriously. The police then opened fire with revolvers on the rioters, who scattered in every direction, several of their number being more or less injured. No lives are reported lost.

A VIOLENT wind and rain storm passed over Pittsburgh, Pa., and vicinity, last week, unroofing buildings, uprooting trees, and doing great damage to crops. Several persons were injured, one man fatally. The damage to property will amount to $500,000.

THE Brooklyn friends of Henry Ward Beecher are perfecting arrangements for a grand mass meeting to indorse him, and express confidence in his innocence....The Kings County (N. Y.) Grand Jury has returned true bills against Joseph Loeder and John J. Price, who are charged with having sworn falsely against the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and Mrs. Elizabeth R. Tilton....A recent fire at Dunellen, N. J., destroyed five of the largest buildings in the place, with a loss of $100,000.

THE WEST.

SIX hundred Mennonites, from Russia, passed through St. Paul last week, en route to their new homes in the Saskatchewan country of Manitoba....Indians to the number of 100 attacked the Ponca Agency, in Dakota, a few days since; but as the authorities had been warned they were prepared, and with the aid of a field-piece they were repulsed. Several of them were killed....It is reported from Sioux City that the government is fitting out an expedition to go to the Black Hills to bring the miners who are now at work there without permission from the government.

AN iron mountain, 8 miles long, 2½ miles wide, and 1,200 feet high, brimful of the purest ore, has been discovered in Minnesota, 60 miles north of Duluth....Affairs in the grasshopper stricken sections of the West don't wear such a gloomy look after all. The Kansas City Times of Sunday last has reports from various parts of the plague-infected district, embracing five counties in Missouri and about the same number in Kansas, the general tenor of which go to show that there will be a heavy crop of corn, millet, and Hungarian grasses. The flax crop will also be large. Corn is growing now at the rate of two to four inches daily. A remarkable feature of its present growth is that a new kind of grass, resembling buffalo grass, is springing up in many portions of the grasshopper district....The Adams Express Company has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of the Vandalia train robbers; the Vandalia Railroad Company, $1,000; Effingham citizens, $300; the railway men, $800; and the citizens of Casey, $150, making in all $2,700.

THE Chicago Journal of Monday last says: "The harvesting of the winter wheat in Southern Illinois is finished, and altogether the aggregate yield is hardly up to the average, yet the quality is good. In Central Illinois the wheat harvest, now in progress, will give a fair yield. The corn crop all over the Northwest now promises to be one of the largest and best that has ever been raised."....The interest manifested in the National camp meeting at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was very great, the average daily attendance being fully 10,000 persons. The weather was excellent.

JOHN D. LEE, the Mormon, has turned State's evidence, and will be a witness for the prosecution and tell all he knows about the Mountain Meadow massacre....Advices from Minnesota are to the effect that the grasshoppers have forsaken that State entirely, going no one knows whither. Their depredations have not been extensive, and there will be no perceptible diminution of the crops in consequence.

THE United States Grand Jury, at St. Louis, has returned nearly thirty indictments against the members of the whisky ring, about one-third of them being against Gen. John McDonald and Col. John A. Joyce, ex-Supervisor of Internal Revenue and ex-Revenue Agent.... The Lincoln State Journal prints a carefully-corrected report of the crops in all sections of Nebraska, showing that in all portions, except in a few counties, the crop prospects are excellent....Secretary-of-War Belknap has started on a jaunt to the Yellowstone region....The crop reports from all parts of Iowa are very encouraging. Wheat, oats, and barley especially look fine. Corn is growing rapidly, and since the rains ceased the farmers are working among it with renewed courage. There has been more prairie broken this year than for some time before....Two Indians were killed and three wounded by the soldiers at the Red Cloud Agency a few days since, and there is much excitement. The negotiations of the Commissioners are entirely suspended....News has been received from the Bow River Valley, Neb., of the murder of an emigrant family by the Ponca tribe of Indians.

THE SOUTH.

THERE is trouble in the Indian Territory, a Sheriff having killed a wealthy farmer named Jesse Foreman in attempting his arrest, the latter resisting. Foreman, a member of the Cherokee nation, had previously killed an Osage, and for this act his arrest was attempted. Foreman's friends are in pursuit of the Sheriff.

ON Sunday last, at Van Buren, Ark., Willie Drennen and Charles Halley, two prominent young men, went boat-riding with two young ladies, when the boat capsized, and Drennen and the two ladies were drowned.

THE first bale of cotton arrived at New Orleans on the 14th inst., from St. Landry Parish, La. ....Miss Lena Hebb and Miss Cecia Beibert, two young ladies, aged respectively 19 and 17, while seated in the door of the residence of Miss Hebb, in St. Mary's county, Md., one day last week, were instantly killed by a stroke of lightning.

THE Cotton States Congress, at Raleigh, N. C., adjourned on Thursday last, after a harmonious and interesting session of three days. A resolution asking Congress to make greenbacks a legal-tender for all dues to government and on importations, was postponed till next year. The July returns to the Department of Agriculture were unusually full, showing an improvement of the cotton crop during June in all the Cotton States except Texas. The State averages are as follows: North Carolina 95, improved 3 per cent.; South Carolina 99, improved 2; Georgia 97, improved 6; Florida 101, improved 7; Alabama 102, improved 1; Mississippi 103, improved 3; Louisiana 105, improved 10; Texas 93, declined 3; Arkansas 104, improved 14; Tennessee 109, improved 10.... Geo. N. Jackson, Cashier in the office of the United States Revenue Collector for the Louisville (Ky.) district, was recently discovered to be a defaulter to the amount of $45,000, and in order to avoid arrest attempted to commit suicide by taking arsenic.

WASHINGTON

TREASURER New is getting fully established in his new office. He says he intends to conduct it for a while as if it were a bank, and then resign the position. He accepted the trust with great reluctance, and is evidently entering upon the discharge of its duties with the intention of managing this public office as if it were a successful private business enterprise. ....Reports just mailed by Third Assistant Postmaster-General Barber show that 107,616,000 postal cards were issued during the fiscal year which ended June 30, against 91,079,000 issued for the year which ended June 30, 1874. The increase is equivalent to about 18 1-6 per cent., which shows that the postal cards are growing in popular favor as a means of inter-communication.... The value of the issue of ordinary postage stamps during the year which ended June 30, 1875, was $18,271,479, an increase of $996,237 over the previous year. The value of newspaper and periodical postage stamps was $815,902; of ordinary stamped envelopes and wrappers, $4,124,477, an increase of $242,284; of postal cards, $1,076,160; of total issues for sale to the public, $24,288,018, an increase of $2,219,794 over the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1874. The value of official postage stamps for the fiscal year amounted to $834,970.25, a decrease of $580,874.95 since June 30, 1874. The value of official stamped envelopes was $354,522.18, an increase of $106,552 over the year 1874.... The Comptroller of the Currency requests all national banks to return for redemption notes of the denomination of $5 on the following banks: The First, Third and Traders' National Banks, Chicago; First National Bank, Paxton, Ill.; First National Bank, Canton, Ill. The notes having been successfully counterfeited they are to be retired.

EX-GOV. FLETCHER, of Missouri, has agreed to serve on the special Indian Commission appointed to investigate the charges made by Prof. Marsh against the Indian Bureau.

THE President has directed that the most stringent measures be used to prevent people from going to the Black Hills until the result of the labor of the commission to treat with the Indians is known....It is proposed at Washington, in order to prevent the smuggling of valuable laces through the mails, to make all Postmasters ex officio customs officers, with power to open suspicious packages and confiscate their contents if they shall be found to be contraband....An extraordinary council of Cabinet members was held at Washington the other day, in which a long-standing claim against Venezuela was under consideration, and it was decided that the payment of our bill be insisted upon.

FISHER, United States Attorney for the District, has been removed....Postmaster-General Jewell will visit New England in August, and the South in November, on his tour of inspection....The counting of the money in Uncle Sam's vaults has been completed, and everything was found O. K.

GENERAL.

RATES of fare on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad have again been reduced, as follows: To New York, $15; Philadelphia, $14; Baltimore and Washington, $13.50.

TENS of thousands of people at Saratoga witnessed the annual regatta of the college rowing clubs; and although the prevailing anticipation at the Springs for a day or two previously was that Harvard, Yale, or Columbia Colleges would win, the match resulted in a victory for Cornell, the Freshmen and Senior crews carrying off the prizes for their respective classes. The distance rowed over was three miles, and the time of the winning crews was 16 minutes 53¼ seconds for the Seniors, and 17 minutes 32¼ seconds for the Freshmen.

POLITICAL.

THE Suffrage Committee of the Connecticut Legislature has reported in favor of women voting at Presidential elections.

FOREIGN.

TWO ENGLISH tourists were arrested at Mayence, not long since, by Prussian authorities, on the supposition that they were French spies. When it became known who they were, they were released with profuse apologies....The American rifle team has declined an invitation to shoot a match at Wimbledon with a picked eight from all England. They announce that they cannot depart from their original intention to shoot but one match on that side of the Atlantic.

LATER accounts have been received of the recent terrible storm in the harbor of Valparaiso, which more than confirm the previous reports of the destructiveness of the cyclone. The loss of life is estimated at over one hundred souls. Forty boys belonging to the naval training ship were drowned. No correct estimate of the loss of property had been arrived at, but what with the stranding of vessels, the sinking of hulks, the damage to vessels, destruction of lighters, and boats lost (probably exceeding 100 in number), the destruction of baths and other property, the amount will be very heavy.... During the recent typhoon at Hong Kong, China, the steamer Poyang foundered, with a loss of one hundred lives....Chinese pirates recently attacked a British steamer in the harbor of Foo-Chow, and killed a custom house officer on duty, he receiving about twenty-five slugs in his breast. The smugglers were beaten off by the crew, and it was learned that four of the desperadoes were killed and several wounded.

THE town of Buda-Pesth, in Hungary, has had a second destructive tempest, which carried away all the temporary works for the repair of damages by the former one; houses were unroofed, and several towers blown down. No lives lost....Denmark, it is said, will demand an explanation from Germany for the secret soundings taken by a Prussian vessel in Danish waters last week.

MOODY and Sankey are coming home in August....Heavy rains and floods are reported in England and Wales, causing much damage to crops....Lambert Brothers & Scott, London coal merchants, have failed. Liabilities, $1,000,000....The grant to defray the expenses of the Prince of Wales' visit to India, passed the British Parliament by a vote of 338 yeas to 16 nays.

Struck By Lightning.

Mr. A. Castle, whose experience in that line we alluded to last week, has told us all about it, and we are content to take his word for it. As the storm came up he put his team in the barn and sat down in the door facing the inside. The stroke of lightning which killed his horses and prostrated him did its work too swiftly to give him the slightest warning of its coming. His first remembrance upon returning to consciousness was of hearing his daughter, who had run down from the house, about twenty-five rods distant, exclaim, "Oh! father is dead!" Upon opening his eyes, the whole air and sky seemed to be in a blaze. He also became conscious of the most intense suffering, and especially in his lower limbs. He says the pain was like that of a burn, and that he could not have suffered more for the hour that followed if he had been held in the flames. His wife and daughter, upon seeing that he was still alive, desired to remove him to the house, but he begged to be left where he was and not to be disturbed, as he felt that he could live but a few minutes and that he might as well die there as to be put to the needless torture of removal. As he seemed to gain strength, however, he was soon taken to the house and made as comfortable as possible, but eight or ten hours elapsed before he was able to move either of his lower limbs. The left hip and leg seemed to be more affected than the right, and the symptoms for a time indicated that the bones were injured. But these have passed away and only a slight lameness now remains. The right lung has been very sore ever since the occurrence, but this may have been caused by an injury received in falling. The mark of the lightning is apparent from the shoulders to the calf of the right leg, in the shape of a broad, irregular strip from which the skin has peeled off as though it had been scalded.—Whitewater Register.

The Story of a Hat.

"Is this Thomas Hardy?" inquired His Honor of the next man.

"Send me afloat if it isn't!" replied the prisoner.

"Are you a sailor!"

"Dry-dock me if I hain't!"

"You'll get into dry-dock fast enough, my boy! The story goes that you went into a store on Jefferson avenue and wanted to look at a hat. A hat was shown you, and you yelled out, 'Shoot the hat!' threw it down, jumped on it and then ran away. Is this true?"

"The larboard side is about right."

"Well, sir, what induced you to act that way?"

"Shipped too much rum aboard, I guess."

"It looks that way. I can't have you running into this harbor every two or three weeks all summer and asking me for clearance papers. I think I'll throw you a tow-line this morning and haul you into the creek."

"All fast, sir!" said the prisoner, with a smile.

"Bell him to go ahead slow, Bijah," continued the court, "and mark him for ninety days."—Detroit Free Press.

Greeley and Breckinridge.

The friendship that existed between John C. Breckinridge and Horace Greeley during the latter years of Mr. Greeley's life was very deep. On one occasion, speaking to the Hon. Heister Clymer of his obligations to Mr. Greeley, Breckinridge said: "After the late unfortunate war between the Northern and Southern sections of the United States, you know I was compelled to flee for my safety. While in Paris, cheerless, friendless, homeless, and without a country, I received a letter from Horace Greeley. It was filled with the most tender expressions of regard and sympathy, and urged me to return to my home. 'Come back,' he wrote; 'go to your own beloved Kentucky, aid in restoring the shattered fortunes of the South and your country, and I will be responsible for your safety and assure your immunity from molestation or arrest.' Now, I submit to you, Mr. Clymer, could I have done otherwise than call upon Horace Greeley, or shall I ever cease to respect and cherish him?"

Arctic Exploration.

The English Arctic expedition takes along about 1,000 tons of provisions, enough to last for three years. Everything which will tend to the comfort of the crews and enable them to amuse themselves during the leisure hours in the long days and nights which they will spend in the northern regions has been provided. No expedition has ever been so completely fitted out for an Arctic voyage of discovery, and this, added to the knowledge gained by American expeditions, it is believed will enable the English adventurers to reach the Pole, and to solve the Arctic problem.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCIAL.

The supply of money continues in excess of the demand, there being but comparatively little demand for favors. Speculators in grain and provisions are about the only borrowers. Interest rates are without quotable change—7@10 per cent., according to security and time. Government bonds firm.

BREADSTUFFS.

The grain markets attracted considerable attention from speculators and operators generally during the past week, and an extensive business was transacted. The receipts were somewhat larger, and the shipments also denote an increase, but still neither the receipts nor shipments are as large as at this time last season. At times the prevailing feeling was rather weak, and again quite firm, but taking the week all through the prevailing feeling was one of firmness and a higher range of prices was established. The shorts for July delivery showed a general desire to provide for their outstanding contracts, and up to Saturday the demand from this source was quite urgent, especially for corn and oats. The advices from the East were of a favorable tenor, and holders and operators generally manifested considerable confidence in the trade. The markets at the close were easier and outside prices were not maintained, the higher prices inducing more selling orders from the interior, while the weather was more settled and crop reports were favorable. The shipping inquiry was fair, and there was a reduction of the stock in store.

The following table shows the prices current at the opening and close of the past week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 sp'g wheat, cash	1.03¾@1.04½	$1.06 @1.07
No. 2, seller July	1.03¾@1.04	1.06 @1.07
No. 2, seller August	1.04 @1.05	1.06 @1.06½
No. 2 seller September	1.03 @1.04½	1.04½
No. 2 corn, cash	.68½@ .69½	.69½@ .70½
No. 2 corn, seller July	.68½@ .69	.69½@ bid.
No. 2 corn, s. August	.70½@ .71½	.71½ bid.
No. 2 corn, seller Sept	.72½@ .72½	.71½ bid.
No. 2 oats, cash	.53½@ .54	.55
No. 2 oats, seller July	.51½@ .55½	.52½
No. 2 oats, s. August	.40½@ .41½	.39½
No. 2 oats, s. Sept	.38½@ .39½	.37½
No. 2 rye, cash	.92 @ .93	1.00 @1.02
No. 2 barley, cash	1.15 @1.20	1.25 bid.
No. 2 barley, s. Sept	1.00 @1.01	1.00

PROVISIONS.

The movement during the past week was not as brisk in this market as during the previous one, though a fair amount of business was reported. During the early part of the week a firm feeling prevailed, and prices exhibited an improvement, but later the feeling, owing to increased receipts of hogs and lower prices, was easier, and a slight reduction was suffered in prices. The market closed at $19.55 for cash mess pork, $19.50 seller July, $19.55 seller August, and $19.70 seller September. Cash lard closed at $13.20 and seller July at the same figure; seller August quiet and nominal at $13.20, and seller September closed at $13.40.

PRODUCE.

A fair amount of butter was received during the week, but the quality of the arrivals was not as good as during the previous week, and sales for this reason were rather slow. There was a fair shipping demand for the better qualities and prices were firm, while common grades ruled dull and rather weak. Quotable at 19@23c for extras; 17@20c for firsts; 14@17c for seconds; 13@15c for thirds, and 11@12c for inferior stocks. There was no particular change in the market for beans. The demand and offerings were both light, and prices were steady at $1.90 for choice Eastern mediums in barrels, and $2.00@1.80 for common to choice Western. There was a fair demand for broom corn, but prices for some descriptions, owing to more liberal offerings, were a shade easier. Quotable at 11@14c for No. 1 to extra hurl; 11@13c for good to choice stalk braid, and 6@8½c for crooked. Beeswax was quiet at 28@30c per lb for good to choice yellow. The movement continues quite brisk in the market for cheese, and a firm feeling prevailed. Sales were made at 10@10½c in lots, and 11@11½c in a retail way for prime factory. Cider was inactive and nominal. Coopers' stock was quiet at $10.00@12.00 per m for flour hoop-poles, and $13.00@18.00 for tight-barrel poles. Cooperage was also quiet but steady at $1.12½@1.15 for pork barrels, $1.35@1.45 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.10 for whisky barrels, and 45@55c for flour barrels. Dried fruits were dull and unsettled. Apples, under larger offerings, were weak; quotable at 7c for New York apples in lots, and 7½@8c in a small way. Peaches remain steady at 8½@8¾c, and blackberries sold at 8¾c. Dried peas were inactive and dull at $2.00@2.15 per bu for choice green, and $1.75@1.80 for marrowfat. Dried sweet corn was dull at 6@7c per lb. Feathers were dull, and for some kinds prices were easier; quotable at 48@52c per lb for prime live geese, 20@25c for choice turkey-tail, and 4@5c for chicken feathers. Eggs were in good supply and prices ruled rather weak. The market closed at about 14½c per doz in cases and 14c for loose. Green fruits were in quite large supply, but for sound fruit the demand was good and prices ruled quite steady. Peaches sold at 40@90c per box for common to fair, $1.00@1.50 for good to choice, and $2.00@2.25 for extra Crawfords. The bulk of the pears received sold at $1.00 per box, choice quotable at $1.50. Apples were dull at 25@65c for poor to choice green, and 75c@$1.00 for ripe. Plums salable at $1.75@2.00 for ⅓ bu boxes for choice red. There was a fair demand for hides at 8c all round for choice lots and 13@13½c for calf. Honey remains dull at 18@23c per lb for comb and 10@11c for strained. Hops ruled quiet at 20@30c for fair to choice from first hands. There was but little demand for old potatoes, and light sales were made at 70@80c for Eastern peachblows; new under larger offerings were easier. The market closed at $2.50@3.50 for fair to choice per brl. and 65@75c in one bushel boxes. Vegetables were dull and slow of sale. Cabbage closed at about $4.00 per 100. Cucumbers at 20@25c per doz. Squash at 4@5c per lb. Tomatoes 90c@$1.00 per box. Onions $3.00@3.50 per brl for Illinois, and 90c@$1.25 for one bushel boxes of Bermuda. Veal was in fair demand and steady at 4@9c for poor to choice carcases. For light, coarse and medium wool there was fair demand, but fine and heavy ruled dull. Quotable at 38@43c for coarse to fine good conditioned washed, 25@38c for fine heavy to coarse heavy unwashed, and 40@53c for poor to prime tub.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

There was no particular change in the market for seeds. Trade was very light, and prices with but few exceptions were without essential change. Timothy, under a light demand, was firm at $2.60@2.65 for prime and $2.40@2.55 for fair to good. For prime medium clover $7.00 was bid with more offered on the market. Flax quotable at $1.60 for good crushing spot and $1.50 seller August and September. Hungarian dull at 90c@$1.10 and millet $1.75@2.00, according to quality. Prime buckwheat was offered at 90c. There was a good demand for highwines and the market closed firm with sales at $1.17.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

Another very quiet week was passed in the cooperage market, but as the offerings were not large the feeling was one of steadiness, and former prices were maintained. Quotable at $1.12½@1.15 for pork barrels, $1.30@1.40 for lard tierces, $1.90@2.10 for whisky barrels, and 45@55c for flour barrels. The lumber market was dull and transactions were limited. Prices under liberal offerings were weaker. The market closed at $7.75@8.00 for joist and scantling, $8.00@16.00 for common to choice strips and boards, $2.20@2.70 for shingles, and $1.50 for lath. There was no change to make in wood, the market being dull at former quotations. Hickory $8.00 per cord, maple $7.00, beech $6.00, and slabs $4.00, in the yards.

Telegraphic Market Reports.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	11	@	13
HOGS—Dressed	9	@	10
COTTON	15½	@	16½
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 80	@	5 10
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 20	@	1 22
No. 1 Spring	1 27	@	1 31
CORN	77	@	81
OATS	60	@	62
RYE	1 08	@	1 10
PORK—New Mess	20 25	@	20 60
LARD—Steam	12	@	13
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	1 31	@	1 32
CORN—No. 2	64	@	66
OATS—No. 2	57	@	59
RYE—No. 2	97	@	1 00
PORK—Mess	20 30	@	20 40
LARD	12	@	13
HOGS	6 80	@	7 25
CATTLE	4 50	@	6 00
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 12	@	1 13
No. 2	1 08	@	1 12
CORN—No. 2	66	@	68
OATS—No. 2	..	@	48
RYE	1 08	@	1 10
BARLEY—No. 2	1 14	@	1 18
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 28	@	1 30
CORN	69	@	71
OATS	57	@	60
RYE	1 10	@	1 15
PORK—Mess	20 00	@	20 25
LARD	13	@	13
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—Extra	1 28	@	1 31
Amber	1 23	@	1 25
CORN—New	73	@	74
OATS	54	@	56
DETROIT.
WHEAT—Extra	..	@	1 28
Amber	..	@	1 24
CORN	65	@	66
OATS	63	@	64
CLEVELAND.
WHEAT—No. 1 Red	1 28	@	1 30
No. 2 Red	1 19	@	1 20
CORN	69	@	70
OATS	56	@	57

BRIGANDS.

A Band of Robbers Board an Express Train in Southern Illinois—The Engineer Shot Dead, and the Engine and Express Car Detached—The Express Messenger Defends His Car Successfully.

One of the most high-handed attempts at robbery that has ever occurred in Illinois took place at Long Point, a station on the Vandalia railroad, on the night of the 8th inst. The dispatches to the Chicago papers give the following particulars of the affair:

As train No. 5, eastward bound, in charge of Conductor Fraley and Engineer Milo Ames, came up to Long Point station for water, two men boarded the locomotive, one from each side, and said to the engineer: "Pull out!" The engineer was at first somewhat bewildered, when they said again, "Pull out!" At this he, seeming to comprehend the situation, said: "All right, I'll pull out." The men then said: "We will run the thing ourselves," and at that both of the robbers fired. One of the shots killed the engineer instantly, and the other lodged in the cab. The fireman, who was on the tank taking in water, immediately jumped and ran to the rear of the train, to notify the train-men, he having heard the conversation and comprehending the situation.

During these proceedings at the engine, a confederate had detached the Adams Express car, and they then, pulling the engine wide open, ran her about two miles east and stopped, blowing "off brakes" to deceive the express messenger.

They then came to the door of the car and said: "Let me in, Jack." He replied to them: "You s—s of b—s, I'm ready for you! If you ever come in here, you are dead men!" The robbers then commenced firing into the car. The messenger, Burke, said it seemed to him that there were a dozen of them, as the shots seemed to come from all directions.

The conductor and train-men, after the shots were fired, saw the situation of affairs, and at once set about to pursue the robbers. They could only find one revolver on the train, but found two soldiers on board a car, who were armed with carbines. With these weapons the train-men and the two soldiers started in pursuit of the train and robbers, but when they came up to the train all was quiet, the robbers having fled. They found the engineer in the bottom of his cab, cold and stiff.

There chanced to be a freight engineer, Jack Vancleve, on the train, and he, with the fireman, immediately ran the engine back to the train, and brought it in.

The robbers failed to get any entrance whatever into the express car, it being one of the close kind, and having no windows, and very strong every way. Had they detached the American Express car also, which was immediately in the rear of the Adams, they would undoubtedly have accomplished their object, as it was an open car, having windows, and the doors not very strong.

Engineer Ames was one of the best engineers on the road, about 35 years old, and had been married but a short time.

The robbers who boarded the locomotive wore long linen dusters.

Conductor Fraley, and all the train-men, in fact, did all they could under the circumstances.

Peace in the Family.

The following excellent rules for promoting peace in the family, have been given:

1. Remember that our will is likely to be crossed every day, so prepare for it.
2. Everybody in the house has an evil nature as well as ourselves, and therefore we are not to expect too much.
3. To learn the different temper and disposition of each individual.
4. To look on each member of the family as one for whom we should have a care.
5. When any good happens to any one to rejoice at it.
6. When inclined to give an angry answer to "overcome evil with good.
7. If from sickness, pain or infirmity, we feel irritable, to keep a very strict watch over ourselves.
8. To observe when others are so suffering, to drop a word of kindness and sympathy suited to them.
9. To watch for little opportunities of pleasing, and to put little annoyances out of the way.
10. To take a cheerful view of the weather, and of everything, and to encourage hope.
11. To speak kindly of the servants; to praise them for little things when you can.
12. In all little pleasures which may occur, to put self last.
13. To try, for "the soft answer which turneth away wrath."
14. When we have been pained by an unkind word or deed, to ask ourselves: "Have I not often done the same and been forgiven?"
15. In conversation not to exalt ourselves, but to bring others forward.
16. To be very gentle with the young ones, and treat them with respect.
17. Never to judge one another harshly, but to attribute a good motive when we can.

IT is now believed that the grape crop of California has not been injured by the severe winter and wet spring. A full yield is anticipated.

THE BLACK HILLS.

Discouraging Reports from the New Gold Field—The Diggings Will Not Pay for Working.

The Interior Department, says a Washington telegram, has a very full and complete report from Prof. Jenney, the chief of the scientific expedition sent out to investigate the condition of the supposed gold fields of the Black Hills. This report was given to the public to-day, as it is the desire of the Interior Department to have it as widely circulated as possible. The report confirms the first dispatch of Prof. Jenney, in which he said that nothing had yet been discovered that would warrant extensive mining operations in the Black Hills. His report is in direct contradiction of the glowing tales of correspondents, and opens up a question of veracity, with the indications all in Prof. Jenney's favor. The report first gives a description of the operations of the scientific party and its movements, all of which have been fully described in the special correspondence sent out from the expedition. It then proceeds at once to explode the stories about the rich fields on French's creek, at the spot where Capt. Mix recently raided a party of miners. Prof. Jenney says this is the spot where miners have said that the washing of loose dirt, in the diggings, panned out 27 cents to the pan. He went into the best of this dirt and worked out nine buckets of it, and secured the rich result of 22 cents out of the whole. He says that the best dirt does not average one cent and a quarter a pan, which is quite a different story from that sent out by the Senatorial visitors to "Harney City." He also sunk a shaft in the bed-rock near the stockade, some 15 feet, without discovering a trace of gold. He says that there is gold there, but it exists in very small quantities, and is spread over such a large area of territory as to make practical digging a failure. He also says that there is no coal in that region. He has found some beds of clay in which there are rich deposits of iron. The next point Prof. Jenney will examine will be in the Cheyenne river, north of the site of the present camp. There are some beds of cretaceous lignites in which gold may be found. The report is emblazoned at the top with a sample of the gold found. There is no "dust" in this mining region. The gold is found in small particles, showing it to be derived from quartz-veins. Prof. Jenney speaks very highly of the Black Hills country as an agricultural region. He says the soil is rich, water plenty, and the timber, a species of the Norway pine, is very valuable. This report of Prof. Jenney's is discouraging in the extreme, but it is not believed that it will deter any one who has the gold fever from visiting the hills. Even now, the believers in the sensational reports say that Prof. Jenney's report is made to suit the wishes of the Interior Department, as it desires the miners kept out of the Black Hills region until the question of its being opened up is settled with the Sioux, beyond dispute.

A Resuscitated Marine.

In France and other European Continental countries the bodies of deceased persons are committed to their parent earth much sooner after death than is the custom in this country. The law in consequence insists on great care being taken to avoid premature interment. In Brest lately, however, a marine fell into a lethargic state, was certified as dead by the hospital authorities, and his supposed remains were conveyed under a military escort to the cemetery. A few days afterward some of those who had buried him were surprised and horrified at meeting him in the street. Fortunately, he had been reserved for scientific purposes, and when he was laced naked on the marble slab in the dissecting room, the sudden chill revived him. Had he been put "down among the dead men," he must have remained there for good, and become a marine in another sense.

A Court-Scene in Nevada.

Pending the trial of Thomas Miller, recently, in the Justice's Court for grand larceny, Judge Pitzer's black Newfoundland dog, seeing that his master was a little excited over the case, thought another dog named "Tag" was intruding and disturbing his master, and immediately bounced him. The lawyers present endeavored to separate them, while the Judge sat on the bench smiling at their endeavors. After they were separated, by the aid of Constables and officers, Bishop made the remark that the Judge presided over a dog-fight with more dignity than any man he ever saw, at which J. C. Foster moved that Bishop be fined for contempt of court, which was done, and the fine made nominal and liquidated at the neighboring saloon.—Pioche (Nev.) Record.

New Telegraph Enterprise.

A recent special from San Francisco says: There has been incorporated here an association of our principal capitalists under the name of National Telegraph Company, for the purpose of, as stated in their articles of incorportion, "The construction, conduct and maintenance of telegraph lines between the cities of New York and San Francisco, and between said cities and all other principal cities and towns in the United States and in the territories thereof, and in the dominion of Canada, and to connect by said telegraph lines said principal cities and towns with each other." The estimated length of the line is 75,000 miles. The capital is $25,000,000, of which $7,500,000 has been subscribed, and 10 per cent. already paid in.

USE OF TOADS.—A French paper states that the French horticulturists have followed the example of the English ones, and peopled their gardens with toads. These reptiles are determined enemies of all kinds of snails and slugs, which, it is well known, can in a single night destroy a vast quantity of lettuce, carrots, asparagus, etc. In Paris toads are sold at the rate of fifty cents a dozen. The dealers in this uninviting article keep it in large tubs, into which they plunge their bare hands and arms, without any fear of the poisonous bites to which they are supposed to expose themselves. Toads are also kept in vineyards, where they devour during the night millions of insects that escape the pursuit of nocturnal birds.

GEN. LONGSTREET, of Louisiana, is making a trip through the Canadas.

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

The reports of the condition and prospect of the new cotton crop throughout the Southern States are very flattering, and, as a consequence, that section of our country is looking forward to an early restoration of general prosperity. With a great cotton crop in the South and great grain crops in the West, what is there to hinder a speedy conquest of our "hard times!"

It is said that the best conducted financial department of any morning paper in this country is that of the Philadelphia Ledger. It has been in the charge of the same editor for thirty-five years, and in all that time there has never once been the slightest suspicion that it was used in the private interests of any man, or to aid in any financial speculation whatever.

Grasshoppers are $1.60 a bushel in Minnesota; potato bugs are 20 cents a quart in New Jersey—caught and killed in both cases, of course. Traps have been contrived in Minnesota, run by horse-power, which capture from five to twenty bushels of grasshoppers in a day. This makes a flourishing line of business, and there is a chance that the pest may be exterminated by the vigorous warfare.

The Civil Rights act, like a two-edged sword, cuts both ways. A curious suit under the act has been brought in Washington. A white man had engaged rooms in a house owned and occupied by a colored man, but rented by his wife in his absence. On his return he turned the tenant out of doors, on the ground that he did not want a white man in his house. The tenant now brings suit under the Civil Rights bill.

The Spiritualistic phenomena are to be thoroughly investigated in St. Petersburg by a special committee of scientists, appointed by the Imperial University, under the Presidency of Prof. Mendeleyeff. In order to have the tests thorough, representative American mediums are to be invited thither at the expense of the university, they making their own terms. The investigations will take place twice a week, and for a period of not less than six months.

The estimated value of all the churches and places of worship in New York city is $38,140,000. The Episcopal stand highest on the list, at $10,709,000; next come the Catholic, $6,990,000; Presbyterian, $6,874,000; Dutch Reformed, $3,401,000; Methodists, $2,818,000; Baptist, $2,429,000; Jewish, $2,007,000; Unitarian, $300,000; Lutheran, $557,000; Universalist, $440,000; Congregational, $417,000; Friends, $295,000; Swedenborgian, $100,000; African Methodist, $99,000.

This is the wicked way in which the Baltimore Gazette relates a recent editorial change: "Owing to the unforeseen financial embarrassments of the St. Louis Times, that voracious chronicler of things that never happened, George Alfred Townsend, has scraped the St. Louis dust from his brogans, and again become a guerrilla in journalism. George wields a flashing pen, but, alas! not for him is the glittering hatchet, not for him the flourishing cherry tree. He does it so easy, too."

The following is the only instance on record of a Postmaster resigning, except by request. The Postmaster writes from Kansas to Postmaster-General Jewell as follows: "Sir—As the grasshoppers are here, and destroying the corn and what wheat the drought has not burned up, and the oats and rye, I would ask you to discontinue this office. If they continue destroying the crops for three or four more days, there will be but few men left around here. Please grant me these favors, and oblige, yours truly."

The recent successive occurrence of earthquakes, tornadoes, and floods all over the globe is certainly very remarkable. The earthquake in Asia Minor, that in New Grenada, and the slighter one in Indiana came very near one another in point of time; and the tornado in Detroit and the floods in France, Austria and Switzerland were almost simultaneous. The extraordinary nature of these floods is evidenced by the fact that in France alone fully 2,000 persons were drowned, and property destroyed to the value of $75,000,000.

A man fishing in the Tennessee river, at Chattanooga, the other day, fancied at last that he had succeeded in catching something valuable in the piscatory catalogue. Hauling in his apparatus with some delight, imagine the change at finding the corpse of a young girl attached to his hook. Public opinion is still divided upon the point whether the girl drowned herself intentionally or accidentally, or was drowned by some parties to conceal another crime. But the fisherman in this instance is disgusted with rod and line, and Isaak Walton has lost a fond disciple.

An exchange gives an account of a locust feast which was recently served up in a Missouri town. Soup was first served, and was supposed to taste like chicken soup; it was pronounced "good." Then came batter-cakes, through which locusts were well mixed. The cakes—disappeared quickly. Baked locusts were then tried—plain hoppers, without condiment of any kind—and were pronounced an excellent dish. The dessert was a la John the Baptist—baked locusts and honey. Eating locusts is no new thing, for ancient historians speak of their frequent use in Eastern countries.

An act of outrageous and hideous vandalism was recently perpetrated upon the remains of Gen. Howell Hinds, buried at Greenville, Miss. The vault which contained his coffin was broken into, his body taken out, and the right hand cut off. For this strange and unnatural crime no other motive can be found save the superstitious idea that a certain bone in the right hand of a dead man is a powerful "charm" for conjuring. No ring or other valuable was upon the body when buried, and therefore no mercenary motive can be assigned for this desecration of the grave—nothing could have inspired the deed but the horrible infatuation of the conjurer.

The importation of fire crackers this year will amount to 300,000 boxes, an increase of 100,000 boxes over last year's importation. It is a little curious that the scientific and inventive genius of this country have proved inadequate for the manufacture of these explosives. All attempts to produce them in this country, so as to compete with the imported article, have failed. They are made exclusively in China and Japan, and cost in New York, in bond, $1.10 per box, containing forty packs of eighty crackers each, and at $1 per box containing forty packs of seventy-two crackers each. Of late years the consumption in the United States has fallen off considerably.

Prof. Jenney, the geologist, sent by the government to examine the Black Hills, has reported to the Secretary of the Interior that gold does not exist there in sufficient quantities to make mining profitable. His report will greatly disappoint the gold-hunters and border speculators. Prof. Jenney practically refutes all the sensational stories which have been published about this region. He says, after having spent a month in careful investigation, that mining there would be profitless. Gold exists, but in small quantities, and scattered over immense areas. He tested the soil where it was said to yield 27 cents a pan, and found it worth only 1¼ cents per pan. In the bed rock, where the ore was said to be very rich and abundant, he could find no trace of ore.

INDIANA NEWS.

Gasburg is a Morgan county settlement.

Jasper county has 23,940 head of cattle.

Lafayette is to have a herd of elk at its next County Fair, the gift of a Toledo gentleman.

The Square Table Club of Fort Wayne numbers 114 members. The name is derived from the capacity of members to stow away "square meals."

The State Board of Agriculture has elected the Hon. John Sutherland, of the Eleventh District, and R. P. Haynes, of the Second District, Trustees of the Agricultural College at Lafayette.

M. E. Pleas, of North Manchester, has found time, amid the cares of publishing a newspaper, to invent a new kind of shears, on which a patent has been granted. A very natural invention for an editor.

The Michigan City harbor contained twenty-one vessels one day last week. Business is lively at that port. The imports for the month of June were: 10,132,000 feet lumber, 6,650,000 shingles, 3,079,000 lath, 250,000 piles, and a quantity of square timber.

While Mr. D. Wiltrout, an old and wealthy farmer of Kosciusko county, was harvesting last week, his horse became frightened and ran away, throwing the unfortunate man under the knives of the reaping machine, which inflicted injuries which resulted in his death.

The Rev. Father Campion, pastor of St. Mary's Church at Lafayette, takes decided ground in condemning round dances. He says: "No one knows as well as the priest of the church of God how many souls have gone to eternal perdition through the sins growing out of promiscuous dances."

The colored citizens of Richmond having, by resolutions at mass meetings, demanded of the School Board colored teachers for the colored schools, the Board promises that if colored teachers can pass the same examination required of the white teachers they shall be so employed.

So clearly has the fact been demonstrated that the passenger revenue is increased where but three cents a mile is the tariff, that a prominent railroad officer, who has given the matter much attention, predicts that before two years every road in Indiana will carry passengers on a three cents per mile basis.

Mrs. Molloy, of the Elkhart Observer, appeared before the County Commissioners at Noblesville a few days ago, and made an argument against granting licenses to persons who were then applying for the same. Her speech seems to have been a most convincing one, for the Commissioners rejected all the applications.

Says the Jeffersonville News: "A recalcitrant prisoner at the Penitentiary, a few days ago, backed himself in his cell and tore a bar of iron off his bed, defying the guard to compel him to go to work. The guard quietly drew his watch and told Mr. Convict, with a revolver to his face, that he had just two minutes to come out. He had time to spare."

Andy Kelly, a fireman on the east end of the Vandalia railway, was killed one day last week in attempting to mount his engine at Filmore, near Greencastle, as it was leaving the depot. He fell partially under the wheels of the tender, and his head was horribly crushed. Albert J. Kelly, County Prosecutor of Vigo county, is a brother of the deceased.

A gentleman residing in Jeffersonville recently received a volume of poems entitled "Gems from the Tailings; or, The Sluice Club," by Sam W. Smith, author of "Struck Oil," "Tom Bell," "California Girl," etc. The author is a native Hoosier, born near Connersville, but was for a few years an Indianapolis boy, and a schoolmate of Hon. John Coburn, Col. Samuel Merrill, Nicholas McCarty, and others, in the old County Seminary. He went to California in 1852, has led a miner's life ever since, with the exception of three years during the war, when he was a Captain in a California regiment doing duty along the coast. His "Struck Oil" was written for the stage, and sold for $100. The purchaser put it on the San Francisco boards, then took it to Australia, where it has had a very successful run, and the lucky purchaser has made $50,000 by his speculation.

'Hoppers and Humanity.

From the report of the State Relief Committee of Kansas, which has just been published, we have evidence of how abundantly the people of this country responded to the cry for help which rose from that region of Kansas devastated by the grasshoppers last year. Twenty thousand persons of that State were left, if not destitute, at least urgently in need of assistance, and by the charity of their fellow beings throughout the states were enabled to pass a severe winter in tolerable comfort. The cash received and expended by the committee was $74,000, and the money value of the goods contributed approximated $161,000, making in all about $235,000. The contributions came from twenty-nine States and Territories. In cash donations California heads the list of States, having given $20,000. In goods, Illinois was first, having contributed to the value of $53,000. In goods and merchandise Iowa gave $40,700; Ohio, $21,500; Indiana, $20,800; New York, $12,900; Massachusetts, $11,900; Pennsylvania, $10,300; and Missouri, $7,100. The supplies are estimated at 265 car loads, in 11,000 separate packages, equaling in weight all the merchandise shipped to the State during the time of suffering. Contributions of other kinds are acknowledged, for instance: $20,000 worth of army clothing sent into the afflicted district by order of the President; $75,000 worth of army rations issued by officers under direction of Congress, with contributions made direct to certain counties, and the freight on relief goods which were carried free by the railroads and must have been a saving in the neighborhood of $100,000. Of the private contributions of money and goods made direct to sufferers, the committee has, of course, no account, but if the aggregate were added to the sums acknowledged publicly, the total would make a magnificent showing, creditable in the highest degree to man's humanity to man, which makes countless thousands rejoice.—Chicago Times.

The Mexican Border.

A telegram from Brownsville, Texas, says: "Cortina, Judge Martinez, and the other prisoners have been sent from here to Bagdad, and placed on the gunboat Juarez, destined for Vera Cruz. It is generally considered that the arrest of Cortina, who favors Mejia, is a political dodge in the interest of Lerdo's re-election. The Presidential election is to come off in September, and Lerdo uses the extraordinary powers granted him by Congress to continue in power. The State of Nueva De Lion, it is said, will vote against Lerdo if the troops should be withdrawn. The arrest of its Governor-elect is not confirmed as yet. It is not supposed that the removal of Cortina will check the depredations. They are of so long standing, and there are so many Mexicans engaged in them, that they cannot be stopped except extraordinary measures are taken. Demoralization has increased. Cortina took the lion's share, but he kept the raiders in order. Now each petty leader will operate for himself. Gov. Coke says that our border war will not be ended except the marauders are followed across the Rio Grande and severely punished. Additional raids have been reported higher up the river, the new base of operations of the thieves."

Santa Barbara, Cal., claims the champion rose of the world, the "King of Noisettes," measuring sixteen and three-quarter inches in circumference, and from tip to tip of its petals more than six inches. The shoot from which it hangs, three feet in length, grew in the space of six days, on the trellis of the garden wall of Dr. Dimmick. It has a delightful perfume, a delicate lemon tint, and is claimed to be the largest rose on record.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

The Old Farm-House.

Oh, the old farm-house to me!
The homely ways the ample cheer,
The refuge at my mother's knee,
From childhood's every grief [illegible]
And dear the memory of those d[illegible]
Bathed in love's amber atmosp[illegible]
When all our voices rose in pra[illegible]
When sire and child were bowed [illegible]
But where are they,
The fond, the gay,
Who filled the great white house in May?

Gone like the birds from last year's nest!
Gone as the leaves in autumn fly
Some to cities of the West;
Some toil beneath an Indian sky;
Some other prairies sow and reap;
One sank beneath a moaning sea!
Some in the churchyard lie asleep.
And, quivering in the old roof-tree,
One homesick waits
The swing of gates
To waft her to heaven's bright estates!

Farm Rakings.

Bread is now manufactured largely for stock-feed in parts of Europe. For horses the bread is made of ground rye, corn, oats and beans. For pigs rye-corn and bean meal are used. Loaves of these materials are sold at Berlin, and used with great advantage. For dogs biscuits are specially prepared, either wholly of vegetable matter—chiefly oatmeal—or of meal mixed with prepared meat.

To Preserve Posts.—The American Chemist says that a Western farmer discovered many years ago that wood could be made to last longer than iron in the ground. Time and weather, he says, seem to have no effect on it. The posts can be prepared for less than two cents apiece. This is the recipe: Take boiled linseed oil and stir into it pulverized charcoal to the consistency of paint. Put a coat of this over the timber, and, he adds, there is not a man who will live to see it rot.

Care of Root Crops.—Roots cannot be grown successfully without perfectly clean and frequent cultivation. The ground may be rich, but yet produce a poor crop of roots if weeds are permitted, or if the soil is allowed to become dry and hard. An extra outlay of $5 or less per acre for labor in weeding and cultivation may very easily make a difference of $25 or $50 in the crop. The same is true of corn, but especially of roots, which insist on having a mellow, clean soil, or they refuse to grow.—Exchange.

Horses in Stables.—A correspondent of the Indiana Farmer writes: "I have tried a variety of means to prevent horses pawing in the stable—among others, the strap and chain—but all failed. Recently I devised a plan, which has succeeded to my entire satisfaction. I made a frame four feet long, and of sufficient width to reach nearly to the top of the manger, from which I suspended it, allowing it to reach to within about ten inches of the floor. I boarded up the sash or frame, in order that he could not get his feet over the lower bar, which was a round stick two inches in diameter. The act of pawing sets the swing in motion, causing it to strike against the shins, which so disgusted my animal that he very soon gave it up entirely."

A Canada farmer has a lofty notion of the uses of charcoal. It is his experience that by keeping charcoal in the hog-pen, much of the disagreeable odor is averted, while the hogs appear to thrive better on less food in the improved atmosphere; it should be sprinkled about, some powdered and some in chunks. By putting a little in the horse-stable every day, all dampness is absorbed, and if, when removed daily from the stalls it is dried under shelter and then sown on the meadows, the increase of the crops will be wonderful. It may be used with equally good effect in cow-stables and poultry-houses, and is an excellent deodorizer and disinfectant in out-houses. The same writer asserts that a little dropped into each hill when potatoes are planted, will enhance both the size and the quality of the crop.

Curing Hay.—Hay is injured by being too much exposed to the rays of the sun. This causes the volatile aroma to escape, and also dissipates much of the coloring matter, as may be seen by the bleaching, and also by feeding to milch cows, from which the milk and butter will be light colored. Here comes in the value of the hay-cap, which protects the hay cock from the rays of the sun, and allows it to cure with the fine green color preserved. We write thus early that our readers may have their attention called to this important matter in season. It is one of those subjects that seem to require reiteration more than almost any other. The farmer is conservative of old habits. He has heard many say that ripe hay goes further—spends better. Yes, and brush would last still longer for fodder. The poorest fodder, undoubtedly, lasts the longest—but not the cattle.—Live Stock Journal.

Domestic Economy.

To Preserve Eggs.—Put a drop of grease of any kind on them, and they will keep for a long time.

Liquid Glue.—Take some good strong glue and mix it with full-proof whisky. Let it soak for three or four days and it will be ready for use.

Railroad Cake.—One cup of sugar, three tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of milk, three eggs, half a teaspoon of soda, one teaspoon of cream-of-tartar, one teacup of flour.

Graham Muffins.—Take one pint sweet milk, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoonsful brown sugar, one teaspoonful baking powder, one tablespoonful butter, not melted; mix and make as for gems.

Tea should never under any circumstances be boiled. Put the leaves in a well-warmed (scalded-out) tea-pot; pour fiercely boiling water directly over them, and drink the fresh infusion almost immediately.

A Laundry Secret.—Take two ounces of fine white gum arabic powder, put it into a pitcher and pour to it a pint or more of water, and then, having covered it, let it stand all night. In the morning pour it carefully from the dregs into a clean bottle and cork it and keep it for use. A tablespoonful of gum water stirred in a pint of starch made in the usual way will give the lawns, either white or printed, a look of newness when nothing else can restore them after they have been washed.—Watertown Banner.

Cream Tomato Soup.—To one quart of sweet milk, put one pint of cooked tomatoes. When it comes to a boil add one teaspoonful of soda and a half teacupful of rolled cracker, and season as for oysters. This soup is very nice.—American Grocer.

Pie Plant Pie.—Line your baking plate with [illegible], then peel your pie plant, cut it up in small slices, fill your plate, then sprinkle on a small handful of flour; your pie will need no water. Bake with two crusts; when done, take off the upper crust and sweeten to your taste, as for a green apple pie.

Strawberry Short-Cake.—Mix some dough precisely as you would for biscuit; bake in one cake, on a round tin. When it is baked, split it open and butter it well. Have your berries prepared with sugar, and cream also, if you like; pour them upon the lower crust of your cake and place the upper one over them.

BUNKER HILL.

The London Times on the American Struggle for Independence.

The following is the concluding portion of a remarkable editorial in the London Times on the Bunker Hill Centennial:

"There was war, bloodless though it was, at home as well as across the Atlantic. While the great majority of the British people, as represented in public opinion and in literature, was on the American side, the government and the majority in both houses of Parliament were absolutely proof against every consideration of humanity, prudence or common sense. They had become incapable of making an estimate on the proportion or applicability of means to an end. Commanding the sea, commanding a few soldiers, and an abundance of brave officers thirsting for distinction; commanding, still more, the fullest Exchequer, and the best credit in the world, with ten thousand profitable abuses at stake, they could only hound on the dogs of war, as many as they could get, to the most impossible, and the most unprofitable enterprises. They issued wordy proclamations which could answer no purpose but to provoke, they ordered the destruction of ports and towns of no strategic importance, and expeditions that could do no real good, and might, as the event proved, be attended with great loss and harm. On receiving the news of Bunker Hill the first thing they did was to rake Europe for mercenaries, and to send a regiment of cavalry to Boston, where there was nothing for horses to do, nothing for them to eat, hardly spare ground for them to stand upon; and where both soldiers and citizens were already on short commons of bad food. If any method is to be found in the madness of the British government, it is that they thought it just possible to frighten, bully, and cajole the Americans into submission. All the loud talk about the invincibility of the British soldier, and the inevitable cowardice of men accustomed only to take shots from behind trees at game or Red Indians, pointed to this. They dared the Americans to prove themselves men, and they had to accept the issue of that wager. The Americans proved themselves not only brave men, but sensible men, with a proper value for the lives they were ready to stake, and a determination to sell those lives dear. At the present hour, with the experience of a century, England would be not only disposed, but even compelled to rate more highly the scientific audacity shown on the American side than the bull-dog courage and obstinacy, which was all the British brought to the encounter. Elder people may remember to this day how often it has been said that Americans will only fight behind breastworks, and that they always shrank from the open. It became a tradition of office, derived from times when life was cheap, when men were in the market, and Ireland produced any number of native warriors. Since those days a few rude lessons that we have had to learn ourselves, besides operations on a grander area, in which we happily took no part, have taught us that in order even to destroy life, we have to learn first how to economize it, and that the only courage worthy of a rational being is that which includes the highest exercise of reason.

"Not only the Americans, however, but England, and the world, have far more substantial reasons for a grateful remembrance of the day. The gain to all sides is great and unquestionable. The greater part of the American contention in that war was equally shared by the British people. The principles of popular representation, and no taxation without it, self-government by popular municipal institutions, the independence of the judicial bench, and complete responsibility in the exercise of all power and patronage, were equally at stake on both sides of the Atlantic. No doubt the sense of this added to the recklessness and inhuman obstinacy with which the British government persisted in the struggle, long after every man at liberty to use his senses and reason on the question saw that it was hopeless. The politicians then at the head of affairs, and the people by whom they were surrounded, knew well that their own position depended on their successfully maintaining the principles of utter absolutism, both at home and in the Colonies, and that if those principles failed, their own fall followed. They fought for dear life against Chatham and Burke, and, as they well knew, against the true people of England. Meanwhile they had to do all the work, whether for peace or for war, by second-rate men. It is a significant fact that one of the witnesses and chief actors in the scene at Bunker Hill left on record his opinion at the time that the British Empire in America was then trembling in the balance, and himself lived to suffer the disastrous reverse which, two years after, left no doubt how that balance would finally rest. Fortunate was it for England that the question was fought so far from its shores. The triumph of American independence inaugurated a great but bloodless work at home in the shape of popular reforms, or, rather, in the fuller development of those democratic institutions by which it has been said the British throne is surrounded. Whatever the Americans have gained we have gained also, and now possess substantially all that they fought for."

There is one thing about a constantly idle man to his advantage—he never labors under a mistake.

All Sorts.

Rochester, N. Y., has 90,000.

Jetty B. Eads has had a Louisiana bayou named for him.

The orchards of this country are estimated to contain over 20,000,000 fruit trees.

Gen. Sibley, inventor of the Sibley tent, has entered the Japanese military service.

Peter Royal, of Lee, Va., has reached the 105th year of his age. A royal old age, truly.

When men publish their acts of charity they doubt the ability of the Lord to keep accounts.

Rev. William Morley Punshon, the eloquent English Methodist, will visit America again next year.

Anna Dickinson has been advised by six hundred and fifty-seven newspapers not to go on the stage.

It took 1,500 columns of the New York Tribune to contain all of the proceedings of the Beecher trial.

The peach crop of the Maryland and Delaware peninsula is estimated at from 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 baskets.

Something new was observed in New York the other day, in the shipment of 2,300 barrels of sugar for Turkey.

A New York paper has information that there is not one-half the demand for soda water that there was two or three years ago.

Mr. Jewell says that he is pleased with what he saw on his trip through the West. He thinks the postoffices are all well conducted.

The strikes of oil near Titusville within the past few weeks have been so numerous and so rich that a relapse into the oil fever is imminent.

Barney Andrews sat on a keg of powder in a Missouri grocery store and smoked a cigar for fun. The fun didn't commence until the powder exploded.

A mine of liquid sulphur has been recently discovered near Palermo, Sicily. The sulphur runs from the fissures in a rock at the rate of forty or fifty tons a day.

Sicily has 1,560 known brigands, besides a large number of chaps who skulk along the roads and esteem it a duty to kill an Englishman whenever they can.

The San Francisco Post says Mr. Bowers, of Australia, has left for San Francisco with two famous running horses, to complete for the $30,000 purse in October.

"Our inside contains to-day," says a Minnesota editor, "'Dyspepsia,' 'Crooked Whisky,' 'A Chinese Restaurant,' and various other interesting selected articles."

A Washington paper says: "John Langston, late President of the Howard University, at Washington, has accepted the lead of a land company, the object of which is to purchase lands in Virginia and sell them in lots to colored persons at cheap rates."

A millionaire of Granville, Wis., has recently made a will, in which he leaves $50,000 to any incorporated town or village in Wisconsin that will not tolerate a brass band. How pleasant it is to see a man devote his fortune to acts of pure philanthropy!

Hon. Asa Packer, of Mauch Chunk, is said to be worth $20,000,000. There are few larger fortunes in the country. He was a poor boy, and has accumulated this large estate by good management and industry, assisted, probably, by good luck.

The number of suicides in the German army amounted in 1874 to 193, which gives the proportion per 1,000 men of .52 annually. This proportion is, in the Austrian army, .85; in the French army, .51; in the Belgian army, .45, and in the English army, 38.

Mr. Reverdy Johnson has just closed his sixtieth year of active legal practice. In 1817 he was State Attorney of Maryland, and from that time up to the end of his term in the United States Senate, in 1869, was almost constantly the occupant of distinguished positions.

It has been generally supposed that the wings of a grasshopper are grown at a certain stage of its growth, but this theory is now shown to be erroneous. Mr. Knight, Mayor of St. Peter, Minn., has observed a great many grasshoppers' skins supposed to be dead hoppers. He caught a fully developed hopper without wings, and watched it. In a little time it crawled out of its skin, legs and all. The new hopper as "born" had a full set of wings, and was quite lively, but not enough to fly. Mr. Knight is of the opinion that after this change takes place one day is time enough to accustom it to its new existence and fit it for emigration.

Killed by Lightning.

On Saturday last, one of the most painful accidents happened in this vicinity, that it has been our duty to chronicle for a long time. Frank Ristine, who has been engaged with Dexter & Bro.'s in their mill for some time past, left the mill in the morning about 9 o'clock for the purpose of gathering flowers on the opposite side of the river. He was seen crossing the bridge, and that was the last that was known of his movements until he was found in the afternoon, under the bridge, dead. The facts as near as we could gather them from the Coroner and others are these: It is supposed that he went under the bridge to escape the storm of Saturday, and was leaning against one of the stone piers. The lightning struck the iron arches of the bridge and followed the arch to the pier, and from thence down the stone pier to the ground. In its passage to the ground the fluid struck Frank on the shoulder passing through his body and bursting his boots from his feet; it also passed through one arm, and opened the flesh the entire length. His clothes were all burnt off of him, and when found, it was almost impossible to recognize him. He was discovered by Mr. Starkweather's boys, who go over the bridge to water their horses. The Coroner removed the body to the Court House, and held an inquest, the verdict being "killed by lightning."—Clay Center, Kas., Dispatch.

Aubrun Courier.

AUBURN INDIANA, JULY, 22, 1875.

A white man wanted to lodge at a colored hotel at Washington and he was very properly refused. He has entered suit for damages. Let him be arrested as a vagabond, and sent where grub is free. A white man has no more right in a colored man's hotel than a colored man in a white man's hotel.

The Washington Sunday Herald wants to know why we can't have a rifle club at the National Capitol. From the way the public money mysteriously disappears, most people could easily be led to believe that such an organization had existed at Washington for the past ten or fifteen years, and that their operations were principally in and about the Treasury.—S. B. Union.

Prof. Donalson, the man who has been making balloon ascensions, in connection with Barnum's Hipodrome made his last ascension it is feared, last Thursday at Chicago, since which time he has not been heard from. No tidings whatever has been received from the missing balloon, and it is very generally admitted now that its living freight has perished in Lake Michigan during the storm which prevailed soon after the ascension was made. A reporter named Grimwood, went with him.

The trial of Parker, formerly Treasurer of South Carolina, which is now going on in Columbia, is one of great interest. Parker began life as a barkeeper in Haverhill, Massachusetts. He went to South Carolina some years ago, and combining with R. K. Scott, D. H. Chamberlain and H. H. Kimpton, they procured themselves to be chosen respectively Treasurer, Governor, Attorney-General, and Financial Agents of the State. Then they took possession of the finances of the State, and had bills passed by a mob of ignorant negroes, half of whom could not write their own names. By means of these bills they were enabled to come to this city and sell and hypothecate millions of South Carolina bonds.

LOSING OHIO.

We beg leave to utter a gentle and cogent remonstrance against the course of several sterling Democrat papers, which appear to give up Ohio as lost under the so-called inflation platform and say it is better to loose that State than win her on such a platform.—With all deference, we submit that even the question of "a sound currency" (if it be involved,) is far subordinate to those vital questions of the rights of the States—the liberties of the people—a sound government—administered in subordination to fundamental law. Give us these, and we will submit very cheerfully a little longer to a greenback currency seventeen per cent, below par.

We can compute the money loss in the one case, but if there be any price current quotations of the value of the fundamental securities of personal freedom—what a State loses in actual cash by being ruled in the Washington Cabinet or by an Attorney General—what a man loses in money value by being subject to be dragged from his bed at night by military order and lodged in a distant dungeon—what is the actual difference in cash value between trial by jury under the forms of law and trial before a drum-head courtmartial—what is the market quotasion of the habeas corpus and for precisely what price a man should be willing to sell it out all the munities of Republican freedom—we say, we have never seen any regular market quotations for these things, but until these papers furnish them, and we see to our satisfaction that they are not worth seventeen cents on the dollar, we shall be disposed to claim that the loss of Ohio in the defence of those fundamential rights and privileges of freedom is a far greater evil than the discount on greenbacks.

It is an easy thing to lose Ohio, even without the help of outside Democratic papers. It will take but a small amount of Democratic defection to secure that result. And if, they say, there is a good deal of it already, we submit that they may feel themselves honorably released from adding to it by gross caricatures of the so-called "rag money platform." Let Ohio alone. She has a right to make her platform, but big as she is, she cannot commit the National Democracy to any financial policy inconsistent with sound principles and wise counsels.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the shoulders, cough, chills, dizziness, sour stomache, bad taste in the mouth, billious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which Simons' Liver Regulator is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

Simmons' Liver Regulator,

OR MEDICINE,

Is harmless,
Is no drastic violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage
It is a faultless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

Price $1. Sold by all Druggists. April 22, 1875

For sale at F. R. DAVENPORT'S drug store.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R.

Condensed time card, May 23, 1875.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No 5 Mail.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex
Pittsburgh	2 00 a.m	....	8 00 a.m	2 00 p.m
Rochester	3 09 "	....	9 22 "	3 13 "
Alliance	5 52 "	....	12 30 p.m	5 54 "
Orrville	7 10 "	....	2 25 "	7 31 "
Mansfield	9 07 "	....	4 40 "	9 28 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 40 "	....	5 15 "	9 55 "
" lv.	10 00 "	4 50 a.m	5 35 p.m	11 00 "
Forest	11 18 "	6 30 "	7 27 "	11 24 "
Lima	12 20 p.m	8 10 "	8 45 "	12 27 a.m
Ft. Wayne	2 40 "	11 20 "	11 35 "	2 35 "
Plymouth	4 40 "	2 25 p.m	2 25 a.m	5 25 "
Chicago	7 50 "	6 30 "	6 30 "	8 50 "

GOING EAST.

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex.	No. 8 Mail.
Chicago	9 20 p.m	9 20 a.m	5 35 p.m	5 15 a.m
Plymouth	12 50 a.m	12 15 p.m	9 05 "	9 20 "
Ft. Wayne	3 50 "	2 45 "	11 46 "	12 20 p.m
Lima	6 15 "	4 35 "	1 56 a.m	2 40 "
Forest	7 36 "	5 34 "	3 01 "	3 56 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 20 "	6 55 "	4 40 "	5 35 "
" lv.	9 40 "	7 15 "	4 50 "	....
Mansfield	10 20 "	7 43 "	5 20 "	....
Orrville	12 45 p.m	9 33 "	7 10 "	....
Alliance	3 06 "	11 10 "	9 00 "	....
Rochester	5 40 "	1 07 a.m	11 13 "	....
Chicago	6 55 "	2 10 "	12 15 p.m	....

No. 1, daily, except Monday, Nos. 2, 4, 5, 7 and 8, daily except Sunday, Nos. 3 and 6 daily.

F. R. MYERS,
General Pass. and Ticket Agent.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, DeKalb Conny. } Sct:
In the DeKalb Circuit Court, Sept. term, 1875.
Thomas Watkins, vs. Mary Watkins. } Complaint for divorce.

Now comes the plaintiff, by McBride & Morlan his attorneys and files his complaint herein together with an affidavit that said Defendant, Mary Watkins, is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless she be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb Circuit court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in her absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 6th day of July, 1875.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

Sure to Please the Ladies,

CATLIN'S SAD IRON HEATER!

PRICE $1.25.

SAVES one half the fuel, and makes comfort for Ladies while ironing in warm weather. Agents wanted everywhere. Send stamp for terms.—Address, VAN ALSTINE & CATLIN, Sharon, Wis.

THE PHŒNIX TILE MACHINE.

It is well adapted to the wants of Tile Makers. It is usually driven by the power of two horses. It delivers tile at the two opposite ends of the machine. It may be converted into a single delivery machine. It has a simple and ready means of taking up the wear on the plunge head and sides of the chamber, thus correcting all leakage of mud, and adding years of service to the machine. It makes from 300 to 700 rods of tile per day. It is fully warranted. It may readily be adapted to Steam Power. The dies are finished with much care. Doors and Trucks at moderate prices.

SEND FOR CIRCULARS.

CHANDLER & TAYLOR
Patentees and Manufacturers,
Indianapolis, Ind.

THE AUBURN

Marble Works!

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have permanently located in Auburn, and are now prepared to attend to all orders for which they are prepared to turn out in a superio manner at reasonable rates. Works west the Bakery.

Monuments, Tomb-Stones, &c.,

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

BARGAINS!

AT THE Great Clearing out Sales

OF

Miller & Casebeer,

The Leading Merchants of Auburn, Ind.

Fruit House Prices.

Now for the 4th of July! It Will Soon be Here

And for the occasion we have laid in a large supply of Fireworks, Torpedoes, Fire Crackers and everything you can think of, to celebrate the day. All amounts of $5 we discount 10 per cent; of $25 and upwards we discount 20 per cent. We make this inducement to private parties who form clubs to celebrate; also to those who buy to call again. This is only on Fireworks and Flags; the Fire-crackers and Torpedoes are net prices. CALL AND SEE US, you Merchants, and others from a distance. and we will

Beat Chicago and Cincinnati,

AT LEAST 10 PER CENT ON PRICES.

Fire Crackers, per box,	$2 50	Torpedoes, per thousand.	25c
Per pack	07	Per pack	04

Then we have Serpents, Flags, Roman Candles, Tri-colored, Bengal Lights, Silver Shower Candles, Flying Pigeons, Sky Rockets, Flower Potts, Grasshoppers, Blue lights, Triangles, Radiators, Pin Wheels, Scroll Wheels, Trioiettes, Floral Bumbshells, Ladies' Union Fans, Percussion Pistols, American Flags, Balloons, Pulling Crackers, Chinese Bamboo Lanterns, Chinese Balloons, Chinese Lanterns and so forth.

TEAS! TEAS! TEAS!

No Middle Men with us, either on Teas, Coffees, or Sugars. With all the complaints of dull times, our Tea trade has doubled within the last three years. No secret in it—simply purchasing of the Importers and selling direct to the consumer, thereby saving to our customers the profits of the Speculator, Jobber and Wholesale Grocer, which is at least 10 to 20 cents on each dollar,

Young Hyson,	30, 60, 80, $1,00, best 1 10	Oolong	30, 60; best 95
Gunpowder	60, 1 00; best 1 10	Uncolored Japan,	50, 60; best 90
Imperial,	60, 90; best

SUGARS! SUGARS!

WHITE, YELLOW AND BROWN.

Coffee A,	10½c	N. O. Genuine,	9c
Coffee B,	9½c	Good Brown	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	20 and 27c
Second Best Rio,	23c

CANNED FRUITS.

At Prices never Before Heard of.

Peaches per can		Damsons per can,
Blackberries per can,	20c	Green Gages per can,	20c
Tomatoes per can,	10 c	Strawberries per can,
Corn per can,	10 c

Wines and Liquors.

Still a few Gallons Left.

Sherry and Port per gallon,	$1 50 and 2 00	Old '76 for medical use	$3 00
Sherry and Port in bottles,		Port Wine per gallon	1 50 and 2 00
California Angelica and Sweet Muscatelle, per gallon,	1 50 2 00	California wine per gallon	1 50 and 2 00
New England Rum, per gallon,	best 2 00	Sweet Cawba Wine per gallon	1 25
Holland Gin, Old Tom,	1 50 and 2 50

SYRUPS, SYRUPS.

Best Sugar, Loaf, per gallon,		Extra Golden per gallon,	60
White Dripps, per gallon,	85 $1 00	New Orleans per gallon,	70c to 1 00
Silver Dripps per gallon,	75	Cuba Molasses per gallon,

CANDIES! CANDIES!

Stick, French and American.

Best Stick per pound	18c	Bon Bons	30c
French Mixed	25c	Japanese Cocoa Nut	25c

☞ We have a hundred other different kinds of candies ☜

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Fish and Neats Foot Oil per gallon,	1 00	Head Light Oil per gallon,	25c
Coal and Rose Oil per gallon,	20c	Machine Oil per gallon,	50c

FISH, FISH, FISH, FISH,

A Large Assortment of both Salt Water and Lake Fish

No. 1 White Fish ½ bbl
No. 2 do do	6 00	No. 1 Mackeral in Kits
No. 1 Lake Shad ½ bbl.	5 00	No. 1 Famils in Kits	1 25
No. 1 Pickeral ½ bbl		George's Bank Codfish per pound
White Fish in kits No. 1		Extra Mess Mackeral " "	1 56 and 1 75
White Fish family No. 3	1 25	Herrings each	1c
	1 00	Pickeral and Trout ½ bbl	5 50

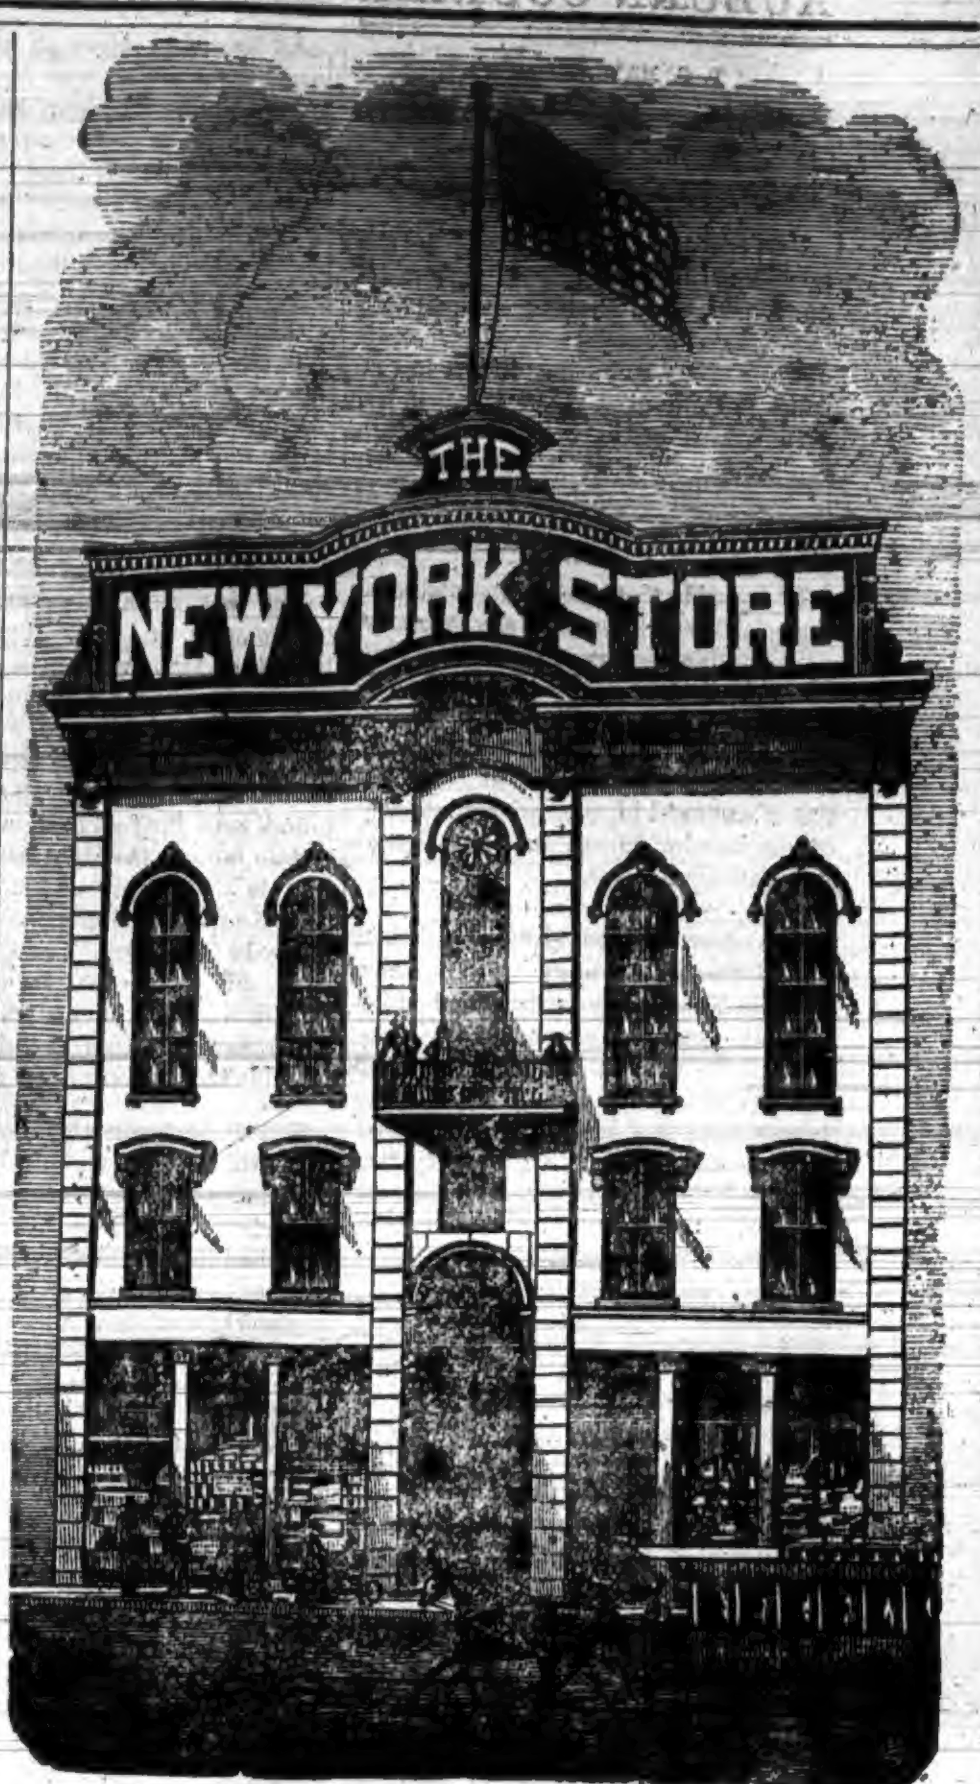
TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

The duty of 4c cents per pound goes on tobacco March 1st. This thing we anticipated, and in consequence we have a large stock ahead, so that our customers, as long as the present stock lasts, shall have goods at the old price.

Choice Plug, Five Bros. per pound		Fine Cut	60, 80, and 90c
Good Richmond Navy per pound	50c	Shorts	40c
Ladies Twist, very fine	65c	Smoking	35c best 40c
Long John Tape	50c

25 Cents on the Dollar Saved at

THE FRUIT HOUSE



We Keep Our Trade

ACTIVE & LIVELY

Notwithstand the general complaint of dull trade and hard times, from the fact that we are daily in receipt of fresh, attractive goods, which we offer to our patrons at as low prices as are named by any house in the western country.

EXAMINE

Bargains in Suit Department, Bargains in Lace Shawls, Bargains in Lace Jackets

Bargains in Black Grenadines, Bargains in Stripe Grenadines, Bargains in Summer Silks

Bargains in Black Silks, Bargains in Thin Dress Goods, Bargains in Suiting Goods.

New Parasols,

New Kid Gloves. New Embroideries. New Fancy Ties. New White Goods. New Hosiery. New Fancy Goods. New Hamberg Net. New Rufflings, Etc., Etc.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.

Complete in every respect, and prices much lower than they will probably be after the first of August.

ROOT & COMPANY,
46 and 48 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne,
☞ Opposite the Court House. ☜

STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1839.

GEO. DeWALD & CO.

Dry Goods & Notions.

Black Silks & Fine Dress Goods a Specialty.

We can make it to the interests of every person to trade with us. We buy for CASH and sell for CASH, keep the best goods, and sell at one price

ALSO AGENTS FOR THE

"Domestic" PATERNS.

The Best in Use. Send for a Catalogue.

Geo DeWald & Co
No. 1 Columbia Street
Fort Wayne Ind.,

FIRE! FIRE!
DOWN BELOW
GET YOUR THIN

CLOTHING

While our Stock IS COMPLETE!

Summer Pants	50c
" Coats	75c
" Suits	$1.25

All other goods as low

We have busted the "High Priced Clothing Ring, and you all know it.

SAM, PETE & MAX
Star Clothing House
5 Main & 33 Cal.-Sts.,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

A NEW PLACE

TO GET A

Nobby Suit!

TOM WILLIAMS,

The champion cutter of Fort Wayne formerly with Mr. E. Woodward, is now going it alone, and can be found at No. 21 Calhoun street with Mr. A. Foster, where he will be pleased to see all his old friends, and a list of new ones. If you want a nice nobby suit made to fit you, you will find him the man.

THE FIRST

National Bank

OF AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital Stock $50,000

Deposits received on time or subject to check on sight

Exchange, available in the United States, Canada and Europe, furnished.

Checks and drafts, payable in any part of th U. S. cashed at our counter, or collected and proceeds accounted for to holder.

Colleciions made and promptly remitted for on day of payment.

Loans negotiated and business papers discounted

Government and other securities bought and sold.

Directors:

J. R. LANNING, NICHOLAS ENSLY,
O. C. CLARK, WM. McINTYRE,
GEO. HAZZARD.

Officers:

JOSEPH R. LANNING, Prest.
JAS. V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

April 29, 1875.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Geo Ficker has the brick work on the new jail.

Reapers and mowers seem to be good sale here.

Jno. Robinson's circus is all the talk now-a-days.

Joe Bender is manager of the billiard hall on 8th-st.

Harvesters are all busy, cutting the "golden grain."

The boys bet on the game are "seven out"—some on 'em.

Jno Hebel wants about ten feet more of that sidewalk.

The weather has been wet and cold for a few days past.

The sidewalks are in a bad condition about the city.

Vegtables are plenty in the market, of every description.

Some of our exchanges complain of the wheat crop.

Several of our "old sports" left last Tuesday for a fish.

Mr. Fosdick, pitcher for the Butler club, has but few equeals.

Why not play ball after supper, and give all a chance? Rise up, ye boss.

Linen Coats and straw hats to be sold at cost at T. B. Totten's, on Main-street north of Abright's.

Miller & Casebeer, monopolising the dry goods, grocery and notion trade in this place.

Now the boys draw the linen duster around their abdomen, and stroll. It's style, you know.

Thos. Scott fell from a building, the other day, but fortunately was not hurt much.

A number of our citizens went to Butler last Monday to witness the game of base ball played there.

Alex. Hall has just completed a nice residence, just west of the old house now owned by Mr. Moss.

The Grangers will hold a pic-nic at North Manchester, Aug. 25th, with a general invitation to everybody.

Wetz & Long's billiard parlors have closed, and will not open until the tables are repaired.

The foundation for the new school house is completed and the brick work will be up in a few days.

Clerk-elect Moss has purchased the Hall property in the south end of town and is making extensive improvements thereon.

We were pleased to receive a call, last Tuesday from Mr. J. H. Allen and Mr. Backus, despatchers at Garret City.

Why dont Garret city have a balloon ascension or something to keep its name agoing. We seldom here of this country any more.

We have on hand a large and splendid stock of all kins of Justices' Blanks.—Those wishing them should remember this.

A match game of ball will be played between the Auburn and Albion boys to-day, at their grounds near the Eel River depot.

WANTED.

Five Hundred Cords of Elm Stave Bolts, is wanted immediately at the Stave Factory of Beugnot & Co., for which they will pay the cash. tf.

The ball ground is crowded every evening, with boys from one-year-old and upward.

A correspondent of the Mount Vernon "Democrat" predicts that the present wheat crop in Southern Indiana, will not average eight bushels to the acre.

Everybody is waiting for John Robinson's Great Worlds Exposition. It will be here July 27th, and a better one don't travel this country. We speak of what we know.

At Hogan's mill, Porter county, a boy named Unger, pitch-forked a son of Peter Moren in the thigh—without any just cause or provocation. Wound not dangerous.

We are obliged to members of our hunting and fishing club for for a fine lot of woodcock. They visited Hamilton lake last Tuesday and brought home some nice fish.

Moulton is represented as declaring that either he or Beecher will, in less than a year, be in a felon's cell for perjury. Well, as one of the jury of the country, we here with cast our ballot for Frank B.

The Laport "Herald" says: South Bend has a shooting-club. They won't have another tournament until they go to Michigan City and use the broadside of the penitentiary for a target.

Joe Rainier and Hank Mader had a set-to, in front of Snyder's hardware.—It was a brief affair. Joe basted him one, and then set down in the stair way—with a little of Hank's assistance.

The closing exercises of Miss Jossie Rush's school took place Friday. A. J. Little delivered the valedictory address, and several young ladies, from the city, amused the crowd by singing beautiful songs.

There is a powerful sight of building going up all over the city, and the most of them are frame. The progress of Auburn, although rapid, is of a solid substantial character, and her future is flattering.

"Miss Gilbert's Career, is the name of a new book by Dr. Holland, and a very interesting one it will be found. It shows how to write a novel, and what authors have in store for them and many other things in the same story. For sale at Houser's.

We think Mr. Jas. Barclay's new house is about the neatest, most stylish, in town. It is full two stories and this is a decided improvement over the majority of houses built here. Its external appearance is atractive, and shows good workmanship.

Our friend Ab. Dawson, and George J. E. Mayer, of Fort Wayne, held a shooting match in the Clinton street Gallery, last Tuesday, and little DeKalb flaxed Allen. A friend bet 25c on DeKalb, and George held the stakes, which made up the deficiency on what was lacking to pay for the games lost.

Mr. J. D. Williamson, of Defiance, O, has purchased the grocery of Hare Bros. and intends adding $3,000 more to the present stock. Mr. W. comes well recommended, and with so large an establishment ought certainly to do a good business.

Rev. E. A. Russell, Superintendant of the general Sabbath School work, of the Baptist, in the State of Ind, is expected to preach in the Baptest church of this place next Sabbath morning, and address the Sabbath School in the evening All are invited to attend.

South Bend girls have bothered the Union Hose boys for locks of their hair until one short-haired member has disbursed no less than three wigs and sheared two buffalo robes for the benefit of the fair sex. Remember about Samson boys, before it be to late.—[Niles Democrat.

The storm, last Friday night, did great damage to the wheat and oats crop, beating it down until very little is standing. The wheat crop is two weeks late, and has not filled out as was expected, and the weeds in many places are higher than the wheat.

Our accomplished and good looking friend, Montgomery Hamilton Esq., of Fort Wayne, visited our sanctom last Tuesday, but unfortunately for us we were abscent. The next time he comes to Auburn, and we go to Fort Wayne on the same day, we want to know it and we'll stay at home.

The Radical party is certainly afflicted. What with the Ohio platform; prohibition; the terrible onslaught of the Catholic church, and the southern outrage mail stopped for want of material for manufacturing lies, it is in an awful fix. We are afraid the poor, miserable cuss is on his last legs, and that the Devil will foreclose his mortgage.

Our enterprising clothiers, Messrs Eaton & Jackman are about to put in a fine stock of clothing at Garret. They will keep a good assortment of ready made clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods, and will make suits to order.—Mr. Jackman is now east purchasing an entire new stock for this point, and the people there may expect a fine selection.

The Base Ball game between the Auburn and Butler boys resulted in favor of the latter. If our boys expect to play ball they should pick out the best players and then practice every evening.—By doing this we can keep our former reputation in this popular game. The score stood as follows:

Butler	39
Auburn	19

A fellow by the name of Dilley came very near being crushed at the gravel pit east on the Baltimore road last week He jumped in front of some cars which were being backed down to couple on another, and fell down. He endeavored to rise up to get out of the way when the car struck him in a stooping position and threw him between the tracks and between two ties, the only place along the track where his body could be thus secreted. A wheel passed over one foot but he pulled it away after that and nine cars passed over him.

Mr. Shaner, agent at the Eel River Depot, very justly complains about a number of boys who are in the habit of climbing on trains there, while in motion. There is going to be some reckless son of a woman, mashed into a pulp some of these days, unless a stop is put to this practice, and some home will be made desolate by the event. Mr. Shaner asks the parents of these children to assist him in keeping them away from this threatened danger. If any one is hurt in the light of this warning, parents of the victem can only blame themselves.

Hon. Schuler Colfax, in remitting his subscription to the Mishawaka Enterprise, says: "My long experience as a newspaper publisher taught me how important it was for all subscribers to keep in good standing by paying in advance. I always read your paper with interest, but all papers are more interesting when the reader feels that it is his paper, indeed, and not the publisher's."

Fellow travelers, read that, and weep over fallen Babylon. We suggest, mind its not a dun, we suggest that a few of our subscribers who are now in arrears pay up and follow the above advice.

We were in the Auburn Fine Art Gallery yesterday morning, in time to see a fine lot of pictures just copied and finished, and ready to send out. Old ambrotypes and pictures taken years ago had been brought in to be copied, and yet Messrs. Gordon & Roth bring them out with such fidelity to the original that they never fail to please. A lady from Ohio told us a few days that we had the best artists in this business she had ever seen, and she had been around some and mentioned Cleveland and other points, but none equalled our town in good pictures. A great many people don't know this and they should call and see the work done at this establishment and satisfy themselves.

The Fort Wayne "Courier" says: The St. Louis "Republican" is breaking water on the currency question, and says the currency question should not be lugged into the Presidential campaign. We had given last week in the Muncie "Democrat" the credit of that inspiration to the Indianapolis "Sentinel" We thought it strange when we found it there, and couldn't for the life of us make out how the College Graduate got the idea into his head. It seems it was the wall of the St Louis "Republican," and our College genius took it up. Go on, ye purchased tools of the Gold Mongers, but you will find that a few dollars will be but a paltry sum to pay for the loss of honor, manhood and principles.

General. Sherman is putting himself forward a good deal lately, and assuming much more than his station, talents and want of veracity requires. His talks are as offensive as is his want of good manners, and his egotism is getting disgusting! Yet this is the basis of an article in the "Gazette" the Southern people propose to run this country to perdition Now the war has been over a good while, and it is a very stale and hackneyed subject, and notwithstanding the "Gazette" dotes on ancient news still it might give us a rest. Suppose our cotemporary pitches into the Catholic Church. That is an old time institution and the fiat has gone forth from the Radical leaders, that a religious crusade on their part, is and will be in their programe for the Presidential campaign

The Kokomo "Democrat" of the 1st says, that on the 25th ult., 160 masked men, under cover of darkness, overpowered the jailor of Greenfield, Hancock Co., secured the keys and took Wm. Keemer, colored, from the jail and hanged him in the Floral Hall, of the Greenfield Fair Grounds, until he was dead. From the account, which is lengthy, it appears that Keemer entered the house of Mrs. Vaughan, while she was lying very sick in bed, and brutally outraged her person. Her little child hearing her loud and frantic screams, ran to the field and informed his father of what was transpiring at the house. The father hastened home only to find his wife in a bleeding and helpless condition. Infuriated to madness, he seized his revolver and pursued the black-hearted villian, but to no purpose. He was, however, finally captured and lodged in the county jail above mentioned, from whence he was taken and hanged. It is to be hoped that this will be the last instance of mob violence imprinting its red letters upon the escutcheon of our noble State.

Mr. Eaton returned, the other day, from an extended visit to Tiffin, O.

Base Ball Meeting.

A meeting was held last Tuesday eve. for the purpose of organizing a regular base ball club. Quite a good number were present, but not half as many as should have been. The meeting was called by T. H. Sprott, and the following officers elected:

President—T. C. Mays,
Secretary—H. C. Peterson,
Treasurer—Howard Griswold.

A committee was then appointed, Messrs. Peterson, Mays and Yandes, to select the nine, and also a captain, which are as follows:

Tom. Scott, Captain; T. C. Ford, T. H. Sprott, G. C. Ralston, Wm. Lyttle, Wm. Baldock, H. Brandon, Jack Lyttle, David Maurice. Substitutes, J. J. Van Aukep, L. Wright.

We could have a good nine if every body would take an interest in the matter, and we see no reason why we can not keep pace with our neighbors in this particular.

The Immortal J. N.

Empires rise and fall, Republics fade away, creeds perish, great men sink into oblivion, stars are blotted from the heavens, and time changes all things, but it does seem at this writing that J. N. the Immortal, and his imperishable principles would never let up. He is still tearing away the veil of prejudice from benighted minds, and blessing poor humanity with the glorious light of unadulterated truth. On Tuesday evening, August 3d., this modest philosopher and modern Socrates will proclaim his immaculate doctrines, raise the veil of truth, and lift the presure of prejudice from the minds of all within the sound of his voice. Though roses may not be strew in his pathway and laurels decorate his brow, yet may he never lack the nerve to accomplish his mighty mission.

Junction Restaurant.

Our enterprising friend Jas. Smith, having permanently located at Auburn Junction and opened out a first-class restaurant, is doing a fine business in the way of supplying the traveling public with good lunches and eatables of every description. Having license he also keeps a good article of lager beer, and permits no loafing or drunkenness around his establishment. By the running of trains travelers have to wait sometimes from one to two hours at the Junction for the one they want, and as it is further than they care about walking to town, the restaurant is resorted to thus supplying a demand that is bound to grow and increase in proportion to the growth of the railroad business. Mr. Smith is a clever, accommodating gentleman, and treats his customers with great politeness expecting the same in return "Somebody," has sent us the following poetical gem, though the real name of the author does not appear. Its against our rule to publish anonymous communications, but as poetry is generally void of personal reflections there is not much responsibility to assume in the matter. It's naughty, we know, to do so, but then, you know, its nice and we can't resist it.

WHY.

BY SOMEBODY.

O, my darling, do you know,
Why it is I love you so—
When you're bound by other ties,
Neither of us dare despise?

Naught can ripen but to fall,
Loves the heritage of all;
Fond and foolish, seems to me,
Better than too wise to be.

Spite of all their power to harm,
Things forbidden have a charm;
Stolen kisses are the sweetest,
Stolen love by far completest.

I can hear the prudes, appalled,
Cry, "such love is naughty called."
Who is fond cannot be wise;
"If it's naughty it is nice."

Have I made my meaning clear,
Can you solve the mystery, dear?
You're forbidden—now you know
That is why I love you so.

JUSTICES' BLANKS.

We have just printed a fine lot of Justices' Blanks, as follows, for sale at this office:

Summons,
Subpoenas,
Garnishees,
Attachments,
Executions, &c.

The farmer is a moderate, conservative, but very determined individual. He is patriotic. He is the slowest of men to remember the war is over. He bears grievances long and uncomplainingly. He has been the chief sufferer from the financial policy of the Republican party. God has helped him out by showering on him abundant crops. But in some section this year Divine beneficence will be unequal to the task of counteracting vicious human legislation, for in some places crops will be short. With the most bountiful help of nature the farmer has for a few years past barely been able to make the last day of December "right dress" with the first day of January. He can not go on State street, in Boston, or Wall street in New York, or third street, in Cincinnati, and borrow a dollar, for the Lord has arranged to send him returns but once a year, and the banker has arranged to get returns about six times a year. The farmer gets three per cent: the National banker about six times three per cent. When the farmer ascertains what's the matter with him he will cease voting for the Republican contraction.—[Cincinnati Enquirer.

BUTLER ITEMS.

THE social at Mr. Snively's, was a success.

SLEVELESS jackets, were all the rage on the base ball ground Monday.

Mrs. Geo. Durkey is doing a lively business in dressmaking.

OUR new drug store man, one door North of Hensler, is, doing a fine business.

PEACHES are scarce in this place, we think it is on account of the grasshoppers in Kansas.

SEABIGHT, is doing a fine business in the hard ware line, and invites the public to call and see his stock.

Miss Clara Sargent, started Tuesday for Chicago, to join her husband, where they expect to reside.

MOSES STIEFEL, returned last Saturday from Appleton, Wisconsin, where he had been for several days on business.

A WEEK ago Wednesday eve, the town was serenaded by the band. We are glad they have got together for the purpose of organizing again.

WE sympathise with our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Endly, who grieve and mourn over the loss of their cat. Joe. says she was one of the best cats it town.

WE learn that Pro. Bowersox, is to take his old stand in the Butler school. We are glad to hear of it, as he is liked here as a teacher, and well respected as a citizen.

MANY of our citizens are making preparations to attend the excursion, to Put-in Bay. It is to be hoped that they will come back looking better than they did from Jackson.

MOTHERS in Butler, are scolding about their little boys playing base ball, and not attending to their books; and we presume wives in Auburn are scolding their husbands for playing base ball, and not attending to their business; but with all the scolding the little boys beat

I WOULD say to the citizens, that a few nails driven into their sidewalks, would be a great improvement to the town. Also a few latches on the gates, that are now swinging outward on the walk would make the town more presentable to strangers.

THE case of the State vs. Wesley Zigler, on a charge of venue from Justice Campbell to Justice Swartz, for carying concealed weapons, was decided in favor of the defendant, and he was acquited, not, however, until it had been well looked up, and sharpely managed by the attorneys, on both sides, Pinchin for the defendant, and Franks & Clark for the State.

ON last Tuesday, there was considerable excitement created in town, on account of a fellow from the country, loading up his wagon with articles of merchandise from different stores in town and, not until he was waited on by an officer with a warrant did he seem to understand that it was not a legitimate way of doing business, and on account of his former reputation for honesty, and having a little to much beer, the matter was prosecuted, no further, the goods were all returned to the proper owners,

KATE

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF AUBURN, IN THE STATE OF IND. AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS, JUNE 30th. 1875.

RESOURCES:

Loans and discounts	$51,555,07
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation	30,000,00
Due from approved reserve agents	5,867,50
Due from other National Banks	617,90
Real estate, furniture and fixtures	3,500,00
Current expenses and taxes paid	992,64
Premiums paid	4,500,00
Fractional currency, including nickels,	394,94
Legal-tender notes	5315,00
Total	$102,743.05

LIABILITIES:

Capital stock paid in	$42,500.00
Other undivided profits	1,386,82
National Bank notes outstanding	27,000,00
Individual deposits subject to check	16,236,20
Demand certificates of deposit	15,620,03
Total	$102,743,05

STATE OF INDIANA, } ss
DeKalb County }

I, Jas V. Hazzard, cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

JAS. V. HAZZARD, CASHIER.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 7th day of July, 1875. Attest:

GUY PLUM, N. P.

Geo. Hazzard,
J. R. Lanning, } Directors.
W. McIntyre,

STATE OF INDIANA } ss.
DeKalb County.
John O. Gilkerson } Before John S. Barns vs } Justice of the peace
Dollas Hooper } for Richland tp.,

It appearing by the return of the writ herein that said defendant is not found, and it further appearing by affidavit filed herein that said defendant is a non-resident of the State of Indiana, and a writ of garnishment in said case having been served on the Baltimore Pittsburg & Chicago Railway Company Indiana Division.

Notice is therefore given to said defendant to appear to said action at my office on the 16th day of August, 1875, at 10 o'clock A. M. and answer or demur to the complaint herein, or the same will be detemined in his abscence.

JOHN S. BARNS, J. P.

NOTICE TO HEIRS OF PETITION TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

State of Indiana } ss
DeKalb Co. }

Notice is hereby given that George Barney, administrator of the estate of John Milliman, deceased, has filed his petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, his personal being insufficient to pay his debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of the circuit court of said county.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, } In the DeKalb circuit
DeKalb County } court Sept. term, 1875
Joseph Sewell }
vs. } Complaint No. 143.
Andrew Kepler }

Now comes the plaintiff by Rose & Hartman his attorneys, and files his complaint herein together with an affidavid that said defendant, Andrew Kepler is not a residence of the state of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb circuit court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September a. d. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness, My name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 13th day of July, 1875.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

GILES' LINIMENT
IODIDE OF AMMONIA

Cures Neuralgia, Face Ache, Rheumatism, Gout, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Sore Throat, Erysipelas, Bruises or wounds of every kind in man or animal.

Giles' Liniment Iodide of Ammonia has been used by myself and family with satisfactory results. I recommend it to all persons suffering with pains or aches of any kind. It surpasses anything I have ever used. G. H. MILLER, President, Real Estate & Savings Bank, Baltimore, Md.

Sold by all Druggists. Depot No. 451 Sixth Avenue, New York. Only 50c and $1 per bottle.
Sold by J. H. [illegible]

No. 35 4w

NOTICE TO HEIRS OF PETITION TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

State of Indiana, } ss
DeKalb Co., }

Notice is hereby given that George Barney, administrator of the estate of Asa Hall, deceased, has filed his petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, his personal being insufficient to pay his debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of the circuit court of said county.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, } In attachment before J. P.
DeKalb County } Widney J. P. of Union tp
Charles Lockwood }
versus }
Richard Cantling }

It appearing by the return on the writ issued herein that said defendant is not found.

Notice is therefore given to said defendant to appear to said action at my office on the 4th day of September 1875 at ten o'clock a. m.

J. P. WIDNEY, J. P.

Dated July 8, 1875.

Penfield & Moody, attys for plff.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, September Term, 1875.

George Hensler,
versus
Isaac M. Johnson,
David Fay,
John W. Boyle,
Albert J. Mason, } Complaint No. 140
Samuel Grenamyer,
James E. Rose,
Edward W Fosdick
and John Sprott

Now comes the the plaintiff, by P. V. Hoffman his attorney, and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant John Sprott is not a resident of the Statet of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb County Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court house in Auburn. In said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 8th day of July, 1875.

J. R. LANNING Clerk.

July 15

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September term, 1875.

George Shutt,
versus
David W. Comer,
Hiram P. Housel, } Complaint No: 108.
Mrs Hiram P. Housel
Alonzo Lockwood.

Now comes the plaintiff, by Penfield & Moody, his attorneys and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that the residence of said defendant, David W. Comer is unknown.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb circuit court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of September a. d. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness. My name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 13th day of July 1875.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

July 15

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September Term 1875.

Cyrus S. Stoy
John W. Boyle
versus
Isaac M. Johnson
Samuel Grenamyer } Complaint No. 138.
Albert W. Mason
James E. Rose
Edward W Fosdick
and John Sprott.

Now comes the plaintiff, by Rose & Hoffman, their attorneys and files their complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant John Sprott is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, given, said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th, Monday of September A. D. 1875, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness my name and the seal of said Court affixed at Auburn, this 8th day of July, 1875.

J. R. LANNING Clerk.

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County. }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September term, 1875.

Cyrus S. Stoy,
versus
John Burrell,
Winefred Burrell,
John W. Boyle,
Samuel Grenamyer, } Complaint No: 139.
Albert J. Mason,
James E. Rose,
Ed. W. Fosdick,
and John Sprott.

Now comes the plaintiff, by P. V. Hoffman, his attorney, and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit that said defendant John Sprott is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendant that unless he be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb circuit court to be holden on the 4th Monday of September a. d. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness, My name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 8th day of July 1875.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

July 15

NOTICE.

STATE OF INDIANA, } Sct.
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, September term, 1875.

Orpha Blake
versus
Eliza Franklin
Reuel Franklin } Complaint No. 90
Laura Franklin,
Joseph W. Snell,
Fred. L. Andrews

Now comes the plaintiff, by Penfield & Moody her attorneys, and files her complaint herein, together with an affidavit that the residence of said defendants, Reuel Franklin and Laura Franklin is unknown and that the defendant Joseph W. Snell is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given said defendants that unless they be and appear on the first day of the next term of the DeKalb circuit court to be holden on the 4th Monday of September a. d. 1875, at the court house in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness. My name and the seal of said court affixed at Auburn, this 13th day of July 1875.

J. R. LANNING, Clerk.

July 15

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed Administrator of the estate of Frederick Raut, late of DeKalb county, deceased. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

CHARLES RAUT, JR., Adm.

July 1, 1875.

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

STATE OF INDIANA, }
DeKalb County. }

NOTICE is hereby given, that Oliver P. Learned Administrator of the estate of Gilbert C. Ervertis, deceased, has filed his petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, his personal being insufficient to pay his debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of the Circuit Court of said county. Attest

J. R. LANNING, CLERK.

July 15

FARMER JOHN.

BY J. T. TROWBRIDGE.

Home from his journey Farmer John Arrived this morning safe and sound;
[illegible]
“Now I'm myself,” says Farmer John;
[illegible] thinks, “I'll look around.”
[illegible] you pup!
[illegible] me up?”
The old cow lows at [illegible] to greet him
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] away?

[illegible] mer John;
The cattle are looking round and sleek;
The colt is going to be a roan,
And a beauty, too; how he has grown!
We'll wean the calf next week.”
Says Farmer John, “When I've been off,
To call you again about the trough,
And watch you, and pet you, while you drink
Is a greater comfort than you think!”
And he pats old Bay,
And he slaps old Gray;
“Ah, this is the comfort of going away.

“For, after all,” says Farmer John,
“The best of a journey is getting home.
I've seen great sights; but would I give
This spot, and the peaceful life I live,
For all their Paris or Rome?
These hills for the city's stifled air,
And big hotels all bustle and glare,
Land all houses, and roads all stones,
That deafen your ears and batter your bones?
Would you, old Bay?
Would you, old Gray?
That's what one gets by going away!

“There money is king,” says Farmer John;
“And fasion is queen; and it's mighty queer
To see how sometimes, while the man,
Raking and scraping all he can,
The wife spends every year
Enough you would think for a sc·re of wives,
To keep them in luxury all their lives!
The town is a perfect Babylon
To a quiet chap,” says Farmer John.
“You see, old Bay,
You see, old Gray,
I'm wiser than when I went away.

“I've found out this,” says Farmer John,
“That happiness is not bought and sold,
And clutched in a life of waste and hurry,
In nights of pleasure and days of worry,
And wealth isn't all in gold,
Mortgage and stocks and ten per cent.,
But in simple ways, and sweet content,
Few wants, pure hopes, and noble ends,
Some land to till, and a few good friends,
Like you, old Bay,
And you, old Gray,
That's what I've learned by going away.”

And a happy man is Farmer John,
O, a rich and happy man is he!
He sees the peas and pumpkins growing,
The corn in tassel, the buckwheat blowing,
And fruit on vine and tree;
The large, kind oxen look their thanks
As he rubs their foreheads and strokes their flanks;
The doves light round him, and strut and coo;
Says Farmer John, “I'll take you, too,
And you, old Bay,
And you, old Gray,
ext time I travel so far away!”

“CHARGE IT.”

“That is all, this afternoon, I think,” said young Mrs. Gray, looking over the bundles in he. market-basket, as she stood before the counter of the village store. “Let me see—sugar, coffee, tea, starch, soda, cream of tartar, raisins, spices, and a can of fresh lobsters. The two bags of flour you will send, I suppose?”

“Yes'm,” said the shopman, after a second's hesitation, which Mrs. Gray did not notice.

“I would like them by seven in the evening, if convenient.”

The clerk bowed.

Mrs. Gray lifted her basket from the counter.

“As for these things,” said she, with a merry laugh, to which the clerk did not respond, even by a smile, “I am not such a fine lady that I cannot carry them home myself. You will charge them, if you please. Good afternoon.”

“Good afternoon ma'am,” replied the clerk.

He was a tall, middle-aged, somewhat stiff-mannered man. Something seemed to be on his mind, which he knew not how to express.

And before Mrs. Gray had crossed the threshold of the store, he had passed down to the desk at the lower end of the building, and laid a memorandum of the things just sold to her before his master, who sat there, pouring over a great account book.

“Mrs. Gray, sir,” said the clerk, “you told me to let you know about her next order, sir. There it is. She said ‘charge it,’ as usual, and I didn't know what to do, as you gave no directions.”

The merchant looked over the order with a slight frown. Then he turned over a few leaves in the account-book before him, and glanced down the two opposite pages at which he paused.

“Make out her bill, and send it in this evening, with compliments, and request a speedy settlement,” said he. “Say that I have heavy bills to meet next week, and would feel obliged by the immediate receipt of the money.”

“There are two bags of flour also ordered, sir. One of Graham—one of superfine. Shall I send those down to-day?”

“Were they ordered for to-day?”

“Yes, sir.”

“Then send them, and the bill with them. Or, stay, Mr. Richards, let the porter take the flour at once, and do you deliver the bill this evening as you go home to supper. Perhaps she may be able to pay it at once. If so, you can receipt the bill.

The middle-aged clerk went back to his place, not much relishing the task that lay before him. To draw off the bill was nothing—to present it was much, since, as he fully believed, pretty Mrs. Gray would not have the money on hand with which to pay it.

“And then she will look scared and grieved, for I don't think she has any idea how those things are mounting up here, day by day,” thought the clerk. “And I know she has not much to depend upon, except her house and garden, and that pension money that came to her after her husband's death. To be sure, she is rather extravagant, but then she is very pretty, and she likes to look nice—and she does look nice, too, in the things she buys of us! I felt sorry all the time she was filling that basket to-day—though it wasn't in my place to say anything. And I wish the governor would send some other clerk on this errand—that I do. However, it must be done! I fancy I see his face, if I should ask to be excused from dunning poor little Mrs. Gray, because I felt sorry for her, as a soldier's widow, and because she is the prettiest woman in town. I should get my walking papers to a certainty, and do her no good either, poor soul!”

Meanwhile, Mrs. Gray, utterly unaware of the storm-cloud gathering in her sky, tripped out of the store, and was joined, before she descended the steps, by her cousin, Miss Roxy Sanderson, a tall, gaunt and singularly plain spinster of five-and-fifty, who had been buying a skein of linen thread at the other counter, and who therefore had been a witness of this little scene.

Greeting each other after a very friendly fashion, the two ladies walked down the street toward Mrs. Gray's cottage, which stood in a pretty garden at the extreme end of the village.

When they reached the house, the charming little widow asked her cousin to go in and take a cup of tea with her.

“I will,” said Miss Roxy, solemnly. “The fact is Ellen, I want to say something special to you, and this is as good a time as any.”

“Come in, then, and get it off your mind,” said Mrs. Gray, laughing. “But let me get the tea on the table first—there's a good soul.”

A brisk little fire burned in the grate of the cottage kitchen, which was one of the neatest, brightest, coziest places one could wish to see.

The tea table was ready in a moment, the tea was steeped, the cold bread, cold ham, fresh butter and cranberry preserves were quickly in their place. Then the widow placed a plate of rich-looking cake on one side of the table, and opening the can which she had brought from the store, she filled a glass dish with the preserved lobster, and set it down opposite the cake, with a look of pleasant triumph in her deep blue eyes.

“There, Cousin Roxy!” she exclaimed. “If you do not say that this is a nice supper, I shall never invite you here again.

“Very nice, Ellen, very nice, indeed!” quoth the spinster, taking her appointed chair. “If it was only all paid for,” she thought, eyeing the dainties with a serious face. “But there—I know what I can do to help her, for once in a way, if she is in a fix.”

And so Miss Roxy ate and drank and praised the viands till the hospitable heart of the fair widow glowed within her with delight.

“It is so pleasant to have some little nice thing like this, and then share it with a friend,” said she as they left the tea table. “I often wish I was rich, Cousin Roxy—I should like to entertain people all the time, and get nice meals ready for them to eat.”

Cousin Roxy was silent. She was wondering how, without seeming ungracious after the welcome and treatment she had received, she could introduce the subject that was lying heavy at her heart. Just then the gate-latch clicked. Mrs. Gray looked out.

“Why, here is Mr. Richards from the store!” she exclaimed. “Surely he is not bringing that flour all the way himself. But I don't see the porter. Do you, Cousin Roxy?”

Miss Sanderson shook her head.

“It is coming upon her now without a moment's warning,” she thought. “I'm glad I am here, for Ellen is no more fit to meet trouble alone than a baby six months old would be.”

“Good evening, Mrs. Gray,” said the voice at the open door, where the young widow was now standing. “Mr. Morton requested me to hand you this bill, and say that, as the account has been running a long time, he would be greatly obliged if you could settle it at once. He has some heavy bills of his own to meet next week, or he would not trouble you.”

“Oh, it is no trouble at all, Mr. Richards,” said Mrs. Gray, flushing a little as she took the paper. “If you will walk in, I have some money in the house, and I will pay it now.”

She ushered the middle-aged bachelor (who seemed strangely agitated and nervous) into the sitting-room, and opened the folded paper to glance at the amount.

“Twenty dollars,” said she quickly, “I will get the bill for you.”

She had just that amount in her pocketbook. It was all that she had to depend upon till the next payment of her pension, and three months must elapse before that remittance would arrive.

Yet she would not seem to hesitate. Since the merchant had asked for his money, he should have it at any inconvenience to herself. She turned to leave the room.

“I—I—I beg your pardon, Mrs. Gray!” stammered Mr. Richards, turning very red. “I think you read the figures wrongly at the foot of the column. It is not twenty dollars that is due, but two hundred.”

“Two hundred dollars!”

She glanced at the sum total again, the bright color fading from her cheeks and leaving an awful grayness and pallor in its stead.

Yes, there were the horrible figures staring her in the face.

Two hundred dollars! Had she been mad? Every penny of her pension money must be taken to satisfy this claim! And Mr. Morton wanted his money at once—this very evening, perhaps—and it was out of her power to give it to him for three long months to come. What would they do to her? Sell her house? Put her in jail?

“I have not so much money as that in the house,” she began, looking up at the clerk with a wild and harrassed glance.

And then the ringing in her ears and beating at her heart increased, the room turned black before her eyes, and the next thing she was conscious of was that she was supported by Mr. Richards' arms, with his anxious face looking down helplessly at her, while Cousin Roxy, scolding vigorously, was sprinkling her temples with camphor and directing him to lay her on the sofa as carefully as he could.

“And then go; don't let her see you when she comes clear to,” she heard the spinster say. “And John Richards, do you keep a still tongue about this business, if you have the heart of a man.”

“I'll never breathe a word,” an earnest voice replied. “But may I call late in the evening, just to see if she is better?”

“Come at nine, and I'll speak to you through the door,” said Roxy, in a whisper. “And as for your bill, I'll see that it is all right.”

“It isn't the bill—it's her,” replied the agitated voice.

And then the door closed, and Cousin Roxy took the slender little figure up in her strong arms and went back into the cozy kitchen, where, in the familiar glow and comfort of the fire, the scattered senses of the widow soon came back.

“Oh, Roxy, what shall I do?” she said, weeping, after she had related to her cousin the story of the bill. I had no idea I owed much over twenty dollars there. Two hundred! Just fancy! Oh, how could I have been so foolish as to get things charged! If I once get out of this scrape, I'll never buy another thing in my life unless I have the money in my hand to pay for it.”

“Do you really mean that?” asked Miss Roxy, bending over the fire.

“Indeed I do. I never suffered like this in my life before, and if I starve, I'll do without things unless I can pay for them in future, rather than suffer like this again! What must Mr. Richards think of me!” she added, her color deepening. “It seems to me as if I had been stealing. Perhaps he thinks just the same.”

“Humph!” said Miss Roxy, lifting her head and looking keenly at the blushing little beauty.

“Well,” said she, after a pause, “just let John Richards alone and listen to me. I've been feeling concerned about you for some time past, Ellen. I was afraid you were spending a great deal more than you knew about by getting things charged. I have tried that myself. It was mighty pleasant and mighty easy to step into the store, and take anything I wanted, and put off the payment to a more convenient day. But, oh, my! when the settlement came!”

She held up both hands and shuddered.

“What was it? What happened to you?” asked Mrs. Gray, deeply interested.

“Well, you see I wasn't pretty, to begin with,” said the spinster with a knowing glance, “and there was no one to say a good word for me, or to feel sorry if I was sold up on the spot. It was down in Massachusetts, and the store-keeper was a crusty old fellow—more like Mr. Morton than John Richards, by a long way. Says he: ‘What did you get the goods for if you had nothing to pay for them with? I have to make my living out of my store,’ says he; ‘and I may pretty soon shut up shop and turn bankrupt, if I am to be kept waiting for the money like this,’ says he. “I thought I should have dropped, Ellen, I felt so small and so mean while he was abusing me. And every word he said was right and true—that was the worst of all!”

“And what did you do, Roxy?”

“I did something that I have never got over from that day to this,” said the spinster, swallowing hard, and wiping a tear away from her eyes. “I had a diamond ring that my poor mother gave me on her death-bed. I had to pawn it to pay that hateful debt. I tried my best to redeem it, but sickness and trouble of every kind came upon me that year. At last I saved the money and went after the ring. I went on the evening of the day that my pawn-ticket expired. I forgot that I had borrowed the money on the forenoon of the other day. So the time was up—legally. They said the ring had been sold that very day to a stranger. I did not believe them. But what could I do? I went home crying all the way, and from that moment I have never bought anything unless I could pay the cash down for it. When I had not the money I went without. And that is why I came here to lecture you to-day, Ellen. I was afraid you was going on the same road, and I meant to stop you in time if I could.”

“It is too late,” said Mrs. Gray, sadly. “And I have no diamond ring to save me, Roxy.”

“You have me,” said Miss Roxy.

Mrs. Gray burst into tears.

“There, child, there—don't you cry!” said the old maid, patting the bowed head kindly. “I have some money in the bank, and I'll lend you the two hundred dollars if you'll give me your word of honor never to have anything charged again.”

“I never will,” said Mrs. Gray, kissing her gratefully. “But, Roxy, how am I to pay you back?”

“You can give me one hundred dollars out of the pension money this year, and let the rest lie at interest for another year, if you like.”

“Oh, how good you are! Are you sure you can spare it?”

“Of course I can. But there is nine o'clock striking, and there is John Richards knocking at the front door. Will you go? Or shall I?”

“Oh, let me go,” said the young widow, blushing again as she hastily arranged her hair before the glass and wiped the traces of tears from her eyes, “I want to tell him that I can pay the money at once—thanks to you, you dear, kind old soul!”

She went. Mr. Richards was again ushered into the sitting-room, and the door was closed. Miss Roxy sat musing over the fire, her head leaning on her clasped hands, and took no note of time. Suddenly the clock struck ten.

“Bless us and save us! Is that man going to stay all night?” exclaimed Miss Roxy, aloud.

A merry laugh answered her. Miss Roxy looked up, and nearly fell off her chair.

Before her stood Mr. John Richards, his arm completely encircling the pretty widow's waist, and his face lit up with an expression that made him quite a handsome man.

“I'm coming soon, to stay always, I hope, Miss Roxy,” said he, as he shook hands with her. “And you will find Mr. Richards as good and grateful a friend of yours as Mrs. Gray has been,” he added, with a meaning smile.

So the white cottage received a new master, and became once more a happy home. But the “credit system” found no favor there. “Cash on delivery” was the order of the day, and Mrs. Richards never knew again the brief but awful feeling of shame and degradation that pretty Mrs. Gray endured through “running up a bill.”

Simple Device.

In England, where every house-yard gate is fastened with a common latch, dropping into the common figure 4 hasp, it has been the custom of hawkers, beggars, and other species of the genus cadger, to lift the latch, walk into the kitchen, and have all the game to themselves. A writer in the Gardener's Magazine says he interfered with the procession of cadgers through the gate. A second figure 4 hasp is driven in above the original, with the face downward, and so far distant that there is just room, and no more than room, for the latter to slide out between them. The latch goes up and down furiously, the gate is kicked and thrust, but never opened, for not one of the cunning rogues had cunning enough to lift the latch very gently, so as to slide it out from beneath the hasps that catch it either way if it travels a hair's breadth too far.

Scalped.

“Injuns, stranger—Injuns? Yes, I know the whole gang of 'em, from Red Cloud and Spotted Tail down to the toddling papoose. I ought to know 'em—I've fit 'em for nigh onto thirty years.”

He was a grim-looking old man, with grizzly locks in view under his coon-skin cap. He had on a bear-skin coat, Indian moccasins, buckskin shirt and leggins, and he held a long rifle between his knees as we talked.

“These Western railroads are rapidly civilizing the country—fast killing off Indians, wolves, and buffaloes!”

He looked around the car, which was handsomely furnished and finished, and sighed as he replied:

“Yes, times are gittin' wuss an' wuss down this way. I've been thinkin' of goin' up to the Yellowstone, whar a man can go out any time o' day and git up a squar fight with a grizzly, or a rumpus with the reds.”

“You must be quite an old man!”

“Only 'bout sixty. I ain't quite so limber on a long run, an' can't sleep quite so well with the rain pouring down into my face, but if I thought I wasn't good for any three injuns on the plains, or any grizzly that ever stood on legs, I'd ax ye to shoot me.”

“You must have seen wild times out here!”

“Purty wild; purty wild,” mused the old man; “there used to be heaps o' reds out here, to say nothing of the wolves, b'ars, and rattlesnakes, an' thar was times when death rose up to shake hands with me.”

“Ever taken prisoner?”

“I mought hev been—I guess I was,” he said, as he uncovered his head.

“Why, you've been scalped!”

“They call it sculping, stranger!”

“And who did that?”

“This same blasted Red Cloud. He didn't use the knife, but he stood by and hollored and encouraged the chap who did it.”

“Your sensations must have been terrible.”

“There wasn't time to feel any sensations, stranger. They sneaked in on me an' Tom as we dozed, an' when I woke up Tom was riddled an' my sculp was hanging to an Injun's belt!”

“And what then?”

“Nothing much. I got up and killed two, wounded another, and legged it up a canon and got away. If it were to do over again I'd git my topknot back or fight the whole Sioux nation till somebody went under!”

He seemed lost in reflection for a moment, and then continued:

“I don't know what sculps are wuth in the market, but I guess I've got the full value o' mine. I've knocked over risin' of thirty Sioux since that night, an' I guess I'd be willin' to pass receipts!”

“I suppose you've had a turn at half a dozen different tribes?”

“Less see!” he mused. “Thar's the Sioux, Blackfeet, Pawnees, Arrapahoes, Shoshones, Cheyennes, an' three or four other tribes. They've all hunted me, and I've hunted them, an' I can't say as they owe me anything.”

“I notice a bad scar on your face.”

“Purty good scar for a common man, but I can show ye the sculp-lock of the Pawnee who made it. He jumped on me jist after I had swum a river, an' thought he'd got hold of a jack-rabbit. 'Twas a bad cut, and it kind a 'mazed me at fust, but when I did come to, he was gone afore he could yell twice! I said it was a purty good scar, but it isn't quite ekal to this.”

And he pushed up the legging on his right leg and exhibited a scar which made me draw back. The foot, ankle, and leg as high as I could see had been burned by fire.

“The Blackfeet had me fast to a stake once, ye observe,” he explained. “That was the time they poked each other in the ribs an' said they had a dead-sure thing on old Carter, but they wuz mistaken. They had me three days, an' I'd been kicked an' cuffed around until there wasn't any more fun in it, an' then they tied me to a stake an' lighted a fire around me. 'Twas pretty cluss, stranger—pretty cluss!”

“And how did you escape?”

“Half a dozen of my old pards came along jist in time to knock over half the band, and save me.”

There was silence again while he unbuttoned his shirt and showed me a bosom literally grid-ironed with scars.

“Well thar may be two or three knife-cuts thar,” he explained, “but the heft o' them scars wuz made by a grizzly. He wasn't one of these b'ar calves that some folks knock over and blow about, but a regular three story old-fashioned grizzly, such as ye don't find outside the darkest canons in the Rockies. I was bendin' over the fire when the varmint slid down a canon an' wuz right on hand afore I had any warnin'.”

“And was it a hard fight?”

“It wuz a purty fight, stranger, because it wuz a fa'r fight. I had a big knife an' he had teeth an' claws, an' we went inter kill. He wuz good grit, but a leetle slow. Thar wuz about thirty days after that leetle epysode that my pard had to nuss me like a child.”

“And you mean to die out here?”

“That's for the Lord to say, but I 'specks yer more'n right. The injuns is purty quiet down here, an' these keers are bringing Leaps o' people West, but I'm goin' up whar a white man won't disturb the Lord's work for a hundred years to cum! I feel kinder mean an' small down here—as if I wuz huntin' rabbits, but up the Yellowstone a feller kin brace up after he's knocked over a red or two an' feel as if he wasn't foolin' away his young days!”

And that was old Carter.

The Cilley-Graves Duel.

Gen. James Watson Webb has risen to a personal explanation as to his share of responsibility for the death of Jonathan Cilley in a duel, in 1838, asserting that the case has been misrepresented by Rev. John S. C. Abbott, who wrote an account of the affair for the Independent. The facts are that Mr. Cilley spoke severely of Mr. Webb's conduct as editor of the New York Courier and Enquirer, in a speech in Congress concerning the United States Bank question; that Mr. Webb challenged him, that Mr. Cilley refused to fight him, and that he subsequently did fight with and was killed by Mr. Graves, the bearer of Mr. Webb's letter. Mr. Abbott said that Cilley declined to fight Webb because he was not a gentleman, and that Graves then picked up his principal's quarrel and forced a fight. The facts, as Gen. Webb tells it, are that Cilley declined his challenge on the ground that he was not responsible for words spoken in debate, and that Graves sent his challenge because Cilley would not put into writing what he had told him by word of mouth. Mr. Webb had expressed himself entirely satisfied, but that red-hot fire-eater, Henry A. Wise, persuaded Graves that, according to the laws of dueling, he must get Mr. Cilley's explanation in writing, or lose his character. Mr. Cilley refused to humiliate himself to the demands of the Kentuckian, and the duel—“the uncalled-for duel,” as Mr. Webb calls it, resulted. It is on Henry A. Wise that Mr. Graves put the responsibility of the duel, when it came up as political capital against Clay, in 1844, and on Mr. Wise Gen. Webb leaves it.

Wheat.

The English trade returns for this year show a very slight falling off in the importation of wheat from last September to the present time, and for the first five months of the present year the receipts from the United States are given as 9,000,000 cwt., which doesn't vary much from the same footing for last year. It is difficult to see how this can be, as the exports of wheat from New York, thus far, since January 1, are only half in value what they were last year. As the price per bushel is lower, there must have been exported considerably more than one-half the amount in bushels. Besides, California has sent a good deal, enough to bring up the total export of wheat from the whole country, for the ten months closing April 30, to 45,000,000 bushels, as against 55,000,000 for the same ten months last year. The low price will bring down the total return to the country from its wheat exportation fully one-third—for the ten months it had fallen from $78,000,000 to $50,000,000. At this moment the exportation is active at a certain figure, but will brook no rise. Repeated bull movements in New York city have only succeeded in driving exporters for the moment out of the market. Chicago fills up as fast as she ships East, showing that the Northwest is still carrying last year's crop to a large extent. One of the phenomena of the season is the first appearance of Texas flour in the St. Louis market, that State having heretofore been an importer of breadstuffs. The prospect for European crops is not quite so uniformly good, and the floods in the valley of the Garonne have devastated the finest agricultural district in France. But, after all allowances for accidents of this kind on both continents, it is still apparent that the supply of breadstuffs will be vastly in excess of the demand for human consumption during the coming year. Whether that demand cannot be indefinitely extended to cattle at the present low price is an interesting problem. With a fair crop in Europe, our wheat-growers cannot bull the market by withholding their grain from shipment. But, on the other hand, by accepting low prices they may be able to dispose of their whole crop, partly for human, partly for brute consumption. We apprehend, therefore, that wheat and flour will remain at a low figure, until some great failure of crops. The present crop will probably be raised and harvested at the lowest terms, in outlay and wages, of any for many years. It is probable that the large growth of corn also at the South will bring down that staple from its exceptional position, and the price of pork with it.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The Recent Failures in London.

[London Letter to the New York World.]

More failures! Following hard on the suspension of Messrs. Collie & Co., and closely connected with it, came the suspension, on Thursday, of J. P. Westhead & Co., of Manchester, with liabilities, amounting to £300,000, and the Medlock Smallware Company, of Manchester, in which the chief owners are Westhead & Co. Then came the rapid announcement of other suspensions, all more or less the consequence of the Collie failure. The following is a list of the failures known up to this time, with their business and liabilities:

Collie & Co., India merchants, £3,000,000.

Young, Borthwick & Co., bill brokers, £2,500,000.

J. P. Westhead & Co., merchants, £300,000.

Medlock Smallware Company, merchants, liabilities not stated.

John Strachan & Co., India merchants, £200,000.

John Anderson & Co., India merchants, liabilities not stated.

Henry Adamson & Sons, ship brokers, £90,000.

Malcom, Hudson & Co., Japan merchants, liabilities not stated.

J. C. Fowlie, India merchant, liabilities not stated.

A. Gonzales & Co., merchants, liabilities n t stated.

C. Phillips & Co., Colonial brokers, liabilities not stated.

Robert Benson & Co., American merchants, £1,000,000.

N. Alexander, Son & Co., India merchants, £300,000.

Here is a total of £7,390,000, exclusive of the losses that may be incurred by the six firms above-named, whose liabilities are not yet ascertained. The whole amount of the liabilities of the thirteen bankrupt firms may be put down at about $40,000,000. But the assets of these houses are very considerable, and the ultimate loss to their creditors will probably not exceed half that sum.

Statistics of the Beecher Trial.

LENGTH OF THE LITIGATION.

Actual working days	110		Days.
Adjournments	9	The plaintiff's cause	50
Holidays	3	The defense	58

DAYS OCCUPIED IN HEARING TESTIMONY.

For the plaintiff	37½	For the defendant	40½

DAYS OCCUPIED BY ARGUMENTS.

Plaintiff's counsel	12½
Defendant's counsel	17½
Total	30

TIME OF EACH ORATOR.

	Days.		Days.
Mr. Morris	2½	Ex-Judge Porter	5
Gen. Tracy	4	Mr. Beach	10
Mr. Evarts	8½

THE WITNESSES.

Total number	98	Defendant's	63
Plaintiff's	35

DURATION OF EXAMINATION.

	Days.		Days.
Theodore Tilton	12	Mrs. Moulton	3
Francis D. Moulton	12	Bessie Turner	3½
Henry W. Beecher	10½	Gen. Tracy	2½

THE JURY.

Number in panel	500	Witnesses brought to testify as to doubtful jurors	21
No, excused, about	70
Number examined	89

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

Total number admitted	247	Plaintiff's	136
		Defendant's	111

INDIRECT ANSWERS BY WITNESSES.

Mr. Beecher.		Mr. Moulton.
“I can't recollect,” &c.	580	“I don't know”	76
“I think,” “I presume,” &c.	248	“I don't remember,” &c.	235
“I don't know”	57	Total Moulton	305
Total Beecher	875	Grand total	1,180

THE DOLLYMOUNT SHOOTING.

To Dollymount, the other day,
The people flocked in fine array
To see the men from America
Would strive with the Irish in shootin'.
There was Paddy O'Hare and Crowner Ned,
And [illegible] Katherin' Piper Ted,
With Biddy [illegible] the swate red-head,
An' the divil's own roarin' an' tootin'.
Phillaloo, hubbaboo, whack, hurrah,
Star-spangled banner and Erin-go-bragh;
The rousingest time that iver you saw
Was Dollymount c[illegible]in' the rifles.

Oh! [illegible] Dublin Bay
Wh[illegible] and the azure say
We[illegible] streamers gay
[illegible] the water.
The roads they were lined, till the world was there,
You'd a' thought 'twas the opening of Donnybrook Fair.
In a coach and six rode the ould Lord Mayor,
His wife and them colleens his daughters.
Chorus.

Oh! the Irish team was fair to view,
And they'd beaten the Scotch and the English too;
And the 'Merican boys—— What a hullabaloo
There was when we saw them standin'.
We shouted hurrah for America,
An' the best team here may it win the day,
An' divil a fear of any foul play
When the Irish boys take a hand in.
Chorus.

Hurrah for the Yankees! the day they have won!
Such shootin' there never was under the sun
Since the days when the Ould Boy first handled gun,
And brought about death and destruction.
And hurrah for Ould Erin, for once in a way.
She rejoices to see the black gunpowder play
In the hands of the stranger by fair Dublin Bay,
And be best in a friendly-loike ruction.
Chorus.

Pith and Point.

Packing a trunk is an inborn talent.

Sheet music—Children crying in bed

It is mighty onsartin what a lazy boy or a big snaik will amount to.

Lawyer's maxim—Where there's will there's a way—to break it.

He who kan whistle one tune nee never be entirely lonesome.

What portions of the body are th best travelers? The two wrists.

A bore—A man who persists in talk ing about himself when you wish to tal about yourself.

Lady—Such a beautiful creature mus be good tempered! Husband—Ju what I thought when I married you, m dear.

An Eastern editor, who knows th magnitude of the task, says: “Ge your babies all counted for the censu taker.”

The City Council of Altoona, Pa , ha made Monday a “legal wash-day,” fro which it must be inferred that washin is generally illegal in Pennsylvania.

“O—er—Jarvis—would you min pretending to pick a quarrel with m and just giving me a push, you know I want to test the pluck of this big do of mine,”—Punch.

“We were married just a month ag to-day. We went to Bawston and Ne Yawk and ever so many places, and ha a perfectly gawgeous time. New Yawk just lovely!”—Returned Chicago Brid

In a recent scandal case in Smit county, Kansas, a lady witness decline to answer a question, and the attorne demanded her reason. “Because it not fit to tell decent people.” “ well,” said the lawyer, “just walk here and whisper it to the Judge.”

When a mother cuts her son's ha with such nice precision and artist neatness that a boy is ashamed to ta off his hat when he goes to bed, it about time our domestic institution were overhauled and remodelled.—Ba timorean.

“William,” observed a Danbur woman to her husband, “Mrs. Holcom feels pretty badly since the loss of h child, and I wish you would drop ov there and see her. You might say th all flesh is grass—that we've all got to g the same way; and see if she is going use her dripping-pan this afternoon.” Danbury News.

A woman appeared in a Canada cou the other day and made complaint th another woman had called her an “o probriate epithet.” “What was madame?” kindly inquired the magi trate. “A piano, sir,” replied she in voice hemi-demi-semi-quavering wi emotion. “A piano, madame; con now, that's played,” said the Judge, a he closed the court.

In attempting to carve a fowl one da a gentleman found considerable dif culty in separating its joints, and e claimed against the man who sold hi an old hen for a young chicken. “ dear,” said the enraged man's wif “don't talk so much about the aged an respectable Mr. B.; he planted the fir hill of corn that was planted in ou town.” “I know that,” said the hu band, “and I believe the hen scratche it up.”

THE SHAVERS.

The barber shaves with polished blade,
The merchant shaves in constant trade.
The broker shaves on twelve per cent.
The landlord shaves by raising rent.
The doctor shaves in patent pills.
The tapster shaves in pints and gills.
The farmer shaves in hay and oats.
The banker shaves on his own notes.
The lawyer shaves both friends and foes.
The peddler shaves where'er he goes.
The office-holder shaves the nation.
The parson shaves to men's salvation.
The wily churchman shaves his brother.
The people all shave one another.

A Boston man was the victim of singular coincidence, the other nigh While passing along the street, a bo exploded a common cracker just behin him, while at the same instant a rotte banana, thrown from a neighboring fru store, struck him on the back of th head. He put his hand to his head, fe the soft, moist fruit, and screame “My God, I'm shot; my brains a blown out;” then, bringing his han around to his nose, he added, “and I be d—d if they don't smell like banana too.”

Oysters Nearly a Foot Long.

In riding out from Boston either o the Eastern or Boston and Maine road just after leaving the Somerville statio and going under the old Medford tur pike, if the traveler glances at the fla between the two railroads, he will notic a scattered collection of oyster shell They are the shells of a native oyst discovered by the dredging which h been going on the past year, and th oyster has been extinct for a period o nearly one hundred and fifty year What killed them is not known, but the are no such oysters now-a-days. Som of the shells measure ten or eleven inche in length, and are of a narrowness qui different from the oysters familiar to u Some of them were of a size requirin them to be cut into three pieces in ord to eat them.—Newburyport Herald.

THE GRASSHOPPER.

istory of the Plague—The Hatching Process—What the Voracious Insect Eats.

The first record we have of locusts in merica was made by French missionaries in California, over a hundred years go.

In 1827, 1828 and 1834 they destroyed ll the crops, and again in 1838 and 1846 lid great damage in Upper California. Their first attack on North America seems o have been made along the Pacific oast. In South America they had been nown years before, and for half a century have yearly visited the Argentine Republic. Indeed, in South America, n a latitude corresponding with Louisi-na and Texas, they have made agriculture almost worthless and rendered the ettlement of that magnificent country etween the Andes and the Atlantic Ocean by a dense population almost impossible.

In looking into the grasshopper history f Minnesota, we find that they first apeared there, so far as known, in 1818 nd 1819, or several years after the ecord of them made by the missionaries n the Pacific coast. In those years, acording to Neill's History of Minnesota, rasshoppers appeared in that Territory o a greater number than ever since. They ate every green thing, killed forest rees, and in some cases the ground was overed three or four inches deep. The ame seasons they swept over the Red River country, in Manitoba.

In 1855 there was a very general and isastrous grasshopper visitation all over he Western Territories, from the Misouri river to the Pacific Ocean. The ecords show that that year they spread hemselves over a surface comprised ithin thirty-eight degrees of latitude, nd, in the broadest part, eighteen derees of longitude. They reduced the Mormons at Salt Lake to a simpler diet han that of John the Baptist, for they ad the locusts without the honey.

In 1856 they again made their appearnce in Utah, California, Texas, Minneota and Northwestern Iowa.

1866 was another locust year, and suffiently widespread to attract national tention. Since then, up to that of last ear, the visitations were local, causing amage, to be sure, but not widespread. The invasion of last year was the most isastrous of all, for they swept down pon a land teeming with plenty. They ame down toward the latter part of ummer, deposited their eggs and left efore frost. This spring the eggs atched out, and hence the disaster to griculture through this all region. The round gave them forth by millions and ns of millions, and they went forth deuring every green thing.

THE HATCHING PROCESS.

The female, when about to lay her gs, forces a hole in the ground by eans of two pairs of horny valves, hich open and shut at the tip of the domen, and which, from their peculiar ructure, are admirably fitted for the urpose. Having drilled a hole, she deosits her eggs to the number of from irty to a hundred. The opening to is egg mass is covered by the mother, t the young know the way out as soon they are hatched and can wiggle their gs. Coming to the surface, they feed n a vegetation until their wings are rfected, which requires from forty to ty days.

WHAT THEY EAT.

The Western grasshopper may be said be almost omnivorous. I am astouned at the evidences of their ravages n all sides. When it comes to stripng the bark off from good-sized trees, shows the 'hopper to have sharper teeth d a tougher stomach and digestive apratus than we supposed.

When a cloud of 'hoppers become mished they will eat most anything. hey have been known to feed upon the y bark of trees, or the dry lint of seaned fence planks. They have been en literally covering the heads of eep, eating the dry wool, having first ten everything that the poor sheep uld feed on. When one of their own embers becomes disabled, the strong es fall upon him and eat away at one d while he kicks at the other.

But they do not do this if their food abundant. Above all things they love rn, cabbage and carrots. A cloud of em will get a fifty-acre corn-field in a y, eating the tender stalks to the very ound, and into it as far as they can ach. Next to corn they love wheat, d are not at all adverse to oats, eating em down to stubs, as though a reaper d been through. Turnips and potaes they are partial to, but onions they rticularly relish, leaving nothing but little of the tough outer rind. Toeco plants they do not banker after, d leave them until everything else is voured. They will eat tobacco on a nch, but, a countryman tells me, who st a patch, "they seem to sorter kinder ke up a face at it." I am told that e plant makes him sick, giving them e stomachache and dizziness in the ad, much as it does a man when he es it.

Irish potatoes they like pretty well, ting them down to the ground, and metimes into the ground. Tomatoes d sweet potatoes they do not eat at all there is any other green thing on nd.

As I said before, of all the cereals, corn their favorite, especially if it is young d tender. They take it to the ground. old and pretty dry and stiff the stock left, but the blades and silk goes, the k being the first they lay hold of. In t they eat all the growing cereals expt broom-corn and sorghum, and only these when other supplies are exusted. Buckwheat and flax they are ry fond of. Perhaps their desire to t flax out of the way is from fear of tribution. Next to corn and their oice of vegetables they are fond of the aves of fruit trees. They strip apple d cherry trees, leaving nothing but e fruit hanging on the bare twigs. The aves of the peach are often left unuched, but the unripe fruit is eaten to e stone, which is left hanging, remindg the inhabitants of departed sweets. pe fruit they seldom touch.

They kill whole orchards, especially e young trees, which they girdle around e trunk and strip the top of foliage. hese stripped, girdled and ruined young ees present a sad picture, for we know at the loss can not soon or easily be paired.

Forest trees do not escape, but they e not often killed outright. Ash, wilws and cottonwood they like best. Strawberries and blackberries are devoured with avidity, but they seldom touch raspberries. Flowering shrubs very generally suffer, and they are particularly fond of rose and lilac. Grape vines suffer more from the girdling of the fruit stems than from defoliation.

The reader will observe that the 'hoppers have a taste for about all that is useful to man, and that should they cover the whole country at once, famine would be inevitable. Men and grasshoppers cannot both long inhabit the same section.—Dr. H. V. Redfield in Cincinnati Commercial.

Is Candy Injurious?

It is well known that the substances used in flavoring candy, are many of them of a poisonous nature? but this does not necessarily prove that candy is injurious. One of the most delicate flavors in various articles of food is produced by prussic acid, a virulent poison; but is used in such small quantities as to be quite innocuous.

The fact that much of the candy sold contains poison is, however, a reason for great moderation in eating it. Used frequently and immoderately, it creates a morbid appetite. The writer knew a family of three young ladies who had been indulged with candy to such an extent that they had no desire to eat anything but sweets. Animal food became distasteful to them. Their digestion became disordered, their complexions sallow, and their frames weak and languid. Their health was nearly ruined.

The effect of sugar on an exposed nerve is well known to most people. Almost any kind of food may be taken into the mouth without causing toothache but that which is very sweet. Too much sugar is also a hindrance to digestion.

It is from the substances used to flavor candy that the most injury is liable to result. These are not the juices of various fruits, but chemical imitations of them. The flavors of almond and peach are obtained by the use of prussic acid; others are due to the presence of spirits of turpentine. The chemical substances when taken in any quantity, cause irritation of the stomach, possibly more serious disorders.

The most harmless of flavors, that of peppermint, acts as medicine. It is very useful as such, but when taken inordinately, requires sometimes a dose of another kind to counteract its effects. Some sorts of candy are flavored with liquors, and thus children may acquire very early in life a taste for strong drink.

The rule for eating candy is plainly this: Eat very little, and that of the simplest kind, of the best quality, and entirely uncolored.

Why Letters Go Astray.

Mr. Plimley kindly informed the writer that there were, including the British, German and Swiss departments, 5,000 money-order offices in the United States; that letters should go astray he did not think surprising, when it is considered that there are 15 Buffalos, 12 Bostons, 18 Buena Vistas, 12 New Havens, 12 Newarks, 14 Albanys, 12 Oranges, 18 Highlands, 8 Hyde Parks, 15 Bradfords, 5 Cincinnatis, and 3 Chicagos, to say nothing of the almost innumerable Johnstowns, Jamestowns and Smithtowns. Then, too, there are States that are thus abbreviated: Me., Md., Mo., Mon., Mass., Mich. and Miss. Now, said the Superintendent, a letter posted without bearing the name of the county, is not properly addressed; and to find one properly addressed passing through the mails would be like hunting for a needle in a haystack. For instance, a letter addressed to Newark, Wayne county, N. Y., which by the way is a large place, would not get to Newark, N. J., if so directed, if it had the county on. The clerk would see that it was intended for New York, because New York and Wayne county correspond, nor would Orange, Sullivan county, N. Y., get to New Jersey if the Y did resemble a J, because there is no Sullivan county in New Jersey. A. T. Stewart & Co. have a postal guide and money-order directory. Their money-order applications have the county, whether it is Albany or Chicago. That is the secret.—New York Herald.

Obituary---F. P. Blair.

Francis Preston Blair, Jr., was born at Lexington, Ky., Feb. 19, 1821, and died at St. Louis, Mo., July 8, 1875. He removed, when a child, to Washington, where his father edited the Globe newspaper, and was the confidential friend of Gen. Jackson. The son graduated from Princeton College, New Jersey, about 1841, studied law, and commenced practice at St. Louis, Mo. He was a member of the Missouri Legislature in 1852 and 1854, was elected a member of Congress in the Republican interest in 1856, and subsequently was a member of the Thirty-seventh Congress (1861-63), and took his seat in the Thirty-eighth Congress (1863-65), but resigned to resume his position in the army. He had been successively Colonel, Brigadier, and Major-General of volunteers during the war. In 1868 he was appointed by President Johnson Collector of Customs for the port of St. Louis, and the same year Commissioner on the Pacific railroad. In 1868 he was nominated by the Democratic National Convention as their candidate for the Vice-Presidency; Horatio Seymour being the candidate for the Presidency on the same ticket; but in the election of November in that year both were defeated. In 1871 Mr. Blair was elected by a combination vote of Democrats and "Revenue Reformers," United States Senator from Missouri from 1871 to 1877.

COL. D. R. ANTHONY, the Leavenworth editor who was shot some weeks ago by a rival editor, and by the attending physicians pronounced mortally wounded, is now reported to be recovering. The Leavenworth Times, describing his condition, says that he "is still lying on his back, patiently waiting the complete mending of the clavicle. The raising of the shoulder would bring an immense leverage upon the collar bone at the fractured points, and cause the jagged fragments to press down against and perchance puncture the delicate tissue of the aneurismal sack which lies immediately below. Hence the necessity of absolute quiescence of that bone, until the parts are not only knitted together firmly but the space torn away by the ball actually filled in with new bone."

SALARIES of workingmen at St. Joseph, Mo., have been reduced 25 per cent. recently.

LEXINGTON.

Death of the Grand Old Race-Horse—A Record of His Achievements.

A report from Lexington, Kentucky, announces the death of Lexington, the blind hero of the Woodburn stud farm, the great race horse, and the king of sires. The death of this renowned horse will cause great sorrow to every turfman in the country. His great prowess as a race horse, as well as his remarkable career as a sire, had endeared the name of Lexington to every lover of thoroughbred stock in the country. While upon the turf Lexington overshadowed all of his contemporaries, and for twenty years his record remained as a mark of admiration. He has always stood at the head of winning sires, and has left behind him sons and daughters who will keep his memory fresh for generations to come. Lexington was bred by Dr. E. Warfield, near Lexington, Kentucky, and foaled March 17, 1850. Boston, the sire of Lexington, was a grand race horse, and, like his son, the best of his day.

Lexington first appeared as a three-year old, on May 23, 1853, at Lexington, Kentucky, under the name of Darly, in the Association stakes for three-year olds, mile heats, which he won in two straight heats. Twelve started, and he distanced them all. Four days after this he ran for the Citizens' stakes, for three-year olds, two mile heats, and won in three heats. After this he came into the hands of Mr. R. Ten Broeck, and was matched against Sallie Waters, a four-year old, by imported Glencoe, for $8,500, Mr. Ten Broeck betting $3,500, against $5,000. The race was run in three mile heats, at New Orleans, December 2, 1853, Lexington distanced his competitor in the second heat. His next appearance was in the great Post stakes of $5,000 each, play or pay, four-mile heats, at New Orleans, April 1, 1854. The starters were Lexington, Lecompte, Highlander and Arrow. Lexington won in two heats, distancing all but Lecompte. A week afterward Lexington met Lecompte and Reube at the same place, in a race of four-mile heats, and was beaten by Lecompte in two heats. The result of this race led to much feeling, and Mr. Ten Broeck issued a challenge to any horse in the country, which resulted in Lexington's being matched against the fastest time on record, 7:26, made by Lecompte in the race mentioned above. The stakes were $20,000. The race came off at the Metairie Course, New Orleans, April 2, 1855, and Lexington, carrying 103 pounds and ridden by Gilpatrick, won in 7:19¾, which stood at the head of the record until last year, when it was beaten by Lexington's grandson, Fellowcraft, at Saratoga, by a quarter of a second. Mr. Ten Broeck was again challenged by Mr. T. J. Wells, the owner of Lecompte, for a race of four-mile heats, and they again appeared in competition on the Metairie Course, on April 24. Lexington won in the first heat, Lecompte being drawn in the second. The time was 7:23¾. This was Lexington's last appearance, and he made his first season in the stud in 1855 at the farm of W. F. Harper, and the next year stood at the same place. In 1856 Mr. Ten Broeck sold Lexington to Mr. R. A. Alexander for $15,000, and he has stood at the Woodburn farm until his death. Lexington, in his career, was beaten but once out of seven starts, and his total winnings were $56,500.

About fifteen years ago Lexington went blind, but he has not generally transmitted his affliction to his offspring. Up to the year 1866 Lexington had sired 52 winners at mile heats who won 132 races, 39 winners at two mile and heats who won 102 races, 16 winners at three miles and heats who won 30 races, and 8 winners at four miles and heats who won 12 races. Since 1866 the winning sons and daughters of Lexington have added double this number, but it is sufficient to say that as the sire of Kentucky, Asteroid, Idlewild, Norfolk, Leatherlungs, Thunder, Areola, Harry of the West, Daniel Boone, Jack Malone, Harry Bassett, Tom Bowling, Joe Daniels, Wanderer, and other great horses, Lexington's fame will live in the memories of turfmen for generations to come. Lexington founded a line of racehorses unequaled by the offspring of any other stallion in this country or England. In his declining years Lexington even bettered the record of his earlier career as a sire, for Tom Bowling, Harry Bassett, Preakness and Wanderer stand as fitting representatives of the noble animal.

AT Conway, N. H., are four persons—John and Mark Broughton, Mrs. Mark Merrill and Mrs. Elijah Stewart—who are blood relatives to the Queen of England, their grandmother having been a cousin of William IV., making them third cousins to the Prince of Wales.—Exchange.

A SON of Martin Van Buren was recently sent to the insane asylum at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

WILHOFT'S FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.—This medicine is used by construction companies for the benefit of their employes, when engaged in malarial districts. The highest testimonials have been given by contractors and by the Presidents of some of the leading railroads in the South and West. When men are congregated in large numbers in the neighborhood of swamps and rivers, Wilhoft's Tonic will prove a valuable addition to the stock of medicines, and will amply reward the company in the saving of time, labor and money. We recommend it to all. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT IT.

ST. JOHN, N. B., APRIL 27, 1875.

MESSRS. CRADDOCK & CO.:
The Cannabis Indica has given me great relief. I was but a shadow of my former self, and now, thanks to your invaluable remedy, I am recruiting in strength rapidly. Send two more bottles.
Respectfully, DAVID CAIN,
On Steamboat "Enquirer."

MARIPOSA, VICTORY, ONTARIO, FEBRUARY 10, 1874.

The last three bottles of Cannabis Indica which I obtained from you cured that young woman of the Chronic Diarrhea. She is as well as ever she was, and had been under the doctor's hands all last summer, not expecting to live from week to week.
LAUREN FULFORD.

N. B.—This Remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not dissipate—Night Sweats, Irritation of the Nerves, Difficult Expectorations, Sharp Pains in the Lungs, Sore Throat, Nausea at the Stomach, Inaction of the Bowels, and Wasting of the Muscles.
$2.50 per bottle, or three bottles for $6.50. Pills and Ointment, $1.25 each. Address
CRADDOCK & CO.,
1032 Race Street, Philadelphia.
Send for circular.

Asthma and Catarrh.—See D. Langell's adv't

A FACT worth remembering—Five cents worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to a horse twice a week, will save double that amount in grain, and the horse will be fatter, sleeker, and every way worth more money than though he did not have them.

MARRIED ladies, under all circumstances, will find Parsons' Purgative Pills safe; and, in small doses, a mild cathartic. They cause no griping pains or cramp.

GLEN FLORA SPRING WATER, at Waukegan, Ill., cures all kidney diseases.

HOW TO GET A HOME. See advertisement.

SILVER TIPPED SHOES
Among the fine arts not lost is the art of children making holes in the toes of boots and shoes. Time taken about ten days. SILVER TIPS are an excellent remedy, never known to fail.

Durability and Flexibility are combined in the CABLE SCREW WIRE Boots and Shoes; one trial will convince you; will not rip or leak. All bear the Patent Stamp.
CABLE SCREW WIRE

NEW BOOK, "Gleanings," Now Ready. Agents address LOUIS LLOYD & CO., Chicago.

OPIUM CURE. Cheap, quick, private. No pain. DR. ARMSTRONG, Berrien, Mich.

WANTED AGENTS. Samples and Outfit free. Better than Gold. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.

EVERY FAMILY WANTS IT. Money in it. Sold by Agents. Address M. N. LOVELL, Erie, Pa.

$10 to $25 PER DAY—Send for "Chromo" catalogue. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston.

$200 a month to agents everywhere. Address EXCELSIOR M'F'G CO., Buchanan, Mich.

THE WEEKLY SUN, 8 pages, 56 broad columns, from now to New Years, postpaid, 60 cts. Address THE SUN, N. Y.

Guns Catalogue Free. Rudolph & Co., 1018 N. 5th St. Louis, Mo.

$3 SAMPLE Free and Big Pay to Male and Female everywhere. Address, THE UNION PUB. CO., Newark, N. J.

3 Pounds of Butter from 1 Quart of Milk. Can be made anywhere, by any one. No churning required. Receipt sent for 25 cents. Address P. O. Box 1741, Philadelphia, Pa.

SOMETHING for you. Sells at Sight. Our Agents coin money. We have work and money for all, men or women, boys or girls, whole or spare time. Send stamp for Catalogue. Address FRANK GLUCK, New Bedford, Mass.

PENNSYLVANIA MILITARY ACADEMY, Chester, Pa. Opens Sept. 8th. Location healthful, grounds ample, buildings commodious. Civil Engineering, the Classics and English thoroughly taught. For Circulars apply to COL. THEO. HYATT, President.

WANTED AGENTS—Everywhere for the Centennial History—600 pages, 240 engravings, selling well. Address H. O. HOUGHTON & CO., 1 Somerset Street, Boston, Mass.

10 DOLLARS PER DAY AGENTS WANTED to sell THE IMPROVED HOME SHUTTLE Sewing Machine Address Johnson, Clark & Co., Boston, Mass.; New York City; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Chicago, Ill.; or St. Louis, Mo.

CLARK'S BOOK-KEEPING. Self-instructive. Short method. Price $1.00, postpaid. Send for Circular. W. S. CLARK & CO., 143 Race Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

$25 a day guaranteed using our Well Auger & Drills. $100 a month paid to good Agents. Auger book free. Jilz Auger Co., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE. Chicago Suburban Lots at $100 each—$15 down and $5 monthly for balance—within a short distance of city limits, with hourly trains and cheap fare. Send for circular. IRA BROWN, 143 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

FLORIDA The Florida Agriculturist, Weekly. $3 a year. Send 10c. for specimen. Proceedings Florida Fruit-Growers' Association—meeting of 1875—25 cts. Address WALTON & CO., Jacksonville, Fla. Say where you saw this.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.

AGENTS WANTED FOR A NEW BOOK. SUCCESS IN BUSINESS. HOW TO MAKE MONEY. Selling very fast. Send for circular. P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., [illegible]

ATTENTION, OWNERS OF HORSES. [illegible] for the Zinc Collar Pad. They are warranted to cure any sore neck on horse or mule, or money refunded, if printed directions are followed. Send 25c. for sample. Zinc Collar Pad Co., Sole Manuf'rs, Buchanan, Mich.

HOW TO GET A HOME. IOWA LANDS. 800,000 ACRES.
Rich Soil, good Climate, excellent Water, growing Settlements, good Schools. We offer the Lands of the Sioux City and St. Paul R. R. and the McGregor and Missouri River R. R. at $4 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Two years rent will buy a farm. Apply to DAVIDSON & CALKINS, R. R. Land Office, Sibley, Osceola Co., Iowa.

PEOPLE WILL HAVE OUR GOODS. Send 25 cents and we will send by mail, prepaid, our LAMP FILLER, with which you can fill any Kerosene Lamp without removing chimney or getting grease outside of Lamp. At same time we mail you all our circulars and terms to agents on twenty useful household articles with which any person can make from $5 to $9 daily. We want Agents everywhere. NATIONAL AGENTS' EMPORIUM, BOSTON, MASS.

LIVINGSTONE'S LIFE AND EXPLORATIONS with his "LAST JOURNALS," now ready! The ONLY complete Life and thrilling adventures in Africa of the great hero Explorer in his own language. Cheapest and best—only $2.50, splendidly illustrated. Outsells everything. AGENTS WANTED. Send for extra terms and proof; or, if in haste to begin work, send $1.00 for full outfit to genuine address, LIVINGSTONE'S PUBLISHERS, CHICAGO, ILL.

AGENTS WANTED FOR PATHWAYS OF THE HOLY LAND
Being a Full Description of Palestine, its History, Antiquities, Inhabitants and Customs, according to the Great Discoveries recently made by the Palestine Exploring Expeditions. It sells at sight. Send for our extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

N. F. BURNHAM'S TURBINE WATER WHEEL
Was selected, 4 years ago, and put to work in the Patent Office, Washington, D. C., and has proved to be the best. 19 sizes made. Prices lower than any other first-class Wheel. Pamphlet free. N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

D. LANGELL'S NEW ASTHMA AND CATARRH REMEDY.
Having struggled twenty years between life and death with ASTHMA, I experimented by compounding roots and herbs and inhaling the medicine. I fortunately discovered a wonderful remedy and sure cure for Asthma and Catarrh. Warranted to relieve instantly so the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Druggists are supplied with sample packages for FREE distribution. Call and get one, or address D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio.
Sold by Druggists. Full-size Package, by mail, $1.25.

Keeler, Holmes & Co., Grocers, Norwalk, Ct., say:—"We have the assurance of our customers that Sea Foam is the best Baking Powder. Our sales of it increase continually."
Geo. L. Claflin & Co., Druggists, Providence, R. I., say:—"Your Sea Foam is steadily gaining in favor. All speak well of it." It is the best. Farmers' wives can excel New York Hotel Cooks by using Sea Foam. Try it and be happy. Send for circular to GEO. F. GANTZ & CO., 176 Duane St., New York.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

Trifling with Biliousness Won't Do. In this way chronic disease is brought on. A disordered liver is the consequence of a foul stomach and obstructed bowels, and the very best preparation in existence to put them in perfect order and keep them so is Tarrant's Effervescent Aperient.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Chicago Business Directory.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.
CHICAGO SCRAPER & DITCHER CO., 86 LaSalle.

AWNINGS, TENTS, TWINES AND CORDAGE.
GILBERT, HUBBARD & CO., 202 to 208 South Water.

BAKING POWDER AND EXTRACTS.
DR. PRICE'S, Steele & Price M'f'rs, 262 & 266 S. Water, Chicago, 304 N. 2d, St. Louis, 244 Main, Cincinnati.

BANNERS AND GLASS SHOW-CARD WRITERS.
MUNN & DRUM, 215 W. Madison.

BOOTS AND SHOES—AUCTION AND COMMISSION.
JAS. P. McNAMARA & CO., 27 E. Washington.

CANNED FRUITS AND CRYSTAL LAKE PICKELS.
F. A. WAIDNER, 45 and 47 River.

COWING'S DRIVE AND WELL PUMPS, &c.
DOWNER & WOOLNER, 98 and 100 Franklin.

CROCKERY, CHINA AND GLASSWARE.
ABRAM FRENCH & CO., [illegible] and [illegible] Wabash-av.

EMBOSSERS, SEALS, PRESSES, STEEL AND BRASS STAMPS, STENCIL TOOLS AND STOCK.
G. H. HANSON, 38 South Clark.

ENGRAVERS.
S. D. CHILDS, JR., & CO., 116 Franklin.

ENGRAVER, DIE SINKER & MANFR. OF STENCILS.
L. BOCHE, 171 E. Randolph.

FLOWERS AND STRAW GOODS—SPECIALTY.
DALY, HENROTIN & CO., 144 and 146 Wabash-av.

FURNITURE.
A. L. HALE & BRO., 200, 202, 204 and 206 Randolph.

GLASS SHOW-CARD PAINTER.
J. J. G. BURGHOFFER, 199, 201 and 203 E. Randolph.

GRASS SEEDS.
ALBERT DICKINSON, 136 Kinzie.

GUNS—CUTLERY MANUFACTURERS.
W. E. SPENCER & CO., 54 State. Send for price-list.

HARDWARE AND CUTLERY—WHOLESALE.
EDWIN HUNT & SONS, 58 and 60 Lake.

HEAVY HARDWARE—WHOLESALE.
KIMBARK BROS. & CO., 80 to 84 Michigan-av.

HOTELS.
NEVADA HOTEL, Wabash-av., bet. Madison and Monroe. Central, convenient. $2.00 per day.
BREVOORT HOUSE, 143 and 145 E. Madison. On the European plan. H. M. Thompson, proprietor.
METROPOLITAN HOTEL—$2.50 per day. Cor. State & Wash'n, site of old St. James, opp. Field, Leiter & Co.
OGDEN HOUSE—First-class in every particular. Barber & Ferrey, prop'rs. Cor. Washington and Franklin.
WOOD'S HOTEL, 34 & 36 Washington. O. Sands, prop. Price $2 per day. S. S. Palmer (late City Hotel), clerk.

IMPORTERS AND MANFRS. OF WARWICKSHIRE AND COLUMBIA SAUCES, IMPORTED CATSUPS AND FLAVORING EXTRACTS.
LEWIS & CO., 168 E. Kinzie. Send for price-list.

LUMBER.
THE PESHTIGO CO.—Green Bay Lumber. North Pier. W. E. Strong, Pres't; G. C. Hempstead, Sec'y.

REAL ESTATE.
JAS. B. GOODMAN & CO., 13 Dearborn.

SAW MANUFACTURERS.
HENRY DISSTON & SON, N.W. cor. Randolph & Market.

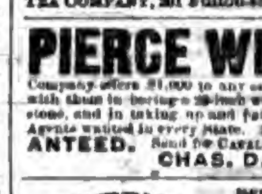
SEWING MACHINE COMPANIES.
HOME S. M. CO., Johnson, Clark & Co., 141 State.

WASHING MACHINES.
For Circulars, etc., address CALKINS CHAMPION Washer Co., 207 Clark. Agents wanted everywhere.

WATCHES, JEWELRY AND JEWELERS' SUPPLIES.
COGSWELL, WEBER & CO., 105 and 107 State.

DOUBLE YOUR TRADE
Druggists, Grocers and Dealers—Pure China and Japan Teas, in sealed packages, screw-top cans, boxes, or half chests—Grocers' prices. Send for circular. THE WELLS TEA COMPANY, 201 Fulton-st., N. Y., P. O. Box 4560.

PIERCE WELL AUGER
Company offers $1,000 to any one that will successfully compete with them in boring a 20-inch well, through soapstone and slate stone, and in taking up and passing bowlders and loose stone. Agents wanted in every State. $25 PER DAY GUARANTEED. Send for Catalogue. Pass. Address CHAS. D. PIERCE, Peru, Illinois.



MEDICINE RENDERED USELESS! VOLTA'S ELECTRIC BELTS and Bands are indorsed by the most eminent physicians in the world for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, liver complaint, dyspepsia, kidney disease, aches, pains, nervous disorders, fits, female complaints, nervous and general debility, and other chronic diseases of the chest, head, liver, stomach, kidney and blood. Book with full particulars free by Volta Belt Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

BOOK AGENTS Wanted to sell "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the cheapest book ever published; 885 pages, over 250 illustrations, $1.50. Thousands buy it at sight who could not be induced to purchase the high-priced books treating of Domestic Medicine. Unlike other books sold through agents, this work is thoroughly advertised throughout North America. This fact, together with the large size, elegant appearance, and many new features of the book, cause it to sell more rapidly than any work ever published in this country. Those of my agents who have had experience in selling books say that in all their previous canvassing they never met with such success or made so large wages as since commencing the sale of my work. For terms and territory, address (including two postage stamps and stating experience)
R. V. PIERCE, M. D.,
World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y.
Note.—Mark envelope "For Publishing Dep't."

Out of the Poor House
Hear what a Physician says:—"A man from Crestline, O., came to Bucyrus disabled from kidney troubles. His sufferings were very acute and the case unpromising. Being unable to take care of himself he was taken to the County Infirmary for treatment. The physician put him on Hamilton's Buchu and Dandelion: in ten days a marked improvement took place, and after three weeks he was dismissed a cured man, and is now pursuing his trade with his former vigor. Dr. Fulton is a witness to the statement and regards the cure as a very remarkable one." Trade supplied by KRESS MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Cincinnati, O.

Smith Organ Co.,
BOSTON, MASS.
These Standard Instruments
Sold by Music Dealers Everywhere.
AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWN.
Sold throughout the United States on the
INSTALLMENT PLAN:
That is, on a System of Monthly Payments.
Purchasers should ask for the SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN Catalogues and full particulars on application.

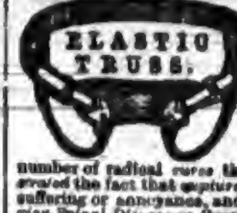
LARGE SIZE
MEDIUM SIZE
MERCHANT'S
GARGLING
GARGLING

Whether for use on man or beast, Merchant's Gargling Oil will be found an invaluable Liniment and worthy of use by every resident in the land. We know of no proprietary medicine or article now used in the United States which shares the good-will of the people to a greater degree than this. [illegible] white for human, flesh.—N. Y. Independent.
MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL
Is the Standard Liniment of the United States. Established 1833. Large size, $1; medium, 50 cents; small size, 25 cents. Small size for family use, 25 cents. Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company. JOHN HODGE, Secretary.

$10. to $500. Invested in Wall Street often leads to fortune. A 72-page book explaining everything, and copy of the Wall Street Review SENT FREE. John Hickling & Co., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, N. Y.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS.
Langley's Patent Slate Paint—For Shingle, Tin, Iron and Gravel Roofs.
This is a Fire and water-proof Paint, especially designed for shingle Roofs. An old roof Slate Painted will outlast a new one unpainted, and a new roof will last three times as long Slate Painted. As a matter of economy, a roof needs paint more than any other part of a building. Price 80 cents per gallon. Send for Pamphlet. Agents wanted. WILLIS G. JACKSON.
General Agent, 189 Washington St., Chicago.

NEEDLES FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES can be obtained at about one-half the usual rates by ordering direct. Singer's, 60 cts. per dozen; Wheeler & Wilson, 60 cts.; Howe's, 60 cts.; Grover & Baker, [illegible] cts., and others in proportion. Enclose the amount and Needles will be returned by first mail. Address [illegible] NEEDLE CO., 638 Broadway, N. Y.



THE ELASTIC TRUSS AND SUPPORTER is now superseding all others, being adopted everywhere by the leading physicians, surgeons, druggists, army and navy, hospitals, gymnasiums, etc., etc.

The success and universal satisfaction they have given, as well as the great number of radical cures they have effected, has demonstrated the fact that rupture can be surely cured without suffering or annoyance, and without the danger of incurring Spinal Disease or Paralysis, often caused by the severe pressure of Metal Trusses and Supporters. It is the only sure cure for Hernia, as it is the only Truss in use that will hold the rupture securely in all positions in which the body can be placed. It will perform radical cures when all others fail. It can be worn with ease and comfort when no spring truss can be used. When once adjusted, no motion of the body or accident can displace it. These instruments have the unqualified approval of the most eminent practitioners in the profession.

From the numerous testimonials in our possession we append the following:

"After the experience of months, patients testify strongly to its efficacy, as well as to the ease and freedom from inconvenience with which the instrument is worn. With superior advantages, the Elastic Truss possesses in a high degree ALL requisites and qualifications claimed for other inventions. I have no hesitation in regarding it as an important means for the relief and cure of Hernia.
"J. M. CARNOCHAN, M. D.,
"Ex-Health Officer of the Port of New York, Surgeon-in-Chief of New York State Hospital," etc., etc.

GEO. V. HOUSE, M.D., Superintendent Elastic Truss Co.:
Dear Sir: After suffering for thirty years, in my own person, from the use of every form of Metallic Truss procurable in this country and in Europe, I, two years ago, applied your Elastic Truss, and since that time I have experienced comfort and satisfaction, and been taught the truth, that the Elastic Truss is the only instrument that should be used for the relief and cure of Hernia; and now, after more than thirty years' continuous practice, and having adjusted many hundreds of Trusses (and for the last twenty months yours exclusively), I gratefully declare it to be my deliberate opinion that your Elastic Truss is the only one entitled to the confidence of the public; that elasticity is the only power at all adapted to the requirements of a Truss or Supporter, and am convinced that your Elastic Truss actually cures a large proportion of all cases to which it is applied, not only among children, but in numerous cases within my own knowledge of patients from 50 to 75 years of age.
H. BURNHAM, M. D.,
Prof. of Anatomy and Surgery, N. Y. E. Medical College.

Beware of cheap and worthless imitation Elastic Trusses, which some parties advertise and sell, fraudulently representing that they are manufactured by the Elastic Truss Co.

These Trusses are sent by mail to all parts of the country. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Before purchasing any other, write for Descriptive Circular (free) to the

ELASTIC TRUSS CO.
683 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.'S
"VIBRATOR" THRESHER.
The BRILLIANT SUCCESS of this Grain-Saving, Time-Saving THRESHER, is unprecedented in the annals of Farm Machinery. In a brief period it has become widely known and FULLY ESTABLISHED, as the "LEADING THRESHING MACHINE."

GRAIN RAISERS REFUSE to submit to the wasteful and imperfect work of other Threshers, when posted on the vast superiority of this one, for saving grain, saving time, and doing fast, thorough and economical work.

THRESHERMEN FIND IT highly advantageous to run a machine that has no "Beaters," "Pickers," or "Aprons," that handles Damp Grain, Long Straw, Headings, Flax, Timothy, Millett and all such difficult grain and seeds, with ENTIRE EASE AND EFFECTIVENESS. Cleans to perfection; saves the farmer his thresh bill by extra saving of grain; makes no "Litterings;" requires LESS THAN ONE-HALF the usual Belts, Boxes, Journals, and Gears; easier managed; less repairs; one that grain raisers prefer to employ and wait for, even at advanced prices, while other machines are "out of jobs."

Four sizes made with 6, 8, 10 and 12 horse "Mounted" Powers, also a specialty of Separators "alone," expressly for STEAM POWER, and to match other Horse Powers.

If interested in grain raising, or threshing, write for Illustrated Circulars (sent free) with full particulars of sizes, styles, prices, terms, etc.
NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.,
Battle Creek, Michigan.

DR RIDGE'S [illegible]FANTS FOOD [illegible] INVALID

"PSYCHOMANCY, or Soul Charming." [illegible] Address T. WILLIAM & CO., Pub's, Philadelphia.

DR. WHITTIER,
No. 617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo.
continues to treat all cases of obstacles to marriage, blood impurities, every ailment or sickness which results from indiscretion or imprudence, with unparalleled success. [illegible]

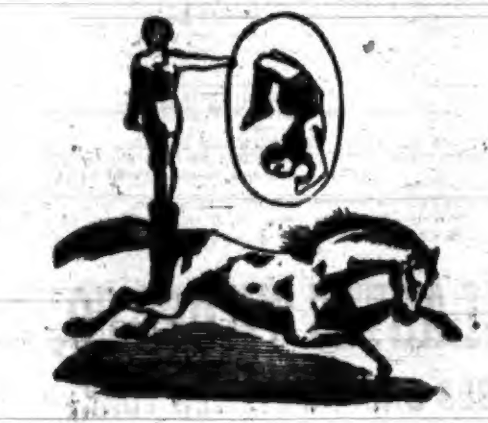
MARRIAGE GUIDE,
[illegible]

O. N. U. No. 30

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

THE LARGEST SHOW ON EARTH
WILL EXHIBIT AT AUBURN
JULY 27th, 1875
JOHN ROBINSON'S
GREAT WORLD'S EXPOSITION!

This vast and colossal SHOW, known all over the Continent by its unparalleled, remarkable and brilliant success, and indorsed by the people and the press in every State as the most gigantic as well as the

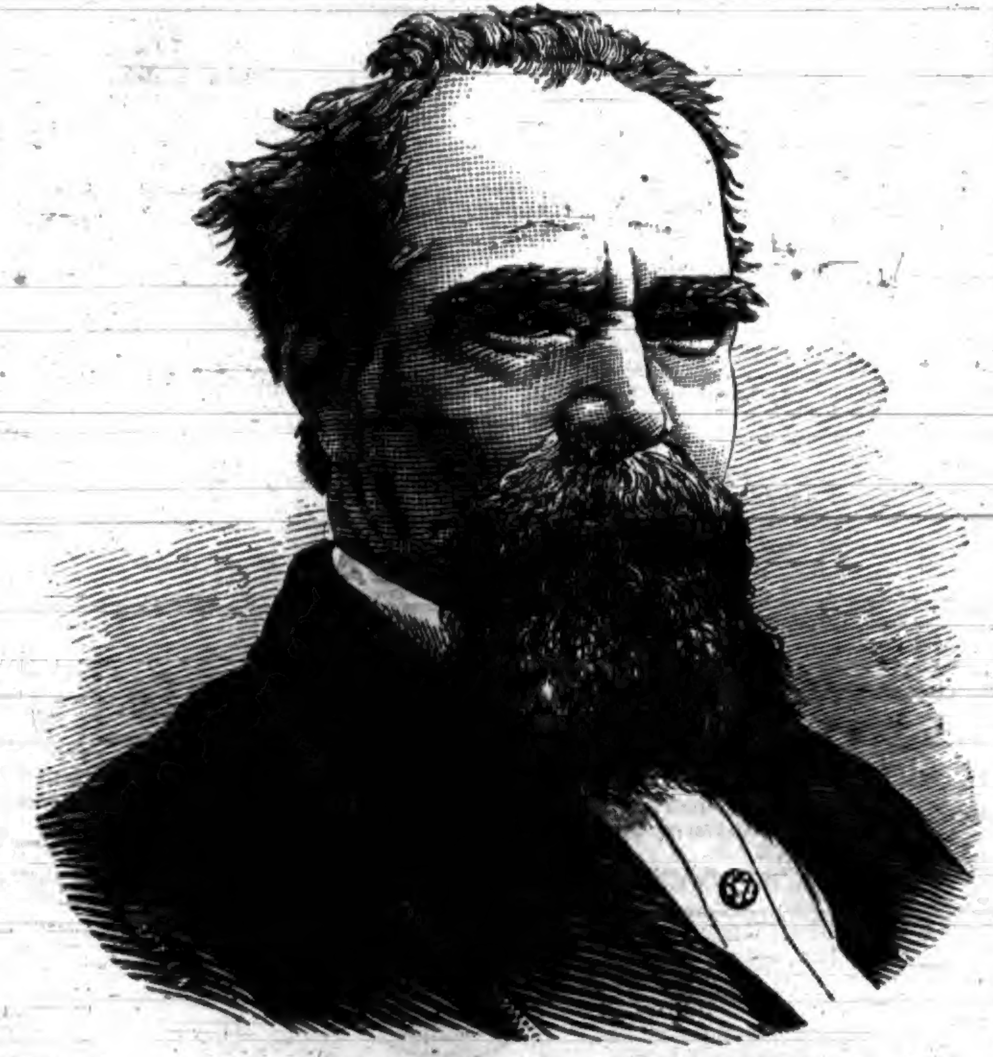


Greatest Show On Earth

Has been recognized, remodeled and rejuvenated throughout for the Spring and Summer Campaign of 1875, at the extraordinary outlay of over

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars,

Rendering it the most complete, active and remarkable exibition the management has ever presented to the public.



THE IMMENSE MANAGERIE,

Almost its myriads of wonderful Animals and Monsters, contains generous contributions from land, Sea and Air, and from every clime in Europe, Asia Africa and America, showing the marvelous and awe-inspiring handwork of the Omnipotent Creater. Among the special novelties will be exibited.

A living Giraffe, that cost $10,000 in gold. A Black Sumatran Rhinoceros, weighing four thousand lbs and costing $15,000 in gold. A giant Ostrich, twelve feet high. A school of Monster Sealions and Seals. A Herd of Elephants, costing $40,000. Forty cages of wild Animals. Besides an almost unlimited number of the most remarkable and rare Wild Beasts, Sea Monsters, Wonderful birds, and unsurpassed Curiosities animated, or inanimated, many being special features that are not owned or controlled by any other travelingexposition.

CLERGYMEN, SENATORS, STATESM'N,

and Heads of Families throughout the entire Union have endorsed it. Among the illustrious and world-famed Artists in this department are

Robert Stickney,

The most finished and graceful Equestrain now living.

THREE CREAT CLOWNS,

JOHN LOWLCW, ARCHIE CAMPBELL, F. ROBBINSON

JOHN LOWLOW'S

PERFORMING DOGS AND MONKEYS

These extraordinary animals have been trained to a degree of excellence hitherto unattempted.

The current expense of this vast aggregation, with its many thousand Beasts, Birds, 60 ponies, 1000 men and horses, forty Musicians, 50 Male Performers, 15 lady riders and other features, that amounts to a daily expenditure of $2,000.

Agreeable to a long established custom of giving

Grand Holiday Street PARADE

This Monster show will, on the morning of the day of each exhibition, between the hours of 9 and 10, form a Grand Procession of Dazzling Splendor—a Golden Chariot Drawn by Four Elephants, unsurpassed as a Moving Parmorama of brilliant Chariots, Wagons, Cars, Cages, Carriages, Dens, Animals, Bands of Music, Ponies and Moving Tableaux of bewildering beauty, representing a lavish outlay of nearly

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars

Miss Emma Lake

The most graceful, charming and daring young Horsemen in the profession. In addition to which is the

Strictly Moral Circus

In which the talent employed is unequaled, and comprises the highest order of Brilliant Equestrians, Daring Gymnastics, Wonderful Acrobate, and beautiful trick Horses. The public, and particularly families, are assured that this department is without a blemish, and nothing is said or done that can offend the most fastidious taste of a refined or high toned community.

Two Performances Daily.

Doors Open at 1 & 7 O'clock One Ticket admits to all, and the Price of Admission is no more than charged by smaller shows, with only one or two tents.

Recorders Offi

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 5. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, JULY 29, 1875. Number 29.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,........$2. | Six Months.......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
One Square......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	6 00	12 00	18 00	[illegible]
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	[illegible]
One Column......	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

ROSE & HARTMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Have complete abstracts of the records of DeKalb County. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

RICKEL & TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Auburn, Ind. Office in the Court House.

J. W. RICKEL, B. DENTE TEFFT.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

CHAS. A. O. McCLELLAN,

ATTORNEY AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
4th Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office over McQuiston's store, Cool's Block, North of Court House.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Miller and Casebeer's Store, Auburn, Indiana.

DR. L. SANDERS,

ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON will attend to all calls in the time of his profession. Gives special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic and surgical diseases. Will also treat all diseases of women and children at his dispensary, up 1st stairs east of postoffice. As he had a 11 years of successful practice, he feels confident of his share of patronage. Office open every day of the week.

DR. J. M. SHUTT.

ELECTIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, will attend to all calls belonging to the medical profession, promptly. Possessing al the benefits that can be derived from forty-two years experience, of one of the most active and successful Physicians in the western part of Ohio, and several years of personal experience enables me to treat all famous of diseases with the best of success, "without the use of calomel. My medicians are purely vegetable, and therefore, I am able to treat all kinds of diceases without producing any bad effect, upon the norvous system," and will break the worst case of ague, without the use of quinine. No matter what your disease is, give me a call, for I am prepared to handle all, at my office on fifth street, between Main and Cedar Auburn Indiana.

HOTELS.

SWINEFORD HOUSE.

CORNER MAIN AND NINTH STREETS, opposite the Court House. S. C. SWINEFORD, Pro.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.

C. B. OAKLEY, Prop'r.

WOOD'S HOTELL.

NOS. 34 & 36 EAST WASHINGTON STREET, opp Field, Leiter, & Co's retail dry goods store; and adjoining D. B. Fisk's wholesale millinery store, between State street & Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

O SANDS, Prop'r.

$2.00 per day. GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

Medical Society.

OF DeKALB COUNTY, meets at Auburn, Ind., the 2nd Tuesday in each month.

J. H. FORD, Pres't.

J. A. COWAN, Sec'y.

Joseph H. Stophlet.

ARCHITECT. Office over No. 17 Court street 1st door north of Empire line office, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Drawings and specifications furnished for all classes of buildings, at reasonable rates.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

John M. Miller,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

FINE FURNITURE,

CHAIRS

Husk & Hair Matrasses

50 and 52 East Main Street,

FORT WAYNE IND.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experience corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and do carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

S. U. Tarney

AUBURN MEAT MARKET!

KEEPS ALWAYS ON HAND

Fresh Beef, Pork, Veal, Mutton and Bologna Sausage, clean and sweet. Prices reasonable. Main-st first door north of Miller & Casebeer's store.

BRICK FOR SALE

FRITZ GROESCOP,

Having just burned a fine kiln of brick, about one hundred thousand, is now ready to supply all who want good brick at reasonable figures. Residence two miles north of Auburn on the Hetzner road; three miles south west of Waterloo.

Hoosier Drain Tile!

ONE OF THE BEST INVENTIONS IN THE WORLD.

LANHAM & HOSE have now on hand some of the above Tile, which they are selling at a Very low figure. We offer

Four Inch sizes at 50 cts. per Rod,

Six " " " 75 " " "

Every person who intend to put in tile should examine this article. A sample can be seen at this office. LANHAM & HOSE,

Auburn, Indiana.

J. J. VanAuken,

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Will attend promptly to all surveying. Office with Rose & Hartman, Auburn, Indiana. Persons requesting work by letter, should give township and section.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobacco, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

BAKER BROS.

PROPRIETORS OF Auburn Bakery!

AND

EATING HOUSE

Fresh baked Pies, Cakes etc, always on hand. Good lunches served at all hours.

BAKER BROS.

AUBURN

Meat Market.

Main St. Next door to Klotz's.

MICH HOUSTON

PROPRIETOR.

Having fitted up my establishment in first class style, with increased facilities, I am now prepared to furnish Fresh Meats in the best of order at reasonable rates. Give me call.

MERCHANTS

National Bank!

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Capital and Surplus $112.000

Receives Deposits, Discounts Business Paper, issues Letters of Credit, and Collects at all points at the lowest rates of exchange.

Directors:

S. CARY EVANS, R. C. ROBERTSON,
H. C. HANNA, N. P. STOCKBRIDGE
A. C. DAWSON.

Organized 1865. April 9, '74

NEW

Feed Store!

WM. LANHAM

Has opened out a Feed Store in Mr. Loug's building, next to Baker Bros., where he will keep

FLOUR, CORN,

OATS, MILL FEED,

&c. at all times and at the Lowest Market Rates. Cash paid for Corn, Oats, Butter, Eggs, &c.

WM. LANHAM.

Pencilings and Clippings.

The hardest thing to deal with—an old pack of cards.

If you have tears to shed, prepare—a little horse radish.

"One thing," says an old toper, "was never seen coming through the rye, and that is the kind of whisky we get now-a-days."

THE COURIER office is the place to get a good job done. We keep always on hand the best material in the market.

A darkey called at Owensboro, Kentucky, the other day, and wanted to know, "Does dis postoffis keep stamped antelopes?"

"Only eleven cents for de heathen! exclaimed a Georgia colored minister "Give it back brudder Jones—de Lord neber heard ob dis one-hoss congregation."

Somebody says that "large ears denote broad, comprehensive views and modes of thought." What magnificent ideas (thinks the Boston Journal) a jackass must have!

A Kansas paper says: "A mule kicked an insurance agent in this place on the check the other day. The agent's check was injured, but the mule's hoof was broken.

The Boston "Advertiser" says: "Railroad agents in St Louis advertise grass hopper rates to the East. Is that fare?" No; it is merely an experiment to see how it hopper-rates.

An exchange thinks that Eve must have been a very unhappy woman.—There was no other woman to pass her on the street that she might look around and see how that dress fit in the back.

When a conductor on a Boston car shouted, "Ruggles street!" the other night, a fellow who had been dozing in the corner started up and said: "Ruggles treat!" Where's Ruggles? Show me Ruggles!"

Mark Twain "apropos" of a new portable mosquito net, writes that the day is coming when we shall sit under our nets in churches and slumber peacefully while the discomfited flies club together and take it out of the minister.

$500,000 to loan on improved farms in Northern Indiana, in sums of one thousand dollars and upwards, on five years time. Security must be first mortgage.

WILLIAM FLEMING,

tf Fort Wayne Ind.

An old bachelor geologist was boasting that every rock was familiar to him as the alphabet. A lady declared that she knew a rock of which he was ignorant. "Name it, madam," said he.—"Rock the cradle, sir," replied the lady.

A man came out of the tax-office, the other day and exibiting an empty pocket-book to a friend, gloomily observed: "Bill, where's that altar of our country? I want to find it." "What for," asked the other in some astonishment. "Well, I want to lay my pocket-book on it."

"It is not our fault," says a Milwaukee editor, "that we are red-headed and small, and the next time one of those overgrown rural roosters in a ball-room reaches down for our head and suggests that some fellow has lost his rose-bud out of his button hole, there will be trouble."

Mr. Samuel Grosh having purchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Tarney, in the Lower Flouring Mill, will here after conduct it alone. He is manufacturing a splendid brand of flour and keeps mill feed constantly on hand. Mr Furnish, an experienced miller, will assist in turning out flour that cannot fail to suit everybody. tf

The estimate of the loss of life in the floods in the south of France has now mounted up to 3,000! a greater destruction that has often been caused by the bloodiest carnage between great armies. No such disaster has been known in modern times.

The Western Union Telegraph is completing a tower of fifty feet in height on the crest of the lofty Highlands of Neversink. The operators, who are to have the most powerful glasses, we will be able to distinguish steamers and other known vessels twenty miles out.

Dan Sullivan, arrested for murder was being taken to Stillwater by officers who had arrested him at Duluth. Though heavily handcuffed and closely watched, he managed to get on the platform and throw himself off. The train going at twenty-five miles an hour, was stopped and backed, but Sullivan could not be found.

HENDRICKS AND MORTON.

A few days ago, one of Senator Morton's Bohemian retainers had published, in the New York Times, a long letter, setting forth diverse reasons why his patron should be nominated for the presidency by the republican party. The Sentinel took up the question thus presented to the public, and considering the matter simply in the light of the general welfare, explained clearly why the nomination was one unfit to be made. The argument suggested by the Sentinel were so plain and strong that neither Senator Morton nor his friends could make any attempt to answer them, but the curious expedient was adopted of getting up a counter attack upon Gov. Hendricks in the columns of the Journal. The adoption of such a policy, and the vindictive spirit in which it was carried out, prove that the simple truths stated in the Sentinel had gone home with telling effect. The article in the Jounal is variously attributed to Senator Morton himself and to his chief literary bravo whom he chose in the honorable capacity of companion on a trip to Europe, when it was necessary some years since to visit a French physician noted for his skill in the treatment of special diseases Whoever did the writing, however, Mr. Morton is doubtless responsible for the attack as his private carriage was drawn up a great portion of Thursday afternoon in front of the Journal office. If he is the author of the leader in question he is to be congratulated for having caught a very pretty trick of rhetorical expression, and for the attainment of considerable antithetical force; he should remember, however, that even in composing invective it is well not to let temper get the better of truth altogether. By overcharging his colors he has painted a character which is more like Mephistophiles than the courteous and able govenor of Indiana; and the general verdict on the satire among friends and foes is that it is overdone.

In the meanwhile let it not be forgotten that the point raised by the Sentinel is the unfitness of Senator Morton to be candidate of the republican party for the presidency, and to this point the attack on Governor Hendricks affords no answer. The nomination of either next year is a matter not to be decided by their relative defects or merits The convention that passes upon the fate of the one will hardly take into consideration the character of the other.—Certainly if a comparison were to be made, Governor Hendricks need not shrink from it. Thus far in the race of life his rival has not surpassed him. In the profession of which both are members, Hendricks holds a leading position for knowledge, eloquence and acumen, while Morton, without learning or industry, achieved what little success he ever attained merely by his power of influencing juries. In public life both have held the highest honors within the gift of the state, and both aspire to the highest within the gift of the nation.—Morton was governor at a time when the very defects of his character—his boldness, his disregard of the rights and feeling of others, his ambition and his hatred of the South—all in measure cooperated in the great work which he was called upon to preform. But when the war closed, and the rush of troops to the front was over, he became useless and even dangerous. He was like a sword which could not be beaten into a plough share. In his subsequent career as a senator there can be found no vote that was not in the interest of the party, no measure advocated which was not in fomentation of sectional animosity, no act that was not characteristic of a demagogue clutching after power. He failed to win a reputation for virtue in a senate where such men as Carpenter, Chandler and Yates, were his associates He was not renowned for honesty where Powell, Clayton and Spencer were his compeers. He was a leader in an era of fraud worse than that of Walpole, when every man had his price, and yet never struck a blow for purity and good government, but compared his knavish fellows to the revolutionary fathers in integrity. He neither spoke a generous or manly word, nor carried a wise measure. His whole influence was thrown against the progress of the nation to unity of Sentiment and reform in administration, and his senatorial record might be stricken out and the only effect would be the advance of the country in her prosperous career. Yet with all his reputation for bull dog courage and tenacity of purpose, he changed sides on the surface question for interest, changed sides on the currency question thro' policy, and gave up his back pay thro' fear. Still he never lost power in all these vicissitudes of principle, for he treated public offices not as trusts to be administered for the public good, but as a sort of plunder with which to maintain a retinue of political adventurers.—He has never lacked supporters; for, like other unscrupulous leaders, he has been liberal with the spoils which he has won. Why should governor Hendricks blush to compare with such a career his own years of wise and faithful service in the executive chair and in the Senate? He aimed always at the conscientious performance of his duties rather than at the augmentation of his own influence. He never sacrificed the public interests to his ambition or his fortune. He is criticised forsooth because he aimed at honest work rather than the achievement of a reputation; but he has found the truth of the great poet's words:

> "Not once or twice in our rough island story
> The path to duty was the way to glory."

He may be said to have less passion and more principle than Morton; less force and more judgment; less ambition and more consideration for the feelings of others. But only in so far as unscrupulous grasping after power constitutes greatness, can the latter be called his superior. Hendricks is not, in this sense, as great as Morton, because he is not the autocrat of his party in Indiana. He is not as great as Morton, because he does not, like him, maintain an army of political dependants. He has not stolen so much money from the Northern Fur Company. He has not debauched so many women. He has not gotten up so many outrages in the south. He has not set up in authority so many rascals, like Pinchback and Kellog. In many of these eccentricities of genius he has been sadly wanting, and yet the Sentinel does not hesitate to say that it is just such an able, considerate and conscientious gentleman, unmarked in mind or body by any of the startling vices of his rival, who ought to be president of the United States.

In conclusion it may be well enough to add, although the theme is not a pleasant one, that there things connected with the private character of Senator Morton which ought to prevent his nomination by the party which pretends to represent the morality and intelligence of the country, even if his public career were without stain. The Sentinel would affect to require immaculate purity of public men, but there are certain limits beyond which it is not decent to pass. Hamilton was forgiven his weakness for his great services; Webster was not held to strict account for his vices in consideration of his wonderful abilities and hitherto Senator Morton has not been called before the bar of public opinion. But there are stories afloat concerning him which would render it a national reproach to have him seated as a king in the reception rooms of the White House, acknowledging the homage of the foremost men and women of the land. This enthronement of passion and its miserable handiwork would be too much. The litter of Saxe or or Luxembourg might serve in camps, but it would be sadly out of place in a court. The courtesy and virtue of Gov. Hendricks would be far more valuable at the head of American social life than all of Mr. Morton's more formidable endowments.

Wonderful Effect of Climate

She came from Detroit, Mich., and her great pride was in being an invalid. She lost no opportunity in saying that "she came to Minesota to recuperate the cellular tissues of the left auricule of her respiratory anatomy." She did not hesitate to enter conversation with any person she came in contact with, giving advice, climatolo-logical or physiological, to invalids, and seeking the same from those of robust constitution.

Her conversation was always prefaced with the introductory inquiry, so common to visitors, "Did you come here for your health?" She then addressed a stalwart, rudy visaged young man at the dinner table of the Metropolitan a few days since, and the following dialogue ensued:

"Yes, madam, I came here, probably the weakest person you ever saw. I had no use of my limbs, in fact my bones were but little tougher than cartilages, I had no intelligent control of a single muscle, nor the use of a single faculty."

"Great Heavens," exclaimed the astonished auditor, "and you lived?"

"I did, although I was devoid of sight was absolutely toothless, unable to articulate a single word, and dependent upon others for everything, being completely deprived of all power to help myself. I commenced to gain immediately upon my arrival, and have scarcely experienced a sick day since. Hence I can conscientiously recommend the climate."

"A wonderful case!" said the lady, "but do you think your lungs were affected?"

"They were probably sound, but possessed of so little vitality, that but for the most careful nursing they must have ceased their functions

"I hope you found kind friends, sir?"

"Indeed, I did, madam; and it is to them, and the pure air of Minnesota that I owe my life. My father's family were with me; but unfortunately, my mother was prostrated with a severe illness during the time of my greatest prostration."

"How sad! Pray what was your treatment and diet?"

"My diet was the simplest possible—consisting only of milk, that being the only food my system would bear. As for treatment, I depended entirely upon the life-giving propensities of the air of Minnesota, and took no medicine except an occasional light narcotic when very restless. My improvement dated from my arrival. My limbs soon became strong; my sight and voice came to me slowly; and a full set of teeth, regularly and firm, appeared."

"Remarkable—miraculous! Surely, sir, you must have been greatly reduced in flesh?"

"Madam, weighed but nine pounds; I was born in Minnesota!"—St. Paul Press.

Unappreciated Enterprise.

In Scribner for August we find some cool reading in the shape of an article on "Ice" in which occurs the following account of the attempt to introduce American ice into England in 1842:

At that date fancy drinks were almost unheard of in the clubs, taverns, and gin palaces of London. Mr. Hittinger conceived the idea of introducing these, to show to what extent ice was used in "the States" for this purpose. He, therefore, secured the services of several bar-keepers, whom he had initiated into the mysteries of mixing juleps, smashes, cocktails, and other drinks known only in Yankeeland. His experience, as he relates it himself, is very amusing:

"I went out in the steamer, so as to make arrangements for the arrival of the arrival of the bark and cargo, delivered my letters, talked with parties, and felt perfectly sure that I struck a vein. In due time the "Sharon," having made a good passage, arrived in the Thames.—The thing had been talked over so much that the cargo of Boston ice was as well advertised as it could have been in the columns of the "Times." But, after all, it appeared to them a strange fish that no one dared to touch. My feelings were just about the temperature of my ice, and wasting as rapidly. At last, I was introduced to the Chairman or President of the Fishmongers' Association, an association which I was not long in discovering had the merit of wealth, if not of social position. He was sociable, and seemed to comprehend my position if I didn't his. Matters were soon arranged; a magnificent hall or saloon had been secured; I ascertained that my bar-keepers, through constant drill, had attained the correct sleight of hand in mixing the drinks. The hour arrived. The hall was long and brilliantly lighted. After the company was seated, the chairman introduced me and the subject matter of the evening's discussion. Now, thought I, I am all right. At a given signal the well trained waiters appeared, laden with the different drinks. The effect was gorgeous, and I expected an ovation that no yankee had ever had. But, alas! the first sounds that broke the silence were:

"I say—aa, waitaw, a little 'ot watah, if you please; I prefer it 'alf'n' and 'alf.' I made a dead rush for the door, next day settled my bills in London, took the train for Liverpool and the steamer for Boston, and counted up a clear loss of $1,200."

Acting on Character.

"I say, girls," said a little, blue-eyed flaxen-haired boy, "lit me take your candy and we'll play chicken."

"Is it nice?" inquired half a dozen six year-olds in chorus.

"Nice! you bet it is. Let me show you. Now. I'll lay the candy down her on the step, and you all go down the e and come up when you hear my call l re a rooster." ke

The girls retreated and gathered in a group about fifteen feet off, whil the boy got on his knees, with his head over the candy, and began to call and strut and flap his arms like a rooster's wings. "Cluck, cluck, rat, tat, rap, cluck," and all the girls came running up and bent to pick up the candy, when the little fellow opened his mouth and took it in at one gulp.

"Oh, you mean boy, you have taken all our candy."

"That's cause I played rooster," said the boy, "roosters always c alls the hens up when he finds a grain of corn and then eats it himself."

A young grass-widow residing near Warsaw was murdered last Firday by a fast young man named Beckisthermer. He went riding with er and gave her wine containing cant harides for the purpose of exciting amorous desires. She was thrown in convulsions and died in two days. The young man has fled the country.

A LAWYER'S SUIT.

Say, Mary, canst thou sympathize
With one whose heart is bleeding,
Compelled to wake from love's young dream,
And take to special pleading?

For since I lost my suit to you,
I care not now a fraction
About those tiresome suits at law,
Those senseless forms of action.

But in my lonely chamber oft,
When clients leave me leisure,
In musings o'er departed joys
I find a mournful pleasure.

How well I know that spot where first
I saw that form ethereal,
But ah! in transitory things
The venue's not material.

And reading Archbold's practice now,
I scarce believe 'tis true,
That I could set my heart upon
An arch-bold girl like you.

But then, that bright blue eye sent forth
A most unerring dart,
Which, like a special capias, made
A prisoner of my heart.

And in the weakness of my heart,
One fatal, long vacation,
I gave a pledge to prosecute,
And filed my declaration.

At first, your taking time to plead
Gave hope for my felicity,
The doubtful negative you spoke,
Seemed bad for its duplicity.

And then thy blush so clearly seemed
To pardon my transgression,
I thought I was about to snap
A judgment by confession.

But soon I learned (most fatal truth),
How rashly I had counted,
For non-assumpsit was the plea
To which it all amounted.

Deceitful maid, another swain
Was then beloved by thee,
The preference you gave to him
Was fraudulent to me.

Ah! when we love (so Shakespeare says)
Bad luck is sure to have us,
The course of true love never ran
Without some special traverse.

Say, what inducement could you have
To act so base a part?
Without this, that you smiled on me,
I ne'er had lost my heart.

My rival I was doomed to see
A husband's rights assert,
And now 'tis wrong to think of you,
For you're a femme covert.

When last I saw your son and heir,
'Twas wormwood for a lover—
For then the plea of infancy
My heart could not get over.

I kissed the little brat and said,
Much happiness I wish you;
But O! I felt he was to me
An immaterial issue.

Mary, adieu! I'll mourn no more,
Nor pen pathetic ditties;
My pleading was of no avail,
And so I'll stick to Chitty's.

COWHIDING A JUDGE.

Remarkable Judicial Proceedings in the Early Court Days of Michigan.

J. H. Kimball, of Eaton county, in a late number of the Eaton Rapids Journal, relates an incident of early court days, which many of the old settlers of Ingham county recollect as having taken place. M. S. Brackett, of Bellevue, one of the principal actors, is now a prominent lawyer, and expects some day to make Lansing his home.

The county system was in force then, and Judge Beardsley, of Bellevue, an Englishman by birth, wore the judicial ermine. Feeling his importance, he aped English manners, even in custom and dress. A bitter hatred existed between himself and M. S. Brackett.

When Beardsley went to Charlotte to hold his first term, Brackett expressed himself to his brother attorneys as being in fear of abuse and insult from the "court" in case he should assume to take an active part in a single suit, for, said he, "Beardsley will be sure to take advantage of his position and brief authority to give me h—ll." And B.'s prediction was correct.

The Eaton county bar was then composed of Luman Foote, D. A. Winslow, H. M. Munson, H. A. Shaw, J. H. Kimball, C. C. Chatfield and the hero Brackett. The somewhat celebrated John Van Arman, then of Marshall, the late lamented Judge Longyear, and other neighboring lawyers often visited and practiced in Eaton, and Van Arman and Judge Longyear were present at Beardsley's first term.

The first case was a school district matter, and occupied four days. Brackett was associated with Kimball in the case, but left all the work for Mr. Kimball to do. The second case was a Brookfield slander suit in which Van Arman, Shaw, Chatfield, Brackett, and Kimball participated. One of the witnesses was a not very bright girl, who, when exposed to Van Arman's peppery cross examination, began to cry. His questions were all pertinent and proper, and were not objected to by the other side; but Beardsley took the girl under his judicial wing and told her she need not answer any more questions. Van Arman insisted he had the right to put all proper questions to the witness and have them answered. The Judge ordered him to sit down. That made Van madder yet, and he kept firing broadside after broadside into the court, and wouldn't "down" a bit more than Banquo's ghost. Counsel on the other side disclaimed having objected, and ventured to say they thought Van Arman had the right he claimed. The unpleasantness grew hotter and hotter, until Van Arman raved and swore terribly. It was near dinner time, and the Judge was getting hungry, demoralized, and sadly the worse for his encounter with Van Arman. So he broke out suddenly and said he knew where all the trouble between the bar and court originated. "It was with a member of that bar on whose head rested the crimes of perjury, robbery, rapine and murder." Then it was jolly to see each lawyer present, except Brackett, spring to his feet, and in his turn demand of the court if he meant him in the application of those epithets? All denied the soft impeachment. Then Brackett, who had never once "peeped" during the term, rose slowly up, pale as a sheet, and asked the court if he meant him? "I can't excuse you, Mr. Brackett," said the court. "Very well," said Brackett, "I'll see you after dinner." And the court was adjourned for such repast, seasoned with "locky" butter and other condiments.

In those days the members of the bar rendezvoused by day and bivouacked by night in No. 1, a good-sized square room immediately over the bar-room of the Eagle hotel, the only public house in Charlotte. After dinner Kimball was the first at the rendezvous; and presently Brackett came in and took from his coat a good-sized raw-hide with which he proposed to whip the Judge on his bench, as soon as the court opened, for the insult given him in the forenoon. The rest of the lawyers soon came in, and a council of war was held; and it was agreed by all that Brackett should demand, in open court, an explicit retraction of the opprobrious language from the Judge, and, in case of his refusal to make it, that Brackett should climb over the Clerk's desk and raw-hide him in his sanctum sanctorum, and all the lawyers would back him in case of interference by officers or others. When court convened in the afternoon, "limbs of the law," who had never used walking sticks before, were observed to have stout canes, and close search would have disclosed to view two or three old-fashioned, single-barreled pistols in as many legal pockets.

The Judge took his seat, the jury was called, and the slander suit was ready to proceed, when Brackett rose and told the court he had a little private matter to settle with him before the case was proceeded with, and, in a gentlemanly but firm manner, demanded that he should publicly, then and there, retract the offensive epithets he had publicly applied to him in the forenoon. The Judge said he had nothing to retract, and ordered Brackett to sit down. Instead of "sitting down," Brackett flung aside his cloak, threw off his undercoat and cravat, and flourishing his cowhide, swore he would take satisfaction instanter, and out of "his honor's hide." The Judge called on the Sheriff and his assistants to arrest Brackett and take him to jail. Sheriff McCargar, the best natured fellow in the county, Tom Curry, his bull-headed deputy, and several Constables, started to obey the judicial mandate. Then Brackett fairly foamed at the mouth and avowed that no human power should take him from that bar alive. Every lawyer present, except the old man Foote, bounded to the inside of the bar and met the officers at the entrance, shouting to Brackett to proceed with his duty, to wit: the castigation of the Judge. Brackett's attention was divided between his friends, the Judge, and the officers, who were now endeavoring to comply with the oft-repeated orders of the court to enter the bar and seize Brackett. They were, however, firmly met and kept at bay by the legal corps, and H. A. Shaw drew some claret from Tom Curry's nose to repay that official for kicking his shin. The Judge became frightened out of his dignity and wits, and in the hottest of the melee suddenly caught up his cloak and made a bolt out by a side door, through the Clerk's office, into the open air, and made tracks for the "Eagle" with most undignified speed.

